OVER A ROYAL KNEE.

HOW THE PRINCE OF WALES WAS CHASTISED BY HIS MOTHER.

Her Majesty Is Benevolent, but She Has a Violent Temper—Personal Observations of a Member of the Royal Household. Her Majesty's Home Life.

[Special Correspondence.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Shortly after my arrival in London I was fortunate in making the acquaintance of an old lady through whom I have obtained considerable insight into the private character of the present occupant of the British throne, and from whom I have learned much of the domestic history of the royal family.

I was entertained by this highly intelligent and interesting old lady—who had for 40 years formed one of the queen's household—with many tales illustrative of the home relations of her royal mistress. These if published would prove interesting and instructive, especially those including that period of the queen's early married life when the rearing of her young family brought out in full relief manifestations of maternal sagacity which as models for imitation might well be impressed upon the thousands of young mothers among her subjects.

I suspect that Queen Victoria's universal popularity among the masses is due more to the oral comments of members of her own household, to verbal expressions from her superannuated but loyal pensioners and to the well circulated but unrecorded testimony of the many thankful recipients of her private bounty than to any public display or published reports of her virtues.

The accusation of stinginess, which is vulgarly believed to be a charge properly imputed to England's queen, is, according to my old friend, entirely without warrant. Queen Victoria is not close fisted or miserly. On the contrary, she is extremely generous, constantly doing acts of charity and giving aid and reward to the needy and deserving. But her charity is without ostentation. She does nothing for display.

HER MAJESTY VICTORIA.

No one ever hears of very large donations from the queen, for she is not lavish in that way. Her experience as Princess Victoria of Kent was such as to render practical economy necessary, and although quite young when called to the throne the lessons taught by her father's financial troubles made their impression and developed that prudence which has guided her in her disbursements during the many years of her long reign.

Queen Victoria's charity begins at home. Her first care is for the welfare of those around her. Her solicitude for the comfort of those of her household is proverbial. With rare tact, her majesty makes herself familiar with the circumstances and needs of every member of her vast retinue of servants—even the humblest domestic is not overlooked—and this without the least suggestion of an obtrusive espionage.

It is seldom that any of these gracious acts within the royal household becomes known to the public. Only once in awhile, when the gift is of a general character, does the ever watchful press get a chance to chronicle it, as, for instance, when her majesty, having ascertained that a number of the children of the domestic and other servants at Buckingham palace were neglected in the matter of education, ordered the purchase of premises in Palace street, Pimlico, and had them fitted up as a school for these children.

When it is considered that this school, which opened with 66 scholars, was supplied with teachers of tried ability, and that the entire expense was defrayed by the queen, who for nearly 40 years has continued to support it out of her private purse, it will be acknowledged that as one of the incidentals this donation goes a long way toward refuting the charge of parsimony against England's illustrious monarch.

I find, however, from the same source which I have hitherto quoted, that no exaggeration is possible in any report relative to her majesty's abnormally violent temper. It is a fact that England's queen is subject to outbursts of passion that are simply astounding in their violence and often appalling in their results. While these spasms last it is often necessary to resort to a degree of restraining force that is not compatible with our notions of a proper treatment of royalty.

Fortunately these exhibitions of temper are generally indulged as an indoor amusement, and the public are spared the mortification of witnessing the extravagant gyrations of their sovereign when she is seized with one of her tantrums. I have heard of only one instance where a display of this ebullient affection was made before a promiscuous assembly of her subjects. The occasion was a naval review. The queen, Prince Albert and some of the royal children, with their usual attendants, were on board the queen's yacht, ready to steam out to review the ships. The pier was crowded with people in holiday attire, and every eye was on the royal yacht as she lay near waiting for the signal to start.

The attention of the queen was called to the fact that the people expected to see her. Although not feeling in the best of humor, she nevertheless stepped out of the saloon and took a seat on the deck. The Prince of Wales, who was then a youth of between 6 and 7 years, followed his mother and for a few minutes stood by her side. After the rounds of cheering which her appearance called forth had subsided, and she had ceased bowing her acknowledgments, she looked around for the little prince, who had moved away.

Observing him engaged in some childish amusement at a short distance from where she sat, she called him to come to her. He did not immediately heed her, and she called again:

"Bertie, come here."

On his failure to respond to this second command the queen, who could not brook the least sign of disobedience in her children, jumped up in a towering rage and walked with rapid step to where the young prince was. Seizing him, she drew him across her knee as she sank into a handy steamer chair and proceeded to spank him with a vim that filled the spectators with astonishment and the royal youngster with anguish.

A dead stillness reigned, for the unexpected novelty of beholding a vigorous flagellation of their future king by the royal hands of his illustrious mother rendered all present mute. It was not until her majesty's wrath was well nigh spent that the ludicrousness of the position suggested itself to some one on the the pier, and an infectious laugh that instantly swelled into a roar of merriment recalled the exhausted queen to her senses and drove her to seek the seclusion which her cabin granted. On this occasion no one seemed to suspect that her gracious majesty was making use of the Prince of Wales to work off a fit of chronic passion. Indeed the affair was accepted as a royal example of parental discipline, and no doubt found imitators, to the sorrow and regret of many a young English lad.

Hard Times Increase Pipe Smoking—Prizes to Dealers In Cigarettes.

[Special Correspondence.]

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—"It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," said a traveling man, whose specialty is smokers' goods, to me today. "The hard times have been the means of transforming many cigar smokers into devotees of the pipe, and the result is that the trade in pipes, all things considered, is not so bad as it might be. No, the converts to pipe smoking do not, as a rule, buy meerschaums. They are too expensive when one is not certain how long he is likely to have to smoke a pipe. The most popular pipes with these men are of brier or tulip wood. With some the pipe habit will become fixed. Sometimes this will be because the smoker learns to like the pipe better than the cigar and sometimes because, having realized from the change how much money he has expended on cigar smoking all his life, he makes up his mind that it is an unnecessary waste.

"I do not know," he went on, "that dealers are apt to try to force trade in either direction, but some are tempted to drive the cigarette business all they can. In fact, cigarettes are more profitable under present conditions than either cigars or tobacco. You see, the competition between cigarette makers has become so great that, in addition to the prizes and photographs which they put in the small packages, they place certificates and half certificates in the big packages for the benefit of the dealers.

"These certificates are redeemable in goods such as spoons, knives, silverware generally, clocks, umbrellas, guns, watches and parlor organs. These goods are of good quality and are worth all they are scheduled in the cigarette manufacturers' catalogues. It would not do for the manufacturers to attempt to palm off inferior goods upon the dealers. In some of the larger cities there are men who go about among the dealers and buy these certificates at a discount and make a snug little profit on the subsequent sale of the goods. In New York I know of two or three individuals who get almost their entire income in this way. As there are more than 2,000 dealers in New York, it will be seen that there is quite a field there for that sort of business enterprise."

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—From estimates made by Superintendent Tucker of the admissions department, the paid admissions this week at the World's fair will reach 1,500,000. He figures 20,000,000 will be the grand total at the end of the month.

Brunswick's Scourge.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Oct. 2.—Twelve new cases of yellow fever were reported yesterday—10 white and two colored. Sixty-five patients are now under treatment.

The New Mississippi Bridge.

Work on the great bridge over the Mississippi river at New Orleans will commence at an early day, the engineers having finally decided on the exact location for it. It is estimated that the building of the bridge will cover a period of three years, and the services of a small army of workmen will be required. When complete, it is expected to be one of the finest bridges in the world.

DOLLARS OF WHEAT.

How Edison Would Settle the Financial Problem.

IRON A PRECIOUS METAL.

Gold and Silver Should Be Kicked Aside.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—A new solution of the silver question has been offered by Thomas A. Edison. In an interview he said:

"The hankering after gold and silver is largely traditional. People allow themselves to be governed by the old ideas on the subject of coinage formulated at a time when national credits did not exist, and currency would only be taken at an intrinsic value. What we need is a new standard of value. I think that the best dollar could be made out of compressed wheat. You take a bushel of wheat and squeeze the water out of it and then compress it into a hard cake the size of a silver dollar, and stamp the government mark upon it.

"That would represent actual value and labor performed, and then you could eat your dollar, for when you wanted to use the wheat all that would be necessary would be to put your money in soak. We should then have the bushel of wheat as a permanent unit of value, which all farmers would appreciate, and the currency of the country would represent actual worth and labor performed. Both gold and silver could then be dispensed with and the present bi-metallic problem solved.

What About Iron?

"Our currency, moreover, would be as good as gold or silver in foreign exchange, for our wheat goes to all the countries of the world. In all this talk about metal for coinage I am surprised that no one has suggested iron. Iron is the most precious metal. Gold is of no use or silver either. Mankind has no use for either gold or silver, but iron could not be dispensed with. If the people would only give up this foolish, traditional, hereditary hankering for gold and silver these metals would not be worth the price of old lead and would be kicked aside by civilization.

"The human race, on the other hand, cannot dispense with iron. Iron must be produced to keep pace with consumption, or its price will steadily rise. The demand for iron is steady and will never cease. Therefore, why not issue treasury certificates on iron? This is the greatest iron producing country in the world, and our output amounts annually to more than the output of both gold and silver.

"Instead of loading up the treasury with these useless metals, and as the people would want bills of large denomination to accompany the wheat dollar, why not buy iron or steel instead, and issue treasury certificates upon that?"

United Press Gaining Ground.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2.—The crumbling conditions of the Western Associated Press is constantly becoming more and more apparent. The Illinois Staats Zeitung has withdrawn from the Associated Press and has been put into the United Press. The Minneapolis Times and the Memphis Scimetar severed their relations with the Associated Press to become full members of the United Press. In dissolving its connection with the former organization, The Scimetar writes a letter stating their reasons for dissolving, stating that the facilities of the Western Associated Press for obtaining news was inadequate.

Sarah Thought It Was Grand.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—Sarah Bernhardt has returned to Paris. She was in Rio Janeiro during the bombardment. When interviewed as to her experience, she exclaimed: "It was simply exquisite. I spent three days and nights in the roadstead to see the display. It was grand, overpowering, magnificent. I shall never forget it. I saw then the grandest scene of my life."

Looks Suspicious.

TISKAHOMA, I. T., Oct. 2.—Dr. Gray, a prominent physician in this town, answered a night call to a distant point. Later the doctor's horse came home riderless, and still later two Indians reported that the doctor had been drowned while crossing the river. It is believed that the Indians killed him.

Boomers Blamed.

CALDWELL, Kan., Oct. 2.—Herman Banners was found hanging to a tree a short distance out of town yesterday. Papers in his possession show that he was a wealthy man of Denver, and had taken up a good claim in the strip, but there were two other claimants for the same land and suspicion points to them as his murderers.

Promiscuous Use of Firearms.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Oct. 2.—Several negroes were riding through Chicopee yesterday and opened fire on James Harrison, 19 years of age. There was no cause for the attack. Three of the men were lodged in jail. The feeling against the importation of negro miners was greatly intensified by the shooting.

Settled at Last.

BANGKOK, Oct. 2.—The final settlement of the questions in dispute between France and Siam was concluded yesterday. The contract will be signed tomorrow morning, and in the afternoon M. LeMyre de Villers, France's special envoy, will leave this city, probably for Saigon.

He Was Jealous.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2. – William Smith, while in a fit of jealousy, shot Henry Miller in the right thigh, and then cut his throat from ear to ear, causing almost instant death. Both young men had been paying attention to the same young lady.

THE DUGGAN house, which was destroyed by fire yesterday, was built in 1806. It was one of the famous old landmarks of North Quincy and was, when first erected, one of the most elegant mansions in Norfolk County. Dr. William B. Duggan, who lived there up to the time of his death, was a gentleman of the old school, who is still remembered by the present generation as a member of the School Committee, he serving on that board up to 1877.

SQUANTUM SAIL OFF.

Gretchen and Eva Win the Championship of their Respective Classes.

The sail-off of the Squantum Yacht club for the first and second classes was held Saturday afternoon off Norfolk Downs in a strong wind from the northeast, which at the start blew almost a gale. The heavy wind, however, did not last long and died down considerable before the finish.

There were two boats in the first class, the Gretchen and Ineta, and it was 2.35 when they passed the judges' boat, which was anchored half a mile from shore. The Ineta had the lead at the start but she was soon overhauled by her rival which finished with a lead of nearly six minutes actual time. This gives her the championship.

In the second class there were three starters, the Eva, Inez and Myrtle, but only one boat sailed over the course, that being the Eva which took the championship. The Myrtle parted her bobstay at Rainsford's and withdrew and the Inez only sailed a short distance.

The West Wind one of the third class boats sailed over the course just for fun.

The judges were Commodore Johnson, Walter Burrell and Frank E. Badger.

As noted above the judges' boat is anchored nearly half a mile from shore and it has been their custom instead of coming ashore after the race to sail over to Atlantic thus obliging the reporters to walk a mile or so in order to get the summary, and when the judges are finally reached it is rather unpleasant to be informed that they have not time to figure out the corrected time, and that the reporters must figure it out themselves or go without. The summary:

FIRST CLASS.

| Name and Owner. | Length. | Actual time. | Corrected time. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Gretchen, J. N. Tewksbury | 26 05 | 2 1 11 | 1 30 36 |
| Ineta, H. Flood | 26 10 | 2 05 07 | 1 34 57 |

SECOND CLASS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Eva, H. E. Nelson | 21 00 | 1 48 08 | 1 13 15 |
| Inez, C. F. Jenkins | 20 00 | withdrew. | |
| Myrtle, Burkhardt Bros., | | disabled. | |

IMPORTED GRANITE.

A Large Increase Even Under Increased Duty.

Ex-Councilman Shaw still continues to take an interest in the protection of our granite industry, particularly from foreign competition. From the Boston custom house he has gained the following figures, which, though unfavorable, will be of interest.

The value of finished granite imported in the year

| | |
|---|---|
| Ending June 30, 1889, | $52,026 |
| " June 30, 1890, | 71,818 |
| " June 30, 1891, | 114,384 |
| " June 30, 1892, | 118,409 |
| " June 30, 1893, | 139,331 |

In 1890 the McKinley bill increased the duty 100 per cent., from 20 to 40, and yet the foreign stone enters so sharply into competition with Quincy and New England granites that there is a largely increased demand for it and home business is dull. Is the duty large enough to protect the granite industry and the granite workers?

—Rev. B. F. McDaniel was installed over the First Unitarian church at Newton Center on Sunday.

A SUNDAY BLAZE.

It Makes a Clean Job of an Isolated House on

ESTATE OF LATE DR. DUGGAN.

House Built in 1806 and Evidently Upon Honor, as it Burned Long.

The fire department was called out at 3.06 o'clock Sunday afternoon by an alarm from Box 61 which was for a lively blaze in the old Dr. Duggan homestead on Squantum street. When the department arrived the whole inside of the house was a roaring furnace and it was plainly seen that nothing could save the building.

The nearest hydrant was a mile away and the steamer was stationed at a small brook nearly 3000 feet away. It was therefore some time before any water could be put on the fire, and then it was little more than mud and too late to attempt to save the building, as by this time the roof had fallen in, and the flames were coming through the sides, sending out a shower of sparks.

The hooks were then applied and the building pulled down.

The building was owned by N. G. Nickerson of Wollaston, and was occupied by R. Augustus Duggan and William Duggan. It was the place where the officers recently found a large quantity of the goods obtained from several firms by Charles Parker alias Charles Duggan.

The cause of the fire was doubtless due to an open fire place or a defective chimney, as it started in one of the rooms up stairs. William Duggan, one of the occupants, says that during the afternoon he had been burning up a lot of old rubbish, but says that when he went down stairs the fire had burned out, although it is more than probable that there were some live embers left which caused the blaze.

The fire was discovered by parties passing through the street, who rushed into the house and gave the warning. The upper story was then all afire and it was impossible to save any of the furniture except that on the lower floor, which was damaged considerable in the hasty removal. Mr. Duggan estimates his loss at $175 upon which there was no insurance.

It was the fifth time that the house had been on fire.

The house was an old one, built in 1806, by the late Madison Glover, and was not insured. Mr. Nickerson would not place any valued on it but the Assessors value it at $800. The land is probably worth more without it than the estate was before the fire.

The house had oak timbers and was evidently built upon honor, as it made a hot fire for about two hours. It removes an old landmark and recalls the name of a respected citizen of years ago. Dr. William B. Duggan was for many years on the school board, and in 1844 was one of a committee of four of the town chosen to meet the Legislative Committee to make the best possible arrangement so as to have the proposed railroad from Boston to Plymouth pass through the centre of the village of Quincy. He began to practice medicine in Quincy about 1826. He was the first clerk of the North school district organized in 1831 serving at various times for ten years.

☞ An old proverb says that marriage is "the only bargain without end." This however is a mistake, for there is no end to the furniture bargains offered by Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

The Trap Club.

The Wollaston Trap club held its regular shoot on Third Hill on Saturday afternoon. The members are having a little laugh at Mr. Olney's expense over the unintentional selling of a gun, which he brought out from Boston, to three parties. The score:

| | |
|---|---|
| J. C. Morse, | 19 |
| Albert Keating, | 15 |
| John Curtis, | 13 |
| W. W. Mitchell, | 12 |
| H. M. Federhen, Jr., | 11 |
| C. W. Tucker, | 9 |
| D. B. Lincoln, | 9 |
| E. M. Walker, | 4 |

The next shoot will be held on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and will be open to all.

WEYMOUTH.

C. T. Foster's clothing store at South Weymouth, was entered Saturday night and $300 worth of goods stolen. The safe was not touched.

The Braintrees and Institutes played another close game at the fair on Saturday, the score being a tie when the game was called because of darkness. The score by innings:

| Innings | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Braintree | 3 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 3 | 1 | —8 |
| Institute | 1 | 0 | 1 | 4 | 2 | 0 | 0 | 0 | —8 |

☞ If you don't buy carpets cheaper this fall than you ever bought them before, its because you haven't looked at the line of Henry L. Kincaide & Co. prices from $.22 to $.85 per yard.

Special Notice.

L. H. Battalia & Co.'s stay in this city is limited and all wishing their pianos reconstructed at low cost should not miss this rare opportunity. All orders should be left this week at C. F. Pettengill's jewelry store or it may be too late. The firm is making arrangements to go to a neighboring city. 4t

THE ALARM TODAY.

From Box 37 was for a fire in an unoccupied barn of John P. Bigelow on Franklin street.

The blaze had started in a pile of old paper and rags which the ladies in the house quickly extinguished without loss.

The central station apparatus was at the scene in an incredible short time, and had a line of hose laid.

CITY CHIT CHAT.

Items of Interest from All Parts of Quincy.

Warmer.

October!

Council tonight.

Very high tides of late.

Has the Indian summer arrived.

Boys wanted to sell the DAILY LEDGER.

Mr. A. A. Lincoln and Mr. George H. Murray of Wollaston are in the Maine woods after deer.

Mrs. Arthur H. Stark and family, who were ejected from their home in Meponset, have found a home with Mrs. C. N. Pierce at Norfolk Downs.

The sun sets this afternoon at 5.24, and afternoons will shorten about two minutes a day until Dec. 2, when they are the shortest, the sun setting at 4.12.

George H. Brown & Co., have sold for John E. Drake, a handsome new dwelling house on Edison street, to Mr. George S. Bass.

Mrs. Mary A. Harvey of Houghs Neck has made application to the Harbor and Land Commissioners for license to build a wharf and float in and over the waters of Weymouth Fore river. A hearing is advertised for Oct. 3.

Those registered at the Greenleaf Saturday and Sunday were: Capt. G. P. Spoffard, Brockton; Henry A. Briggs, Duxbury; A. F. Burdit', Mrs. S. St. Drius, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Stevens, Miss Helen Stevens, Winthrop Coffin, J. H. Coughlin, D. H. Ching, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Stetherine and W. L. Chase, Boston; George Burditt and M. Harlim, Cambridge.

New hours at the National banks today. Both open at 8.30 A. M., the Granite continuing until 3 P. M., while the Mt. Wollaston will close at 11 30 and open again in the afternoon from 2 to 4. One or the other of the banks will thus be open between 8 30 A. M. and 4 P. M. but neither will be open as early or late as in the past.

The Y. M. C. A. rooms were crowded Sunday afternoon by young men who desired to hear Mr. Theophilus King speak upon "The one practical thing in life." Mr. King's address was very earnest and practical. He said in substance that no man could afford to neglect the spiritual life, that it was the one practical thing which he could carry every where in life.

Foot ball.

The Y. M. C. A. foot ball eleven was defeated at Campello on Saturday by a score of 14 to 4. It was their first game and was really for practice, and the boys were well satisfied.

The team lined up as follows:

Leavitt,—centre.
Harlow,—quarter back.
McAndrews,—full back.
McBurnie,—half back.
Donovan,—half back.
Crane,—left guard
Hersey,—right guard.
Ball,—right tackle.
Sargent,—right end.

BRAINTREE.

Sunday morning the tenement house on Pearl street, South Braintree, owned by Mr. Whittier of Boston, was damaged about $500 by fire. The origin is unknown. The house was occupied by three families, who lost most of their household goods.

According to Officers Oliver of Braintree and Knights of Randolph, Chief Engineer F. O. Whitmarsh and Assistants Daniel Gallivan and J. Frank Winslow of Braintree, have a fondness for beer. At the above fire, among the other things moved out of the burning building by the firemen, was a half barrel of beer and a sugar barrel full of bottled beer.

The two officers secured a search warrant and after the fire was extinguished and the apparatus had gone home, they went there to search the place. They found that the ardent had been moved into the building and that the engineers above mentioned and the citizens were having a glorious time.

When the officers appeared the Chief Engineer ordered the officers out of the building, although citizens were allowed to remain.

The officers warned the engineers not to touch the liquor, but they heeded not and staid by as long as the beer lasted.

Installation.

The Rev. James E. Bagley of Boston has accepted the call extended to him by the Wollaston Unitarian society. The installation services will be held on Thursday evening, Oct. 5, at 7 o'clock. The installation sermon will be preached by the Rev. Edward A. Horton of Boston, and the charge to the people will be delivered by the Rev. D. M. Wilson of Quincy.

—The first-class boats from Boston to New York via the Fall River Line have reduced the price from $4 00 to $3.00. A corresponding reduction has been made to all points beyond New York.

☞ Inspect the Kincaide line of parlor stoves,—prices mighty low.

TODAY'S COURT.

S. Wolds Jones of Weymouth was fined $5 for drunkenness.

Charles H. Quinn of Cohasset entered a plea of nolo contendere on complaints of keeping a liquor nuisance and keeping with intent to sell. He was fined $60 on the first complaint and $50 on the second.

☞ Parlor stoves—20 different patterns, $2.98 to $25.00. Lowest prices on earth. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

☞ L. H. Battalia & Co. are reconstructing pianos for Mrs. Dr. Donovan, Mr. Elisha Packard, Mr. J. H. Emery and others. When such people entrust their work to this firm it is a guarantee that they have confidence in them.

AN INDIAN LETTER.

Methods of Communication Among the Indians.

The Picturesque of Eloquence.—Thoughts Expressed in Silence.—How Indian History is Preserved.—Letter from an Indian about Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

The sign language of the Indians is a wonderful thing. Two Indians different in their speech as a German and a Spaniard will readily communicate with each other.

It is the picturesque of eloquence to watch an Indian addressing a council and without speaking a word, making his meaning clear to all present by signs.

Histories and all written communications are made by pictures. The family history of a chief will be painted on a tepee. The following is a specimen of this method of communication.

The "letter" was written by KEE-EL-NAR-WE, "The one who knows secrets," a Kickapoo Indian Medicine Man.

SPECIMEN OF INDIAN LETTER WRITING.

The above letter translates as follows:

"The Indians offer to their white brothers flowers, leaves, roots and barks, made by the sun, the stars, and the rain (nature.) If the white brother is sick, this will make him stronger than the bear who will fall before him."

"SAGWA" is a medicine word meaning good or best, and signifies "best medicine."

Here are the sincere statements of a noble son of a grand race.

Every word is true.

Catlin, the highest authority on the Indians and who lived among them for years, says "the word of an Indian can always be relied upon," and he is right.

Here is proof of the genuine value of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

Here is a letter from a far different source.

The following is from the Professor of Physiological Chemistry at Yale College, and this scientist says:—

"After a chemical analysis of Indian Sagwa, I find it to be an Extract of Roots, Barks and Herbs of Valuable Remedial Action with no Mineral or other Deleterious Admixtures."

Heed the teachings of these letters.

Take Nature's Remedy in season. If your blood is impure and your skin is marked by pimples, blotches and boils; if you have dull pains in your back and side; if your appetite is poor; if you do not get sound, refreshing sleep, so necessary to your health and strength, you are in Danger. These, and other symptoms are the warnings of nature.

Arouse yourself, and drive off the enemy—Arm yourself with Kickapoo Indian Sagwa—build up your system by its use and all danger is averted.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa and other Kickapoo Indian medicines contain only the products of the field and forest, nature's own vegetable growth of roots, barks and herbs, and of necessity are free from all mineral poisons whatever, because the Indians have no knowledge of them, depending wholly upon nature's laboratory for their resources, and upon their skill, born of centuries of experience.

The Rich Escape

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Doubtless many of your readers were surprised on Saturday to learn how easily the Assessors let off Mr. Charles Francis Adams on his real estate. I certainly was, and when I learn that even in recent years it has been valued much less, it makes me more provoked to put it mild. It is not right that my land should be assessed at eight or ten cents a foot and he escape at five cents on some and less than one cent on other. As the LEDGER commented, his residential site is the most valuable in the city and yet the Assessors value it at less than six cents per foot, and some excellent land in the rear, near the City Hospital, is taxed but $350 per acre, less than a cent a foot. Think of it taxpayers. Go up and look at the land, consider its central location and what fine house lots it would make. Would you not give $350 for a lot of 7000 feet which is taxed for but $350 per acre?

Political.

To the Editors of the Ledger:

The vacillating and unstatesmanlike policy which the Cleveland administration has pursued in regard to Hawaii has exposed American interests in the Pacific to grave perils and has made many enemies for the party among its own advocates. Hawaii cannot stand alone and it must be either American or European. If the control of Hawaii be transfered to any foreign nation, the Pacific Ocean would be threatened with a military surveillance similar to that which Bermuda has afforded in the Atlantic. There should be no more hesitation and shuffling regarding a matter of such importance as who shall control the outpost commanding the whole of our possessions in the Pacific. But this is not the only evidence of the lagging policy of the party in power. Indeed, it has shown itself wholly inadequate to deal with the questions of finance and government which have come before it. Even some of the warmest Democrats have become displeased with the way their party has tried to dodge the responsibility which rightfully belongs to it. The treatment of the veterans in the matter of pension has excited disgust, and many democrats will think twice before voting for their party on election day. If they will only forget their party prejudice and vote for the party they know can safely administer the government, a Republican victory will be assured.

A Missed Opportunity.

The names boomed by Quincy people in the "best name" contest of the Sunday Globe made an excellent showing in list of over 800 names suggested. "Carl Fisher," first suggested by F. F. Prescott, was a good third among the boys and "Marion Howe" was third among the girls. The contest was of 12 days' duration, but Mr. Prescott and his friend did all their work in the last five. Helen and Harold, the winning names, were suggested the very first day. In the final summary the first six names stood as follows:

| GIRLS. | | BOYS. | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Helen, | 1373 | Harold, | 1486 |
| Martha, | 1230 | William Russell, | 1421 |
| Marion Howe, | 907 | Carl Fisher, | 907 |
| Monica, | 655 | Le Baron, | 655 |
| Ruth, | 614 | William | 4?8 |
| Mary, | 581 | Ralph, | 426 |
| Louise, | 320 | John, | 417 |

Mr. Prescott and doubtless his friends regret that they did not put in a little more work. They appreciate the help given them, however, and would return hearty thanks for the same.

A Fine Road to Travel.

In this great Columbian year, when all eyes are turned towards Chicago and the great exposition, it is comforting to know that the railroads leading thither are prepared to handle the immense traffic and carry it expeditiously to its destination. One of the roads that is winning golden encomiums by the excellence of its service is the Nickel Plate. The line is through a fine section of country, a great distance of it in view of Lake Erie, and passing numerous cities and towns. Its new passenger service is superb. The dining cars cannot be spoken of too highly, while the sleeping and day coaches are models in their way. Quick time is made going and returning and the service is in all respects first-class. What more can be asked—cheap rates; courteous attention; luxurious sleepers; magnificent day coaches; faultless road bed; unexcelled dining cars. Can anything be added to make the Nickel Plate Road more popular? It runs three trains daily in each direction. Its station in Chicago is central and easily accessible from all directions. If you are going anywhere at any time, don't let the fact slip your memory that a magnificent new passenger service has been established on the Nickel Plate Road. You who have not yet done the World's Fair, try the Nickel Plate and know what it is to enjoy the luxury of first-class travel.—Clipped from Allentown, Pa., Chronicle, August 22d.

ANOTHER WEEK OF DEBATE.

Compromise Legislation May Soon Settle the Repeal Question.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The ninth week of the present session of congress begun today, and the result of the work so far accomplished cannot be said to be encouraging to persons who had hoped for a speedy adjustment of the great national question which caused the issue of the call for the special session. The present outlook is towards a continuation of the debate which has been in progress for the last five weeks in the senate. The renewed talk of compromise legislation, however, gives the impression in some quarters that the end may be near.

The list of speakers has not been completed for this week, and it may be assumed that when it is, the names of few repeal senators will appear upon it, and the debate will be left almost altogether to the silver men. Three of these—Teller, George and Morgan—are entitled to the floor at any time to conclude speeches which they have begun, but not finished. Mr. Call of Florida has signified a desire to address the senate, but this is the only new speech formally announced.

The week's business in the house will be confined, so far as can be stated, to a continuance of the debate on the election bill, under the order which will exhaust itself on the 10th inst. The debate as far as it has progressed has failed to develop any of that intensity of partisan feeling so freely predicted of it.

BOODLING CHARGED.

Gloucester Aldermen and Liquor Dealers In a Law Scrape.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 2.—The case of the alleged bribery of Gloucester aldermen, in connection with the granting of licenses last April, will be taken to the superior court. The announcement was made Saturday, when eight witnesses were summoned to appear before the grand jury at Lawrence, today, to give evidence relating to an inquiry as to the alleged bribery.

The witnesses summoned were George A. Davis, Benjamin F. Ellery, John S. Parsons, George W. Scott, Walter F. Osborne, William F. Moore, Moses Lufkin and John W. Moore.

The case is the outcome of an unfinished investigation begun by a special committee of the board of aldermen. About the time licenses were granted there were many stories afloat as to the licenses being sold, or offered for sale, by members of the board.

The stories more directly affected two members of the board, and some of them got into print. This led to a number of high-worded resolutions being introduced into the board, and the appointment of a committee to look into the matter.

BACK TO ITALY.

Brazilians Would Not Allow the Remo's Passengers to Land.

GENOA, Oct. 2.—The steamship Remo, which sailed from this port for Rio de Janerio and Santos, Brazil, on Aug. 15, with 1433 emigrants, has arrived at Santa Cruz de Teneriffe, in the Canaries, on her return voyage. Cholera broke out aboard her during the outward voyage, and the health officers at the Brazilian ports refused to let her passengers be landed. Up to the time of her arrival at Santa Cruz there were 125 cases of cholera on the Remo and 64 deaths. She is still infected.

Her officers say that the return voyage has been made under great difficulties. The steamer was in great need of coal, water and provisions, and the lack of proper food and drink is believed to have facilitated the spread of the disease among the emigrants. The officials at Santa Cruz provisioned the Remo and got sufficient coal on board for the voyage back to this port.

The People's Insurance Windup.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 2.—Since the decision of the People's Fire Insurance company to wind up its affairs, those connected with the institution are much more free to talk regarding the causes which brought the company to its untimely end. They say the indebtedness of the late president was over $100,000, and that of ex-Treasurer Morrill $38,000. They also feared that more notes might turn up.

Dishonest City Fathers.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2.—Daniel Dauer, a member of the city council from the Fifteenth ward, was indicted by the grand jury on two charges of soliciting bribes from a man who was interested in the passage of an ordinance to improve the terminal facilities of Cincinnati. Bauer's indictment, it is said, will cause the investigation of a similar charge against several other members.

A CLOSE GAME.

Another Will be Needed Before the Mellen Bray & Co. Nine Will be Satisfied.

A very close and interesting ball game was played on the Atlantic grounds Saturday afternoon, between the second nines of the Mellen Bray & Co., Wollaston, and the Wollaston Foundry Co., resulting in a victory for the Foundry nine by a score of 9 to 8 in six innings. In their half of the seventh the Foundry's batted in four runs, when on account of close decision, a big lead to overcome and darkness close at hand the captain of the Brays declined to let his men finish the game. The score:

Lothrop's Magazines.

The Pansy, with its homelike flavor, and sympathetic attitude, especially towards young people, gives in its October number a fresh and attractive variety for all ages. The "American Literature Paper" is especially valuable this month, and Margaret Sidney's discriminating article on Shakspere, in the "Columbian Year Sketches," ought to arouse an interest in the greatest of poets among the young people—and their elders, if there be any who know him not. The magazine is, as usual, very attractively and profusely illustrated.

The October issue of Our Little Men and Women is as full of timely and striking matter as the magazines designed for the older folk. The delightful little people in "A Little Columbian Grandpapa" go to the World's Fair and see Phronsie Pepper and some of their other favorites in the Children's Building, as well as many other interesting things.

Babyland for October, the dainty little magazine, sacred to the babies, is full of most fascinating little stories and rhymes and pictures. The illustrations are this month so extremely beautiful that they would seem to be enough not only to delight, but to develop the artistic sense in every baby. D. Lothrop Company, Publishers, Boston.

A DECLINING ART.

Paper Hanging Is Not Nearly So Remunerative an Occupation as Formerly.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—"A curious and to men in my trade a most disagreeable thing," said James P. Archibald, representative of the paper hangers in the board of delegates to the building trades of New York, "is the decline in the earning capacity of paper hangers during the past 10 years. Before 1883 some of the most skilled men could easily earn $2,000 a year. Now there are very few who can make half that amount. To what do I attribute this? Well, if I were to give you all my reasons, you'd think some of them political, but the chief cause has been the growing favor bestowed upon the higher forms of artistic interior decorations.

"In the old days, when a man built a fine house, he devoted a great deal of time and thought to the artistic papering of its interior walls, and skilled paper hangers with some sense of pleasing harmonies and contrasts in color were in great demand and could easily command fancy prices. Thirty-five dollars was not considered a large weekly wage then by any means; $40 was often paid and sometimes $50.

"Those were palmy days for grainers, too, as the painters who with a brush imitate the natural fiber of wood are called, and paper hangers and grainers were held in very high repute among all classes. But 'natural wood' oiled and polished, and fresco painting, and lincustra, and all sorts of decorations and finishes supposed to be more artistic, came in and little by little hammered down our earnings and drove us practically out of the field, so far as work in the most expensive mansions is concerned. I'm afraid paper hanging will never reach its old place again."

J. C. RALLEY.

Tired of Skirts.

Miss Eugenia de Forrest, an actress who makes her home at San Jose, Cal., has received the sanction of the authorities of San Jose to wear men's clothes in public, and proposes to obtain a legal right to appear in the same garb all over the country. She made her appearance on the streets of San Jose a few days ago in a double breasted sackcoat and waistcoat of dark material, trousers of a striped pattern and a derby hat of the latest style. In her hand she swung an ebony cane. She says she is realizing the dream of her life. She is tired of skirts, and as her stage appearances are mostly in male parts she knows the greater comfort of male attire.—San Jose Letter.

The Guardian of Yosemite Park.

He settled at Wawona, the picturesque stopping place of the Yosemite stages in 1855, built first one cabin and then several more for sightseers and finally became a hotel keeper. Later he was made a Yosemite park commissioner and then guardian. He has just been east to his old home, which he had not seen since the early gold excitement, and to visit the World's fair.—Chicago Herald.

THE PENALTY OF SIN

Sad Story of a Woman Who Deserted Her Husband.

RETURNS WHEN TOO LATE.

Finds That Her Former Husband Has Remarried.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Oct. 2.—A woman who was formerly the wife of R. D. Manchester of this place, but who disappeared from her home 13 years ago, has returned after having been given up as lost by her family and friends.

The circumstances of her reappearance call to mind the story of Rip Van Winkle and his strange home-coming. Friends and neighbors did not recognize her after 13 years of absence, nor did she find many familiar faces.

The village which she had known and where she had worked in a jewelry shop was gone, and in its place she found a large, bustling, thriving town full of jewelry factories and modern residences.

Her former husband, too, had married again, and a group of children were gathered about his knee. There was no welcome for her at his fireside, nor did she claim a place, for with her, too, the years had brought many changes. She left a comfortable home and a life of ease to struggle with the world.

The Elopement.

Her return recalls the story of her mysterious disappearance, which attracted much attention at the time.

She had been married nearly four years. Her husband fairly worshipped her and often boasted he would trust her anywhere. In October, 1880, she disappeared, and it was rumored she had gone off with one of her husband's workmen. For some time no trace of her could be found, and Mr. Manchester was much affected by this sudden destruction of his home. At last the rumor of her elopement was confirmed. It was learned she went with her new lover to his home at West Falmouth, Me. Thence they came to Boston, and he worked as a car driver for a short time. After that they disappeared and the trail was lost.

The sequel to this story is soon told. Last week the missing woman sought out her aged mother and made herself known. Her mother lives down on the Cape Cod shore, and it was here that Elizabeth lived until she went to Attleboro to work in the jewelry shop. After a brief visit here the long-lost daughter visited relatives in Attleboro. Her former husband passed her on the street, but neither spoke. To her relatives she had told the story of her life since they lost trace of her.

After leaving Boston she and her new husband went to several places, but finally located in Philadelphia, where he is working on a milk cart. She has clung to him through varying vicissitudes, and now when she returns next week she will take back her sister to visit her and meet the man who won her affections.

Now Has a Family.

Mr. Manchester has prospered in the interval since his first wife left him. His business is teaming, but for several years he has also superintended the building and repairing of the roads in Attleboro. His grandfather was an early settler and one of the richest men in the place. Mr. Manchester lives in a fine old homestead, surrounded by fertile acres. He keeps 15 heavy draft horses and employs a score of men.

In 1883 he obtained a divorce from his missing wife, and a year later married again. His family consists of three diminutive Manchesters, the oldest a boy of 7.

Mr. Manchester says the man with whom his wife eloped was not much better than a tramp when he came to him in 1879 and asked for work. He employed him and paid him good wages. He knew nothing of his wife's conduct until they disappeared.

He describes her as a small, slender woman, with light complexion, light brown hair, and blue eyes. She was 24 years old when she went away. Her paramour came from an unfortunate family. The father, after marrying three times, ended his life in an insane asylum, and a younger brother is now in an asylum at Augusta, Me.

PROPHET OUSELEY

Says This Age Will Come to an End In 1896 or 1897.

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—We have here in Boston a prophet who reads the word of God in the stars and translates it to the people, and, like Christ, while he was on earth, has his twelve apostles.

The prophet is Rev. J. Ouseley, and the apostles are a Mr. Dunlock of Waltham, Dr. James P. Revere of Charlestown and 10 other persons belonging to the nobility of England.

Dr. Ouseley claims that the word of God is written in the heavens, similar to the way a telegraph operator writes his message, by dots and dashes, and, when asked to translate it, told the following:

Some time during the year 1896 or 1897 this age will come to an end. The people will be destroyed by fire, floods, religious and labor wars, and all sorts of disasters, which will last about a year; but a few people will be saved, and they will start a new Christian era, just as Noah did some 4000 years ago; but he claims it absurd to think any one dies.

Bodies go out of existence, but return in some other human form. If a man is poor now, he will return with riches, while a rich man will return penniless, so making things equal. If a man is poor now, he was rich the last time he was on earth, and we will keep on returning until we have become so perfect we will ascend and have fixed places in the stars.

He also claims that there is no form of religion on earth today that is correct; and the people of today are fully as ignorant in regard to religion as the pagans were at the beginning of the Christian era.

BOGUS CHECK PASSER

Comes to Grief at Bridgeport For Stealing a Team.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 2.—The police last night arrested Willis S. Rogers of Brooklyn on the charge of stealing a team at Norwalk. In Rogers' pockets were found 30 checks of the Norwich Silk company on the Tradesman's National bank of New York, made payable to W. S. Hayward and W. S. Rogers and signed by L. F. Marshall, treasurer of the company. The amounts ranged from $15 to $35. Rogers said he drove the team here to pass the checks and get the money. He says he did not intend to steal the team. He admitted that he had been passing checks for three years, but had never before been caught. There is no Norwich Silk company, but Rogers worked for the Willimantic Silk company at Norwich. He says he belongs to a respectable Brooklyn family, and the death of his fiancee drove him to crookedness.

The Third Attempt.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 2.—An unsuccessful attempt to wreck the steamboat train, bound north, on the New London division of the Central Vermont road was made Saturday evening on a trestle about two miles south of Palmer. Some fence rails were stuck up in the ties, cross-ties, and a sleeper laid across the rails. This was the third attempt within three weeks to wreck this train at this point.

All Quiet at Auburn.

AUBURN, Me., Oct. 2.—No further disturbances have occurred here. Mayor Bolster issued a proclamation yesterday stating that a sufficient police force would be employed to protect all law-abiding citizens in pursuit of their business. Some shoemakers, who arrived on an afternoon train, were followed to their boarding house by a jeering crowd, but no violence was offered them.

A Veteran's Sudden Death.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 2.—Dr. William F. Hutchinson, one of the best known physicians of the state, a prominent officer of the G. A. R., a lecturer and a journalist, died suddenly of heart disease while making a call. Dr. Hutchinson was a prominent Democrat. He was an extensive traveler. He was 55 years of age.

Shots Didn't Take Effect.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 2.—Vicenzo Rosso and Raffale Zovino engaged in a fierce fight in this city last night in the latter's barber shop. Rosso shot at Zovino several times, but missed. He was locked up on a charge of assault with intent to kill. Zovino's barber shop was completely wrecked in the struggle.

After a Spree.

AUGUSTA, Me., Oct. 2.—Mary Scanlon, aged 45 years, was burned to death yesterday. She was intoxicated the night before. It is thought she tried to strike a light, when her clothes caught fire. Fred M. Dean was hurt while attempting to rescue the inmates of the house.

Missing Boy Turns Up.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 2.—Albert Daigneau, the Lowell student at the French Protestant college, whose non-appearance at school gave rise to a sensational story of abduction, has arrived here safely, having spent the intermediate time visiting friends.

Missing Fishermen.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 2.—The members of the crew of the fishing schooner Fernwood got astray while attending trawls and have not been heard of. It is thought their dory capsized and they were drowned.

A Big Cut.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 2.—The employes of the Traction company have been notified of a cut of 25 per cent in wages. The men threaten to strike unless they are given their old pay.

Brief Mention.

The widow of Dr. Graves is going to live in Boston.

Burglars got $100 worth of clothing from Jean G. Lacheur's store in Lowell, Mass.

Mrs. Dr. Ferguson's house and barn in Hadley, Mass., were burned. Loss $5000.

James Green has mysteriously disappeared from his home in Springfield, Mass.

Sanford Wood was held in $1500 at Attleboro, Mass., on the charge of attempted wife murder.

Jeremiah Murphy, an old and respected resident of Uxbridge, Mass., committed suicide by hanging.

Job Stafford, for over 60 years a resident of Bennington, Vt., dropped dead. He was 82 years of age.

Many Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill road conductors were discharged for knocking down fares.

Eugene Phelan, aged 8 years, a son of Jerome Phelan, was kicked to death by a horse at Bridgeport, Conn.

A reduction in wages to C. M. Lee's help at Athol, Mass., the average being 10 per cent., went into effect today.

James Sinon, Jr., of Vergennes, Vt., while playing with a revolver, was probably fatally shot in the neck.

Michael Sullivan, an elderly man, fell down stairs at Nashua, N. H., and received injuries which caused his death.

Charles Danielson was arrested at Portsmouth, N. H., charged with breaking and entering the store of H. O. Hewett & Co.

Israel Geitz, 18 years of age, and William Hadlock, 19, left Westerly, R. I., in a sailboat for Stonington, Conn. Geitz was drowned.

William Shaw was arrested in Bennington, Vt., charged with setting fire to M. E. Burgess' stable Sept. 12. He was held in $2000 for trial.

Notices are posted in all the rooms of the Wiley & Russell Manufacturing company's shops at Greenfield, Mass., announcing a cut in wages.

A searching party at Attleboro, Mass., dug around the Ransom house for traces of missing James Ransom, but found nothing to reward their efforts.

Katie Quinn of Brooklyn, a domestic, employed by F. A. Jacobs at Danielsonville, Conn., was fatally burned while fixing a curtain near a lighted gas stove.

William McCaffrey, aged 45, while drunk and crossing the tracks of the Consolidated road in Providence, was struck by a switching engine and his head split open.

Miss Mary Barber hanged herself at her home on Plain hill, Norwich, Conn. She returned from the World's fair two weeks ago, and has since shown signs of derangement.

Workmen have begun work upon a three-story stone cottage at Bar Harbor, Me., for J. J. Emery of New York and Cincinnati. It will be the finest residence on the island.

Twelve Biddeford (Me.) boys, whose ages range from 8 to 12 years, were arrested for breaking into a confectionery store, recently damaged by fire. They carried off about $50 worth of goods.

While passing beneath Branch bridge, Providence, carrying a railroad tie on his shoulder, John Rogers, a railroad employe, was struck by the locomotive of the Waterford freight and fatally injured.

In the Portsmouth (N. H.) police court, Thomas Souther of Seabrook, N. H., was charged with perjury in falsely swearing that Asa Beckman had sold him cider. Beckman was held for the grand jury on Souther's testimony, Souther being in turn held in $500 bonds.

IS ON SOLID GROUND

Debt of the National League Entirely Wiped Out.

INCREASE IN ATTENDANCE

Shows the Game to Be More Popular Than Ever.

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—The baseball season of 1893 is at an end, and the final standing of the 12 National League teams is given below.

Boston had so much of a lead when she went on the last western trip that the championship was practically won. The two victories in Pittsburg and Cleveland made the matter a certainty, and the team has taken things very easy since that time.

The final result shows that Boston leads the second team—Pittsburg—five games and 49 points.

Cincinnati claims a forfeited game from Washington, and it is so credited, though it may eventually be thrown out.

President Young says that every penny of the $140,000 debt assumed by the National League on the amalgamation of the American Association has been paid in full, and he has in his possession every one of the outstanding notes properly canceled and marked paid. This, Mr. Young thinks, is one of the cleverest pieces of financial work ever accomplished by an organization whose treasury was depleted in 1892, but whose faith, honor and pledge was a bond made to be fulfilled.

Money Came In Fast.

In regard to the improvement of the finances of 1893 as compared with 1892, President Young was unable to give exactly the figures, nor could he without breaking faith with the League, as he is under obligations not to divulge any figures until he makes a report to the organization as a whole.

"This much you can say," said President Young, "the season now nearly closed has been a grand one financially for the League, for every club has shown a decided improvement over last season, and the consequence is that every one has a balance to their credit. The attendance has far surpassed 1892."

This shows conclusively that the American people will support a sport that they know is honest. The most noticeable increase in attendance has been in New York, which, according to President Young, leads the clubs in point of money taken in at the gate. It will be recalled that last season New York was a rank failure in point of attendance, only about 135,000 people attending the games during the season, and that, too, with over 2,000,000 people to draw from.

New York a Good Town.

Philadelphia ranks first in actual attendance, but as the majority of them came under the 25 cents admission fee the city will be found as number four in line when actual receipts are counted. New York takes first place this year, as more money was taken in there than ever before since it became a League city.

Pittsburg keeps up its good work, and is close up to the leaders as a good second. Boston is third. Brooklyn is fifth by a pretty good showing, while Chicago, who expected to do so much during the World's fair, is sixth, with Baltimore and Cleveland right on her heels.

St. Louis, Cincinnati, Louisville and Washington follow, and every one shows decided gains over 1892.

"We have swept away all financial barriers; we have paid every obligation in full; our credit is good, and from the way the turnstiles clicked the year of 1894 will be the banner one," said President Young.

Crowd Was Small.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 2.—The Boston Baseball club and All-Star Americans played a match game at the Athletic park yesterday before an audience of about 300 people. The Bostons won by a score of 10 to 1. The ground was in very bad condition.

Saturday's Games.

At St. Louis—St. Louis, 17; Boston, 6; St. Louis, 16; Boston, 4.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Bank officers here are almost unanimous in the opinion that the senate ultimately will repeal the purchasing clause of the silver act, and thereby restore the foreign investors' faith in American securities.

An Angry Father's Threat.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 2.—Hattie Dawson, the 8-year-old daughter of J. W. Dawson of Oakland, was assaulted by an unknown man. The girl's father says if he finds the man he will kill him on sight.

Mexican Town Devastated.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 2.—The town of Jalpan, Mex., was visited by a terrible storm. Scores of houses were completely demolished and many people killed and injured.

Shot at a Rehearsal.

CARTHAGE, Ills., Oct. 2.—John M. Schaeffer was accidentally shot and killed at a theatrical rehearsal at Nauvoo by Edward Edgebert, one of the actors.

OUR CUSTOMS.

Interesting Samples of What It Costs For Maintenance.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The book of treasury receipts and disbursements for the last fiscal year has just been issued. It shows some curious facts in the matter of customs receipts. At the points named the total receipts from customs for the last fiscal year were: Kennebunk, Me., $9.15; Frenchman's Bay, Me., $34; Castine, Me., $145.56; Bridgeport, N. J., $37.66; Nantucket, Mass., $60; Alexandria, Va., $73.45; Pimlico, N. C., $10.01; Albemarle, N. C., $71.26; St. Mary's, Ga., $47.43; St. Mark's, Fla., $7.20; Michigan City, Michigan, $2.40.

At each of these points a collector of customs is appointed, and frequently he has several assistants to help him collect the revenue. At Alexandria, Va., for instance, where the revenue was only $73.45, the collector received a salary of $214.19 for the year and his deputy $120. At Castine, Me., the collector received $150, besides fees and commissions, and had a special deputy at $2.50 a day, and four regular deputies at salaries ranging from $2 to $1.50 a day. These are fair samples of the force employed at the other customs points named.

TAPPER AND PEEPER.

Tar and Feathers May Soon Decorate an Ipswich Nuisance.

IPSWICH, Mass., Oct. 1.—Who is "Jack the Tapper?" is what every law-abiding citizen in this seacoast town would like to know. For the past two weeks a man described as being tall, dark looking and dressed in dark clothes, has haunted the residence of Captain Weymouth on High street. He has also played his pranks on several other residents on that same street. So thoroughly alarmed are the citizens that they are out hunting for him every evening. Should he be caught by the citizens he will be treated to a good coat of tar and feathers.

"Jack the Tapper" operates after the town has been clouded in almost total darkness nights. He then proceeds to tap on the windows, and thus succeeds in frightening the inmates. Friday evening Captain Weymouth was escorting his daughter home from the store when the unknown came upon them. The miscreant fired stones at them, one hitting Miss Weymouth and another struck the captain in the back.

Later in the evening he fired a stone through the window of John D. Harris' house on Winter street, and it hit Miss Harris on the hip. He was seen peeping into the window of the house after he threw the stone. When the inmates made a move to give chase he ran away like a deer.

The local police have tried to capture him, but he is wary and keeps out of the way when there is danger. He has not so far molested any one with the exception of these three cases, and confines himself to tapping on the windows.

Traffic Delayed.

FULTON, Ky., Oct. 2.—The trainmen and switchmen, yardmen and coalheavers on the Chesapeake and Ohio, at Fulton, have gone on a strike against reduction in wages. Work in the yards has been suspended and nothing except passenger trains are moving.

An Epidemic of Diphtheria.

GRANTSBURG, Wis., Oct. 2.—The epidemic that has been raging among the children in this vicinity is diphtheria and of the worst kind. A large number of children have died. One family has lost five children the past week and four others are very ill.

Satolli to Locate In Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Negotiations are now pending for the purchase for the sum of $35,000 of a residence in this city for Mgr. Satolli. The house selected was at one time the home of Justice Bradley and was also occupied by the late Senator Douglas.

Los Andes Changes Hands Again.

BUENOS AYRES, Oct. 2.—The ironclad Los Andes, which was seized by the rebels a few days ago, was recaptured yesterday by the government cruiser Indepencia. The rebels aboard the ironclad escaped in boats.

A Novel Race Arranged.

Armenian Shoemakers Having a Hard Time of It.

AUBURN, Me., Oct. 3.—The excitement continues among the union men and their sympathizers over the arrival here of Armenian shoemakers. As the Armenians came out of the shops yesterday afternoon they were followed by crowds of men and boys, and just before they reached their boarding house they were attacked, one being struck in the neck.

The Armenians, under the escort of police officers, sprinted for the boarding house by several routes, with the excited crowd in hot pursuit. The Armenians reached their hotel in safety. A crowd numbering into the thousands surrounded the hotel, but the sheriff and his assistants succeeded in dispersing it without further disturbance.

The sheriff has called out 50 men to assist him in preserving the peace. Excitement runs so high that some of the citizens have urged the mayor to request Governor Cleaves to order out the militia.

The manufacturers say that their shops are filling up and that many of the old help are coming in. They affirm that they kept the shops open two weeks to allow the help to return, but the opportunity was not embraced.

Union men say their ranks are substantially unbroken, and that they will eventually win the fight. A citizens' meeting is called for this evening, for the purpose of appointing a committee to consult with the manufacturers and union men. The streets are filled with people, and excitement is running high.

MANY MILLS START UP.

Cheering News From Massachusetts Industrial Centers.

FITCHBURG, Mass., Oct. 3.—The Parkhill Manufacturing company, employing more than 2000 hands, resumed work yesterday. Reductions in the schedules of wages are made, varying from 5 to 15 per cent. In future all wages will be figured per hour, instead of per day or per week.

The Fitchburg Worsted company, the Booli and Baltic mills also started, and will try to run 10 hours a day for five days a week, with a 10 per cent reduction in wages and wages figured by the hour.

The Grant yarn mill is running on full time again, while the great Orswell mills expect to start at once.

Mill No. 4 of the Fitchburg company, at West Fitchburg, has orders ahead for three months and is on full time.

The Putnam Machine company has started up.

CLINTON, Mass., Oct. 3.—The Lancaster gingham mills, which have been running on half time for two months, resumed full time yesterday with an average reduction in wages of 14 per cent. The reduction in wages will last a short time only, the officers say.

AMESBURY, Mass., Oct. 3.—The Hamilton Woolen company have started up on full time, after having been running every other week since the middle of August. All of the hands will now find steady work, although at a reduction in wages.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 3.—The Everett and Pemberton mills started up in full yesterday. They have been shut down for more than a month. A portion of the Arlington cotton mill was also started.

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 3.—The Tremont and Suffolk and Lowell carpet mills have started up on full time. The employes of the Tremont and Suffolk company have had a vacation of eight weeks.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Oct. 3.—The Stevens mill started up on full time yesterday, giving work to 300 persons.

CONTRACTORS RESPONSIBLE

For the Chelsea Disaster In Which Four Lives Were Lost.

CHELSEA, Mass., Oct. 3.—Special Justice Hart, before whom the inquest was held as to the cause of the Chelsea Yacht club disaster, on Aug. 3, 1893, has rendered a verdict finding that Matilda Shuman, Christina Putnam, John P. Warren and A. L. Pemberton, the victims, came to their deaths in consequence of the defective construction of the balcony of the clubhouse, causing a part of the balcony to break down and precipitating the persons to the float or landing stage in the water below.

From the weight and character of the evidence given at the inquest, the court said it could reach only one conclusion, which is summed up as follows:

If the balcony had been properly built by the contractors, Hussey Bros. of Lynn, it would have been entirely adequate to sustain any possible weight or strain that could have been put upon it, and this serious calamity would never have occurred. Either the contractors had no special training or knowledge of the mechanical principles involved in the erections of buildings nor any comprehension of the risks comprised in a faulty construction of work of this character, or having such knowledge and comprehension, they were legally and morally bound to do their work in a manner which would insure the absolute safety of each and every person having occasion to go upon the premises. This they wretchedly failed to do, and are therefore, in the opinion of the court, alone responsible for the cause of the accident and the fatalities and injuries resulting therefrom.

ANCIENTS' FIELD DAY.

They Are Given a Hearty Reception by Pittsfield Citizens.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Oct. 3.—Nearly 200 of the members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company are celebrating the 255th field day of the organization in this city.

When the special train arrived here yesterday afternoon the streets over which the parade was to pass were profusely decorated with flags and bunting, while city hall and Whelden's block presented an especially fine appearance. The day was perfect and a great crowd gathered to emphasize the welcome to the visitors. The train was met at the depot by the Grand Army post, the Father Mathew Cadets and a special committee of the city council.

As the parade started a national salute was fired by George Y. Learned battery. At the soldiers' monument, where the city counsel had assembled, Mayor Peck made a brief address of welcome, extending the freedom of the city to the guests. The parade then moved over a short line of march, the citizens extending a warm welcome all along the route. Last evening a banquet was served at the Burbank hotel, and the company is devoting today to sightseeing. They return to Boston this evening.

Held For the Grand Jury.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—The Globe today gives a long story of an underground scheme for smuggling fur from Canada. It is a sequel to the arrest of Thomas McCormack and Henry Nedecor at Troy, N. Y., who were agents of J. B. Laliberte of Quebec, a French Jew who conducts the largest and finest fur store in the world. He is a man of great wealth, which he amassed largely by defrauding the United States revenue. The agents are held by the grand jury.

Mill Badly Damaged.

HARTFORD, Oct. 3.—A portion of the Windsor Locks Steel company's mill was wrecked yesterday by the bursting of a 14-foot balance wheel, weighing 15 tons. The rim of the wheel, 12x10 inches, was broken in several pieces, which went through the roof, breaking a hole 30 feet square and knocking down a 55-foot smokestack. A 36-inch face, 10-foot engine wheel was also wrecked. The damage is estimated at $5000. No one was hurt.

Annie Bradfield's Death.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 3.—The inquest into the death by drowning of Annie Bradfield in the tank of the sanitary gymnasium was resumed yesterday. Manager Smith of the gymnasium testified that he was with Miss Bradfield that night, but left her on Eddy street; that she visited him frequently at the gymnasium, and was familiar with the premises, but had no key. He knew no reason why she should commit suicide.

Borneo Muskego Sent to Jail.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 3.—Borneo Muskego, the red-bearded African impostor who has been defrauding a large number of prominent church people in this city, was found guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses and fined $30 and costs on three separate charges. Muskego was remanded to jail in default of sufficient funds to pay the amount of his fine.

No Vacancies.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 3.—The strike of card-room help in the Hathaway mill is a failure. The strikers started for the mill yesterday, some of them to work, but found other operatives in their places. The mill is all running and there were applicants in plenty for every vacancy, and several were turned away.

Held For Manslaughter.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 3.—In the district court at Pawtucket the case against James F. Quinn for mingling with certain drink poison with the intent to kill John Gilligan was discontinued and he was arraigned on four counts charging him with manslaughter. He gave bail in $1000 for trial Oct. 15.

Father Hall Accepts.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—An acceptance of his election to the bishopric of Vermont has been cabled by Father Hall, formerly of this city, to Burlington, the headquarters of the diocese. Beyond the mere fact of his acceptance the contents of the message have not yet been made known.

Hon. "Joe" Russell Dead.

MALDEN, Mass., Oct. 3.—Hon. Joseph Martin Russell, one of Malden's oldest and best known citizens, died yesterday afternoon at his home, 142 Summer street, after a long illness.

Veteran Clerk Resigns.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 3.—Charles Blake, who was serving his 29th year as clerk in the supreme court, has resigned. The officer is chosen by the legislature.

Brief Mention.

The Kerr thread mill and Conanicut mill at Fall River, Mass., are shut down for an indefinite period, probably two weeks.

The striking spinners at the Narragansett mill at Fall River, Mass., resumed work, their strike having been unsuccessful.

Harold P. Clark, who has been living in Franklin, Mass., near the Wrentham line, has disappeared, leaving a wife and two children.

At North Franklin, Mass., Henry Hauf, 10 years old, fell from the dam into the mill pond and drowned before assistance could be secured.

Hugh D. Magee, formerly proprietor of the Worcester (Mass.) Dispatch, who is wanted for skipping a bail bond, has been located in Montreal.

The Bridgeport (Conn.) board of trade passed resolutions requesting the United States senate to repeal the Sherman bill and asking for sound money.

Dennis L. Bryant was arrested at Lowell, Mass., at the instance of Abijah A. Pierce, who charges him with forgery. The two are in legal complications.

John Sullivan, a shoemaker, while walking from Plaistow, N. H., to Haverhill, Mass., was held up by two men and robbed of $36 and a gold watch and chain.

Lizzie McKenzie, a demented young woman, wandered into brush land which had been afire, laid down in the ashes and was so badly burned that she died in the Woonsocket (R. I.) hospital.

NUTMEG STATE VOTE

Shows Gains In Favor of the Republicans.

A SURPRISE AT FAIRFIELD.

Complete Turnover at Danbury and Middletown.

HARTFORD, Oct. 3.—There was a light vote at the town election, with gains for the Republicans. John E. Higgins, Democrat, was re-elected town clerk by only 48 plurality. The Democrats elected a majority of the board of selectmen, the board standing three Democrats and two Republicans. George W. Fowler, T. J. Blake and George Ulrich are the Democratic members, and E. J. Smith and Robert J. Griffing the Republican members.

The Republicans elected two of the three members of the board of relief and two of the three school visitors elected. The Democrats have had the majority representation on these boards for years. No other Democratic candidates were elected.

Seven hundred and one women voted for school officers, but not one of them voted for the woman's nominees. The largest number cast for one of these candidates was 657.

The town voted license, and for 12 o'clock as the hour for closing saloons.

The election was a memorable one in New Britain, East Hartford and Manchester, all these towns going no license. The Citizens and Republican parties united in New Britain and carried the town, which is usually Democratic.

Results in other towns in Hartford county: Southington, Republican, no license; Farmington, tie vote; Windsor, Republican, no license; Plainville, Republican, license; West Hartford, Republican, no license; Canton, Republican, no license; Avon, divided, no license; East East Windsor, Republican; Bristol, Republican, no license.

In some of the larger places like Rockville and New Britain the woman vote was large, but in many of the small towns apparently little interest was taken.

Vote of Twenty-Seven Towns.

NORWICH, Conn., Oct. 3. — Twenty-seven towns in eastern Connecticut have reported as follows:

Windham county—Canterbury, Democratic; Plainfield, Republican; Killingly, Republican, license; Brooklyn, Republican, no license; Thompson, Republican, no license; Eastford, Democratic; Scotland, Republican; Pomfret, Republican; Chaplain, Republican; Putnam, Republican; Woodstock, Republican; Windham, Republican.

New London county—East Lyme, Democratic; Sprague, divided; Lisbon, Republican, license; Ledyard, Democratic; Franklin, Republican; Colchester, Democratic, license; Voluntown, Republican, no license; Lebanon, Republican, no license; Bozrah, Republican, no license; Griswold, Republican, license; Montville, Republican; Preston, Republican; Groton, Republican, no license; New London, Republican; Waterford, Democratic; Stonington, Democratic, no license.

The city of Norwich went Republican by a majority of 250, and all the town officers were elected excepting the town clerk.

The city of New London went Democratic, and the council will have a Democratic majority of 2.

Women Helped Out.

ROCKVILLE, Conn., Oct. 3.—A feature of the annual town election here was the registration of 350 women, nearly all voting the Republican ticket for school officers. The town elected the Republican ticket by a majority of 366. The towns of Ellington and Tolland went Democratic. Ellington voted no license the first time in many years.

Fairfield Went Republican.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 3.—The town of Fairfield went Republican by over 300 majority. Nearly all the Democratic candidates were defeated. The town was regarded as Democratic by 300 majority.

Stratford went Republican and no license.

Trumbull went Democratic.

First Time Since the War.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 3.—At the town election the Republicans gained a sweeping victory, electing the board of selectmen for the first time since the war of the rebellion.

Democrats Routed.

DANBURY, Conn., Oct. 3.—A big vote was polled here and the Republicans won by an average majority of about 100. Last year the Democrats carried the town by 700 majority.

Wissman's Good Work.

BERLIN, Oct 3.—A dispatch from Zanzibar says: Major Wissmann, with his expedition, arrived at Tanganyika on July 7, after numerous hard fights with the Arabs. He was victorious in every fight, and liberated hundreds of slaves.

No Deaths Reported.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Oct. 3.—Twelve new cases of yellow fever were reported yesterday. On St. Simon's island two cases were reported. There are now four cases on Jekyl island, two of which have been reported to date.

The Color Line In Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 3.—The new state law requiring separate coaches for white and colored passengers went into effect yesterday. All the railroads have complied. The colored people will file a suit to test the legislation.

Paid All Obligations.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct 3.—The interest on all the Philadelphia and Reading railroad's obligations which fell due yesterday were ordered paid by the receiver. The total amount involved is over $400,000.

Father Shot by Son.

ADRIAN, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Andrew Evaland, a hotel proprietor here, was shot and fatally wounded by his son, who was taken to the Bath jail. The fight was the result of a dispute.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 10, 1893.

A Well-deserved Award.

The Treasury Department at Washington, after receiving bids from the largest and best-known carpet manufacturers and dealers throughout the country, has awarded to the old and trustworthy house of John H. Pray, Sons, & Co. of Boston, the contract for furnishing Brussels carpets for government use throughout the country for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894.

This contract amounts to about 20,000 yards, more or less, and is for Brussels of the firm's own manufacture, having as a guaranty of the quality the firm's name woven on the back of every yard of carpet that is delivered, so that the house cannot fail to be well known in all government buildings and offices throughout the United States wherever the carpets are seen.

Messrs. Pray & Co.'s reputation for selling only standard and reliable goods seems to have been well maintained, as the government standard is a high one, and the tests are most severe.

NEW POSTMASTER.

Daniel C. Lyons to Succeed Thomas Gurney at Atlantic.

[Special to the Daily Ledger.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2,—Mr. Daniel C. Lyons was today appointed postmaster at Atlantic, Mass., vice Thomas Gurney.

Postmaster Gurney, when seen by a representative of the LEDGER this morning, said he had received no official notification other than the news that a successor had been appointed, although he had heard of it and presumed it was correct.

Mr. Gurney did not appear to be much surprised that he was to be removed, and as far as outward appearances went, did not seem to feel disappointed.

When asked about the establishment of a post office in Atlantic, Mr. Gurney said, previous to 1873 there was no office in Atlantic and people from that section got their mail through the office at Neponset. The mail was not carried to and from Atlantic by any particular person but was taken by any person who happened to be going that way. The office at Neponset has since been discontinued.

In 1873, a fourth class office was established in Atlantic, in Mr. Gurney's store, on Hancock street, and Mr. Gurney appointed postmaster by Gen. Creswell who was Postmaster General under President Grant. The compensation of the postmaster at that time was $12 per year. This was later changed and fourth class offices were paid according to the amount of stamps cancelled.

The office has continued to increase under Mr. Gurney's administration, so that now the compensation is in the vicinity of $100 per quarter.

The office was moved to its present location about 1875.

Mr. Lyons could not be found this morning, and it is not known what his plans are, although it is rumored that the office will be located in the building near the depot, now used as a news stand.

TODAY'S COURT.

William Tate of Quincy for drunkenness was fined $5.

William Tate for assault on Thomas B. Hayes was fined $10.

The Brockton Fair.

This attractive fair which always draws many thousand persons together, opens tomorrow, Wednesday, and continues throughout the week. Excursion tickets on the Old Colony railroad, including admission to the fair, are sold at Quincy station for 70 cents.

From year to year the visitors to the fair note many improvements in and about the grounds. The present season is no exception to the invariable rule of the management to expend their profits in making the exhibition the most attractive in New England.

A big water main has been laid from the street right to the edge of the track. From this will be taken water for laying the dust in all parts of the enclosure. Every man, woman and child who attends the Brockton fair will commend the forethought and enterprise of the officials in thus providing against the possibility of flying particles of sand and gravel.

As stated elsewhere, several hundred additional chairs are provided in the grand stand.

The track has received special attention. Every one knows that it is one of the best half-mile tracks in New England.

The enlarged halls is an imposing and elegant structure.

New ticket offices have been built to better accommodate the large crowds who daily besiege the gates.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

It Wants Justice Done Architects for Hose Houses

OF BRICK INSTEAD OF WOOD.

Plans Submitted for a New High Schoolhouse to Cost $60,000.

Councilman Adams was the only absentee at the regular meeting of the City Council Monday evening.

Cross Street.

Commissioner Ewell returned the order making an appropriation for a change of grade of Cross street, all the abutters refusing to release claims for damages. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Jurors Drawn.

Upon notice and motion the following jurors were drawn for the civil session of the Superior court: Jonathan Baxter, William Allison and Fred H. Coombs.

Water Bonds.

Mayor Fairbanks requested a change in the water bond order that $20,000 in bonds might be issued in denomination of $500 instead of $1000.

Councilmen Moxen offered an order authorizing the treasurer to issue $20,000 of the water bonds in denominations of $500 each, instead of $1,000 each. Adopted.

High School Plains.

The Mayor, as requested, submitted plans for a new High schoolhouse. Sixteen had entered the competition and the one meeting the approval of the School Committee and Mayor will cost as follows: Building $57,000; heating and ventilating, $3,500; supervision, $1000. The Mayor suggested that if work was begun promptly the building could be completed for the fall term of 1894. He also believed a better contract could be made now than next spring. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

New Auctioneer.

An application of W. H. Brasee for an auctioneer's license was granted.

Petitions.

A petition of the Boston Fire and Police Notification Company, asking to be notified promptly of all fires and other privileges, was referred to the Committee on Fire Department and Police.

Andrew Milne and others petitioned for a street light at the corner of Water and Liberty streets. To Committee on Lights.

H. O. Souther and others petitioned for the improvement of Mill street. To Committee on Streets.

Henry R. Askew presented a claim for personal injuries received at the corner of Union and Baxter streets in September. Referred to Executive Department.

Frank Copp and others petitioned for the extension of Glencoe place to Elm street or to High school avenue.

Police Vacations.

The Committee on Fire Department and Police, reported favorable on the recommendation of the Mayor, that the permanent members of the police force be given one week's vacation and reported an order appropriating $125 for the pay of substitutes. Order ordained.

Hose House Plans.

The joint committee on Fire Department and Police reported adversely on the plans submitted by the Mayor for hose houses in Wards Two and Four, believing the buildings should be of brick rather than wood. The commite reported the following order:

ORDERED,—That the Mayor be and he is hereby authorized to procure plans for a brick hose house in Ward Four, to be located upon a lot of land in Ward Four to be determined upon later, the dimension and general arrangements of said building to correspond with plans recently submitted to the committee; and the sum of $200 is hereby appropriated for the payment of the cost of said plans; and the City Treasurer is hereby authorized to borrow said sum of $200 and to issue therefor one note of the city for $200, payable in one year from date of issue, at a rate of interest not to exceed six per centum per annum.

The order took its first reading.

Councilman Federhen offered an amendment to strike out "to procure plans," and insert, "to publicly advertise for and submit to the City Council plans."

The amendment provoked considerable discussion. Councilman Federhen thought there had been an unjust discrimination against architects.

Councilmen Moxon, Baker, Anderson, Badger, Shackley, Johnson, Robbins and others thought it very unfair and unjust to use one architect's plans as a basis for procuring competitive plans. Few had objections to competitive plans but before the amendment was made all reference to existing plans should be stricken out.

Councilman Federhen understood the Mayor to have furnished the plans gratuitously, and considered it no breach to use them as a basis. They were generally satisfactory and the architect would probably be selected in the end.

Councilman Holbrook said some seemed to think it always "fair" to support the Mayor and "unfair" to oppose. He understood only rough sketches had been prepared.

Councilman Drake set him right by saying the plans were in first class shape, that he never saw better plans, that architect expected pay only if plans were used.

The amendment was lost.

Councilman Federhen thought he had the laugh on the Council in that members had not voted as they intended, but found himself mistaken. He moved to strike out reference to existing plans.

Councilman Moxon thought the necessity did not now exist.

Councilmen Baker and Brown opposed competitive plans.

Councilman Lennon favored competion, saying the contract methods were rotten.

Councilman Robbins thought order all right as it was.

The amendment was lost by a vote of 10 to 11 as follows:

YEAS,—Badger, Donahoe, Federhen, Holbrook, Lennon, O'Connell, Owen, Rooney, Smith and Williams—10.

NAYS—Anderson, Baker, Bass, Brown, Drake, Grindell, Holden, Johnson, Moxon, Robbins, and Shackley—11.

ABSENT—Adams and Sherman.

Councilman Federhen offered a third amendment, which was unanimously adopted, that the trimmings should be of Quincy granite.

A like amendment was made to the Hose 2 plans.

Councilman Federhen moved a suspension of the rules that the order might be put through.

Suspension prevailed and the question was on passing the order to a second reading.

Councilman Moxon again questioned the expediency of building of brick, as these were not to be permanent buildings. Additions would be required in a few years.

The order was passed to be ordained by a vote of 17 to 3, as follows:

YEAS—Anderson, Badger, Baker, Brown, Donahoe, Drake, Federhen, Grindell, Holbrook, Holden, Johnson, O'Connell, Owen, Robbins, Rooney, Smith and Williams—17.

NAYS—Lennon, Moxon and Shackley—3.

ABSENT—Adams and Sherman.

The order for plans for Hose 2 house was passed to be ordained by the same vote 17 to 3.

Other Reports.

The Committee on State Aid reported an order granting Martin Heatherston $4 per month. Adopted.

The Committee on Sewers and Drains, in relation to the petition for improvement of Furnace brook, reported it be referred to the executive department for information and recommendation as to the best means of improving said brook.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing October 16, on the petition for a brick sidewalk with curbing on Beale street, between Hancock street and railroad bridge. Adopted.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting a location to the N. E. T. & T. Co., to erect polls on Palmer street, between Sea and Bicknell streets. Referred.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting permission to Haverhan & Son to run guy wire across Robertson street. Referred.

Polling Places.

Councilman Anderson offered an order establishing the following polling places for the State election.

Ward 1,—Ward Room, City Hall.
Ward 2,—Graham hall, Sumner street.
Waad 3,—Hose house, School street.
Ward 4,—Forester's hall, Crescent street.
Ward 5,—Perry's hall, Newport ave.
Ward 6,—Engine house, Newbury ave.

Councilman Lennon moved that hose house be substituted for Perry's hall in Ward 5.

Councilman Brown and Robbins objected, the hose house was out of the way and the citizens objected to it.

Councilman Williams favored the change. He believed in making people go to the hose house. The people of Wards Two and Three had been obliged to go out of the ward to vote.

Councilman Grindell objected to going out of the ward to vote.

Councilman Anderson thought it unfair to oppose Ward Five simply because Ward Three had to go out of their ward to vote.

Councilman Baker said this was simply a matter to pay back because a Councilman at large from Ward Five had opposed the appropriation of $4,000 or $5,000 for a polling place in Wards Two and Three.

Councilman Federhen did not believe in compelling people to vote where they did not want to.

The amendment was lost and the order was adopted.

A communication was received from the Mayor enclosing a notice from the Harbor and Land Commissioners of a hearing to be given today on a petition of Mary A. Harvey to build a wharf and float at Houghs Neck.

Councilman Moxon moved the communication be referred to the Committee on Public Grounds, and that they be requested to attend the hearing. Passed.

Adjourned at 9.55.

Whicher—Branson.

A special from Cincinnati, O., to the Herald under date of Oct. 2 says: At noon today, in the parlors of the Burnet House, charming Mae Branson was united in marriage to Mr. Louis E. Whicher, a wealthy young Bostonian. Miss Branson was formerly a member of Dixey's company and latterly with Rice's "1492."

The wedding was strictly private, the guests being principally friends of the bride, including the smiling "Adonis" himself, who arrived in town this morning with his company. Miss May Withers was the bridemaid and Mr. E. A. Lord of Boston the best man. Breakfast was served after the ceremony for an even 50. Rev. Johnston Myers tied the knot.

The bride and groom leave tonight for the east. They will reside in Brookline, Mass. Telegrams of congratulation poured in by the hundred.

The M's Make a Large Showing in Numbers and Wealth.

The M's today make a large instalment in the list of heavy taxpayers, including many of the granite firms, especially in Ward Three.

Patrick McDonnell's estate is the heaviest taxpayer in the list, and the Manet Land Associates are a good second. Among other prominent ones are McKenzie & Paterson, McDonnell & Sons, George L. Miller, the estate of Charles Marsh, and others.

Sold Very Low.

It seems to have been the custom of E. F. Sanderson & Co., and other firms with which Charles Duggan aliss C. O. Parker of Atlantic, and C. C. Sullivan were connected to obtain all the goods possible on credit and then to sell it at ruinously low prices. Here is one of many similar transactions: One purchase was an order for 56 stoves from a firm in Middletown, Pa. These stoves ordinarily sell for $45 and cost about $35, yet Sanderson & Co., sold nearly all they secured for $12 each.

☞ Inspect the Kincaide line of parlor stoves,—prices mighty low.

MODEL POWER STATION.

The Quincy & Boston Street Railway Now Supplies Its Own Power.

The cars of the Quincy & Boston street railway are now propelled by power generated at the company's new power station. It was turned on for the first time Saturday afternoon.

The new power station is a model one and constructed so as to meet future wants and is said to be the best in the State.

The station is situated at Quincy Point in the old boiler manufactory building which has been changed on the inside to meet the requirements of the heavy and delicate machinery necessary to generate the powerful current.

The north-east corner of the main building has been partitioned off as an engine and generator room, and here is located a large Ball high speed engine of 350 horse power. This drives the armature of a 550 volt generator, which is practically 165 horse power.

The engine and generator are set upon solid granite foundations. There is also provision made for a second generator of like capacity, which has not as yet been placed in position as it is not needed. The engine, however, is powerful enough to drive both generators.

The feed wires enter through a window and pass to a switchboard on the wall, from which the wires pass under the floor to the generator.

The switchboard is of black marble, with brass and nickel trimmings. On this board there is a bus bar to distribute the current; a volt metre to show the voltage on the line; a 300-ampier am metre to show strength of current used by the cars; an automatic circuit breaker, with reset and tripper; potential receptacle; a 215-ampier switches; rheostat field switch and lightning arrester, the whole forming a very handsome board.

Beneath the floor of the engine room there is a condenser, pump and heater, the water used in the boilers being salt water which is pumped into the condenser, thence through the heater into the boilers.

The boilers, two in number, are located in a large, roomy brick building, 55x55, adjoining the main building, and are each of 150 horse-power. It is only necessary at present, however, to use one of them.

From the station two feed wires are run, one as far as Washington street where it joins the Quincy Point and North Weymouth line, and the other to the car house where it enters a switch-board which distributes it to the other lines.

This board is so connected that the current on any one or the whole of the trolley lines can be immediately cut off. Thus, should there be a fire on the West Quincy line where the trolly might endanger the firemen, the current can be immediately cut off but would not interfere with running cars on the other lines.

The gentlemen in charge of the station are G. P. Eaton, chief engineer, and David M. Kidder, assistant engineer. The wiring and fitting up of the station was done under the personal supervision of Supt. Weeks.

A ROUGH TRIP.

And Narrow Escape From Drowning of Two Washed Overboard.

The Globe reports the sloop yacht Agilis of Quincy to have gone ashore on the rocks on first cliff point, Scituate, at the entrance to the harbor, Sunday forenoon, pounding badly.

The sloop was seen flying through the heavy breakers about 8 o'clock, and soon brought up hard and fast on the rocks at the spot where the ill-fated fisherman Norton, with 15 sailors, stranded a few winters ago.

Volunteers quickly got out the boat of the Massachusetts Humane Society from its station on the sand hills and put off to the scene.

They put out anchors for the unlucky craft and rendered all assistance possible.

When the sloop went ashore it was low tide. A very high sea was running and it was unsafe to attempt an entrance. Capt. Ed. Richardson and a party of Neponset and Quincy gentlemen are on board on their annual trip to the gunning grounds here.

They had a very rough trip down, and broke their main boom when off Minots. Two of the party were washed overboard and had a narrow escape from drowning. Again, while ashore, two more of the party were thrown overboard by the violent pounding the boat was receiving, but the boat was nearly high and dry and they were quickly hauled on board.

Their yawl boat went adrift and was picked up on the beach further south.

The craft floated about 10.30 and was kedged out into deep water, but went ashore again a few hundred yards further up the harbor.

She was again floated and brought up the harbor at noon. She received a severe straining, opening her seams, smashing the rudder, and had a narrow escape from being a total loss.

LATER—The party when interviewed by the LEDGER, said the above report was rather too sensational. That no one was washed overboard. The gentlemen of the party were Frank E. Badger, J. E. Drew, Walter Burrell, George Badger and Edward H. Richardson.

☞ An old proverb says that marriage is "the only bargain without end." This however is a mistake, for there is no end to the furniture bargains offered by Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

—Ex-Vice President Morton was a clerk.

☞ If you don't buy carpets cheaper this fall than you ever bought them before, its because you haven't looked at the line of Henry L. Kincaide & Co. prices from $.22 to $.85 per yard.

IN CONGRESS.

Senator Washburn Backs Up a Statement Which Was Questioned.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The resolution proposing a postponement of action on the repeal bill and other measures until the three vacant seats from Montana, Washington and Wyoming are filled was brought up incidentally by the senator who introduced it last week (Mr. Dubois, Rep., Ida.). He disclaimed any purpose of obstruction in offering it.

This revival of the subject gave Mr. Washburn (Rep., Minn.) an opportunity of declaring the proposition to be absolutely absurd, particularly in view of the fact that two of the states concerned were not silver producing, and had no more interest in the silver question than other states, and were, furthermore, now represented in the senate by men who would vote for unconditional repeal of the Sherman act. This last statement was instantly challenged by both Mr. Dubois and by Mr. Wolcott (Rep., Colo.), who asked for the authority on which it was made.

There was no hesitation on Mr. Washburn's part in gratifying their curiosity. His authority, he said, came from the two senators themselves (Messrs. Squire and Carey), and he stated afterwards in precise terms that the senator from Washington (Mr. Squire) had told him that he would vote for the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law.

The statement seemed to surprise the senators from Colorado and Idaho. Mr. Dubois asserted that Messrs. Squire and Carey would vote against the pending bill. He did not say what authority he had for the assertion.

The debate on the silver purchase repeal bill was continued by Mr. Kyle (Pop., S. D.) against the repeal and by Mr. McMillan (Rep., Mich.) for it. Mr. Dolph (Rep., Or.) also made an argument against the free coinage of silver.

Outside of a humorous speech by Mr. Clark (Dem., Mo.) against the federal elections laws, the proceedings in the house were lacking in interest. He kept the attention of the house for more than an hour, and his sallies were enjoyed alike by political friend and foe.

CONFLICT OF AUTHORITY

Which Will Sooner or Later Be Ventilated In Court.

SOUTH BRAINTREE, Mass., Oct. 3.—During a fire at the house of Mrs. Mary Griffin a barrel of beer and a barrel containing bottles filled with beer were rolled out from the house. Officer Oliver swore out a warrant, and with Officers Faxon and Knight of Randolph went to the house and proceeded to take the beer, when Chief Engineer F. O. Whitemarsh interfered, stating that he had charge of the building and forbidding the officers taking the goods.

The barrel of beer, it was claimed, was made by Mrs. Griffin, and she gave it to the firemen to drink; the barrel containing the beer bottles was claimed by Dennis Carroll, who occupied a tenement in the house. The officers departed, but say they are not through with Chief Whitemarsh, who, they claim, overstepped his authority in the matter. The court will, doubtless be appealed to in the case.

Treasury Figures.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The debt statement shows a net increase in the public debt less cash in the treasury during September of $834,798.78. The interest bearing debt increased $150, the non-interest bearing debt increased $487,136.50 and the cash in the treasury decreased $408,277.28.

Russell Sage Loses.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 3.—Russell Sage of New York has lost his suit against the Winona and St. Peter railway. It involved 47,000 acres of land, valued at $240,000. The suit was brought to settle the title of valuable land in southern Minnesota.

The Mirror of Life.

Do you wish for kindness? Be kind.
Do you wish for truth? Be true.
What you give of yourself, you find.
Your world is a reflex of you.

For life is a mirror. You smile,
And a smile is your sure return.
Bear hate in your heart, and erewhile
All your world with hatred will burn.

Set love against love. Every deed
Shall armed as a fate, recoil.
You shall gather your fruit from the seed
That you cast yourself in the soil.

Each act is a separate link
In the chain of your weal or your woe;
Cups you offer another to drink
The taste of their dregs ye shall know.

It Shall Be Well.

If thou shalt be in heart a child,
Forgiving, tender, meek and mild,
Though with light stains of earth defiled
O soul, it shall be well.

It shall be well with thee indeed,
Whate'er thy grace, thy tongue, thy creed,
Thou shalt not lose thy fitting meed.
It shall be surely well.

—Lewis Morris.

Pleaded Guilty.

ROCKLAND, Me., Oct. 3.—Michael Angelo Ferraro was arraigned before the supreme judicial court on a charge of manslaughter in killing an Italian fellow-laborer at Warren last July. Ferraro pleaded guilty and was sentenced to four years in state prison.

In the Hands of Receivers.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—The Swampscott Machine company, a New Hampshire corporation doing business in this state, has gone into the hands of receivers. The liabilities are said to be about $150,000 and the quick assets in this state about $50,000.

Robber O'Brien Held For Trial.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—James O'Brien, who was brought here from Chicago for the alleged larceny of $2000 worth of jewelry from Waxman Bros. about two years ago, was arraigned yesterday. He pleaded not guilty, and was held in $5000 for trial.

Financial Condition Is Fair.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—A special meeting of the New England League was held here yesterday. Secretary-Treasurer Morse read his report, showing the league to be in a fairly good condition financially.

Found and Lost a Treasure.

One of the rarest books extant is the first edition of "Don Quixote," published in Madrid in 1605. Recently a collector in the City of Mexico while examining a pile of old books for sale in one of the remoter wards of the city came across an ancient edition of "Quixote," but mistaking the date concluded it was not a first edition. Next day he discovered by reference to his library that the book was a genuine first edition.

He went back to find the treasure, but it had been sold for waste paper in the interim, and although search has been made in every small shop in the city the precious volume cannot be found. A few years ago a California book collector bought in an old bookstall there a first folio edition of Shakespeare, paying $15 for a book worth $6,000.—New York Times.

Bartholdi's Latest Work.

M. Bartholdi, the eminent sculptor, is putting the last touches to his colossal work, the group which, in accordance with the will of Baron Gruyer, is to be erected in Switzerland in commemoration of the assistance rendered by that country to France during the war of 1870-1. The prompt succor afforded to the city of Strasburg by the Swiss after the terrible siege and the hospitable reception extended to the wornout troops of Bourbaki's army are both represented allegorically on the monument, which shows Switzerland covering Alsace with one protecting arm, while with the other she sustains a figure of wounded France. This superb work is to be erected on a public place at Bale.—Chicago Evening Post.

MOBILE SUBMERGED.

Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Goods Damaged.

AWFUL VELOCITY OF WIND.

Many Killed In the Neighborhood of New Orleans.

MOBILE, Oct. 3.—A southeast gale began blowing here yesterday morning about 4 o'clock, the wind increasing in velocity until 1 p. m., when it blew at least 50 miles an hour. The barometer is still falling. The wind has blown the water in from the gulf, until the river has reached Royal street, which is four blocks from the river and at an elevation of about 15 feet from mean river height.

All the wholesale and a great portion of the retail districts of the city are some four feet under water, and thousands of dollars' worth of goods have been damaged.

The pilot boat Ida Low has been driven on the wharf at the foot of St. Francis street. The bay boat Heroine was driven on the Mobile and Ohio wharf and almost totally wrecked. The Crescent City, another bay boat, left Point Clear at the same time the Heroine did and has not since been heard from.

It is reported that three dredges, working on the channel, have been lost. It is also reported that 50 miles of the Louisville and Nashville road along the coast is under water, and the the Biloxi bridge has been swept away by the gale.

Wires Are Down.

Nothing has been heard from the gardeners in the marshes east of the city, and the worst is feared. Telegraphic communication is broken in almost every direction.

In the city houses have been unroofed, trees blown down, and one cotton warehouse has succumbed to the fury of the gale. The smokestacks of all the manufacturing industries have been blown down.

Street car traffic has been totally suspended because of the damage to the electric wires, and the city will be in darkness, as the waves are fast encroaching on the electric light works.

The business thoroughfares of the city are being navigated in boats, and parties are wading up to their armpits in an effort to save goods.

It is admitted to be the worst storm that has ever visited Mobile. The southern part of the city presents a scene of wreckage, as if it had been bombarded. The towers on the court house and Curist church are tottering.

Dredge No. 5 turned over near the lighthouse and three men were thrown into the waves. At great peril the crew of the tug Captain Sam steamed to the rescue and saved two of the men, the other being lost. An unknown white man lost his footing while wading in the union depot at the foot of Government street and was swept under the bridge and drowned.

TWENTY-FIVE LIVES LOST.

Enormous Damage In New Orleans and Neighboring Towns.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 3.—A terrific storm struck New Orleans, coming from the northeast, sweeping to the south from here along the line of the Mississippi river, through the parish of Plaquemine to the gulf. The storm was one of the very worst which ever visited this part of the country, and so far as can be learned twenty-four or more persons were killed and probably three times as many wounded, some of them fatally. The crash of sheds and buildings blown down and houses unroofed caused intense alarm, and most of the population of the city remained up all night expecting houses to be blown down.

Among the buildings in the tide were Serapapu street market, which crushed several buildings in its fall. The Burdette Street Mission church, the cotton yards of the Northeastern railroad, Coleman's boiler shop, the Pythian hall and a number of other buildings were unroofed. The Revetment levee on Lake Pontichartrain, which protects New Orleans from overflow on the rear, was washed away, the water sweeping over 15 feet or more. Many of the yachts there were sunk or injured. The New Orleans and Northeastern had its track flooded for seven miles, and so badly was held that it can run no trains.

Three deaths and one person wounded severely, if not fatally, is the mortality record in New Orleans. Below the city it was far worse. In Plaquemine the wind reached a velocity of 100 to 125 miles an hour, and sweeping everything before it.

In the parish seat of Justice Pointe a la Hache, a town of 2000 people, not a single house escaped injury.

Four grown people are known to be killed in Pointe a la Hache and several children. How many is not exactly known.

It is probable that the mortality will be greatly increased when news is received from faraaway settlements on the gulf coast below Pointe a la Hache.

The orange crop was ripe on the trees and about to be harvested. It was completely destroyed in the storm, with a loss of $350,000 or more on this one item. The loss is very heavy in other crops and property, but the news is too vague yet to form estimates as to the amount. Policeman Ulrich Baur was killed in this city by falling building.

Pilot S. S. Rhodes, of the Canal street ferry, while steering the boat, was stricken with heart disease.

In Memory of Parnell.

DUBLIN, Oct. 3.—The corporation of this city has resolved to attend in state the demonstration that will be held on Sunday next in Glasnevin cemetery in memory of the late Charles Stewart Parnell, whose remains are interred there. Sunday will be the second anniversary of the Irish leader's death.

Ellison Sentenced.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Frank Ellison, the man about town and stockbroker who has been on trial for the past week for assaulting Broker Henriques, who almost died from his injuries, was found guilty of assault in the second degree and sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

Roberts Starts Out Well.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Frank C. Ives and John Roberts played the first of the series of billiard games in the match of 10,000 points last night, and Roberts defeated Ives by scoring his 1000 points while the American made 542 points.

IN NEED OF AID.

Clara Barton Gives a Timely Hint to the Charitable.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The following telegram has been received from Miss Clara H. Barton, president of the American National Red Cross, at Beaufort, S. C.:

CLARA H. BARTON.

"The Red Cross has today officially accepted and assumed control of the relief of the Sea islands sufferers, tendered two weeks ago by the governor and committee of South Carolina. This implies the housing, feeding, clothing and nursing of 30,000 people for eight months, with no aid from the government and no fund but the direct charity of the American people. Our headquarters and address is at Beaufort, S. C."

WALTHAM'S BICYCLE MEET.

Tyler and Johnson Lower Records on the New Track.

WALTHAM, Mass., Oct. 3.—Two world's records were established at the first annual fall meet of the Waltham Bicycle Park association held on the new track, and 3000 people witnessed the events. All the cracks were present, and the races, with one or two exceptions, were the best ever seen in this vicinity.

In addition to the world's records made, Zimmerman went a mile in 2:07 with a flying start, and Willie Windle established a new track record in competition, covering the mile in 2:15 4-5. Sanger was not in it today, he failing to get but one prize, third in the mile invitation. This was the surprise of the day, as he was looked upon as a sure winner.

Harry C. Tyler made a new world's record for one-third of a mile, with flying start, in 38 1-5, and John Johnson, the western flyer, made a new record for two-thirds in 1:24 2-5.

TEMPERANCE FOLKS MEET.

An Interesting Report on the Situation In New Hampshire.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 3.—The New Hampshire State Temperance union convened here yesterday in annual session. These officers were elected: President, ex-Governor D. H. Goodell of Antrim; a vice president from each county; secretary, J. A. Merrill of Nashua; treasurer, E. B. Gould of Nashua; an executive committee of 50, with Samuel Upton of Goffstown chairman.

The report of the secretary stated that in 90 towns in New Hampshire no liquor is sold; in 70 there has been a great reduction in the sale, and in 65 the situation is unchanged. President Capen of Tufts college delivered an address and the session closed with the adoption of resolutions and an address by Hon. S. B. Page of Woodsville.

Relief From Cares of Office.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—President Cleveland, Secretary Gresham, Secretary and Mrs. Carlisle, Secretary and Mrs. Lamont, Postmaster and Mrs. Bissell, Assistant Secretary Hamlin and Mrs. Perrin occupied a private box at Albaugh's Opera House last evening to witness the initial performance in this city of Marie Jansen's new play, "Delmonico's at 6 p. m."

Complicated Case Settled.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 3.—The United States circuit court of appeals decided the case of Frederick Prentice against the Duluth Storage and Forwarding company, involving Duluth land valued at $1,000,000. Judge Sanborn rendered a decision against Prentice. The case was one of the most complicated land cases in the history of Minnesota legal contests.

Preparing For the Big Race.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. — The Valkyrie showed her full beauty yesterday when she was hauled out of the water in the Erie basin. The Vigilant left the ways at Hawkins' yard yesterday, and now lies off of Peipgrasse yard. Her crew are busily engaged in shipping the new main boom which is to be used in the race.

Suits Aggregate $250,000.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 3.—Twenty-five suits for $10,000 each, in behalf of workmen who were brought here from the east to take the places of the striking shopmen of the Louisville and Nashville road, were filed yesterday. The plaintiffs claim that they were brought here under misrepresentation.

Australians Outdone.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—The great international cricket match between Australia and Philadelphia, which began on Friday last, ended yesterday afternoon, Philadelphia winning by 68 runs and an inning. No such feat has ever been performed by an American team in this country.

They Want Winter Prices.

MACON, Mo., Oct. 3.—One thousand men, comprising all the coal miners at Devier, stopped work yesterday and demanded the usual winter increase per ton for digging coal, which always commences Oct. 1. The Ardmore miners will take the same action.

Twenty Thousand In Line.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The veteran volunteer firemen of New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City came out last night to the number of 20,000 in a parade in honor of the 50 members of Pacific coast veteran volunteer firemen who are visiting in this city.

Omaha Theater Burned.

OMAHA, Oct. 3.—The Farnham street theater was burned yesterday afternoon. The total loss is estimated at $252,000. Six persons were injured by falling walls, and Fireman Jerome is missing.

Triple Murder and Robbery.

BUTTE, Mont., Oct. 3.—Three Chinese gardeners, living about two miles from this city, were murdered by unknown persons. The motive was robbery, as $600 was taken.

Dunraven Dined.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. — Ex-Commodore James D. Smith, chairman of the America's cup committee, gave a dinner to Lord Dunraven last night at Delmonico's. It was a very exclusive affair.

MY NEIGHBOR'S BOY.

He seems to be several boys in one,
So much is he constantly everywhere!
And the mischievous things that boy has done
No mind can remember nor mouth declare.
He fills the whole of his share of space
With his strong, straight form and his merry face.

He is very cowardly, very brave;
He is kind and cruel, good and bad,
A brute and a hero! Who will save
The best from the worst of my neighbor's lad!
The mean and the noble strive today;
Which of the powers will have its way?

The world is needing his strength and skill.
He will make hearts happy or make them ache.
What power is in him for good or ill?
Which of life's paths will his swift feet take?
Will he rise and draw others up to him,
Or the light that is in him burn low and dim?

But what is my neighbor's boy to me
More than a nuisance? My neighbor's boy,
Though I have some fears for what he may be,
Is a source of solicitude, hope and joy
And a constant pleasure, because I pray
That the best that is in him may rule some day.

He passes me with a smile and a nod.
He knows I have hope of him, guesses, too,
That I whisper his name when I ask of God
That men may be righteous, his will to do.
And I think that many would have more joy
If they loved and prayed for a neighbor's boy!

MAGIC IN THE EAST.

I have intended to tell the story of little Akli before. I don't know why I haven't done so, unless it has been because— But I will tell the story this time.

I had been journeying through Egypt in company with my friend, Harry Kellar, the magician. We were stopping at the quaint old town of Boolak, which is situated on the right bank of the Nile, at the divergence of its Pelusiac branch, one mile northwest of the historic city of Cairo, of which it forms a suburb. Our host was an Egyptian grandee, whose fine country place overlooked the shipping from just outside the more densely populated part of the town.

One day we were strolling down near the landings when an old Egyptian market woman besought us to purchase some of her tamarinds, naming an exorbitant price.

"Why, my good mother, do you sell these tamarinds at that low figure?" exclaimed Kellar in mild surprise, addressing her in her own tongue. "They are worth much more than that, I am sure."

She looked surprised; so did our host.

"Yes, I was sure of it," Kellar continued, and he broke one of those that he had taken up and drew a small copper coin of the country from its center.

For a moment the woman was too startled to do more than regard the coin with wonder. Then, however, her natural avarice asserted itself, and she snatched the bit away from Kellar's unresisting hand.

"Ah! I see you are a fakir," our host said smilingly as we moved on. "It was well done. Now I know that you and my other esteemed friend here will more than ordinarily enjoy the slight diversion I have to offer for your entertainment after coffee today. Perhaps, too, you may have the keenness—though it is not in me to explain the performance to divine how little Akli can survive the marvelous act Abalani forces him to do, and to discover how Abalani can perform his part of the strange entertainment.

But about the old market woman: A servant told our host later that she had hurried directly to her rude cot on our departure, where she had carefully opened every tamarind in her basket to find the copper bit in its center. The disappointment she suffered on not finding a single bit of money and the loss of the spoiled fruit served her right for attempting to impose upon the supposed ignorance of strangers. But Kellar was too large hearted to allow the lesson to be one that should make her the poorer, and the servant was dispatched directly to the old peddler's home with more than twice the worth of the fruit in coppers.

That evening Abalani, the fakir, arrived at our host's house.

He was a small, wiry little man, whose age was about 45, if you were to judge it from the dark, clear eyes with which he quickly summed you up. They seemed to pierce me through and through as he made a deprecatory bow before me, his thin arms and palms extended toward me in the attitude of benediction.

His only garments were a light breechcloth of a dark red shade and a flowing silk mantle, dark yellow in color. The only ornament he wore was a dark copper ring hanging from his neck by a greasy looking piece of leather or cord.

I looked for Akli, the little boy with whose assistance he performed the tricks we expected to witness.

But Abalani was alone.

I then looked for the coil of rope which I had heard played a part in the strange spectacle.

The fakir had brought none.

I said to myself that we were to be disappointed, and that the little weazen limbed fakir had come to make excuses for his inability to amuse us this time, and I could see that Kellar thought the same.

But our host retained his wonted good nature as though nothing was wrong, and it was not the place of either Kellar or myself to show disappointment. Meanwhile the little fakir led the way to a smooth bit of ground not far from the house.

Here we almost unconsciously formed an expectant circle about him.

He spoke few words, and we maintained a perfect silence under the spell the little fellow seemed to throw around him. But this was not the sensation of gazing upon a serpent that one experiences when witnessing the performances of so many of his class.

"My masters, you wish to see Akli climb?" he said in a crackling, restrained tone.

"They do," our host answered for us.

The man clapped his thin palms together twice smartly.

As he did so a small boy appeared by his side like a flash where there had been no one the moment before. Kellar started forward with an involuntary exclamation on his lips. I, too, was greatly startled. The fakir had thrown aside his silk mantle and stood before us clothed only in his breechcloth. The boy, a handsome lad of apparently 10 or 12, was similarly clothed. At my request he took my hand and gave it a friendly pressure.

"I must have a rope—must have a rope!" exclaimed Abalani nervously, and he gesticulated in the air quickly with his right arm, his actions seeming to fascinate me.

"Ah!"

He ceased the action, and lowering his arm displayed a large coil of native rope in his hand that it would have been impossible for him to have concealed about his person. Then, with a quick motion, he pitched one end of the coil straight up into the air, keeping the other end in his grasp.

The line seemed to catch up there in the atmosphere. It staid there dangling down between us.

Abalani ordered Akli to climb up, hurrying him with a word of impatience and stamp of his foot.

Akli shook the rope with one hand, as if to see if it were quite secure, and then did as he was requested.

Up, up, up, he clambered, higher and higher, gradually growing smaller and smaller as he ascended until he actually disappeared from view. Yet we could tell that he was still climbing away up there, for the rope before us trembled with the motion that he made. Abalani did his best to study it.

Then suddenly the fakir clapped his hands and sprang to one side. We heard the rushing sound of a body falling through the air, and then the form of Akli landed upon his feet before us unhurt and smiling. Another clapping of Abalani's hands, and rope and boy both disappeared.

The fakir stood alone before us. Kellar and I were mystified. He asked that Abalani perform the trick again. When it had been done a second time, Abalani left us as perplexed as before.

For my part I gave the whole riddle up. I had seen many a strange feat of jugglery, but this one completely nonplused me. Kellar was determined not to leave Boolak until he had satisfied himself as to how the trick, or feat, had been performed.

A week passed. Our host enjoyed Kellar's quandary keenly as a boy, and joked him about it. However, Kellar joined us on the porch one afternoon with a certain amused expression upon his face that made me feel reasonably sure that something interesting was up.

"I should like to see little Akli climb just once more this afternoon," he said, dropping into a low steamer chair with more satisfaction than I had noticed him evince for the past week, "Con and I should be leaving tomorrow or the next day at the latest."

To make known a wish there was to have it gratified. After coffee that afternoon Abalani came walking gravely up the shaded path, his slight figure clothed as before—in the flowing mantle and scanty breechcloth—that dark copper ring, a shade lighter in color than the breast it hung against, his only decoration. As before, he was alone.

There were the same low salaams, his dry, hard palms that were of almost the whiteness of mine being stretched over us. Few words were spoken. The man could not have been more deferential. But at the same time I thought that I detected a gleam of egotistical challenge in his dark eyes that made me hope Kellar would succeed in detecting his trick and increased my desire to know how it was performed.

We moved down to the place in the garden where we had witnessed the act before, Kellar slipping into the house a moment first. Little Akli appeared as bright and smiling as when we had first seen him. The rope appeared, Akli had climbed it, when I heard a slight, sharp "click!" on the side where Kellar was standing. When little Akli had clambered out of sight, Abalani clapped his hands twice. We shuddered as we heard the sound of Akli's falling body. The rope had disappeared, and the little fellow stood there bowing before us. The next moment he was gone.

Kellar hurried me into the house and to our room. The room had a dark closet, and soon Kellar was hold up a dripping 4 by 5 plate from his camera for me to view by the dim light of our ruby lantern.

I could see our host, arms akimbo, looking up wonderingly. I could see Abalani—showing up white in the negative—his thin arms raised above his head, his feet braced widely apart, as they had been when steadying the rope for little Akli to climb when I had heard the shutter of the camera snap. But there was no little Akli to be seen anywhere, nor any rope, for that matter.

Abalani had mesmerized our host, Kellar and myself, but it was beyond his fakir skill to mesmerize our detective camera.—Conyers C. Converse in New York Herald.

Chinese Dudes.

China is perhaps the last place in the world where one would expect to find dudes and mashers, but it appears that in Shanghai the gilded youth among the Celestials have adopted the masher costume. Very curious they look in their high collars and tight fitting coats. They have also taken to wearing foreign underclothing, eating foreign foods, smoking foreign tobacco and doing many other things contrary to the old fashioned Chinese usage. They also ride in foreign carriages, men and women together, and some of them live in foreign houses in grand style. There are also hundreds of schools kept by Chinese where nothing but English is taught, that being considered the most useful language.—London Globe.

LETTERS FROM PILLSBURY

Stating His Reasons For Withdrawing His Name.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—The latest developments within 24 hours in the Republican situation as to the governorship are that Pillsbury and Hart are out of the race, and that Greenhalge and Wolcott will be the ticket to be nominated at the convention on Saturday.

This came about yesterday noon. Mr. Pillsbury himself took the bull by the horns and dictated a letter of withdrawal, which was given the public through the press. This move precipitated ex-Mayor Hart "in a cavity," so he, too, gracefully fell into line.

The action of the attorney general has been foreshadowed to some extent. He learned for the first time on Saturday the situation as to his chances for a nomination, having been confined closely in conducting the Trefethen trial at East Cambridge. The conference of his friends, in which he was an interested listener, and the showing of the actual number of delegates he could expect in the convention, did not impress him at once with the idea either to withdraw or go ahead. He consented to allow an investigation to go on for a day or two longer, and being at last convinced that Mr. Greenhalge possibly had the nomination within his grasp, he indited his letter of withdrawal.

It was an unselfish act on his part and shows that he regarded the party's welfare more than his own ambition, and further indicates that he did not wish to be a party to a contest in convention, the folly of which was shown in the Crapo campaigns, in at least two of which he was a conspicuous leader.

The Letter.

So many inquiries are being made by the press and others as to my position and purposes, that it is proper for me to make a brief statement for the information of my friends and others interested. I have been so engaged for the past few weeks as to know very little of what was going on in the political field, and have not yet obtained full information of the present situation and the preferences of the delegates.

I have no doubt more delegates are friendly to me than I have been generally credited with. The published statement of 800 is as near the truth as the most careful inquiry can make it, but it is evident that Mr. Greenhalge has more, and has enough to fairly entitle him to the nomination, and perhaps to secure it. Under these circumstances it is plain to me that I ought to remove all obstacles from his path so far as possible, and as my office and the duties belonging to it prevent me from active participation in the campaign, I ought to do all now that can be done for the success of his candidacy.

I would not listen to the suggestion of any combination or arrangement among other candidates. Such a movement is neither good politics nor fair play. If I had anticipated a struggle for the nomination I should not have been a candidate; but I did not and was advised by men of judgment and influence in the party that my candidacy would be in the party interest. I shall do that which will contribute most to unite the party upon the leading candidate.

I am deeply grateful for the confidence and support of my friends. They have made a clean and honorable though modest campaign, and have nothing to reproach themselves with so far as I know. I am sure they will concur in the view that my proper course in the interest of the party is to promote the nomination and election of Mr. Greenhalge, and I have written him to this effect.

ALBERT E. PILLSBURY.

Boston Opinions.

Henry A. Thomas, Mr. Greenhalge's manager, says: "We consider it a very magnanimous thing for Mr. Pillsbury to do, and shows the spirit of unanimity that prevails in the Republican party. I think we will nominate Mr. Greenhalge without any difficulty, and, with that harmony in the ranks which Mr. Pillsbury's action illustrates, success is certain."

Hon. Josiah Quincy: "Mr. Pillsbury's withdrawal does not surprise me. I cannot see that it will have any material effect upon the situation. The nomination of Mr. Greenhalge has been discounted for some time, and the formal withdrawal of Mr. Pillsbury merely indicates that he prefers to accept the situation in advance of the convention. In my opinion Mr. Pillsbury would be a much stronger and safer candidate for the Republican party than Mr. Greenhalge, and I am therefore glad that he is definitely out of the field.

"The support of the attorney general came from a class of conservative Republicans whose active interest in the campaign would have been of great value to the party. Mr. Greenhalge has won the nomination through the active exertions of the more radical and hot-headed elements of the Republican party, of whom he is undoubtedly the logical candidate. I cannot see anything in his candidacy to attract a single independent voter, while Mr. Pillsbury could have secured a considerable vote that is not firmly attached to the Republican party."

Lieutenant Governor Wolcott says that this action signifies a harmonious convention. Further than that he would not talk for publication.

Pillsbury to Greenhalge.

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 4.—The following correspondence is made public by Mr. Greenhalge, consisting of Attorney General Pillsbury's letter to Mr. Greenhalge, announcing his withdrawal from the contest for the gubernatorial nomination and the reply to the same forwarded to Mr. Pillsbury last evening:

BOSTON, Oct. 3.

MY DEAR GREENHALGE—I am not yet out of court long enough to have learned much of the political situation, but without disputing as to the preferences of delegates, I am satisfied that you have a sufficient lead to entitle you to the nomination, and that there ought to be no contest over it. Under these circumstances I shall act upon the impulse of the friendship which has always existed between us, and do all in my power to promote your nomination with the harmony and unanimity which will go far to secure your election, and as my office and official duties disable me from much active participation in the campaign, it will give me pleasure, if you and your friends desire it, to move your nomination in the convention. I am, as ever, yours truly,

E. A. PILLSBURY.

Mr. Greenhalge's Reply.

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 3.

MY DEAR PILLSBURY—Your kind and manly letter entitles you not only to my gratitude but to that of every good Republican in the state. I have decided that whatever contest there might be should be carried on in an honorable and kindly spirit, worthy of the party of the commonwealth and of ourselves. This feeling, I know, has been shared and acted on by you and by all engaged in the canvass. I accept with pleasure and sincere thanks your kind offer of moving my nomination in the convention.

This courteous and graceful action on your part only strengthens the bonds of friendship always subsisting between us. Yours sincerely and cordially,

FREDERICK T. GREENHALGE.

CZAR'S LIFE IN DANGER.

Story of a Plot Comes From Copenhagen This Time.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—A dispatch from Copenhagen to The Central News says: Exciting reports are current here concerning a plot against the czar. It is stated that a French monk appeared at Fredensburg castle on Sunday, claiming that he was sent by the pope on a secret mission to the Princess Waldemar, King Christian's daughter-in-law, who would present him to the czar. As the princess and the other royal personages present refused to receive him without previous inquiry the monk disappeared. No trace of him has been found since.

The Wedding Postponed.

MT. VERNON, N. Y., Oct. 4.—McDonald Croff, a widower of Pelhamville, was to have been married yesterday to Miss Kate McCalliard, the belle of the village. At the appointed hour the bride was awaiting the arrival of her fiance. After waiting some time it was found that Croff was not in the village. His whereabouts are a complete mystery. Miss McCalliard is completely prostrated.

In Congress.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The only interesting feature of the proceedings in the senate was a severe lecture to the senate by Palmer of Illinois, who told his colleagues they should act and not filibuster. He said they were fast losing the respect of the people. Boutelle of Maine muddled Kyle of Mississippi in the debate in the house on the election repeal bill.

Declared Insane.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., Oct. 4.—Lena Brown was put on trial yesterday for the murder of her 5-year-old son, and the two children of William Harvey of Bordentown, a year ago, by strangling them. The jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty" on the ground of insanity and recommended her committment to the asylum.

A Watchman's Error.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Oct. 4.—Watchman Thomas Baer gave the wrong signals at Catasauqua, which resulted in a disastrous collision between a coal train and a shifting engine with 26 oil and coal cars, in which one man was killed and one fatally injured. Watchman Baer, realizing his responsibility, walked home and shot himself.

Baby Ruth's Birthday.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Ruth Cleveland and her sister Esther were 21 months old and 24 days old, respectively, yesterday. Numerous telegrams of congratulation were received at the White House addressed to the little girl. Baby Esther is thriving. Mrs. Cleveland has taken a drive daily since Saturday.

Suicide to Avoid Prosecution.

BUDA-PESTH, Oct. 4.—Alexius Bokrus, vice president of the Hungarian lower house, embezzled funds intrusted to him by a client, the Countess Montbach, and had spent it all in speculation. The countess began proceedings against him, and, fearing the disgrace, he committed suicide.

A Dishonest Ticket Agent.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—M. M. O'Donnell, ticket agent for the Michigan Central railroad at Windsor, Ont., was arrested while attempting to sell Michigan Central tickets to ticket scalpers. Over $600 worth of tickets were found on his person.

Reading Wants an Extension.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—The Reading railroad receivers are still negotiating with Speyer & Co. of New York for an extension of the $2,500,000 loan which fell due yesterday. It is believed here that the loan will be exteaded.

Yellow Jack's Progress.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Oct. 4.—Fourteen new cases of yellow fever were reported yesterday. There have been three deaths. Surgeon Murray reports six well-developed cases of yellow fever at Jessup.

And Towns Swept Away by the Great Gulf Stream.

ENORMOUS PROPERTY LOSS.

Meager Stories of the Great Destruction Wrought.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 4.—The great storm has passed, and although the wires still are down, bits of intelligence continue to come in from various parts which impart the information that the loss of life, to say nothing of the destruction of property, is tremendous. From Bayou Cook it is reported that the settlements of the fishermen have been completely demolished, and that the loss of life has reached the appalling figure of 250.

Grand Isle, a summer resort lying in the gulf, directly in the path of the storm, is said to have been utterly destroyed, and it is known that the loss of life is large. Many people were there spending the early autumn season. The hotels and the two long rows of cottages which constituted the resort are said to be no more, and it is feared that the loss of life at this point will be very great.

In the parish of Plaquemine, the villages of Bombemia and Shellbeach were wiped out, and at least four lives lost in each place.

On both sides of the river the sugar, rye and orange crops suffered greatly, and on the west side the loss of life is reported to have been very great. It will be some days before the full extent of the damage wrought will be known, but it is feared here that the grand total will pale into insignificance the number of deaths reported from the storm which recently devastated the Atlantic coast.

A lone and ragged fisherman from Bayou Cook came to the Socola canal, opposite Pointe a la Hache, yesterday, and reported that of the 300 people who composed the colony but 30 had succeeded in escaping the fury of the elements. The fishermen had all retired Sunday night, as usual, and though the wind was blowing pretty hard, there was no forerunner of the terrible catastrophe that followed.

As the night grew apace, the wind increased in velocity, and the water rose with startling rapidity, and before the unfortunates, who had no possible means of escape, had time to grasp some floating object, they were overwhelmed with the awful might and found their fate in watery graves.

He had clung to a tree throughout the night, and when morning dawned the scene of wreckage that spread before his view was simply terrible. Of the many little cabins which had sheltered the prosperous colony the night before barely one was standing. Of the 300 or more human beings who inhabited them, but a tenth of the number lived to tell of the night of experiences filled with horror. He describes the visitation as in the nature of a tidal wave, which swept everything before it.

While nothing definite was received from Grand Isle, there was a general impression at Point a la Hache that dire disaster had occurred there, and it was even reported that the water had swept over the island, carrying everything before it in its awful fury, and much concern was felt for the safety of the two or three hundred inhabitants who were known to have been there. The report also says that the big hotel had been blown away.

Report has it also that the settlements at Chenier Amanuda, which is directly across the bay from Grand Isle, had been the scene of a terrible loss of life, but this also lacked confirmation. No communication was possible with these points, and it will be several days before the extent of the calamity there is made known. It was also reported that several casualities had occurred in the neighborhood of Fort Jackson, but there was no way of getting at the particulars.

The greatest damage by this storm on the left bank of the river from New Orleans to the gulf is to the crops, and especially rice, which suffered severely.

The orange crop of Plaquemine is ruined to the extent of a quarter of a million dollars.

The Louisville and Nashville railroad is covered up. A mile of its track at English Lookout has been wrecked.

Pensacola's Dose.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 4.—The most destructive storm that Pensacola has experienced in 20 years began at 6 o'clock Monday morning and raged with increased fury until a late hour Monday evening. The storm had been brewing since Saturday. The wind reached a velocity of 66 miles an hour. The rain fell in torrents and was swept in blinding sheets through the streets. No loss of life has been reported, but upon every street uprooted trees and roofless buildings testify to the storm's force.

On Baylen street wharf a large building used for smoking fish was blown into the bay. It was stored with cured fish and the loss will be great. On the same wharf, a dwelling and its contents was lifted from its foundation and dropped into the bay. The greater damage was on the bay. The Portuguese bark Josephine H and the Norwegian bark Wilhemia were blown on the beach. The fishing smack Isabella is also on the beach.

The only train reaching the city during the day was from the north at 4:35. All other trains are greatly delayed. All telegraph communication was cut off before 10 o'clock Monday, wires being down in every direction, and no news of the storm could be sent out until last night.

Worst Not Yet Known.

MOBILE, Oct. 4.—The details of the storm which broke on the gulf coast Monday morning are just beginning to come in, and, as was feared, indications are that the loss of life in the lowlands east of the city has been very great. There is no doubt that it will be a week or longer before the full story of the storm, with all the attendant details of death and destruction, will be told.

BROCKTON FAIR people hardly know what it is to have bad weather. Ill luck seems to be with them on their opening day.

TOMORROW THE DAILY LEDGER will publish in full the correspondence between the Quincy Branch of the Irish National League and the Treasurer of the Independent Home Rule Fund of Ireland, forwarding and acknowledging the Quincy contributions to the Irish cause. The letter of the latter is lengthy and of interest to the friends of the Emerald Isle.

THE NEW HIGH school-house of Plymouth, regarded as a model when built last year, and which cost $40,000, is reported unfit for use. It was built on a wet lot and cannot be heated, and the incinerating of sewage causes an offence which is "rank and smells to heaven." It is hoped that Quincy's new High school will have no defects.

CONCORD, N. H., schools are progressive as was shown at the meeting of the board of education this week. An instructor in manual training was elected. New apparatus was voted for the training school, an electric oven for the cooking school, and shrubery for the school lawns. It was also voted to introduce typewriting as a regular study in the commercial course.

Artistic Bay State Work.

The old Hancock house, which is the dower of the State of Massachusetts in Jackson Park, is the most thoroughly artistic and symbolical creation among the state buildings. It is nobly direct in all its interpretations. The rough stone block house, the old-fashioned garden, the interior setting and furnishings of the rooms are consistent with the early days that it represents. The portraits that decorate the walls of this quaint building are mainly of oil and are copies.—Chicago Herald.

Admiral Dot Has a Daughter.

Admiral Dot, the lilliputian, who is now a cigarette advertisement in Chicago, is only 48 inches high, but he received a telegram last Sunday night that made him feel as big as Grover Cleveland. It was dated New York and read: "It's a girl and weighs six pounds. Mother and baby doing well."

Mrs. Dot is now with the parents of her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Kahn, who live in New York, and it was there that the baby was born. Mme. Matilda Baumach is the trained nurse who looks after the youngster and incidentally after the whole family.

"The baby is 19 inches in height and is perfectly formed," she said yesterday. "She has dark blue eyes, dark hair and very small feet and hands."

In private life Admiral Dot is known as Leopold Kahn. He was brought out by Barnum when he was only 6 years old, and he has been on exhibition ever since. He is 48 inches in height, wears a 5½ children's size hat, 5½ children's size glove and No. 11 children's size shoe. On Aug. 14, 1892, he married Miss Lottie Swartwood, with whom he fell in love while they were both with the Locke & Davis Royal Lilliputian Opera company. She is 49 inches in height, wears a 10 children's size shoe and a 5½ children's size glove. Admiral Dot's parents are of ordinary size, but it is a peculiarity of the Kahn family that it produces a midget in each generation. Dot has a midget uncle who lives in Baden-Baden, and Major Atom is his nephew.

—There is no one in the House of Representatives at Washington who fights for the poor old soldier more valiantly than Hon. E. A. Morse of Massachusetts. In a recent able speech he arraigned Hoke Smith, the Commissioner of Pensions, and denounced him unmercifully for overriding the laws and cutting off pensioners where he had no right to. He gave letters and important facts bearing on the subject.

SECOND SESSION.

Convening of the Quincy Young Men's Congress.

THE LADIES HAVE A SURPRISE.

They Spread a Bountiful Banquet—Officers Elected, Etc.

The members of the Quincy Young Men's Congress had little idea when they convened for the second session Tuesday evening what a grand treat was in store for them. But the Woman's Auxilliary of the Y. M. C. A. had been diligently at work and when the members marched from the parlors to the gymnasium they discovered a long table placed diagonally, which was boutifully laden and looked very attractive with bouquets, candles, etc. It was presided over by Mrs. King and a bevy of pretty young ladies, who were as proud to attend to the wants of the statesmen as the congressmen were to receive their favors. The bill of fare was as follows:

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * *
* Escalloped Oysters. *
* Hot Rolls. Celery. *
* Cold Ham. *
* Pickles. Cheese. *
* Charlotte Russe. *
* Cake. *
* Plums Bananas. Grapes. *
* Pears. Apples. *
* Salted Nuts. *
* Coffee. *
* * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

Among those present were: S. A. Foster, J. H. Ball, W. H. Ballard, E. W. Branch, A. E. Bronville, W. Donovan, R. S. Elliott, B. T. Emery, J. R. Fenton, J. F. Harlow, H. R. Holden, D. King, W. T. Isaac, W. W. Jenness, H. G. Kingman, C. W. Miller, J. M. Nowland, John Odom, F. F. Prescott, R. A. Sears, J. A. Sparrow, J. F. Suckling, W. Burke, E. M. Bumpus, H. E. Spear, H. T. Wason, Theophilus King and W. H. Mitchell.

Toasts and Speeches.

Speaker Foster offered a toast to the leader, and the members arose and drank to their health.

Postprandial speeches were in order. Speaker Foster thought we were nearing the end of a year of congress, but now we come to the only congress—The Quincy Congress. The coming year looked encouraging. We had no senate or upper house to obstruct us and business was transacted expeditiously. At the last session 10 out of 30 bills presented were passed. Ours was a remarkable body; it was governed at one time by the constitution of the United States, and another by the public statutes of Massachusetts, and again by the city charter and ordinances of Quincy. The first session was an experiment, and naturally some features were a failure, but we had profitted.

Congressman Suckling was introduced and entertained with a story. He believed the success of the World's Fair was due to the passage by this Congress of the bill suspending immigration.

Congressman Elliott told how the Congress could work to help the city and interest the citizens in the city government.

Congressman Branch thought committee work of great benefit to members.

Congressman Nowland hoped there would not be too much unanimity. The more we differ in Congress the better. He believed the discussion of outside matters more profitable than city affairs.

Congressman Holden, Harlow, Kingman, Adams, King, Colton and others spoke briefly, and President Wason of the Y. M. C. A. added words of encouragement, although he was diffident to speak before so many statesmen.

The Congress Organized

By the election of the following officers:

Speaker,—Stephen A. Foster.
Vice Speaker,—E. S. Litchfield.
Clerk,—Frank F. Prescott.
Assistant Clerk,—C. E. Goodspeed.
Sergeant-at-Arms,—John H. Ball.
Chaplain,—O. C. Colton.
Executive Committee,—W. S. Pinkham, H. L. Rice, W. T. Isaac.

Mr. Prescott resigned as clerk, but the vacancy was not filled.

Votes of thanks were tendered the retiring clerk and assistant clerk for past services.

It was voted to hold 15 bi-weekly meetings.

Several applications for membership were received.

Old members will represent the same States as last session.

Bills referred to this Congress were read and will come up for discussion at the next meeting.

The Congress adjourned at 9 o'clock until Oct. 17.

CITY CHIT CHAT.

Items of Interest from All Parts of Quincy.

From now on, the officials at the District Court will be busy making voters.

The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium class for boys will begin Thursday at 4 o'clock.

Sunday will be the last day electric cars will be run to Houghs Neck this year.

Milne, Chalmers & Co. are building an office at their works on Penn street.

Mrs. Joshua Fisher has returned from an extended visit in Dedham, her former home.

Maurice P. Spillane, a graduate of Adams Academy, enters the Boston Law school today.

Eight new members were elected at the monthly board meeting of the Y. M. C. A. last evening.

The steam roller is at work on Copeland street, which is receiving a coat of stone chips and dressing.

New arrivals at The Greenleaf are, H. P. Curtis, Blanche M. Corey, E. A. Davis and H. P. Copland, all of Boston.

Miss Eva Moody of Winthrop, Me., and Mrs. R. M. Keen of Charlestown, Mass., are visiting friends in this city.

The Epworth League of West Quincy will attend the anniversary of the Wollaston League Thursday evening.

Mr. Elmer Hayden, the ladies' tailor has sold out his business to Mrs. M. L. Greenwood, who was for some time his forewoman.

The Ladies' Social Union of the West Quincy Methodist church hold its first meeting of the season this evening at the parsonage.

The frescoes on the walls of the rotunda in the capitol at Washington is the text of an interesting correspondence from the capital city today.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Emery celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage Monday evening by a gathering of a number of their friends at their residence on Hancock street.

Interesting statistics concerning the new voting lists to be posted this week will appear in the DAILY LEDGER tomorrow. An actual count of the voters will be made, and the gains and loses shown.

Those who will appear on the programme at the China reception at the Y. M. C. A., tonight are, Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Miss Grace Mae Lamkin, Miss Minerva Thomson Fuller and Mr. S. P. Moorhouse.

The China reception, to be given at the Y. M. C. A. rooms this evening is attracting considerable attention. The plan for securing a stock of dishes is a novel one and deserves success, for the ladies can certainly make good use of the dishes, if last evening's banquet is a sample.

J. H. Wales, the caterer has a unique exhibition in one of his windows showing the growth of his business since 1889. The exhibition consists of a row of cream freezers ranging in capacity from 4 quarts to 24 quarts, the former being the size used in 1889 while the latter is that used today. Mr. Wales now has the capacity of making 200 gallons of cream per day.

Mt. Wollaston Lodge, I. O. O. F., received a visit from D. D. G. M. Bump and suite, Tuesday evening. The initiatory degree was worked on a candidate, after which speeches were made by Grand Instructor York and the District Deputy, after which the lodge closed, and the visitors and members adjourned to the banquet hall, where a collation was served.

TODAY'S COURT.

Owen G. McKenna of Quincy was fined $10 for drunkenness.

James J. Maloney and Daniel Brown of Lynn for cruelty to a horse at Quincy were fined $10 each.

James J. Maloney and Daniel Brown of Lynn for overdriving a horse at Quincy were fined $10 each.

October Magazines.

The New England Magazine has done what will interest hundreds of readers in securing for the Boston of Howells the same treatment which has so often been given the London of Dickens. Mr. Sylvester Baxter's article upon this subject, in the October number of the magazine, is a delightful article, full of gossip about the places in Boston which Mr. Howells has made the scenes of his stories, and full of charming quotations from Mr. Howells's own fine descriptions. Few articles which have appeared in the New England Magazine have been more beautifully illustrated than this, which will appeal to a public much wider than the Boston public.

There are several striking articles in the Overland Monthly for October. One, on "The Reformatory Movement in California," refers to prison reform. "The Acted Shaksperian Drama" is a noteworthy piece of literary criticism. The stories and poetry of the number have the individuality, and the bright, readable quality, characteristic of the Overland.

The October number of Donahoe's Magazine is probably the finest issue yet under the new management. There are no dull or purposeless pages. No man, whatever his race or belief, can look it through without finding something of interest to him. Artistically it is inspiring.

Our Little Ones for October is replete with bright and clever little stories charmingly illustrated and cannot fail to interest children.

☞ Furniture moved, Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

Officer Furnald Was Persistent.

July 19, the attention of residents on Willard street, had their attention attracted to four men on a fruit team who were cruelly abusing a horse. Several ladies spoke to the men but were told to go into the house and mind their own business. Officer Furnald, agent for the cruelty to animal society came along and to him the men said they came from Lynn and were going to the celebration in Randolph. Two of the party did not have anything to say as they were passengers. The other two, who had charge of the team, gave their names as James J. Maloney and Daniel Brown.

Officer Furnald told them they must not drive the horse any more as he was completely fagged out. They, however, did drive on and reached Randolph at 8 o'clock that night.

Since that time Officer Furnald has been looking up the men and as a result they were brought into court this morning and fined.

The Story of Chautauqua.

Chautauqua a few weeks ago celebrated its twentieth anniversary, and this year's meeting marks the culmination of a growth without precedent even in this world of rapid growths. At Chautauqua one may take his choice of 20 intellectual pursuits, from the study of Biblical exegesis and the Pentateuch in Hebrew to the latest screed of Ibsen, or of as many amusements, among them boating, rowing, riding, promenading in the lovely groves and listening to the music.

The institution was started in 1873 by Lewis Miller, the present president of the organization, and Bishop John H. Vincent. The first organization was that of the Chautauqua Sunday school assembly. Soon after this became the Sunday school teachers' assembly. Then followed in rapid succession the summer Bible class, college of liberal arts, teachers' retreat, school of sacred literature, school of music and many more.

Brockton Fair.

No agricultural fair in the state is more popular than that given at Brockton. It is especially attractive to Quincy people, as large numbers from here attend every year. It opens today and although it looks much like rain no doubt many thousand persons will be present. Many new features have been secured by the managers that will prove great attractions.

AN INDIAN LETTER.

Methods of Communication Among the Indians.

The Picturesque of Eloquence.—Thoughts Expressed in Silence.—How Indian History is Preserved.—Letter from an Indian about Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

The sign language of the Indians is a wonderful thing. Two Indians different in their speech as a German and a Spaniard will readily communicate with each other.

It is the picturesque of eloquence to watch an Indian addressing a council and without speaking a word, making his meaning clear to all present by signs.

Histories and all written communications are made by pictures. The family history of a chief will be painted on a tepee. The following is a specimen of this method of communication.

The "letter" was written by KEE-EL-NAH-WE, "The one who knows secrets," a Kickapoo Indian Medicine Man.

SPECIMEN OF INDIAN LETTER WRITING.

The above letter translates as follows:

"The Indians offer to their white brothers flowers, leaves, roots and barks, made by the sun, the stars, and the rain (nature.) If the white brother is sick, this will make him stronger than the bear who will fall before him."

"SAGWA" is a medicine word meaning good or best, and signifies "best medicine."

Here are the sincere statements of a noble son of a grand race.

Every word is true.

Catlin, the highest authority on the Indians and who lived among them for years, says "the word of an Indian can always be relied upon," and he is right.

Here is proof of the genuine value of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

Here is a letter from a far different source.

The following is from the Professor of Physiological Chemistry at Yale College, and this scientist says:—

"After a chemical analysis of Indian Sagwa, I find it to be an Extract of Roots, Barks and Herbs of Valuable Remedial Action with no Mineral or other Deleterious Admixtures."

Heed the teachings of these letters.

Take Nature's Remedy in season. If your blood is impure and your skin is marked by pimples, blotches and boils; if you have dull pains in your back and side; if your appetite is poor; if you do not get sound, refreshing sleep, so necessary to your health and strength, you are in Danger. These, and other symptoms are the warnings of nature.

Arouse yourself, and drive off the enemy—Arm yourself with Kickapoo Indian Sagwa—build up your system by its use and all danger is averted.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa and other Kickapoo Indian medicines contain only the products of the field and forest, nature's own vegetable growth of roots, barks and herbs, and of necessity are free from all mineral poisons whatever, because the Indians have no knowledge of them, depending wholly upon nature's laboratory for their resources, and upon their skill, born of centuries of experience.

Many Buds This Season.

The Boston Budget says, "The good times at Quincy will be numerous this winter and there are yet many dates which will mature into brilliant occasions. The young married set are very active workers, and most of the festivities will be in their charge. Teas and receptions will be frequent and small dinner parties and card evenings will be as popular as they were last season. The young people, although active workers, have the good fortune of relieving themselves of the burdens of getting up the entertainments, and rather enjoy the leisure it assures. There are to be a great many buds this season, several of whom will have coming-out parties. Among a few of the pretty girls that will figure in society this winter will be Miss Mary Rice, a daughter of Mr. Willaim B. Rice; Miss Russell of Greenleaf street; Miss Gertrude Sherman, a daughter of Mr. Charles R. Sherman of Wollaston; Miss Kate Faxon, a daughter of Mr. Frank Faxon; Miss Sara Whicher, a daughter of Mr. Thomas A. Whicher; Miss Pratt and Miss Bessie Pratt, daughters of Mr. Edwin Pratt; Miss Wales, of Braintree; the Misses Hollis of Braintree; Miss Mabel Howland, a daughter of Mr. Charles Howland; the Misses Eaton, daughters of Mr. William Eaton of Adams street; Miss Zama King, daughter of Mr. Theo. King of Adams street; Miss Minnie Rodgers of Edwards street; Miss Georgiana Lane, and Miss Lulu Williams, daughter of Mr. John Williams of Elm street."

A Fine Road to Travel.

In this great Columbian year, when all eyes are turned towards Chicago and the great exposition, it is comforting to know that the railroads leading thither are prepared to handle the immense traffic and carry it expeditiously to its destination. One of the roads that is winning golden encomiums by the excellence of its service is the Nickel Plate. The line is through a fine section of country, a great distance of it in view of Lake Erie, and passing numerous cities and towns. Its new passenger service is superb. The dining cars cannot be spoken of too highly, while the sleeping and day coaches are models in their way. Quick time is made going and returning and the service is in all respects first-class. What more can be asked—cheap rates; courteous attention; luxurious sleepers; magnificent day coaches; faultless road bed; unexcelled dining cars. Can anything be added to make the Nickel Plate Road more popular? It runs three trains daily in each direction. Its station in Chicago is central and easily accessible from all directions. If you are going anywhere at any time, don't let the fact slid your memory that a magnificent new passenger service has been established on the Nickel Plate Road. You who have not yet done the World's Fair, try the Nickel Plate and know what it is to enjoy the luxury of first-class travel.—Clipped from Allentown, Pa., Chronicle, August 22d.

FIENDISH DOUBLE MURDER

Accomplished by the Use of a Powerful Dynamite Cartridge.

PARIS, Ky., Oct. 4.—Some unknown fiend placed a dynamite cartridge between Eliza Dent and Houston Kelly, colored, while they were asleep at the former's home, 101 Second street. The cartridge exploded and killed them both. The dynamite was evidently placed directly between them, with a fuse attached so that the right arm of one and the left arm of the other were torn off at the shoulder.

They were lying on a feather bed on the floor, and the terrible force of the explosion blew a hole two feet square through the floor and shattered all the glass in the two windows of the room, as well as breaking ornaments and scattering remnants of bed clothes all over the floor. The bodies of the two unfortunates were entirely nude.

It is alleged that the Dent woman had quarrelled with two negro men over the ownership of the cottage in which the tragedy occurred, which may lead to their arrest on suspicion.

McDearman Has a Bad Tongue.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Congressman McDearman of Tennessee was swearing loudly in front of the Ebbitt House and was asked by Officer Tompkins to desist. Turning on the officer the congressman reviled him. The policeman's patience gave out, and, with the aid of a bystander who had insisted upon the arrest, he took the congressman to the station house, where he was released.

Senator Stockbridge Badly Hurt.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—United States Senator F. B. Stockbridge of Michigan attempted to board a grip car and missed his hold. He was struck by another grip car, thrown into the street and dragged a distance of 20 feet. The senator was picked up unconscious. The full extent of his injuries could not be learned from the attending physicians.

Alleged Murderer Arrested

TRENTON, Oct. 4.—Wallace Burt, the half-breed Indian, who is supposed to have murdered old Samuel Rightly and his wife at Newton, Pa., on Sept. 24, and for whom a reward of $1000 has been offered, was captured yesterday in the swamps near Morrisville. The Indian was half dead from hunger and exposure.

Girls Take a Hand In a Strike.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 4.—There is no change in the situation at the Louisville and Nashville shops. Thirty girls employed by the Bower Laundry company have refused to wash the linen of the men who took the strikers' places. The laundry company has a contract with the railroad to do all of its laundry work.

Train Wreckers In Nova Scotia.

HALIFAX, Oct. 4.—A fiendish attempt was made to wreck a train near Truro. A switch lock was left open and the train dashed into the open switch. The engine was wrecked. Close to the spot is a deep embankment, and how the train escaped destruction is regarded as miraculous. No one was killed.

Royal Match-Making.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 4.—It is rumored that the betrothal of Princess Maud, daughter of the Prince of Wales, to the czarewich is under discussion at Fredensburg castle, where the Princess of Wales and the czar are visiting the Danish king and queen.

Four Were Drowned.

MARSHFIELD, Ore., Oct. 4.—A party of seven were out sailing near the entrance to Coos bay when their boat was capsized by a gust of wind and four of the party were drowned. Two ladies and a child clung to the boat till rescued.

Minister's Son Accidentally Killed.

SAG HARBOR, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Charles Coote, the 15-year-old son of Rev. James Coote, the Methodist minister in this place, accidentally shot and killed himself while out gunning.

Defying the Law.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 4.—The Chesapeake and Ohio road has refused to place either separate or particular coaches on its trains, and is consequently violating the separate coach law.

Victory For Mormons.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The house judiciary committee has authorized a report of a joint resolution restoring the personal property and money of the Mormon church.

Kentucky Man Chosen.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—It is stated that Martin Force of Kentucky will be appointed deputy first comptroller of the treasury on Nov. 1 next.

Murder and Suicide.

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—Herr Pohl, court optician in Hanover, poisoned his wife with prussic acid. When arrested on suspicion he shot himself dead.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

Doings at Brighton and Watertown For the Week Ending Oct 2.

Amount of stock on the market:

| | Cattle. | Sheep and Lambs. | Swine. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Western | 2,971 | 1,925 | 35,370 |
| Massachusetts | 69 | 71 | 7 |
| Maine | 101 | 511 | 21 |
| New Hampshire | 130 | 875 | 140 |
| Vermont | 103 | 1,682 | 212 |
| New York | 30 | 1,223 | 53 |
| Canada | .... | 2,852 | .... |
| Totals | 3,404 | 9,339 | 35,803 |

Prices for western beef cattle pr 100 lbs, live weight—Choice $4.50@4.75; second quality, $4@4.25; third quality, $3@3.25. Poorest grades of coarse oxen, cows, bulls, stags, Texans, Colorados, etc, 2@3c pr lb.

Prices for northern and eastern beef cattle pr lb, dressed weight—Choice, 5½@6¼c; first quality, 5@5¼c; second quality, 4½@4¾c; poorest grades of coarse oxen, cows, bulls, stags, etc, 1½@3c pr lb.

Hides, tallow, etc—Hides, 4½@5c pr lb; tallow, 3@4c pr lb; calf skins, 75c each; lambs skins, 50c each; sheared skins, 25c each; branded hides, 3c pr lb.

Northern and eastern beef cattle—There was a very limited supply, but it was fully equal to the demand of the market. The quality of the stock offered was fair, no extra good cattle being seen on the market.

Milch cows and springers—The arrivals were not quite so heavy as last week, and it was well that it was so, for there was no demand.

Veal calves—The supply was lighter than one week ago. The quality of the offerings was about the same. A clearance was effected soon after the stock arrived at values showing no change from that received one week ago.

Sheep and lambs—None of the western arrivals were offered for sale on the market, but were taken direct to the slaughter houses. The supply on the market was considerably heavier than last week, due to the arrivals from New York and Canada. Trade was brisk and a clearance was effected. Prices for sheep showed no change from those quoted last week, while lambs may be said to be a shade stronger.

Western beef cattle—Western cattle is quoted ¼c pr lb higher, which is due to the shorter runs rather than any change in the demand of the market or the quality of the stock. Advices from foreign ports say that the market has totally collapsed. The top market price across the water is quoted at 6¼c pr lb. Trade was slow, but few buyers being on the grounds.

Steers Playing Follow My Leader.

On Tuesday as a drove of bullocks numbering about 140 were being driven from the Canadian shed to the Woodside lairage at Birkenhead, a singular accident happened. On the river side of the Alfred dock there is a narrow undulating bridge, recently placed there by the Mersey docks and harbor board for the purpose of conveniently transferring cattle to the lairages. The bridge will allow two bullocks to pass over abreast, but yesterday the beasts became jammed and one of them leaped into the Alfred dock and was immediately followed by 34 others.

The scene in the water was most extraordinary; but, strange to recount, one of the bullocks swam to the steps and walked out in the most intelligent fashion and was followed by 11 others. The thirteenth, however, slipped back into the water, where the remaining 21 were swimming about for a considerable time. Ultimately a number of men put off in boats, and tying ropes around the beasts drew them in to the wall, and thus supported them until a crane was brought into use and the entire herd rescued, little the worse for their strange immersion. A period of three hours elapsed before the work of recovery was completed, and during this time the liveliest excitement was apparent among the numerous spectators.—Westminster Gazette.

Russian Fleet For the Mediterranean.

It is stated that the Russian permanent squadron for the Mediterranean shortly to be constituted will consist of the vessels which recently visited America and are now on their way home under the command of Admiral Kasnakoff. They are the Emperor Nicholas I, ironclad battleship, 8,500 tons, 570 men; the Admiral Nakhimoff, armored cruiser, 7,800 tons, 500 men; the Dimitri Donskoi, armored cruiser, 7,000 tons, 350 men, and the Rynda, a steel protected cruiser, 3,000 tons, 320 men.

Of these four vessels each one is making for a different port—Lisbon, Gibraltar, the Azores and Cadiz respectively. It is not yet known where they will assemble. The latest advices from Russia, however, state that they will go to Toulon in order to repay the celebrated Cronstadt visit of two years ago. On the fleet being definitely constituted it will be placed under the command of Admiral Avellan, who is already organizing his staff, but who will in all probability not remain in command for more than a year. Admiral Kasnakoff will be placed in an important post at Cronstadt. —Paris Correspondent.

The Electric Fan Waltzed.

A diminutive electric fan in the office of the department of public works was located on a window sill, where its noise disturbed the clerks, and they placed it upon a metal heater. The instant the current was turned on the electricity performed a clog dance and waltzed the fan all over the heater. All the time the blue fluid flashed out in two foot lengths, and the burring and whirring of the swift revolving wheel nearly caused a stampede in the office. But relief came at last when the machine with a mighty effort, as if to get away from the heater, danced off the side of it and fell with a bump on the floor, bringing the circus to a close.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

In Pleasant Sandwich.

A traveler journeying down Cape Cod way the other day was surprised to find around Sandwich more beautiful trees of great girth and more garden flowers abloom than he had ever seen in any other village in New England. And in the western part of the town he found an artificial pond bordered with concrete, which contained several varieties of water lilies of rare sorts—lilies from Australia, Zanzibar and the cape of Good Hope, with papyrus, wild rice, hyacinths, arrowhead and a variety of lotus and pink, white and yellow lilies from widely separated regions interspersed.—New York Times.

Cheers Chased the Tears.

When General Lew Wallace was called upon to speak at the reunion of his old regiment, the Eleventh Indiana, at the recent Grand Army encampment at Indianapolis, his feelings got the better of him, and he broke down in tears. There were about a hundred of the boys there, and half of them were crying too. After awhile one fellow with horse sense proposed three cheers for the old man, and they were given in such a way as to clear the lachrymose atmosphere, after which the old man gave them a talk that was worth listening to.—Joe Howard.

To Discourage Profanity.

Marblehead people have noticed with pain lately that swearing seems to be remarkably prevalent in that picturesque old Massachusetts town, and especially so after the return of sailors from an unsuccessful cruise. This being the case it has been deemed best to organize an antiswearing league, and a local newspaper announces that it will offer in the public schools a prize for the best essay on "What are the best methods to discourage profane swearing?"

Justice In Midair.

Edward M. Greene of San Francisco has designed a novelty for the midwinter fair to be held in that city which he hopes will rival the Eiffel tower and the Ferris wheel. It is a colossal statue of Justice, 150 feet high, supporting an immense pair of scales, the extremities of which are cars holding 50 people each. The beam is a truss 300 feet long, oscilliating like a walking beam, thus lifting the cars to a height of 350 feet.

Emil Phillipson, the Chicago architect who claims to have secured the use of staff in the construction of the exhibition buildings, wants the principal ones made into picturesque ruins, covered with ivy, and left as a legacy to posterity.

Bishop Whittle of Virginia, one of the oldest prelates in the Protestant Episcopal church in this country, is threatened with total blindness at Clifton Springs, in that state.

Directors,—Mrs. J. O. Hall, Mrs. E. G. Pratt, Mrs. C. Follett, Miss Lane, Miss Howland, Miss Hodges, Miss Dewson.

Rhode Island's champion fat man, George Walker, died last Monday. He was 42 years of age, weighed 513 pounds and measured 72 inches around the waist.

The casket, and box to hold it were made to order, and 500 feet of lumber were consumed in their manufacture. The pillow for the head and shoulders required half a bale of excelsior. The coffin is 7 feet 5 inches long, 3 feet 7 inches wide and 28 1-2 inches deep. Walker's wife weighs less than 100 pounds.—Boston Herald

In the Woods In Summer.

These mighty trees with their centuries
Of miracles of wood,
Like their sires who stood before the flood,
Mock at men's perjuries.

Under the screen of this forest green,
Unheeded by human eye,
The passions die like sounds in the sky,
And my spirit walks serene.

The shining sun may his journey run
Through a sky of cloudless blue,
Yet the morning hue of the fragrant dew
Here waits like a kiss unwon.

The winds may blow or their flights forego
On the treeless plain and hill;
Here all is still save the tinkling rill
Or a bird note lone and low.

Here the squirrel peers with uplifted ears,
And the rabbit stops to stare,
And the woodmice dare to seem to scare
And jest with their own fears.

'Tis a precious boon on a summer noon
Through the ancient aisles to stray,
Where the shadows play like wood nymphs gay
While summer takes off her shoon.

'he sounds which jar, the things which mar,
e ills which sting the heart,
'e have no part or lose their smart
.m the babbling world afar.

Sacramento's Water Supply System.

Peculiar specifications for supplying water to Sacramento are under discussion in that city. The water is to be taken from wells at least half a mile from the present city limits, and at least the same distance from any natural surface stream or pond. The contractor is required to guarantee "clear, sweet and wholesome water suitable for drinking water and domestic purposes."

A minimum of 1,000,000,000 gallons a year is to be supplied in such daily quantities, not exceeding 8,000,000 gallons, as may be required. At the end of five years this minimum may be increased by the city on giving six months' notice. The water is to be delivered through a riveted steel or iron pipe, laid and owned by the contractor, and delivered through a meter. The contractor must not furnish water direct to the customers, and is to have no control whatever over the mains, laterals, distributing pipes or water rates, which are to be entirely in the hands of the city authorities.—Engineering Record.

THE AUBURN BATTLE

Citizens Have Begun to Take an Active Part.

BOTH SIDES REMAIN FIRM

And Give Out Statements Regarding Their Positions.

AUBURN, Me., Oct. 4.—The shoe manufacturers, the union men and the citizens each had something to say yesterday regarding labor troubles in this city.

Herman A. Packard of the firm of Monroes, Packard & Linscott said to a reporter last evening: "After our help left us, we kept our factories open for two weeks for the sole purpose of giving our former employes the first opportunities to resume work in their old positions, and, having scarcely any applications during that time from the old help, we deemed it just and for our interests to seek help elsewhere, which we did, and are meeting with very good success.

"In regard to foreign help at work in our factory, I will say that they are Armenians, and have been taxpayers in the state of Maine. They are also experienced shoemakers, and are doing their work to our satisfaction.

"I can say for ourselves and for all members of the association that we much preferred giving employment to those who left our factories, but, after waiting two weeks, we were obliged to seek help from other sources. During the two weeks of suspense many conceived the idea of weakness among the members of the association, which idea was erroneous in the extreme, as the entire association has been firm from the start in the move to conduct business under the plan of individual contracts, and have no idea of making any concessions whatever."

The Strikers' Side.

The executive committee of the joint board of Lasters, Boot and Shoe Workers' International and Cutters' unions requested the reporter to say for that body:

"First—That E. Y. Turner of Auburn has no influence whatever with the shoemakers of Auburn.

"Second—That we will not accept a reduction of 10 per cent.

"Third—That we will not sign the shop rules drawn up by the Manufacturers' association under any circumstances whatever.

"This statement is made by order of the joint board of the three unions."

In the face of these statements from both sides that they will not yield a single point, 500 citizens gathered in Auburn hall last evening to select a committee, with a view of effecting a settlement.

W. A. Robinson called the meeting to order, and stated that it was not a time for speechmaking, but for action, and said that the object of the meeting was to devise some means of offering aid in settling the labor troubles.

He then called on Mayor Bolster to preside, and A. W. Fowles was elected secretary.

A committee was then appointed and directed to offer to both the manufacturers and the unions its aid in settling the differences.

No Further Violence.

The Armenian shoe workers were followed to their boarding house again last night by a crowd, although no violence was offered. In dispersing the crowd collected in front of the boarding house the police arrested several men, and there was great excitement. Thousands of people were on the street.

Last night 75 special police officers were on duty in the business portion of the city, and the services of all were needed to keep the streets passable.

QUIETLY STOLE AWAY.

Embezzler Hutchinson Is Taking It Easy In Argentina.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—Ex-Judge Eben Hutchinson, who was once a judge of the Chelsea district court and was indicted by the grand jury for embezzlement, causing him to flee the country and become a fugitive from justice, is now in the Argentine Republic.

When the erring judge fled this city after defrauding confiding clients out of some $100,000 he went to Chicago and remained quietly ensconsed there while the detectives of this city were making every effort to "locate" him. He remained in the west for several months until the excitement caused by his crookedness had subsided, and then, some two months ago, he came quietly into this city, and remained here for several days.

Then, learning the temper of those who sought to have him punished and realizing that if captured here he would be prosecuted criminally, he as quietly slipped away, and under the very eyes of the police inspectors he shook the dust of Boston from his feet and is now quietly enjoying himself in the land where he can laugh at extradition papers.

Every effort has been made to keep the fact of his having been in this city since he was indicted by the grand jury from the newspapers, but the intelligence leaked out yesterday. The judge's criminal career was fraught with sensation.

WONDERFUL WINDLE

Covers a Mile In 1:58 1-5 on the Track at Hampden Park.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 4.—W. W. Windle broke the world's record for a mile, flying start, at Hampden park, making it in 1:58 1 5. He was paced by Olmstead, Measure and Broadhead on a triplet, James Clark and Arnold on a tandem and Sanger.

Previous to this trial he made a world's record for the half mile in 56 3-5. He was paced by Sanger for the first quarter and Tyler for the last.

The world's record for a mile was held by Zimmerman in 2:04. Windle, however, made a mile in 2:04 4-5. Last year Windle made a half mile on the Springfield track in 1:00 1-5.

A TRYING EXPERIENCE.

Edgar Mix Writes of His Trouble In an Austrian Town.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 4.—Edgar W. Mix, formerly of this city, who was arrested in Pryemsl, Austria, a few weeks ago, charged with being a spy, writes to a friend here that when arrested he had left the train to photograph some odd looking Hebrews. He showed his passport to the officers, but was searched in the depot and sent to prison and locked up in company with four Hebrews. Permission to telegraph to the American consul in Paris was refused, but the information was sent by a lawyer. Finally, upon the protest of the American consul at Paris, he was released by order of the Austrian minister, "some hours after he was locked up." He adds:

"I wrote our company in Paris to make a claim, in my name personally, of at least 5000 francs damages and 500 francs for expense and loss, for I lost my overcoat, and my camera was injured by the police, who wanted to see what was inside it. I shall also make a heavier claim for damages in the name of the company, as I was delayed just three days, and business was very important at Odessa."

MASSACHUSETTS W. C. T. U.

Gathers at Springfield For Its Twentieth Annual Convention.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 4.—The 20th annual convention of the Massachusetts Women's Christian Temperance Union held its opening session in the State Street Baptist church in this city. Mrs. Fessenden presided and the business of appointing minor committees occupied a short space after the opening singing and prayer. Mrs. S. L. Drury, as superintendent of the work of the union among lumbermen and miners, presented her report, and the department of literature was represented by Mrs. K. L. Stevenson. The noontide devotional hour was led by Miss Louise Manning Hodgkins. The principal feature of the afternoon session was the annual address by the president, Mrs. Fessenden.

Dissatisfied Donors.

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 4.—The celebrated library case assumed a new phase yesterday, when the city attorney petitioned the court to have the donors enter a petition at once for the withdrawal of their gift of $50,000, otherwise that the supreme court should order the city council to purchase the Greely lot, over which there has been much controversy, for the location of the Hunt memorial building. The donors have also notified the city clerk that they shall, within a reasonable time, petition the court for the return of their gift.

Studying the Oyster.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 4.—Henry De Varigny, who has been appointed a special commissioner for the French government to investigate the American oyster industry, has arrived in this city. Clerk Botsford of the Connecticut shellfish commission furnished him with such statistical information as he desired. De Varigny will spend several days here observing the local method of dredging by steam and inquiring into the other methods of cultivating oysters.

Courthouse Roof Falls.

HARTFORD, Oct. 4.—The roof of the old county court house at Middletown fell in while workmen were tearing the building down to make room for the new county building. A laborer named Carter and four other workmen were precipitated to the ground. Carter was badly injured and, it is feared, will die. The other men escaped injury.

Killed by Alaskans.

LEWISTON, Me., Oct. 4.—A telegram was received by the friends of Missionary Harrison R. Thornton, who has been, with his wife, in Alaska since April, 1892, saying that he was shot and killed by natives Aug. 20 last, and that Mrs. Thornton had embarked for San Francisco with the remains, and would proceed to Auburn.

Was Out of Work.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 4.—Benjamin C. Proctor, a varnish maker out of employment, committed suicide by shooting himself several times through the head. He was 36 years of age, and lived with his mother and sister. He was in needy circumstances and had been very despondent for several days.

Closing Up.

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 4.—Before Judge Blodgett of the supreme court Attorney General E. G. Eastman, for Insurance Commissioner John C. Linehan, applied for a receiver for the People's Insurance company of Manchester. Oct. 9 was appointed a day to hear the petition.

A New England Union.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 4.—The typographical convention has adjourned to meet in Concord, N. H., next April. The Massachusetts union was merged into a New England union, having the same officers and assuming all liabilities and assets.

New Haven Clothier Assigns.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 4.—W. H. Moor, one of the largest clothing dealers in this city, has made a voluntary assignment. The liabilities are estimated at $8000 and the assets less than half that amount.

Brief Mention.

Rev. H. E. Brady was ordained as pastor of the Dalton (Mass.) Baptist church.

Mrs. Mary Buckley of Ansonia, Conn., aged 77, dropped dead of heart disease while praying.

WONDERFUL EPOCHS IN HISTORY SKETCHED UPON THE WALL.

The Frescoes on the Walls of the Rotunda at the Capitol Soon to Be Finished—A Remarkable and Picturesque Series of Events.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The host of distinguished people who had listened to the ceremonies in commemoration of the centennial of the laying of the cornerstone of the capitol the other day left the platform on conclusion of the programme and passed out through the great rotunda. Many of them paused to look at the beautiful gallery and to gaze up at the allegorical ceiling of the noble dome — the noblest dome, considered both from its exterior and interior aspects, known to architecture. The eyes of many of them rested upon the scaffolding which is suspended half way up the great height. To many of these observers this scaffolding had long been a familiar object. For many years now it has hung there and for five or six years has not been occupied, except by the accumulation of dust, cobwebs and cigar and cigarette stumps thrown from the gallery, which is far above it and just underneath the beautiful allegorical canopy. The scaffolding was placed there for the accommodation of the Italian artist who was engaged for a long time in painting the frieze which traverses the whole circuit of the rotunda.

UNFINISHED FRIEZE.

I was one of those who gazed at this scaffolding, as I had gazed at it many times before. On this occasion it occurred to me it was about time this unsightly object in the beautiful rotunda were removed. It has obviously been kept there all these years waiting for a renewal of the work upon the frieze, which is nearly completed and could be finished by a few weeks' work. This frieze is really one of the admirable works of art in the capitol. To the observer who stands on the floor of the great rotunda, far below it appears to be a sunken space or kind of shelf eight or ten feet high completely surrounding the rotunda. It is painted with a fresco in a style which the artists call chiaro oscuro in imitation of alto relievo, though I am sure I do not know what that means. But if one is unable to determine what chiaro oscuro alto relievo is, he has no difficulty in understanding the wonderful series of sketches of American history with which the frieze is adorned, nor is it difficult to perceive that the execution of this work, so far as it has gone, has been so perfect that while the scenes and figures are mere paintings they appear to stand out in the high relief of statuary.

It occurred to me to ascertain why this work of art has not been completed and the unsightly scaffolding torn down. So I called upon Architect Clark, one of the grand old men of this capital city—the man who for many years has had sole control of the American statehouse, and who loves the great building as if it were his own child. Mr. Clark quickly informed me that the frieze had not been finished for the simple reason that the two committees on library, which have supervision over the capitol, had not as yet been able to agree upon the historical incident or episode which was to form the subject of the final painting. But one cartoon is now needed to complete the frieze and thus to encircle the magnificent rotunda with a series of pictures designed to represent climaxes in the history of the republic. Mr. Clark said the time had now come in all probability when the topic for the last cartoon could be decided upon and the work completed.

Some years ago the library committees of the house and senate, which have the very good fashion of leaving these matters very much to the control of the architect, had about concluded, on his recommendation, to fill up the series of pictures with a cartoon which should represent completion of the Pacific railway. That was indeed a great episode in the history of western civilization. It marked an era in the westward march of progress. But some difficulties and objections arose, and it was pointed out that not only had there been scandal in connection with the building of this railroad, but that too many of the chief actors in the work were still alive to make it an appropriate topic for historical treatment. In other words, it was too contemporaneous to be good history. This idea was at length abandoned, and no other incident in the latter part of the career of the country appearing to be of sufficient importance to deserve treatment in this manner, completion of the series was postponed.

But now the incident has come. The historical climax worthy representation in this series of the centuries has made its appearance. It is, of course, the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America and the memorable manner in which that discovery has been celebrated by the World's Columbian exposition at Chicago. While it has not yet been officially decided to employ this topic in completion of the frieze, little doubt remains that it will eventually be decided upon. Nothing could be more appropriate, and when the work shall have been finished there will be no finer cartoon in the series than that designed to show the meeting on the shores of the inland sea, in the very center of our wonderful western civilization, not only of the nations of the world in the rivalry of peace, but descendants of Ferdinand and Isabella, who sent Columbus forth on his voyage of discovery, and the descendants of Columbus himself.

With sketches of the beautiful architecture of the White City at Chicago for a background, and with figures representing the assemblage of the nations and the descendants of the discoverer and of Aragon and Castile for the foreground, this picture should be a success not only from the artistic but from the allegorical point of view. What is better than this selection of topic is the probability that the great frieze begun by one Italian a quarter of a century ago, and continued by another Italian after the death of the first, may now be completed by the hand of an American artist.

The series commences immediately above the west or library door of the rotunda. There is a group which represents America armed with spear and shield. At her feet the eagle, at her right the American Indian with bow and arrow, at her left the Genius of History sketching events. With this group as the starting point, the frieze runs to the north and around the great chamber. While a list of the cartoons composing the series will read somewhat like an extract from one of the guide books, I want you to see how history has been sketched in this commemorative circle.

The first scene is "The Landing of Columbus."

The second, "Cortez Entering the Temple of the Sun In Mexico."

The third, "Pizarro, With the Horse, Progressing In the Conquest of Peru."

The fourth, "The Burial of De Soto In the Mississippi River."

The fifth, "The Rescue of Captain John Smith by Pocahontas."

The sixth, "The Disembarkation of the Pilgrim Fathers."

The seventh, "Penn's Treaty With the Indians and Settlement of Pennsylvania."

The eighth. "The Industrial Colonization of the New England States."

The ninth, "General Oglethorpe and Muscogee Chief," an incident in the colonization of Georgia.

The tenth, "The Battle of Lexington."

The eleventh, "The Declaration of Independence."

The twelfth, "The Surrender of Lord Cornwallis."

The thirteenth, "The Death of Tecumseh."

The fourteenth, "The American Army Entering the City of Mexico."

The fifteenth, "Laborers In the Gold Mines of California."

With the sixteenth group made to represent the meeting of the nations a Chicago, I am sure you will agree with me that a remarkable and worthy series of events have been placed upon the walls of the rotunda. The reader will observe that not one of these cartoons is based upon the late war between the states or any incident growing out of that conflict. Such an omission could not have been made by accident, and of course the truth is it was by design. The library committees have discussed this question from time to time with great thoroughness, and they have agreed that the civil conflict which raged between the states should not be embalmed in the historical paintings within the capitol.

Will the capitol ever be finished? Probably not. Now that we have the dome, the wings, the great terrace recently completed, and now that the decoration of the rotunda is to be finished, the next step will be to erect a grand colonnade along the west facade of the building, thus giving the capitol a front to the west as well as to the east. As one of those who love the grand old building for its memories and associations as well as for itself and those beauties of architecture which make it still perhaps the most impressive building in the world, I shall never be satisfied until the Goddess of Liberty has had her face turned toward the west and the large and dirty spittoons which defile not only the rotunda, but the still more beautiful statuary hall, shall have been removed.

SPITTOONS AND STATUARY.

The Excelsior Diamond.

The great diamond recently found in the African fields is now in the hands of a cutter. It has been named the Excelsior. It is in such good shape that it is believed it will weigh 500 carats when cut, which is several times larger than any other stone. There appears, however, to be a little black speck near the center, which may make it necessary to cut the diamond in two. Even then the two stones would be larger than any others and of perfect color. The Imperial, the next largest white diamond, sold for $1,000,000. It is said that the owners would accept $1,250,000 for the Excelsior.

Mexican Silver.

The total product of the Mexican silver mines from their opening by the Spaniards to the independence of the country in 1821 was $2,368,952,000.

RAKED IN AT LAST.

"Moses the Prophet" Had Hundreds of Victims.

A FAKE DOCTOR OF BOSTON

Stands a Very Good Chance of Going to Prison.

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—Frank P. Moore, alias Dr. Hale, Dr. Hall, Dr. Warren, as well as other fictitious names, is safely under lock and key in the Charles street jail. He was arrested in Worcester yesterday. He is wanted on an indictment warrant for the alleged larceny of $270 from Viola Mason of the Highlands. He is also said to have been connected with Miss Minnie Russell, alias Maud Russell, alias Mrs. Dr. Russell, in the larceny of $179 from Mrs. Mary A. Ham.

Mrs. Ham was attracted to the offices of the couple by advertisements stating that they were trance mediums and clairvoyants, and while there the Russell woman apparently went into a trance and stated how she could win a prize in the Louisana lottery. When she came out of the trance, it is said, Mrs. Dr. Russell told Mrs. Ham that the president of the lottery company was her uncle, and that by paying a certain sum of money she was allowed to draw one of the capital prizes. For $500 she could draw $5000, and for $1000, $10,000.

Mrs. Ham claims that she gave the medium $179, and the latter was to make up the balance of the $300 necessary to secure the $5000 prize.

While this was going on in Mrs. Dr. Russell's office, Moore, or Dr. Hall, as he was known, was working a similar scheme at his office near by at 275 Shawmut avenue, and it was here that he victimized Mrs. Mason to the extent of $270.

The cases were reported to the police, and Inspectors McCausland and Howard were detailed to look the couple up. Moore had already left the city and Miss Russell's trunks were packed and a carriage had just called to take her to the depot. She was taken to headquarters and locked up.

His First Exploits.

When Moore was at 275 Shawmut avenue in July he advertised as "Moses the Prophet," better known as "The Star of Mystery, a dead trance medium, clairvoyant, astrologer and palmist." As a seer of the past, present and future he could give advice on all subjects, including business, love, marriage and divorce. He also made many glowing promises in his baits. Many of his clients are now looking for him.

Moore was first heard of in Boston in February of 1892, when he opened an office as Dr. Hall at the corner of Tremont and Eliot streets. His confederate at that time was Mrs. Dr. Warren, otherwise known as Mme. De Forrest, etc. Her office was at 259 Shawmut avenue, and she was also known as a trance medium and clairvoyant. When the couple finally skipped out in April of 1892, their victims were numbered among the hundreds.

They came to be treated for everything from facial blemishes to bunions. If they did not wish medical treatment they were treated to sights into the future or were led to see the chance of a fortune by putting up from $50 to $500 for an interest in the lottery ticket, which was to draw a capital prize in the next drawing. They are still waiting for their money.

Mrs. Dr. Warren is still wanted here for alleged embezzlement. She was arrested after leaving Boston by the police of Cleveland, but the case against her there was dropped, and as Dr. Hall was not with her the Boston police did not go to the large expense necessary to bring her to this city.

Moore never took up with Mrs. Dr. Warren again. He could not get along without a partner, however, and soon made the acquaintance of the Russell girl, who, although but 18 years of age, as Mrs. Dr. Russell successfully assisted him, and by him was assisted, in swindling schemes.

A GRAND PROGRAM

Carried Out at the Consecration fo Bishop Brooks' Successor.

BOSTON, Oct 5.—Less than two years have passed since the beloved Phillips Brooks was consecrated, and now another is called to fill the place he has left so crowded with loving deeds and memories.

The consecration of Bishop-elect Lawrence gathered a vast throng under the beautiful tower of Trinity on Copley square. The doors of the church were open at 10:15 a. m. today, and admission was by ticket only, the service commencing promptly at 11.

REV. WM. LAWRENCE.

The reverend clergy from the diocese of Massachusetts met in Trinity chapel, and the visiting clergy in the parlors under the chapel, entering by the Clarendon street doors. Pews on each side of the center aisle were reserved for those of the reverend clergy from the diocese who could not be provided for in the chancel and for visiting clergy.

Pews on the north side of the main floor, in the north transept and in the north galleries, were reserved for the family and friends of the bishop-elect, the governor and lieutenant governor of the commonwealth, the chief justice of the supreme court, the mayor of the city of Boston, the president of Harvard university, Commodore Fyffe of the navy yard, District Attorney Hoar and other distinguished guests, and for the congregation of St. John's Memorial chapel, Cambridge, all of whom entered from Clarendon street.

Pews were reserved on the south aisle of the main floor for the faculty and students of the Episcopal Theological school, Cambridge. The pews immediately in front of the south transept and those in the south transept were assigned to Trinity parish, Boston; representatives from Groton school, Groton; St. Mark's school, Southboro; Highland Military academy, Worcester; Brotherhood of St. Andrew, etc.

Pews on the floor, in the south transept, in the south transept gallery, in the south chancel gallery and seats in the triforium, were for lay delegates to the convention and for officers from the various organization, of the diocese.

The church was not decorated, save for flowers upon the altar, but the processional was most impressive, consisting, first, of 220 diocesan clergy, all being vested in surplices; then about 100 visiting clergymen, followed by the bishop-elect, immediately preceding the officiating bishops, namely, Neely of Maine, Niles of New Hampshire, Clark of Rhode Island, Williams of Connecticut, Whipple of Minnesota, Huntington of central New York, Doane of Albany, Potter of New York, Randolph of Virginia, Courtney of Nova Scotia and the Greek bishop of Zante.

Bishops Potter and Clark were the presenters, Bishop Whipple preached the sermon, and the presiding elder, Bishop Williams, was the consecrator. The order of exercises was as follows: The processional hymns, the holy communion, the sermon, the consecration of the bishop, anthem by Gounod, during which the bishop-elect was vested, the offertory, the recessional. The music was grand and impressive, with a choir of 70 male voices, the hymns selected being some of the finest in the Episcopal hymnal.

A Villainous Negro.

HARTFORD, Oct. 5.—Edward Verville of Collinsville, a passenger on an express train, was thrown from the train just above Windsor Locks by a burly, powerful negro. He was passing from one car to another when the negro grabbed for his watch but missed it. He then grabbed Verville, and, in spite of his resistance, threw him off the car platform. Verville was badly cut. He was stunned, and when he recovered he walked to the station covered with blood. The negro cannot be identified.

Switch Failed to Work.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Oct. 5.—Train No. 7 on the Montpelier and Wells River railroad was wrecked at Tanesboro last night. Archie Sawyer, a brakeman, was killed. The train was a double header, and the helper was set off at Tanesboro. The switch was sidetracked, but failed to work, though the target was turned and the helper backed into the train. Both engines were badly smashed, and several cars derailed.

Searching Parties Out.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 5.—James H. Clarke, 59 years of age and a noted insect and coin collector, has disappeared. He was last seen on the ledge in East Providence on Sept. 23, and it is believed that he fell off an isolated part of the ledge and was dashed to death. Searching parties are looking for him.

A Peculiar Case.

HARTFORD, Oct. 5.—Mrs. Charles Peck of Lyme is slowly starving to death. She has been unable to take nourishment for 25 days, and her death is daily expected. Her physicians say there is no way to prevent her death from starvation, as her stomach will not retain nourishment.

Struck on Rocks.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 5.—The trial of cruiser Montgomery is indefinitely postponed. She went on the rocks at Black ledge approaching the harbor, and the injuries then sustained will compel her to be hauled out and recaulked before a further trial trip can be made.

Beverly's Boom.

BEVERLY, Mass., Oct. 5.—The Consolidated Hand Method Lasting Machine company of Boston has decided to locate in Beverly. It employs from 40 to 60 skilled workmen, and 15 families have already secured houses and will be located here when the works start.

A Brutal Husband.

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—Patrick Doherty, 35 years of age, was arrested, charged with assault and battery on his wife last Sunday and again yesterday. It is charged that he beat her cruelly, and Dr. Pope says she has received internal injuries. She was taken to the city hospital.

Business Is Dull.

WALTHAM, Mass., Oct. 5.—Owing to the continued depression in business the United States watch factory will, until further notice, run on the two-thirds plan.

MUST PAY $40,000.

The Jury's Verdict In the Morse-Van Houten Case.

AN OUTLINE OF TESTIMONY

Which Had Been Forbidden to Be Published.

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—The bright smile which blighted affection had caused to vanish from the face of Mrs. Anna D. Van Houten returned yesterday. Faith in mankind, lost through the acts of one of the sex, was found again under the influence of an order for the transference of some $40,000 from the coffers of Asa P. Morse to the purse of the lady whose love she claims he spurned.

The end of the now celebrated trial came at 12:13 o'clock. Then the 12 good men and true went out, and for four and one-half hours wrestled with facts and evidence. Then they returned.

They had decided to discount 33 1-3 per cent on Mrs. Van Houten's claim of $60,000.

The trial has been a long and an interesting one. It has been conducted behind closed doors, Justice Barker muzzling the press during the taking of evidence. The story which the dry details of testimony tells, boiled down and strained, is an interesting one.

History of the Case.

In September, 1889, Mrs. Anna D. Van Houten consulted the divorce courts of Washington with the effect of a separation from her husband, Senator Van Houten of Spokane and came to this city. She entered the New England conservatory.

In June, 1890, she began to feel the need of money. She had property in Spokane, and with the purpose of raising money on it she was introduced to Asa P. Morse, one of Cambridge's leading citizens, and ex-holder of numerous offices.

Mrs. Van Houten seemed to have a penchant for melting into tears, and ere she had finished her business the flood gates were opened, inquiries from Mr. Morse were in order. It was discovered that she was alone and so lonely; he was a widower, and quite without meaning anything, in fact before either of the parties thought at all, the story goes, Mrs. Van Houten had consented to meet Mr. Morse again and frequently, to talk over matters of business.

The acquaintance proved a felicitous one, and ripened into friendship, as both admit, and love, Mrs. Van Houten claims. Mr. Morse promised to help her, and during the next few months they met frequently. At his request the lady moved to Mt. Vernon street. Here Mr. Morse called, and waited on her in her room frequently.

Money was advanced her all the time by the defendant. In the middle of November he made a loan of $5000.

The Alleged Proposal.

The formal proposal is alleged to have taken place in May, 1891. The lady of course accepted the offer. Shortly afterward she wanted to visit friends in Ohio, and Mr. Morse furnished money for the trip.

But absence made his heart grow fonder, and from Saratoga he wrote, asking her to come and see him. She came. He kissed her on many occasions, the lady claims, and the accused does not point blank deny the soft impeachment.

At Saratoga a $500 diamond ring was bought. Mrs. Van Houten says this was given her as an engagement token. Mr. Morse says it was bought by the lady herself as a "Saratoga souvenir," although the jeweler furnishing it ordered it from New York. Later Mr. Morse demanded its return, because she smiled at a clergyman.

After they came back from Saratoga Mrs. Van Houten went to Lexington to live, and here Mr. Morse went to spend his Sundays. Later she came to the Parker House, and afterward to Ashburton place. At this time she claims she began to get her wedding clothing, all of which Mr. Morse insisted should be marked "M."

In November, 1891, Mr. Morse showed the lady of his supposed choice some wedding certificates. Then arrangements were made for a wedding in Toledo and a bridal trip to Hot Springs.

But love appears to have grown cold shortly after this. Mr. Morse admits that there may have been a conditional engagement, based on business affairs, he having assumed charge of her property and advanced much money on it.

Mrs. Van Houten has no doubt of an engagement. But a marriage did not ensue, the reason for its many postponements and final abandonment appearing to be Mr. Morse's daughter's objection to the acquisition of a new and youthful mamma.

So a breach of promise suit ensued, with the result stated above. Mr. Morse will ask for a new trial.

The plaintiff is a charming looking woman of 35, while the defendant has passed the allotted age of three score and ten.

A Well-deserved Award.

The Treasury Department at Washington, after receiving bids from the largest and best-known carpet manufacturers and dealers throughout the country, has awarded to the old and trustworthy house of John H. Pray, Sons, & Co. of Boston, the contract for furnishing Brussels carpets for government use throughout the country for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894.

This contract amounts to about 20,000 yards, more or less, and is for Brussels of the firm's own manufacture, having as a guaranty of the quality the firm's name woven on the back of every yard of carpet that is delivered, so that the house cannot fail to be well known in all government buildings and offices throughout the United States wherever the carpets are seen.

Messrs. Pray & Co.'s reputation for selling only standard and reliable goods seems to have been well maintained, as the government standard is a high one, and the tests are most severe.

IF IT was a fact that dealers, or "middle men" as they are called, did not discriminate against Quincy granite, it might be unwise for Quincy quarrymen and manufacturers to seek work themselves, but we are informed that they do discriminate and that Quincy granite does not get a good show, because the public generally does not know but what other granite is its equal. We recognize no equal, either in quality, durability or beauty, and it would be a great benefit to the Quincy granite and local business, if these points were judiciously advertised.

It would be unfair to expect one or two firms to do this advertising and the 50 to 100 reap the benefit. One or two firms could not afford it, but there is merit in the suggestion that a stock company be formed to boom Quincy granite, to advertise it, send out agents, furnish designs, figure on work and let it out to Quincy manufacturers. The middlemen's profit would come to the Quincy manufacturers, or would be used by the association of Quincy manufacturers in booming Quincy granite and making the granite business of Quincy better.

As to the best medium for advertising, we would suggest the magazine list, a few of the leading weekly papers in the New England and Middle States, and the QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

CITY CHIT CHAT.

Items of Interest from All Parts of Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Doble have gone to the World's Fair.

Many Quincy people are attending the Brockton fair today.

Rev. Fr. Cuffe will have charge of the Sunday School of St. Mary's church.

Mrs. E. B. Collins will open millinery parlors in Faxon's new block near City Hall.

The Quincy Cycle club is installed in its new quarters in Faxon's building on Granite street.

A public hearing is advertised for Oct. 16, on building a sidewalk on Beal street, under the betterment act.

Visitors to the new power station of the Quincy & Boston street railway are numerous and all express admiration at the arrangements.

The Republican Councillor convention for this district was held in Boston today, but the nominee was not known at the time of going to press.

At the drive-whist party given by the Granite City club on Wednesday evening, the successful competitors were Messrs. Alonzo G. Durgin and John Curtis.

We presume many of our ladies will be disappointed to learn that Mrs. Greenwood has decided not to take the dressmaking rooms of Mr. Hayden in Wilson's block.

Mr. C. H. Hardwick accompanied the Appalachian club on its outing this week. The excursion up Massemet mountain was postponed after arriving at Shelburne Falls, but carriage rides were enjoyed.

Charles H. Porter, Jr., of this city, was head usher at the fashionable church wedding in Milford Wednesday evening of Miss Mabel Lee Godfrey of Milford and Dr. Lyman Beecher Swormstedt of Washington, D. C., the Rev. E. W. Whitney officiated.

One of the four entries in the three-year-old stallion class at Brockton is that of J. B. Benson, of Quincy, who enters a handsome bay, Sidney McGregor by Robert McGregor. His dam was Etta B. by young Jim. Sidney took the first premium last year in 2-year-olds, and looks even better this year. He trotted at Bridgewater two weeks ago and showed good style.

Special Notice.

THE VOTING LISTS.

An Interesting Summary of the Preliminary Lists.

AS POSTED IN CITY THIS WEEK.

Over 200 More Voters Than Oct. 1, 1892—The Changes.

THE DAILY LEDGER presents today a carefully prepared summary of the voters of the city. It shows the total number of voters in the city and in each ward now and a year ago. It also shows the total number of changes in each ward—the number dropped and added. Of the number added, but 38 are new voters, showing that 99 voters have moved from one ward to another between May 1, 1892 and May 1, 1893.

| | —On Lists— | | —In Revision— | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Today. | Oct. 1, '92 | Dropped. | Added. | Changes. |
| Ward One, | 619 | 578 | 89 | 44 | 133 |
| Ward Two, | 522 | 495 | 51 | 27 | 78 |
| Ward Three, | 590 | 562 | 117 | 30 | 147 |
| Ward Four, | 682 | 652 | 70 | 9 | 79 |
| Ward Five, | 460 | 365 | 43 | 22 | 65 |
| Ward Six, | 307 | 295 | 46 | 5 | 51 |
| Totals, | 3180 | 2941 | 416 | 137 | 553 |

It will be noticed first that there are over 200 more voters than on the preliminary lists last year. The greatest gain was in Ward Five, Wollaston, where the increase of 95 was more than any other two wards. Wards One, Four, Three, Two and Six follow in the order named.

West Quincy continues to be the largest ward, but Ward One has also over 600 voters. Ward Three is third, Ward Two is fourth, Ward Five a much better fifth and Ward Six last.

In the revision there were 553 changes, a transfer from one ward to another counting twice.

Most of the changes, over one-half the total number, were in Wards Three and One. Ward Three lost the largest number and Ward Five the least. Ward One gained the most and Ward Six the least.

Deducting the 99 transfers from 416, shows 317 to have disappeared from the lists. As names can be dropped only for death or removal from the city, it is evident that the assessors and registrars believe some 200 voters to have removed from the city during the year.

It is probable that many more have moved in, and that there will be 3400 to 3600 on the list, at the State election Nov. 7. The Registrars will hold several meetings before registration closes Saturday Oct. 28, at 10 P. M.

Disappointed in Love.

Miss Susie F. Hayden the 30-year old daughter of Mr. Charles Hayden of Fort street, committed suicide Wednesday evening by hanging herself in her father's stable by a piece of clothes line.

She was discovered by her brother's wife, who summoned help and cut her down.

The police and Medical Examiner Gilbert were notified.

The girl was employed in the shoe manufactory of Jas. T. Penniman and has always borne an excellent reputation. She has been despondent of late and has threatened to take her own life.

The cause of her despondency is supposed to have been a love affair.

Probate Court.

No Quincy wills were allowed at the Dedham Probate Court on Wednesday.

Among the administrations granted was on the estate of P. H. Gavin, late of Quincy, and D. B. Lovell, late of Weymouth.

Inventories were filed on the estates of G. E. Winship, late of Wollaston, for $2,285, and Susanna H. Beale, late of Quincy, for $7,232.38.

W. H. Brasee was appointed guardian of A. W., Mabel H. and C. F. M. Winship, minors of Wollaston.

Political.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

It is very well for free trade orators to talk about the Democratic simplicity. Simplicity is a very taking word, but, in this case, it means that the workingman must subsist on a diet of bread and molasses, that he must give up his pretty home with its carpets, pictures and books, and live in a hut, that his children must leave school and go to work to help fill the family purse. This is what free trade means in England and this is what it will bring our country too if the people allow the party in power to pursue its destructive course. They should loudly protest against this declared war upon American industries. One very effective way for the people of Massachusetts to show the leaders of the Democratic party, who deceived them so cruelly last fall, that they are disgusted with them and their policy, is by jumping on their nominees this November. They can give these leaders a lesson they will never forget and at the same time help to bring about a return to prosperity. A DAY LABORER.

CHINA RECEPTION.

A Novel Donation Party in Aid of the Y. M. C. A.

Those who happened to be in the vicinity of the fountain Wednesday evening were no doubt puzzled, unless they had read the papers, to understand why so many people visited Hearn's drug store and then wended their way across the Square to the Young Men's Christian Association rooms, each with a good sized package. One might be led to think that the Association was receiving a stock of drugs, in anticipation of broken bones on the occasion of the gymnasium opening, or the next foot ball match. Those who took the pains to follow the crowd, found that each person on arriving at the rooms was relieved of the package by a young man at the head of the stairs. Each package contained one or more pieces of crockery which was donated to the Women's Auxiliary.

The rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers, and all the arrangements were complete for an entertainment, which was given in the parlor. It consisted of two violin solos by Mr. S. P. Moorehouse, with Miss Minerva Thompson Fuller as accompanist; Mrs. N. S. Hunting sang two selections, "The Lost Cord," and "Five o'clock in the Morning," both of which were excellently rendered. Miss Grace Mae Lamkin of Dorchester, read several selections in a pleasing manner. The "Nine Suitors." was unusually well read. The many friends of Miss Fuller were much pleased with two piano solos which she played. Her first selection was Goddard's Mazourka and the second was "In the Swing" by F. Lynes, the rendition of which showed much skill.

The only drawback to the success of the evening was the small attendance, owing partly to the unpleasant weather. The ladies were much disappointed in not receiving more crockery, and hope that the friends who were not present will assist them in securing the remainder which will be required in assisting at the receptions. Contributions can be left at the rooms or given to any of the officers of the auxiliary. The unsold dishes will be returned in a couple of days.

WEYMOUTH.

The funeral of Frank R. Lovell was held from his late residence on High street, East Weymouth, Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Mr. McDonald officiated. The services were attended by Crescent lodge and Wompatuck encampment, I. O. O. F. The interment was at the East Weymouth cemetery.

Officers Bailey, Maynard and Sprague raided the Wayside house at South Weymouth, Wednesday and seized a small quantity of beer.

The selectmen gave a hearing at South Weymouth on Wednesday night to the residents of Pleasant street, for a change of location of route granted the Abington & Rockland street railway. The sentiment generally expressed was that the location should remain as it now is. The selectmen decided not to grant the petition.

W. H. Clapp & Co., boot and shoe manufacturers of Weymouth Landing, have assigned to Frank H. Mason. Their liabilities are stated to be about $50,000, with small assets.

Officers Garey, Fay and Richards raided the premises of William J. Murphy on White street Wednesday and seized a quart of whiskey.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Vining are at Brockton this week.

Work on the improvements to Pilgrim church is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible.

Miss Carrie Petterson of this town entered Tufts college at the opening this week.

Welcome L. G. Beale has moved into the Alden Whiting house on Lovell street.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Kelley of Weymouth, for drunkenness was fined $10.

Leo Edwum was arraigned for defrauding Rhoda M. Brown out of $15 for board. Case continued until Saturday.

Charles M. Driver of Quincy was arraigned for disturbing the peace. Case continued until October 26.

Richard Calef was arraigned for obtaining money for subscriptions to the Ladies' Home Journal under false pretences from Mrs. James Bisson and Mrs. Annie M. Hayden. Case continued one week, the defendent being held in 400.

A GOOD FIELD.

Agents Swindle 200 or More Quincy People—An Arrest Made.

Another swindler has been working Quincy for the past two weeks and so successful has he been that two hundred and thirty people have parted with $1.75 with the expectation of getting something of ten times that value in return. As so many people have been taken in by swindlers in the past, it seems strange that when anyone who made such an offer as these parties did, they should find so many who would be taken in. It only shows, however, that a man with a smooth tongue can find plenty of victims.

The parties have been working this city for about two weeks. They have been making a systematic house to house canvass soliciting subscriptions to the Ladies' Home Journal. As an inducement they offered to give twelve large oak framed lithographs and a year's subscription to the above name journal for $1.75. Just think of it, the regular price of the Journal is $1 and for the seventy-five cents they were to give you what was worth outside of the pictures over $12.

The bait was a tempting one and as said before, something over two hundred Quincy people swallowed it and parted with $1.75.

One of the ladies who subscribed became suspicious when her journal did not arrive, and wrote the home office which promptly informed her that the parties were swindlers. She notified Chief of Police Langley who has been watching for the parties.

The officers were unable to find them, however, until Wednesday evening when Officer Ferguson arrested one of the fellows at the depot.

He refused to give his name to the officers, but that availed him nothing, as they already knew that it was Richard Calef.

While sitting behind the bars at the police station he told the following story:

"My trade is a jeweller, and I came from the West in search of work. About five weeks ago I met a man in a billiard hall in Providence who gave his name as C. H. Booth. When he learned that I was out of work he offered to employ me as an agent. I was to receive $12 per week and a commission of twenty cents on every subscriber I secured. We worked in a number of places, coming to Quincy two weeks ago. I supposed everything was all right until Tuesday when I learned that it was a swindle. I met Booth in Boston Tuesday afternoon and told him it was a swindle. He denied it at first but afterwards owned that it was. I did not know what to do, but I came back to Quincy and was arrested."

The officers are inclined to place some reliance on Calef's story. He was arraigned in court today.

ADVERTISING GRANITE.

The Moumental News Replies to the Suggestions of "A Business Man."

In reply to recent communications in the QUINCY DAILY LEDGER by "A Business Man," who advocated newspaper advertising of Quincy granite, the Monumental News comments editorially as follows:

"With all due regard for the sincerity of this correspondent, we must say that the plan he proposes is in our estimation both impractical and unwise. In the first place the manufacture and sale of monuments is an entirely different business from the sale of patent medicines, stove polish or shoes. The latter are objects of every-day consumption, in the use of which every person in the land is vitally and of necessity interested constantly, so that advertising on these subjects at once strikes a popular chord and interests and impresses the general reader where an advertisement of a monument would have no effect whatever. Monuments are not only articles of luxury largely but they enter into the thought of the average individual only when suggested by the death of some near relative or friend. Consequently the demand for them is so limited, as compared with the demand for medicines or shoes, that few persons if any would be attracted to an advertisement of a monument in a paper of general circulation.

"Another consideration should be borne in mind, which is that advertising must be proportioned to the popular demand for the goods advertised. Ten thousand dollars expended in advertising shoes may result in the sale of a hundred thousand dollars worth of the brand of shoes advertised, but it is easy to understand how the same amount of money expended in advertising monuments through the same mediums would probably not result in sales sufficient to secure a return of the money expended. The difference lies largely in the fact that shoes are a necessity while monuments are not.

The dealers are the very persons whom the manufacturers must reach in this business. The moment they would attempt to ignore the dealers and sell over their heads to the general public that moment the dealers would rise en masse in opposition to such a movement. The interests of dealer and manufacturer are identical, and it is important that the utmost harmony prevail between them. For this and many other reasons, the plan proposed by "Business Man" is unwise. Even if it were practicable the expenditure of $10,000 in the general advertising proposed would be but a drop in the bucket and would be the signal for a similar movement on the part of other manufacturers' associations."

IN AID OF IRELAND.

Treasurer Kenny Acknowledges Quincy's Contribution in Lengthy Letter.

The letter of James Parker, treasurer of the Quincy branch of the Irish National League forwarding £12 to Ireland, and the reply of the Treasurer of the Independent Home Rule Fund are printed in full below and will be of interest to many:

QUINCY, Mass, U. S. A.
July, 25, 1893.

To Dr. J. E. Kenny, M. P.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed is a draft for £12 sterling, from the Quincy Branch of the Irish National League of America, as first installment of our quota to the Independent Fund. We hope Mr. Redmond will carry out his intention of coming to America this Autumn as soon as the Home Rule Bill gets a third reading.

There are many mistaken ideas being preached all over America by the advocates of the "Federation" but the people of Irish instincts are faithful to the memory and policy of Charles Stewart Parnell, and the time is coming which will prove that the policy of Independence is the only true policy for Ireland.

"Friendship to all true men Entangling alliances with none."

Yours truly for the cause,
JAMES PARKER,
Treasurer Quincy Branch I. N. L.

15 RUTLAND SQ., DUBLIN,
September 9, 1893.

DEAR MR. PARKER: I trust you will excuse me for not sooner replying to your letter of July 25th last enclosing draft for £12, the generous and timely contribution to our slender resources, from your patriotic colleagues of the Quincy Branch of the I. N. L. It is one of the many evidences we receive to prove that the spirit of true independence and of love for the true faith of Irish nationality still lives and labors for its faith, amongst our countrymen on your side of the Atlantic.

Irish Nationalists have had for generations to bear up against the calumnies and misrepresentations of Ireland's natural enemies, and the spirit of nationality was robust enough to survive all such attacks, but now the attacks are mostly from the ranks of our own countrymen, and they are far harder to bear, still we are in no way intimidated, and are as determined as ever to uphold the glorious traditions of the past and to remain faithful to the memory of our great martyred leader.

We know well the difficulties under which our friends in America, labor in consequence of the cloud of falsehoods raised concerning us and our motives and our acts by the seceders and their dupes in the states.

Your letter comes to us as a welcome proof that these difficulties are at all events not increasing, and we may expect as time rolls on, that honest minded men who have hitherto been deceived by the tactics pursued, will gradually come to recoguize the real facts of the case, and to understand the true inwardness of the base betrayal by which the fair fame of our country has been disgraced.

I am convinced that the national cause is at this moment face to face with one of the most dangerous crises it has ever had to meet and surmount, and this entirely due to the idiocy at well as the baseness of the men whose subserviency to Gladstone was the cause of the removal from the scene, and ultimately of the death of the one man who was the bulwark of our cause, and the terror of its enemies, and whose presence was never more needed than at the present time.

Your letter at such a time is doubly welcome to those on whom on this side the burden of keeping the flag flying now rests, and who feel more acutely day by day the terrible loss treachery inflicted two years ago on the National cause.

We are truly grateful for such help, and feel sure the example will find patriotic imitators in abundance.

I don't know yet whether it will be possible for Mr. John Redmond to visit your shores this autumn. I fear very much the great amount of work thrown upon him will interfere, but I am not without hope some one from this side may be able to go amongst our friends in America. I feel sure he will have a warm welcome in Quincy should any one be sent over. I am sending you a copy of the Independent newspaper in which the subscription was acknowledged and in which your letter was published.

Again thanking you and your friends.

Yours truly,
J. E. KENNY,
Treasurer Independent Home Rule Fund.

Stevens—Sylvester.

Miss Marcia Hall Sylvester, daughter of Mrs. Eliza F. Sylvester, and Mr. Moses L. Stevens, were married Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's mother, Warren street, Newton Centre. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Theodore J. Holmes and the bride was given in marriage by her mother. Miss Mary P. Sylvester was maid of honor and Miss Alice H. Sylvester, sister of the bride, and Miss Aline M. Sylvester, cousin of the bride were bridesmaids. A reception was held from eight to ten, which was largely attended. Mr. Charles Cushing of Bath, Maine, Mr. William M. Ryder of Newton Highlands, Mr. Arthur Foster of Boston and Mr. Marcus Morton of Brookline, acted as ushers. The bride and family resided in this city until a few years ago and have many friends here. Those attending the reception from Quincy, were Miss Prescott, Miss Annie L. Prescott, and Mr. Walter B. Holden.

IN CONGRESS.

Southerners Make Interesting Speeches Against Absolute Repeal.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Two of the most eloquent and exciting speeches that have been made in the senate chamber since the debate on the silver purchase repeal began were delivered by Democratic southern senators—Messrs. Butler of South Carolina and Blackburn of Kentucky. Each speech lasted about two hours, and each speaker had large and sympathetic audiences.

They were both against the repeal bill and in favor of such a compromise as would result in the permanent establishment of bi-metallism. Mr. Butler referred to the rumors connecting President Cleveland with attempts to influence legislation, and proclaimed his belief that there was no truth in them. As to the suggestion that the minority was trying to coerce the majority, he asserted that it was neither coercing, nor would it be coerced.

Mr. Blackburn made an appeal for speedy action on a compromise measure, and said that he would offer one himself later. He declared emphatically that he would have no part in deferring or delaying a settlement of the question. He appealed to Democratic senators to disprove the insinuation that the Democracy was unable to govern the country.

The third speech of the day was also made by a southern Democratic senator. Mr. Call of Florida was also in opposition to repeal.

KILLED BY INDIANS.

Missionary Thornton Had Evidently Miscalculated Their Nature.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Secretary M. E. Strieby of the American Missionary association received the following telegram yesterday from W. T. Harris, commissioner of the bureau of education at Washington:

"Thornton killed by natives Aug. 9. Mrs. Thornton has arrived at San Francisco on cutter Corwin."

H. R. Thornton was appointed in 1890 to take charge of the station at Cape Prince of Wales under the auspices of the Congregational society. Among 35,000 Esquimaux Indians he was the only white man there. He had communication with the outside world only once a year. When last heard from, he wrote he was pleased with the outlook, and that he was making way into the graces of the Indians.

Mr. Thornton came back last year and married Miss Neda Pratt of Auburn, Me., who had for some time been a city missionary here. They returned to Alaska and up to January of this year they had not been heard from. A child had been born to them when last heard of.

THE ALVA'S FATE.

She Probably Foundered Off the Coast of North Carolina.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The Atlas line steamer Alene has brought here the lifeboat of the Alva found by the steamer Jason. Captain E. J. Seiders of the Alene, speaking of the probable fate of the Alva, said:

"There is no doubt in my mind that the people had been in the lifeboat which the Jason picked up. I believe that there were not more than three or four people in the boat, and they were washed out of it by the heavy seas. The lifeboat was picked up about 250 miles east southeast of Wilmington, N. C. It was just outside the gulf stream, and indicates that the Alva went down inside the stream on the Carolina coast.

"It is just possible that some of the passengers or crew have been saved. They might have been rescued by a sailing vessel bound for Africa from North Carolina and have not yet reached port. I do not think the Alva went down on account of the cyclone. She probably went down on the third day out from New York."

SILVER PURCHASES.

Secretary Carlisle Makes a Reply to Recent Criticisms.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Secretary Carlisle yesterday sent to the speaker of the house a letter explanatory of his silver purchase policy. After giving figures showing how greatly the price of silver had fluctuated, he says:

In view of these facts it seems eminently proper that, as the government of the United States is the largest purchaser of silver in the world, the secretary of the treasury, after examination of the offers and quotations of each day, should determine what in his judgment is a fair market price.

It is evident that there are but two courses open to the secretary. He must purchase 4,500,000 ounces of silver each month at whatever price may be asked by the dealers, no matter how unreasonable or extortionate they may be, or he must employ such means as are at his command to ascertain what the actual market price is, and make, or offer to make, the purchase at that rate; and it is simply because the dealers were not willing to accept what was considered a fair market price that 4,500,000 ounces were not purchased during the months of July and August.

Memphis Labor Troubles.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 5.—The switchmen on the Illinois Central and Yazoo and Mississippi returned to work yesterday. The Chesapeake, Ohio and Southwestern men received their time checks and discharges. The yards of the Chesapeake and the Memphis and Charleston are full of freight.

The Czar's Ultimatum.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 5.—On account of the press criticisms on the loss of the iron clad Reosalka, the Russian press censors have forbidden newspapers to refer to the disaster in any way or to open relief funds without permission.

To Trouble Borrowers.

There is many a trouble
Would break like a bubble,
And into the waters of Lethe depart;
Did we not rehearse it
And tenderly nurse it
And give it a permanent place in the heart.

There is many a sorrow
Would vanish tomorrow,
Were we willing to furnish the wings;
So sadly intruding
And quietly brooding,
It hatches out all sorts of horrible things.

How welcome the seeming
Of looks that are beaming,
Whether one is rich or whether one is poor;
Eyes bright as a berry,
Cheeks red as a cherry,
The groan, the curse and the heartache can cure.

Resolve to be merry
All worry to ferry
Across the famed waters that bid us forget,
And no longer fearful,
But happy and cheerful,
We feel life has much that is worth living for yet.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew will hold its eighth annual convention in Detroit in September from the 14th to the 17th, inclusive. The brotherhood is connected with the Protestant Episcopal church and has a membership of over 10,000, principally young laymen. There are 850 distinct chapters in the United States, and 700 delegates are expected to attend the Detroit convention.

BISHOP DAVIES.

Bishop Thomas F. Davies of Michigan will preside, and Bishop McLaren of Chicago will deliver the charge to the brotherhood. Bishop Davies has taken a conspicuous interest in the brotherhood and has in many ways fostered his work in his diocese of Michigan since he was called there from Philadelphia in 1889.

THE GULF CYCLONE.

Twelve Hundred Lives Supposed to Have Been Lost.

REPORTS ARE INCOMPLETE.

Harrowing Stories by Survivors of the Disaster.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—The latest advices from the section of the state devastated by Sunday night's storm indicate that the death list will reach the appalling total of 1200. Train crews on the Grand Island road report the track covered with debris, in which dead bodies are profusely intermingled, and one of the passengers said that he counted no less than 85 bodies on his journey to this city from that part of the destroyed district.

The country throughout is a scene of wreck and devastation. The trains which reached New Orleans last evening brought a number of the Bayou Cook survivors to the city, many of them wretchedly attired and their faces bearing the marks of fearful suffering. Tony Negevitch, one of the survivors, reports that 87 bodies had been found there up to the time he had left, and from information volunteered by other arrivals it is estimated that 300 people perished on Bayou Cook and in that section of the country. The deaths at other points all the way from Bayou Cook to Grand Isle and Cheniere will swell the total to more than 1200, according to the best information now obtainable. At Grand Bayou not less than 26 perished.

It is learned that the loss of life in Rosario and Lincoln has been great. No definite information has been yet received from Grand island. The tracks are completely washed away, and as there is no communication by telegraph it is impossible to verify the report that there has been great loss of life at that point. The houses on Grand island are built on a ridge that runs through the middle of the island, and as many of them are sheltered by the trees it is difficult to calculate what the result of the storm has been. There are only about 200 residents on the island and no one has arrived from there.

CHENIERE WIPED OUT.

Terrible Suffering of Its Inhabitants Told by a Survivor.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—Mathew Schurb of Goldsboro, just opposite the city, was one of the survivors of the Cheniere calamity and arrived yesterday on the steamer Good Mother. He brought with him a harrowing story of his experiences and of the loss of life at Cheniere. He says in one house there were 25 people. The house was a rude establishment of boards, and proved to be a tomb of probably a score of persons.

Mr. Schurb estimates that the loss of life on Grand Isle and Cheniere, Caminada, and in the Grand Lake, Adams, Cook, Chalon and Trister bayou settlements will reach 800. When he left Cheniere island he counted but five houses standing, out of a total of about 300, while the land was covered with corpses.

Mr. Schurb says that when daylight broke the picture of desolation was awful to behold. Only here and there stood a house. Here and there were ghastly faces of corpses turned upward to the peaceful skies, now bright and beautiful with the mild autumn sun, and bearing no traces of the fury of the night. Upon them were still evidences of the terrible agony that they had suffered before death came to relieve them of their troubles. Many of the men, women and children had lived through the night, but mortally wounded and with nothing to quench their thirst, and no medical assistance at hand, had given up the struggle that verily tried men's souls.

There were broken arms and broken legs, bruised and battered bodies, faces slashed out of all human resemblance. Many a pile of debris was the temporary grave of a family.

Cheniere lies across from Grand Isle, and is separated from the island by Cheniere bay. Its head is stuck out in the gulf, and when the storm came up the mighty waves of the ocean washed over the face of the stricken land and swept everything before them. Cheniere was the home of fishermen and storekeepers, and it comprised a colony of 1400 souls, with churches and schools and evidences of modern civilization.

Nearly all its residents were white people, the Spanish race largely predominating. There was no time to build coffins, and those remaining dug ditches in which to deposit the remains of the victims. Mr. Schurb participated in the interment of not less than 50 persons, men, women and children, some of these having not a mark upon their persons to show what had caused death.

Unless steps are taken immediately to organize relief parties it is not unlikely that many will perish from starvation and thirst.

The water destroyed all the provisions on the Cheniere island. The result is that fresh water is so scarce that it is not sufficient to relieve the thirst of the hundreds who are now without anything to eat and scarcely anything to drink.

Jealousy and Vitriol.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Oct. 5.—Mrs. Mary Fallon of Hudson park entered the store of Mrs. Traphagen, to whom she claims her husband has been too attentive, and drew a syringe filled with vitriol and forced the fluid into Mrs. Traphagen's face. None of the vitriol entered Mrs. Traphagen's eyes, but her face is badly scarred.

Captured In Connecticut.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—William S. Rogers, a young man who mysteriously disappeared from Brooklyn over two years ago, after committing forgeries amounting to upward of $5000, was arrested yesterday in Norwalk, Conn. He will be brought here on requisition papers for trial.

The Los Andes at Buenos Ayres.

BUENOS AYRES, Oct. 5.—The ironclad Los Andes, which was recaptured from the rebels off Rosario a few days ago, was towed back to this city yesterday. She is in a badly battered condition. The trial of the political prisoners will open immediately.

Fell From a Carriage.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Mrs. Bull, wife of Dr. William T. Bull, who was Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., was alighting from her carriage, when the horses became frightened and started, throwing her to the ground. She was seriously injured.

BEATEN AND ROBBED.

An Aged Man Almost Killed on the Outskirts of Providence.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 5.—A startling highway robbery and attempt at murder was revealed to the police yesterday. Josuatine B. Winette, aged 65, a foreman on ledge work in Limerock and North Providence, was the victim, and when found lying on the roadside on the Louisquisett pike, just over the city line, was nearly dead.

Winette not long since received a call from the police for aid in identifying the assailant in a Federal hill cutting affair. Winette found the man, and this angered the friends of the criminal. Winette then received a note of warning from an unknown person, saying, "You want to get out of here as soon as possible or you will be found hanging."

Monday night he called at the house of some Italians in the second police district. He remained quite late. On the way home, when he reached a spot outside the city limits, he was pounced upon by two or three men and smashed in the head with a big stone. Then he was kicked in the face and cut in the arm and leg with a knife. Some few dollars were secured.

In the district court yesterday Camiero Tortolio and Passacal Demoio were charged with the crime, and held in $1000 each. Winette's injuries are serious.

VIGILANT HAS FRIENDS

Who Are Willing to Bet That She Beats the Valkyrie.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The first of a series of best three in five races for the queen's cup, more commonly called the "America's," is scheduled for today. It will be between the American centerboard yacht Vigilant and the English keel yacht Valkyrie. It will be over a course 15 miles to windward or leeward (as the case may be) and return, and the start will probably be from an imaginary line between the Sandy Hook lightship and the steam yacht May.

The cup will be the ostensible prize of the victor, but the real prize will be that the maker of the winner will have credit of supremacy over all others in naval architecture. There is more excitement over this race than over any of its predecessors, and, blow high or low, it will be witnessed by thousands of people.

The Valkyrie is regarded by yachtsmen much as the Thistle was before her races with the Volunteer. She is held to be too formidable an antagonist to treat lightly, or to bet against rashly. What betting there was was in favor of the Vigilant, and considerable Vigilant money was not covered. The prevailing odds were five to four in favor of the Vigilant.

FALL RIVER'S MUDDLE.

Hargraves Explains His Part In the Alleged Bribery Case.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 5.—Councilman Hargraves, who is charged with having been influenced by a money consideration into voting for the award of a schoolhouse contract to a builder whose bid was higher than others, admits that he stated before the contract was voted on that if this man received the award it would be as good as $500 to him (Hargraves).

Mr. Hargraves explained yesterday that when he said this he did not mean to have it understood that he was to receive cash for his vote. He is candidate for alderman in the same ward in which the favored contractor lives, and he says he meant to imply that should this man receive the contract he (Hargraves) would in return get more political work from him in the ward than he could otherwise secure if he paid $500 for it. Informal protest has been entered by other bidders and an investigation will follow.

ALMY WAS INNOCENT.

Declaration of Dr. Mary Walker Concerning the Warden Murder.

SYRACUSE, Oct. 5.—Dr. Mary Walker arrived here from Boston yesterday and caused the arrest of Arthur D. Snead of this city, whom she says is the murderer of Christie Warden at Haverhill, N. H., in July, 1891. She alleges that the wrong man was named for that crime. She further alleges that Snead is also Henry L. Norcross, whom it was thought threw the bomb at Russell Sage.

It was a companion of Snead or Norcross who was killed at that time. Snead has been held to await investigation. Dr. Walker told a plausible story at the police headquarters, and Snead could not give a satisfactory account of himself.

Leopold Wasn't Drowned.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 5.—It was reported yesterday that a student named Leopold was driven into the canal and drowned during the recent hazing. Leopold has returned and stated that the sophomores pursued him, and, becoming badly scared, he jumped into the canal and swam safely to the other side.

Emma Goldman's Trial.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—A jury was secured yesterday afternoon in the case of Emma Goldman. Assistant District Attorney McIntyre opened the case for the prosecution. The only witness called was Detective Jacobs. He read a number of extracts from her speech, which was of a most seditious nature.

Sentence None Too Heavy.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 5.—A prominent merchant of Kazen, Noveshiloff by name, has been found guilty of wholesale murder and sentenced to hard labor for life in Siberia. He killed his parents, three sisters, his wife and his wife's parents in order to secure their property.

Hiding In a Forest.

WELCH, W. Va., Oct. 5.—Jack Martin was shot and instantly killed near here by Perley Herndon. The latter accused Martin with alienating his wife's affections. The murderer made his escape across the line into the forests of Kentucky.

Ready to Meet His Fate.

BARCELONA, Oct. 5.—Pallas, the anarchist and would-be assassin of General Martinez de Campos, will be shot tomorrow. He declares he has no fear of death, and his manner and his conversation show that he tells the truth.

Indicted For Murder.

SYRACUSE, Oct. 5.—Lucius R. and Charles Wilson were indicted for murder in the first degree for the killing of Detective James Harvey on July 31. A special report was made by the jury.

Whole Train of Lunatics.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 5.—A special train came here from the north filled with 150 insane people, all from Willard asylum. They were transferred to the Hudson river state hospital.

Chamberlain Arrives.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Joseph Chamberlain, the Unionist leader in the English house of commons, arrived at quarantine station last night on the steamer Majestic

WITH A CUP AND SAUCER.

I send my love a fragile china cup,
With purple violets painted round the rim.
Empty it is, but sweet thoughts fill it up
And peep like tricksy elves above the rim.

Upon a saucer fashioned like a heart
Of palest tint my dainty cup is set.
Dear emblem, symbolizing life's better part—
How can she look upon it and forget?

The charm I drop within the cup is such
That every draft a tender thought will bring;
The crinkled leaves will brighten at her touch,
The flowers will know a mystic blossoming.

Poor pictured violets that never grew
In ferny nooks nor felt a summer shower!
To hearts that hate the false and love the true
There is a sadness in a painted flower.

But go, my gift, and as my lady sips
Her creamy cocoa or her fragrant tea
Thy happy rim may perchance touch her lips
And bring to her a fleeting thought of me!

"S'POSE IT'S SATAN."

It was only the ground on which the 150 boys of Dr. Kellar's school disported themselves. But besides the boys present there were at least 150 demons and angels of ambition, envy, loyalty, perfidy and truthfulness.

The doctor himself, in a new suit of tweed, seemed to the boys to be far more approachable here in the midst of their sports than when in academic cap and gown he cast gloom through their ranks by stalking along with that searching eye of his well turned on the discomfiture of evildoers. However, even at these grewsome times, the boys admitted among themselves that Kellar was a gentleman, and that they'd rather take a hiding from him than punishment drill from a cad any day.

For they were proud of Kellar's, loyal to the school, and ready to battle to the bitter end against any common foe who dared to asperse it in the slightest degree.

A little lad of 10 had just run light heartedly on the ground when the aforesaid searchlight fell on him, and simultaneously the head master shouted out:

"Colville two, I thought you had detention?"

Colville two, a redheaded, merry faced boy, smiled cheerfully, as if detention were a good joke to which he was well accustomed, and replied with pleasant promptness:

"So I have, sir."

"Then what brings you out here?"

"I s'pose it's Satan. He's always doing it."

"Doing what?"

"Making me naughty," said Colville two, with pathetically fearless frankness.

Then Kellar's little daughter went up and kissed him.

Twelve years later the battle of Tamai was being fought, and Colville two was in the thick of it. He had been slightly wounded in an attack that had been made upon McNeil's Zareba a few days previously, and his colonel had mentioned him in despatches and recommended him strongly for the "V. C." for personal gallantry.

On the strength of this Lieutenant Colville had written to the girl he was engaged to, who was at Cairo with her mother, telling her that he would not wait to marry her a day after he had got his company.

"I've always been a lucky fellow, though I've been in no end of scrapes all my life," the boy wrote, "and now the crowning luck of all is that I shall win you and the Victoria cross at the same time. Heaps of fellows deserve it just as much as I do, only I happened to be in front, you see, and was lucky enough to be able to make myself a target for the concealed enemy, who had been picking off our men like ninepins. The Arabs turned their fire on me, and our fellows were able to see where the beggars fired from. I must bear a charmed life, I think, for the ground was riddled all around me. Bob (Bob was her brother) and I fought shoulder to shoulder for hours, and we shall again many a day, I hope."

The girl who got this letter was worthy of the gallant, light hearted boy who wrote it, and she sent him pages of such loving, proud, encouraging words as only a proud, loving woman can write.

"I wish I were your wife that I might go to the front and dress your wounds myself, my own love. Even as it is I am capable of dressing as a boy and going to the camp. I quite understand Constance de Beverley's bowing her pride and riding for three long years in Lord Marmion's train. Only, Jack, there would be no 'bowing of pride' in my case. I should be prouder than ever if I could only do something to show the whole camp, the whole world, how dearly I love my boy."

Then she went on to tell how regularly she wrote to his mother, keeping her posted up in all that Jack was doing and suffering and winning. "She is my beloved mother, and only she can fully understand how dearly I have loved you ever since that day when I went and kissed you because you said you 's'posed it was Satan made you naughty.'"

Violet Kellar had fought a hard fight before she had gained her father's consent to become engaged to penniless Jack Colville. The girl's brilliantly good looks, attractive manners and general cleverness had brought far more eligible men to her feet. But she had been faithful to her first love through it all.

"I hate poverty, but I love Jack," she would say, when her father pointed out to her how far more sensible it would be of her to marry a man who could give her a good establishment in which he could stay at home in ease with her than to link her lot with that of a mere subaltern in a marching regiment.

"Probably after they have settled this disturbance in Egypt his regiment will be sent off to India for three or four years, and as he can't marry on his pay you will be left behind to meditate on your folly in having engaged yourself."

"I shall marry him as soon as this affair is over in Egypt, papa, and if he can't give me bread and water enough to support me I'll beg it from some one who can. I don't want a good establishment or a husband who'll stay at home in ease. I want Jack, and I mean to have him!"

"The boy always got what he wanted, confound him," her father grumbled good temperedly, and when he said that Violet knew that her case was won.

Her mother, after the manner of mothers, sympathized with the young people's romance and hopefully assured her that Jack would win promotion in some miraculous way without seeing much dangerous service.

So when Violet said: "Mother, dear, I don't want a swell wedding. I don't even want a wedding dress—Jack likes me in sailor serge better than anything, but I do want to go out and be as near him as I can. Take me to Cairo and let the chaplain marry us as soon as the fighting is over." Mrs. Kellar agreed to do so, and all their acquaintances declared that the mother was as great a fool as the daughter.

* * * * * * *

Violet's letter was keeping his heart warm this day at Tamai. He was feeling unaccountably happy and light hearted, as after a sharp tussle with half a dozen Arabs, three of whom he killed with his revolver, he was allowed breathing time for a few minutes, during which he cut the word "Suakin" on the little black pipe that had been his inseparable companion during the whole of the campaign.

Suddenly just as he had lighted and returned smoking it, he heard a frantic shout, and glancing up he saw young Kellar dash forward and fire at some one behind him (Jack). Simultaneously he felt a sharp agonizing pain in his back and knew that he was struck by a poisoned spear. An Arab, who had been concealed in a bush, had crept out and stabbed him before young Kellar could intervene.

He had staggered and then fallen on his face, and they thought that he was dead for a minute. But when they lifted him and were carrying him away a faint flicker of the old fun came into his fading blue eyes as he said:

"I wanted Violet and the 'V. C. so much. S'pose 'twas Satan"——

Before he could finish the sentence the fading light went out, and the blue eyes closed forever in this world.

* * * * * * *

Who shall tell her? The whole regiment knew the story of Jack's love, and not a man in it but felt heartsore for the girl who had loved and been so proud of her young hero.

"It will break my heart to go to Violet with such a tale," her brother moaned. "I'd rather take a revolver and blow my own brains out than have the task."

"You shall not have it," his colonel promised. "I'll go to her myself with as bitter tidings as I've had to convey."

Colonel Brankholme's mouth twitched, and his steady, fearless gray eyes filled with tears as he spoke. But this was more for the fine young soldierly life which had been cut short in its glory than for the desolate girl who was left to mourn it. However, he fulfilled his task so sympathetically that Violet soon found her greatest comfort in talking of her lost lover to his gallant chief.

"Time treads on the grave of affection!" Kind, merciful Time! Two years after Jack fell at Suakin, Colonel Brankholme, who had been away on leave for a month, telegraphed to the second in command of the regiment, "My wife and I will be back tonight."

"We'll give them a grand reception. Have the band to meet them, take the horses out and drag the carriage along the parade," some of the more enthusiastic of the juniors declared. But when young Kellar said: "Better not. The bride is my sister," the regiment felt that the less demonstration they made on the occasion of her joining it the better. Jack's memory was too green with them still for them to give her anything but a silent and rather sad welcome.—Montreal Star.

A Chinese Proverb's Origin.

"'He'll steal your shoes' is an expression which in China is used to describe an arrant knave and pilferer," says ex-Consul Edward Bedloe. "The expression is hundreds of years old and is based on an adventure perpetuated through the medium of decorated crockery ware. A wealthy Chinaman, whose gorgeously embroidered shoes were the envy of the community, was, according to the legend, despoiled of his pride in the following manner: A rascal one day rushed up, gave the rich man a hearty blow on the back, and seizing the astonished gentleman's hat pitched it upon a high wall. The next moment the fellow seemed to discover that it was not an old friend he was greeting so enthusiastically and apologized profusely.

"'How shall I get my hat?' inquired the man with the beautiful shoes.

"'Jump on my back and you can reach it,' replied the schemer.

"The suggestion was carried out, but while the hatless man was reaching for his head covering the rascal slipped off the handsome shoes and made away, leaving the simple minded millionaire clutching the wall."

Squire Osbaldestone's Ride.

Squire Osbaldestone's undertaking to ride 200 miles in 10 hours, which he accomplished so successfully on Nov. 5, 1831, is one of the most remarkable feats of endurance in the saddle and has the merit of freedom from cruelty. The squire rode his race on the Newmarket race course, changing his horse every fourth mile.

Mr. Osbaldestone used 16 horses for his task and rode standing in his stirrups like a jockey, while he kept his mount at full speed from start to finish of its four mile heat, having quite a "set to" with his pacemaker at the end of each. The squire was a hardy man and in good training, so suffered no bad effects from his exertions.—Chambers' Journal.

Supreme Court Edict Directed Against Strikers.

NO CALL FOR MILITARY.

Manufacturers Still Refuse to Yield Any Points.

AUBURN, Me., Oct. 6.—As a result of the petition of the Ara Cushman company to the supreme court for an injunction restraining the committees of unions from interfering with the business of the manufacturers and operatives in the shops of the company, Judge Foster has issued the following restraining order, copies of which have been served on the 118 defendants named in the petition:

Each and all of the defendants, and their attorneys and agents, and the attorneys and agents of each of them, are strictly enjoined and commanded by our said court, under penalty, to absolutely desist and refrain from further continuing the publication of the aforesaid notices, or other notices of a similar tenor, and from causing conspiracy, or instigating that the same be done; from further distributing the aforesaid circular, or other circulars of a similar tone, and from causing, conspiring and instigating that the same be done; from endeavoring, by willful misrepresentation, the payment of money, personal annoyance and abuse, threats, intimidation and force, or by other unlawful means, to prevent persons in the employment of the plaintiff from continuing in such employment, and from like manner to prevent other persons from entering such employment; from hindering or interfering with this complainant in any way in the lawful prosecution of its business, and from intimidating, hindering or interfering with any person in the employment of this complainant, or any person seeking or intending to enter the employment of this plaintiff, and from all attempts, directly or indirectly, to accomplish such objects, until the further order of our said court.

Excitement Has Cooled Down.

The several shoe firms comprising the manufacturers' association called upon Judge Foster, requesting him to call out the militia, but Judge Foster decided not to do so until there are further disturbances that make it necessary.

In coming from the shops yesterday afternoon the Armenian shoeworkers were not molested and the crowd did not gather at their boarding house. Everything is quiet on the streets.

Mayor Bolster has issued his third proclamation relative to the enforcement of the law against blocking streets.

In the municipal court yesterday, Frank McManus of Lewiston was sentenced to 30 days in jail for unlawful assembly.

The citizens' committee waited on the manufacturers' association to offer aid in effecting a settlement, but the manufacturers would not yield any points.

The leaders of the shoeworkers' unions consider the action of the supreme court a little hard on them, but as yet they have taken no formal action in the matter. The squad of Armenian shoeworkers has increased from 12 to 24.

General Manager Tucker, of the Maine Central railroad, has issued orders to station agents in Lewiston and Auburn prohibiting the congregating of crowds at the railroad stations.

HORRIBLE CRUELTY

Meted Out to a Little Boston Boy by His Boarding Mistress.

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—A horrible case of cruelty to a 3-year-old child was brought to light yesterday afternoon by the arrest of a woman who is alleged to have beaten the child in a most brutal manner.

Her name is Bridget Dowling, she is 35 years of age and resides at 158 Leverett street. She has been keeping the child for about a year, receiving $2 a week for her bother. The mother of the child is said to live in Cambridge. The child's name is said to be Jonas James and he is of Hebrew parentage.

The head and body of the child is one mass of bruises. On the left side of the face is a large black and blue bruise, and under one eye is a severe cut, which must have been of recent date. The lobe of the left ear is also jet black, and on the head, when the little one's hair is brushed back, may be seen black and yellow discolorations and the scars of a cut. The child's abdomen and both legs are also frightful sights; and it was thought at first that one leg was broken, but an examination shows that this is not so.

Agent Loring and the police are convinced that the bruises are the results of cruelty from the hands of the Dowling woman.

She says in defense that the wounds of the lad were caused by a fall which he received in going down a flight of stairs, but a reputable physician said that the wounds could never have been caused by a fall, but must have been the result of abuse.

The child is now being cared for at the home of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

THE M'KEOWN MURDER.

Thomas Larkin and John Rourke Are Charged With the Crime.

HARTFORD, Oct. 6.—Thomas L. Larkin and John Rourke were arrested last night for the murder of James McKeown Sept. 24.

The young men were examined at the inquest several times, and on Sunday Larkin wanted Rourke to leave town with him, as he thought they were to be arrested. Larkin denied everything. Rourke's story is as follows:

On the night of the murder they planned to go and see Mrs. McCoy, McKeown's housekeeper, a woman of bad reputation. Larkin climbed up a stone wall and went into the house. Rourke took a roundabout way, and when he reached the house he heard screams and saw Larkin running. The old man was after him, and he fell off the stoop on a stone flagging. He stood up and fell down again. The fall caused his death.

John Fee, the barber, who has been suspected, will be released.

FARMERS TAKEN IN

By a Sharp Little Trick Played by "Men From Kansas."

GREENFIELD, Mass., Oct. 6.—A numbe of prominent farmers in the southern part of this county are complaining that they have been the victims of sharp practice. Some time ago four men with an elaborate pedigree book came ostensibly from Kansas with a desire to improve the stock of farmers' horses in this section. The men claimed to own a thoroughbred Percheron stallion worth $2500. They wanted 25 men to each give their notes for $100. All colts produced by the stallion were to be bought when four months old at $100 each. In Greenfield no encouragement was given the scheme, but in Deerfield, Conway and Ashfield and other places the farmers took the stock. It is now claimed by some of them, men of good reputation, that when they came to sign the notes they were for $2500, holding each liable for that amount. They declined to sign and are now threatened with suits. The stallion is now stabled in Conway. Some experts place his value at $200.

Two Records Lowered.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 6.—Dartmouth students had fine weather for the second and last day of the annual fall meet. The possession of a new athletic field has increased the interest in the sports and the entries have been larger than in any previous year. Records were lowered in two events by F. P. Claggett, '94, and Stephen Chase, '96, in the 220-yard dash and 120-yard hurdle, respectively. Standing of the classes by points: '94, 90; '95, 62; '96, 36; '97, 17.

Beloved by Neighbors.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Oct. 6.—A farewell reception was tendered Judge Ide in Fairbanks' museum last night upon the eve of his departure for Samoa, where he has been appointed chief justice. The citizens of St. Johnsbury, irrespective of party, turned out in full force. Chief Justice Ross presided, and brief addresses were given by Rev. Edward T. Fairbanks and others. Mr. Ide responded briefly, but feelingly.

Attacked by a Rat.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 6.—Fred Flynn, the 6-year-old son of Patrick Flynn, was bitten by a rat yesterday while asleep. The child was bitten on the nose and arm, and the rat was tearing the flesh away when the father of the boy arrived on the scene, having been alarmed by the screams. Cornelius Mahoney, who attempted to kill the rat, was also bitten. Their wounds are not considered dangerous.

An Increase of Students.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 6.—The Yale medical school opened under favorable circumstances. The new chemical and bacteriological laboratory, which is to be used for the first time this year, about doubles the capacity of the school, affording new laboratories in every department of study. The increased facilities of the school from present indications are to be met by an increase in number of students.

Embezzled More Than $10,000.

RUTLAND, Vt., Oct. 5.—R. W. Patterson, treasurer of the Chicago Tribune, telegraphs to Rutland the following: "You may say, on my authority, that Louis A. Hilliard undoubtedly embezzled more than $10,000 of the money intrusted to him. He is a defaulter and fugitive. His salary was only $30 a week, not $5000 a year. The money he carried away was stolen from his employers."

Shock Killed Him.

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—John Hannon, who slipped in getting off an outward bound train last Monday night and had both legs terribly crushed by the cars, died yesterday from the effects of the shock of the double amputation. Deceased was 36 years old and a tanner by trade. He was the inventor of a secret process of preparing leather, but his secret died with him.

Not Guilty.

AUBURN, Me., Oct. 6.—In the supreme court the jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of Rev. L. B. Talbot, Baptist missionary among the French Canadians of Lewiston, who was charged with incest with his 18-year-old daughter, the complaint being made by City Marshal McDonough of Lewiston.

Wheeler Gets $25,000.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 6.—The will of Charles Wheeler, grandfather of Judge G. W. Wheeler of the superior court, was filed for probate here yesterday. The estate is valued at $40,000. Judge Wheeler's father is bequeathed $25,000 and the remainder is divided among relatives.

Brief Mention.

Patrick Carrigan was struck by a train near the depot in Uxbridge, Mass., and killed.

Over $25,000 worth of the securities stolen by burglars at Phillips, Me., have been recovered.

The Plymouth and Bay conference of Unitarian churches will meet at Whitman, Mass., Oct. 11.

The New Haven police have begun another crusade against policy shops, making two successful raids yesterday.

An unknown man was killed while trying to board a freight train on the River road, one mile above Northampton, Mass.

The jury at Montpelier, Vt., in the case of Ira Spencer of Marshfield, Vt., charged with arson, brought in a verdict of not guilty.

John Riley was stabbed in the leg at Haverhill, Mass., by John Garanti. Both men were arrested. Riley's wound is not serious.

The French engineers who are visiting Massachusetts on their way from the World's fair visited the Pacific and Washington mills at Lawrence, Mass.

M. J. Bourgeoise, an overseer at the Slade mill spinning room, Fall River, Mass., was fined $30 and costs for employing a young girl not quite 15 years of age.

Frank Baker, aged 7 years, of New York, the guest of Mrs. Knight of New Lenox, Mass., was attacked by a dog and frightfully bitten. The boy's condition is very serious.

A DRIFTING MATCH.

Vigilant and Valkyrie's First Leg Declared a Draw.

THE BRITISH BOAT LED.

Vigilant's Friends Glad That the Wind Failed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Lack of wind made the first of the international yacht races a failure. Thousands of enthusiastic citizens had a delightful day's outing on the water and saw Lord Dunraven's Valkyrie, the pride of Great Britain, sail past our cup defender Vigilant (but it was while the Vigilant was becalmed), and saw the Vigilant creep up on the British boat whenever the wind held steady. They saw the Valkyrie gain a big advantage by being better handled, and they saw both boats, after sailing 20 miles out of the 30 in five hours and a half, give up the race, as it was impossible to finish inside the six hours, the limit set by the cup committee.

CAPTAIN CRANFIELD, Of the Valkyrie. CAPTAIN HANSEN, Of the Vigilant.

It was more of a drifting match than a race. The wind at no time reached the dignity of a sailing breeze. The race was started with the wind from the north. It ended with the wind from the south. The thousands of enthusiastic yachtsmen saw the Valkyrie at one time nearly two miles in the lead, and some of them were glad that the wind failed to carry the boats over the course in the six hours, as it looked at the last as if the English would, in all probability, have won the race. More fair-minded yachtsmen recognized the superior way in which John Bull's sailors outgeneralled Uncle Sam's tars, and regretted that the English boat won only an empty victory.

Enthusiasts Out In Force.

The whole of New York and vicinity seemed to be on the water. A thick mist hung over the water in the morning, but at 11 o'clock it cleared away and the sea was like glass. There were boats from Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore and hundreds of nearby points. Had there been a heavy wind there would have undoubtedly been a number of accidents, as large and small craft alike were in such close quarters that, as it was, many accidents were narrowly averted.

The crews of the two yachts were astir at dawn. All unnecessary truck was put off on the tenders, and the boats made ready for the contest. The skippers looked dubiously at the sky and were disappointed, as both wanted a good strong wind.

A few minutes after 8 o'clock the Vigilant's anchor went up, and in tow of the tug Commander she passed out through the Narrows. On her were C. Oliver Iselin and Perry Belmont of the syndicate of owners; Captain Hansen, her skipper; Nat Herreshoff, her builder; Duncan Kew, the representative of Lord Dunraven; Captain Terry and Newberry Thorne.

The Valkyrie followed in tow of the tug Louis Pulver 10 minutes later. On board her was a distinguished party, including the Earl of Dunraven. The New York Yacht club was represented on the Valkyrie by Rear Commodore Archibald Rogers, head of the syndicate which built the Colonia.

The yachts were saluted by tugs and incoming ocean steamers as they passed down the bay and proceeded out to Sandy Hook lightship. They were followed by Commodore Morgan's steam yacht, May, with the cup committee on board. With the committee on the May was the secretary of the navy, Mr. Herbert.

The Vigilant arrived at the lightship ahead of the Valkyrie. The Valkyrie spent considerable time getting her mainsail up.

The Start.

The start was a pretty one, as the spinnakers were broken out just before crossing the line, and the two tall single stickers presented a fine appearance as they stood down toward the Jersey coast.

There was a big fleet at the turn, and Lord Dunraven and his men got a cheer and a salute of steam whistles and screams which they will not soon forget. The boats all waited for the Vigilant and gave her as good a blast as though she were leading instead of being a poor second.

When it became apparent that there would be no finish, many of the excursion boats started for the city. After the race was over the committee announced that the next race will be Saturday. It will be over the same course and will be the first race postponed from yesterday.

The Vigilant was the first to announce her intention of giving up the unsatisfactory contest, which she did by hauling down her jib topsail and taking a line from the tug Commander. The Valkyrie did likewise, being taken in tow by the tug Luckenbach.

At this time the Englishman was leading the American by one mile, which, added to the allowance of 1m. 48s, gave the Valkyrie really a lead of nearly a mile and a half. Had the boats continued to the starting point there is no doubt that the Valkyrie would have held her advantage and the race resulted in a victory for Lord Dunraven's cutter.

Here are the apparent times of the race:

| | Start. | Turning point. |
|---|---|---|
| Vigilant | 11.25.40 | 3.40.00 |
| Valkyrie | 11.26.30 | 4.01.00 |

Had a Rough Passage.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 6.—The British steamship Osmand, Captain O'Hagen, which sailed from Quebec on Sept. 20 and arrived here yesterday, encountered a terrific hurricane on Sept. 27. Three of her boats and part of her deckload were swept away.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED.

Epworth Leagues of Wollaston and West Quincy Unite for the Occasion.

The sixth anniversary of the formation of a Young People's Society in the Methodist Episcopal church, Wollaston, occurred on Sept. 30. The Epworth League, into which the original society was subsequently changed, celebrated the anniversary by a special consecration service on Sunday evening, Oct. 1. The roll was called, and as the members responded to their names, they each told in a few words what the Epworth League had done for them.

Thursday evening, Oct 5, the League held an anniversary sociable in the church and vestry. An invitation was extended to the pastor and Epworth League of the West Quincy church to be present. They responded to the number of nearly thirty.

A few friends from Quincy and East Milton were also present.

Music was furnished by a male quartette from the Neponset Baptist church, who sang several times during the evening to the great pleasure of the company present. Miss Bjorkman played a piano solo and Misses Barlow and Bjorkman a duet.

Remarks were made by Revs. W. W. Baldwin and C. W. Wilder, and refreshments were served in the vestry. The evening was passed most pleasantly, the exercises closing with a "Good Night Song" by the quartette and the singing of "Blest be the tie that binds" by the whole company.

Young Men's Christian Association.

Mr. E. W. Branch is expected to speak at the men's meeting Sunday afternoon.

The gymnasium classes started up with a good attendance this week. Many new men are joining them.

The annual meeting and election of officers will be held Tuesday evening, at 7.30 o'clock. After brief reports from committees and officers an entertainment will be given by Miss H. Elizabeth Witty, soprano soloist and Mr. E. J. Whitton, violinist. All friends, ladies and gentlemen, are invited.

The annual conference of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held next Wednesday and Thursday at Holyoke. On the arrival of delegates at Springfield they will be tendered a dinner by the Springfield ladies and shown the beauties of Springfield. At Holyoke they will be entertained by the ladies of the city. Mrs. Litchfield, president of the Quincy Auxiliary, will attend, and probably some others. Any one desiring to attend will be furnished with credentials by giving their names to Secretary Colton.

Wooden Wedding.

The fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. William A. McCormick was observed on Monday evening, Oct. 2, at their residence on Willard street. Select friends from Quincy and adjacent towns came from 8 to 10 o'clock. The bride and groom of five years ago, looking but slightly older than then, but not a whit less cheerful and pleasant, received all who came. Refreshments were in due time served. Many beautiful presents, not all of regulation wood, were brought by the smiling guests. The bride was dressed in the identical marriage dress, and the groom in coventional black. Their married life has been so happy that it was not deemed necessary to repeat the marriage ceremony to remind them of their vows. May they enjoy many beautiful years.

Col. Bogan Injured.

Col. Bogan, who was one of the judges of the marching at the field day of the 5th regiment at Braintree last week, was dismounted at the field day of the 9th regiment on Thursday, his horse slipping. The colonel received a severe contusion of the knee and a sprained wrist and hip.

The Brockton Fair.

Over 30,000 people are said to have been in attendance at the Brockton fair yesterday, and even a larger crowd is anticipated today. It is truly a great fair abounding in attractions. Quincy is largely represented.

UNABLE TO PREVENT HER. A sympathetic lady on one occasion stepped up to the bedside of a soldier lying in a hospital during the war and inquired: "Well, my poor man, is there anything you want?" "No, miss, I b'leeve not." "You're sure there is nothing I can do for you?" "Nothin' I can think of." "Oh, I do want to do something for you. Can't I wash your hands and face?" "Waal, if yo' want to do that I reckin yo' kin, but yo'll be the fo'teenth lady who's done that same thing this mo'ning, and two of 'em has washed my feet."—San Francisco Argonaut.

PASTOR INSTALLED.

Rev. James E. Bagley Becomes Minister of the

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH

The Sermon Preached by Rev. Edward A. Horton of Boston.

The installation services of the Rev. James Edwin Bagley as pastor of the Wollaston Unitarian society was held in that church on Thursday evening before a large and distinguished audience.

There were present to take part in the exercises, the Rev. F. W. Pratt of the First Parish of West Roxbury, the Rev. George H. Hosmer of the church of the Unity of Neponset, the Rev. Edward A. Horton of the Second Church of Boston, the Rev. Grindall Reynolds of Concord, the Secretary of the American Unitarian Association, the Rev. Daniel Munroe Wilson of Quincy, New England Superintendent of the American Unitarian Association, and the Rev. William R. Lord of the Harrison Square Unitarian church.

The music was by a double quartette consisting of Mrs. F. A. Page and Mrs. Tirrell, sopranos; Mrs. Jeanette Noyes Rice and Miss Spear, contraltos; Mr. Edward E. Bullock and Mr. Lester Bartlette, tenors; and Dr. George B. Rice and E. Walter Arnold, bassos.

The Rev. Mr. Horton preached an eloquent installation sermon on the signs of the times, taking for his text St. Matthew XVI, 3—And in the morning it will be foul weather today: for the sky is red and lowering. O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky; but can ye not discern the signs of the times?

The order of exercises in detail were as follows:

Free Libraries and Schools.

Massachusetts has two very proud exhibits at the World's Fair, in maps, one of which represents her free schools in black dots over the surface of the map. There are 7000 free public schools, of which number 245 are high, and 255 are evening schools. Boston has 574, Worcester comes second with 283. Of the teachers employed, (10,965) 9,873 of them are women. 3267 of them have graduated from the state normal schools.

The other map shows in red figures in each city and town the free public libraries, and the number of volumes in each one. The Boston library has over half a million of volumes alone, which number will be further increased when the new library is completed. Of the 352 municipalities, 310 have free libraries. Nearly three million books comprise the number. Our free libraries comprise 97 per cent. of the entire population, while the individual gifts for their support amount to over $6,000,000.

Children as Inventors.

Children have taken out a number of profitable patents. The youngest inventor on record is Donald Murphy of St. John, Canada, who at six years of age obtained from the United States exclusive rights in a sounding toy. Mabel Howard of Washington at eleven years invented an ingenious game for her invalid brother and got a patent for it. Arthur G. Smith of Richwoods, Ills., at twelve years invented and patented a rowing apparatus.

When only seventeen years old, Benjamin F. Hamilton of Boston took out patents on a number of devices for electric and elevated railways. A dispute over a contract which he desired to escape from on the ground of his minority made an interesting case not long ago before the commissioner of patents. Samuel Ker, eighteen years old, has patented a self-feeding pen. Other boys have invented useful devices for electric signaling, telephoning and cigarette making. George C. Pyle of Wilmington, Del., at the age of eighteen, patented a machine which turns out sixty horseshoes a minute. He sold it for a sum sufficient to lift the mortgage off his father's home. In fact, it was this purpose which inspired him to undertake the task of invention.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

McLennan—Woodmansee.

On Thursday afternoon a quiet wedding took place at Providence, R. I., which will be interesting to many in Quincy.

The happy bride was Miss Caroline M. Woodmansee, late head nurse at Quincy City Hospital; while the bridegroom was one of Quincy's popular medical practitioners, Dr. R. McLennan. After the ceremony, the newly wedded couple started for Quincy. Upon their arrival here, a reception was held at their handsome new residence near the South Quincy depot.

A very pleasant evening was spent among a few friends, and congratulations were showered upon the doctor and his wife, who looked exceeding happy in their new relation. Dr. and Mrs. McLennan intend to visit the World's Fair on their honeymoon trip, but business engagements of the doctor's will oblige them to put it off until towards the close of the month.

The couple were the recipients of many useful and beautiful presents from their friends. We desire on this occasion to extend compliments to bride and bridegroom, and throughout the years of their wedded life, we wish them happiness and prosperity.

Government Railroads.

In 1889 the railroads of Russia paid the government a net surplus of $77,500,000. Taking this as a basis the railroads of the United States would pay all the state and national taxes. India has 16,000 miles of government railroad, magnificent depots and iron telegraph poles. The poor working people of India average only seven bents a day. The railroad fare is only one-seventeenth of a cent per mile. So they can ride 119 miles for the price of a day's labor. The average price per day in the United States for labor is $1.50. There is a wide difference between seven cents and $1.50. yet the citizen of India can ride sixty-nine miles further for the price of a day's work than the American citizen. —Golden Rule.

One of the ballots does not appear as it was thrown out.

Mr. Cyrus Savage of Taunton, the nominee, was prominently mentioned for the office last year, and was defeated by Hon. David Hall Rice by only one vote in the convention.

A Fine Road to Travel.

In this great Columbian year, when all eyes are turned towards Chicago and the great exposition, it is comforting to know that the railroads leading thither are prepared to handle the immense traffic and carry it expeditiously to its destination. One of the roads that is winning golden encomiums by the excellence of its service is the Nickel Plate. The line is through a fine section of country, a great distance of it in view of Lake Erie, and passing numerous cities and towns. Its new passenger service is superb. The dining cars cannot be spoken of too highly, while the sleeping and day coaches are models in their way. Quick time is made going and returning and the service is in all respects first-class. What more can be asked—cheap rates; courteous attention; luxurious sleepers; magnificent day coaches; faultless road bed; unexcelled dining cars. Can anything be added to make the Nickel Plate Road more popular? It runs three trains daily in each direction. Its station in Chicago is central and easily accessible from all directions. If you are going anywhere at any time, don't let the fact slip your memory that a magnificent new passenger service has been established on the Nickel Plate Road. You who have not yet done the World's Fair, try the Nickel Plate and know what it is to enjoy the luxury of first-class travel.—Clipped from Allentown, Pa., Chronicle, August 22d.

AN INDIAN LETTER.

Methods of Communication Among the Indians.

The Picturesque of Eloquence.—Thoughts Expressed in Silence.—How Indian History is Preserved.—Letter from an Indian about Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

The sign language of the Indians is a wonderful thing. Two Indians different in their speech as a German and a Spaniard will readily communicate with each other.

It is the picturesque of eloquence to watch an Indian addressing a council and without speaking a word, making his meaning clear to all present by signs.

Histories and all written communications are made by pictures. The family history of a chief will be painted on a tepee. The following is a specimen of this method of communication.

The "letter" was written by KEE-EL-NAH-WE, "The one who knows secrets," a Kickapoo Indian Medicine Man.

SPECIMEN OF INDIAN LETTER WRITING.

The above letter translates as follows:

"The Indians offer to their white brothers flowers, leaves, roots and barks, made by the sun, the stars, and the rain (nature.) If the white brother is sick, this will make him stronger than the bear who will fall before him."

"SAGWA" is a medicine word meaning good or best, and signifies "best medicine."

Here are the sincere statements of a noble son of a grand race.

Every word is true.

Catlin, the highest authority on the Indians and who lived among them for years, says "the word of an Indian can always be relied upon," and he is right.

Here is proof of the genuine value of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

Here is a letter from a far different source. The following is from the Professor of Physiological Chemistry at Yale College, and this scientist says:—

"After a chemical analysis of Indian Sagwa, I find it to be an Extract of Roots, Barks and Herbs of Valuable Remedial Action with no Mineral or other Deleterious Admixtures."

Heed the teachings of these letters.

Take Nature's Remedy in season. If your blood is impure and your skin is marked by pimples, blotches and boils; if you have dull pains in your back and side; if your appetite is poor; if you do not get sound, refreshing sleep, so necessary to your health and strength, you are in Danger. These, and other symptoms are the warnings of nature.

Arouse yourself, and drive off the enemy—Arm yourself with Kickapoo Indian Sagwa—build up your system by its use and all danger is averted.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa and other Kickapoo Indian medicines contain only the products of the field and forest, nature's own vegetable growth of roots, barks and herbs, and of necessity are free from all mineral poisons whatever, because the Indians have no knowledge of them, depending wholly upon nature's laboratory for their resources, and upon their skill, born of centuries of experience.

Reception to Rev. H. E. Cotton.

That Rev. H. Evan Cotton, recent rector of Christ's church in this city, is appreciated in his new field of labor in Hagerstown, Md., is shown from the following, clipped from a Hagerstown paper:

"It has been many years since St. John's Protestant Episcopal parish of this place has welcomed a new rector, and this fact added to the general interest and liking that the new incumbent has aroused, drew such a large crowd to the parish house last night, that its four walls could hardly hold the crush.

"The evening was a most enjoyable, as well as a useful one. It was for the purpose of letting the new rector make a preliminary acquaintance with all the adults of his parish.

"The room in which the reception was held was charmingly decorated and beautifully lighted. The ladies of the church had filled it with furniture and hung the walls with rugs and drapery. The raised dais at the end was also covered with rugs, and in addition to the lamps two lines of Japanese lanterns crossed the room in the middle, suspended from each corner. In one corner was a table from which was served the refreshments of the evening, ices and cakes.

"The people began to come shortly after seven. Rev. Mr. Cotton and his wife, who wore a light gray cashmere dress with bonnet to match, stood in front of the dais.

"It was estimated that there were at least 150 people present during the evening, for several times the room was so crowded that there was scarcely place to move about."

OPENING SESSION

Of the New York State Democratic Convention at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, Oct. 6.—A beautiful day greeted the delegates to the Democratic state convention. Doring's band, stationed in one of the galleries, played lively airs as the delegations marched in and were seated.

Senator Edward Murphy, Jr., came upon the stage at 12:17, and was tendered an ovation. He immediately called the convention to order, and with a few words named Hon. Daniel N. Lockwood of Buffalo as temporary chairman. Mr. Lockwood addressed the convention, and said in part:

"The country is to be congratulated that we have a Democratic administration at Washington. The Democratic party is pledged to honest money, and in a few days the repeal of the Sherman law will be accomplished in response to President Cleveland's message. The Democratic party will repeal the Republican election law iniquity. All the pledges of the party will be fulfilled.

"New York can say to the nation that her two sons who occupy seats in the senate are true Democrats. Democratic legislation and Democratic laws have lessened the tax burden of the people. The future of the Democratic party is linked with the future of the American republic.

"With an executive at Washington who is fearless and honest—with Grover Cleveland the rights of Americans will be protected."

A resolution that the delegates of each congressional district appoint a delegate to serve on the committee on platform and resolutions, to which all resolutions shall be referred, was adopted.

LITTLE RHODY'S DAY.

The State Is Well Represented At the Great World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Yesterday was Rhode Island day at the World's fair. Rhode Islanders came by hundreds from their commonwealth to meet in a social way, and at the same time unite in making their day at the fair a success. Rhode Island National guard was represented by the staff officers of the Newport artillery and 115 men, Governor D. Russell Brown's personal staff and many military officers on the general staff.

At the Rhode Island building, which was packed with people, Governor Brown spoke interestingly about what his state had done at the fair, what the fair and Chicago had done for the nation and the world, and the proud part which Rhode Island played in American history and commerce.

The oration of Professor Williams was eloquent and scholarly, eliciting long and loud applause. He said in part:

"Political students aver that the causes which have wrought in America such stupendous and unparalleled results are the topographical and climatic conditions, the ethnic character of the people and the moulding influence of its political institutions. This is true. America leads the world in manufactures, in mining, in the application of science to industry, the arts and wealth. In agriculture America has essentially marched from the rear to the head of the column.

"It means something to say that steam and electricity were first harnessed to our chariots, and that the majority of inventions growing out of their uses—the telegraph, telephone, electric lighting—are all offsprings of the American brain; that one-half of the iron rails laid on the earth are laid in America; that one-quarter of all the telegraph wires are stretched above our heads."

In Congress.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The senate yesterday devoted six hours to executive business, spending but 15 minutes in open session. Hill (D. m., N. Y.) gave notice that he would offer an amendment to the rules, providing that a paired senator on a yea and nay vote shall be entered on the journal and counted as present for the purpose of constituting a quorum. Interest in the debate on the federal elections bill does not increase, and empty benches on both sides of the house are the rule and not the exception. At no time yesterday were more than 100 members present.

An Indiana Riot.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 6.—Trouble at the Big Four shops at Indianola over the employment of non-union boiler makers resulted in a running battle between the police and strikers. James Pitt was killed, and Superintendent Riley of the Peoria and Eastern was seriously injured.

Colored Men Owned the Town.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—The semi-centennial of the origin of the grand united order of Odd Fellows of America (colored) was observed here yesterday. Members of the order from many parts of the country were present. Last night a reception was held.

Killed Wife and Mother-In-Law.

WAVERLEY, O., Oct. 6.—In a quarrel over the possession of a child, W. K. Hill shot and killed his mother-in-law. He then turned and shot his wife, the bullet entering her ear, and she died shortly afterward. Hill escaped.

A Significant Move.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The Times says that Duke Augustus of Saxony, grandson of the late Dom Pedro, the deposed emperor of Brazil, embarked at Bordeaux yesterday for Rio Janeiro.

Supposed to Be Asiatic Cholera.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Five persons died in one family within a week in Bradford, Yorkshire, from what is supposed to be Asiatic cholera. An investigation is being made.

No Deaths.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Advices received from Brunswick, Ga., state that there were nine new cases of yellow fever at that place yesterday. No deaths are reported.

VICTIMS OF COCAINE.

Bound More Securely Than by Morphine or Alcohol.

"Is the cocaine habit growing?"

"I should say it was. Why, about six years ago cocaine was 85 cents a grain. There was none of this widespread habit then. It has all grown up in recent years. Now the drug can be purchased at retail at 3 cents a grain, and three or four drug stores in this city sell it to its victims in quantities to suit. Most of the reputable drug stores will not do this, notwithstanding the fact that the trade is very profitable. They don't care to have such a class of customers about them. But the habit grows and grows and grows."

"Is it very degrading?"

"Dreadfully so. Now, here is a hypodermic syringe I recently took from a West Point graduate, the son of an old general of the army. When he was brought here, I added it to the collection there in the case. Look at that syringe! The point of the needle has been broken and filed down, because the victim couldn't get money enough to buy a new one. Why, it's enough to poison a man's entire system to inject that dirt into his blood. But this West Pointer told me the last time he used the syringe he took a penknife and gashed his arm and then stuck the syringe into the wound. That's the condition they get into."

"What is the effect of cocaine?"

"It has a local effect of numbing or paralyzing the tissues immediately around the place where the injection is made, so you can cut those tissues without the patient's experiencing the slightest pain. So it is used in small surgical operations. But in addition to the local effect it has a general effect of exhilaration. People under its influence can do a great deal of work and go without sleep. But the effect wears off in about a quarter of an hour, requiring additional injections to maintain it. Morphine, on the other hand, has an effect lasting from six to eight hours."—Interview With a Physician in San Francisco Examiner

GIGANTIC COMPLICATIONS.

The Lombard Investment Company's Troubles Only Just Begun.

Now that the Lombard Investment company has passed into the hands of receivers, its methods and the way in which it was excluded from doing business in Massachusetts will be interesting to the many people who have had dealings with the former concern. Besides investors in New England many mortgages also were taken in England and Holland, and the consul general of Holland in New York has been in repeated communication with Mr. J. Russell Reed, the state commissioner of foreign mortgage corporations (foreign meaning merely outside of Massachusetts) regarding the interests of Dutch mortgage holders in this much advertised company.

All summer there has been an effort to find trustworthy men among those interested who would take hold of the corporation and make the best of its assets for the benefit of the holders of the mortgages. About $32,000,000 in guaranteed mortgages are now in the hands of purchasers from the company on which the company had a contingent liability. It is the belief of Mr. Reed that up to the day the company was put into the hands of receivers it might have been continued if the right men could have been found to go into it.

Mr. M. B. Whitney of Westfield, who has held the presidency of the company since the forced retirement of the Lombards, regarded himself as an ad interim incumbent, put there because he was acceptable to both sides, and he did not wish to hold the place permanently. But as the necessary men were not forthcoming the receivership was brought about, and now it is likely that the business of closing up these complicated relations, where so many persons and subordinate companies are concerned, will not be ended for several years.—Boston Transcript.

Dullness In the Theatrical Business.

In theatrical affairs at present the extremes of adversity do not meet; but, on the contrary, they lie a whole continent apart. California and the New England states are the hoodoo vicinities this year. In the small towns of New England the situation is deplorable. Thirty dollars were the gross receipts which several good combinations have earned in towns of from 15,000 to 25,000 inhabitants. In fact, many of the local managers are canceling their dates in sheer despair. After all, it is the local manager who is the biggest loser in a frost of this sort. The manager of the combination usually gets as his share 85 per cent of the gross receipts. Out of the remainder the proprietor of the theater has to pay the expenses for light, fuel, ushers, etc. The theatrical manager cuts down the salaries of his company, but the lessee of the theater can't adopt such methods with his coal and gas bill.

Warning to Bicyclists.

H. B. Walker of Brooklyn started to ride on his bicycle to Red Bank, N. J., where he intended spending Sunday with his wife, who had gone by train. He was riding along Bay street at a rapid pace when he ran into a rope stretched across the street to prevent travel when repairs were in progress. The rope caught him under the chin and hurled him backward from the wheel. He turned a somersault and struck on the back of his head. An ambulance was summoned and he was taken to the Smith infirmary, where he died a few minutes after his arrival. His skull had been fractured.

What Chauncey M. Depew Reads.

The sum of the whole matter is that the railroad man as a rule takes all the newspapers, reads about everything there is in each of them, acquires a faculty for doing it very rapidly, and then peruses the leading editorial in the paper of opposite political faith to tone him up and the one in the journal of his own faith to tone him down. No practical journalist knows more of what is in a newspaper than a practical railroad man.—New York World.

City of Quincy.

IN COUNCIL, Oct. 2, 1893.

WHEREAS, in the opinion of the City Council of the City of Quincy, public necessity and convenience require that a sidewalk with suitable curbing be built on Beale street, on the northerly side, between Hancock street and land of the Old Colony R. R. Co., it is therefore ORDERED: That due notice be given to Wm. H. Faxon and all other parties interested, by an officer competent to serve civil process, who shall make return of his doings in this order by serving them respectively with copies of this Preamble and Order, in accordance with the provisions of Section 67 of Chapter 49 of the Public Statutes, that it is the intention of the City Council to construct said sidewalk under the provisions of law authorizing the assessment of betterments, and that MONDAY, the 16th day of October, 1893, at 8 o'clock P. M., in the City Council Chamber at the City Hall in said Quincy, is the time and place appointed for hearing any of said owners upon the question of damages occasioned thereby, and that a copy of this order be printed in the QUINCY DAILY LEDGER, the QUINCY PATRIOT and the Quincy Advertiser, at least seven days before the date of said hearing.

Adopted October 23, 1893.

A Builder's Lesson.

"How shall I a habit break?"
As you did that habit make.
As you gathered, you must lose;
As you yielded, now refuse.
Thread by thread the strands we twist
Till they bind us neck and wrist;
Thread by thread the patient hand
Must untwine ere free we stand.
As we builded, stone by stone,
We must toil unhelped, alone,
Till the wall is overthrown.

But remember, as we try,
Lighter every test goes by;
Wading in, the stream grows deep
Toward the center's downward sweep;
Backward turn, each step ashore
Shallower is than that before.
Ah, the precious years we waste
Leveling what we raised in haste;
Doing what must be undone
Ere content or love be won!
First across the gulf we cast
Kite borne threads, till lines are passed,
And habit builds the bridge at last!

—John Boyle O'Reilly.

Mistaken For a Deer.

ELLSWORTH, Me., Oct. 6.—William H. Hunker of Marlboro, while out hunting, was mistaken for a deer and shot by another hunter named Davis. The ball entered Bunker's side, causing a bad wound. At present, however, it is not thought to be dangerous.

First Regiment Won.

HARTFORD, Oct. 6.—The First regiment rifle team won the state rifle match for regimental teams by the largest total score ever made in the state by a military team of 12 men. The First regiment wins the state silver cup and a medal for each member of the team.

Lived but Ten Minutes.

NEW MILFORD, Conn., Oct. 6.—George French, 45 years old, unmarried, fell from an apple tree at Boardman's bridge, his head striking a stone, crushing his skull. He lived 10 minutes.

Charged With Incendiarism.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 6.—J. C. Heinz, Jr., of Heinz Bros., has been arrested, charged with setting fire to the Heinz pickle factory. Evidences of incendiarism were found about the building by the police. Heinz was caught running out of the building.

At the annual parade of the fire department of Concord, N. H., there was a large delegation of visiting firemen present. The column passed through the principal streets and was inspected by the government in front of city hall. The day's exercises concluded with a banquet.

Baron de Hirsch de Gereuth is coming to the United States to see the colonies he has founded here and to inquire into the condition of the people of his race in this country. The baron has long been noted for his philanthropy and has given millions of dollars to charity. He is reputed to be worth more than $100,000,-

BARON DE HIRSCH.

000. While he may be considered the architect of his own fortunes, he had a good foundation to build on, for his father and grandfather were wealthy men before him. His father was created a baron by the king of Bavaria in consideration of his wealth and extensive estates. The present baron, who was born in 1833, was a member of the European banking firm of Bischoffsheim & Goldsmidt and married the daughter and heiress of the head of the house. His wife is considered one of the ablest and most lovable women in Europe.

New Information From the Interior of Greenland.

TRACES OF OLD NORSEMEN

And Remains of Aboriginal Inhabitants Found.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 6.—Schooner Carrie W. Babson, that sailed from here May 29 on a fishing trip to Labrador, Hudson's bay and Greenland, arrived last evening. Captain Lawson said that owing to the ice met with in Davis straits he was unable to explore the northernmost fishing grounds of Labrador; hence he sailed for Greenland, but had great difficulty in crossing Davis straits, his vessel for several days being jammed in the ice.

He brings a miscellaneous cargo of halibut, salmon and trout. The season on Greenland coast was quite fine, with moderate gales and dense fog much of the time. The past winter has also been unusually fine. There was no destitution or sickness of any kind among the natives.

This being the first vessel to visit Greenland for some years, much interest was manifested in the outcome of the voyage.

Captain Lawson brought home as a passenger Dr. Fred A. Cook of Brooklyn, who, with other scientists, sailed from Halifax, Aug. 10, in schooner Zeta to Greenland, on a scientific expedition. Dr. Cook, who was surgeon in the Peary expedition, wintering in the Arctic, is familiar with much appertaining to that region. He said that after leaving Nova Scotia they cruised about Newfoundland and Labrador, crossing Davis straits, went up the Greenland coast to Cape York, in latitude 76, stops being made at several harbors along the coast.

Most of the time they had fine weather, but four very heavy gales occurred during the voyage. Captain Hebb, who commanded the expedition, considered it unwise to go farther north, although the party wished to. At Naagsuk, six full-blooded Esquimaux dogs and nine puppies were secured, with the intention of breeding them to take on an Antarctic expedition.

At Amonak Fjord they went 60 miles inland. This is the place where one-third of all the icebergs west of Greenland come from, and at one time a thousand could be seen moving north rapidly into Melville bay, crossing Baffin to the American coast at Anronak.

Two Barrels of Bones.

Remains of the first Greenland settlers were obtained. In the graves were found a number of their implements of the chase, made of stone, ivory and bone, the points of the arrows being similar to those of the American Indian. Altogether two barrels of bones were exhumed, apparently of a race of small people; also beds of soft coal, in which were found fossil remains of semi-tropical plants, shell fish, etc. Fossil wood, shells and gravel 300 feet above the level of the sea were found, showing that the sea had been higher than at present.

At Godthaab the remains of ancient buildings, supposed to be those of the old Norsemen, were found. They were made out of broken stone, and instead of cement moss was used. Here was found a patch of old rye growing in a wild state, showing that the seed had been sown many years.

Twenty-five miles interior from the above place another settlement was found, the walls of some buildings being nearly intact. One contained apartments for several families. At Cape York 100 different measurements of tribes of mixed Esquimaux were taken by kodak and flash light at night, but the full-blooded tribes are north of that point.

The average size of these male Esquimaux was 5ft. 1 1-2in., and 135 pounds weight; females, 4ft. 8in., and 120 pounds. On the way home Labrador was again visited and many specimens obtained.

At Hamilton Inlet there were 260 vessels, belonging to the Newfoundland fishing fleet. Those that were north had done poorly, but those that kept south had done well.

At Assizes harbor Dr. Cook got two Esquimaux children, whose parents consented to let him bring them to the states with the understanding that he should take good care of them and bring them back next season. The girl, whose name is Kelaketak, is 16 years old, and Mikok, the boy, is 14. They appear quite contented, but somewhat homesick. They could speak, read and write English coherently, having been sent to school by the Hudson's Bay company.

The Bostons Won.

QUINCY, Ills., Oct. 6.—The Bostons and All-Americas played an exhibition game of ball here before a fair sized audience. The game resulted in a score of 4 to 1 in favor of the Bostons. The batteries were Nichols and Ganzel for Boston and Gumbert and Kittridge for the All-Americas.

Test Will Be Interesting.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 6.—The Bethlehem Iron company has shipped 64 tons of ballastic plate for the battleship Maine to the national proving grounds at Washington. The test will be the first ballastic test of service plate that has been Harveyized.

Harry Tyler's Latest.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 6.—Harry C. Tyler of this city lowered the world's record for a mile standing start at Hampden park, making it in 2:01 3-5, which is 3 4-5 seconds faster than Windle's record made on the same track on Oct. 8, 1892.

Hanlan Has Faith In Durnan.

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—Edward Hanlan offers to back Durnan to row Gaudaur one mile and a half straightaway race for $1000, the race to be rowed on Toronto bay next spring.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Roberts yesterday scored 913 and Ives 436. Total score at end of sixth game—Roberts, 5400; Ives, 3038.

Perry's First Baby.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Oct. 6.—The first baby born in Perry was a son to Mr. and Mrs. Heady. It arrived yesterday and the whole town has been celebrating the event.

FOURTEEN HUNDRED DEAD.

Latest Estimate of the Result of the Gulf Cyclone.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 6.—The first load of passengers on the Louisville and Nashville road arrived last night from the coast on a small boat, which made the trip from Bay St. Louis. This boat also brought a delayed account of the storm. The following is from the correspondent at Mississippi City:

The waters of the gulf came up higher than was ever known. From Henderson's Point on the south to Dubuy's on the north, not a vestige of a wharf or a bathhouse can be seen.

With the information that reached the city from Grand Isle, Cheniere, Camanada, it is now estimated that between 1100 and 1400 lives were lost, and damage to the extent of over $1,000,000 has been done to property by the late storm.

In the Point La Hache district the death list has been swollen to 80, and searching parties are still out.

Around Shell Beach and Malo Isle the list of dead is in the neighborhood of 30.

It is pretty well determined that the loss of life in the Bayou Cook country will approach 200. Scores of fishing smacks and luggers have been destroyed, and the country swept clean of its houses.

Reliable news from Grand Isle give the loss of life there as 25, all colored.

The Cheniere population was 1400 and the loss there is somewhat between 800 and 1000.

It is fair to estimate, therefore, that between 1100 and 1400 persons perished in the storm. The property loss will be more than a million.

There was 300 or 400 crafts engaged in the oyster and fish industry and one-third or half of these have been wrecked, turned bottom upwards and lost.

MOBILE, Oct. 6.—Storm news is coming steadily. At Pascagoula the following vessels are ashore: Steamship Maurice, bark Phœbe, schooners Griffin, Amelia Franklin, Webb Tyler, Palos, Fair Wind, and brigs Emma and Mary C Marmier of Key West. Two of these have been left lying on the railroad tracks. The damage in Scranton and Pascagoula is estimated at $250,000. Portersville, a summer resort, is wiped out, and the oyster plant of the Booth Packing company of Chicago is totally destroyed. Nearly every house in the vicinity is demolished, and every vessel in the bay is ashore and wrecked. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

MELLO STILL AT IT.

Shows No Signs of Letting Up on the Bombardment of Rio.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The Herald's special cable from Montevideo, Uruguay, says this morning:

Word has just been received from Rio de Janeiro that the bombardment of the city by the rebel fleet, under Mello, which was begun Wednesday, has continued without cessation. Shot and shell from the ships are being thrown into the city, while the shore batteries, manned by Peixoto's forces, are returning the fire of the squadron.

Frightful outrages are being perpetrated by Peixoto's soldiers, who are committing murder and robbery, and apparently are beyond all restraint.

After the adjournment of congress martial law was declared for 15 days.

Piexoto ordered the shore batteries to fire on every vessel coming in range.

A DANGEROUS JOB.

The Vesuvius to Blow Up Derelicts In the Path of Navigation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Orders have been sent by the navy department to Rear Admiral Belknap at New London, Conn., directing him to send out the dynamite cruiser Vesuvius on the unique and hazardous duty of blowing up 14 derelict vessels that endanger navigation. It was intended that the Vesuvius should start out on this mission as soon as she had completed her connection with the trial of the cruiser Montgomery, but owing to the postponement caused by the accident which happened to the Montgomery, it is likely that the Vesuvius will begin the work of removing the obstructions in a few days.

Bismarck Said to Have Suffered a Stroke of Paralysis.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The Telegraph's Berlin correspondent says that Prince Bismarck has suffered a stroke of paralysis and that he is in an apathetic condition.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—The Rudelstadt Landeszeitung says that Prince Bismarck is slowly but steadily sinking, and that it is improbable that he will ever leave Kissingen alive.

Chandler For Receiver.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 6.—The most exciting development in the People's Fire Insurance company muddle is the announcement of a determined movement on the part of certain stockholders to secure United States Senator William E. Chandler as receiver for the company. Mr. Chandler was one of the first to call for decided action with reference to the officers who had wrecked the company, and it is known that if he would accept the trust no guilty man would escape.

The Donnocker Trial.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 6.—The trial of Rev. Delbert G. Donnocker of Brockton, Mass., and formerly of Lewiston, came up yesterday. Mr. Donnocker is charged with criminality with Ella C. Gilman at Scarboro on the 8th day of June, 1892, while he was a married man. To this he entered a plea of not guilty. Judge Bonney will charge the jury today at 10 o'clock.

Tough Angels.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Oct. 6.—Evangelist Huntsman, the mason; John D. Clintock, alias "John the Baptist;" Daniel Gaines, alias "Silas the Pure;" Garrett G. Storms, alias "Titus;" Mrs. Jane Howell, Mrs. Eliza Berry, Mrs. Mary Stewart and Miss May Storms, the band of "Angel dancers of Park Ridge," were convicted of keeping a disorderly house for immoral purposes.

A Quick-Witted Farmer.

LAPORTE, Ind., Oct. 6.—A frightful wreck was averted on the Chicago and West Michigan railroad between this city and New Buffalo. A bridge collapsed and the crash of timbers aroused a farmer, who mounted a horse and dashed madly down the track just in time to stop the passenger train from dashing into the open bridge.

Crew's Fate Unknown.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 6.—The three-masted schooner Anna M. Stammer, with a cargo of mahogany, is ashore in West Bay, where she was driven during the hurricane. She was built at Bath, Me., in 1890. The fate of the crew is unknown.

NOTHING BUT DUTCH.

A CITY SURROUNDED BY A WALL OF FOREIGN CUSTOMS.

In a Thoroughly American Locality, but Wedded to Foreign Ways—A Devout and Peaceful People—Quaint Attire and Wooden Shoes—No Respect For Women.

[Special Correspondence.]

ORANGE CITY, Ia., Sept. 28.—Less than a quarter of a century ago the site of this quaint Dutch village was a dead level sweep of prairie, unbroken by a solitary house or tree or shrub. An ocean of grass spread off to the sky line on every side—an ocean without a sail!

Then came a syndicate of Hollanders. They bought a few sections of land in the heart of that wild waste of grass; they laid out streets and lots; they offered inducements for immigrants to come hither from The Hague, from the country of dykes and windmills, where the customs of the people differ so broadly from our own.

And the immigrants came at the call—came 600 strong. They built this village, and they named it in honor of the Prince of Orange—a man hated by the Irish as only the Irish can hate. They planted trees by the hundred till now their homes and public houses are steeped in umbrageous foliage. They tilled the surrounding country till vast harvests were their reward, and right merrily their lives went on in this freer land they had come to call their own. A brave, aggressive, self respecting people were these Hollanders, but clannish to the last degree. If a man isn't Dutch, they have no use for him. A person not of their nationality cannot buy a foot of soil within the limits of this village.

"This is a Dutch village," they will tell you, "and we propose to keep it Dutch."

The result is that other nationalities are represented here by less than 50 people, three-fourths of whom are Americans.

The tradesmen are all Dutch, and the same can be said of the physicians, newspapers and most of the county officials, for this is the county seat of Sioux county; but, strange to say, the lawyers are all citizens of American birth. Business is conducted principally in the Dutch tongue. In fine, Orange City is virtually a Dutch village transferred from Holland to the United States.

The names of the people here are veritable jawcrackers, as a rule, but if they are hard to pronounce they are harder still to spell unless you know how. For instance, I met a man named Aa, but the spelling in this name, as in many others here, is wholly unlike the pronunciation.

The dress of the ordinary citizen of Orange City would create a sensation in any American community. He wears a peaked cloth cap; he swathes his neck in winter with a knit woolen scarf that is wrapped in fold upon fold round and round his throat till he looks as if he would suffocate; his coat is a curiosity that defies description; his pantaloons are inches too short; then come the coarse homemade socks—you can always see his socks—followed finally by the inevitable wooden shoes.

Clamp—clamp—clamp, he tramps along, hands in pockets, and in nine cases out of ten smoking a short blackish pipe.

About 10 o'clock every morning you will see the Dutch citizen, without respect to his social status, hurrying homeward for his coffee, which he quaffs without cream or sugar and then hurries back to business. He may live a mile or more from his shop or office; it may be raining cats and dogs; it may be cold enough to freeze the ears off a marble image, but that 10 o'clock tramp after his coffee your Hollander is bound to take.

The average Dutch citizen is very devout. On Sunday morning as soon as the churchbell begins to ring you will see nearly the whole population moving reverently toward the Lutheran church. By the time the second bell has rung the streets are empty and the church is full. Sometimes it happens, however, that a man, woman or child is a little late, and they will run frantically in order to reach the church before the services begin. They remain there nearly all day, having brought a lunch with which to stay the appetite throughout the interminable talk of the pastor.

The Dutch have a most detestable view of woman. They look upon a wife as the property of her husband and think there is no harm in ordering her around like a dog. Of course this idea is never carried into effect as far as the better classes are concerned, but it prevails with all the citizens here with whom I have conversed. It is an old world heresy that cannot survive long in the light of our new world civilization.

Politics doesn't cut much of a figure hereaway. Sometimes the Dutch vote for one party and sometimes for another. It all depends upon the order of their leader, who, by the way, is the weathiest man in the community. As goes Orange City, so goes the county, and for this reason the county is always making desperate efforts to break the power of Orange City. There is nothing in common between the two, the county being thoroughly American, while the people of Orange City retain all the customs, habits and prejudices that they brought from beyond the seas.

Whether time will batter down the Chinese wall with which the Dutch of Orange City have surrounded themselves it is hard to say. Like the British, they move slowly along the lines of American thought, but I think they move.

J. E. NOYES.

Welshmen In America.

The Welsh in the United States claim that they are in number as many as their countrymen in Wales, and they also claim that one of their ancestors forestalled Columbus in the discovery of America by 272 years. They base their assertion on historical traditions and the manuscripts of old Welsh bards on the one hand, and on the prevalence of Welsh in many of the languages of the Indians, both of South and North America, on the other.

Awaiting Virchow's Decision.

Among the treasure trove which has come to light lately as the result of Hellenic excavation, none has been more enthusiastically heralded than that which was discovered the other day at Deceleia—namely, the cranium of Sophocles. Already it has been sought to throw a damper on the delight of the discoverers by suggesting doubts as to its authenticity—and certainly the Greek record as to such "salvage from antiquity," whether it be a coin or a manuscript, a tomb or a cranium, is not so invariably unsullied as to absolve the finder from the most stringent proofs of bona fides.

Controversy round this latest prize of archæology has waxed so warm indeed that an arbiter has had to be constituted—an arbiter who to classical learning adds the scarcely less appropriate qualifications of anatomical and palæontological knowledge. Professor Virchow of Berlin is the authority to whom the contending camps have consented to appeal, and by his judgment, re-enforced as it will doubtless be by that of the archæologists and men of science with whom Germany abounds, the question will, provisionally at least, be settled.

We await Professor Virchow's decision with unusual interest and on grounds which every student of the connection between genius and organization will readily appreciate.—London Lancet.

An Insult to a Princess.

Sarebji, a princess of India, came to the World's fair from Bombay, her home, with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ballantine. Mr. Ballantine is American consul at Bombay. The princess supports a school for native children in Bombay. Mr. Ballantine relates an incident that happened to her in a cable car the other day. As she took a seat in the car a fat woman adorned with cheap jewelry flopped down in the seat next to her. Turning to her companion, a little man, the large woman sneeringly exclaimed in tones loud enough to be heard all around:

"I suppose I'll have to set next to this thing."

The princess quietly replied:

"Don't be alarmed, madam; I am no savage and will not hurt you."

Whereupon the fat woman said to the little man:

"My goodness, she can talk English. Who would ever have thought it?"

"The manner in which the people here gaze at a person is very embarrassing. I don't like it," continued the princess. "Why should they be startled to hear me speak the English language? It is the first language my mother taught me, and I am better acquainted with it than with any other."—Chicago Tribune.

Rabbits Worse Than Coyotes.

The inadvisableness of disturbing the balance of nature in the relationship of wild animals is well illustrated by what is passing in San Bernardino county, Cal. A state bounty of $5 was placed on coyotes, and this prowler of the foothills and plains was then worth powder and shot. So coyote scalps were collected to such an extent in San Bernardino county and elsewhere that the jackass rabbit had the restraints upon his existence very much slackened and increased in great numbers. It is hardly doubtful that thousands of rabbits are worse depredators upon the farmer's thrift than scores of coyotes, which do not trouble the crops, but only seize a few lambs or sheep when they get the chance. San Bernardino is now so pestered with rabbits that the supervisors have passed an ordinance voting 20 cents per pair of ears for their slaughter. There is money in this, too, and it will be well if the county treasury is not bankrupted.—Exchange.

Canadians Think Aberdeen Off Color.

The Canadian snobocracy have discovered what they regard as a serious blot on the escutcheon of the new governor general. It has leaked out that Lord Aberdeen is engaged in fruitgrowing in British Columbia, and that he is about to establish a factory on his farm for canning fruit, and Ottawa society being of a very exclusive character it is feared that the revolting intelligence may seriously interfere with his lordship's social surroundings. One newspaper which has been sent to me remarks that it will create no great surprise "if Ottawa's select few turn up their noses at Aberdeen because he runs a fruit cannery."—London Truth.

Canada's Own Fault.

Canada is a poor country.—Montreal Gazette.

Its poverty is voluntary. It is the result of Canada's folly and conceit. Riches and power are within Canada's reach. The poverty of Canada would be exchanged for wealth by union with the United States. By this union Canada would obtain an inheritance worth tens of millions of dollars every year. If these Canadians choose to live in poverty, they should bear its ills without a groan and never ask for pity, never beg for favors, never try to get hold of the money earned by other people, never wear wry faces when they look across the line.—New York Sun.

Sisters at the Fair.

A noticeable feature of the World's fair attendance is the presence of so many Catholic sisters among the sightseers. They are particularly interested in the monastery of La Rabida, where they carefully scrutinize the relics of Columbus and the valuable loan collection of the pope. They themselves in their black gowns give a finishing touch of realism to the building.—Chicago Correspondent.

Wong Ah Wah went to California an almond eyed Argonaut in 1849 and died there the other day, leaving a large fortune, gathered from supplying labor for constructing railroads in the early days. He went to China a few years ago and almost hypnotized the entire district by his lavish expenditures.

THE END IN SIGHT.

Voorhees' Plan For Settling the Repeal Question.

OBJECTIONS OF SILVERITES

Will Be Overcome by Mustering Repeal Forces.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The plan for next week has been definitely determined upon and the screws "will be applied" Wednesday at the approach of 6 o'clock. Several days ago Mr. Voorhees telegraphed all the friends of repeal of the intended program and warned them that they must positively be in Washington not a day later than Wednesday.

The senate will meet next Wednesday as usual, and when 6 o'clock comes Senator Voorhees will ask the senate to continue in session. This will be antagonized by the silver men, and the contest will begin.

The repealers expect to have a quorum present, and it is said that they have agreed to stand firm and follow their leaders until the bill is passed or the flag is lowered. It is believed that the silver men will filibuster for a portion of the time, and when they grow tired of this will put one of their men to the front to conduct the debate, it being the agreed policy of the repeal men that they will make no more speeches, but be ready at every moment, when talk lags, to insist upon the votes being taken.

It has been about settled that the only way to bring the matter to any issue is to force it at once, and it is improbable that there will be any intermediate stage, and the session will be made continuous so long as the friends of repeal maintain their quorum.

While the silver men will have opportunities to take short rests, the repealing contingent will be compelled to be on hand at every moment. The silver men appear to appreciate their advantage and predict that they can tire out the older members in one night. Some of the friends of the administration are fearful that they cannot hold out for even one night. Just what the attitude of the Republicans will be causes the Democrats, in view of this program, some uneasiness. Fears are entertained that, though nearly all of them are willing and anxious to vote on the question, a number of them may not be willing to remain up all night under the call of a Democratic whip.

Among other reports of the day is the story that the president has been informed of what senators consider to be the true situation, and that he insisted that this final effort be made. At all events, it is known that the program as here outlined will be inaugurated regardless of what the result of such a policy may be.

Yesterday's Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—In his speech last Wednesday Mr. Blackburn (Dem., Ky.) intimated that he was prepared to offer an amendment to the silver purchase repeal bill which would embody his views on a fair compromise measure. He presented such an amendment and it was introduced to be printed. It adopts the bill as it passed the house, strikes out the Voorhees declaration favoring bimetallism, and adds to the house bill a provision for the free coinage of silver of American production—the difference between the metal price of the silver and its money value when coined to be retained by the treasury as seigniorage, and this seigniorage exchanged for gold, the gold received for it to be kept in the treasury for the purpose of maintaining the parity between the two metals.

The debate on the silver purchase repeal bill was carried on by Mr. Call of Florida and Mr. Butler of South Carolina, in continuation of speeches begun by them last Wednesday. Mr. Call drew an imaginary sketch of the people listening to the senate debates on the financial questions with a degree of acumen and interest surpassing anything in American history. He argued in favor of an amendment heretofore offered by him.

Mr. Butler favored his own amendment to repeal the 10 per cent tax on the note of state banks. Mr. Teller also made a little progress with the speech begun by him last week.

Two resolutions came up in the morning hour—one (offered by Mr. Peffer of Kansas) for a select committee to improve the banking system of the country, referred to the finance committee, the other (offered by Mr. Morgan, Dem., Ala.) instructing the judiciary committee to inquire what provisions of the free coinage act of 1837 are still in force, which without any debate was agreed to. A communication from the treasury department was presented giving the estimate of the total cost of exporting the Chinese laborers under the Chinese Geary act.

Not even the earnest manner of Mr. Cummings of New York could awaken the house from the lethargy into which it seems to have fallen. There was no increase in the attendance yesterday, and the various speakers received little attention, though some of their arguments were worthy of grave consideration.

In Memory of Parnell.

CORK, Oct. 7.—The anniversary of Charles Stewart Parnell's birth was celebrated here. Processions marched through the principal streets and many speeches were made, and the people were appealed to to fight on for the cause of home rule.

Quincy's Adieu.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Josiah Quincy, whose visit to Washington at this time resulted in the batch of consular nominations made yesterday, has left for Boston. Mr. Quincy's departure marks the end of his connection with the administration.

A DRUNKARD'S DEED.

Cold-Blooded Murder of a Respected Citizen of South Windsor, Conn.

HARTFORD, Oct. 7.—Albert Skinner, a joiner, who lives near Vinton's sawmill, on the Elliugton road at South Windsor, about eight miles from this city, was murdered in cold blood yesterday by Joh. Cronin, a laborer. Cronin shot his victim in the right side with a pistol ball. Cronin, who appears to have borne a grudge against Skinner, went to his house, and as he came in from breakfast deliberately shot him.

Cronin was found hanging about the house with the still smoking pistol in his hand. He was quickly secured and disarmed. Constable Ransom Burnham brought him to the jail in this city. He was defiant, and when told that his victim was dead, replied: "I have shot the dog, and if you'll take the handcuffs off, will go back and finish him if he is not dead. I am willing to give my life to get that one." Cronin was about half drunk having nerved himself up for the deed with liquor.

Skinner was 30 years old. He has lived and worked in South Windsor for years and was a sober, industrious, peaceful man. He leaves, besides his wife, two young children, a boy and a girl.

The only known motive for the crime is the fact that the assassin boarded in the Skinner family and was warned out on account of his drunken habits and bad disposition.

Mrs. Skinner tried to kill herself twice after the shooting of her husband, and had to be constantly watched to prevent her taking her life. Skinner and one of his children, a little girl, were eating breakfast when Cronin came in and shot him before the eyes of the child.

PEIXOTO IS SCARED.

Will Leave Rio if the Bombardment Is Renewed by Mello.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The World's copyright cable from Montevideo, Uruguay, this morning, says:

The diplomatic corps at Rio de Janeiro has requested President Peixoto, as an ultimatum, to make a compromise with the revolutionists by Monday, or leave Rio. If this advice is not accepted, the foreign ministers resident will recognize the rebels as belligerents.

The bombardment of Rio has ceased.

The foreign ministers have notified Admiral Mello to refrain from bombarding unprotected points.

It is said that Peixoto, in case of further bombardment, contemplates removing the capitol and himself from Rio.

Death of Judge Pardee.

HARTFORD, Oct. 7.—Dwight Whitfield Pardee, ex-judge of the superior court and ex-justice of the supreme court of errors, died at his home here. He was born in Bristol Feb. 10, 1822. After having served in the general assembly he was elected a judge of the superior court in 1863. In 1874 he was appointed on the supreme bench, from which he resigned about four years ago on account of ill health. Judge Pardee was a Democrat in politics, and in 1858 and 1859 served in the senate.

The Pope In Danger.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—The Tablet, the most influential Catholic weekly in Great Britain, says: Events now transpiring in Italy render the pope's position one of extreme and imminent danger. The position of Italy is too insecure and unstable to make her a safe guardian of the venerable person of the pope or of the monuments which are the sacred heritage of the Catholic world.

Excitement at High Pitch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 7.—Fully 2000 men were congregated about the shops of the Big Four railway yesterday discussing the murder of James Pitts, a fireman on the Peoria and Eastern railway, by a special officer in the employ of the railroad company. An attack upon the non-union men is expected at any moment.

Strikers Give Up.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 7.—The striking shopmen of the Louisville and Nashville at Decatur, Ala., have asked to be taken back, agreeing to work at the reduced scale of wages. They promise that if they are taken back the strike of the shopmen on the entire system will be declared off.

Safe at Last.

LOUISBURG, C. B., Oct. 7.—Two American fishermen landed at the lighthouse here last night, Charles Hubbard and Rufus McCormesny. They got astray from the schooner Puritan on Mozzen bank Wednesday morning. They were nearly dead from exhaustion.

Lock Didn't Work.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 7.—The automatic time-lock on the safe vault in the Mechanics National bank refused to work yesterday, and experts from New York have been telegraphed for. Currency had to be borrowed from other banks to carry on the business.

The Melilla Disturbances.

MADRID, Oct. 7.—Advices from Melilla say that the Arab chiefs disagree as to the expediency of renewing the attack on Melilla and that some of the tribes have returned to their homes. Agents of the sultan are pressing the chiefs to abandon hostilities.

Yankee Boat the Favorite.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The members of the Maritime Exchange favor Vigilant against Valkyrie, and many are willing to bet 2 to 1 that the American boat will win the series. One bet of $1000 to $800 on the Vigilant was made.

Rhody Does the Grand.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Governor Brown of Rhode Island gave a banquet at the Auditorium last night to World's fair officials and foreign and national commissioners.

Merchant Charged With Arson.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 7.—Information was made against J. C. Heintz of the pickle firm burned out, for arson. Heintz was placed under $2000 bail.

Attached For $70,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7.—It is stated that Charles Fair's race horses have been attached by his father, Senator Fair, to secure $70,000.

Lucania Is Swift.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Cunard steamer Lucania has broken the best record for a western voyage, made by the Paris, by 59 minutes.

SENATE'S SLOWNESS

Responsible For Uncertainty In Business Circles.

BUSINESS REMAINS SLACK

Failures Decreasing In Number and Importance.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

It is difficult to detect any signs of improvement. While there has been some addition to the number of manufacturing establishments and the number of hands at work during the past week, it is becoming painfully clear that the orders obtained do not suffice to keep employed at full time even the limited force at present engaged. Business transacted is still far below that of last year in volume in railroad earnings the decrease being 10.6 per cent, and in payments through the principal clearing houses outside New York the decrease is 26 per cent.

Reports from other cities disclose a distinct check in business. There is, on the whole, less activity and less confidence regarding the future than there was a week ago, and this is in many cases attributed to the uncertainty regarding the monetary future which delay in the senate causes.

While the volume of all kinds of money in circulation has increased $21,377,247 during the month of September, and is now greater by almost $108,000,000 than it was this time last year, the embarrassment is now, as has been all the time, due to a lack of confidence rather than to a lack of currency.

It is observed that, while the bank circulation increased in September $5,052,317, the amount of bank notes in the treasury has increased $4,657,894, and several of the banks which took out additional circulation have retired it, and sold the bonds deposited. The stock of money in New York banks has increased rapidly, and the retirement of clearing house certificates here and at other cities shows a great improvement in the monetary situation.

Disappointment.

There is not such encouragement as might be desired in the industrial reports for the week. Many concerns are working short time. An increased number of establishments is reported in operation.

The markets for stocks and products have been comparatively dull. The movement of wheat has been fairly large and the price has declined about 2 cents, while corn has also yielded about 1 cent. Cotton is 1-4 cent higher, without distinct reasons in crop prospects.

Failures continue to decrease in number and importance, though not as much as has been hoped. The number reported in the United States during the past week has been 320, against 184 for the same week last year, and in Canada 45, against 36 last year.

Fears of Foul Play.

BENNINGTON, Vt., Oct. 7.—Henry C. Harris, 32 years old, a wireman, received his salary Monday evening last and departed for his boarding house. After supper he left the house. This was the last seen or heard of him. Harris is known have had $35, but it is believed money was in his possession, and fears entertained that foul play has befall him.

Millionaire Sued.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 7.—John Walker of Cleveland, a reputed millionaire and prominent member of the Sons of St. George, has been arrested here at the instance of Dr. H. P. Surles of Worcester, Mass., also prominent in the order, for alleged libel to the extent of $20,000. He has not yet secured bail.

Railroad Engineers Killed.

NEW HAVEN, Ky., Oct. 7.—At Pottinger's creek bridge, five miles south of this place, the first section of a freight train broke in two and struck another freight train, and the caboose of the first train went down an embankment 40 feet. Both engineers were buried under the debris and were killed.

Subject For a Lynching Bee.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., Oct. 7.—Miss Agnes Barr, a pretty, young society woman, was brutally assaulted by a big negro, who has not yet been captured or identified. He afterward ransacked the house, and left his victim unconscious on the floor. If captured he will surely be lynched.

Belgian Miners Making Trouble.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 7.—The strike of coal miners in the Charleroi district was renewed unexpectedly yesterday afternoon. A mob, fully 2000 strong, all miners, have gathered. Troops have been sent from the large garrisons to aid the local authorities.

Trial Begins Monday.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 7.—Rev. Frank H. Sheffield was indicted by the grand jury of the common pleas division of the supreme court for Kent county at East Greenwich for the murder of his child at Rocky Point in August, and will be tried Monday.

Investigation Demanded.

OKLAHOMA CITY, O. T., Oct. 7.—Petitions are being circulated throughout Oklahoma and the Cherokee strip calling on Delegate Flynn to demand a thorough investigation of charges of gross fraud in connection with the opening of the strip.

Seven Prisoners Got Away.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 7.—Seven county jail prisoners escaped yesterday. They tore a hole in the iron floor of the first tier of cells and climbed into the basement, escaping through the cellar door. They were aided by outsiders.

Eight Cars Wrecked.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 7.—A freight was standing on the side track at Norwood while some switching was being done. Another freight came along, running at full speed, and collided with it. P. J. Simpson of St. Albans, Vt., had his leg cut off. Eight cars were smashed to fragments.

TELEPHONE, 213-3 QUINCY.

QUINCY HAS 367½ more houses than the city of Fitchburg, which has a larger population. They must have many tenement houses for three or four families.

A CORRESPONDENT who believes with the LEDGER that it would be wise and profitable to advertise Quincy granite, has forwarded a communication which will appear in the issue of Monday.

IT TAKES lots of money to run hospitals, the expenditures of the cottage hospital at Newton amounting to $15,900.15 for nine months while the receipts were but $12,293.67. The estimated yearly expense is $21,000. The institutions should be liberally supported. The one in Quincy is a blessing.

THE ALARM LAST EVENING

West Quincy Came Near Having a Fire a Little Later.

The alarm from Box 62 about 8 o'clock, Friday evening was rung in for a slight fire in the small barn of Michael Crowley on Newbury street, Atlantic. The fire, which is supposed to have been caused by heating of new hay, was extinguished before the department arrived. The loss will not be over $10.

While the department was at Atlantic there came very near being a fire at West Quincy in the store of George A. Mayo at 172 Copeland street, caused by Mr. Mayo's clerk attempting to fill a lighted lamp which exploded.

The man's right arm was severely burned from the elbow down and the building set fire. People in the store extinguished the blaze before any damage had been done.

"PORTUGUESE JOE."

The Lone Fisherman of Rainsford Island Must Answer for Liquor Selling.

"Portuguese Joe" of Rainsford Island will probably be a defendant in the Quincy court in a few day for maintaing a bar room down the harbor.

At the suggestion of Governor Russell communicated to Chief Wade, Detectives Rhodes and Procktor were detailed to visit the island. In order to allay any suspicion which the squatter might have, says the Herald, they dressed up as fishermen and hired a yacht for the day. They fished off "Joe's" island for a time, and then, pretending to be thirsty, they went ashore and asked him for something to drink. They found him most hospitable, and from the depths of somewhere he fished out two bottles of lager beer. These he gave to the officers in return for their 30 cents and apologized because he did not have more to offer them.

They accepted his apologies and the bottles, and left the place without making known their identity, but they went at once to the Quincy court, where they made a complaint against him, and where he will make his appearance to answer the charge probably some time next week.

"Joe's" place is one of the best known in the harbor and he is one of the best known of the residents down among the islands. He used to have a little shanty on Long island, which he made a headquarters for his lobster fishing.

He has a wife and one or two children, who live there with him, and they seldom come up to the mainland, but appear to be entirely contented with their lot.

"Joe's" fame as a lobster fisherman is widespread, and during the summer months he does a heavy business in this article, served in the shape of lunches to the excursionists, while he has a wholesale demand for them the year round.

It has been said that "Joe" frequently served an alcoholic relish to these lunches, but the police have never been able to substantiate this fact previous to the visit of the state officers, although there have been frequent complaints made of the place and several official visits have resulted as a consequence. "Joe" generally knew the officers, however, and on these occasions announced that he had none of the stuff for which they asked.

—Hingham will have a veteran fireman association.

QUARRY RAILROAD.

Many of the West Quincy Granite Works to be Connected

BY FOUR MILES OF TRACK

With the Old Colony System—Will Develop the Quarries.

Work on the new railroad of the Quincy Quarry Co. is being pushed forward as fast as possible, considering the number of obstacles they have to contend with, such as large boulders, deep gullies, etc., of which there are many, although the most difficult part of the work has already been accomplished, and it is expected that the road will be in operation early next spring.

The route of the railroad has been changed somewhat from that proposed, so that when completed it will be about two miles in length and will have about the same amount of spur track.

The company has purchased from different parties some 360 acres, including some of the 600 acre lot of the Quincy and Rochester estates. There are eighteen quarries on this land but more will be opened as soon as the road is completed.

The road commences at the spur track in the yard of the Granite Railway Co., which joins the Granite branch of the Old Colony railroad, and then follows the old Bunker Hill railroad bed as far as Burke Bros.' sheds. It then makes a deep cut to the right through the hill, then passes through the swamp in a westerly direction as far as McDonnell & Sons' quarries.

From McDonnell & Sons' quarry it runs north to "Hangman's oak," so called, thence westerly to Clark's quarry, where it terminates for the present. The line takes in the quarries of Granite Railway Co., Badger Bros., Reinhalter, Berry Bros., McGilvray & Jones, Cashman, Dean, McDonnell & Sons, Jones & Desmond, Bed Bug, Biganess & LeClaire, Clark's, and a large number of quarries which have been abandoned as they were so difficult to get at.

In some of these quarries the famous dark Quincy stone is found in abundance.

The work building the road was difficult, as in some places deep hills of rock have had to be cut through, while in other places deep gullies have had to be filled up. The grade of the road is very steep, in some places rising four feet in a hundred.

The completion of the road will bring incalculable good to Quincy, as it will place the quarry owners in this district in direct communication with the local manufacturers and will open up new territory that has long been looked upon as advantageous for extensive quarrying purposes.

The road is being built by the Quincy Quarry Co., but will be operated by the Old Colony.

BRAINTREE.

Rev. F. T. Hazelwood, D. D., of Boston, will occupy the pulpit of the Baptist church next Sabbath, Oct. 8, at 2.45 P. M.

The Sunday School concert of the First church takes place tomorrow evening in the chapel at 7 o'clock. All are invited.

Mr. John Cavanagh and family have returned to Braintree, and now we feel as if the family circle is complete and rounded out.

Morrison Bros. are running their mill four days of eight hours each per week. Still the United States Senate keeps on running full time.

Operations have begun looking toward building a breakwater on the south side of the bridge, across the Monatiquot river, a little beyond the South Braintree railroad station on the old Plymouth track, and the first the Old Colony ever built, over forty-six years ago. The bridge, a stone one, was built then and has never cost twenty-five cents since for repairs. What do you think of that?

Yesterday afternoon a bull dog was so unfortunate as to have his tail decorated by an infuriated housekeeper with a tin pan. None of the young braves that talk big words of courage round street corners nights could be found to face him, but Officer Damon brought him to bay and to his senses, relieved him of his tail decoration and received dog thanks. "Knowledge is power."

Tomorrow the pulpit of the M. E. church of East Braintree will be occupied by Rev. Mr. Hammond of Stoughton, in exchange with Rev. Mr. Field.

Senatorial Convention.

The First Norfolk Democratic convention, to nominate a candidate for senator from this district, will be held in the probate court room this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The candidates mentioned are Augustus Hemmingway and George R. R. Rivers. It is understood, however, that Mr. Rivers will withdraw and Mr. Hemmingway will be nominated without any contest.

☞ If you don't buy carpets cheaper this fall than you ever bought them before, its because you haven't looked at the line of Henry L. Kincaide & Co. prices from $.22 to $.85 per yard.

☞ The sale of tickets for the Wollaston entertainments will be at the Congregational church, Monday evening next at 7.45 o'clock.

CITY CHIT CHAT.

Items of Interest from All Parts of Quincy.

Miss Emery and Miss Shunk of Wollaston are enjoying the World's Fair.

Mr. George F. Pinkham and Miss Lela Pinkham of Wollaston are at the World's Fair.

James Rapson of this city has been appointed district deputy of lodges 23, 148 and 275 of the Order Sons of St. George.

Dr. and Mrs. F. S. Davis returned from the World's Fair last evening, and he is ready once more to attend to patients.

Miss Belle Gannett, who has been at Wollaston for a few days will resume her duties in the Pepperell schools on Monday.

Chief of Police Langley has been elected a member of the "Chief Police Union of Mass," and will attend their dinner at Young's today.

C. E. Ford and A. M. Ingraham have fine exhibits of pigeons at the Brockton fair, and the poultry of Cutting & Estes is the third largest.

In the premium list at the Brockton fair is the name of E. M. Hersey of Quincy for a knit spread, $1; and Miss Kate E. Mince, for drawn rugs, 50 and 75 cents.

A Herald dispatch says, Dr. Everett is down for a speech in the House today on the federal election bill, which is awaited with great interest by the members.

At Memorial church on Sunday morning, Rev. J. B. Wilson of Neponset will preach in exchange with the pastor. In the evening at 7 the Sunday School will give a harvest concert. Everybody invited.

A large block of granite weighing about 40 tons was quarried at Hitchcock's quarry Friday. The dimensions of the block are 32 x 6 x 2 8 feet. It is to be used as part of the cap of a tomb being cut by McKenzie & Paterson.

This weeks issue of Harper's Weekly has an excellent picture of Commodore Linton's sloop "Mischief," which is well known in these waters. It will be remembered that the "Mischief" was one of the old time cup defenders.

New arrivals at The Greenleaf are J. Happleton and family, Henry W. Robinson, Henry B. Cushman, D. E. Donavan, W. E. Welch, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Clark, Mrs. Frank McCammon, George D. Nowland all of Boston, and Miss A. M. Pettingill of Melrose.

The business men's gymnasium class at the Y. M. C. A. commenced its work yesterday afternoon. The next class will be held Monday evening at 4.45. The class promises to be twice as large as last year, nearly all old members returning and a number of new ones.

Ralph M. Fogg, the dentist in French's block, who has been enjoying for a week or two the mountain air at Moultonboro, N. H., will return in season to be at his office on Wednesday morning next. No doubt his patrons will be exceedingly pleased to know of his coming.

Master Willie Spargo attempted to have a little fun Friday night at his home on Franklin street, with a bottle that contained powder. He put a piece of paper into the bottle and touched a lighted match to it. His idea was to get away before the explosion but his calculations missed connection. Result: A cut on the chin, eyebrows and face singed. Fortunately no serious results will follow.

Since the arrest of Richard Calef for obtaining subscriptions to the Ladies' Home Journal, Chief of Police Langley has received word from Whitman, Avon, Norwood and other places, saying that numerous parties have been victimized. This being the case, the chances are that when the case comes into court next Thursday there will be several more complaints against Calef.

THE REPUBLICANS

Nominate Greenhalge and Wolcott Amid Enthusiasm.

THE CANDIDATES' ACCEPTANCE

Also the Speech In Full of Col. Bancroft, the Chairman.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—The Republican state convention met in Music hall this forenoon at 11 o'clock. Hon. William A. Bancroft of Cambridge presided.

Hon. Albert E Pillsbury and Hon. Thomas N. Hart spoke in favor of Hon. Frederick T. Greenhalge of Lowell, who was nominated for governor by acclamation.

FREDERICK T. GREENHALGE.

Ex-Chairman Eben F. Draper of Hopedale and ex-Senator Sydney P. Smith of Athol spoke for Hon. Roger Wolcott for lieutenant governor, and he was renominated by acclamation.

ROGER WOLCOTT.

Hon. William M. Olin of Boston and Hon. John W. Kimball of Fitchburg were renominated respectively for the offices of secretary of state and auditor of accounts.

For the attorney generalship ex-Governor Long presented the name of Hon. Hosea M. Knowlton of New Bedford, and Hon. Francis A. Gaskill of Worcester was spoken for by Hon. Frank P. Goulding.

Hon. Charles J. Noyes, Senator Dame and G. B. B. Houston spoke for Hon. Edward P. Shaw of Newburyport for treasurer and receiver general.

The Ticket.

For governor—Hon. Frederick T. Greenhalge of Lowell.

For lieutenant governor—Hon. Roger Wolcott of Boston.

For treasurer and receiver general—Henry M. Phillips of Springfield.

For attorney general—Hon. Hosea Knowlton of New Bedford.

For secretary of state—Hon. William Olin of Boston.

For auditor—John W. Kimball of Fitchburg.

A tremendous ovation was tendered Mr. Greenhalge when he mounted the platform and made the following speech:

Mr. Greenhalge's Acceptance.

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION—I accept the nomination. I accept it as the greatest honor of my life, and thank you for it with the deepest gratitude. I accept it also as the greatest responsibility of my life, and I trust I may assume that responsibility in a spirit befitting the confidence you have reposed in me. My deep sense of my defects and shortcomings is increased by the high and honorable character of the able and distinguished men whose names have been before the party as candidates, and whose patriotic action has contributed so much to the harmony of this great convention.

Gentlemen, the Republican party is indifferent to nothing that concerns the welfare of the commonwealth, or the welfare of the nation. To keep Massachusetts foremost among her sister states—peerless among her peers—none of the great agencies of civilization must be neglected or ignored. Education, justice, economy, temperance, equality, must still lead us on to better government in state, in town and city.

The state must be just to all; subservient to none. Hear the words of the fathers in article 6 of the declaration of rights of our constitution: "No man, nor corporation, nor association of men, have any other title to obtain advantages, or particular and exclusive privileges, distinct from those of the community, than what arises from the consideration of services rendered to the public." In the spirit of these words public interests will ever be preferred to private interests.

The condition of national affairs must excite our keenest solicitude. An indignant country asks the Democratic party "Where is the prosperity of 1892? Give us back that prosperity, with its business, its dividends, its wages." The reply is not satisfactory. While the Republican banner floats over the Capitol while Republican laws were administered by Republican hands and brains, we had prosperity. Now we are awaiting its return. The prospect of vicious legislation scared away that prosperity. But the Sherman act, they say, is the root of all this evil. Every intelligent man in this country knows how and when that act was passed. But the Sherman act is charged to the Republican party. That party erected a dike to check the flood of free silver. The Democracy cry out because the flood has and there breaks through the dike. But we prepared the flood, except the Democratic party? As well might a Tory censure old Putnam because the rail fence at Bunker Hill was not of more scientific construction.

TODAY'S COURT.

William Connors of Weymouth for drunkenness was fined $10.

Francis J. Sheahan of Weymouth for drunkenness was fined $15.

Died at the Hospital.

Mr. John Crowley of South street died at the hospital Friday, after a brief illness of pneumonia. This is a particularly sad case as his wife is demented and unable to care for herself. She roams about the fields all night and does not know enough to provide the necessities of life. Some two years ago she was taken to Taunton, but was returned after a short stay. The family are not known to have any relatives. He is supposed to have left some money in Boston bank, as he lost his book last year which was afterwards found tied up in his wife's clothes.

COCKRAN PUNISHED.

Croker Springs a Sensation at the Saratoga Convention.

SARATOGA, Oct. 7.—Just before the Democratic state convention was called to order yesterday, there was great excitement in the Tammany delegation over the announcement that W. Bourke Cockran, Hugh J. Grant and Frank I. Fitzgerald members of the state committee from New York city, had been turned down by Richard Croker, and that their places the committee had been given to H D. Purroy, William Sulzer and Mich. C. Murphy.

BOURKE COCKRAN.

At 10:30 o'clock Mr. Croker sent out another bulletin saying that ex-Mayor Grant would remain in his place on the committee. An effort was made later to restore Bourke Cockran to his place on the committee, but Croker would not listen to Cockran's friends.

Croker has looked with disfavor on Cockran since the latter showed himself friendly to the Cleveland administration. It was expected that he would be punished in some way, but it was not thought that the punishment would take this form. Cockran is not here. It is the first state convention he has missed in many years.

Nominations were made as follows: Cord Meyer, Newtown, secretary of state; Hugh Duffy, Cortland, state treasurer; Frank Campbell, Bath, state comptroller; Simon W. Rosendale, Albany, attorney general; Martin F. Schenck, Albany, state engineer. Isaac H. Maynard of Stamford was nominated by acclamation for judge of the court of appeals.

The platform deals largely with state affairs and congratulates the people of the state upon the results of Democratic control and the reforms that have been inaugurated.

☞ It doesn't take long for the public to appreciate a store when everything is sold on the closest possible margin. Blankets, from a full size soft to touch gray at $.85 per pair, to the finest quality of pure wool blankets, an assortment without equal. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

A Slight Accident.

Mr. James S. Baxter went to New Hampshire this week to attend his mother's funeral. In his absence Mr. Henry Chubbuck attended to orders for carpentering and on Thursday harnessed Mr. Baxter's horse to take some ladders and tools to Mr. James Edwards' residence; but had not proceeded but a few rods before the horse overturned the wagon, tools and Mr. Chubbuck to the ground. Fortunately not much damage was done. Mr. Chubbuck had some skin knocked off his limbs and his shoulder considerably bruised.

Woman's Danger.

No man can ever know the devoted martyrdom of many women.

Unselfishly a woman works and suffers that home and loved ones may be happy.

When it seems as though her back would break, when she grows irregular, faint, irritable, loses all interest in society, gets the "blues," is crushed with that indescribable feeling of "bearing-down," she "drags along," day after day, suffering agonies that would appal a man.

The cause of all her trouble is some derangement of the uterus or womb, perhaps the development of a tumor, or cancerous humor, — anyway, give it instant attention.

Norfolk Superior Civil Court.

The Norfolk Superior Civil Court will come in at Dedham, Monday, Oct. 9, before Judge Blodgett. The docket is a long one. There are 118 cases listed for a jury trial, two of the number being special assignments. The jury waived cases number 51 and there were 19 libels for divorce. The city of Boston is a defendant in four cases, the city of Quincy, in five, the city of Newton in one, the towns of Avon, Wellesley, Weymouth and Braintree in one each; the towns of Hyde Park, Medway, Needham and Brookline in two each; the Citizens' Gas Light Company in three; the Thomson-Houston Electric Company in one; the Quincy & Boston Street Railway Company and Brockton & Holbrook Street Railway Company in one each; the Boston & Albany Railroad Company in two; the Old Colony Railroad Company in three; and the New York & New England Railroad Company in seven, In one case the town of Brookline is the plaintiff and the city of Boston the defendant.

AUBURN'S

Assumes a Peaceful Phase Efforts of Two Armeni

AUBURN, Me., Oct. 7.—Some of Armenians who fought Auburn and iston people only last Saturday nig who went through the streets durin early part of this week with their han on the butts of their revolvers, and some of the union men who have entertained bitter feelings against the foreigner, had a regular love feast yesterday.

The new state of affairs has come about through the efforts of Messrs. Vaught and Barsel, the two Armenians who have come here to induce their countrymen to leave their places in the shops and return to Massachusetts. At 6:30 o'clock last evening a reporter saw Mr. Barsel at the De Witt House in Lewiston, and, in answer to a few inquiries, that gentleman said:

"Six of my countrymen have left their places in the shops and two of them have left the city. Twelve more will undoubtedly leave the shops tomorrow, and I doubt if the remaining six will remain when they find the others are gone.

"Mr. Vaughn and I are not here in the interests of trades unions, but to recall some of our countrymen from an awkward and, in a certain respect, false position. It is against our principles to take another man's occupation from him. We are ourselves organized for protection and the elevation of our people, and we wish to avoid anything that might be regarded as degrading."

The streets have been quiet, and the union leaders rejoice, as they knew that the riotous demonstrations were against the success of their cause. During all of the trouble several of them have aided the officers at Auburn hall in keeping inside the shoemakers who were there at times when the excitement began to run high in the streets. The manufacturers have but little to say.

Clergyman Says Blackmail.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 7.—Rev. J. P. Rogers, pastor of the leading Catholic church here, was yesterday sued for the recovery of $1522 on a note given by him to Mrs. Catherine Francis, an aged woman whom he met in Paris two years ago while he was on a visit to the pope. The priest pronounced it a case of blackmail, pure and simple.

Object Lesson to Anarchists.

BARCELONA, Oct. 7.—Pallas, the anarchist who attempted to assassinate General Martinez de Campos, was placed with his face toward the wall of the fortress and his back to the six infantrymen composing the firing party. The sergeant in command gave the word to fire and Pallas fell dead.

Nashua's Library Squabble.

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 7.—Late yesterday afternoon Mrs. and Miss Hunt, through their attorneys, filed another petition to the supreme court for the return to them of $50,000, which they gave this city for the memorial Hunt library building. This means further legal complications.

A Pair of Swindlers.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Two Frenchmen, calling themselves Gurget and Debuc and trading under the name of Straub & Co., shipping agents, were arraigned for swindling many persons. They claim to have business connections in Boston and Quebec.

Two Victims of Yellow Fever.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Oct. 7.—Twenty-four cases of yellow fever were reported yesterday and one death. Two new cases of yellow fever are reported at Jessup and one death.

THE REPUBLICANS.

Solid For Repeal.

Now we are all in favor of repeal. The Democratic party is in power. We Republicans are not such partisans that we cannot as patriots thank the President of the United States for his patriotic service in behalf of sound money; and if his own party fail him, the Republican party will be found—a legion of salvation—standing at his back in this patriotic work. So we say—Repeal! They say—We cannot yet. And their majority in the senate stands helpless before a corporal's guard of garrulous silverites. Let them a[illegible] then, to the armory of parliamentary weapons and, if their hearts fail them not, let them draw from thence the flashing blade with which Thomas B. Reed dealt such valiant blows for the true welfare of the country. And they may depend upon it they will have as allies the sage of Worcester, the wisdom and strength of our senior senator, and the youthful vigor and dauntless intellect of the delegate from Nahant, Henry Cabot Lodge.

If the Democratic party fails of repeal, then we charge them with the worst of political crimes—imbecility and impotence.

We say another word of advice to the Democratic party: The election laws help to secure free and honest elections. You have already made elections in some sections a mockery. Do not seek to extend your malignant influences to darken the free north as you have darkened the south.

Again, we would help you to restore prosperity to the country. To that end, we say tamper as little as possible with the great revenue system established by the Fifty-first congress, and tell us at once how little evil you intend to work. If you do this, every industry will blaze with new light from Atlanta to Lewiston.

Gentlemen, I believe, and you believe, that the commonwealth of the Pilgrim fathers founded on their broad and lofty principles—on their righteous and equal laws—is safer with the Republican party than with any other. What thoughtful man will say that Massachusetts is any better—in industry or charity, in character or influence, in substance or promise—for the three years of Democratic supremacy now closing, not soon to be renewed? Let us, then, in this solemn hour lift high the banner of our party before the face of the Lord! Every good patriot—every business man—every loyal soldier—every breadwinner (and we mean to have no breadloser under our policy) will look to that banner as the symbol of rescue, of safety, of hope. Let the redemption of Massachusetts begin today! Gentlemen, I thank you from my heart.

The Platform.

The platform favors the unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman silver bill, and recommends that the gold reserve be strengthened. It commends the course of the Republicans in congress in their attitude on many questions, and holds the Democrats in a large measure responsible for the alarming business and industrial depression.

It declares squarely for protection, and condemns free trade under any guise or name, but holds no ratio of schedules beyond criticism.

It pledges support to honesty and purity in national elections; condemns murders and violence throughout the country, and the denial of the right to trial in court, and the substitution of lynch law; favors national banks and opposes state bank currency; criticises the acts of the present national administration in depriving pensioners of their rights without a hearing, condemns the violation of the civil service law and the barter of high offices for campaign contributions; asks for the restriction of indiscriminate immigration.

In state matters it pledges strong support to public schools, libraries and charities, and advocates better roads throughout the state.

It supports temperance and opposes directly the saloon and groggery in their influence.

A tax upon legacies, both direct and collateral, is recommended.

More stringent regulations as to corporations are urged. It finally favors some system of initiative and referendum in reference to local self-government.

A CORRESPONDENT who believes the LEDGER that it would be [illegible] profitable to advertise Quincy [illegible] forwarded a communication [illegible] pear in the issue of Monday [illegible]

WILLIAM A. BANCROFT.

IT TAKES lots of [illegible] the expenditures, this very fact, however, you will Newton among to hear the voice of authority, and months [illegible] the favor of your indulgent kindness $12,293.[illegible] I ask you to listen to the unpretentious $21,0[illegible] views of one whose single hope is that he may to some extent express the sentiments of many who, like himself, believe in the principles of the Republican party. And, indeed, I am the more encouraged to speak, though never so modestly, because in a political party, as in an army, the more numerous portion must always be relied upon for ultimate accomplishments, and it is well enough for the leaders, no matter how sagacious, to learn occasionally the opinions of their followers. Besides, it is not to be overlooked that the Republican party was, is, and is to be, the party of the people—the plain people—conceived in their love of freedom—fostered by their demand for justice and maintained by their desire for progress. It exists for their benefit, and it must consult their welfare. It has no other duty. When it shall do aught else, it will cease to be the Republican party.

It is still a party of freedom—of a free choice of candidates, of a free discussion of issues, of a free ballot at the polls—but not of free trade, nor of free coinage.

It condemns the autocratic but insidious methods which, in this state, enable imperious party leaders to carry at the head of their columns a banner, upon the front of which is inscribed, "Down with political bossism," and upon the other side, in the sight alone of their restive retainers, the threatening legend, "Obey or suffer."

It submits to no oligarchy which distorts its principles, dictates its nominations, and destroys its independence.

It abhors the un-American doctrine of free trade coming from Texas no more than it execrates the practice of political despotism when found in Massachusetts.

It bows neither to a delusion nor to a triumvirate.

It will give credit for a reform coming from any quarter; but it abominates a sham, whether in the pension bureau, in the civil service or in the fiscal concerns of the government.

Faith In Republicanism.

In the past few years there has been on the part of some of our fellow citizens an inclination to doubt the soundness of some of our principles. "Campaigns of education," in which the pursuit of truth by scientific methods has not always been kept strictly in view, have no doubt shaken their faith. Others have yielded to the blandishments of a fascinating personality. Others still have been governed by different feelings. Yet I believe there remains to all of these, in common with the majority of the people of Massachusetts, an abiding faith in the principles of the Republican party. I am not here to extenuate its errors, and they are few; nor shall I stop to recount the glories of its achievement, and they are many; but I say that with as honest a desire for good government as has any member of the party now in national control (and there are honest men in that party, even besides those who have of late years acted with it), after a somewhat patient study of its platforms, surrounded by the philosophic atmosphere of independent thought, I have never been able to conclude that under the guidance of the Democratic party is to be expected either safe progress or permanent prosperity.

If imitation is the sincerest flattery, that party has accorded to other parties its most distinguished consideration by copying many of their doctrines. By the aid of this contrivance and, when without it, by the advocacy of skillful leaders, who have been able to make the worse appear the better reason, it has indeed obtained votes, and from time to time has gained control of government. What else it has accomplished it is more difficult to answer.

It is the favorate boast of that party that it has outlived its opponents. Well, in name it has outlived them, but in name alone. In many of its professions it has changed almost beyond recognition, and its members, like most men who profess what they do not believe, feel the awkwardness of their position. Originally a party of "the less government the better," it became a party of much government. Opposed at one time to internal improvement, the internal improvement plank became common in its platforms. Denouncing paternalism, the very latest message of one of its present leaders, the President of the United States, makes the cause of paternalism a reason for congressional action. A party of free trade, it has become a party of—something else—and what that is no man knows.

Demanding within a brief period that the members of the state commissions should be put beyond the reach of executive control, for the past two years we have heard the demand loudly made that they should be removable at executive pleasure. These are some of the many changes made to suit its vote-getting purposes. But it has always retained its name. That is true. It will exist, we doubt not, dragging its slow length along, even after the measures which it now opposes have become an unquestioned part of our polity. Like its counterpart in nature, it has its place in the political kingdom, and students of its history always find much that is curious in its characteristic traits. If it is ever raised to an upright position to face situations which it was never intended to meet, unable to support itself in a strange attitude, it staggers for a while and then sinks back, still agitated, but disclosing its inherent weakness, a warning to other parties to adopt neither its pernicious habits nor its peculiar wisdom. It is true also that its opponents have changed. But they have been honest. They have changed their names when they have changed their principles.

Sticking to Old Principles.

We gladly yield to this ancient though mutable party all the distinction for inveterate instability which it may desire to claim, but we do not forget that we have clearly defined principles, that we have not yet changed them, and that the purpose of the Republican party is not yet fulfilled. While ballots are cast that are not counted, while fiscal heresies, whether relating to the tariff or to the currency, are rife, while the liquor traffic is rampant, while labor has not its just reward, while monopolistic greed absorbs the belongings of the people, while political service and not merit shall be the test for ministerial office, the purpose of the Republican party is not fulfilled. We love to dwell upon the illustrious record of our party because the record of our party has for a generation been the history of our country. Let no man sneer at us for reverencing the record of our party, for when he does that he sneers at the progress of the American people. And for another

No Fear For Opponents.

But what about the Republican party? We scorn the misleading jeers of our ungracious opponents and we fearlessly assert that our party is not a party of paternalism, much as they like to mouth the word, but it is distinctly and emphatically a party of interference. When the good of the citizen demands, the Republican party will interfere. It interfered with slavery, it interfered with disunion, it interfered with polygamy, it interfered with repudiation, it interfered with an unsound currency, and—I speak reverently—by the grace of God and the help of the American people it will interfere with intemperance in behalf of the citizen, it will interfere with capitalistic overreaching in behalf of labor, and it will interfere with trusts in behalf of the people themselves.

It is the party of restriction. It will not only restrain the citizen from the indulgence of his own infirmities, but it will restrain oppression which seeks to injure him and to deprive him of his rights, whether that oppression proceeds from a political party in the south or from a monopoly in the north. Laissez faire has brought stagnation or something worse. Interference has brought progress or something better. The Democratic party has stood for destruction. The Republican party has stood for construction. These are the fundamental principles of the two parties.

And now, my temperance friends, in which party do you belong? Where, my laboring friends, should you seek relief? To whom, my good citizen, should you turn for aid and comfort when the glutton corporation eats of your substance? Which principle satisfies all of you?

In our commonwealth the members of the Democratic party, out of power, without responsibilty, have done murder to their principles, and, with a clamor loud enough to drown the groans of Thomas Jefferson, have posed as the friends of labor and the enemies of capital. What has the Republican party done—the responsible party, as our unburdened opponents are fond of telling us, and may they long have the opportunity—what has the Republican party done? It has carefully, deliberately and wisely caused to be enacted laws—yes, restrictive laws, but laws humane, salutary far beyond those of any other state, and, as long as it has the power, the Republican party will continue in its beneficent course of lawmaking, always with care, always with deliberation, and, we shall trust, always with wisdom.

Concerning the Future.

The possibilities of the future are, indeed, great, and their contemplation affords to the vision of our party spirit a prospect no less pleasing than is the memory of our glorious past. But, gentlemen, we may not pause to enjoy its felicity, gratifying though it must be, for

"The Past and the Future are looking
In the face of the stern Today."

This great council of the party assembles for the first time after national defeat, but it assembles amid the lamentations of many who unwittingly helped to bring about that defeat. We congratulate ourselves that Massachusetts remained true to the well-tried faith, with memorable presidential, congressional and legislative majorities. Could the nation have heeded the voice of our commonwealth there would hardly have existed during these long, unhappy months the misery and distress which make the sufferers curse the day when they were misled and deluded; when they abandoned a party whose principles are well known for a party whose principles are unknown even to itself; when they exchanged confidence for doubt, certainty for experiment, safety for danger, abundance for want.

The Democratic party has now been in control for seven months, and what has it done? It has not repealed the purchasing clause of the silver law, and it has begun to repeal the federal election law.

In the last campaign we listened to free trade theories and to free trade reasons—to free trade in the abstract, if not in the concrete—and we were distinctly told that the crushing force of the protective tariff ground down the poor for the benefit of the rich; that its effect was vicious, direct, immediate. Why, then, was it not at once repealed? Why, for a day longer than was needed to convene congress, submit a bill, take the votes and affix the executive signature, allow to remain a law which the Democratic platform characterized as an atrocity, and which the Democratic orators, in their mildest periods, denounced as a robbery? Why aid and abet a crime? Or is Democratic rhetoric to be effaced by Democratic inaction? Did our opponents trifle with the country when they proposed a tariff for revenue only, with the principle of protection absolutely rejected? Did they say one thing and mean another?

Democrats Must Act Quickly.

If we assume that our versatile opponents are sincere when they say "We don't mean free trade, we don't mean even a revenue tariff, we mean tariff revision," then we must assume that they adopt our principle, but contend that the application is at fault. The error shall be corrected, they say. What they will do we cannot tell. We have not the gift of prophecy. And what prophet confident enough to predict the future acts of the Democratic party! But we are patriots before we are partisans, and we can say in good faith that at a time like the present we make no factious opposition even to that inconstant party in an attempt to revise the tariff. Yet it occurs to us that the spectacle would be a novel one—the Democratic party applying the principle of protection. It is not strange that its members are ill at ease. We wonder not at their hesitation. They are handling unfamiliar tools. One of two things they must do. This we can say with no tinge of partisanship. They must either revise the tariff quickly or they must let it alone. For the rebilt of any other course they must be prepared to reckon with the country. We commend to them a prudent regard for their own welfare.

Conscious that to our party alone belongs the genius for financial legislation, conscious that to us the country looks for safety even when we are in the minority, conscious that our opponents in power are distrusted even when soundly advised and wisely led, we are prepared to meet the country's just expectations. It avails nothing for our elusive antagonists to attempt to hold us responsible for the state of the public mind when the silver law of 1890 was enacted. As well defame the defines the boundary line between business enterprise and capitalistic encroachment, we have always supported. Let the fair-minded man take down the statute book and let him read the provisions for corporate organization which make the name of a Massachusetts company a pillar of confidence in other states, let him read the provisions for governmental surveillance that the public may not be misled; let him read the provisions against the financial snares which the unscrupulous always set for the unwary—all enacted by a Republican legislature—and then let him conclude, if he can, that the Republican party has failed to restrict corporate aggression! Has the policy of the party changed? Will it not continue to enact restrictive legislation when its need is clearly shown? Which is the party of restriction? Yes, but you move so slowly, say our unabashed opponents, with their usual unblushing effrontery. Alas! The dismal Democratic croaker! We regard him with charity, even if he does not command our respect. But this time he is right. We do move slowly, and we had best move slowly while we move thus surely. Does any principle of sound government demand that the legislature shall make a law one year to repeal it the next? Does the general court sit to enact hasty, crude and ill-digested legislation which the next general court and the next after that must revise, alter and amend before any good can come of it? Is not a measure to receive the strengthening benefit of a public discussion before it assumes the exalted but inexorable function of a public statute? Whatever may be the cry of the irresponsible minority, the good sense of the people of Massachusetts will give but one answer.

Our active adversaries, eager to divert attention from the real issue—the determination of the just share of capital and of the just share of labor in the proud edifice of their joint production, as well as the determination of the rights of the people whom they both serve—our active adversaries may alarm the credulous and ensnare the unsuspecting, but the intelligent judgment of this commonwealth will not readily believe that the interests of the laborer are likely to be forgotten by the party of Henry Wilson; or that the rights of the people will be disregarded by the party of John A. Andrew; or that failure to do its whole duty, either to labor or to the people, will be the misfortune of the party which has said, let there be free text books, let the civil service and party service be the same no longer, let the man and not the dollar vote, let nine hours be a day's work in municipal service, and, since the leaves now rustling on their branches were full grown, has spoken to one corporation in no uncertain tones, and has recorded its clear purpose to put an end to stock watering in this commonwealth.

A Warning.

But, nevertheless, a mischief has been hatched, and we know full well that it was a Democratic hen that laid the eggs and did the setting, and the Democratic party must take care of the chickens when they come home to roost. We charge the Democratic party with attacking the policy of the commonwealth—the policy by which our people have grown prosperous. But it is not alone the policy of our commonwealth which that party attacks. It is a system—the most useful of modern times—the system of co-operation. Capital co-operates. Labor co-operates. The combination of the one is called a corporation. The combination of the other is called a labor union. We warn our fellow-citizens who have made small or large investments in corporate stock. We warn our fellow-citizens whose fêderation has made potential their demand for higher wages and shorter hours. We warn both labor and capital whose co-operation has produced our marvelous wealth. Keep an eye on the Democratic party, lest the clucking hen should become a destroying cormorant.

Yet why go on to trace the tortuous course of a party in which plausibility is a principle, inconsistency a rule of action, sincerity an inconvenience, and soundness an accident? Much more profitable would it be, did time permit, to examine some of the questions which the future will present for our determination. Among them will be the submission of certain legislative measures to popular vote for adoption or rejection; shorter hours of toil for a large industrial population, with greater public facilities for its moral, intellectual and physical improvement; the municipal ownership of what are called natural monopolies, which may be said to embrace, besides water works and street lighting, that indispensable adjunct to city life, the street railway, the extension of the suffrage now held to a limited extent by women, than whom the Republican party has no more enthusiastic supporters; besides other questions less important it may be, but entirely worthy of discussion, and which the Republican party will meet with unswerving loyalty to the welfare of an intelligent and high-spirited people.

But, gentlemen, I have already had a full measure of your courteous attention. There only remains to thank you and to detain you a moment for a final word.

The Cause Will Revive.

Gentlemen of the convention: In the history of the republic will be written the record of our party. If in the past the party has been guided by greater and mightier hands, so much the purer and the more unselfish should be our devotion. And the party is worthy of our devotion.

It represents the view of government which achieved independence, established the federal constitution, largely directed national development, preserved the Union, destroyed slavery and maintained the national honor. It represents the forces which insure progress at home and compel respect abroad. To its principles the safe leaders of the republic must always recur, and those principles will expire only with the republic itself. Let the young men of our country consider this before they make their permanent choice.

We have set our standard high, but none too high; no higher, indeed, than are the standards of our independent and of our prohibitory friends, who, on the track of our country's progress, conceive themselves to be the running horses who set the pace, and yet who must admit that we alone carry the precious burden. The standard is no higher than American citizenship demands, and the standard must be upheld. The purity of the home, the purity of the ballot, the uplifting of the weak, the just restraint of the strong, equal and exact justice to all, uprightness in private life, uprightness in public office, the moral and the material advance of the state and of the nation, this is the cause of the Republican party. Selfish ambition and discordant faction may weaken it from within. Zealous but impatient friends may embarrass it, and hostile partisanship may misrepresent and abuse it from without. But the cause will remain, must remain, in all the grandeur of its original conception, until the people of Massachusetts and of the union no longer respond to the loftier aspirations of humanity.

Then, and not till then, will there be no more use for the principles of the Republican party.

Conscious of our great opportunity, shall we not renew our pledges, cast baser motives aside, and with united strength, relying upon the rectitude of our purpose, appeal to the voters of the commonwealth to pass sober judgment upon our cause?

Denims, which enter so largely into country furnishings, have only just begun to be appreciated. At first only the blue, such as is manufactured for men's wear as overhalls, was the only color obtainable, but since there has been added red and then green, both in good shades. Yellow will soon be added. Denim in shades of red makes the most effective hammock and piazza pillows, and will require no decoration, although some very striking work may be produced by embroidering with heavy crewels or wash linen floss, in contrasting shades. It is especially adapted to such purposes as laundry and shoe bags, being strong and washable. It will make most artistic portiers for summer cottages, placed in the dining room or hall, where richness of color is desirable. There is also a reversible denim shading from red to blue, with the blue predominating on one side and red on the other.—Boston Courier.

AIR OF CONFIDENCE

Pervades the Camps of the Bay State Politicians.

A SKETCH OF CANDIDATES

Who Are Chosen to Represent the Republicans.

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—Bay state politics can now be said to be fairly "on." The sentiment expressed by both sides in this city is that their own ticket will win. It is admitted by conservative politicians that the outcome is in doubt, which means that the fight will be remarkably close. Local campaign workers are already beginning to hustle with a degree of earnestness that predicts a lively campaign.

The most surprising result of the convention was the selection of Colonel Henry M. Phillips of Springfield for treasurer.

When the treasurership vote was declared, Hon. F. P. Goulding of Worcester in a generous speech moved that Knowlton be nominated by acclamation.

During the deliberations of the convention District Attorney Knowlton of New Bedford was in his room at the Tremont House awaiting its result. The moment his nomination was made Messrs. Sanford and Hurd, who had charge of his campaign, hurried to the hotel to apprise him of the happy and unexpected turn affairs had taken.

HOSEA M. KNOWLTON.

He said to a reporter: "I had not expected so pleasant a termination of Mr. Gaskill's doing the handsome thing at the right time. I am very grateful to my friends for their work and loyalty in the contest, and I shall always cherish their kindness and generous support. My Democratic opponent is reported to be an able lawyer, but in this strongly Republican state I don't imagine I shall have to worry about the result."

Frederick T. Greenhalge.

The Republican candidate for governor was born in England in 1842 and came to Lowell with his parents in 1850 and is a graduate of her public schools.

He entered Harvard college, but did not complete the course, owing to the illness of his father. Taught school in 1862 and '63. In the latter part of '63 and during the year '64 he was an attache of the commissary department at Newbern, N. C. Owing to sickness he was obliged to return home, and the next year, 1865, he was admitted to the bar. Was a member of the Lowell common council in 1868-9, and a member of the school committee in 1871.

He stumped the state for Horace Greeley, Democratic nominee for president, in 1872, but returned to the Republican party in 1876, and in 1889 was elected mayor of Lowell.

The next year, as a candidate for senator, he was defeated by Hon. Jeremiah Crowley. He was elected a member of the legislature in 1885, but defeated for re-election. He was elected a member of the Fifty-first congress, but defeated for re-election by the Hon. Moses T. Stevens.

For Lieutenant Governor.

Roger Wolcott was born in Boston, July 13, 1847, being a lineal descendant of Oliver Wolcott, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He graduated from Harvard university in the class of 1870, being class orator. He was a member of the Boston common council in 1877-78-79, and of the house of representatives in 1882-83-84, serving on the committees on libraries, labor and public charitable institutions, and was chairman of the standing house committee on elections. He was the first president of the Republican club of Massachusetts, is an overseer of Harvard university and a trustee of the Massachusetts general hospital. He was elected to his present office in 1892, over James B. Carroll. He is a man of commanding presence, and noted for his good looks.

For Secretary of State.

William Milo Olin of Boston, candidate for a fourth term as secretary, was born in Warrenton, Ga., Sept. 18, 1845, of New England parentage. His parents removed to Massachusetts in 1859. Mr. Olin is a graduate of the public schools and a journalist by profession, having served for 14 years on the staff of the Boston Advertiser as reporter, editor and Washington correspondent. When very young he enlisted in the Thirty-sixth Massachusetts volunteers and served through the war. He was private and military secretary to Governor Talbot in 1879, and was reappointed by Governor Long in '80, '81 and '82. He has also been private secretary to Collector Worthington, Senator Dawes and Collector Beale, and also lieutenant-colonel and assistant adjutant-general of the First brigade, M. V. M.

For Treasurer.

Henry M. Phillips of Springfield was born at Athol, Mass., Aug. 11, 1845.

He was educated in the common schools of Athol and Fitchburg, at Deerfield academy, and at the Military academy at Norwich, Vt. He enlisted in the army at the age of 16, and served throughout the war.

He was a member of the Springfield city council for two years. Representative to General Court in 1880 and 1881, mayor of Springfield, 1883-84 and 1885, and member of state senate 1886 and 1887. Mr. Phillips is a member of the G. A. R. and Loyal Legion.

He is the president and treasurer of the Phillips Manufacturing company.

For Auditor.

John White Kimball of Fitchburg is a native of Fitchburg and a graduate of its public schools. He was born on Feb. 27, 1838. General Kimball served throughout the war, attaining the rank of brevet brigadier general United States volunteers. Since the war he has been colonel Tenth regiment, M. V. M. Was a member of the house of representatives in 1864-65-72 and again in 1888-89-90-91. He is a real estate agent.

For Attorney General.

Hosea M. Knowlton of New Bedford was born in Durham, Me., in 1847. Is a graduate of Tufts college and Harvard law school.

Mr. Knowlton has practiced law in New Bedford since 1870; was city solicitor of that city and member of the legislature in 1875-76; served two terms as senator in 1877-78.

He was appointed district attorney by Governor Talbot in 1879 to fill a vacancy caused by death, and has served in that capacity ever since.

He will be remembered as the prosecuting officer in the Borden case.

COLLEGE CENTENNIAL.

The 100th Anniversary of the Opening of Williams Celebrated.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Oct. 9.—The Williams college centennial opened yesterday under most favorable auspices. The weather was fine, very large audiences attending all of the exercises, and there were few disappointments from the failure of those who were to take part in the program. A notable feature of the day's services was the service which was rendered by a chorus of 30 men's voices, most of the singers coming from the glee club or other musical organizations. In the afternoon they sang an anthem composed for them by John Howes. The chorus was under the leadership of W. B. Frean, '95.

Rev. Robert R. Booth, '49, of New York, presided at the morning session. Rev. John G. Johnson conducted the preliminary exercises, assisted by Rev. Mr. Slade, the village pastor, and Rev. Dr. Eben Hall-Troy. The sermon of Rev. Mr. Henry Hopkins, '58, was on "The Connection Between Religion and Education."

The afternoon exercises were too long in justice to speakers and hearers alike. They took the form of a conference on the subject of "The Relation of the Modern College to Applied Christianity." Rev. Charles Cuthbert of Brooklyn, '72, presided and made the opening address. Rev. Dr. Henry Martyn Field spoke on "The College Place in Life, as Indicated by the University Settlement in Cities." Rev. William Grosvenor, rector of Trinity church at Lenox, spoke on "The Modern College and Church Unity." Rev. George A. Ford of '72, a missionary from Siden, Syria, made the closing address in a plea for foreign missionary work.

The meeting of the Williams Young Men's association was held in Alumni hall last evening. George H. Flint, 86, led the meeting. In addition to the alumni prayer meeting held in the Congregational chapel another was held in the college chapel. The leader was Rev. Henry A. Schauffler, '59.

FOR EXTERMINATION.

Moors Exhorted by "Holy Men" to Drive Out All European Infidels.

MADRID, Oct. 9.—The cable to Melilla has been repaired and dispatches from various ports have arrived here. The holy men throughout Morocco are preaching a war of extermination. They exhort the Moors to drive out all European infidels and to give no quarter to Spaniards captured in battle. The Kabyles continue to arrive at the camp of the tribesmen near Melilla. The Moors have now more warriors than can be fed from the district to which they have immediate access and a famine threatens. They have kept a desultory fire on the Spanish fortresses for the last 24 hours. The Spaniards have replied occasionally, but without perceptible effect.

The Moorish commander, with a small escort and a flag of truce, called upon the governor of Melilla Saturday evening and sued for peace. He assured the governor that the sultan's intention was to inflict exemplary punishment upon the belligerent tribesmen. The governor argued that Spain could not and would not await the sultan's pleasure in the matter, especially as he was taking his leisure in giving satisfaction for the attack on the fort. The Moors fusiladed the Spanish gunboat Guervo Saturday as she was leaving Melilla harbor after having landed troops and ammunition. The gunboat put about, and for 20 minutes shelled the Moorish camp. Twenty-four shells were sent into the center of the Moors' position and their fire was silenced.

One marine on the Guervo was wounded. The loss of the Moors is believed to have been considerable. The embarking of troops at Malaga and several other ports continues. The second army corps have been ordered to embark for Melilla.

Crushed by a Ton Weight.

CHERRYFIELD, Me., Oct. 9.—A 3-year-old son of Levi Foren was instantly killed at Milbridge. He was playing in a quarry when a stone weighing a ton rolled on to him, crushing him into a shapeless mass. It is supposed that he undermined the large stone in getting out small ones under it.

Choctaws Robbed.

TUSHKAHOMA, I. T., Oct. 9.—Treasurer McCurtin of the Choctaw nation is said to be short over $100,000 and has fled. He waited until nearly train time before turning over his accounts to his successor.

Five Deaths on the Voyage.

QUARANTINE, N. Y., Oct. 9.—The steamer Russia, from Hamburg, had five deaths during the voyage—two in the cabin and three in the steerage. The steamer will be detained.

A SETTLEMENT NEAR

Senate Will Dispose of Silver Question This Week.

THE HOUSE WILL BE BUSY

In the Effort to Wind Up Election Laws Dispute.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—It is the common expectation that this—the tenth week of the extra week of congress—will mark an important epoch in the history of the congress. In both houses legislation of the first order of importance is pending—in the senate the silver repeal bill and in the house the bill to repeal the federal election laws, and it is believed that in both cases the week will mark a sensible advance towards a conclusion.

According to the present arrangement Mr. McPherson of New Jersey is to take up the debate in the senate first. His speech will be in the nature of a reply to many of the points made by the silver men. Wednesday, in the event of a quorum, an effort will be made to bring the silver repeal bill to a final vote by sitting continuously, the purpose being to tire out the opponents of the bill. If the plans of the repealers are successful it will probably come to a vote before the close of the week. But if the silver men succeed in the attempt to break a quorum and force an adjournment at any stage of the proceedings, they are confident that the senate will be obliged to pass a compromise measure or allow the entire repeal proposition to fail.

After the bill to repeal the federal election laws has been disposed of in the house, it is expected that the McCreary bill to amend and modify the Geary Chinese registration and restriction act will be given the right of way. Representative Oates was to bring up the bankruptcy bill, reported to the house last week, but prefers postponing consideration until the 16th inst. rather than to enter upon it at the close of the week. So it is possible that Mr. Geary will get an additional day for the Chinese bill. This would bring it to a vote on Friday; the house may then adjourn over Saturday. On the private calendar is a bill to remit the penalties on the dynamite cruiser Vesuvius, which may come up this week.

As to the election bill, the Democratic caucus called for tonight will decide what sort, Tucker bill or Fitch bill, best expresses the views of the Democratic party on the subject and shall be passed. For the Republicans, Messrs. Dolliver and Payne will speak, and probably Mr. Burrows; for the Democrats, Messrs. Fitch and Fellows of New York and Mr. Tucker, author of the pending bill, will speak, the latter having the close.

A fear has been expressed that there will not be enough Democratic representatives on Tuesday to constitute a quorum and pass the bill. The Populists will support the bill, the repeal of the federal election being one of the demands of their platform. The Tucker bill is for the repeal of the revised statutes relating to the bringing armed troops to the election places and the sections relating to the appointments, qualifications, powers, duties and compensation of supervisors of elections, and also for the repeal of the sections relating to the appointment on the qualifications, powers, duties and compensation of special deputy marshals.

An amendment pending is that offered by Mr. Lacey (Rep., Ia.) early in the debate and which is somewhat similar to the Fitch amendment. It strikes the Tucker bill so much as relates to purpose to repeal the statutes which provide for the punishment of certain crimes against the ballot.

To Meet on Wednesday.

The fact that a few Democratic senators, who went to the Capitol yesterday, got together in one of the committee rooms to talk about the silver situation, gave rise to a rumor, which was widely circulated, that a caucus had been held. Inquiry developed the inaccuracy of the report and demonstrated that it could not have been true, as Senator Gorman, chairman, and Senator Faulkner, secretary of the Democratic senatorial caucus, were both out of the city yesterday. A leading senator, who is allied with the repeal forces, said a caucus will be held Wednesday morning to determine how far and how long the effort to compel a vote on the Voorhees repeal bill, which is scheduled for a beginning Wednesday night, should be carried.

Lower Than a Beast.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 9.—A burly negro named Marsh Walker ravished the 17-year-old daughter of Mrs. Jane Young. Finding the girl alone in the house, Walker beat her into insensibility and after ravishing her left the house. The girl has been a mute from her birth and her inability to cry out rendered the accomplishment of the crime easy. Walker has not been captured.

Moneyed Hebrews Coming to America.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9.—Father Henchrenk, a Russian exile known here as the patriot priest, is the authority for the statement that 22,000 Russian Jews, all men of wealth, have been exiled by the czar and are coming to America, and a large proportion of them intend to settle on the Pacific coast. He says the ukase will go into effect Oct. 13.

Louisiana Law.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9.—Louisiana is again terrorized by regulators, and in many parts of the state the people are calling for a special meeting of the legislature to cope with them and suppress the outrages. The Jefferson investigation ended in a farce, and none of those implicated in the lynching of the Julians have been indicted.

Watchmen at Fault.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 9.—Passenger train No. 17, south bound, struck a Mount Auburn electric car near Elmwood, instantly killing Louis Case, the motorman, and injuring four others. The train was going at the rate of 60 miles an hour. The watchman, who, it is said, had been drinking, failed to give any warning.

THE MONTHLY report of the Superintendent of Schools in another column shows a marked increase in number of pupils of the public schools over preceding reports. The average daily attendance for September was 3,365. The percentage of daily attendance, 97.5, is most gratifying, not only greater than in previous months but as near perfect as can be expected. The large number of visits show that people are interested in our schools.

THE "unpublished facts" which the Sunday Globe gave us concerning the Wollaston disaster, published in this issue, were better untold. They may and may not be responsible for the disaster, but if the cheeky reporters think they were responsible and it will serve a lesson the publication may be justifiable. We cannot believe that the conductor delayed the train half an hour solely that telegrams might be sent. One seldom expects a special excursion train to be on time, and Hartwell of the freight was careless, or else his superiors in not notifying him before leaving Boston.

IT IS business with Friend Sproul to advocate advertising, and yet his conclusions as to advertising Quincy granite are worthy of attention. It would be better business for the business men of the city if the granite business was driving and prosperous. We don't say that the present depression is due to want of advertising, for business is dull in all branches. The granite industry is particularly unfortunate because of the long labor trouble last year, which in some towns has not terminated yet. But, nevertheless, Quincy granite should be widely advertised if we expect to retain the prestige. Naturally, as the Quincy granite is harder and cannot be worked as easily and quickly as inferior granite, it will cost more, but people will not pay more for it if manufacturers in other places, and often the agents, say other granite is just as good. Let it be known throughout the country that Quincy granite has no equal, that it will take the finest polish, that work done in Quincy can be guaranteed. $1000 would put the following "ad" in over 100 of the leading weekly newspapers for one year; and we believe it would pay, and members of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association or a stock company of its members organized to boom Quincy granite, would reap the benefit.

QUINCY GRANITE

Has no equal for durability and beauty for Monumental Work, Carving and Statuary. It can be obtained in Dark, Medium and Light Shades, and takes an excellent and durable polish. It is largely used for building work, both in the rough and finished. It can be guaranteed. Address QUINCY GRANITE MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION, Quincy, Mass., for a list of the Quincy manufacturers, who will submit designs and estimates.

If it is deemed wise to expend more for advertising, it should be placed in some of the leading magazines, which circulate among a class of people who erect costly memorials to the dead. Again, individual advertisers should make "QUINCY GRANITE" conspicuous words in what advertising they do, and place it first. Don't subordinate it to other granite, the firm's name, or anything. Manufacturers, does your "ad" in the Monumental News do this? Elcock & Sons say "Dark Blue Quincy Granite a specialty," but it is in the smallest type in their "ad." The Mitchell Granite Co. are "manufactures and dealers in Quincy and all New England granites," but New England is as prominent as Quincy and neither are conspicuous. Cook & Watkins have a whole page but the word "Quincy" is nowhere conspicuous, and Quincy granite is subordinated to foreign granite. McKenzie & Paterson drop Quincy entirely, and "granite" is the conspicuous word where every "ad" is a granite advertisement.

The above are only a few of the cases which might be cited. In very few instances is "QUINCY GRANITE" conspicuous. The attention is called that Quincy manufacturers may profit, with no desire to be personal. Other granite is conspicuously advertised by outside firms.

Trap Shooting.

The Wollaston Trap club held its weekly shoot on Third hill on Saturday afternoon.

In the shooting of the score of ten by Messrs. Morse and Federhen, Mr. Federhen won on the fourth round.

The next shoot will be on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 14, at 4 o'clock.

The score out of a possible 25 points:

THE WOLLASTON DISASTER.

An Unwarranted Delay Now Said to have been the Primary Cause.

Oct. 8, was the fifteenth anniversary of that terrible disaster on the Old Colony railroad at Wollaston, or to be more exact, at Norfolk Downs, as the new station is erected nearly on the site of that fearful scene.

The Sunday Globe printed a column of "unpublished facts" about the disaster, which lays the primary cause of the disaster to the conductor of the special train, who at the request of newspaper men and a telegraph operator in their employ delayed the starting of the train.

It will be remembered that Conductor Hartwell of the freight, who was arrested, tried and convicted of manslaughter, did not deny the opening of the switch, but that the Silver lake train, on its inward run, had its own schedule running time, which had been sent out in a circular all over the road as a caution to those in charge of other trains. When he left Boston in charge of his way freight it was about 6 P. M. before which time the Silver Lake special, if on time, should have been back in Boston. His defense was he supposed the special had arrived, he having received no information to the contrary from any of his superiors. He ran on his own train time to stop and pick cars at various points, and was at Wollaston engaged in picking up several freight cars soon after 7 o'clock.

The new facts of the Globe are: "The race was late at starting, although covered in fast time by Davis. It was afterward that the fatal delay occurred. The boat containing the judges at the upper turn only got down after it had gone all over the lake. It was at this juncture that the veteran Dick Sisson, as he was affectionately called, showed his anxiety in getting the train started for home. With the tardy judges accounted for the grove, was about deserted, and nearly everybody was on the train, which was then about half an hour late.

"But in the telegraph box down by the water side was a telegraph operator, Billy McFarland, eager to catch the train. Billy had come down as a special operator, and with a lineman had run a wire to the lake from the depot at Plympton.

Two Reporters,

Bancroft and Keenan, had enlisted his services.

"As Conductor Sisson passed by announcing to the reporters that the train was about to start, Mr. McFarland spoke to Keenan, and, pointing to a pile of telegrams remaining to be sent, asked him to see the conductor with the view of keeping the train 20 minutes. Keenan did as requested, and explained the case to Conductor Sisson, and the latter good-naturedly agreed to accommodate.

"Even after getting underway there were other delays, for at one of the Abingtons the ill-fated special had to wait for the down Plymouth train for fully a quarter of an hour. At South Braintree junction there was more delay to allow the outward Fall River train to pass.

"Altogether fully an hour was lost at the lake in starting. If the last half-hour of that time had not been lost the special could in that time made South Braintree, and have avoided the delay met with at both Abington and South Braintree.

"In all 55 minutes loss of time would have been avoided, which would have carried the special without any obstruction from Hartwell's freight. Few persons have known these facts during the past 15 years. Operator McFarland and Keenan are living. Both have kept their secret. Except for the death of the man who was most interested, the facts in the case would continue a secret.

TODAY'S COURT.

The Trouble Between the Police Officers and Firemen of Braintree Ventilated.

The first case to come out of the trouble between the police and the fire department at the fire in Braintree Sunday morning Oct. 1, came into court this morning when James A. Grogan, a member of the Hook & Ladder Co., was arraigned for an assault on Officer Edwin F. Knight.

The evidence was that on the morning in question that the Chief Engineer had ordered the department home and the Chief had given up the building. Officers Oliver, Knight and Faxon were engaged in searching the building when Grogan attempted to enter the building. Officer Faxon was on duty at the door and told Grogan he could not enter. He did, however, enter when he was met by Officer Knights who he told in response to questions that he did not belong or did not have any business there.

Officer Knight told him he could not enter. A scuffle followed in which Grogan took hold of Officer Knight, but was put out.

After all the evidence had been put in Grogan withdrew his plea of not guilty and entered one of nolo contendere, upon which he was fined $5.

William Edwards was fined $3 for drunkenness at Randolph, and was fined $7 for disturbing the peace at the same place.

The liquors seized from John Sullivan of Weymouth were forfeited to the Commonwealth.

DIED.

RATCHFORD—In Boston, Oct. 7, Mrs. Margaret Ratchford, aged 65 years.

WHITCOMB OF HOLBROOK

Nominated for Senator by the Democrats of the First Norfolk.

The first Norfolk Democratic Senatorial convention was held in this city Saturday afternoon.

The convention was called to order shortly after three o'clock by Albert E. Avery of Braintree, who was chosen temporary chairman with John V. Scollard of Braintree secretary.

A committee of three, consisting of McLaughlin of Holbrook, Pierce of Milton and Powers of Quincy, were appointed on credentials.

This committee reported delegates present as follows: Braintree 5, Canton 6, Holbrook 3, Hyde Park 9, Milton 4, Quincy 21, Randolph 6, Weymouth 13; total 67.

The report of the committee was accepted and the temporary organization made permanent.

Fred F. Green desired to place in nomination Augustus B. Hemminguay of Canton. Mr. Green eulogized Mr. Hemmingway who he felt sure would be elected.

Mr. Pierce of Milton read a letter from Mr. Hemmingway, in which he positively declined to allow his name used as it would be impossible for him to accept.

Mr. Green's motion was then put and lost.

The delegates from Holbrook then placed in nomination Frederick W. Whitcomb of Holbrook and the Canton delegates offered the name of George R. R. Rivers of Milton.

It was then voted that an informal ballot be taken, a committee of five being appointed to receive and count votes.

The result of this ballot was as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Whole number of votes, | 66 |
| Necessary for choice, | 34 |
| Frederick W. Whitcomb had | 39 |
| George R. R. Rivers had | 27 |

The Milton delegates moved the vote be made unanimous, which was carried.

Mr. Rivers was then introduced to the convention and, while he appeared somewhat disappointed, he thanked the convention for his vote and assured them he should work for Mr. Whitcomb's election, and that if he was successful he would leave off smoking cigarettes for a month.

Maj. John W. Hart of Weymouth and John Pierce of Milton were nominated as members of the State central committee.

The convention took a ballot for this office and while the committee were counting the votes Mr. Whitcomb was introduced.

Mr. Whitcomb was very much flustrated and could only find words to say thank you.

The result of the ballot for member of state central committee was announced as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Whole number of votes, | 65 |
| Necessary for choice, | 33 |
| John W. Hart had | 48 |
| John Pierce had | 17 |

Maj. Hart then made one of his old time democratic speeches, after which John V. Scollard of Braintree was elected as chairman of the Senatorial Committee and the convention adjourned.

PURE DEVILTRY.

An Attempt Made to Destroy Property of Old Colony Railroad.

The citizens who live or happened to be in the vicinity of the Quincy Adams depot Saturday evening were startled about 8 o'clock by a loud explosion which shook the houses and rattled the windows in a manner which led many to think that a locomotive had exploded or some accident of a like nature.

The noise came from the direction of the railroad track, and in a remarkably short time a large crowd had collected. It was so dark that little could be seen and Officer Nicol went for a lantern and made an investigation.

The investigation disclosed the fact that an attempt had been made to blow up the large railroad derrick of the Old Colony railroad just south of the depot, which had recently been erected at a cost of several hundred dollars.

A dynamite cartridge had been exploded by means of a fuse. The force of the explosion was such that a large piece of the main cog wheel was blown out and part of the frame that held the gear was splintered off.

The amount of drmage is not great and as the derrick was built by Badger Bros. it will soon be repaired.

It is not known who placed the cartridge in the derrick but it is thought that it was placed there out of pure deviltry.

When She Rounded the Second Mark,

And is a Sure Winner, Barring Accident.

[Special to the DAILY LEDGER.]

NEW YORK Oct. 9, 2.10 P. M.—The Vigilant rounded the second mark at 1.57.20 and the Valkyrie at 2.06.00.

The American boat has a clear lead of over two miles, and the Valkyrie is thought to be "out of it."

CITY CHIT CHAT.

Items of Interest from All Parts of Quincy.

Rather windy.

But warm and pleasant.

No Council this evening.

Mr. Henry R. Holden and Mr. A. F. Schenkelberger are in New York attending the cup races.

Sigourney Butler formerly of this city has been elected secretary of the Suffolk County Bar Association.

The engagement is announced of Miss Clara Louise Hight of Dorchester and Charles A. Hall of Atlantic.

The John Hancock Lodge I. O. O. F., of Wollaston, will be instituted by the officers of the Grand Lodge on Thursday evening Oct. 12.

Some fine work is expected at the meeting of Mt. Wollaston lodge tomorrow evening, the new staff working the first degree.

The Wollaston Unitarian Society will give the Rev. and Mrs. James E. Bagley a reception on Friday evening, Oct. 13, from eight to ten o'clock.

Several of the Quincy members of the Knights of St. Rose, with ladies, will attend the monthly ladies' night of that order in Boston, this evening.

The Rev. James E. Bagley, the new Unitarian pastor at Wollaston, preached at Sunday's service to the largest congregation that has ever been assembled in that church.

Those registered at The Greenleaf, Sunday, were: D. W. Fowler, Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Barnes, H. W. Lincoln, Joseph Lincoln, J. S. Gibson, Miss Hardy, Miss E. Foley, Frank T. Stillman of Boston, B. B. Bird and ofsister St. Johnsbury, Vt., Mrs. L. F. Bates, Springfield.

Quincy society is much interested in the wedding to take place next Thursday evening of Miss Caroline Childs Faxon and Mr. Charles Atkinson Price. It will take place at the fine residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Franklin Faxon, on Adams street, and will be followed by a reception from 8 until 10.

WEYMOUTH.

Officers Richards, Garey and Fay seized 7 1-4 gallons of beer Sunday from Cornelius Lehan.

—Friday was another notably big day at the Brockton fair. The attendance was about 27,500. The attendance Thursday and Friday beat the two previous largest days on record—those of 1891. The aggregate gate receipts for the two days this year were $17,512.74, against $17,299.68 in '91.

THE VIGILANT'S VICTORY.

She Easily Won In the First of the Series of Races.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—After one postponement, the first race in this year's contest for the America cup has been sailed and has been won by the Vigilant. Over a 30-mile course, in a light to moderate westerly breeze and a rolling sea, the chosen cup defender defeated Lord Dunraven's Valkyrie by 5 minutes 48 seconds, corrected time.

The race was intended to be a leeward and windward one, but a shift of the wind from west-by-north at the start to almost due southwest made the last part of the race on the first leg a broad reach and the second leg a close lay to the finish with small jibtopsails the greater part of the way.

In running, the boats were very evenly matched for a time in the light air, but as the breeze freshened the Vigilant drew away and spun out a still greater lead as spinnakers came in when the wind shifted.

In the close lay to the finish in a freshening breeze, the Valkyrie picked up on the Vigilant, and but for the failure of the wind at a most critical time just before the finish the Vigilant's victory would have been a much narrower one.

Taken altogether, the race gives Americans reason to feel justly proud of the splendid work of the Vigilant in running and reaching; still they must remember that at least two more races are to come and that indications point to a showing in windward work by the Valkyrie which may yet offset the Vigilant's fine work in other ways.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The Times says editorially this morning of the yacht race off New York Saturday: Vigilant's victory was fairly earned, and doubtless raised the presumption that she will win three out of the five races.

The Standard says: The race proves little more than did Thursday's which yacht is the speedier. The wind was just as uncertain as at the first trial. The two races balance each other. Unless there are steady winds, which are moderate or strong, the question of superiority will not be decided.

DRIVEN TO DRINK.

Sad End of a Once Popular Preacher of New York.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—Waldo Messares, who was once a well known minister of this city and later of New York, died yesterday in the German hospital. Mr. Messares recently lost his church in New York, and later domestic discord added to his troubles, his wife instituting a suit for divorce. This is said to have driven him to drink. He has been stopping at the Washington hotel up to last Friday, when some friends induced him to take the gold cure for drunkenness.

He was found by friends, lying on the floor of a room in the gold cure establishment, sick and helpless, and died shortly after being removed to the hospital. Mr. Messares, who was about 43 years old, will be remembered for his turbulent career as a pastor of the Northwestern Independent church of this city, which culminated shortly after in his arrest, trial and acquittal on a charge of attempted assault on Mrs. Coulston, one of his parishioners. He was an eloquent speaker and was very popular as a platform lecturer.

A CAPE COD MYSTERY.

The Death of Dr. Charles T. Olney Is to Be Investigated.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Oct. 9.—The body of Dr. Charles T. Olney, who was drowned here Saturday night, was recovered yesterday. Miss Gussie White of New York, who had been walking with Dr. Olney, saw the doctor fall in the water and ran to get a boat off to him. She found a small one on the beach, and pushed out. She grasped the doctor, who was unconscious, and attempted to pull him into the boat. It capsized and he went down. She clung to the boat and was saved.

Dr. Olney was 39 years old, a Harvard college man, a graduate of the veterinary department, and was a native of Taunton. He is well known in Amesbury and Salem and was a member of the Lynn order of Elks and the Salem cadets before going to Brooklyn last year to take a place with an electric company. The drowning is a mystery. An ugly cut under the dead man's ear may have been made by the dredging hooks. An inquest will be held.

Was Ireland's Champion.

DUBLIN, Oct. 9.—Funeral services in honor of C. S. Parnell were held here yesterday. Thousands came from all parts of the country to show their reverence for the work of the great home ruler. A floral harp, with the following inscription: "Sent with love from the Irish of New York," was received from New York.

Not Satisfied With Robbery.

WAUPEON, N. D., Oct. 9.—A desperate band of burglars entered the town of Lidgerwood and after blowing open the safe at the postoffice and robbing it of its contents burned the building. They secured less than $200 in money. Loss on the building will reach $10,000.

Prince Augustus Wasn't Aboard.

LISBON, Oct. 9.—The mail boat which sailed from Bordeaux for Rio Janeiro on Oct. 5 and was reported to be carrying Prince Augustus, Dom Pedro's son-in-law, to Brazil, stopped here yesterday. No members of the emperor's family were on board of her.

Six Were Drowned.

DEER PARK, Mich., Oct. 9.—A disaster on Lake Superior, in which not less than six lives were lost, came to light yesterday when a fishing boat of large size was picked up. No trace of the six occupants known to have been in the boat could be found.

Couldn't Raise Cash.

NASHVILLE, Oct. 9.—The Safe Deposit Trust and Banking company of this city has made an assignment. Inability to realize on the assets of the concern is given as the cause. Assets are given as $224,556.50, and liabilities at about $204,000.

Mexican General Murdered.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 8.—General Manuel Escambor, at one time governor of Chiapas and senator from the same state, was assassinated at his house in Tapachula by shots fired from the street. The assassin escaped.

Mrs. Grant In Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Mrs. U. S. Grant, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Sartoris, and grandchildren, arrived in Washington yesterday and are stopping at the Arlington.

In a Critical Condition.

PARIS, Oct. 9.—The condition of Marshal MacMahon, who has been ill for some time, has suddenly become worse and is now believed to be dangerous.

WEATHER-CROP BULLETIN

Issued by the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture.

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—The state board of agriculture has prepared the report on the crops for the month of September. The weather conditions during the month of September were influenced by seven cyclones and nine semi-cyclones. Indian corn was among the crops which were severely injured by the gales of the latter part of August and has never recovered from the damage it then suffered.

Potatoes are generally reported to be below an average crop, and this condition extends about uniformly over the state, with the exception of Barnstable county, where more than an average crop is reported.

The apple crop is very light in all sections and in many localities is a total failure. The drop of the early part of the season reduced the crop materially, and much of the little fruit remaining was blown from the trees by the severe gales of the latter part of August. Fall apples are reported more plentiful than winter fruit, but even they do not approach nearly an average crop.

Cranberries are fully an average crop and probably a little above the average. The reports from Barnstable indicate the crops there as the largest ever harvested. In other sections they are on the whole rather below the average, but this will not affect the general supply to any extent.

Onions are hardly an average crop. The midsummer drought seems to have been the great drawback, though there are a few complaints of maggots and of wet weather in the spring and failure to germinate.

Root crops generally promise well; reports of poor crops are exceptional.

Rowen suffered severely from the dry weather directly after haying, and is far from being an average crop. Many report an entire failure, while many others speak of it as light.

The rains which came too late to save the rowen crop have materially helped fall feed, and it may now be termed fair. Fully the average amount of fall seeding has been done.

WORST FEARS REALIZED.

Deaths From the Southern Storm Will Reach Twenty-Five Hundred.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9.—The news from the section stricken by the storm says it is safe to estimate the loss of life at 2500, while millions of dollars worth of property was destroyed; besides thousands of people have been deprived of the means of making a livelihood. The situation is appalling, but New Orleans is doing all it can to relieve the thousands in want. A good many carloads of provisions and clothing have been sent to the sufferers, but this is said to be insufficient. Men, women and children are without food and clothing. They have become so desperate that they have threatened to attack the stores and steal food.

After Fourteen Years.

CARTHAGE, Ill., Oct. 9.—A sensation was caused here by the action of the grand jury returning an indictment against Theodore Hetrick of Ferris for the murder of Dr. Daniel Pierson at Augusta 14 years ago. A negro named Edward Ferguson served a 13-years' sentence in Joliet for participating in the murder.

Lived 106 Years.

RED HOOK, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Sarah Gilson, a colored woman, locally known as "Aunt Sally," died in this village yesterday at the age of 106. She was an inveterate smoker, and enjoyed the best of health until two weeks ago.

TRACING ONE'S ANCESTRY.

Genealogy Appears to Be a One Sided and Partial Thing.

A conversation among a group of people the other day, all of whom were of good New England families, brought out some curious admissions. Only one of the party could trace his descent, in the line of mothers, farther than to his grandmother, though several could trace it very much farther in the paternal line, and even in what they called the "maternal line," which meant of course the mother's father's family. All present could tell the maiden name of their mother's mother, but only one could tell the maiden name of her mother. Of course many in New England among those genealogically careful people who can tell you the names of all their 16 great great grandfathers and grandmothers can do this, but these are comparatively few. And those who cannot carry back the line of mothers more than three generations include the representatives of some of the most aristocratic families in New England, whose line of paternal descent is unbroken to the settlement and beyond.

Let us think for a moment what this question involves. Suppose you write down your own name. Then write down on one line just above it the names of your father and mother—the father's name first on the left, the mother's second on the right. You perceive that these two people had an equal interest in your being. There is at least a chance that you are like your mother in important physical and mental respects.

Now, set down on a line above these two names the names of your grandfathers and grandmothers, beginning with your father's father and ending with your mother's mother. These two couples again had as much interest in your father and your mother as your father and mother had in you, and there is in you as much of your mother's mother as there is of your father's father. Now above this line write down the names of your eight grandparents—which you should surely be able to do if you are a Yankee. Each one of these eight had an equal interest in you. Now you perceive that you have a pyramid standing on its apex. You are the apex. The left hand edge of it is your line of fathers, and on the right hand of it is your line of mothers.

In all likelihood you derive rather more of your characteristics from the right hand edge of the pyramid than you do from the left and while in all probability, if you are from a good New England family, you can go on stretching out the left hand edge of the inverted pyramid you cannot go on with the right hand edge any farther, and this means that your genealogy is a one sided and partial thing.—Boston Transcript.

He Rode the Broncho.

Some one at the hotel told the fat man, who had a week's holiday, that horseback riding was the finest exercise in the world for reducing the flesh, so the gentleman with the surplus tissue rented a horse for a week—a tough, wiry buckskin broncho—and started in.

Every morning at 9 o'clock precisely he mounted his steed in front of the hotel, but no one ever saw him come back. He was never at midday dinner, but he appeared at the supper table, always looking worn out and dejected.

"How are you making out?" asked his adviser one night.

"Oh, pretty fair. Lost 20 pounds."

"That's good. Keep it up and you'll have a shape like the Apollo Belvidere."

"Can't keep it up. That's the trouble. I never was much at walking, or running either, for that matter."

"Walking? You don't need to walk when you go riding."

Then the storm burst.

"Walking! I guess you never rode a bronco, did you? Well, you want to try that one, and you'll learn something. The first day I went out on him he carried me as far as the bridge in the woods. Then he dumped me off in the mud. I chased him two miles, then I gave it up and walked home. The next day he took me half a mile further before he set me down. I went to the stable and kicked about it. The man asked me if I went riding for my health. I told him yes. He said that was just the horse I wanted and that he kept him specially for that purpose. Seventeen fat men had offered to buy him, but he wanted to be generous and give every one a chance.

He leaned his head on his hand wearily.

"I'll have to give it up, I guess. Here I've been crawling in the back door of this hotel for four days. It has cost me $1 a day to have my clothes cleaned, and it'll take me a year to recuperate. It's no use. I'm willing to stay fat if them blisters on my feet will only let up. Come inside and let me spend my last night in wild hilarity.—New York Herald.

One Way to See a Sun Spot.

The shutters of the observer's house happened to be closed, and through a tiny hole near the top of them a beam of sunlight found its way to the floor. There it left an image, clear and round, tinged at the circumference with a fringe of blue and orange. The whole appearance of the beam as projected reminded the spectator of the image of the sun taken on paper through a telescope, and he got a sheet of white note paper in order to test his surmise. The result confirmed it. A beautiful round image of the sun fell on the paper, and near the center thereof could be seen a bluish spot, which moved about with the image whenever the paper was shifted. The bluish colored object was a veritable sun spot, and the observer watched it by the simple means described for several days until the revolution of the sun had carried it out of sight.—Boston Herald.

ADVERTISING GRANITE.

A Former Correspondent of the Monumental News Gives his Opinion.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

DEAR SIR,—I have been greatly interested in the communications which have already appeared in the LEDGER with reference to the use of advertising as a means of making Quincy Granite more widely and more favorably known. I found some particularly interesting reading in your issue of yesterday, Oct. 5, which is of such a character as to impel me to do what I have not done for a long while, namely, "taken my pen in hand" for publication.

I read with astonishment the editorial from the Monumental News, with the managers of which paper I have had, in the past, something to do. While nobody would put the sale of granite in the category with the sale of "patent medicines, stove polish, or shoes," as does the writer of the editorial, still it by no means follows that advertising cannot be made of great value to the granite industry. Of course such advertising should be of a wholly different character from that employed in pushing the commodities just mentioned, and it should be placed in quite a different class of mediums.

Of course nobody supposes that a person would buy a monument if he really did not need it, and such advertising as would be done would probably not decrease the amount of effort necessary to be put forth by travelling salesmen; in fact, it ought to increase the scope of the duties of these men.

What advertising will do for Quincy granite is what it does for any other merchantable commodity, namely, to make its name and characteristic so familiar to the people, that the labor of making sales is very largely diminished. Every merchant knows that it is much easier to sell any article which has been made familiar to the people than it is to dispose of another, equally good, concerning which little is known by the purchaser.

There is but one way in which an article can be made widely and favorably known, and that is, through advertising.

Such advertising should be, first of all, persistent; it should be begun only after careful consideration, and backed by an appropriation sufficient to cover at least one year. If this cannot be done, the project should never be entered upon, as the greatest amount of money wasted in advertising today is expended by those who do too little; that is to say, by people who expect too much at the outset, and are not satisfied to do what all conspicuously successful advertisers have done—face a balance on the wrong side of the ledger for a while, until the tide turns in a favorable direction, as it is certain to do.

There is a story told of an Indian who laid one feather on a rock, and after stretching himself upon it arose in disgust and declared that the white man's beds were "no good." One-feather advertising is likewise "no good."

The editor of the Monumental News declares that "the expenditures of $10,000 in the general advertising proposed would be but a drop in the bucket." I am prepared to demonstrate to the members of the Granite Manufacturers' Association of Quincy, that $10,000 will enable them to make a very handsome showing indeed.

I read with satisfaction your pointed editorial upon this topic, and I am prepared to heartily endorse the conclusions which you reach.

Very truly yours,
A. E. SPROUL.

P. S. I have no objection to frankly stating, as an advertising agent, that I would like to attend to the advertising which the granite dealers of Quincy may decide to put out. That fact, however, can have no possible effect upon the statements made above. If my position is correct, it is not because I say so, but because the facts point in that direction; and if the facts do so point, there should be no more delay about acting upon them than there should be about accepting any other favorable business proposition. The Two Great Political Questions.

To the Editors of the Ledger:

At the present time the people of New England, irrespective of party, are substantially of one mind on the two great political questions which are now commanding the attention of the whole country. Almost without exception they favor sound money and, with the exception of the Boston importers and a few doctrinaires, they think that the tariff ought to be severely left alone. It is true that our democrat friends voted the protective system an outrage last fall, but, in many cases, this was due to prejudice or thoughtlessness and not because of their honest convictions. Even those who thoroughly believed that they would be better off under free trade laws are undeceived and are now protectionists and earnestly hope that Congress will not carry out the Chicago platform pledges. Now why should these men vote for the democratic ticket when they are opposed to to the principles of that party? Why should they call themselves democrats when they are desirous that the party in power shall not carry out measures that will ruin them and the community in which they live? If they believe in republican principles, which they most assuredly do, why do they not vote with that party and thus help to restore confidence and prosperity? In the fall elections let them forget old party prejudices and vote for the republican nominees. A. M. B.

—Beekeepers find this the year of their prosperity, as in most sections of the country there is a large supply of honey, yet not large enough it is though, to seriously lower the price. Honey is one article of which there is never a surplus, and it is one which might be used with profit in families to a far greater extent than it is now. Honey is especially desirable food for children whose systems need and therefore crave sweets. It will do them good, and if it is to be abundant that becomes a two-fold benefit, to the buyer and to the seller.

An Incendiary's Work.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 9.—The Norwich Shook and Lumber company's steam mill at Norwich, Vt., was burned yesterday. The building had just been completed and was equipped with new machinery of the highest grade, all of which was lost. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin. Henry Rogers, the watchman, was badly burned. Loss, $50,000; insurance, $20,000.

Didn't Forget Her Son.

MILFORD, Del., Oct. 9.—While John H. Deputy, a farmer, was in the fields at work, his wife, after telling her husband to take care of their son, leaving him in his care, went to the meathouse and hanged herself with a halter. No cause for the deed is known.

Millions In Petroleum.

Fifty-nine freight steamers are now employed in transporting petroleum to foreign countries. The capital in Pennsylvania wells and lands is estimated at $87,000,000, and $65,000,000 is invested in plants for producing the crude petroleum. This is exclusive of such assessories as pipe lines, tank cars, refineries, docks, fleets of vessels, etc., and an estimate of $300,000,000 as the total valuation of all branches of the industry is not excessive.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

THE STORY OF A WOMAN AND A WHEEL AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

"The Little Brown Milliner"—Higher Education For Women—Women on the Cherokee Strip—Vocations of English Working Women—In a Chicago Shoe Store.

Let me tell you what one old woman has done at Chicago while attending the World's fair—the greatest fair ever held on this planet.

An old lady who last April was fired with the enthusiasm of this progressive age, which she entered 72 years ago, determined to go to the World's fair. She had never been beyond the limits of Otsego county, N. Y. She had not the money to pay her fair to Chicago and did not know what she would do if she succeeded in getting there. First she tried to borrow the money of those she called friends, but all discouraged her and thought her almost insane to go. But she was determined, and after many rebuffs she succeeded in borrowing and wrote to a friend in Chicago to find her a place where she could work and have the privilege of a day or two each week to attend the fair.

A place was found for her by this friend, and Mrs. Preston, the old lady, came from her home in Otsego county to the big city of Chicago. Her friend met her on arrival and took her to where she was to help in the house. But the fortunes of Mrs. Preston were in the ascendant. One day, as she was looking about the fair, she went into the "Old Time Home and Kitchen." There she espied a large wool wheel, with the soft white wool rolls lying on the bench. The sight was too much for Mrs. Preston. It took her back to her girlish associations. She forgot where she was. The surroundings seemed like her old home. Stepping up to the wheel, she tenderly picked up one of the soft white rolls and began to spin yarn from it, as she had done in the olden time. That act was the passport to the hearts of the ladies who had charge of the building, and after getting a release from her employer Mrs. Preston was at once installed as queen of the spinning wheel. She exhibits to the daily throng the way the wool was converted into yarn long years ago.

She had been photographed with the wheel, and her photos are for sale at the olden home. From these she receives a revenue, and the lady manager pays her well for being there to show the working of the wheel. She has been honored with calls from high dignitaries from all parts of the world. One wealthy old gentleman wanted to take her home with him to Denver. But she prefers to return to her childhood's home, happy that she has accomplished what she undertook, and is honored for her perseverence. She has won hosts of friends and has made more than enough money to pay back what she borrowed. She will return to her home with an experience that few younger women have had, but which every young woman migh well imitate in order to obtain whatever she most desires. Mrs. Preston's experience shows what a woman can do, although she may be past 70 years of age.—Chicago Cor. of Boston Woman's Journal.

"The Little Brown Milliner."

Mrs. Cyrus W. Field, Jr., one of New York's Four Hundred, who has just started in the millinery business to make a fortune out of the sale of bonnets and hats, is not any larger than she was at the age of 14. She is below the average height and weighs less than 100 pounds. Her daughter, who is 12 years old, is possibly 17 years her junior. The two are always taken for sisters when they are traveling.

Mrs. Field has crossed the ocean 20 times, and like all cosmopolitans she is very modest about airing her observations.

She has light brown hair, hazel eyes, a pale, olive complexion and a weakness for brown costumes. Last Monday, on her first appearance in trade, she wore a brown bedford cord suit, with collar, Spanish jacket, cuffs and girdle of brown dressed kid. This unique trimming was edged with iridescent beads. A brown chip hat, trimmed with pheasant quills and brown velvet, a brown veil, brown gauntlet gloves, brown shoes and a brown pocketbook, which she laughingly declared was quite empty, completed her idea of a business woman's dress. She didn't wear a particle of jewelry or a drop of scent.

"The Little Brown Milliner," as she is already called, has a chance that thousands of trades women would be glad to have, and if she plays her cards right she ought to make an exceptional success of the venture.—New York World.

Higher Education For Women.

A great amount of feeling has been aroused over the establishment of the Vienna gymnasium for girls and the proposal to establish a similar institution in Berlin. Many of the older German ladies are opposed to these departures, and one of their number, representing a solid body of opinion on the subject, asks, "What can possibly be the use of Latin, Greek, philosophy and algebra to a 'hausfrau?' She can carve a goose equally well without such knowledge. If her husband refuses to buy her a new dress or hat, can she not soon be equal with him without going in for a course of philology?"

The ladies scoff at the idea of women lawyers, declaring that as a woman would never admit that her case was lost lawsuits would drag on forever. At present the education of a middle class German girl includes a thorough and systematic instruction in general history, the special history and literature of her own country and one accomplishment—as a rule, music. She can also write a good hand, knows sufficient arithmetic for practical purposes, and in the arts of cutting garments, embroidering, darning and cooking she is a highly competent housewife. Add to this fact that one of the most striking features of German domestic life is the quiet happiness of the women, and it is little wonder that the elderly hausfraus of the old school object to her innovations.—Vienna Tageblatt.

Woman on the Cherokee Strip.

We must hope that in the great Cherokee rush Miss Daisy was able to get hold of a block of land for her "lady home" of 34 members, all unmarried, either spinsters or widows, who had agreed to live together in a community to which no man should ever be admitted. The dashing Miss Daisy and her companions were well mounted when that tremendous race of a Saturday began, but we have lost sight of them in the dust raised by the rampant hordes. The leader knew the ground well. She had seen the four quarter sections needed for the lady home, she had enjoyed experiences as an Oklahoma boomer years ago, and she did not fear any living man. Did her troop get there first and stand upon each of the quarter sections? We shall find out after the uproar is all over.

Both the spinsters and the widows of the lady home must stick to the resolution that no man's foot shall ever press the soil of the 640 acres which belong to them. Thus they will set an example, and thus they will give men to understand what woman can do when let alone. In the interest of a great experiment every woman of them must steadfastly resist the blandishments of all the suitors who may hover along the fence until further resistance is impossible. Yet if all of them, even the widows, are married before the winter is over we shall not be amazed.—New York Sun.

Vocations of English Working Women.

Some interesting facts may be gleaned by the English census returns concerning the struggle of the sexes for professional supremacy. The present showing demonstrates that it is in the lower ranks of professional life that women are numerous. Excluded from the clergy they are found considerably in excess of the men in the subordinate fields of religious work.

In the medical profession there are 100 practitioners, 345 dentists and 2 veterinary surgeons. In the legal profession women figure only as clerks, while as teachers their number is more than double that of men; 660 women journalists, with 127 reporters, figure in the lists, with 69 merchants, 3 bankers, 765 brokers and agents, 16 bill discounters, 985 wholesale buyers, 165 commercial travelers and more than 17,000 clerks. More than 1,000,000 women are registered in domestic and not far from 2,000,000 more in industrial pursuits, but in the higher skilled industries they cut rather a poor showing, nor is their deftness shown to advantage in the making of watches and philosophical instruments, furniture decoration or jewelry, though some 4,000 miners and 45,000 agricultural laborers are in the list.—Exchange.

In a Chicago Shoe Store.

There is one society woman in Washington who came home from the World's fair wiser in some things as to the ways of the Windy City than when she left the primitive capital of the nation, where the shoe store clerks still kneel down to try on their customers' shoes. The lady in question tells the story on herself, so there can be no harm in repeating it.

It appears that, having worn out her footgear in tramping around the exposition grounds, she went into one of the fashionable shoe stores. After having a number of pairs of shoes brought out for inspection she requested to have a pair tried on. The clerk coolly seated himself on the sofa on her right side, and reaching down with a dexterous movement brought the customer's left foot up across his knee and commenced unbuttoning the shoe.

"Of course I wasn't going to let on that I was green to the ways of Chicago," said the victim of the incident in relating it afterward, "so I just sat there as though I had been used to having shoes tried on that way all my life, but I must say that the Chicago method is a little startling when applied without warning."—Washington Post.

The Annoying Freckle.

Freckles are apt to be the torment of young people, and especially of very fair blonds with red or reddish hair. Applications of all manner of blistering remedies are constantly recommended and used, such active poisons as corrosive sublimate and acetate of lead figuring largely in them, and the object to be obtained is nothing less than the removal of the outer skin, freckles and all. Half an ounce each of cologne water, brandy, lemon juice and alum, boiled together, produces the same result, more slowly and less painfully, but when the skin forms again and is exposed to the same influences the freckles reappear. Tan is even worse than freckles, as this is a dark layer over the entire surface, whereas the former do leave glimpses of a fair skin. Where it is permanently established a covering of linen or chamois, cut to fit the face and neck, wet with cold water, if used nightly, will gradually wear away the tan.—Ladies' Home Journal.

She Has Diamonds In Her Teeth.

I called at a dental establishment of this city last Saturday afternoon, and instead of finding the proprietor extracting teeth "perfectly painless" he was engaged in looking for a diamond which he had dropped on the floor. It was soon found, and to our astonishment employed as a filling in the front tooth of a society belle. When completed, the diamond represented a brilliant star. The crescent formed gold filling at the periphery of the diamond made the star and crescent beautiful in design and finish. We have heard of the fad of diamonds in teeth, but do not think there is another person in Norfolk with diamonds in her teeth.—Norfolk Landmark.

Here's a Fortunate Girl.

Gertrude Vanderbilt, whose coming out will take place this winter, will enter society under more auspicious circumstances than any American girl heretofore. She is the daughter of Cornelius Vanderbilt, the head of the family. She will be the wealthiest girl in the United States. And, as if there were not enough blessings, she is a pretty young person of 18, with blue gray eyes and mobile features. She is also a well educated young woman, and has enough fondness for outdoor exercise to please those who would not find her other attractions sufficient. —New York Correspondent.

Two Belated Trades.

At the recent labor congress held in Chicago Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, read a paper on "Working Women In Two Belated Trades."

The trades referred to were those of sewing and domestic service. The tendency of the modern home was to isolate the servant girl and the seamstress, and therein she saw the great difficulty attending the securing of intelligent people in those employments. She believed that the house servant was to pass out of existence just as the family blacksmith had done, and that co-operation would succeed present methods.

Two Hundred and One Women Voted.

In New Haven on Sept. 18 201 women voted under the new law passed last winter, being the first women who ever cast a ballot in Connecticut. They not only helped elect a reformed school committee, but the interest which they aroused made the reform possible. Mrs. Alexander Troup, wife of the editor of The Union, was first at the polls. Three "old public functionaries" were ousted, and the new ticket was carried with a rush. Seven thousand five hundred and ninety-seven votes were cast, more than twice the usual number.—Boston Woman's Journal.

On the Platform.

Mrs. S. F. Grubb recently spoke to an enthusiastic audience at the opera house in Augusta, Kan. Upon the conclusion of her address the Christian minister came forward and invited her to take part in laying the cornerstone of their new church. She consented and gave one of the principal addresses. It is so unusual for a woman to be invited to participate in such an occasion as to seem remarkable. But why should it when nearly three-fourths of all the church members of the United States are women?—Lawrence Daily Journal.

Helping Out Small Incomes.

Miss Mary Smith, an English woman, has been engaged in a novel sort of social philanthropy. Instead of devoting her energies to the very poor she has been studying to provide inexpensive but healthy and pleasant homes for women who have small incomes. In Gloucestershire she has established a number of small cottages having all the picturesqueness of the thatched cottage period and the sanitary improvements of later days. They are tenanted, and the scheme seems likely to prove successful. — London World.

To Effect a Joining.

Most women are hollow in the back. That's the reason their skirts sag and dip and hang crooked. The new skirt is very full, but it is cut to hang even all round. To bring about this pleasing effect a giant hook and eye is being used on all the street suits. The eye goes on the waist belt and the hook on the skirt braid. When they articulate, the skirt will be straight, provided it is cut right. The skirt hooks sell for a few cents and should be put in all the heavy dresses.

Working Women's Clubs.

The number of young women who are actively interested in working girls' clubs is increasing every day. At present they number something in the two hundred thousands scattered all over the country, and every one of them is anxiously looking forward to the convention of working girls' clubs which is to be held in Boston early next spring. An effort will then be made to bind the clubs still closer together in a national association.—New York Recorder.

The New Chatelaine Watch.

The latest chatelaine watch looks enough like a soft shell crab to be eaten. Its diminutive size is the only thing which saves it from such a fate. It is made of gold with a reddish tinge and is an exceedingly fat crab, so that it may hold the watch works. If one examines it closely, a diamond or two may be seen glistening beneath the shell. It fastens to the gown by means of a gold fishhook in the shape of a stickpin.

Women Sculptors.

Women sculptors appear to be coming to the fore in various countries. Recently two Swedish ladies, Fru Carolina Bruce and Froken Agnes Kjellberg, have received mention honorable at the Paris salon. Froken Kjellberg holds the scholarship of the Swedish academy.

Miss Julia Stevenson, daughter of Vice President Stevenson, is a member of the entering freshman class at Wellesley. Miss Stevenson's younger sister is attending the Dana Hall preparatory school in Wellesley.

Among the resolutions moved by the trades congress in Belfast is one expressing satisfaction at the appointment of women workshop inspectors and praying the government to increase the number.

The fin de siecle female was on hand at the Cherokee strip rush. Mrs. Jenny Lasher staked the first claim, and 14-year-old Cora Wiley secure a site on which she will open a hotel.

Miss Lucille Rodney, who has won a wager by walking from her home in Galveston to the World's fair, counting ties all the way, made $500 by the way selling her photographs.

There are 660 women journalists, editors and authors in England and Wales, according to the British census reports just published.

The women of Iceland, who have had municipal suffrage ever since 1882, have now been made eligible to municipal offices.

CAN WALK UNAIDED.

Ride of Eleven Hours Freshens Prince Bismarck.

HE IS IN GOOD SPIRITS

And Has a Dauntless Resolution to Get Well.

HAMBURG, Oct. 9.—Prince Bismarck's special train reached Friederichsruhe at 11:07 o'clock Saturday evening. Bismarck had hardly felt the fatigue of the journey, and as he stepped on the platform he was apparently in better spirits than at any previous time since the beginning of his illness. With a gesture of impatience he declined Dr. Schweninger's offer of assistance. He took a few cautious steps from the train, then drew himself up, and turning to the station master asked:

"Are you all well here?"

"Very well, your highness."

"Thank God; that pleases me."

The prince's old head forester, in full uniform, had been at the station two hours superintending arrangements for the reception of his master and mistress. He hurried up to inquire after the prince's health and the whereabouts of the rest of the party, who were looking after bundles on the train.

"We are all here, thank the good God," said Bismarck, "and I feel better already."

Two carriages were waiting for the Bismarck party. The prince walked unaided to the first one and Dr. Schweninger took his place in it beside his patient. Dr. Chrysander and the princess entered the other carriage. Bismarck laid the stout stick, which he had brought in his hand from Kissingen, across his knees, pulled down his great cloth cap and called to the coachman to go ahead. As the people of the neighborhood had been requested not to come to the station, only about 50 persons were waiting behind the station to see the prince drive away, and they refrained from making any sign or sound of recognition.

In Silent Respect.

The firemen of the Bismarck estate had come out with torches and formed about 20 yards apart on the road from the station to the castle, to light the party home. They were silent and dispersed as soon as the prince reached home. The order against making a demonstration which might excite Bismarck was obeyed with military exactness in every respect.

When the train stopped at Eisenach Saturday afternoon the district governor greeted Prince Bismarck, and the station was crowded with high officials and large landowners of the district, who encircled the prince. The prince was cheered at Hanover also.

Dr. Schweninger said that Bismarck's fear of the journey had affected him unfavorably. The prince greatly feared that the fatigue would cause a relapse, as he had lost sleep and strength on account of his fear of the results.

As the journey advanced, however, Bismarck had found that he was none the worse for it and had gained confidence and courage so rapidly that, when he reached Friederichsruhe, after 11 hours in the train, he had stepped more briskly and felt even fresher than when at the station in Kissingen. According to Dr. Schweninger's account, Bismarck is now erect when he stands or walks. He has lost the shrunken appearance, which was so noticeable a week or 10 days ago, and looks as tall as he did before his illness. His face, however, has grown thin and wrinkled.

Bismarck passed a fair night, although he was troubled somewhat with sciatic pains. Since early morning messengers have been going to the castle incessantly with flowers and telegrams of congratulation and inquiry.

King Humbert's Kindness.

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—Before leaving Kissingen yesterday, Prince Bismarck received a dispatch from King Humbert of Italy, offering him for a winter residence the royal castle at Cape di Monte, near Naples. Bismarck, although declining the offer, expressed himself as greatly touched by the king's kindness. Bismarck's dauntless resolution to get well, and his determination not to submit to the treatment accorded to a dying man, are his motives for refusing unusual favors from any quarter.

Just what his condition is, it is difficult to learn. The reports from day to day are entirely contradictory. Some of his old friends have ascertained, however, that he is again taking keen interest in public affairs. In Kissingen, during last week, he dictated communications which have reached Herr Von Bennigsen, leader of the National Liberals; Baron Wangerheim, leader of the Agrarian league, and several other politicians. Probably some of these communications were merely answers to inquiries as to his health. Others are known to have had a bearing upon impending political developments.

A Bad Railroad Wreck.

READING, Pa., Oct. 9.—Edward F. Corcoran was instantly killed and Daniel Flannery severely scalded in a coal train wreck at Exeter station. Sixteen cars were wrecked and the locomotive thrown down a steep embankment. The accident was caused by a train running into a derailed car.

Sad Result of a "Joke."

FREEPORT, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Four young men, in a spirit of fun, picked up a telephone pole, lifted it to their shoulders and carried it some distance. On throwing it to the ground, Henry D. Powers was knocked to the ground, breaking his neck and crushing his skull. He died instantly

Happy Beaneaters.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 9.—At the end of the 8th inning in yesterday's Boston-All America game, the Dauvray cup was formally presented to the Bostons and became their personal property, having been won three times. The score was Boston, 12; All America, 4.

An Expensive Murder Trial.

HARRODSBURG, Ky., Oct. 9.—The jury in the case of H. C. Parsmore, for the murder of Richard Paxton Oct. 5, 1887, returned a verdict for acquittal. This is the fifteenth court that has passed on the case. The case has cost the state over $30,000.

Couldn't Convict Them.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Joe Graham, James King and John Wilson, who were arrested at Kensington for supposed implication in the Kendalville express robbery, were discharged on account of insufficient evidence.

Biggest Strike In Rhode Island's History Is On.

MEN POORLY ORGANIZED.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 10.—There is great excitement here over the big strike at the Riverside and other woolen mills in Olneyville.

Between 6000 and 7000 hands are thrown out of work, making the largest and most serious strike that has ever occurred in the state. The operatives are in no condition to stand a long strike, and grave results are feared.

This district contains the big woolen manufacturing concerns of the Providence worsted mills, the Saxon mills, the Weybosset and the Riverside mills, which employ upward of 6000 hands. But a few days ago, at a meeting of the woolen mill owners of the state, it was voted to reduce the schedule of prices paid to mill operatives.

The schedule was arranged last week, and it was given out that it would be put into effect Oct. 16. The claim of the manufacturers was that the operatives of the woolen mills of the state since the general strike that occurred at the River side mills some time ago, were receiving more pay than that given to woolen mill operatives in other sections of New England. It was made known that the operatives were to be cut from 10 to 20 per cent, the heaviest reduction being made in the weavers' pay, and but few of the mill employes escaped the cut.

Weavers Quit Work.

When the mills were started yesterday morning it began to be rumored about that the new scale of prices was to go into effect. Half an hour later the wildest excitement prevailed. At the Saxon mills, where the first notice was posted, it was promptly decided not to accept the cut, and the weavers left their looms, which necessitated the shutting down of the mills.

At 9:30 o'clock all the factories were deserted and the doors closed. Between 6000 and 7000 people were thus thrown out of work.

The streets in the strike district present an unusual scene, mill operatives being found on all corners, hotly discussing and loudly condemning the course taken by the manufacturers, and the police are kept busy maintaining order. Extra guards have been sent to all the mills. There has as yet been no trouble of any note, although at any moment the police fear an outbreak.

A Big Meeting.

Fully 10,000 persons assembled on the Merino flats yesterday afternoon, that being the place selected for the holding of the mass meeting of the strikers, and when it was announced that the weavers of the Geneva worsted mills had quit their looms three rousing cheers went up.

Three weeks ago, after a shutdown, these mills were started up at a reduction in wages of from 10 to 25 per cent. Five days a week were run on this schedule. Yesterday a second cut was posted of 25 per cent. The weavers and other operatives who went out from the Geneva mills were warmly welcomed at the mass meeting.

It was also made known at the meeting that at the Nicholson file works, where more than 500 are employed, a notice had been posted Saturday to the effect that the workshops would shut down, and that when they started again there would be a reduction of salaries. The pay of the jobbers at the file works is now $2 a day, and the men say they will not stand a cut.

The mass meeting was an enthusiastic one throughout. It lasted three hours, and the labor champions were loudly applauded, while any reference to the mill owners met with showers of hisses.

Old and New Scales.

IT WAS CHICAGO DAY.

Nearly Three Quarters of a Million Visitors at the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Seven hundred thousand people—double the greatest crowd that ever congregrated—visited the World's fair yesterday, breaking the greatest one-day record at Paris by an overwhelming majority. The department of admissions had an extra force on duty and every turnstile was kept registering at its highest speed. Yet these facilities were inadequate. At 1 o'clock every wagon gate was ordered opened.

The weather was beautiful, and the grandness of Chicago day at the fair kept the crowds coming all the afternoon and evening.

The total number of paid admissions since the opening of the fair is 16,492,070. The greatest day at Paris was 397,150 and at Philadelphia 217,526.

During the afternoon there was a "reunion of the states," in which thousands of boys and girls took part, but the crowning glory of anniversary day was the procession of floats which entered the grounds at dark. The first represented Chicago in her growth receiving all the nations of the earth, the Chicago Hussars acting as escort. The most magnificent float in the entire procession was illustrative of Columbus at the court of Isabella. Floats were also furnished by foreign-born residents of Chicago.

A remarkable feature was the comparatively small number of accidents and emergency hospital cases. The precautions taken by the police and officers of the guards to resist the human tidal wave which swept toward the street and the stairway leading to the elevated railroad were inefficient and many men and women were injured in the crush. Thomas Robertson of Tremont, Minn., while returning from the grounds, was struck by a cable car and died on the way to the hospital.

LOCKED IN A TOMB.

Residents of a New Hampshire Town Feeling Pretty Blue.

MASON, N. H., Oct. 10.—The action of the local authorities in locking up half a dozen of their fellow townsmen in the receiving tomb of the cemetery is likely to end in a legal battle and the erection of some sort of a lockup. The men who were imprisoned are angry. Their offense consisted in drinking too much hard cider during the fair. When the constables attempted to arrest them they resisted and a fight ensued. After subduing the men the constables realized that there was no place in which to confine them. These were the first arrests made since the town was founded. Then somebody thought of the receiving tomb, and to this the prisoners were taken. They were thrown inside, and the big iron door was barred and locked. The next morning the men were almost physical and mental wrecks, and so pitiable was their plight that the justice who presided at the hearing discharged them without inflicting further punishment.

End of the Schloss Case.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 10.—The case of William Cash of Ansonia, charged with murder, with Drs. Lee and Whitten, for having caused the death of Annie Schloss, has been nol-prossed. If there was not probable cause in the case of the two physicians there could not be in Cash's case. This is the end of the whole affair which has attracted more attention than any other since the Malley-Cramer case.

Democrats Turned Out.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—The Democrats went to Music hall last evening in vast numbers to ratify the nominations made at the state convention. The audience was large and lively. The seats were all occupied, and the standing spaces crowded. Vigorous speeches were made by Candidates Russell and Carroll, Josiah Quincy, Mayor Matthews and others.

Cruiser Boston at 'Frisco.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The cruiser Boston, whose marines were landed to preserve order the day Hawaii ceased to be a monarchy, has returned after a year in Honolulu. A message at the navy department announced her arrival in San Francisco. The Boston was relieved by the Philadelphia.

Guilty of Abduction.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Oct. 10.—The jury in the case of Adam Stutts, who, with William Padolph, abducted Farmer Kliner's 13-year-old daughter last August, brought in a verdict of guilty. The maximum penalty is $1000 fine or five years in the state prison, or both.

Pennsylvania Won.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The football season was opened here in a well-played game between the University of Pennsylvania and the Columbia Athletic club teams. Pennsylvania won at the end of the two 30 minute halves by a score of 22 to 6.

Two Were Drowned.

CAPE CHARLES, Va., Oct. 10.—A small boat, with five men, capsized in a gale back of Broadwater island. Three of the men were saved by the life-saving crew. Julius Sharpley and Fisher Boone were washed overboard and drowned.

Mob Fixed Him.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 10.—In Henry county, John Davis, colored, entered the bedroom of Miss Farmer and attempted to assault her. The woman screamed, and the negro fled. A posse gave pursuit and riddled him with bullets.

A Clean Knockout.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Horace Leeds of Atlantic City and Billy Ernst of Brooklyn fought last night for a purse of $2500. Ernst was knocked out in the eighth round, the time of the last round being 65 seconds. It was fully five minutes before Ernst could be taken from the ring, the knockout blow, which caught him on the jaw, knocking him insensible.

Hope For Ellison.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Judge Ingraham of the supreme court granted a stay of execution of sentence in the case of Frank Ellison, the alleged assailant of Broker Henriques, who was yesterday sentenced to five years in the penitentiary at Sing Sing.

De Lesseps Is Dying.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Count Ferdinand de Lesseps has been in a comatose condition for 36 hours. The action of his heart is extremely feeble, and the physicians cannot administer nourishment

Vigilant Shows Her Heels to Her British Rival.

VALKYRIE WAS FAR ASTERN

When the American Boat Finished the Race.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Yesterday was Great Britain's day so far as weather for a yacht race was concerned, and Lord Dunraven and all the crew of the rakish black cutter were happy when they went down the bay early in the morning.

C. Oliver Iselin and the gallant crew of the white cup defender were the happy ones when the yachts came back in the afternoon. They led a triumphal procession of yachts and excursion craft up the harbor, for the Vigilant had added a victory to her score. She had walked away from the Valkyrie in a wind that topped the seas with foam and drove clouds of spray over her weather bow.

The day was an ideal one for an outside race. The first of the international races was a run to leeward and return; that of yesterday, the second in the series of three in five, was a triangular course of 30 miles, 10 miles to the leg. There was bound to be windward work and reaching, and that always makes a prettier race than a leeward run.

There was the usual fleet of pleasure craft, excursion boats and tugs, which kept at a more respectful distance from the yachts than on any previous day and did not interfere with the race in any way. The Dolphin, with Admiral Gherardi on board, was conspicuous in the fleet.

The two yachts left their anchorage off Bay Ridge, where they had been over Sunday, rather early. The Vigilant got away at 7:40 a. m., and the Valkyrie had her anchor up at 8 o'clock. Both boats were towed down to Sandy Hook. They were saluted by incoming steamers, tugs and excursion boats as they went down the bay. The wind was south of southwest and blowing 13 miles an hour. The Vigilant made for the Horseshoe, where, under shelter of the land, she ran up her mainsail, jib and forestaysail. She then went on out to sea, with her sails aiding the tug.

The Valkyrie did not seem to mind the breeze, which was getting stronger all the time, and taking a short cut through the Swash channel made sail as she went.

The wind was blowing 25 miles an hour when both boats went over the line, within two seconds of each other. The Vigilant led by the length of her bowsprit. They made a pretty start. As on Saturday, the Valkyrie forged ahead at the start. She was not running quite as close to the wind as the white sloop, but she was going faster.

In 10 minutes the Valkyrie led by four lengths, but the Vigilant was a trifle to windward. The Valkyrie increased her lead to 10 lengths at the end of the first half-hour. The Vigilant then began to shorten up the gap between her bow and the Valkyrie's stern.

She took the lead and the race was a procession from that point. The cup defender gained 4m. 45s. in the first 10 miles, tacking to windward; 4m. 12s. in the second 10-mile run, and 3m. 36s. in the last 10 miles. She crossed the line ahead of the Valkyrie 12m. 23s. actual time.

The Valkyrie was over two miles astern when the Vigilant finished. The 30-mile race was run in 3h 25m. The winner received a salute from the hundreds of tugs and excursion boats.

The next race will be Wednesday. Should the Vigilant win again, the America's cup will remain here at least another year, and the American center-boarder will still be the champion yacht of the world.

The official time at the finish was: Vigilant, 3:25:01; Valkyrie, 3:35:36.

The regatta committee of the New York Yacht club were notified after the race that the Vigilant sprung her bowsprit while covering the first leg. They will not know until this evening whether she will race Wednesday or not.

What Else Could They Say?

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The Times this morning says of yesterday's race: It leaves little room for doubt that Vigilant is more than a match for Valkyrie. It would be idle to pretend that the yachts have not been put to a good, all-round, hard weather test.

The Standard and Daily Telegraph also make similar comments on the race.

Old Men Must Stay Out.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 10.—The Thomas G. Plant Shoe company yesterday issued a notice to the workmen now out on strike, declaring that henceforth walking delegates from labor unions will not be recognized and that none of the old stitchers now out shall ever secure work in the factory again. The firm is now turning out 30 60-pair cases per day, the same amount as before the strike, which lasted over a month. The lasters will not go out.

Burge Would Flunk.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The postponed fight between Jack Dempsey and Dick Burge is off. Judge Newton of the Coney Island Athletic club yesterday refused to make the match. The Olympic club of New Orleans has also declined to put up a purse for the fight, claiming that in case they fought Burge would lay down.

Treasury Figures.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The treasury gold reserve has decreased to $88,338,000, a loss since Oct. 1 of $5,243,000. The currency has increased to $17,846,000, a gain since Oct. 1 of $4,553,000. These figures mean that the gold reserve of $100,000,000 has been invaded by nearly $12,000,000.

Sheffield's Trial Begun.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 10.—The trial of Rev. Frank H. Sheffield of Westerly, who killed his young daughter at Rocky Point one day last summer, was begun at East Greenwich yesterday. The prisoner's wife and other friends testified that they believed Sheffield to be insane.

A Well-deserved Award.

The Treasury Department at Washington, after receiving bids from the largest and best-known carpet manufacturers and dealers throughout the country, has awarded to the old and trustworthy house of John H. Pray, Sons, & Co. of Boston, the contract for furnishing Brussels carpets for government use throughout the country for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894.

This contract amounts to about 20,000 yards, more or less, and is for Brussels of the firm's own manufacture, having as a guaranty of the quality the firm's name woven on the back of every yard of carpet that is delivered, so that the house cannot fail to be well known in all government buildings and offices throughout the United States wherever the carpets are seen.

Messrs. Pray & Co.'s reputation for selling only standard and reliable goods seems to have been well maintained, as the government standard is a high one, and the tests are most severe.

IT IS well for the Republicans that they arrived at the conclusion that a change in county commisioner was desirable before it became too apparent to the voters at large and the Democrats triumphed. With Mr. Wiggin's service very little criticism can be offered, but we believe fifteen years is enough for any man, and nothing will be lost by substituting Mr. Watts H. Bowker, who for several years was a selectman of Brookline and prominent in its local affairs. There are some things which the city of Quincy has desired which have "hung fire" too long, and some things have been forced upon us which were not necessary. The Hancock street railroad bridge and approaches at Atlantic should be widened out to the same width as the street, and Wollaston people very much desire a roadway beneath the Old Colony, as prayed for.

THE DAILY LEDGER may well be proud of its record yesterday in giving the news of the yacht race. None of the Boston papers on sale in this city at three o'clock or even four o'clock had anything decisive about the great cup race being held, but a special to the LEDGER appeared in the regular edition which was on sale at 2.45 in Quincy and 3.30 in Boston, saying that the boats were on the run home, the Vigilant over two miles in the lead and the Valkyrie was "out of it" barring accident. The Vigilant crossed the line at 2.50 and the Valkyrie at 3.02.24.

ALL THE granite manufacturers have received a marked copy of yesterday's LEDGER with the articles on "Advertising Granite," and as one remarked there was food for reflection.

PERHAPS DUNRAVEN will be "Dunracin' " after tomorrow.

Death of Former Resident.

A despatch was received on Monday from North Orrington, Me., stating that Mr. Frank B. Pendleton, a former well known resident of Wollaston had died of consumption. Mr. Pendleton was for several years a resident of Wollaston and was connected with the publishing house of Dodd, Mead & Co., of Chicago and Boston. When the firm gave up their Boston store a short time ago they offered Mr. Pendleton a lucrative position with the Chicago house which he accepted. He had been located there but a short time when failing health compelled him to seek the Minnesota pineries for relief, but the disease was too far advanced to be cured. He was until recently a member of Wollaston Club and of the Wollaston Lodge, K. of H.

"That's the horse we want," was the comment of Chief Ripley. He would be a a good one.

AN IMPORTANT ARREST

Calef Will Probably Have to Face More Complaints When His Case Comes Up.

Evidence against Richard Calef, who was arrested last week for obtaining subscription to the Ladies' Home Journal, continues to accumulate and it is evident that the arrest was an important one, and when the case is called Thursday, several more complaints will be made against him.

Chief of Police Langley has learned that Calef obtained from Rosa Richia of South Quincy $1 in part payment for a subscription to Butterick's Delineator. Calef told the woman that his name was Booth and that C. H. Booth was his father and that he had an office at 407 Washington street, Boston.

Chief Langley is in receipt of a letter from the Butterick Publication Co. in which the firm speaks of having been notified of the arrest of a party for obtaining subscriptions to the Ladies' Home Journal and calling attention to the standing reward of $100 offered by the Butterick Company for the arrest and conviction of any party fraudently obtaining subscription to any of their publications.

This being the case, it looks as though some one in this city will be $100 richer before many days, as the evidence against Calef is such that conviction is almost an assured fact.

MUNROE MONUMENT.

The Grand Army Memorial to be Dedicated at Weymouth, Oct. 29.

The department monument erected to the memory of Assistant Adjutant General Alfred C. Monroe, in the cemetery at East Weymouth, will oe dedicated with appropriate ceremony on Sunday, Oct. 29. A special train will leave Boston at 1 P. M. to convey Grand Army posts desirous of participating in the exercises.

There will be a short parade, music by band at the cemetery, prayer by Department Chaplain Barrows, remarks by Commander J. M. Jenney of Fletcher Webster Post of Brockton, singing by the choir, addresses by Commander-in-chief Adams, Department Commander Hall, and an oration by Comrade William M. Olin, closing with music by the band.

The monument was executed by the O. T. Rogers Granite Co. of this city and is regarded as a fine specimen of work.

Grand Officers' Entertained.

Monday evening, Oct. 9, John Adams Council, R. A., No. 1210, entertained the Grand Regent and suite, comprising G. R. Reynolds, G. Chap. Turtlelove, G. Sent. Murray and G. Treas. Hayes. The Council opened promptly at eight o'clock and transacted the regular business, after which they partook of an excellent collation, interspersed with remarks by the grand officers and vocal selections by the Wollaston Quartette The quartette rendered some excellent music and made a great hit. All present seemed to enjoy themselves, and the evening was one to be remembered in the history of John Adams Council.

The Republican Representative convention of this district will be held at headquarters in the city Saturday evening. There appears to be no opposition to the renomination of Representative Charles L Hammond.

A business meeting of the Memorial Congregational society was held Friday evening Oct. 6, with President Roger H. Wilde in the chair. After a two hours' session it was voted to adjourn till next Friday evening when matters of great importance will come up. All interested in this church are invited to join the legal society.

Two Great Political Questions.

To the Editors of the Ledger:

At the present time the people of New England, irrespective of party, are substantially of one mind on the two great political questions which are now commanding the attention of the whole country.

Almost without exception they favor sound money and, with the exception of the Boston Home Market Club and a few high tariff fanatics, they think the tariff ought to be reformed. It is true that our Democratic friends and a great many Republicans as well, voted the protective system an outrage last fall, and this was not due to prejudice or thoughtlessness, but was simply the result of their honest convictions. Even those who thoroughly believed that they would be better off under McKinleyism are now undeceived, and earnestly hope that Congress will carry out the pledges of the Chicago platform. In this matter they are likely to be gratified, for the tremendous majorities in 1890 and 1892 by which the nation registered its condemnation of the McKinley tariff, carry with them a mandate which no Congress could afford to disregard. A reform of the tariff is therefore a practical certainty in the near future, with the resultant probability that our country will enter upon an era of prosperity such as it has not seen before. Now why will not those Republicans who recognize that a too great devotion to the fetish of protectionism has brought their party to its recent great defeats, join with the good men and true of all parties and support the party in power in a judicious reform of the tariff. Of course this cannot be done at once, but as soon as the Republican silver law is repealed it ought to be immediately entered upon. In the fall elections let them forget old party prejudices and vote for the Democratic nominee, because by so doing they vote at once for a sound currency, and a judicious reform of the tariff.

F. A. C.

—A grand Republican ratification meeting will be held in Music hall, Boston, this evening at 8 o'clock.

CONSIDERABLE MYSTERY

Surrounding the Death of Dr. Charles T. Olney.

WAREHAM, Mass., Oct. 10.—The death of Dr. Charles Theodore Olney of Brooklyn, a nephew of the attorney general of the United States, by drowning, seems to be surrounded in mystery. Gussie White, the young woman who tells a pecular story about hearing Dr. Olney screaming, and having gone out in a boat in a vain effort to rescue him, is a peculiar woman and a spiritualist. The fact that he had all his clothing on when found leads to the conviction that he could not have intended suicide. The people here do not seem to be satisfied that Miss White's story is all true, or that she has told all she knows about events preliminary to his death.

Medical Examiner Ellis told a reporter that his belief was that the drowning was accidental. Dr. Olney was prominent in the order of Elks, and J. T. McCarthy, a fellow Elk, came here from Lynn yesterday to take the body to Taunton. The townspeople are greatly wrought up about Dr. Olney's death and the accompanying mystery.

HORROR-STRICKEN PEOPLE

Watch the Antics of a Drunken Man High Above Them.

ATLANTA, Oct. 10.—A drunken painter named Tucker gave a war dance on the narrow platform at the top of a telephone pole, 90 feet from the ground, yesterday afternoon. He carried up a flask of whisky and a can of green paint. With the paint he colored himself green from belt to crown. Then he sang and yelled and danced, attracting a great crowd. He swung himself from the right of the platform and dangled there in the air, to the horror of the crowd below.

The linemen were telephoned for and climbed up. One got up through the trap door, when Tucker shot it and would not let the other up. He assaulted the other man and a fight began. Tucker tried to throw the lineman off, but the latter finally got in a blow with his nippers on Tucker's head, knocking him senseless. Tucker was then let down with a rope and taken to the police station.

Has Two Wives.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Oct. 10.—Frank R. Hausch of Cleveland was married in Barre, Sept. 27, to Sarah, daughter of Ambrose C. Averill, a respected citizen of that town. It was soon reported that he had another wife in Cleveland. The father of the Barre girl followed him to that city and had him arrested as a bigamist. Armed with extradition papers from Governor Fuller, Sheriff Howe has left for Cleveland to bring Hausch to Vermont.

An Old Man's Double Crime.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 10.—At Hazelton, a suburb of this city, James Campbell, aged 60, killed his wife with a revolver and attempted to murder Patrick Finney, aged 64. The wife died instantly, and Finney is in a dying condition. Jealousy and the use of liquor are the reasons assigned for the double murder.

Bad Notes Piling Up.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Oct. 10.—Another note for $2500, upon which the endorsement of I. W. Sanborn of Lyndenville was forged by Charles T. Walter of St. Johnsbury, has just come to light. This makes the total forgeries by Walter amount to $11,200. His personal indebtedness is not far from $75,000.

Newspaper Changes Hands.

HONEST PRAISE.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa Does Good Work in Maine.

Earnest Endorsement of Kickapoo Remedies from the Extreme North Eastern Section of the United States. Merit Alone Could Have Made These Remedies so Widely known and Universally Indorsed by the People.

MONTICELLO, Aroostook Co., Me. Oct. 16, 1892.

John S. White.

I wish to tell you what your great medicine Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, has done for me and my family.

My wife was very sick and had been failing for a long time, and her old family physician said she could not live. We tried another doctor, and he told the same story, said she could not live three months. She had been confined to her bed for almost two years and was now almost bedfast. The doctor said she had Consumption complicated with Heart Disease and Liver Trouble, and we were about discouraged.

I then heard of your remedy and told my wife about it,

She decided to try it, and before she had taken half a bottle she felt better. When she had taken two bottles she was gaining fast, and before the third bottle was finished she completely recovered her health, and has been a well woman ever since, and her cure is a wonder to all.

Mrs. John S. White.

Some time after this I was taken sick and my trouble was pronounced Dyspepsia by a physician who relieved me some, but did not cure me. My wife advised me to try Sagwa. I did so and was cured. Soon after that I was attacked with the Grippe and could not get rid of it. Every time I had a cold I was completely used up. At my wife's suggestion I tried Kickapoo Indian Sagwa again, and after using less than two bottles I considered myself entirely well and have remained well ever since. I think I can say that Sagwa is the best remedy that a family can have. In case of Colds there is nothing better that I know of than taking a good dose before going to bed, and my wife says she would not think of keeping house without a bottle of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. She says it saved her life with the help of Providence, and I can say that under the hand of Almighty God I owe my life to the wonderful medicine of all medicines, the great gift of nature, Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, and all the world should know of its intrinsic worth. Its value as a family remedy is beyond comparison.

JOHN S. WHITE.

GOVERNOR WAS THERE.

Social Festivities and Sports at Williams' Big Celebration.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Oct. 10.—Williamstown had an influx of visitors yesterday afternoon, when the social festivities and sports began. Governor Russell and staff arrived, and his excellency spent part of the afternoon riding about the town. The afternoon was characterized by the holiday spirit, and many teas and receptions were given in various houses.

The afternoon's sports were largely of the farcical order, the spirit of fun predominating. A football game between the college eleven and a picked team of alumni simply served to amuse the throng of spectators. The fun reached the climax in the obstacle race. After the games, the Germania band of Boston gave a concert under the shelter of the chapel. At 4:30 afternoon teas were held in the library, Hopkins hall and the three new laboratories.

The hostesses at all these functions were surrounded by a buzzing swarm of alumni and undergraduates. Among the visitors were President Dwight of Yale, Horace E. Scudder, Mr. Curtis, of the class of '35 and Mr. Richards of the class of '40. Among the guests at Hopkins hall was Mr. Partridge, of the class of '28, the oldest living alumnus.

Mr. Van Vechten, '47, of New York gave a dinner at the Greylock to the winners of the prizes for extempore oratory which he established. These contests began in 1876, and of 17 winners, five were present.

The reception in Lazell gymnasium last evening, given by President and Mrs. Carter and the trustees, was a magnificent affair. The hall was splendidly decorated and illuminated and the attendance was large. The Germania band was stationed in the gallery. The evening was passed without special incident, in pleasant social conversation. A large number of class reunions were held during the evening.

MISS GOLDMAN GUILTY.

Queen of the Anarchists Attempted to Incite a Riot.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The jury in the trial of Emma Goldman returned a verdict of guilty last evening. Miss Goldman was seated by Attorney Hall, and though she smiled cheerfully when the jury returned, her face was unusually pale and her lips twitched nervously. Miss Goldman smiled half contemptuously when she heard the verdict, and Attorney Hall immediately rose to his feet. At his request the prisoner was remanded until Monday and a notice for a motion for a new trial was given.

The offense for which she was tried was attempting to incite a riot. Under this verdict she may be sent to the penitentiary for a term not exceeding one year, or the court, in its discretion, may let her off with a fine.

Train Wrecked by an Explosion.

ALLIANCE, O., Oct. 10.—An east-bound freight train on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago railroad had a car containing over 200 kegs of powder which, in some mysterious manner, became ignited, causing an explosion and the complete wrecking of the train. An excavation 20 feet deep beneath the powder car was made. Engineer Colvin and his fireman were fatally burned. The damage will reach $23,000.

Chinese Looking For Trouble.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—Advices received here state that a petition to the throne has been circulated in Chang Chi-tung, with a view of stirring up the people to kill all foreigners and burn their property. It shows among other things how one concession after another has been made to the "English barbarians," until at no distant day they will get possession of the land.

Looks Bad For Cronin.

HARTFORD, Oct. 10.—The inquest on Albert J. Skinner, who was murdered by James Cronin on Friday, was continued at South Windsor. Fifteen witnesses testified. None of them saw the shooting. Several spoke of Cronin's threats against Skinner and his lying in wait for his victim about a week ago.

Dozen Buildings Burned.

HULL, Mass., Oct. 10.—Nantasket beach had a big conflagration early this morning. It did a damage of at least $30,000 in less than an hour. Fully a dozen buildings, most of them cottages, were levelled to the ground, and it was a miracle that the Hotel Nantasket and adjoining buildings did not go.

Murdered His Wife.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—John T. Kelly, 35 years old, shot and fatally wounded his wife last night. Kelly is a shoemaker and for some time past has been working at Lynn, Mass. Mrs. Kelley had refused to live with her husband, owing to his drinking habits. He was arrested.

Laid Aside For a While.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The nomination of J. J. Van Alen to be ambassador to Italy came before the senate in executive session informally yesterday, but no action was taken. A number of senators interested in his nomination were absent, and it was laid aside.

Hazers Suspended.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 10.—The faculty has decided to suspend Gordon Johnson, president of the sophomore class, and seven other sophomores, for the participation in the hazing of a man who had incurred the enmity of the football men.

Working on Full Time.

READING, Pa., Oct. 10.—For many months past the half-dozen hat factories at Mohensville have been working only a few days a week. Yesterday they resumed on full time and full handed. They employ 350 hands.

Merchant Heinz's Case.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 10.—Jacob C. Heinz, of the firm of Heinz Bros. & Co., pickle and preserve dealers, had a hearing yesterday on a charge of arson. Heinz was held in $2000 bail for the November term of court.

Swift Justice.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 10.—Governor Pattison has named Dec. 7 for the execution of Den Tennis for the murder of little Agnes Wright. Only 19 days have elapsed since the little girl's outrage and murder.

Two Children Burned to Death.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 10.—Will Davis and wife left their two children in the house and went into the cotton field. When they returned the house was destroyed by fire and the children were burned to death.

Peixoto Buys Torpedo Boats.

BUENOS AYRES, Oct. 10.—A telegram received here from Rio Janeiro says that President Peixoto has purchased several torpedo boats in England.

RAMSAY MEMORIAL FUND.

A Summary of the Work of the Committee—The Latest Acknowledgments.

The Ramsay memorial committee having accomplished the work assigned it, thinks it fitting to say a few words about the inception and progress of the memorial.

On the evening of December 28, 1892, a few friends favorable to raising a memorial to perpetuate the memory of the late Mr. Ramsay met in the church hall. The following committee was organized and appointed to carry out the design of the meeting: Donald Mackenzie, chairman; John Michael, treasurer; Joseph Bonner, secretary (who has since joined his beloved pastor); Peter W. Dackers, interim secretary; George Bowman, William Burnet, George Chrystal, Alexander Emslie, Murdoch Lamont, Alexander Souter, Mrs. Elliot, Mrs. Chisholm.

The committee secured two lots in a prominent part of the cemetery, for one of which the church society has paid. This lot will be used for the interment of such deserving poor as die friendless and penniless. In the adjoining lot, and directly in front of the monument, the remains of Mr. Ramsay are interred. It is resolved that no other name or inscription, other than the present one to Mr. Ramsay, shall ever be cut on the monument.

The committee issued circulars to twenty-six of the best known sculptors of this city, inviting bids for the monument. About one-half responded. Of the designs submitted, S. Henry Barnicoat's was selected, and he was asked to execute the work. The committee hopes the result is satisfactory to the subscribers. Many of them are experts, and know a good thing when they see it. Of these the committee is not afraid. For excellence and uniformity of color, for the symmetry of its parts, and for good workmanship it is a superior sample of a Quincy "cottage monument."

The Presbyterian church is mostly composed of stone workers. The baneful effect of last year's protracted lockout, together with the stagnation of trade this season, have abridged their means of generosity. Many, whose heart was with us, and who in ordinary times would have liberally subscribed, were unable to give any assistance. To these, whose instincts of good will are broader than their resources, the committee wishes better times.

To the members and adherents of the church who have subscribed it may be superfluous to offer thanks. Many of them know, better than the committee can express it, the loss they have sustained.

The committee desires to express its cordial acknowledgments for the substantial assistance rendered by many outside of the Presbyterian society. These citizens are always in the van in every good work, and they appreciated the value of an accession to the community of a man of Mr. Ramsay's parts, and, under the influence of that power which makes the whole world kin, with us they felt they had lost a brother.

To the Ramsay home in "bonnie Scotland" the committee desires to dedicate one paragraph. That their beloved son is laid at rest among friends who so highly appreciated his goodness; that his name will be perpetuated in lasting granite.

"While the heather waves its purple bell
O'er moor and mountain crest,

Will be some consolation to the parents in their bereaved home beyond the sea.

"Praising what is lost
Makes the rememberance dear."

And a lasting bond of unity and sympathy between the relatives in Glasgow and their sympathizers in Quincy is cemented.

And now it only remains for the Ramsay memorial committee to add, that every member of it has been stimulated and inspired by love for one whose personal character so amply exemplified the ideal of what a minister of the gospel and a good citizen ought to be.

COUNTY NOMINATIONS.

The Republicans Make a Change for County Commissioner.

The Republican convention for Norfolk county was held Monday in Boston and the following nominations made:

For County Commissioner,—Watts H. Bowker of Brookline.

For Register of Probate and Insolvency,—Jonathan Cobb.

The only contest was for the first office, the town of Brookline again pressing its claim for representation. Mr. George W. Wiggin of Franklin had served very acceptable for 15 years and was a candidate for renomination, but the voice from Brookline was heeded, the ballot standing:

| | |
|---|---|
| Whole number of votes, | 121 |
| Necessary to a choice, | 62 |
| George W. Wiggin of Franklin had | 30 |
| Watts H. Bowker of Brookline had | 91 |

The nomination of Mr. Bowker was made unanimous.

The following county committee was elected: Maurice N. Alden of Randolph, John O. Holden of Quincy, R. H. O. Schulz of Dedham, Silas A. Stone of Sharon, Charles H. Eagger of Canton.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

Two Little Princes.

The very pretty photograph which we reproduce is the last one taken of the fourth and fifth sons of the German emperor and empress, and the likenesses are excellent. Prince August Wilhelm, who was born at the Stadtschloss in Potsdam on Jan. 29, 1887, very much resembles his eldest brother, the crown prince, in appearance, and is, like him, of a studious and rather serious disposition. Prince Oscar is a very pretty little boy and was born at the Marmor palais at Potsdam, on July 27, 1888, his fifth birthday having been recently celebrated at Cassel by a picnic. He received his name from his godfather, the king of Sweden, and is a very merry little fellow, in spite of the fact that he was born in the sad year when Germany lost two beloved emperors. He was born just 12 days after the death of his grandfather, the Emperor Frederick, and the best wishes that can be given him are that he may follow in his footsteps and lead a life equally noble and good. Both little princes are clever at their lessons, and young as they are already thoroughly understand their position in the fatherland.—London Graphic.

Mamma's Plan.

"Mamma, I don't want to go to school alone," said little Polly. "There is a great big dog that runs out and barks at me every day!"

Mamma thought a minute. She was sorry for her little girl, but she wanted Polly to be a brave little woman, who never gave up what she had undertaken.

"See here, Polly," she said at last, "I will wrap up this bit of meat and lay it in your dinner pail. When Jowler rushes out, you can give it to him, and then he will be sure to stop barking."

Polly thanked mamma and started off with rather an anxious little face.

She walked more and more slowly along the pleasant country road till she reached the white house by the poplars where Jowler lived.

As soon as he saw her he jumped down from the doorstep where he was sunning himself and ran out with a terrible uproar. Polly thought he looked bigger and crosser than ever before, and his voice echoed from the barns and corncribs around the house as if at least a dozen dogs were barking at her.

With a trembling hand she drew out the meat and threw it toward him. Sure enough, he was quiet at once; smelled it, tasted it and then actually thumped his stumpy yellow tail against the ground, which, you know, is a dog's way of saying, "Thank you!"—Youth's Companion.

The Strength of a Horse.

When you hear of "horsepower," you must understand that it means the strength of one horse. "Two horsepower" is equal to the strength of 15 men or two horses, and 15 men are about as strong as 60 boys under 14 years of age. One horsepower is equal to the strength of 7½ men. And the strength of one elephant is more than the strength of four horses. In St. Louis there is a race track which is kept in order by an elephant. The elephant draws the roller, works the scraper and does all the track work. If horses were used for this, it would require two teams. So the strength of an elephant is called "four horsepower."—New York Ledger.

The Sick Doll.

Dollie, you're dreadful sick, love,
With measles, cramps an pains!
I b'lieve you get your feet wet
Every time it rains.

I'm goin to cure you, dollie,
With med'cin in a spoon!
If you take it like a good girl,
You'll get well very soon!

So open your mouth, precious;
Don't wriggle from your place!
You take the med'cin, dollie,
An I will make the face.

Our Books.

The silent voices of succeeding ages,
Immortal tomes of justice, mercy, truth,
Recorded here within their speaking pages
The garnered wisdom both of age and youth.

To childhood's dreams they give a matchless glory,
Unknown to later, more prosaic times;
The fascinating page of fairy story,
The precious gift of wondrous nursery rhymes.

Books are life's early friends, bright, earnest, winning;
With added years the interest deeper grows,
And faithful, hopeful, as at life's beginning,
They gently cheer its feeble earthly close.

Multifold the lessons that they teach us—
In business haunts, in earth's remotest nooks,
Where kindred sympathy has failed to reach us,
Stanch at our beck are our beloved books.

They laugh to cheer hearts growing overweary,
They smooth the furrows from the brow of care,
Disperse the gloom from heavens chill and dreary,
Inspire the drooping soul to praise and prayer.

Books hold the past, far as old Time can take us,
And toward the future cast prophetic eyes;
Our sages are they, and they fain would make us
Heroically good, divinely wise.

Along life's vale they scattered hope and gladness,
Nor asked return for all the wealth they gave,
And from their treasures they will cull with sadness
A melancholy tribute for our grave.

—Derlyle Browne.

A New Wrinkle.

"Please, sir, will you give me 5 cents?"

"Give you 5 cents!" echoed the young man in surprise, for his applicant was a pretty, refined looking little girl of about 10 summers, whose clothing looked as though she were a child of fortune, not of want.

"Yes, sir. I want it to pay my car fare with. I lost the nickel mamma gave me." Of course the young man gladly gave the girl the desired 5 cents, and she fairly beamed upon him. The incident happened at Broad and Chestnut street. Not long after the young man was waiting for a car on Walnut street, and it so happened that he was thinking of the pretty face of the child.

"Well," mused he to himself, "I'm glad I happened to be there in time. Some parents are awfully careless of their children, though. Think of the little thing having to ask for money. It's a shame!"

There came a slight pull at his coat sleeve. Then a sweet, weak voice that seemed familiar said, "Please, sir, will you give me 5 cents?"

The young man turned as if stung. He could hardly believe his own eyes. "You see, sir"—began the sweet voice again.

"Yes, I know all about it. You lost the money your mother gave you for car fare."

It never phased the little one. She smiled divinely and answered, "Yes, how did you guess it?" But the young man had caught a passing car, and the look on his face set several of the passengers wondering.—Philadelphia Press.

A Homemade Barometer.

A simple barometer can be made by filling a common, wide mouthed pickle bottle within three inches of the top with water. An ordinary Florence oil flask should be washed thoroughly and stripped of its straw covering. This should be inverted and its neck plunged as far as it will go in the pickle bottle. This gives a complete barometer. In fine weather the water will rise into the neck of the flask higher than the neck of the pickle bottle, in wet and windy weather it will fall to within an inch of the mouth of the flask. Before a heavy gale of wind and at least eight hours before the gale reached its height the water has, it is said, been seen to leave the flask altogether.—New York Telegram.

REPEAL MEN FIRM

But the Silverites Are Fully Prepared to Fight.

TO DICTATE A COMPROMISE

If They Should Prove to Be the Victors.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Both sides of the senate are strengthening their lines for the battle tomorrow.

The repealers say that there will be no shirking on their part, and that they will not show the white feather, but will stand there until they can demonstrate whether or not a majority can legislate in the senate. They are fully convinced that by means of a protected, continuous session, if by any means, a vote can be reached on the repeal bill. Every other method has been adopted, and if that fails, the extraordinary spectacle will be presented of a senate utterly incapable of doing anything which is opposed in any quarter.

The silver men are now assuming the attitude of defiance which leads them rather to court a test of physical endurance. They may well do this, since the fatigue of continuous session must fall on the majority, which has in its composition a number of men who are not in a physical condition to endure the fatigue of all-night sessions. For this reason the general assumption is that a quorum will be broken and the protracted session ended without the accomplishment of anything.

After this there can be nothing left but a compromise, and there is some arrogance being displayed by the radical silver men in their confidence of success. They are saying that the administration forces will find it more difficult to secure a favorable compromise after the test of physical endurance has been made and has failed than they could secure now if they would agree to enter into negotiations for a compromise at once.

In anticipation of Wednesday's battle the southern senators, who are fighting against the unconditional repeal, have been conferring together and have taken a position of resistance, so that if the repeal men could hold a quorum in the senate chamber, the silver forces would still be sufficiently strong to prevent a vote during a session protracted for many days. The outlook, therefore, seems to be more and more certainly toward a compromise, and there is a possibility that within 24 hours after the protracted session is started the substantial terms of a compromise will be outlined and agreed upon in private conference.

An Exciting Session.

Yesterday's session of the senate was given up entirely to considering the Sherman act. The question came up in three separate forms. The first was a sort of personal explanation by Mr. Harris (Dem., Tenn.) in reply to resolutions adopted at a joint meeting of the Memphis committee and Merchants' Exchange, condemning the course of the Tennessee senators on the silver question.

Mr. Harris declared his dissent of threat contained in the resolutions and said that the maintenance of his self-respect was of vastly more importance to him than any office within the gift of the people. After that incident came up the resolution offered by Mr. Wolcott (Rep., Colo.) last Saturday, instructing the finance committee to put in active form the bi-metallic declaration of policy contained in the Voorhees substitute.

Some of the most impassioned speeches made since the opening of the debate took place on this resolution. Mr. Wolcott criticised the president for his letter to Governor Northen of Georgia, characterizing it as "intrusive, offensive and unfitting the relations that should exist between the legislative and executive departments of the government." Mr. Voorhees made the resolution the groundwork of a speech defending the repeal bill and asserting that the statement that it demonetized silver, even if repealed a hundred thousand times, was not true. He declared that he was ready, when the Sherman law no longer disgraced the statute book, to act promptly in carrying out the pledge which the bill contained. The Wolcott resolution was sent to the calendar and the repeal bill taken up. Upon it Mr. Cockrell (Dem.) occupied the floor for three and one-half hours and had not finished when the senate adjourned.

Wild Rumors.

Wild rumors, bearing upon the silver situation, were current about the Capitol, the most important of which includes the possibility of an attempt to adjourn congress until December. According to this story, which cannot be confirmed, but which has come to the ears of various senators, the president is credited with having expressed a hope that the senate would adjourn rather than accept any compromise. The silver senators, in discussing this rumor, say they will oppose any attempt to adjourn, because they want action of some sort. It was also said, upon the authority of a senator, whose standing is high in his party, that a compromise had been practically agreed upon. All of these statements were true—with a proper amount of salt.

In the House.

The debate on the federal elections bill closed yesterday and the voting will begin today. At no time during the discussion has there been much attention given to speakers on either side of the question. Throughout the past 10 days the attendance in the house has been far below the average and the disputants usually addressed a large array of empty seats. Even the last day of the discussion was not productive of much interest.

The principal speakers on the Republican side were Dolliver of Iowa, Paine of New York and Boutelle of Maine. The latter is one of the aggressive talkers of the house, and he introduced some fire into the debate, but it soon died out. New York provided the Democratic controversalists, Coombs, Lockwood and Fitch being its champions. The latter closed the debate in a carefully prepared speech, in which he contended for the repeal of laws providing for the appointment of supervisors and deputy marshals.

No Deaths.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Oct. 10.—There were 89 new cases of yellow fever reported yesterday. No deaths are reported.

BUILDING A DRAMA.

An Interesting Account of How the Real Article Is Constructed.

A real drama is constructed and not written. It is built up as a house is erected by the bricklayer and stonemason, and the words are only the bricks and stones and have the same relative value to the design of the playwright as these to the designs of the architect. The architect has the structure in existence and clearly wrought out before the first stone is laid, and the drama of the true playwright is in existence before a word is written. Words there must be, just as there must be bricks, but as the latter can be carted from the kiln at current prices in any quantity, so can the former be brought to the playwright from the dictionary by any purveyor of sentences at current prices.

The rare man who constructs a good play can hire men by the regiment to write the lines. But the dialogue, the epigram, the repartee, the brilliant speech such as we find in Congreve and in Sheridan, is not this an essential? the reader will ask. Let us not put the cart before the horse. It is the situations that produce the dialogues. It is not the dialogues that produce the situations. Given a situation that calls for a smart, brisk, snappy, witty exchange of words, and the words will come. We see this in real life, and the stage copies real life. Even in so simple a situation as when a couple of cartmen get their wheels locked on Broadway on a muddy day and a policeman comes up to separate them, you will hear a good deal of smart though coarse dialogue. Such dialogue and all dialogue that grows out of any situation (and no dialogue worth listening to grows out of anything else) is interesting in proportion as the situation is interesting.

Without situation to call forth an interchange of language suitable to the occasion, and especially such situation as of itself interests the audience and causes each member of it to ask himself what the characters will say next, a lot of well dressed people might stand or sit around on the stage and fire off epigrams at each other, and the audience would yawn.

Dramas, so called, written in perfect accordance with syntax, witty here and there and always elegant, pour in upon the manager and are repeated with the utmost energy and dispatch because they are nothing but sermons or essays in three or four chapters called acts. Their authors style them dramas because they are not dramatic. They divide them into acts because they involve no action and subdivide them into scenes because where nothing is done nothing can be seen. I may remark in passing that the old fashioned shifting of scenes during an act is now only put into plays by novices who have not studied the modern stage.—W. H. Crane in North American Review.

How Gravitation Varies.

That changes involving the displacement of immense masses are going on within the earth is one of the suggested explanations of some observations recently announced in France. It has been found at the Parc St. Maur observatory that the force of gravitation, or the weight of bodies, undergoes daily variations. These are rendered sensible by placing in the earth a tube containing a column of mercury balanced by the pressure of hydrogen contained in a closed vessel connected with the tube and registering by means of photography the alterations in the level of the mercury.

After all corrections have been made for the effect of changes of temperature it appears that certain sudden variations in the level of the mercury are only to be explained on the theory that they are due to change in gravitation. These variations last from 15 minutes to an hour. They are of course very small, amounting at a maximum to only one-twentieth of a millimeter, but they may imply very great displacements of matter in the interior of the globe.

It has been suggested that similar experiments should be conducted in the neighborhood of active volcanoes, where liquefied rock is moving beneath the surface, and other disturbances of the strata of the earth are taking place.

Such facts as these present to the imagination a very formidable picture of the gigantic commotions that accompany the slow cooling and contraction of the globe, on whose hardened crust we rear our edifices, wondering, when some of them are occasionally shaken down by earthquakes, at the instability of a planet that is apparently so solid.—Youth's Companion.

The Ugliness of Trousers.

Trousers appear to have been introduced into Rome at a comparatively late period and as a part of the military uniform. They are worn by the Roman soldiers represented on Trajan's column as well as by barbarians. The Greeks had never adopted them. With their instinctive sense of beauty they had recognized that these are the only garments that cannot possibly be made graceful. A sleeve may become a part of the drapery of a figure. A trousers leg is more obstinate in its ugliness. If tight, it bags at the knees on the third wearing. Yet this is perhaps its least objectionable shape. If somewhat loose, it takes petty and meaningless folds. Some oriental nations have tried to disguise it as a skirt, but the result is not entirely satisfactory. If the trousers do not appear to give freedom to the leg, they have lost their principal merit. Compromise, which is the life of politics, is the death of art, which should always struggle after an ideal. So thought the Greeks when they entirely renounced for themselves the barbarous pantaloons.—Scribner's.

The Largest Domes.

Some of the largest domes in the world are the Pantheon at Rome, 142 feet diameter, 143 high; Baths of Caracalla, Rome, 112 feet diameter, 116 feet high; St. Sophia, Constantinople, 115 feet diameter, 201 feet high; St. Maria delle Fure, Florence, 139 feet diameter, 310 feet high; St. Peter's, Rome, 139 feet diameter, 330 feet high; St. Paul's, London, 112 feet diameter, 215 feet high.

HIDDEN THINGS.

In the heart of the stone
The statue is hiding;
But this secret is shown
From the heart of the stone,
To the sculptor alone,
That is worth the confiding;
In the heart of the stone
The statue is hiding.

In the leaves of the rose
A romance is waiting,
Till the summer wind blows
From the leaves of the rose
To the page of pure prose
What's so well worth relating;
In the leaves of the rose
A romance is waiting.

In the air all around
A coy song is delaying;
There's a faint sighing sound
In the air all around,
And love words abound,
Hidden music betraying;
In the air all around
A coy song is delaying.

In the heart of the sea
There's a symphony sleeping;
There is wafted to me
From the heart of the sea
A divine melody,
Mingled laughter and weeping;
In the heart of the sea
There's a symphony sleeping.

In this commonplace age
Lives the hero obscurely,
But the elements rage
In this commonplace age,
And death flings down his gage,
In the age quite as surely;
In this commonplace age
Dies the hero obscurely.

In this world of the mart
Rises sometimes a poet,
All unenvied his part
In this world of the mart,
For he labors for art,
But the world will not know it;
In this world of the mart
None the less thrives the poet.

—E. C. Cardoza in Home and Country.

"THE PLAYERS."

When Mellicent Dwight packed her three gowns, her notice book, her character photographs and her letter of introduction in the attic room of a New York boarding house her joy was unconfined. The boarding house was east of Third avenue, and the attic room was four flights from the street; but when one is talented and 20, and visits New York for the first time with a flattering introduction to an influential manager, one does not count stairs.

On the first evening Mellicent ate her gristly roast and wilted salad with the air of a young woman who is assured of champagne and sweetbreads at the week's end and wondered whether it would be three days or five before she "signed" with the influential manager and engaged quarters better befitting the comedienne of a metropolitan company.

Two weeks later Mellicent occupied the same attic room on the east side, but boarded cheaply at a Third avenue eating house, where she could breakfast heartily for 15 cents and dine luxuriously for 20.

One week more and Mellicent was boiling her breakfast cocoa over the gas jet and washing her handkerchiefs in the bathtub and flattening them on the window pane to dry. In those days she blacked her boots with ink and stuffed her mirror frame with newspaper advertisements for ballet girls and lady fencers. The letter of recommendation which the influential manager had kindly returned was streaked and worn by constant handling, and the notice book was dog eared.

On one end of her bureau was a box of letters from the man who wished to marry her. At first Mellicent used to read and sigh over these pledges of affection. It was such a pity, she thought, that he cared like that for a girl who never could marry him. Now she read and sighed over them with a different emotion. "It can't come to that," she would say.

* * * * * *

At the start there had been a certain piquancy in the venture. To be talented and 20 and to seek her fortune alone in a great city read uncommonly like the first chapter of a romance. Besides New York captivated the girl. Her rounds of the day finished, she would ride from the Battery to Harlem on the elevated, price diamond necklaces and air her three gowns with the best of them on that Broadway promenade whose glitter was constantly suggestive of footlights and an orchestral accompaniment.

The agencies charmed by their absolute novelty.

To penetrate to that private territory, to see a slip bearing her name and address placed in a pigeonhole labeled "Soubrettes and Ingenues," seemed to Mellicent a unique and exciting experience, one well worth hours of waiting and the comments, sarcastic or indifferent, of the manager and his satellites.

All this, however, as I said, was at the start.

To be the heroine of a romance is one thing, the heroine of a realistic novel quite another.

"I'm beginning to suspect the truth of all these horrid stories of baffled genius struggling against adverse fate," she wrote near the close of the third week to the man who wished to marry her.

Managers all seemed in league against her—all save one, who, from the beginning, had treated her with unaccountable forbearance. He had even sent her tickets for a new play. There was a soubrette part in it that was badly done, he said. The author was a friend of his and—well, he couldn't promise anything, but he'd like her to see the part.

The soubrette was bad—worse even than Mellicent had hoped; weak, common, self conscious.

"If such people can obtain engagements, then why not I?" she said the next morning in reporting the play. "I'm not a raw amateur; I studied for two years with a well known actor and stage manager. I've played over and over again at student's matinees and later in professional performances in small towns. It's only a chance I want, a chance to speak a dozen lines, that's all, but they won't give me even a hearing."

Mellicent's cheek burned. She shook the brown locks from her moist forehead and eyed the agent aggressively.

He shook his head deprecatingly. He was slim and blond and boyish, with a droll, captivating accent that heightened the effect of his dry utterances.

"I'll tell you what it is," the man said. "I'll see Boyle at luncheon today and put your case to him. If he reports favorably, I'll let you know this afternoon. Don't hope too much though. If you don't hear from me by 5 at the latest, you'll know there's nothing to expect from that quarter."

Mellicent grasped his hand in parting almost affectionately.

"It's a chance," she whispered as she climbed the stairs at the east side boarding house. "If I get it, why, I'm bound to succeed. If I lose it"— The girl's heart sank.

Go home? The worn face of her father, the shabby gowns and meager faces of her mother and little sisters, were a constant reproach of her idleness. Write? A year's devotion to literature had barely supplied her with pocket handkerchiefs. Clerk? Her handwriting was bad, her accounts inaccurate. No; tights—or suicide—or matrimony! These were the only alternatives.

At 4 the maid brought a card to the door. "John Walker," Mellicent read incredulously.

In the parlor below a tall figure rose to meet her.

"Look here, Milly," the man said decisively. "I've come to take you back with me tonight. You might as well marry me now as any time. You'll only waste time fooling round here."

Milly regarded the speaker hopelessly. It was as though the walls of destiny were closing in upon her.

"I can't, John," she protested, "I—I never promised, and you have no license."

"But there's no need of a license here," he returned, ignoring the other clause of the girl's objection. "There's an old friend of mine, a Methodist minister, only a block away, who's all ready. Why, Milly, it's the easiest thing in the world if only you make up your mind to it. We'll get supper at the Metropolis and take the next train back to Boston. I must be at the office tomorrow."

Mellicent shook her head.

"I can't decide all at once, John," she entreated. "I must have time to think."

She glanced at the black marble clock on the mantel. Half past 4. In half an hour her future would be decided for her. It was almost a relief to shift the responsibility from her own shoulders.

The man consented grudgingly. "Remember," he said gravely, watching her brown, piquant profile outlined against the white window curtain, "remember, if you marry me you must give up all those notions about acting. I won't have my wife set up for everybody to stare at." His words were harsh, but his eyes were affectionate.

Mellicent nodded. "I understand," she returned; "if I give up now, it will be for always."

"I'll put on my hat," she added. "We might as well go now and have it over."

"I couldn't help myself," she thought wearily as she followed him into the street. "They wouldn't give me a chance; there was no way but this."

When she returned, there was a plain gold ring upon her left hand.

Mellicent eyed it incredulously all the time she was packing her trunk. The notice books, the character photographs, the list of agencies and the letter of introduction she laid in the wastebasket. As she crossed to the door her dress brushed a yellow envelope from the table:

DEAR MISS DWIGHT—I missed Boyle at luncheon, but waylaid him at the hotel this afternoon and extracted his promise to give you a trial. Will let you know about rehearsals later. Lucky, wasn't it, that the chance came before you left New York? Sincerely,

EDWARD ROBBINS.

At the foot of the stairs John Walker drew his wife's arm affectionately within his own. "What's the matter, Mellicent?" he said gravely, "you look as though you'd seen a ghost."

"Only the ghost of a comedy actress that never was to be," said Mellicent steadily. "You must be hungry, John. Will there be time to have a steak cooked for our supper?"—Margaret Dodge in Kate Field's Washington.

A Novel Experiment.

A committee of prominent residents of Union Springs, N. Y., including several clergymen, who are to assume the exclusive sale of liquor, have issued the following statement: "We will allow no man to pay for another man's drink. We will permit no drunkenness, nor any approach to it. We will allow no one apparently under the legal age within our doors. We will sell to no man if by the proper persons we are forbidden to do so. To certain other persons, their names to be passed upon by a majority of the committee, we will not sell at all. We will not sell spirits in larger quantities than a single glass, except on a physician's order, and of all such sales we will keep a record. These and such other wholesome rules as from time to time we may deem desirable we will enforce. Our entire profits, which will be large, will be handed over as frequently as possible to the town authorities, with the understanding that they will be used for the purpose of reducing the taxation of the town."—Cor. Philadelphia Ledger.

What Monarchy Costs.

The total cost of the monarchy is directly about £600,000 a year, but there are radicals who argue that indirectly it costs double. Let us then take their estimate, which is something over £1,000,000, and divide that among 38,000,000 people. What does it come to a head? About 7 pence a year, or perhaps 3 farthings a month. That is the utmost the queen costs her subjects. That is the utmost which they would gain by abolishing the monarchy, or would they gain that? If they think so, they are singularly sanguine. Let them turn to countries which are under a republican government, and they will find that elected presidents are apt to cost more than queens.—National Review.

FOR A COMPROMISE.

Action Which the Senate Will Probably Take.

THE TUCKER BILL PASSED.

The Vote For the Measure Was Two to One.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—As the evening of the test of physical endurance approaches there appears to be manifestations of uneasiness on the part of some of the administrative senators, and this feeling was evinced yesterday afternoon in numerous conferences between administration and anti-administration Democrats, a number of these conferences taking place in Mr. Voorhees' rooms.

The attitude of the Republicans is causing the Democrats some alarm. Whether they will go to the extent of remaining and assisting through the weary watches of the night in maintaining a quorum is a question that cannot be definitely answered.

A prominent Democrat who has been identified with the repealing forces said that it was a significant fact that the great Republican convention of the state of New York the other day failed utterly to refer to the silver question, in that two such distinguished Republicans as Chauncey Depew and Pierrepont Morgan had come out in interviews advocating a compromise. In the face of such things, he said, the Republicans could hardly be expected to go to extremes in endorsing a Democratic administration.

This Democrat repudiates the idea of any attempt to adjourn without doing anything, or even to take an extended recess, saying that would be the most suicidal policy the party could follow. He believes that the only issue that can come is compromise and is hoping that some tangible agreement may be offered before it is too late. He expects, however, the battle to be over before the end of the week.

According to the program of the silver men they will make a motion to adjourn today, when the usual hour of six arrives, which motion will, of course, be voted down by the repealers.

Yesterday's Doings.

Senator Squire (Rep., Wash.) gave notice of an amendment to the silver purchase repeal bill.

It proposes the coinage of silver for private owners to the amount of $2,000,000 a month, not to exceed a hundred millions in all—the owners to receive in coin only the commercial value of the bullion of deposits and the value to be retained by the government as seigniorage. It also proposes the issue of five-year 4 per cent bonds to the amount of $200,000,000, the proceeds of which are to be used for the redemption of United States notes.

There were two speeches delivered on the repeal bill—the first by Senator McPherson (Dem., N. J.) and the second by Senator Cockrell (Dem., Mo.).

Mr. McPherson's speech was in support of the bill. He declared it to be his belief (which was shared, he thought, by two-thirds of the people of the United States who had any opinion on the subject) that the Sherman law was the main cause, the true cause, the only visible cause, of the present troubles of the country.

Mr. Cockrell's speech was a continuation of one which he began Monday directed against the pending bill. He ridiculed the idea of the Sherman law having had any influence in bringing about the financial panic and attributed it rather to the failure to establish gold mono-metallism in European countries and in the United States. But, as to international bi-metallism, that, in his opinion, was an impossibility, a mere dream, as impracticable as a universal language. He spoke for five hours and had not then come to an end of his speech.

The house bill to repeal the election laws was received during the day.

In the House.

The house passed by an overwhelming majority — yeas, 201; nays, 100 — the Tucker bill to repeal the federal election laws. The Republicans had intended to refrain from voting, but when the Democrats mustered 183 votes on the first amendment, they saw it was absolutely impossible to break a quorum and yielded as gracefully as might be. The vote was strictly a party one, but the third party voted with the Democrats.

British Politics.

SALEM, Mass., Oct. 11.—Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, M. P., made an additional statement yesterday in relation to the cablegram which credited him with making overtures to the Welshmen of parliament for the defeat of Gladstone and his own election as premier. He said the story was absolutely childish. Mr. Chamberlain said that his party regarded the home rule bill as dead for the present at least.

Struck With a Hatchet.

HARTFORD, Oct 11.—A murderous assault was committed in Burnside last night. William Roach and Patrick Cavitt work in the mill of the Hartford Manilla company. Cavitt boarded at Roach's house. Mrs. Roach was working and Cavitt struck her six blows in the back of the head with a hatchet. He then left the house. It is doubtful whether Mrs. Roach will recover.

Burglars In a Rectory.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Oct. 11.—Burglars blew open the safe at the rectory of the Church of the Precious Blood and secured a gold watch and papers. The thieves were probably after money secured from the sale of tickets for a charity concert, some $700 having been left at the house.

JEFFERSON CHOSEN

To Take Booth's Place as President of the Players' Club.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Joseph Jefferson was elected president of the Players' club, to succeed the late Edwin Booth, the founder and first president of the club. Soon after Mr. Booth's death it was reported that Mr. Jefferson would undoubtedly be selected as his successor, and it was generally conceded that the honor of right belonged to him as one of the oldest and most prominent actors now on the American stage.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON.

The directors of the club, upon whom devolves the duty of choosing the president, were at that time widely scattered, and consequently no immediate action could be taken. The board of directors met yesterday for the first time since the summer vacation, and the matter of choosing a president was at once taken up, with the result above stated.

Mr. Jefferson, who has been spending the summer at his cottage at Buzzard's Bay, was in the city and attended the meeting of the board, of which he is a member.

TRUCE BROKEN.

Admiral Mello Reopens Fire on the City of Rio Janeiro.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The Herald's Montevideo cable dispatch this morning says:

Admiral Mello has once more reopened firing on Rio Janeiro, and the capital is in a state of excitement. It was hoped that the intervention of the foreign diplomatic corps would have been sufficient to prevent it, and it was understood that Mello had promised to throw no more shells among the defenseless homes of the citizens, provided Peixoto would destroy the shore batteries and cease firing upon the rebel ships.

Assaulted a Child.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—Bridget Dowling, the woman who assaulted little Jonas Rosher, was found guilty and sentenced to four months in the house of correction. The child was brutally treated by the defendant, in whose care he was placed by his mother, Rose Rosher. Dr. A. Thorndike testified that he found bruises all over his body, and he was in a weak physical condition. Another witness testified that she saw Mrs. Dowling severely beat the boy with a wooden slat. At another time witness saw Mrs. Dowling pick up the stove poker and thrust it into the child's mouth.

Figuring on Gold Coinage.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—Director of the Mint Preston was closeted for some time yesterday with Superintendent J. Bosbyshell of the Philadelphia mint discussing the facilities for the coinage of $15,000,000 in gold by Dec. 1. The denominations will be $4,000,000 in double eagles, $6,000,000 in eagles and $5,000,000 in half eagles.

Republican Ticket Ratified.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The Republican ratification meeting was held at Music hall last evening. Hon. A. E. Pillsbury presided. Speeches were made by Candidates Greenhalge, Wolcott and Knowlton, ex-Governors Long and Brackett, and many other distinguished representatives of the party. Great enthusiasm prevailed.

Central Maine Musical Festival.

WATERVILLE, Me., Oct. 11.—The second musical festival of centrl Maine was organized in this city with a chorus of 150 voices, under the direction of the veteran conductor, Carl Zerrahn of Boston. The singers are from all sections of Central Maine. Three rehearsals aday are held at city hall.

A Remarkable Proposition.

ROCHESTER, Oct. 11.—Professor Tyndall, the London mind-reader, is in town. He wants to go into an unconscious state here and be buried. He desires to stay in the ground 30 days and then have his body dug up. He says he possesses the elixir of life.

No Use For Celstials.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.-The state anti-Chinese convention resoled that President Cleveland and cabiet be censured for non-enforcement of the Geary act, and that congress be called upon to refuse an extension of time for regiration.

Maynard Denounced.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The bar association of the city of New York has once more officially denounced as a man unfit for public office Isaac H. Maynard, the nominee of the Saratoga convention for judge of the court of appals.

It Looks Pretty Bad.

BUFFALO, Oct. 11.—Gorge E. Colton died at the Buffalo State hospital under circumstances calling foun investigation. The man probably met eath at the hands of brutal attendants. Coroner Tucker will hold an inquest.

Where He Shuld Be.

ROCHESTER, Oct. 11.—Jacob Kerstner, a wily tongued socialis, formerly a resident of this city, and te friend of Emma Goldman, was sent to auburn prison for three years on a charg of grand larceny.

FIGHT TO A FINISH

The Determination of the Strikers at Olneyville.

THE WEAKNESS REALIZED

But They Are Now Rapidly Organizing.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 11.—"The strikers are determined to win this fight, if they find it necessary to stay out until next April." So said Chairman Richard McGuy yesterday afternoon at the close of a meeting of the committee appointed to conduct the big Olneyville strike.

"We figure that we can win the battle in two months. We are prepared, financially, to stay out that length of time. By Dec. 1 it will be necessary for the manufacturers to begin work on heavyweight goods. The looms must be started, and the weavers will not return to work until their demands are complied with.

"We are fighting not alone for our own bread, but we are fighting the battle of the whole country. The successful application of the cutdown in Olneyville would be the signal for similar action on the part of the manufacturers of Philadelphia, woolen manufacturers of Massachusetts and of the various other sections of the country.

"Our fight is for a principle affecting weavers throughout the country. Therefore should our own pocketbooks give out before the fight is won, I think there is not the slightest doubt that woolen employes throughout the country will come to our aid with funds.

"The cutdown is unreasonable. We have carefully considered the various lists, and find that the weavers' reduction will average 30 per cent. During the time that we have been working short time the price of the necessaries of life has gone up. house rents are advancing, and everything co-operates to make it a cut which we cannot and will not stand.

"We are out for higher wages, and we are going to get, if possible, even better ones than the scale before the cut. We want the Philadelphia standard — two mills for a pick—and we shall not return to work until we get it, or something better than the miserable pittance we are offered.

"There will be no conferences with the mill owners just at present, however. We are getting thoroughly organized before deciding on a plan of action."

These are the words of Richard McGuy, chairman of the managing committee of the big strike. They represent the sentiments of the 6000 mill operatives concerned in the trouble and show the feeling which prevails here.

Strikers' Plans.

The grand plan of the strikers is now to thoroughly organize every department of the mills. The weavers are to be taken first, organized by mills, and then amalgamated into a Providence Weavers' union, to join a proposed national body of weavers.

It is uncertain yet whether the body will join the Federation of Labor or the Textile union. The plan is to thoroughly organize the weavers here, following all over the country. Of course, all departments of the mills are out here, but 1200 of the 6000 being weavers. But the weavers are the skilled workers, and without them it is useless to attempt to run the mills.

Following out this plan, the weavers of the Riverside mills, which employ about 325 men and women in the weaveshops, met in the armory at 11.30. Papers were provided, and a large proportion of the weavers enrolled themselves for the prospective union.

At the same time the Saranac mill weavers were meeting in Carlisle hall, engaged in the same manner as their fellow-employes at the armory.

In the afternoon the armory was filled with young girls. These were girls employed in various departments of the woolen mills, mostly drawer tenders, twisters, spinners, carders and spoolers. They spent the afternoon in organizing as the Olneyville woolen workers.

The drawers-in and handers-in, who are weaveshop employes, meet today at the armory, as will also the burlers and sewers, all for organization. In the evening there will be a big gathering in the hall.

Every day this week, with the exception of today, the armory will be open from 8 a. m. to 11 p. m., and will be occupied by various bodies from the different mills, all engaged in the work of organizing.

The strikers are realizing their weakness in not organizing long ago, for just such a contingency, and they are preparing to make amends for their negligence.

Alleged Embezzlement.

HARTFORD, Oct. 11.—Charles N. Farnham is under police surveillance at his home, where he is sick, charged with embezzling about $4000 from Powell Bros., a New York wholesale produce firm, for which Farnham was a drummer. A sister of Farnham has given a bond of $3000 to pay Powell Bros. 75 per cent of their loss, and criminal proceedings will probably be abandoned.

President Richards.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 11.—Hon. Fred E. Richards was elected president of the Union Mutual Life Insurance company, to succeed the late John E. Dewitt. Mr. Richards has been in the legislature and examiner of Maine savings banks. He is president of the Portland National bank and is largely interested in several important corporations.

Professional Firebugs.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 11.—Three special agents and detectives, who have been working on the Milwaukee fires for the past six months, have assured themselves that a number of mysterious fires which have occurred in this city were specially arranged conflagrations. There are in all some 20 suspects.

THEO. KING, TREASURER.

He is Interviewed as to Riverside Mill Trouble.

An interview with Mr. Theophilus King of this city, the treasurer of the Riverside mills in Olneyville, R. I., where the big strike is in progress, will be of interest. Yesterday's LEEGER gave the old and new schedule of wages and a column story of the "biggest strike in Rhode Island's history," and on the first page today is another column. In an interview Treasurer King told a Globe reporter:

"No one is at fault and to no one can be attributed any blame in this matter.

"The mills cannot continue to make goods at the present market price at the price paid to labor.

"The wollen mills which have made the reduction, have been running behind for some time and this crisis has been delayed by the manufacturers as long as possible.

"But it had to come, and the only surprise is that it did not come sooner.

"We don't blame the men for going out and I can't see how the workmen can blame the manufacturers for not continuing at the old schedule of wages under which they were losing money.

"We would much rather pay the old prices."

He further said that for the past twenty years the woolen and worsted manufacturers had only realized five per cent. net on the money invested in their business.

He hoped for a speedy settlement of the strike, and said that the mill was open to those who wished to return to work.

Y. M. C. A. ANNUAL.

Very Encouraging Reports from Its Various Committees.

MUCH GOOD WORK BEING DONE

In the Religious, Physical and Intellectual Field.

Seventy-five members and friends, including a number of ladies, were present at the annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association, Tuesday evening.

President Wason presided. The exercises were opened with prayer by Mr. T. B. Emery. President Wason read his report, congratulating upon the progress which had been made. He spoke especially of the physical department in charge of E. R. Johnson, the work of the Young Men's Congress, and the aid given by the Woman's Auxiliary.

The report of the finances committee was given by Mr. A. D. Allee. The total amount received from subscriptions and memberships during the year was $3,612.22 and from entertainments and miscellaneous sources $599.05, making the Total Income $4,211.27.

The total expense of the year ending October 10 was $3,800.23, leaving $411.04 when all subscriptions considered good and outstanding bills are paid, to be applied to the previous year indebtedness, which was $1108.85. This reduces the indebtedness to $697.81. At the beginning of the year it was hoped to clear up this indebtedness entirely during the year, but the financial stringency made this impossible. The committee is determieed however to pay this off during the coming year.

Mr. William Patterson, chairman of the Membership Committee, reported the paid up membership: Men, 287; boys, 34; a total of 321. Last year 232 men were reported and 24 boys. The net gain is 69. Of the 287 men, 171 were new members and 116 were renewals. There were 2 losses by death, 6 by removal and 116 discontinued. The

The organ which was bought with money given by the Kings Daughters of the Central Congregational church and the birthday offerings of the Wollaston Baptist church. The paintings in the parlor are kindly loaned by Miss Fannie B. Southworth and the large crayon, which probably has no equal in the city, by Mrs. George T. Elliot of Allston. The Woman's Auxiliary has recently placed the piano in the parlor, and the same organization, has kept the rooms well supplied with flowers. Additional lockers have just been put in and

Other Improvements are Under Way.

The reading room will be better supplied than ever with papers and periodicals.

Mr. Stephen A. Foster, for the committee on Classes and Lyceum, gave a very comprehensive report of the Young Men's Congress. The membership last year was fifty. Ten meetings were held, with a total attendance of 320, an average of 32. He also gave the synopsis of the work as given in the LEDGER some time since.

The entertainment committee reported that the total attendence at the Star Course in Hancock hall last winter was 1500. Two gymnasium exhibitions were given and two receptions, the latter having an average attendance of 218. Three member meetings and entertainments averaged 60.

No report however, affords so much encouragement to the Association as that given by Dr. C. T. Sherman, chairman of the

Religious Work Committee

Men's meetings have been held every Sunday afternoon during the year. From Oct. 1 to April 1 the total attendance was 1182, an average of 45. From April 1 to Oct. 1 the total was 599, an average of 23. The total for the year was 1781, an average of 34. During a part of the year a Bible class and a worker's training class was held; the former had an average attendance of 9 and the latter 6. 25 men and boys have expressed a determination to lead Christian lives. Of this number 8 have united with the church. 14 associate members have united with the churches of the city, and 6 o hers, who have regularly attended the meetings, have joined the church; 20 in all. The Association does not claim the credit of all these results, but there is no doubt that it has proven helpful to all these young men.

The report of the Woman's Auxiliary, by an oversight, was not given. During the year the ladies assisted in four social gatherings and furnished refreshments for three of them. Lsst May a successful art exhibition was given. The paid up membership is 46. The receipts for the year were $99 77.

Secretary Colton reported that the estimated average daily attendance at the rooms was 48 during the fall and winter, and 26 during the spring and summer, making a

Total Attendance of 11,570.

Not including Sunday, seven gymnasium classes were held weekly from October 1st to April 12. The three evening classes had an average attendance of 13, the boys' class 15, and the business men's 8. The estimated number of baths taken was 3,437. A number of persons were directed to boarding places, several assisted in securing employment, and a few sick young men visited. He spoke of the credit due Mr. S. A. Foster for the successful organization of the Congress and the valuable aid given by Mr. Henry R. Holden and Mr. Frank F. Prescott.

Following the reports the following directors were elected.

For three years,—T. Henry Wason Dr. J. A. Gordon, William H. Mitchell, George H. Brown and N. G. Nickerson

For one year,—B. F. Thomas and Cyrus T. Sherman.

E. W. Branch secretary and George A. Sidelinger treasurer were elected.

After the business meeting a pleasing entertainment was given by Miss H. Elsie Witty, soprano, and Mr. E. J. Whitton, violinist.

Immediately following the annual meeting the board of directors met and re-elected T. H. Wason president, and Amos D. Albee, vice president.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11, 2.15 P. M.—The Valkyre has a lead of a quarter of mile over the Vigilant in today's race, and as she is steadily gaining it is thought she may win today.

Another Slight Fire.

Children, matches and a barrel of old rags in the attic of a house on Granite street, owned by Pinel Bros., and occupied by Charles Fosberg, formed a combination that filled the room with smoke and caused the alarm from Box 41 at 11.40 this morning. There was more smoke than fire in the attic and the occupants of the house had extinguished what fire there was before the department arrived. A recall was promptly sounded.

Democratic Representatives.

To the Editors of the Ledger:

The action of the forthcoming Democratic Representative convention, in its selection of candidates for representatives to the General Court, will be watched with more than ordinary interest.

It is to be hoped that the convention will act wisely in this matter and select the best possible candidates, those who not only can obtain the support of their own party, but who also can secure a following from among independent Republicans, for the support of the latter, in this district, is almost indispensable to Democratic success at the polls.

As is well known, the Democrats of Quincy are this year entitled to nominate two candidates for the Legislature, those of Weymouth nominating one. Of the three Quincy Democrats most prominently mentioned in this connection, the nomination of Charles Francis Adams, 2d, is, in the popular mind, considered a foregone conclusion, and would be received with much satisfaction by independent thinking men of all parties. He certainly would prove to be an exceptionally strong candidate, and, if nominated, his election would be assured.

Either of the other candidates for the nomination would also poll a large vote, and by being made a colleague of Mr. Adams would doubtless be greatly strengthened by his candidacy.

These facts should be borne in mind by the delegates to the convention and wise counsels should prevail, in which case the result will surely be most gratifying to all who have the best interests of their party at heart. A DEMOCRAT.

A successful railroad projector was expressing some very positive opinions about the market value of a certain railroad stock in a Wall-street restaurant two or three days ago. "I will bet $100 to a red apple," he exclaimed, "that —— stock will sell at par within a year and a half."

"I'll take the bet!" exclaimed a young man with a very serious face.

"All right, sir. Put up your red apple, and I will put up my money."

The young man hurried around to a Broadway fruit store, bought a red apple for five cents, and returned to the restaurant, where he placed it in the hands of of the cashier of the place. The railroad man promptly put $100 in bills by the side of the apple, and said: "Now, I shall expect you to keep that apple in a perfectly sound condition. If the apple decays, the bet is off."—New York Times.

—Cleopatra's Needle, or the Central Park obelisk, is to have a gilded cap. It has been found that obelisks were originally provided with a top covering. The park commissioners have empowered the purchase of an aluminum cap, which will be gilded. The obelisk is now being treated again, so that it will stand the rigor of our climate.

RENOMINATED.

John F. Merrill of Quincy Again a Candidate for Senator.

[Special to the DAILY LEDGER.]

BOSTON, Oct. 11,—At the Republican convention for the First Norfolk Senatorial district held at Wesleyan hall this afternoon, Hon. John F. Merrill of Quincy, was renominated as the candidate for the Senate.

Candidate Merrill was introduced and in a speech heartily thanked the delegates for their renewed confidence.

Wilbur H. Powers of Hyde Park was elected a member of the State Central Committee.

This year's convention may be noted for its dispatch, where last year it will be remembered there was a remarkable contest which required a session of over eight hours and over 80 ballots.

Senator Merrill's plurality last year was over 500 and the vote by towns for two years was:

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa Does Good Work in Maine.

Earnest Endorsement of Kickapoo Remedies from the Extreme North Eastern Section of the United States. Merit Alone Could Have Made These Remedies so Widely known and Universally Indorsed by the People.

MONTICELLO, Aroostook Co., Me. Oct. 16, 1892.

John S. White.

I wish to tell you what your great medicine Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, has done for me and my family.

My wife was very sick and had been failing for a long time, and her old family physician said she could not live. We tried another doctor, and he told the same story, said she could not live three months. She had been confined to her bed for almost two years and was now almost bedfast. The doctor said she had Consumption complicated with Heart Disease and Liver Trouble, and we were about discouraged.

I then heard of your remedy and told my wife about it.

She decided to try it, and before she had taken half a bottle she felt better. When she had taken two bottles she was gaining fast, and before the third bottle was finished she completely recovered her health, and has been a well woman ever since, and her cure is a wonder to all.

Some time after this I was taken sick and my trouble was pronounced Dyspepsia by a physician who relieved me some, but did not cure me. My wife advised me to try Sagwa. I did so and was cured. Soon after that I was attacked with the Grippe and could not get rid of it. Every time I had a cold I was completely used up. At my wife's suggestion I tried Kickapoo Indian Sagwa again, and after using less than two bottles I considered myself entirely well and have remained well ever since. I think I can say that Sagwa is the best remedy that a family can have. In case of Colds there is nothing better that I know of than taking a good dose before going to bed, and my wife says she would not think of keeping house without a bottle of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. She says it saved her life with the help of Providence, and I can say that under the hand of Almighty God I owe my life to the wonderful medicine of all medicines, the great gift of nature, Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, and all the world should know of its intrinsic worth. Its value as a family remedy is beyond comparison.

HISCOCK SNUBBED.

His Name Is Omitted From the New York Advisory Committee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The last remnant of what may be called political glory attached to the name of Frank Hiscock, ex-United States senator, was torn off yesterday. At the same time Jacob Patterson and John Sabine Smith were, politically speaking, "thrown overboard."

FRANK HISCOCK.

It was all done at the meeting of the Republican state committee and of the executive committee of the state committee held at the Fifth Avenue hotel. This action was taken at the orders of Tom Platt.

Chairman Brookfield of the state committee and Secretary John S. Kenyon were re-elected. Mr. Brookfield made a speech, and then named the new executive committee, which omits the name of Mr. Patterson.

Then the executive committee went into session. They re-elected Chairman Hackett. In the appointment of the advisory committee Mr. Hiscock's name was left off. The committee is Thomas C. Platt, Dr. Depew and Warner Miller. They, with Hiscock, made the "big four." It's the "big three" now.

Death of Professor Prentice.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 11.—Professor George Prentice, head of the department of German language at Wesleyan university, died suddenly at Passadena, Cal., yesterday. He was granted a year's absence last June. He was born Dec. 15, 1835, in Grafton, Mass., graduated from the Methodist General Biblical institute, Concord, N. H., received the honorary degree of A. M. from Wesleyan in 1865, and the degree of doctor of divinity from the Northwestern university in 1875.

Workingmen Meet at Hartford.

MERIDEN, Conn., Oct. 11.—The eighth annual convention of the Connecticut state branch of the American Federation of Labor opened in this city. Forty delegates were present. The morning was devoted to election of committees. An entertainment was given in the Meriden opera house, at which P. J. McGuire of New York spoke.

Generous Gotham.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Six carloads of provisions and clothing for the stricken people of Brunswick, Ga., left this city yesterday. At a meeting of the Trunk line officers it was decided that the cars should have free transportation. Through the Marlboro' hotel $200 was received and Rogers, Peet & Co. sent $100, making the total thus far subscribed about $6000.

An Alarming State of Affairs.

ATLANTA, Oct. 11.—Governor Northen has issued a call to the people of Georgia for aid for the sufferers at yellow fever-stricken Brunswick. He says the conditions are daily growing worse. It now looks as if every man, woman and child in the city, except those who have immunity from the disease, will take the fever.

Engineer and Fireman Killed.

WHITING, Ind., Oct. 11.—A train ran into an open switch here, causing the engine, mail car and two Pullmans to leave the track. Engineer Warner and Fireman Christie were killed. Three persons were injured. There were more than 400 passengers on the derailed train.

In Old Madrid.

MADRID, Oct. 11.—Miss A. Middleton Brown, a young Chicago lady, committed suicide by shooting herself yesterday. Unrequited love was the cause of her suicide. It is supposed that she was deserted by a young Portuguese nobleman.

Consumption Claimed Him.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 11.—Edward Blake, 84, died yesterday of consumption. He was the first invalid in this country to try Koch's lymph for consumption. He was a son of Professor Henry T. Blake of this city.

Ship Valkyrie Missing.

Northern and eastern beef cattle—The demand continues dull. The market was very slow and the yards presented the appearance of deserted pastures.

Milch cows and springers—The supply exceeded the demand. There were some good cows among the offerings, but the only buyers were speculators and jobbers.

Veal calves—The supply was about the same as one week ago. The quality showed no change, and values were quoted about the same as last week. A clearance was effected soon after the arrival of the stock at the yards.

Sheep and lambs—There were no western arrivals offered for sale on the market; most of the stock was taken direct to the slaughter houses. Values showed no change from those quoted last week.

Western beef cattle—The stock was consigned to the shippers and exporters.

ATTACKED BY HIGHWAYMEN.

A Brockton Man Set Upon and Beaten Almost to Death.

BROCKTON, Mass., Oct. 11.—James Hayes of this city, 52 years old, was attacked early last evening on the road from Whitman to this city by four men, who brutally pounded, kicked and robbed him. Hayes was in an open buggy, and was accompanied by George W. Simmons. It was dark, and as they were riding up a long hill near the Whitman line two men seized the horse. Simmons says that two others stood by when this occurred.

Hayes struck his horse and the animal jumped, whereupon the men seized Hayes and pulled him from the carriage. Simmons had all he could do to stop the horse and hold it, and the four men proceeded to give Hayes a terrible beating and kicking, followed by a robbery of his pockets. They found about $7 in money. He usually carried a large amount, but had paid his taxes during the day and left his watch at home.

One of the men was heard to say: "Let him alone now; he is most dead." Another replied: "Well, we ought to kill him," and a third said: "—— you, Jim Hayes, we have got square with you now." The highwaymen then disappeared. Simmons got Hayes into the buggy and took him home, where he remains in a semi-conscious condition.

Officers Ashport and Boyden of the Brockton police are investigating, but as the robbery took place within the boundaries of Whitman, Sheriff Cobb of that town has been notified. Hayes is supposed to have some very bitter personal enemies.

The Attleboro Disaster.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The railroad commission will make no special report on the disaster which occurred a few months ago at the Dodgeville station in North Attleboro. Such a report has been for some time expected, but the commissioners do not think that the accident warrants a special opinion, as was the case in the recent Chester horror.

Long Cruise Ended.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The Massachusetts training ship Enterprise has returned from her first long cruise and is now at anchor in the harbor. All on board are reported well. The ship sailed from Boston in July, and has touched at Southampton, Lisbon, Gibraltar and Funchal. She was not expected home before the middle of the month.

The Vigilant's Future.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The syndicate which built the Vigilant has decided that at the close of the contests for the America's cup, the gallant defender of the coveted trophy should be offered at private sale, and that if she is not purchased at private sale within a limited time, she shall be sold at public auction.

Financier Arrested.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Oct. 11.—John J. Arnold, cashier of the Merchants bank here, which suspended recently, and Niagara county's treasurer, is under arrest charged with uttering forged paper for $1700 and on the charge of grand larceny in the first degree in appropriating $35,000 from the bank.

To Be Put In an Asylum.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 11.—In the case of Rev. Frank H. Sheffield, the Westerly temperance orator and ex-Methodist preacher, tried for the murder of his 5-year-old daughter, Margie, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty, on account of insanity. He will be placed in an asylum.

Charged With Blackmail.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 11.—William P. White, milk inspector for this city, was held for trial on $1000 each on two charges of levying blackmail upon milk dealers.

Bismarck Gaining Strength.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—Prince Bismarck's return to Friedrichsruhe has been of benefit to him. He is growing stronger daily.

HEAVY TAXPAYERS.

A Partial List of Those Assessed on Over $3000 and ## PAYING OVER FIFTY DOLLARS

The Non-Residents Make a Long and Solid List.

It will surprise many to learn that there are so heavy taxpayers among non-residents. The list presented today of all non-residents paying a tax of over $50 in any ward is really a long and an important one.

The table of aggregates shows that of the 4445 property taxpayers, 905 are non-residents. At least four of these, (W. E. Harmon trustee, Henry H. Savage and others, the Tubular Rivet Co., the Granite Railway Co.,) will pay over $1000 and the first two over $2000. The Old Colony railroad and Paine Lyman & Storer trustees pay over $900, Charles E. Stratton over $800, the G. F. Burkhardt estate and Joel F. Sheppard over $500 and so on. Ward Six makes a big and better showing than in the instalments already published.

Judge Not.

Oh, men, who are good, who are honored and great,
Be kind to your brothers of lowly estate.
If masters, then be not in tasking severe.
If rulers, then rule men in love and not fear.
And if ye be fathers, wise, learned and strong
Lead the little ones tenderly, slowly along.
Ere you sneer at the humble or punish the base
Pause and think for awhile, "Put yourself in their place!"

Fair lady, so haughty, so chaste and so cold,
Kept safe from harm in love's sheltering fold.
Ere you turn from your frail, erring sister with scorn,
Think how she was tempted and how she was born.
Her ruin may date from a smile or kind word.
The first that her poor, hungry heart ever heard.
Then pause ere you taunt her with sin and disgrace—
How if you had been tried? "Put yourself in her place!"

Proud man, whom the white robes of ermine enfold,
As you weigh others' sins in the balance you hold,
Ere you crush the last spark in a heart doomed to bleed,
Let mercy come in for a moment and plead,
Ere you sentence "for life" a poor brother to dwell
With the ghosts of the sins that shall people his cell,
Think why you are honored, and he in disgrace.
What is hid in your heart? "Put yourself in his place!"

"Put yourself in their place!" Yea, have mercy on all
Who through love or through hate, good or evil shall fall;
Who knows in the light of a judgment divine,
Which soul shall be whitest, the sinner's or thine!
Fear to judge lest you stand at the heavenly door,
To see harlots and publicans go in before,
While you cover with guilty confusion your face,
And cry when too late, to be put in their place!

—Phœbe Cary.

CELEBRATION ENDED

Distinguished Men Pay a Visit to Williams College.

GOVERNOR RUSSELL SPEAKS

In Behalf of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Oct. 11.—The centennial closed brilliantly with an alumni banquet at which an unusual number of the most distinguished college presidents and professors appeared. Letters of regret were read from President Cleveland and ex-President Harrison expressing regret at their inability to be present.

The first speaker of the afternoon was Governor Russell, who made a timely speech.

The family of the founder of the college was represented by Captain Ephriam Williams, who spoke with special approbation.

Andrew Carnegie said he had received three impressions in Williamstown—that New England should be called New Scotland, that college professors are touched by higher aims than those of wealth, and, it was impossible, having seen, to forget Williams. Prayer was offered, after which the college fence in front of Thomson laboratory was then formally presented by Thomson McDonough. Following is

Governor Russell's Speech.

An honorable, useful life, whether of an individual or institution, is always worth commemorating, not alone as a grateful remembrance of worthy things accomplished, but as a duty to make them an influence helpful to the present and to the future. And when such life is part of the honorable history of the state, interwoven with her work and fulfilling her ideals, it is fitting that she should give it her recognition and commendation. So, today, as old Williams gathers her children hither to celebrate her anniversary and to renew their loyalty to her, the commonwealth of Massachusetts, to us a living, loving personality, gladly comes to rejoice in her rejoicing and to offer her greetings and congratulations.

And yet the presence of the commonwealth suggests that a word should be said of the relation of Williams to the state and of higher education to the people. I doubt if in all history there is an instance where the founders of a state so distinctively felt and clearly forecast the influence and necessity of the highest education for the success of their grand work as did our Puritan fathers and those who followed in their footsteps when they created and developed our state and national governments. They seemed to comprehend the importance and result of their labor, to know that they were founding institutions for generations to come whose happiness and welfare depended upon the fathers' wisdom and foresight. So they determined to make education through public school and college a permanent, permeating influence to strengthen character, promote good citizenship and the prosperity of the commonwealth.

We all remember the first instance in this commonwealth of this purpose of the founders, in the establishment of the college at Cambridge. Out of their poverty they gave it; with struggle and sacrifice sustained it, in prayer and pious faith watched it; and brought the full power of church and state to guide and govern it.

In the terse and simple language of its founders, in the colonial statute establishing it, in many later laws, and in our constitution repeatedly is found the people's recognition of the necessity and place of higher education in the body politic. As church and state became more distinct, and the latter assumed more fully the practical work of government, she did not fail to cherish the higher institutions of learning as an integral part of our great system of popular education upon which the security and prosperity of our free institutions must ever rest.

Glories of the Past.

Here in the depths of the primeval forest, in the days of the colonial government and in the midst of war, a frontier colonel, with armor on, facing his country's foes and standing in the shadow of death, brave and generous, filled with lofty, practical Puritan sentiment and the loving spirit and forecast of Harvard and Shepard, anxious that others should have advantages he lacked, here with this spirit and purpose he founded this college of the wilderness. But two conditions he imposed—we thank him for both—one that his infant institution should "fall within the colony of Massachusetts," and the other that it should bear his name. Its location, but not its influence or work, should be limited to our state. Like the Farmers' Almanack of old Bailey Thomas, it is "calculated for the meridian of Massachusetts, but will answer for any of the adjoining states."

So came the second of our great institutions, which was to promote and develop that higher element in our public education, which, in accord with the dominant and universal sentiment of the people, had found recognition through all our colonial legislation and become permanently embodied in the organic law of our state. And now we come to celebrate its 100 years of useful life, to rejoice in its prosperity and to note how faithfully it has carried out the purposes of its creation.

Others will tell its history, of the master minds that have guided its destiny, and of the many men who have gone forth from her, carrying the influence and teaching of Williams into every walk of life. Religion and education have felt its quickening touch, literature, science and the professions have advanced by its work, and public life in state and nation uplifted by its high ideals. In all of this its life has gone out into the world's activities, following the injunction of our constitution to diffuse wisdom and knowledge generally among the body of the people, and recognizing the duty of education not only to instruct, but to influence and lead them.

Mills and his associates, planning under the historic haystack in yonder meadow to carry religion and civilization, which their missionary ancestors had brought to Plymouth Rock, back across continent and ocean to the Old World for the enlightenment of heathen people, rose to the truest conception of the duty resting upon education, if it would fulfill the purposes of the founders of our colleges and the framers of our constitution. Many a son of Williams since, feeling the impress of Griffin or of Hopkins and their learned and pious associates or successors, has gone forth into other fields of usefulness in the spirit of the divine command, "Freely ye have received, freely also give."

So in the lives and work of her children this "missionary college" has made higher education not a mere preparation for the professional life, but a pioneer and leader in great movements to benefit mankind, and in the leading and example of its authorities has ever followed the high ideals and inspirations of its famous president, who believed the truest education to be "when the spirit of literature and the spirit of science shall minister before the spirit of piety and pour their oil into the lamp that feeds its waxing flame; when study shall be nerved to highest efforts by Christian benevolence and young men shall grow up at the same time into the light of science and the beauty of holiness."

Mello Has New Adherents.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—A dispatch from Rio Janeiro says that Ville Gagnon, situated on an island inside the entrance of the Bay of Rio de Janeiro, garrisoned with marines and hitherto neutral, has declared in favor of Admiral Mello. The guns of the fort are of the old type and are capable of doing much damage.

INGERSOLL ON ECONOMICS.

His View of the Cause of the Labor and Financial Troubles.

"What is the cause of the labor and financial troubles?"

"In the first place, the mills and factories, furnaces and foundries of the world can produce more than the world will use. They produce, however, as long as they can sell at a profit, and when the supply is too great the mills and factories must close, and then the laborers are thrown out of employment. Then the people become economical, and the economy adds to the general distress. The truth is that the extravagance of the people does not keep pace with the invention of labor saving machinery.

"The machines of the world are doing the work of hundreds of millions of men, and when the machines stop the laborers employed in making and feeding and running these machines stop, too, and then hard times come. Those who are a little ahead begin to draw from the savings banks, and the savings banks collect their loans, and the other banks do the same, and then comes a currency famine, and then a few banks fail and lack of confidence becomes general, and then comes panic. After a time the surplus is used, mills and factories light their fires, the men go to work, people put their money in the banks because confidence has returned, and again notes and drafts and promises take the place of money, and another era of prosperity commences.

"The farmers work like the manufacturers. They either raise too little or too much corn or wheat or pork. Once in a few years, by accident, they hit the proper proportion, and then prices are good, and the farmers are prosperous. It is probable that as the manufacturer and farmer become better acquainted with the world—when they know what is being made and what is planted in various countries—they can in some degree lessen or put off the present evils. But I do not see how they can be surely or permanently avoided. I do not believe the purchase of silver by our government had much to do with the trouble."—Robert G. Ingersoll in New York World.

AFTER THE FAIR IS OVER.

It Will Cost Nearly a Million to Put the Park In Condition.

The directors of the fair are beginning to ponder very thoughtfully over the fate, after the fair is ended, of the big white buildings. The fair management, before any of the work of alteration or construction was begun at Jackson park, was placed by the park commissioners under $700,000 bonds to put the park back after the fair in just the shape in which it was before work was commenced. In the early days of the fair, when the skillful promoter was doing his work, a good round sum was put down in the column of assets, which sum was to be realized from the sale, at the conclusion of the exposition, of the materials that went into the construction of the various buildings. It now develops that the work of removal will be so expensive that the materials will not pay for the process of taking away.

It is estimated by experts that of the wreckage of the fair 75 per cent will be waste, and that whether the salvage on the remaining 25 per cent will pay for removing the whole is very doubtful. About 25,000 carloads of rubbish must be taken away bodily from the fair grounds. This equals about 5,000,000 cubic yards. These figures show the enormous amount of work to be done. About the only valuable parts of the buildings are the floors, in which there is considerable good lumber.—World's Fair Letter.

A Graded Income Tax Bill.

Representative De Armond of Missouri has prepared a bill for a graded income tax on rather remarkable lines. It imposes a tax on all incomes in excess of $10,000 per annum, the amount to be fixed each year by the secretary of the treasury, the total amount of revenue to be secured to be equal to the amount appropriated for the payment of pensions for that year. Taking the rate of tax assessed upon incomes ranging from $10,000 to $50,000 as a basis; that on incomes of from $50,000 to $100,000 shall be twice as large; on incomes of from $100,000 to $200,000, three times as large; on incomes of from $200,000 to $500,000 four times as large: on incomes of from $500,000 to $1,000,000, five times as large, and on all incomes in excess of $1,000,000 six times as large.—Washington Dispatch.

A Tower 1,150 Feet High.

A tower designed to attain a height of 150 feet greater than that of the celebrated Eiffel tower of Paris is in course of construction at Wembly park, near London. The foundation of the tower has been completed, and the superstructure has attained a height of 62 feet. The tower is erected under the auspices of Sir Edward Watkin. The plan of the tower was the result of an advertisement three years ago, in which architects were invited to send in designs in competition for substantial prizes.

A Will Four Feet Long.

The will of Charles T. Inslee, who died at 111 Cambridge place, Brooklyn, is written on a four foot roll of foolscap pasted together and folded in a complicated manner. This explanation is given at the foot of the document:

"This is badly folded, but I did not do it. C. T. I."

The estate is valued at $43,000, and with the exception of a few minor bequests goes to Caroline Inslee, the widow, and Charles Frederick Inslee, the dead man's son.

Veragua a Prevaricator.

A prominent citizen of Cincinnati, who has just returned from Spain, says that the Duke of Veragua has spread about that country that Roman Catholics are not allowed freedom of worship in the United States, and that until he set the example they did not dare to go publicly to mass. He also announced that the United States is about to pension him.

ASTOUNDING MAGIC.

THRILLING FEATS PERFORMED BY ANCIENT ORIENTAL JUGGLERS.

The Wonderful Conjuring Tricks Were Accomplished Without the Use of Elaborate Paraphernalia and Seem Almost Beyond Belief.

Tales which horrified our forefathers while they were trusting and ignorant, which stirred a later generation to mirth and were dismissed at length as threadbare jests, become interesting again now that we can perform these miracles ourselves. The best of our conjurers' tricks have been learned in the east, and in many instances they have improved on the original. But it is not certain that their modus operandi is the same.

The most ingenious "professor" in Europe might despair when set to achieve that feat which is the first trial of an aspirant among the Kakhuens, as Sir E. Slade describes it. The neophyte must climb a ladder of which the rungs are naked swords, edge upward, and sit upon a platform thickly studded with spikes for an uncertain time before he even "goes up for examination"—and this in the open air among a crowd of tribesmen.

Of the stories told by the Ibn Batuta some have been verified, so to speak, but not all. One day, when he was talking with Mohammed Tughlak at Delhi, three Yogees approached, and the emperor told them to astonish his guest. Forthwith one took the form of a cube, rose into the air and hung above their heads. Ibn Batuta fainted promptly, but the emperor gave him a draft which brought him to in an instant.

It has been suggested by those who can read the original text that this must have been alcohol in some form. However, when he recovered his senses the object was still suspended. The second Yogee then snatched a sandal from one of the bystanders and struck it sharply on the ground, thereupon the sandal mounted and slapped the cube, as if upon the face, when down the Yogee fell. Mohammed Tughlak promised to show his guests things yet more surprising, but Ibn was seized with a palpitation of the heart, which put a stop to the entertainment for that time. Perhaps there was no "draft" handy.

On another occasion, however, some Chinese jugglers gave a performance. "In my presence," says this respectable traveler, "they produced a chain 50 cubits long which they tossed upward, and it stood erect. A dog was then brought forward. It ran up on the chain and on gaining the top vanished. In the same manner a boy, a panther, a tiger and a lion mounted one after another and disappeared. At last they took down the chain and put it into a bag, no one discerning how the animals were made to vanish in the mysterious way I have described. This, I may venture to affirm, was beyond measure strange and surprising."

An exact pendant to this is tale civ., in the "Liao-chai-chih-i," translated by Mr. Giles under the name of "Strange Stories From a Chinese Studio." The author declares that he himself beheld the marvels related—the only instance, we believe, in which he vouches his personal experience, a fact worth noting, for he tells a thousand marvels of the sort. When a little boy, Sung Lung was taken to the provincial capital for the spring feast and followed the crowd into the judges' yamen. In the middle of the hall was a man with a little boy, who undertook to perform anything demanded of of him. The great men seated round asked for peaches. It was the month of March.

Much "business" followed, but at length the juggler said he must get them from the orchard of "the royal mother," who dwells in heaven. He took from his box a piece of cord "some tens of feet long," arranged it carefully and threw one end into the air, where it remained fixed, "as if caught by something," and he paid it out from below. Higher and higher the rope mounted, until a small piece only remained in his hands. Then the man called his boy and bade him climb up. Up went the boy, after more "gag," like a spider running up its thread, and in a few minutes he was out of sight.

Presently a peach fell down as large as a basin. While the magistrates were examining it the rope dropped suddenly in a heap, and the man cried: "Alas, somebody has cut it! What will my son do now?" At the same instant the boy's head fell from heaven, and lamentations which may be imagined followed. Limbs and body came tumbling after. To omit "business" the juggler collected them, put them in his box and begged help for the funeral expenses. The horrified spectators subscribed liberally, and when they had given as much as could be hoped the man tapped upon the box, saying, "Why don't you come out, you rascal, and thank the gentlemen?" Forthwith the boy threw up the lid, jumped out and bowed to the company.

Sung Lung says: "I have never forgotten this strange trick, which, as I have heard now, is performed by the White Lily sect, who probably learned it from this man." The White Lily, otherwise "Do Nothing," Wu-Wei-Keaou, is the most dreaded secret society of China said by Mr. Giles to date from 1450. Mr. Maskelyne, we hear, has been consulted upon Ibn Batuta's trick. He answered: "These apparent effects were due doubtless to the aid of concave mirrors, the use of which was known to the ancients, especially in the east, but they could not have been produced in the open air." The explanation seemed almost as incomprehensible to the uninitiated as the statement itself. As a matter of fact, however, the Chinese performance did not take place in the open air. Sung Lung mentions distinctly that a hall in the judges' yamen was the scene. Upon the other hand, how could the rope, and the boy, penetrate a roof? But then again Mr. Giles does not notice the difficulty. If the hall was but partially covered in, Mr. Maskelyne's objection might be met. —London Standard.

PLAYING WITH FIRE.

The Gospel of Wealth According to Hon. Abram S. Hewitt.

The man who robs you of freedom of action — that is, the right to acquire property — is the enemy of society. I do not care in what form it is discussed. Men may persuade themselves by a sort of sophistry that they have a right to restrain their neighbor in the exercise of his faculties and in the right to gain an honest livelihood, but such a conclusion is against human nature. I know that I am created free, and no man has a right to restrain my freedom of action. Only society as a whole is invested with this power. So while men must combine together, must have trusts and associations and trades unions and trade organizations, they are all parts of a progress toward a plan of civilization. Yet, when they are abused so as to take away from any man the natural right to do with his own as he will, believe me, human nature may be trusted to assert its inherent right, and it does assert itself whenever the issue is fairly made.

Now, I do not think the men who have the great fortunes in New York are doing their full duty to the community. I say it frankly, but there are many noble exceptions. I know of one man in this city, a rich man. I mean by a rich man a man worth $20,000,000. This man inherited this sum. He did not make it. No man ever made $20,000,000. He deliberately said, "I have got enough." Every dollar of his income beyond that which is required for a very modest support of his family is appropriated to public and private charities. That man, Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, has a proper conception of his duty.

I do not wish to preach what may be called "the gospel of wealth," but I know that when those who work shall have educated themselves up to a comprehension of the fundamental principles upon which society rests—then I know that the rich man will be educated pari passu and will recognize the fact that as to this excess of income over any ordinary requirements for a comfortable or even a luxurious life they are trustees responsible in thi world to public opinion, and in the next world to God for the way in which the trust has been executed.

What, then, is the remedy for the evils which demagogues handle with such advantage to themselves and so much danger to the community? They are playing with fire. The remedy is education first and thrift next and last of all association together for the discovery of correct principles, for the discussion of grievances, for the representation of wrongs to those in authority, for securing in the public halls of legislation men who are fit to represent an educated community and not, as they are often now, representing the worst element of the community.

On education, thrift and association I base all my hopes for the continued progress of society, and I believe that under this potent influence the evil incident to the rapid accumulation of wealth in the hands of men who do not appreciate their opportunities and duties will disappear.—Ex-Mayor Hewitt of New York.

SALMON A CENT EACH.

Cheap Food For the Poor on the North Pacific Coast.

Probably humpbacked salmon were never cheaper or thicker in Tacoma than they are right now. All sizes, from three to six pounds, are selling for a cent per fish. A batch of 107 was sold to an enterprising expressman yesterday for $1. About 3,500 fish were brought in during the day by fishing boats. The fish peddlers came down in force and loaded up their wagons and started back up town singing: "Fresh fish here! Five for a nickel!"

The fish, which for the past two weeks have been playing in schools around in the bay, are now beginning to go up the river and the creeks. Their meat on this account is not as good as it has been heretofore. Fishermen say they will soon disappear up the streams, and the silver salmon will put in their appearance. Two or three of the boatloads brought in yesterday were caught in the channel of the Puyallup river. The difference in the meat of those and the meat of the ones caught out in the bay could be plainly seen. The meat becomes whiter and is less firm.

The silver salmon in turn give way to the hideous dog salmon, which will not appear for several weeks yet.—Tacoma Ledger.

Millions of Toiling Little Ones.

Factory inspectors know that child labor is one of the factors on which our captains of industry count in their calculation on cost of production; that the employment of children increases, notwithstanding statutory regulations intended to check it; that avenues for this employment are multiplied with every evolvement of genius perfected in an improved machine, and as the magical machine and the child are brought together so in geometrical ratio is increased the number of unemployed adults. With the effects of its labor upon the child we are sadly familiar. The census of 1880, the last yet available, gave the number of wage earning children at 1,118,258—a child in every 16 robbed of its birthright of playtime, of physical growth, of mental training. It is probable that at the present time not less than 2,000,000 children under 16 years of age are in workshops and factories.—A Factory Inspector in Chicago Record.

Lo, the Poor Red Man.

Very few people know anything about the Indians in western North Carolina—the Cherokees. There are 1,200 of them, and they are increasing in numbers. They own 73,000 acres of land, and very fine land it is. Their new chief is Stillwell Sounooke. He cannot speak English at all. There are some native preachers and four schools, the government maintaining the latter. There are other Cherokees, but these are not included in the 1,200, as they live elsewhere than on the reservation.—Baltimore Sun.

Silver Senators Will Protect Their Side In a Contest of Endurance—Voorhees Makes an Able Argument For Immediate Action and Asks Silverites to Name a Day For a Vote—Prefers Death to Yielding the Right of the Majority to Govern—Crowds In the Galleries Listen to the "Debate"—Allen, the Populist Member From Nebraska, Shows His Vitality by Making an All-Night Speech.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—For the first time since the beginning of this special session of congress the people of Washington and the many visitors to the national Capitol had an opportunity to witness a night session of the senate. They improved their opportunity to the full, and as a result the entire gallery was occupied by a great throng of people, representing all classes and conditions. The galleries were filled to their utmost capacity early in the evening. Even the diplomatic gallery was overrun, mainly by the families of senators and by reporters and representatives.

The floor of the chamber presented an unusually lively appearance, as in addition to the large attendance of senators, many members of the house, including Speaker Crisp, took seats at the desks or in the rear of the chamber and listened with interest to the proceedings, particularly when Mr. Dubois cast his gauntlet at Mr. Voorhees' feet, and the latter responded so energetically. As the evening wore along, the debate itself slackened in interest, and senators repaired to the cloakrooms.

Mr. Allen was occupying the floor when at 6:05 p. m. Mr. Dubois (Rep., Idaho) rose and suggested that it was past the hour when the senator from Indiana (Mr. Voorhees) usually made a motion to adjourn. He asked that senator whether he desired to submit that motion this evening.

"I feel it my highest duty," said Mr. Voorhees, "not to make that motion this evening, but, on the contrary, to ask the senate to continue in session until the pending measure is disposed of."

During this proceeding the seats of the senators were being filled from committee rooms and cloakrooms, even Mr. Colquitt (Dem., Ga.) being wheeled to his seat in his invalid chair.

After Mr. Voorhees' response to the challenge of the senator from Idaho, Mr. Dubois rose and said: "This announcement means that the senate is to be held in continuous session until a vote is reached on the pending bill, or until it is demonstrated that a vote cannot be reached." He protested against such a course as foolish, but gave warning that the silver senators would protect their side in a contest of endurance.

Mr. Voorhees retorted by asking him whether he would name a day at any time for a vote.

Voorhees' Vigorous Argument.

After an active argument by Mr. Dubois, Mr. Voorhees continued: "I stand here asking the opponents of this bill whether they will name any day for a vote; and they will not. They resort thus to dilatory measures to prevent any action being taken at all. When is this to quit? When is it to stop? I would rather be carried from this desk feet foremost, and laid to sleep forever in my home in Terre Haute, than yield the right of majority to govern.

"We started in here some weeks ago to discuss a measure of financial legislation. I have nothing to say on that question now, for we have reached a higher question than that. We have reached the question of free government. We have reached the question of constitutional government. We have reached the question whether we have got a government that can administer itself or not.

"Mr. President—I have not a doubt of the result. The majority can govern, and the majority ought to govern. It is the rule of our being that it shall be so. The spirit of this government is on my side of the question. The spirit of liberty, regulated by law, is that the majority (with proper respect for the rights of the minority and with liberality for the minority) shall govern. I feel that we have swept beyond the magnitude of the mere repeal of the Sherman act to the greater and higher question of whether this body shall be governed by the majority, or whether the majority shall dictate. Shall the many govern, or shall the few?" Mr. Voorhees spoke with great earnestness and feeling.

Repealers on Hand.

The episode introducing the continuous session closed shortly after, and Mr. Allen (Pop., Neb.) resumed the floor and proceeded with his argument. He had scarcely begun before Mr. Palmer interrupted to ask whether it was his view of duty to resist a vote on the passage of the bill until the majority submitted to do something else. Mr. Allen replied that so long as he could do so within the pale of the law he would do so. "That is frank," commented Mr. Palmer.

Mr. Allen then drifted off into a long disquisition upon the relation between the volume of money and prices. This had the effect to deplete the senate rapidly, and to such extent that Mr. Dubois (at 8:15 o'clock) called attention to the absence of a quorum, and the roll was called. At first the silver Republican senators failed to answer, but seeing that senators came flocking into the chamber in numbers that assured a quorum they stood up and responded to their names. The result was the attendance of 62 senators.

Then Mr. Allen again took up the thread of the argument. He received very little attention from his colleagues, but their omission was more than made up by the interest with which he was heard by the people in the galleries, which at that time were filled to overflowing. Mr. Peffer later came to Mr. Allen's support, to "set the matter right," as he said, by means of a formidable looking volume, from which he proceeded to read many statistics relative to the volume and description of government currency issued since the beginning of the civil war.

Talking Against Time.

At midnight Mr. Allen still held the floor and his voice was as resonant as when he started his speech at 5:30. He relieved himself from time to time by having the clerk read extracts from various economic writers. There were few senators on the floor, but the galleries remained crowded. While he was still speaking, Mr. Dubois made the point of no quorum, and a call of the senate was ordered.

The Day's Debate.

The debate during the day on the silver purchase repeal bill had many interesting features. Among other things it showed the staying quality of Mr. Cockrell (Dem., Mo.) as a speechmaker. Having argued against the bill for four hours on Monday and five hours on Tuesday, he held the floor yesterday another four hours.

As a senatorial debutante, Mr. Smith (Dem., N. J.) was a decided success. His speech in support of the bill was able, sarcastic, sententious, and it was delivered in clear, strong tones and with a remarkable absence of the nervousness natural to first stage appearances. He was favored with considerable applause as he took his seat, and so was Mr. Irby (Dem., S. C.), who argued against the bill and declared that he and his people would part company with the Democratic party if it persisted in its anti-silver policy.

At 2:30 Allen still held the floor, having spoken for over nine hours.

In the House.

Beyond referring to the committee on rules a joint resolution providing for a recess of congress from Oct. 14 to Nov. 1, the house did not do any thing except discuss the bill reported by the committee on judiciary amending the Geary law. But two speeches were made—by Mr. Cready, the author of the measure, in advocacy of it, as an act of justice and fairness, and one by Mr. Geary, the author of the act in opposition to its amendment as proposed. The latter in the course of his remarks severely criticised the administration for failing to enforce the law.

ROCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 12.—The annual session of the grand lodge of New Hampshire, I. O. O. F., was held at Odd Fellows' hall here yesterday and was attended by nearly all the grand officers and about 200 representatives. The morning session was very interesting, most of the time being taken up by the transaction of routine business. The grand master's report was rendered by Acting Grand Master George A. Bailey. His report showed the Odd Fellows' home to be a beneficial institution and in a flourishing condition.

The annual report of the grand secretary, Joseph Kidder, was read, and showed the order to be in an excellent condition. The total number of lodges in the state is 87, with a membership of 11,892, a net gain during the year of 385. The number of brothers relieved was 1571, the amount paid for relief being $41,317.77. The gain in receipts for the year was $1161.66, the increase of funds and property $6106.37. The total number of Rebekah lodges in the state is 50, with a membership of 7783, a gain during the year of 1054.

INVITED TO RETURN

National Mill Spinners, However, Decline the Offer.

THE TROUBLE WILL SPREAD

More Than Fifteen Thousand Operatives Now Idle.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 12.—A rousing meeting of the strikers was held in Wood's hall last evening. Chairman McGuy, in addressing the strikers, dwelt largely upon the new schedule of salary. He said he did not think that even the weavers themselves comprehended the extent of the reduction.

In looking over the lists he came to the conclusion that the reduction in wages was not clearly understood. While under the old list the amount was 17.12 cents for full pack work, the weavers received in addition a premium of two cents for perfect cloth, making 19 1-2 cents. The premium for perfect cloth was to be discontinued, and the price under the new schedule cut down from 17 cents 5 mills to 13 cents 8 mills. This refers to white work, piece dyed on fast looms, while the weavers on slow looms will receive 14 cents 8 mills. This cutdown is a great deal more than at first sight appeared.

Mr. McGuy referred to one mill in this city which, he held, made a speciality of white goods and paid 18 cents per 100 picks on fast looms, and the reduction to the rate of 13 cents 8 mills is to be made.

The smallest price list heretofore known was 15 cents per 100 picks, and a good many privileges were allowed.

Superintendent Baldwin, of the National mills, yesterday invited the spinners of the worsted department to return to work at the reduced scale of prices, but they refused. The spinners as yet have been unable to secure copies of the old and revised schedules, and a comparison cannot be made so as to show the exact amount of the cut, but a number of the operatives stated today that the reduction will amount to an average loss of 34 cents a day. On good work, running on full time, these men could make $12 to $13 per week.

When the men struck on Monday, the superintendent told them the mill would be closed if they went out. Yesterday, when he sent for them, he gave them to understand (so the strikers declare) that he would endeavor to fill their places if they did not return to their machines.

The strikers are enthusiastic over the public demonstration arranged for Saturday. An effort will be made to have the parade take place in the afternoon, instead of in the morning, as the mill operatives of the state have a half holiday Saturday and would, therefore, be able to be present.

At the Crefeld mills in Westerly the 300 hands employed have decided to remain at their work at a reduced salary. This mill has been run but three days a week during the past few months. Commencing the present week, they will run full time.

Likely to Spread.

In some villages a cutdown has been ordered by the millowners, but this does not go into effect until Oct. 23. The action of the operatives in Olneyville and Geneva will have a tendency to cause the operatives in these villages to resist the cutdown and leave their machines.

Already 15,000 people are affected by the labor troubles in Olneyville alone, where but one mill, the Delaine, is now in operation. There is no appearance as yet of disorder in the place. Olneyville as a manufacturing community is unlike many mill towns, in that an unusually large proportion of the operatives are established residents. A considerable proportion of them are owners of their homes, although as a rule the real estate holdings are more or less encumbered.

That the present situation has developed without a single disturbance requiring official action by the authorities is largely due to the fact that the roving class of operatives are so few in number that they cannot exercise any noticeable influence in the progress of affairs.

There is a general expression of opinion that there would not have been any strike had a moderate reduction been made. There is quite a general expression of belief that the strike would be terminated speedily if the manufacturers should show a willingness to make a reasonable compromise. The strikers are, however, imbued with the idea that it will be a stubborn fight. They feel that the manufacturers should be willing to lessen the rate of reduction and should also give to the help the assurance that with the improvement in the cloth market the old rate of wages will be restored.

Those who are in favor of compromising expect that by the organization, which they hope will now be effected and made permanent, they will be in a position, when the anticipated return of good times arrives, to demand all that has been taken from them in this period of depression.

Pieces Flew Over Housetops.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 12.—A large fly-wheel in the Atlantic avenue power house burst last evening. Several pieces of the wheel, weighing about two tons each, flew over the housetops for two blocks. A woman and a man in the adjoining house were severely injured. It will take $35,000 to repair the building and machinery.

Spain's Precautions.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—The trial of Wesley C. Rippey, charged with shooting John W. Mackay last February, was called yesterday. After the jurors were secured the taking of testimony was begun, the evidence being the same as at the former trial.

TELEPHONE. 213-3 QUINCY.

BEFORE THE arrival of the three o'clock Boston dailies yesterday, the DAILY LEDGER put out a bulletin that the Valkyrie was leading in the cup race, having received news at 2.15 to that effect. Those who read the metropolitan papers thought we must be "off," for their headlines read: Herald—"Race Not started." Globe—"Little Wind; boats waiting." Journal—"No Wind; postponed until later." Transcript—"Race Postponed." Record—"There will be No Race Today."

The LEDGER kept its bulletin, however, and at 4.30 put out another verifying it as follows: "The race is on; 3 o'clock Boston papers were off; the Valkyrie has increased her lead." About the same time Boston papers arrived and confirmed the report. Later came the news that the boats would be unable to finish within the time limit, and this was a fact.

QUINCY IS now to have a Shorthand evening school added to her educational institutions, under the charge of R. F. Sullivan, a shorthand writer of 17 years' experience who has been connected with the Boston Public Schools for many years, having been engaged as a teacher of shorthand for the past six years. In his method of teaching he is very impressive, and many of his pupils have taken high rank in his profession. The institution should be well patronized, and indeed, the outlook is exceedingly brilliant. The advertisement may be found in today's issue.

ANOTHER SCOOP for the DAILY LEDGER was the Republican Senatorial convention, which was held in Boston at 1 P. M. and renominated John F. Merrill of this city. Did you see it in any Boston paper yesterday?

CHURCH WEDDING.

Miss Florence G. Roberts Becomes Mrs. Clarence W. Packard.

The marriage of Miss Florence Gertrude Roberts, daughter of ex-Councilman John H. Roberts of Wollaston, and Mr. Clarence Ward Packard of Dorchester, was solemnized at the Wollaston Congregational church on Wednesday evening.

The interior was attractively decorated with tropical plants ferns and autumn foliage.

The church was filled with guests when Miss Minnie Parker Prescott played the Lohengrin march on the organ, as the bridal procession slowly marched down the aisle to the altar, where it was met by the groom and his best man, Mr. Robert H. Swan of Dorchester.

The bride wore a gown of cream bengaline silk, trimmed with Bourdon lace with bridal veil and carried a bouquet of La Bride roses. She was attended by the maid of honor, Miss Winifred Fifield Howard of Wollaston, who wore a gown of yellow silk, trimmed with silk guipure and also by Master Harold Davenport, who was costumed in a yellow satin Fauntleroy suit with point lace collar.

The ceremony was at 8 o'clock and was performed by the Rev. Edward A. Robinson, pastor of the Congregational church.

The ushers were Mr. Sidney W. McClane of Dorchester, Mr. Amos T. Leavitt, Mr. Chester L. McClintock and Mr. James S. Whiting of Wollaston. The ushers favors were gold stick pins.

Immediately after the ceremony there was an informal reception to the relatives at the house of the bride's parents.

TODAY'S COURT.

Calef is Held for the Grand Jury in the Sum of $500.

Patrick J. Whalan of Randolph for drunkenness was fined $5.

George McCue of Quincy was fined $5 for drunkenness and $5 for assault on Mary McCue.

Richard Calef was arraigned upon four complaints for fraudulently obtaining subscriptions to the Ladies' Home Journal and upon one complaint for obtaining subscription to the Delineator, and was held in $500 for the grand jury.

Surprise Party.

About twenty-five of the friends of Miss Maria Menhinick surprised her last night at her home, 1 Baxter place. The evening was passed pleasantly with games. Speeches were made by Miss Lizzie Field, Mr. Benny Jilbert and Mr. Ernest Saunders. During the evening the young lady was presented with a moonstone ring, after which refreshments were served.

Among those present were: Mr. James Burnie, Mr. Benj. Jilbert, Mr. Bert Miller, Mr. John Weir, Mr. Ernest Saunders, Mr. George Nightingale, Mr. Walter Jones, Mr. Carl Nehide, Mr. Archie Parson, Miss Mabel Osborn, Miss Jennie Howie, Miss Jennie Phillips, Miss Lizzie Gordon, Miss Grace Batson, Miss Abbie Barnes, Miss Lizzie Field, Miss Hattie Chisholm, Miss Bessie Hector, Miss Maggie Chisholm,

CALEF HELD.

There Were Five Counts Against Him and also Warrants Not Served.

The court room held a large audience this morning the centre of attraction being a slick looking young man who answered to the name of Richard Calef.

Calef, as he calls himself, had been doing an extensive business in Quincy during the past few weeks obtaining subscriptions to the Ladies' Home Journal, offering as an inducement twelve lithograph pictures.

Since his arrest Calef has been rusticating in Dedham jail and meanwhile the local officers have been accumulating evidence against him so that when he was called this morning, it was to answer upon five complaints.

Four of these complaints were for fraudently obtaining subscriptions to the Ladies' Home Journal from Annie M. Hayden, Daisy J. Adams, Mrs. James Bisson and J. H. Bisson, while the fifth complaint was for fraudently obtaining subscriptions to Butterick's Delineator from Rose Ritchie.

Calef waived examination upon the first four and stood trial upon the fifth. The evidence was that he had visited the Ritchie woman, who did not like the Ladies' Home Journal and that a few days latter he called with the Delineator representing that he was a son of C. H. Booth.

The Delinator pleased Mrs. Ritchie and she parted with $1.

Representatives of the Ladies' Home Journal and Butterick Publishing Co. were present from Philadelphia, and they testified that they had no agent by the name of Booth.

Calef offered no defence and was held in $100 on each complaint for the grand jury.

Deputy Sheriff Cobb of Whitman, was present with a warrent for Calef, but he will not serve it until the pending cases are decided.

THE CHAPEL BUILDERS

Have Occasion to "Thank God from Whom All Blessings Flow."

The Chapel Builders of the Congregational church had a novel entertainment Wednesday evening, which culminated in a very agreeable surprise. Early in the evening a supper was served free in the chapel to a full house. Later members contributed $1 each toward the Chapel fund, a dollar which they had personally earned, and they told how. Some presented it in rhyme, and all in all it afforded entertainment to those present.

All were pleased to greet Mr. Charles W. Carter, an ex-Superintendent of the Sunday School, and previous to his recent removal from the city, a very prominent and active church worker, and his presence on this occasion was particularly joyful as he brought tiddings, as executor of the estate of the late Dea. George R. Smalley, that that gentleman had bequeathed all his property to the church. He first gives the Sunday School $300 in trust, the income only to be used for the support of the library. The remainder, which is estimated at over $4,000 is given for the enlargement of the chapel and church improvements. Those present arose and sang "Thank God from Whom All Blessing Flow," and one and all congratulated themselves on their good fortune.

Mr. Smalley left the city but a few years ago and passed his last days with relatives in Lebanon, N. H. His remains were brought here for interment, the funeral taking place from the church. For many years he was deacon of the church and a devoted member. The will was probated in New Hampshire.

The gift will allow work to be begun on the new chapel as soon as plans can be made, as the Chapel Builders had already accumulated $1,000. There are pressing needs for a much larger chapel, as the Sunday School proper is now held in the church.

AN EX-CHIEF DEAD.

Mr. Joseph M. Glover Passes Away After a Lingering Illness.

Joseph M. Glover one of Quincy's well known citizens died at his residence on Franklin street this morning after an illness of nearly two years, aged 59 years and 6 months.

Mr. Glover was born in Quincy and has always resided in this city. His business was that of a bookkeeper and in that capacity he had been employed for twenty years for Joel F. Sheppard & Sons, and D. Howard Bills whom they succeeded, only retiring when his health failed him.

Mr. Glover was under the town form of government prominently identified with the fire department, for several years being its chief.

He was a member of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., having served in Co. B 60th regiment.

He leaves a widow and one married daughter.

Funeral services will be held from his late residence Saturday at 2 o'clock.

Quarrymen on the Stage.

At a theatre in Waltham this evening will be presented a play entitled "A flag of truce." The advertisement says:—"A mammoth stone quarry operated by a trained crew of skilled quarrymen. Genuine giant band steam drills boaring there way through blocks of solid granite. An actual blast splintering tons of rugged rock. A massive derrick hoisting ponderous boulders. Twofive-horse power engines working the machinery.

☞ You have undoubtedly heard stories of dreamy hours, soothing, pleasant and restful. Try one of our delightful Lace Web Spring Beds, something new, that rests your weary bones and makes life well worth living. No heavy wood frames—textile light and airy $5.00. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

CITY CHIT CHAT.

Items of Interest from All Parts of Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. Eliakim Bayard are visiting in Maine.

The Ward Four Democratic committee have taken rooms in Hart's building on Crescent street.

The board of registrars added 28 new names to the voting lists at their meeting Wednesday evening.

The steamship upon which Robert Garden sailed arrived at Queenstown safely Tuesday evening.

Miss Annie Davis of Halifax, N. S., is visiting in the family of Mr. Hugh McPhail of Hancock street.

It was a night of church entertainments Wednesday evening, the Congregational, Universalist and Christ's church all having attractions.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Thomas, who have been in Chicago and Washington the past two weeks, have returned to their home on Atlantic street.

Miss Floretta Vining made a short call at the Patriot Office, Wednesday, she was in good health and expects to visit the World's Fair this month.

Among the deaths today is that of a well known gentleman, Mr. George Enderle, who lived on Willard street near the East Milton line. He was prominent in the Masonic fraternity.

The Granite Shoe store appeared out with an attractive advertising wagon today, a large russet shoe, mounted on white running gear with russet trimming. Gilt letters on the side of the shoe gave the name of the firm and location.

The Guild of Christ's church held an attractive sale in the Parish house Wednesday evening. The usual number of pretty, useful and fancy articles were shown and met with a ready sale to those present. Quite a sum was realized which will be applied to the organ fund.

Mr. and Mrs. James Mears of Brockton were visiting there daughter, Mrs. George N. Nash of Coddington street the first of the week. This venerable couple were quite well, showing "Father Time" had dealt lightly with them. They are expected to go to Houghs Neck today for a short visit.

Mrs. Henry Tilden and little daughter of Milford has been visting with her sister Mrs. George N. Nash this week, she will be well remembered as Eva Mears of Houghs Neck, and a host of old friends would be glad to meet her at her old home the Great Hill House.

JOHN HANCOCK.

The Centenary of His Death Observed by Sons of the Revolution.

Sunday was the centenary of the death of John Hancock, the patriot, and the Sons of the Revolution fittingly remembered the day, says the Herald, by placing a magnificent floral design on his grave. The tribute is in the form of a floral arch, in centre of which is the inscription "John Hancock." Hanging over the white arch of flowers is a white ribbon bearing the words "Sons of the Revolution." The base of the design is of ivy leaves, on which rests a closed book of white carnations, bearing the date "Oct. 8, 1793."

Hancock was the first signer of the Declaration of Independence, yet no monument has ever been erected over his grave to commemorate the deed. He was buried with pomp and ceremony, yet the remains of the patriot lie in a neglected grave just inside the gates of the old Granary burial ground, marked only by a dilapidated stone, upon whose surface can barely be traced the inscription. "No. 16. Tomb of Hancock." The mass of shrubbery covering the grave makes it difficult even to read these few words.

Hancock was born in Quincy Jan. 12, 1736-7, his parents then residing on the "Hancock lot" where the Adams Academy now stands. Quincy has named one of its public schools in his honor.

The Globe today says, "The moment that the attention of the citizens is directed to the neglected condition of the great patriot's grave there is no second opinion as to whether or not it ought to be allowed to remain as it is at present.

"No storied urn or animated bust can add to the fame of John Hancock, or increase the affection which the people of Massachusetts feel for his memory.

"But it is generally agreed that it would be only a proper mark of respect if some monument were erected to tell to future generations the esteem with which the first governor of Massachusetts, and signer of the declaration, is regarded by Massachusetts of today.

"The concensus of opinion seems to be that the State ought to take the initiative in the matter."

To this the LEDGER would add that as Hancock was a native of Quincy, and our granite has no equal, that the monument should certainly be of Quincy granite.

Harvest Festival.

A large and pleasant gathering assembled at the Universalist vestry, last evening, and enjoyed an excellent harvest supper, and a fine musical entertainment with select readings by Miss Elliott. There were fruit, candy, ice cream, etc., for sale, and after the entertainment the vegetables and fruit was sold at auction.

Karpets.

have never been offered at such wonderfully low prices as today. If you wish to economize this, is your opportunity 22 cents to 85 cents per yard. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

A SUCCESSFUL CRUISE.

Officers and Men of the Enterprise Pleased With Their Voyage.

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—There is no longer any doubt about the success of the institution known as the training ship for naval cadets. When the Enterprise was first put in commission for this work it was considered only an experiment, and therefore the progress of the work has been watched with great interest by those persons who are interested in naval matters. From the first short cruises which the young men took with the ship to the last one of about three months across the ocean and into waters unknown by them, the fact that this is the best way to attain an education in the naval service has been demonstrated in the most practical manner.

Captain Merry has observed on the voyage that most of the boys who went with him went to learn something, and, although there were a few drones, most of the young men applied themselves to the work with a zeal which they may well be proud of. He thinks that it would astonish some of the graduates of the United States Naval academy to find how much some of his young men know about practical navigation, and there are some boys in the crew who are perfectly competent to take command of any ship in any body of water.

After the Enterprise reached anchor she was boarded by Captain J. C. Soley, who addressed the boys and complimented them on their work. Today the ship will be inspected by the commission, and within a short time she will be placed in winter quarters and thoroughly overhauled. After she has been inspected by the commission the boys will be granted a leave of absence for two weeks. The next examination for admission to the school will be held on Oct. 25.

MISSING SINCE MONDAY.

Mysterious Disappearance of Two Little Children of Brighton.

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 12.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cook of Oak square, Brighton, are distracted with grief over the disappearance of their two children. Mr. and Mrs. Cook have resided in Newton until within a few weeks, when they removed to Brighton. The children had been attending school in Newton, and it was thought unwise to change their instructors so late in the year, so they were sent to the Underwood school in Newton every morning.

Sometimes their father accompanied them on their mile walk in the morning, but more often the children trudged to school alone. The oldest, Alonzo, a boy of 9, was given charge of his little sister, aged 7, and no harm had ever come to either.

On Monday morning the little couple started from home as usual about 8 o'clock. They went over Washington street from Oak square, after they had received the usual admonitions from their mother. A neighbor passed them near the summit of the hill and passed a good morning with the boy. This is the last time they were seen by any one, as near as can be ascertained.

Davitt Replies to Redmond.

DUBLIN, Oct. 12.—Michael Davitt, in reply to the speech delivered on Monday by John Redmond, the leader of the Parnellites, said that the policy advocated by Redmond of withdrawing their support from the government was unique and unpatriotic, and that the Nationalists would keep faith with the British Democracy and support Gladstone in passing the reforms forecasted at the Newcastle meeting.

Obstruction to Navigation Removed.

SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. 12.—The wreck of the steamer Panther, which foundered Aug. 24, was blown to pieces yesterday by dynamite. The wreck is entirely removed from the track of coasting vessels.

De Lesseps Has Recovered.

PARIS, Oct. 12—Count Ferdinand De Lesseps has recovered from his recent acute illness. He was suffering merely from derangement of the stomach.

The New Millinery.

Millinery openings are always attractive, especially to ladies, therefore it is not surprising that many responded to the neat cards sent out by Mrs. E. B. Collins to visit her parlors in Faxon's new block, which were thrown open for the first time Wednesday. They are centrally located and present an attractive appearance. The main room is large and well lighted, and here are displayed all the latest novelties in ladies trimmed hats as well as fancy feathers, flowers, ribbons, and velvets in various shades, and also jet and steel ornaments.

Black and white are to be the prevailing colors this winter and a large assortment of these colors are shown.

Mrs. Collins is to make a specialty of ladies' hair goods and one large show case is devoted to this branch.

In the rear of the main room are two smaller rooms, one of which has been fitted up as a ladies' parlor and the other as a work room.

LIBERTY BELL RUNG.

Connecticut Has Simple but Interesting Exercises at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Nearly 500 prominent residents of the Nutmeg state celebrated Connecticut day. The building was prettily adorned with flags of the nation and state, as well as foreign flags, both inside and out, and the building was crowded with Connecticut visitors all day. Governor Luzon B. Morris, with his staff and the state commissioners and state board of lady managers surrounded the Columbian liberty bell, which was rung by his excellency and the members of the two state boards in honor of Connecticut's admission to the Union in 1776.

The Iowa State band played at the building most of the day and during the exercises. Rev. George C. Woodruff offered prayer, and Hon. D. M. Read, chairman of the World's fair executive committee for Connecticut, spoke briefly regarding Connecticut's history and display at the exposition.

Mrs. George H. Knight, president of the state board of lady managers, delivered an interesting address, telling of the women's work and new field of usefulness as demonstrated in the various branches of the exposition, dwelling particularly on what Connecticut women had done. Chairman Read gave a brief sketch of the work of the board of managers, and an eloquent address of welcome on behalf of the state was delivered by Governor Morris.

The exercises at the building were simple but interesting; they were followed by a public reception, at which all the people from the Nutmeg state and other visitors were presented to the governer.

M'GAVITT IS DEAD.

Took His Own Life After Trying to Kill Mrs. Roche.

HARTFORD, Oct. 12.—Patrick McGavitt, who made a murderous assault on Mrs. William Roche in Woodland Tuesday, committed suicide soon after. Mrs. Roche's husband is the engineer of the Hartford Manila company's mill, where McGavitt also worked as a helper. He had boarded in the family for several years, including a period when Roche lived at Salisbury, N. Y. When McGavitt left his work Tuesday night, he went to the house, inquired of Mrs. Roche why she was not in bed, went to his room, from there to the cellar and obtained a hatchet.

Mrs. Roche was sitting by the table sewing. Exclaiming: "You've got to die, too," McGavitt attacked Mrs. Roche with the weapon. After knocking her down, he struck her five more blows on the head. McGavitt thought her dead, and evidently to kill her sister, Mrs. Miller, he went to her house near by and tried to gain admittance, saying some one had nearly killed Mrs. Roche. She then went over to her sister's house and found the assaulted woman, who it is now thought will recover.

McGavitt had been on a debauch for about a week and is thought to be partially insane from rum. His ill-will to Mrs. Miller arose from the fact that she had said Mrs. Roche should not allow him to board in her house. McGavitt's body was found in the millpond near the dam.

ANOTHER DRIFTING MATCH

But the Vigilant Was Ahead When the Time Limit Expired.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—It was no man's race yesterday. The Vigilant and Valkyrie tried hard to settle the international question as to which is the queen yacht of the world, but after alternate spells of racing, drifting and waiting for wind, they gave up the contest at the expiration of the time limit. It was long after dark when the crack yachts abandoned the drifting match off Highland beach and hailed their tugs. They were fully seven miles from the finish and they had been sailing for six hours.

The peerless white cup defender, Vigilant, had turned the outer mark seven minutes ahead of the English cutter, and was leading by about half a mile when the time expired.

The fortunes of each had varied during the day, and the British boat had the best of it during the first part of the race. It was the third race in the series, and if won by the Vigilant the America's cup would be a Yankee trophy of prowess on the water for another year.

Sioux Indians Making Trouble.

CHAMBERLAIN, S. D., Oct. 12. — The Sioux have been on several depredatory excursions on and near Rosebud reservation. The Indians enter houses and camps, threaten the occupants and carry off whatever strikes their fancy. The settlers are buying ammunition and weapons. The Indians are fully armed and indulging in ghost dances.

Hazers Severely Punished.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 12.—The faculty has taken final action in the case of the sophomores convicted of hazing. One of the sophomores was dismissed, with a recommendation of severe punishment by the authorities outside of the college; three others were also dismissed, and five suspended.

India's New Viceroy.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The queen has approved of the appointment of the Earl of Elgin as viceroy of India. The new viceroy is the eldest son of the eighth Earl of Elgin, who was appointed governor general of India in January, 1862, and who died in office in November, 1863.

Disturbed Salvationists.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 12.—William Moore was arrested for disturbing the services at the Salvation army barracks. He pleaded "not guilty," but the evidence against him was conclusive in the opinion of the presiding justice and he was sentenced to pay a fine of $50.

Lowell Furniture Dealers Assign.

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 12.—Bennon & Carr, one of the oldest and most reliable furniture concerns of this city, have assigned. The long illness of the senior member of the firm and hard times are given as the causes of the failure.

A Plumber's Sharp Practices.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Louis Roller, plumber, of One Hundred and Eighteenth street and St. Nicholas avenue, who failed about six weeks ago, is accused of forging notes on various builders and contractors to amounts exceeding $35,000.

Cruiser Vesuvius Sails.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 12.—Dynamite cruiser Vesuvius, Lieutenant Commander Frank Courtis, has sailed, having taken on board at the torpedo station a quantity of gun cotton for use in destroying derelicts at sea.

Trouble in South Africa.

LONDON, Oct. 12. — A dispatch from South Africa says troops advancing from Fay's Victoria were frequently fired upon by small bodies of the enemy in the bush.

AS TAXPAYERS.

What Members of the City Council Will Pay.

MANY SOLID MEN IN THE LIST.

A Majority Pay Less Than $50 and Some a Poll Only.

A reader who has been interested in the publication of the heavy taxpayers in the DAILY LEDGER remarked to a representative yesterday that many of the Councilmen appear in the list and he thought the city was fortunate in securing the services of such citizens who must necessarily be interested in public expenditures and the prosperity of the city. Taking the hint the DAILY LEDGER has carefully prepared a list showing the tax of each member, and the showing is very favorable.

The total tax paid by the 23 members of the City Council is $3,156.69, an average of $137.24. All do not pay over $100, in fact a majority pay less than $50 each, and eight less than $25. But one is assessed for over $1,000, another for $594.97, and another over $300. Still another pays over $200 and four more over $100, as will be seen below :

| | |
|---|---|
| Charles F. Adams, 2d, | $ 2.00 |
| Luther S. Anderson, | 333.01 |
| Frank E. Badger, | 50.90 |
| Charles T. Baker, | 82.19 |
| E. W. Henry Bass, | 113 39 |
| Sylvester Brown, | 13 06 |
| Peter J. Donahoe, | 3.58 |
| John E. Drake, | 1,082 72 |
| Herbert M. Federhen, Jr., | 3.19 |
| Charles H. Grindell, | 2.00 |
| Horatio N. Holbrook, | 142.62 |
| John O. Holden, | 232.68 |
| Charles H. Johnson, | 41.50 |
| Edward J. Lennon, | 31.23 |
| Stephen O. Moxon, | 186.47 |
| John O'Connell, | 2.00 |
| William H. Owen, | 31.60 |
| Edward L. Robbins, | 49.40 |
| John H. Rooney, | 27.28 |
| Jonas Shackley, | 127.61 |
| Charles R. Sherman, | 594.97 |
| Alexander C. Smith, | 2.00 |
| Robert J. Williams, | 2 00 |

In justice to a few it might be added that they pay a tax jointly with some one else. Councilman Adams and his brother are taxed $23.70 on a yacht; Councilman Badger and others are also taxed on a boat; Councilman Drake is largely interested in Drake & Co., while in some cases the wives of Councilmen are found among the taxpayers. It is a little singular that none of the Councilmen own property in more than one ward.

Fine Work of Art.

A beautiful sarcophagus of Quincy granite, the gift of Sir Knights John H. Collamore, was dedicated at Mt. Hope cemetery Boston, on Wednesday, by Boston Commandery Knights Templars. The base is 6 1-2 by 11 feet, and the height 9 1-2 feet; weight, 30 tons. It is similar in design to that recently presented by Mr. Collamore to Olivet Commandery of Lynn, but is surmounted by a helmet instead of a chapeau. It has various Masonic and Knight Templar emblems, and as the orator of the occasion said, is a fine work of art.

SEEING IN THE DARK.

A Device Destined to Investigate the So Called Phenomena of Spiritualism.

A learned Italian, Signor Giorgio Finzi of Milan, is engaged in perfecting a pair of spectacles by whose means the wearer can see in the dark. The immediate use destined for these revealing lenses is the investigation of the so called phenomena of spiritualism, carried on usually in the densest darkness, hence not a little baffling to those earnest students of psychical marvels who wish to get at the truth in the chaff blown mass which a million apparently sane Americans, to say nothing of people of other nationalities, pin credence to.

With the new lenses and their electrical magic the investigator may sit down to join hands with believers or unbelievers, and slipping on these spectacles see unseen all that is going on, and while helping to dissolve humbug in the light of truth may get a glimpse of something not wholly to be classed as humbug—of phenomena on the plane of nervous revelation at least. Some examples of things as yet beyond scientific explanation have been encountered by psychical researchers in the different countries of Europe of late, as well as by Professor James and other students of these matters nearer home.

But apart from its immediate use in this department of investigation, what a pleasant prospect is opened up by the idea of seeing in the dark at will merely by putting on a pair of night glasses! Belated householders can guide the ready latchkey to its lair, doctors may mix prescriptions on their way to a sinking case, engineers can detect train robbers in the dim distance, and all the undescried terrors of lonely ways may be banished forever by the fortunate possessor of these glasses. "Lend me your ears" will no longer be such a phrase to conjure by as now; it will be "lend me your eyes," and—who can tell?—the time may come when Mr. Finzi's electrical lenses are fully perfected that if any of us are in the dark concerning any question whatever we may put on a pair of these spectacles and see our way clear before us!—Boston Transcript.

LIZZIE BORDEN'S HOME.

It Is Now Near the Fashionable Avenue of Fall River.

The new home of the Borden girls on French street is not on the best street in the town, but it is in a good neighborhood and near the most fashionable avenue. It was occupied by a man of means and good social position, who sold it because he wished to live where he could enjoy the fine prospect that is to be had from another point on the same hill. It is said that the sisters paid $11,000 for the place, and that may be the fact, though the house scarcely warrants a belief that such was a true figure. French street is a modern thoroughfare set with pretty villas, generally wooden, in open grounds with a showing of neat lawns, a few vases and flowers and plenty of shade trees. The houses are small and of the type of dwellings with which most of the smaller suburbs of this city are built up. The new Borden dwelling is a yellow and brown frame house, with a little pointed tower on one corner of the roof and a porch in front and partly on one side. The house might have cost $3,000 or $4,000 to build. It is not as fine as several neighboring cottages. It is said that the sisters employ only one servant, as they did in the old house down town.

Lizzie bears up extremely well after her remarkable experience; indeed she appears to be as well as she ever was and stouter and better looking. The case is different with the older sister. The family affliction, the horrors of the murders and the long strain during Lizzie's trial were more than her nerves could endure, and she is nothing like the woman she was. Her health is far from robust, and she frequently has to give up, or rather to break down.—New York Sun.

Lynchers and Lynching.

The report of the killing of many lynchers by the military force called out in Virginia shows that there is one region in the south alive to the importance of this, and with the resolution to teach the bloody lesson that we fear alone can be effective. Unfortunately, however, even in this case the display of resolution was only transitory, and the lynchers claimed their victim within 24 hours. But while all this is said it would be wrong to omit a word as to the imbruted character of the portion of the population of the south with whom these lynchers undertake to deal. Nothing can excuse their act, and it is a fearful mistake in every point of view. But the disregard of life on the part of many of the colored men of the south and the savage passion they evince in other respects are social evils that call also for serious attention. In addition to the crimes against women there, it is a terrible fact that there are negroes who murder constantly for money, even in small sums, and appear entirely destitute of moral sense. One has to be in the south to know the extent to which this prevails; few at the north realize it. There is a call for missionary work among this class that is louder than that which comes from any other heathen on the globe, and the more intelligent colored people themselves may well turn their attention to it.—Boston Herald.

Dublin's Mayor and City Politics.

The lord mayor is fine looking, about 50 years old, rather stout, has curly hair just turning gray, mutton chop whiskers and mustache, a ruddy face, and wore a dark suit. He is here as the guest of Chicago and the fair commissioners. Said he: "I have visited your city two or three times heretofore and admire it greatly. I had hoped to call upon your mayor today, but we got in too late. No, I have never had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Gilroy, though he came from County Donegal, so I am informed, while I was born in an adjacent county. I presume politics do not figure to any great extent in your municipal government?" queried the lord mayor innocently.—New York Times.

MR. BREED ACCEPTS.

He Will Become Rector of Christ's Church in November.

Rev. Walter Russell Breed, the young man elected rector of Christ's church, has accepted the call and will enter upon his pastorate, Sunday Nov. 19. A brief sketch will be of interest:

Mr. Breed was born in Lynn, Jan. 10, 1865, and is the son of Joseph Wesley and Frances (Burrell) Breed. He graduated from Wesleyan University of Connecticut, in 1887, and from the Episcopal Theological Seminary, Cambridge, in 1890, when he was made Deacon. Was ordained Priest in Christ's church, Tarrytown, New York, by Bishop Potter, in May, 1891, and since then has been rector of Trinity church, Concord. He has declined several calls while there. Last spring the important parish of Grace church, Amherst, elected him rector, but he decided not to accept it. He is regarded as an able writer and an eloquent speaker.

Mr. Breed's grandfather, Rev. John T. Burrell, was for many years pastor of the Methodist church, Quincy Point, and became rector of Christ's church in 1852.

—A verdict of $3,663.33 was secured in the Superior court at Dedham Wednesday in the case of Mrs. Sarah S. Fuller for personal injuries received from a defect in sidewalk.

Why Is It?

Some find work where some find rest,
And so the weary world goes on.
I sometimes wonder which is best.
The answer comes when life is gone.

Some eyes sleep when some eyes wake,
And so the dreary night hours go.
Some hearts beat where some hearts break.
I often wonder why 'tis so.

Some wills faint where some wills fight;
Some love the tent, and some the field.
I often wonder who are right—
The ones who strive or those who yield.

Some hands fold where other hands
Are lifted bravely in the strife,
And so through ages and through lands
Move on the two extremes of life.

Some feet halt where some feet tread,
In tireless march, a thorny way;
Some struggle on where some have fled;
Some seek when others shun the fray.

Some swords rust where others clash;
Some fall back where some move on;
Some flags furl where others flash
Until the battle has been won.

Some sleep on while others keep
The vigils of the true and brave.
They will not rest till roses creep
Around their name above a grave.

—Father Ryan.

CAPTURED AT LAST.

A Sneak Thief Who Has Given Bostonians Much Trouble.

RECOGNIZED BY A VICTIM

Who Causes Him to Be Placed Behind the Bars.

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—Through the instrumentality of a lady with a good memory the Boston police were yesterday enabled to capture a man believed to be the expert sneak thief for whom the officers have been so long looking.

Mrs. W. H. Sherwood of 288 Newbury street was crossing the Public Garden yesterday forenoon, when her attention was drawn to a man, evidently a German, about 34 years of age, who was sitting on one of the benches. She looked at him again, and for the time being could not place him, but in an instant she recollected that he had called at her house ostensibly to hire a room, and while she had gone to get a drink of water at his request, he hastily made his disappearance, at the same time taking with him, as she believes, a solid gold watch and chain. This happened away back last August, but she was positive that he was the man.

Officer Sherborn placed the man in custody on the strength of Mrs. Sherwood's statement, and with the assistance of another officer took the man to station 16.

The man refused to be interviewed and would only state that his name is Charles Demont, that he has no home in this vicinity, that he is 34 years of age and was born in New Brunswick.

A Slick Rascal.

According to the police the fellow is a common, notorious thief, and will so be indicted by the grand jury, if possible. It is he, they allege, who has been doing all of the important "sneak" work in this city for months past, operating in the West End, Back Bay, Roxbury and Dorchester and all of the residential districts close by.

The fellow's mode of operation has been to go to houses where there are signs indicating that there are rooms to rent and, inquiring for the landlady, ask to be shown the best in the house. After he has looked at the room for a while, he usually asks for a glass of ice-water. The woman goes to get the water, and when she returns her guest is missing, and with him some valuables.

His appearance in this city was first noted about the last of June or the first of July, and since that time the police have been doing their utmost to capture him, but without avail.

Wears Fine Clothes.

When arrested the German was neatly dressed in black clothing, and had about $22 in his possession. He wore several articles of jewelry, which the police firmly believe were stolen.

In his necktie was a round gold pin, on which is the figure of a fly with a diamond for the head and an emerald for body part. On the back of the pin was the inscription, "Alma, 1885." On one finger the prisoner wore a large diamond in a massive gold setting of rather peculiar shape. On the other finger he wore a solid gold ring set with diamonds, two rubies and two emeralds.

He also wore a gold hunting-case stop watch, with a double chain, having on the other end a gold pencil, and for a charm a Knight of Pythias emblem.

Also in the man's possession was found a lady's fob chain of gold and pearl links, with a charm in the shape of a horse's head in pearl. Also a gold toothpick, besides a silk handkerchief marked with a large letter "M."

Cutting Affray at Lynn.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 12.—A murderous assault was committed last evening by William Doyle on Andrew Daley, in the residence of the latter, 22 Willow street. Daley was cut about the face and head. His story is that Doyle entered the house while he was away, and attempted to assault a woman who was present. Doyle was ordered to leave the house, and, instead, he assaulted Daley, knocking him senseless.

Bicycle Records Fall.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 12.—Both world's records for the mile were lowered at Hampden park yesterday afternoon. H. C. Tyler rode from a standing start in 2m. 2-5s., beating his own record of 2m. 1 1-5s. He also broke the three-quarter mile by 2-5s. and the half by 1s. Windle's mile was in 1m. 55 4-5s., breaking his record of 1m. 58 1-5s.

Mother's Death Grieved Him.

ALBANY, Oct. 12.—George O'Brien of New York, a tenor singer in Arthur Lloyd's comedy company, playing "Our Party" at the Leland Opera house here, hanged himself just before the beginning of last evening's performance. Two weeks ago O'Brien's mother died, and since that time he has been despondent.

Whitecaps In Maine.

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 12.—A farmer named Allison, living in the town of Wellington, was tarred and feathered by a gang of Whitecaps, for alleged neglect of his wife and family and attentions to another woman. He was afterward ridden on a rail and notified to leave the town.

Died From Grief.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Mrs. J. W. Johnson, wife of the physician who attended Mr. Blaine in his last sickness, died yesterday. Her eldest son by a previous marriage was recently murdered in Colorado, where he was staying for his health. His mother is said to have never recovered from the blow.

ON SHORT ALLOWANCE.

How a Shrewd Sea Captain Made His Supply of Water Last.

"Water, water everywhere, nor any drop to drink." Few people beside sailors can appreciate the terrible import of these simple words. A correspondent writes that on a short whaling, or, as sailors say, "plum pudding voyage," which he once made in the brig Arnolda of Nantucket, Shubael Higgins, master, they ran short of water, and at last the captain decided to put into Goree, on the west coast of Africa. As they neared the Cape de Verde islands, however, and got into what are known to sailors as the horse latitudes, the wind fell calm, and the vessel drifted idly on the water.

As day after day passed with no signs of wind, Captain Higgins became impatient. The surface of the ocean was as smooth as a mirror, and as the long, heavy swells came from the regions of the trade winds, the vessel rolled and tossed about like a cork upon the water.

We furled the square sails to prevent their being worn out in slamming against the mast. The staysails were all set and the sheets hauled taut, which eased her somewhat in her rolling.

By this time the water had run so short that the captain felt obliged to adopt some plan to avoid all unnecessary drinking.

Calling me to his side, he said, "Boy, bring me a new tin dipper from the slop chest."

I did so. Then the captain had all hands called aft.

"Men," he said, "I have always dreaded to put my crew on short allowance, but the time has come when something must be done to save what little water we have left."

With that he took a piece of spun yarn from his pocket, and tied it to the handle of the dipper. Then turning to me, he said, "Take this to the masthead and tie it there."

"Now," said he, addressing the men, "you can have all the water you want to drink, but you must first go to the top of the mast and get the dipper, and after drinking all you need you must carry the dipper back and tie it to the mast again. Under no conditions will one of you pass the dipper to another. Every man must get the dipper for himself. In case of sickness, I will send the boy aloft for the sick man. This rule will apply to all on board, myself included."

At first we regarded the matter as a joke on the captain's part, but as the days wore on and each of us made his trip aloft after the dipper the novelty wore off. We soon found, however, that the captain's plan for saving water was a very effectual one. The ship's scuttle butt, which formerly we had been obliged to replenish from the casks every other day, would now run a week without refilling.

We were becalmed just 60 days. Then the trade wind set in, and we proceeded to Goree and refilled our casks. But the memory of the trips I made aloft after that dipper and the spirit in which Captain Higgins performed his part of the contract, left an impression on my mind which remains to this day.—Youth's Companion.

Time!

"What a curious wooden hammer, Miss Lilian!"

"Yes. It was presented to papa many years ago by a lodge of some kind that he was presiding over at the time. I suppose he used it when he wanted to open the lodge or call some brother to order."

"Speaking of lodges, Miss Lilian, what do you think of men who join them and neglect their—er—wives and all that sort of thing?"

"I think they are not doing their duty, Mr. Spoonamore."

"S-so do I! We agree exactly on that. A man who would abandon the society of his—his wife, you know, to go down town four or five times a week, and meet a lot of other men, and go through the mummery they call initiation, and smoke cigars, and have a good time—why, it isn't right, you know."

The young woman toyed with the little wooden hammer and said nothing.

"And that's why I feel bold to say, Miss Lilian, that I think you and I would—h'm—would never have any disagreements if—we should—because that's the way I feel about it, and—and I've never talked this way to you before, you know, for I wasn't exactly certain whether—and all that sort of thing. When two persons agree on things like this, it stands to reason that there might be other things they would also—and you haven't known me a great while perhaps, but I feel that you're the only woman in the world I want to marry"——

Here the hammer fell.—Chicago Tribune.

The First English Slave Trader.

Sir John Hawkins was the first English slave trader. He formed a company composed of the leading men of London and fitted out three small ships, which sailed in 1562. Later Queen Elizabeth lent Hawkins Jesus a large ship of her own of 700 tons, and took shares in the second African company. She not only equipped the ship, but put 100 soldiers on board to provide for contingencies On the second voyage Hawkins bought 400 negroes and had a narrow escape from losing them, owing to the lack of water when he was near the equator But, as he piously recorded in his log, "The Almighty God would not suffer his elect to perish, and sent a breeze which carried them safe to Dominica." This was the beginning of the slave trade, which lasted for more than two centuries before it was finally suppressed.—Boston Transcript.

Carried a Live Shark Ashore.

Jonathan Fowler, a Massachusetts fisherman, once walked out knee deep through the mud and filth of a seashore at low tide to a shark left by the retiring waters, shouldered it and brought it alive on his back to the shore. The shark weighed 500 pounds, quite a load, considering that it was not the most portable of articles and that the man had to wade through mud.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

ON A NORMAN DRINKING HORN.

On a cup, perchance like this,
Some fair maiden press'd a kiss,
While her waves of golden hair
Fell about the chalice there,
And her Norseman warrior sighed
As he left his plighted bride—
Long and long ago.

Or upon some festal night,
With the great logs burning bright,
As with jest and merry sound
Hath the wassail cup gone round,
Flowing o'er with amber ale
Till the stars in heaven grew pale—
Long and long ago.

Or mayhap a friend hath said,
"Let the wine be spiced and red,
For in this drink I thy health,
Long life, happiness and wealth,"
And the Norseman press'd a kiss
On a cup perchance like this—
Long and long ago.

JUAN AND YSABEL.

In the rocky but pleasant little valley of the Rio Florido, in the state of Chihuahua, not far from the station of Corralitos on the Mexican Central railway, there may be seen the ruins of what 50 years ago was the magnificent manor house or hacienda of a large rancho. There, too, were raised the strong, black bulls for the arenas of Chihuahua and the lower provinces of Mexico. The gateway to this once famous place, although dilapidated and thrown down, has not yet crumbled into dust, but still shows the marks of its former splendor. On the left side of the entrance, about 300 feet distant from the broad road which led to the stately mansion, side by side, are two wooden crosses roughly fashioned out of oak logs, on both of which with care may still be traced a rudely carved inscription. The words are in that crude Mexico-Castilian language common to the country. That on the right as you face the line of what was once the fence surrounding the grounds of the hacienda invites the passerby to offer:

"One ave maria and a pater noster for the repose of the soul of Ysabel Mora, who fell by the hands of the Indians on the 11th day of October in the year 1845, in the flower of her youth and beauty."

On the other:

"Here lies Juan Maria Orteza, native of ——, killed by the Indians on the 11th of October, 1845. Christian, for the sake of God, pray for him."

The story of the young girl and young man who lie under these rudely hewn crosses is a sad one and absolutely true. The rancho de Cadena is about half way between the cities of Durango and Chihuahua. It flourished 50 years ago under the careful management of its owner, an aged Mexican known all over the region as "El Coxo" (the game leg). He was a widower, with a family of eight sons, each of whom was an expert in the exciting games of the country—"Colea de toros," or the more cruel and barbarous pastime of "El gallo."

"Colea de toros" in plain English is bull tailing—that is, seizing the bull in the ring by the tail and securing it under the right leg. The rider then, by wheeling his horse suddenly outward, upsets the bull in the midst of his mad career, the huge animal rolling over and over in the dust, bellowing with pain and fright. "El gallo," much more brutal, consists of fastening a rooster by the leg to a tree or to a picket driven into the ground, with its head and neck well greased. The game is played on horseback, all, starting together, strive to reach the bird first, and seizing it by the neck try to break the strings that hold it and ride off with the prize. The well greased neck generally slips through the fingers of the first who grasps it, but as soon as one finds himself in possession he rides off pursued by the rest, whose object is to rescue the fowl. Of course in the exciting contest which ensues the bird is torn to pieces. Then the fortunate possessor of the bleeding morsels presents them to his lady love as a gage d'amour.

The eight sons of "El Coxo" were conceded to be the bravest, the handsomest and the best in handling the lasso of any young men in the state of Chihuahua. Their experience from boyhood as vaqueros or herdsmen on their father's vast pastures had made them as used to sitting on a horse as in a chair, and the character of the fierce bulls which were raised on the ranch expressly for the arenas of the City of Mexico inspired them with the brave nature of the famous animals themselves.

Residing with the family was a young girl, a ward of "El Coxo," an orphan and the daughter of a friend and classmate at school. Ysabel Mora was in 1845 but 16 years old—a very pretty, black eyed, black haired girl, the "toast" of both the valley of Rio Florido and of the valley of Nazos. Her extreme loveliness even had been the talk of the great fair held in San Bartolomo.

Escamilla, the third son of "El Coxo," was just 20, stood 5 feet 10 in his shoes, was as straight as an arrow and as lithesome as the reeds that grew on the margin of the lagoons on the ranch. He was better educated than the rest of his brothers, both in a practical sense and in the usages of the best society the republic afforded, as he had attended two or three terms at school in the City of Mexico, the great capital of the great nation to which he belonged, and which he believed to be the best on earth. In his first bull fight after his return from the metropolis, he made his appearance in the arena in a most elaborate suit, fashioned from the reigning style at the capital, creating a surprise among his own sex that bordered upon jealousy and a furore among those of the opposite. He distinguished himself further by throwing three bulls successively.

Escamilla's rival in good looks and expertness in the bull ring was his brother Juan Maria—in fact, there were many of the people of the Rio Florido, both old vaqueros and young maidens, who thought Juan far surpassed Escamilla in manliness at least if not in personal beauty. He certainly equaled him in horsemanship, simply lacking perhaps some of that "brilliancy of execution" which Escamilla had acquired in the City of Mexico.

Before the return of Escamilla to Cadena Juan Maria was always the first at "El gallo" and "Colea de toros," and had ever laid his trophies of the sport at the feet of the bewitching Ysabel. At a "gallo" in December, four months before the arrival of Escamilla, Ysabel was wooed and in a measure won by the presentation of the remains of a gallant rooster at the hands of Juan Maria, who, his offering being well received, from that moment looked upon the beautiful girl as his sweetheart.

When, however, Escamilla took up his abode at the hacienda again, he, too much of an exquisite to work with his brothers and father in the great pastures, finding plenty of time on his hands for courting, supplanted Juan in the affections of the young girl. As Juan's nature was superior in frankness and open heartedness, he refrained from forcing his suit, and the affair was concluded by a day being set for the marriage of Ysabel and Escamilla.

In honor of the occasion it was determined to have a grand bull fight, at which all the neighbors within a radius of 100 miles were to be present. The morning before the ceremony was to be performed "El Coxo," with all his sons, excepting Escamilla, who remained behind to attend upon his affianced Ysabel, started out into the great pastures for the purpose of driving in the immense black bulls required for the sport, while other neighboring rancheros busied themselves in building stout corrals in which to secure them until the time arrived to lead them into the arena.

Toward evening, while the mesquite grass lay cold and gray under the shadows of the mountains, Escamilla and the happy Ysabel left their hammocks on the wide gallery of the house, where they had been resting during the sultry hours, to take a walk along the main trail leading toward the rocky hills.

When they reached a point half a mile from the gate of the hacienda, where a thicket of chapparal bounded each side of the road, suddenly there arose a cloud of dust in front of them.

"Here come the bull fighters," exclaimed Ysabel, as she withdrew her waist from the encircling arm of her lover; "let us go back to the house."

"Oh, no," replied Escamilla, "perhaps they are my father and brothers. Yes, there are eight; look!"

But what the poor girl really saw, with her eyes almost starting from their sockets and motionless with fear, as she recognized them now only a few hundred yards away, was a band of Comanches, naked to the waist, painted horribly and brandishing their lances. In a moment, heedless of the helpless maid at his side, the coward Escamilla turned and fled down the trail toward the rancho, shouting as he ran: "Los barbaros! Los barbaros!"

In a few rods a horseman met him. It was his brother Juan Maria. He had caught a young antelope with his lasso and was riding ahead of his party to present it to Ysabel. The exclamation of the frightened Escamilla and one glance up the road showed him the danger the poor girl was in. He threw the animal he was carrying to the ground, and plunging his spurs into the flanks of his horse dashed furiously to the rescue. Alas, the savages were already upon her! Ysabel, covering her face with her hands as if to thwart the impending blow and recognizing Juan, shrieked out to her old lover, "Salva me, Juan Maria, por Dios, salva me!" At that instant the lance of the nearest Indian pierced her heart, and in another her reeking scalp was swung exultantly aloft by the incarnate fiend.

Short was his triumph. Almost bounding through the air, with ever ready lasso swinging above him, Juan Maria threw the open coil from his expert hand, and it fell over the Indian's head. As the skillful thrower pulled up his bridle reins, heavily the savage tumbled to the earth. Then Juan had fearful odds to contend against. Received with a flight of arrows and unarmed except a short, rusty sword, regardless of everything but to avenge the murder of the girl he deeply loved, he attacked the nearest Indian, and bringing him within reach of his arm cleft his skull by a master stroke.

The others, terrified at the fierce look of the brave Mexican, keeping at a respectful distance from him, assailed him with a shower of arrows, and in an instant he was bleeding from a score of terrible wounds. Still the gallant Juan fought bravely, hoping against hope, and was soon encouraged by the shouts of his father and six brothers, whose horses were on the dead run to the rescue. The old man and his sons rode up in time to see Juan fall from his horse, pierced by a feathered shaft just above his breast.

"El Coxo" and his boys fought with desperate courage to avenge the murder of Ysabel and Juan. Half a dozen of the Comanches were soon made to "bite the dust," but two of the Mexicans also lay dead upon the now reddened sod. The rancheros came up in a short time from the hacienda in force, compelling the Indians to retreat, but as night was now upon them the Mexicans were obliged to abandon pursuit.

On the ground lay the still quivering body of the unfortunate Ysabel and near her the two Indians killed by the gallant Juan Maria. Juan was quite dead, 20 arrows having pierced him. Two of his brave brothers were seriously wounded, and six of the savages were killed, besides those who fell by the avenging arm of Juan.

Sadly the bodies of Ysabel and Juan Maria were borne in the darkness to the hacienda by the rancheros, whence both were buried next day, side by side, at the very hour when the marriage ceremony was to have been performed.

Escamilla, ashamed of his cowardice, disappeared. It was supposed he went to the City of Mexico, married there and purposely kept the knowledge of his whereabouts a secret.—New York Recorder.

The Amendment Introduced by Peffer Is Tabled.

The Only Thing Accomplished After Many Hours of Senseless Debate—Martin Had a Long Piece to Speak, but Fatigue Forced Him to Give Up—Allen's Speech Against Repeal Occupied Within Fifteen Minutes of Fifteen Hours—Senate Finally Adjourned at 1:30 This Morning.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Technically and from a parliamentary point of view there was no Thursday's meeting of the senate. Yesterday's proceedings will appear as a continuance of Wednesday's session. Practically and from a business point of view, however, it was one of the most important and pregnant sessions that have been held since Aug. 7 last. It began when the press dispatches closed at about 3 o'clock in the morning. The Populist senator from Nebraska, Mr. Allen, was then about two-thirds through his speech against the repeal bill, and he finished it, with intermitent rollcalls, at 8 a. m., having then occupied the floor for 14 3-4 hours.

After he had retired from the scene an amusing little interlude took place, turning around the parliamentary puzzle of how to make a senator vote in spite of himself.

Mr. Dubois (Rep., Idaho) played the principal part, and although the senate voted not to excuse him for withholding his vote, he withheld it all the same, the only penalty imposed on him being the official entry of his recalcitrancy on the journal of the senate.

Two other little episodes were played. One was the presentation by Mr. Stewart (Rep., Nev.) of a dynamite-threatening letter sent to him from Baltimore, and the other was a notice by Mr. Voorhees (Dem., Ind.) that if half-hourly rollcalls were kept up for the purpose of forcing the continuous attendance of repeal senators, he would resort to some means to compel the attendance of "the notabilities" on the other side.

A Defeat For Silverites.

The curtain fell about 10 a. m. upon the first act of the main drama. One of the two pending amendments to the repeal bill was laid on the table by a vote of 33 to 17, and thus Mr. Peffer's free coinage amendment was eliminated from the question, at least temporarily. This left only one amendment pending to the house bill, being the one reported from the finance committee, and which, in addition to the repeal section, makes a direction that it is the policy of the United States to continue the use of both gold and silver as standard money and to coin both gold and silver into money of usual intrinsic and exchangeable value—such equality to be secured through international agreement, or by legislation. There are about a dozen other impending amendments of which notice has been given, but only one of them can be offered and pending at the same time, as it will be an amendment in the second degree. All of them, however, may be offered, each in its turn, until a final vote is reached on the bill, if it ever be reached.

The debate on the bill was continued by the Democratic senator from Kansas, Mr. Martin. He began his speech against the bill at 9:40, and about 2 o'clock he apologized for having allowed himself to be diverted from the main current of his argument and promised to devote himself to the subject in an orderly manner for the next 10 hours.

The threat contained in the promise turned out, however, to be an empty one, for at 4 o'clock Mr. Martin yielded to fatigue and left the floor, so that he could seek another opportunity of addressing the senate.

After Mr. Martin the floor was taken by Mr. Teller (Rep., Colo.), who continued a speech against the bill which he began last week.

Stewart's Chatter.

About 8 o'clock last evening the situation in the senate took on a new aspect and at that hour it appeared that the silver men had assumed the aggressive, even to the extent of compelling the presence of their enemies. The visible signs of weariness on the countenances of the senators were increasing with the passage of each hour, and every time the sharp double ring of the electric bells called for a quorum they rose from their lounges and came into the chamber reluctantly. Mr. Sherman went home after dark, declaring that he would not do more than 10 hours of such work continuously.

At 6:20 Senator Stewart got the floor, and, intoxicated with the exuberance of his own verbosity, and stimulated by the sight of the tremendous audience in the galleries, he calmly replied, when appealed to to yield for a motion to take a recess, that he proposed to talk until Sunday morning without intermission. Hope was entertained in some quarters, however, that Mr. Stewart could be induced to desist before midnight.

About 9 o'clock Secretary Carlisle again made his appearance at the Capitol and was soon closeted in a committee room with several repeal senators.

At 10:45, when Mr. Stewart's voice was showing evident signs of weakness, Mr. Colquitt made the usual reference to the absence of a quorum, and Mr. Voorhees, after the roll-call had disclosed only 39 senators present, asked that the names of the absentees should be recorded.

The names (excluding the senators excused) thus blacklisted were as follows: Messrs. Aldrich, Allen, Blackburn, Butler, Call, Cameron, Carey, Chandler, Cockrell, Coke, Daniel, Dubois, George, Gibson, Hansbrough, Irby, Jones, Kyle, Martin, Mills, Peffer, Perkins, Pettigrew, Power, Pugh, Ransom, Roach, Sherman, Shoup, Teller, Vest, White and Wolcott.

It was nearly 11:30 before Messrs. Palmer, Brice and Vilas and Berry were found to complete the quorum, and Mr. Stewart, much refreshed by several cups of bouillon, resumed his talk.

Shortly before 1 o'clock Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire asked the senator from Indiana (Mr. Voorhees) whether he expected the senate to remain in session much longer without their much-needed rest. He confessed that he himself would be glad to hear a motion to adjourn. "The senator from Indiana," he continued, "need not answer unless he chooses, but if he does not answer I shall certainly not remain here much longer."

Mr. Stewart continued his speech 15 minutes longer, when, on motion of Mr. Voorhees, the senate adjourned, at 1:30 a. m.

At 1:40 this morning the sergeant-at-arms submitted his report in writing, which showed that there were two senators absent from the city, 12 excused by the senate, four unable to attend on account of sickness, nine in the Capitol who made no answer to the summons and 16 reported at their residences as absent from home and could not be found. Immediately after this report, Mr. Voorhees said that, in view of the report of the sergeant-at-arms, it was evident that no further business could be transmitted and he therefore moved that the senate adjourn. There was no opposition, and at 1:45 a. m. the senate adjourned until 11 o'clock today.

In the House.

There was a sharp debate in the morning hour of the house upon the bill, reported from the committee on public lands, to protect public forest reservations. It was vigorously attacked by Messrs. Pickler, Coffin, Simpson, Bell (Colo.), Herman and Doolittle, who asserted that the bill should have been nominated an act to denude the public forest reservations; and defended by Mr. McRea, who reported the bill, and Delegate Rawlins of Utah. Notice was given of numerous amendments, but before any of them could be acted upon the hour expired and the bill went over.

The McCreary bill, to amend and modify the Geary Chinese exclusion and registration act, was further discussed, after an announcement by Mr. McCreary that he would ask for a vote on it today at 4 o'clock. The passage of the bill was advocated by Messrs. Hitt (Rep., Ill.) and Hooker (Dem., Miss.), and Messrs. Loud (Rep., Cal.) and Bartlett (Dem., N. Y.) opposed it.

Mr. Curtis introduced a bill to repeal the clause of the army appropriation bill of 1892 which prevents the re-enlistment of privates who have served 10 years or who are over 35 years old. In lieu of this section, the bill provides that hereafter the term of enlistment in the army shall be three years, and no soldier is to be re-enlisted.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 13.—The central committee of the International Parliamentary Peace league met here yesterday. They decided to request Mr. Gladstone to introduce and bring under discussion in the British parliament a bill pledging the British government to favor the establishment of a permanent court for the arbitration of international disputes.

The most important discussion will concern the formation of a permanent diplomatic bureau, charged with the duties of obviating friction between the nations and of inducing governments to resort to arbitration will be considered, and an appeal will be issued to the world's press, begging it to abstain from all polemics calculated to excite international animosity.

The committee will request at once, by letter, that league members in Italy and France use their influence to better the relations between these countries.

THE M'KEOWN MURDER.

Larkin and Bourke Supposed to Have Committed the Deed.

HARTFORD, Oct. 13.—In the police court yesterday, John Fee, Mary J. McCoy, Thomas J. Larkin and John F. Bourke were arraigned for a preliminary hearing on the charge of murdering James McKeown on the night of Sept. 24. The cases against Fee and the McCoy woman were nolle prossed, but they were held as witnesses.

Dr. Knight testified as to the cause of McKeown's death. The compound fracture of the skull, he said, must have been occasioned by a blow from a club or blunt stick. It could not have been caused by a fall. Other bruises and cuts were caused through violence, not by a fall. The theory of the defense, as shown by the cross-examination, is that McKeown's death was caused by a fall.

Were Afraid to Go Home.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—They were late and afraid to go to school for fear of being scolded. That's the way little Alonzo Cook and his smaller sister account for their wandering away in the woods Monday morning, since which time, up to yesterday afternoon, they had been missing from their home in Brighton. ## CITIES IN DANGER.

Another Cyclone Threatens to Sweep the South.

IT HAS REACHED FLORIDA.

Sea Islanders Will Probably Be the Greatest Sufferers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The World's Jacksonville special says: One of the most terrible wind and rain storms ever known here is now raging along the Florida coast, extending inland about 50 miles. The storm is a regular West India cyclone. Reports received here from Key West state that the storm passed over that city Tuesday and Wednesday, doing much damage.

Reports from St. Augustine are to the effect that the city is partly submerged by water breaking over the sea wall. Further particulars cannot be had.

Pablo beach, Mayport and Fernandino are in great peril. Trains on the Jacksonville, Mayport and Pablo railway are tied up by the high rains.

Savannah Is Frightened.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 13.—Savannah is in the teeth of a storm, which threatens in a few hours to equal in intensity that of Aug. 27, which swept the entire Georgia and South Carolina coasts.

The predictions of the weather bureau gave ample warning, and all day preparations have been in progress in the city, on river and harbor, to protect property from its ravages. The wind is now blowing 40 miles an hour and steadily increasing. All vessels in the harbor have sought shelter and safe anchorages.

The smaller craft, towboats, pilot boats and yachts have been massed in slips and tied fast.

No vessels left port yesterday. The Boston steamship Gate City, which was to have sailed last night, has been made fast to her docks, and will remain until the storm has passed.

The New York steamer City of Augusta is due today, and it is feared will be caught in the storm. A number of vessels were due from domestic and foreign ports, and one or two are believed to be off the bar. In the city little damage has yet been done. The full force of the storm is expected to reach here soon. A heavy rain is now falling.

The Sea islands are probably doomed to a repetition of the experiences of August.

Communication will probably be cut off from here. Considerable anxiety is felt.

The damage to property and the loss of life in this section, it is feared, will be great once more.

Dr. Parker's Hot Shot.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Dr. Joseph Parker of the City Temple (Congregationalist) surprised a large audience last evening by making a hot attack on the established church. He is understood to have been irritated by the established church's unyielding attitude at the Birmingham congress. Dr. Parker said that the bishop of London should be expelled from his bishopric.

Missing From Lynn.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 13.—Benjamin Scott, 40 years of age, of 22 Crescent street, cannot be found. He has been missing several weeks, but as it was first supposed that he had gone away to visit relatives, no search was made for him. Mr. Scott is single. His friends are communicating with parties all over the country in hopes of getting some trace of the missing man.

Grand Welcome Awaits Russians.

TOULON, Oct. 13.—Many anxious eyes are turned seaward to watch for the coming of the fleet of Russian warships, preparations for the reception of the officers of which have been made on a scale of lavishness seldom, if ever, equaled by the city. The city is gayly decorated. Tricolors and Russian colors flaunt from all the buildings.

A Fatal Wedding Trip.

ROME, Oct. 13.—The aeronaut Charbonnet, who was married three days ago, set out with his bride and two friends to go in a balloon over the Alps to France. The balloon struck a glacier in the Italian Alps. The car was smashed and all the travelers were thrown out. Charbonnet was killed instantly and the others were injured severely.

Both Left Families Behind.

BUFFALO, Oct. 13.—A special from Medina says: William Shanley, a well known young man of this place, has eloped with Mrs. Edward Chase. He left a wife and four children, and Mrs. Chase left a husband and two children. Officers have traced them to Detroit, where they will be arrested.

To Close Up Shop.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13.—The Mercantile Trust company of this city, with a capital stock of $1,000,000, has decided to go out of business on account of the extremely high rate of risks, which the company did not feel justified in assuming during the recent financial depression.

Christian Endeavorers Adjourn.

TRENTON, Oct. 13.—The Christian Endeavor convention was brought to an end with two large meetings last night. Dr. E. E. Clarke of Boston, the founder of the society, and Rev. J. Judson Pierson, president of the state organization, were the principal speakers.

Prefers Law.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The president has accepted the resignation of First Lieutenant A. D. Andrews, U. S. A. Lieutenant Andrews is the son-in-law of Major-General Schofield, and he resigns to take up the practice of law in New York city.

Solid For Gladstone.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 13.—At a meeting of the Innesfail branch of the Irish Federation, resolutions were adopted protesting against the actions of John Redmond and asserting their adherence to the policy of Gladstone.

BURGLARS FRIGHTENED.

An Attempt to Break Into the Residence of Charles Henry Hardwick.

About 3.30 o'clock this morning the occupants of Mr Charles H. Hardwick's residence on Washington street were awakened by the loud ringing of the burglar alarm in the house. Mr. Hardwick was not at home and the ladies began to scream, which aroused Constable Furnald, who resides on the other side of the street. Mr. Furnald and others went over and upon investigation found that burglars had made an attempt to enter the house by forcing one of the windows on the lower floor, this started the burglar alarm at which the party or parties made a hasty retreat.

About this time a team was heard to drive down Chestnut street, and it is supposed that it contained the house-breakers, three in number.

FEDERHEN AND FORD.

The Choice of Quincy Democrats for Representatives—Nominations Ratified.

The Democratic Representative convention to nominate two candidates, was held at the Probate court room, Thursday evening.

James F. Burke was elected chairman and William H. Sampson Jr., secretary.

A committee of five consisting of John A Duggan, William F. Powers, F F. Green, W. H. Sullivan and Charles T. Baker were appointed a committee on credentials.

This committee reported delegates present as follows: Ward One, 7; Ward Two, 10; Ward Three, 13; Ward Four, 15; Ward Five, 6; Ward Six, 5; and one at large, Total 57.

The temporary organization was then made permanent.

Fred F. Green placed the name of Herbert M. Federhen, Jr., in nomination, and Michael T. Sullivan nominated Timothy F. Ford.

Upon motion of Mr. Green the above were nominated by acclamation and the convention dissolved.

Joint Convention.

A joint convention was then held to ratify the nominations made at Weymouth and Quincy.

The Weymouth delegates, six in number, presented the name of Albert P. Worthen as their candidate.

The nominations were then ratified.

Messrs. Powers, Hart and Green were appointed to escort the nominees into the convention.

The three gentlemen Messrs. Worthen, Ford and Federhen were received with cheers, and after they had made their remarks of acceptance, the joint convention dissolved.

Price—Faxon.

The residence of Mr. J. Franklin Faxon, Adams street, Quincy, was the scene of a brilliant gathering last evening, the occasion being the marriage of his daughter, Caroline Childs, to Mr. Charles A. Price of the Exchange bank, Boston. The ceremony, which was witnessed by about one hundred persons, was performed by Rev. D. Munro Wilson. Miss Rice, daughter of W. B. Rice, E-q., of Quincy, was maid of honor, and Mr. Robert E. Price, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Messrs. L. D. Williams, Fred B. Rice, George P. Bell, John T. Whicher, Harry W. Anderson, George S. Keyes, Jr., Homer Bigelow and Charles H. Porter, Jr. A large reception followed the ceremony.

BRAINTREE.

The meeting of Amana Rebekah Lodge, I. O. O. F., Thursday evening was very largely attended, Grand Master Cook, Grand Marshal Thomas, the district deputy, and delegations from Abigail Adams Lodge of Weymouth and Azar Lodge of Dorchester being present. Two candidates were initiated in a very creditable manner, the work being highly praised by the grand officers and other speakers. A bountiful collation was served

The Selectmen of Braintree have called a special town meeting for Friday evening Oct. 20. One of the articles is to see if the town will reinstruct the building committee to proceed with the construction of a new school-house at East Brasntree. Other articles are for the acceptance of new streets.

ODD FELLOWSHIP.

Another Lodge of That Noble Order Instituted in Quincy.

JOHN HANCOCK LODGE, NO. 224.

The New Lodge Located at Wollaston —Charter Members, Officers, Etc.

"Odd Fellowship! 'tis ever blest
With blessings from above;
'Tis twined amid the widow's prayer,
And in the Orphan's love."

That Odd Fellowship is popular in Quincy is evident from the fact that within ten years, two lodges and an encampment have been instituted in this city. As early as 1845 Odd Fellowship flourished in Quincy, but a few years later Mr. Wollaston Lodge surrendered its charter, and it was not until 1884 that it was reorganized with the old name and number. Today it is numerically and financially strong, has fine quarters and enthusiastic members. Manet Encampment No. 75 was instituted two years ago and is doing good work.

The second lodge, John Hancock, No. 224, was instituted at Wollaston on Thursday under favorable circumstances, and with a good field in which to work.

The ceremony took place at 4 P. M, in Knights of Honor hall, a finely appointed lodge hall, and was performed in an impressive manner by the following

Grand Officers.

Louis A. Cook, Grand Master.
A. S. Esty, Grand Warden.
Charles D. Cole, Grand Secretary.
Julius L. Clark, Grand Treasurer.
Joseph H. York, Grand Instructor.
H. A. Ruggles, Deputy Grand Master.
H. A. Thomas, Grand Marshal.
J. L. Martin, Assistant Grand Secretary.
Harvey Clark, Assistant Grand Instructor.
C. A. Boynton, Grand Guardian.
William E. Kelley, Acting Grand Chaplain.
Elmer Willett, Grand Conductor.
W. H. Cobb and Franklin Jacobs, District Deputy Grand Masters.

Charter Members.

The charter members of new lodge includes two councilmen, the postmaster and other well known citizens as will be seen:

| | |
|---|---|
| A. F. Delano, | E. L. Robbins, |
| C S. Berry | T. B. Gram, |
| David Brown, Jr. | C. P. Hutchings, |

| E. W. Chandler, | C. F. Wilde, |
| E. S. Thomas, | Chas. J. Hunnegar, |
| A. L. Stiggins, | Judson Smith, |

H. W. Marshall.

Two members were admitted by card, Dr. Homer Clark and Josiah Kendall, and the following were elected to membership, and with few exceptions were initiated in the evening. The list is headed by the Mayor of the city, and includes two more Councilmen and several professional gentlemen:

| | |
|---|---|
| Hon H O. Fairbanks, | W G. Keys, |
| Dr. W Record | E. Hardy, |
| Watson H. Brasee, | J. S. Blaxton, |

| E. E. Hoxie, | A. L. Burr, |
| J. C. Butters, | C H. Bichus, |
| C. F. West, | T. H. Chase. |

Lodge Officers.

The elected and appointed officers of the new lodge are:

P. G.,—David Brown, Jr.
N. G.,—A. F. Delano.
V. G.,—Eliab W. Chandler.
R. S.,—Enoch S Thomas.
T.,—J. L. Smith.
P. S.,—Charles P. Hutchins.
Con.,—Theodore B. Gram.
W.,—Thomas F. Mitchell.
I. G.,—Frank E. Badger.
O. G.,—L W. Nash.
R S. N G.,—Edward L. Robbins.
L. S. N. G.,—Charles F. Wilde.
R. S. V. G.,—H. W. Marshall.
L. S. V. G.,—Charles S. Berry.
R. S. S.,—Edward E Hoxie.
L. S S.,—Frank E West.

After the installation of the above officers a recess was taken until 7.30, and an adjournment was made to the Wollaston Hotel where supper was served.

In the Evening

The grand officers with Grand Instructor York in the chair initiated 32 members in the presence of a large gathering of Odd Fellows, many being present from Mt. Wollaston and Boston lodges.

Ladies of Wollaston showed their good will toward the new lodge by presenting a Bible. Odd Fellows regard the word of God as the source of all true wisdom, divine and human, and as it is indispensable in a lodge room, the gift with gilt inscription will be highly prized.

Interesting speeches followed by Grand Master Cook, Mayor Fairbanks and others.

After the meeting adjourned a collation was served in Boynton & Russell's hall.

The new lodge was placed in the same district as Mt Wollaston of Quincy and Puritan of Braintree, of which G. M. Bump of Brockton, is district deputy.

"Let TRUTH prevail o'er all the earth,
And men in FRIENDSHIP meet;
LOVE will cement the tie, and
Our three bright links complete."

ARRESTED IN CHICAGO.

John E. Butler, the Absconding Boston Lawyer, Comes to Grief.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—While in Boston John E. Butler was being branded as a forger in the courts of this city the absconding lawyer was being placed in custody in Chicago. Particulars of the arrest have just been telegraphed to Boston. It seems that three years ago Butler obtained more than $3000 from C. A. Campbell of this city on forged paper, after which he disappeared. Since that time his whereabouts have been unknown until yesterday, when he was seen in Chicago by the very man whom he swindled.

Mr. Campbell was in the city on a visit to the World's fair when he chanced to meet Butler on the street, and recognized him instantly. Unseen he followed the much-wanted lawyer until he saw him enter a business house. Then he hurried to the central police station and secured a policeman, who arrested Butler and locked him up at the station.

Butler has been disbarred since he disappeared from Boston, and several discreditable transactions on his part have been brought to light in the courts.

Boston police received word yesterday that Butler was in custody and would be held to await their pleasure. Requisition papers will be procured at once, and he will be brought back to await the result of the charges which were pending against him when he jumped bail.

The case was called at Chicago before Justice Bradwell, but was continued until Oct. 18. Butler refused to say anything about the charge against him.

UPRISING OF THE REDSKINS

Likely to Soon Occur In the Vicinity of Pine Ridge Agency.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—There is said to be a strong possibility of another Indian outbreak in the Pine Ridge section. The Big Foot band, which Colonel Forsythe seriously crippled some time ago, recently marched 400 strong, including 130 fighting bucks, from the Standing Rock agency to Pine Ridge, where they declared they would remain if they had to fight. They said their people were buried there, and they wanted to make it their home. Captain Penny immediately called out his 60 Indian police, arming each with 40 rounds of cartridges, to preserve order, and two troops of the famous Ninth cavalry were dispatched to escort the Big Foot Indians back to Standing Rock. This may precipitate trouble.

Mr. Noyes' Victory.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 13.—The American Board of Foreign Missions decided to accept Rev. W. H. Noyes as a missionary to Japan. There was an animated discussion over a resolution to reject him. Mr. Noyes has taught the doctrine of probation after death. In the resolution this was termed "A looseness of views on the interpretation of the Scriptures." Mr. Noyes' appointment had been twice declined owing to his views. His appointment was confirmed by a vote of 106 in his favor and 24 against him.

Government Troops Defeated.

MONTEVIDEO, Oct. 13.—The insurgents in Rio Grande do Sul surprised and defeated the troops of the Brazilian government. The battle was fought at Quaratum. Two hundred of the government troops were killed and many more were wounded.

Schooners In Collision.

MENDOCINO, Cal., Oct. 13.—The schooners Corinthian and Albion collided at Albion yesterday. The captain of the Albion was drowned. The remainder of the crew was saved. The Corinthian was badly damaged and was run ashore.

Sunk In the Ohio River.

PADUCAH, Ky., Oct. 13.—The steamer City of Savannah sunk a few miles below here yesterday. It is reported that no lives were lost. It is thought the steamer can be raised without damage.

Improved Condition of Finances.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Decided improvement is shown in the abstract of the condition of national banks in New York and Philadelphia made public by the comptroller of the currency.

Funeral Was Private.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—The funeral of Waldo Messaros, the one-time eminent clergyman, was privately held yesterday afternoon.

Crew Was Saved.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The life saving service has been notified that the schooner Ada A. Kennedy of Rockland, Me., had stranded off Cuttyhunk, Mass. The crew was saved.

Epworth Meeting.

The Epworth Consecration meeting last Sunday evening at the West Quincy M. E. Church, was largely attended, and many testimonies were given. There were new voices that spoke of consecration to a Christian life. At the monthly business meeting of the League on Monday evening an earnest interest was manifested to carry forward the work in the interest of the young people. A committee was appointed to arrange and ornament the small vestry of the church as Epworth headquarters. Quite a list of names were elected to membership, and several previously elected signed the constitution and thus completed the terms of membership.

HONEST PRAISE.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa Does Good Work in Maine.

Earnest Endorsement of Kickapoo Remedies from the Extreme North Eastern Section of the United States. Merit Alone Could Have Made These Remedies so Widely known and Universally Indorsed by the People.

MONTICELLO, Aroostook Co., Me. Oct. 15, 1892.

John S. White.

I wish to tell you what your great medicine Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, has done for me and my family.

My wife was very sick and had been failing for a long time, and her old family physician said she could not live. We tried another doctor, and he told the same story, said she could not live three months. She had been confined to her bed for almost two years and was now almost bedfast. The doctor said she had Consumption complicated with Heart Disease and Liver Trouble, and we were about discouraged.

I then heard of your remedy and told my wife about it,

She decided to try it, and before she had taken half a bottle she felt better. When she had taken two bottles she was gaining fast, and before the third bottle was finished she completely recovered her health, and has been a well woman ever since, and her cure is a wonder to all.

Some time after this I was taken sick and my trouble was pronounced Dyspepsia by a physician who relieved me some, but did not cure me. My wife advised me to try Sagwa. I did so and was cured. Soon after that I was attacked with the Grippe and could not get rid of it. Every time I had a cold I was completely used up. At my wife's suggestion I tried Kickapoo Indian Sagwa again, and after using less than two bottles I considered myself entirely well and have remained well ever since. I think I can say that Sagwa is the best remedy that a family can have. In case of Colds there is nothing better that I know of than taking a good dose before going to bed, and my wife says she would not think of keeping house without a bottle of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. She says it saved her life with the help of Providence, and I can say that under the hand of Almighty God I owe my life to the wonderful medicine of all medicines, the great gift of nature, Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, and all the world should know of its intrinsic worth. Its value as a family remedy is beyond comparison.

Mrs. John S. White.

QUINCY POINT FARMERS.

They Hold a Very Successful Harvest Festival in the Church.

The harvest festival given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Washington Street Congregational church, in the vestry Thursday evening was a decided success. The display of the farm products was the finest ever shown at the Point. Much credit is due those who had the arrangements in charge.

The display was gathered from the Point and its vicinity, and well paid for the earnest work put into its collection. Among the noticable productions was a large squash donated by Mr. Whipp of North Weymouth, and a cabbage weighing twenty-six pounds donated by Mr. Walter Redding of the Point. Also some large apples and pears.

Following is a full list of contributors:
Mr. Walter S. Redding.
Kendall farm, Weymouth.
Mr. J. Q. A. Field, South Quincy.
Mount Wollaston farm, Quincy.
Ford farm, North Weymouth.
Mrs. M. S. Kittredge, Quincy Point.
Mrs. Samuel Hayden, Quincy Point.
Mrs. Charles Hayden, Quincy Point.
Mrs. John Wilkins, Quincy Point.
Mr. Silas Duffield, Quincy Point.
Mr. Thomas Meaney, Quincy Point.
Mr. Joshua Wilkins, Weymouth.
Mr. T. H. Newcomb, Quincy Point.
Mr. Wm. Chubbuck, Quincy Point.
Mrs. R. H. Newcomb, Quincy Point.
Mr. S. F. Newcomb, Quincy Point.
Mr. Dexter Bosworth, Quincy Point.
Mr. Whipp, North Weymouth.
Mr. G. E. Davis, Weymouth.
Mr. Stinchfield, Quincy Point.
Mr. John White, Quincy Point.
Mr. Elisha Bass, East Weymouth.
Mrs. Joseph Lapham, Quincy Point.
Mr. T. B. Thomas, Quincy Point.

A vote of thanks is hereby extended to the above for their generous contribution.

The entertainment of the evening must not be forgotten. The solos rendered by Miss Fergerson and Mr. Fergerson were well rendered. Miss Ferguson having a fine voice. Mrs. Davis, who has before favored the Point, gave some of her pleasant readings. Miss Pauline Wilkins also rendered a piano solo.

The advent of a mouse during the entertainment, caused some delay, which was not vexatious; but rather increased the good humor of the audience.

If the ladies keep up to this standard in their following entertainments, their winters' work will meet with success.

Surprise and Presentation.

Thursday evening a number of the gentlemen friends of Mr. James Brogan, who recently took unto himself a wife, called upon him at his residence on Payne street, and presented him with an elegant Turkish couch and two water colored pictures handsomely framed.

Mr. Stephen A. Pierce made the presentation speech in his usual pleasing manner.

Mr. Brogan was completely surprised, and after forcing down the lump that arose in his throat he thanked them for their pleasing gift and invited them into the house where a lunch was partaken of.

Entertainment at Atlantic.

The Ladies' Benevolent society held opening night Wednesday and there was a crowded house. The supper was an unusually fine one and so was the entertainment which was as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Piano duett, | Misses Hall and Bemis |
| Violin solo, | Mr. Hayden |
| Song, | Miss. Briggs |
| The Rainbow Drill, | Seventeen girls |
| Song, | Mrs. Perkins |
| Reading, | Miss Knowles |
| Violin solo, | Mr. Hayden |

MILTON.

The Milton fire department have been called out twice this week to extinguish brush fires in Mattapan.

The dry goods store on Adams street near T. L. Pierce store, is to be moved to Gallagher's building on Granite avenue. A drug store will be opened in the store vacated.

The death of George Enderle came suddenly Thursday morning. Not feeling well he arose about 3.30 o'clock, and while his wife was building a fire he dropped dead. Rural Lodge of Masons of Quincy will attend the funeral services on Sunday.

WEYMOUTH.

The Prohibitionists of Quincy and Weymouth held their convention last evening and nominated William W. Marple of Quincy, George A. Beedham and A. F. G. Hunt of Weymouth, as candidates for the General Court from this district.

Only 2½ per cent. of the women of Connecticut who were entitled to vote for school officers for the first time this year went to the polls last week, and in more than one-half of the Connecticut towns not a single woman exercised the privilege which has been conferred upon the sex.

—The parliament of New Zealand has conferred full suffrage upon women and the governor has signed the bill.

☞ Scores of citizens, even some of the local dealers have called at our store during the past week, to look at our new line of parlor stoves, and criticize them carefully—Its a line to be proud of, and you can't help wondering how we sell them so low $2.98 to $25. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

AN EXTENSION OF TIME.

World's Fair Will Remain Open In November If Weather Permits.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—The special committee recently appointed to consider the question of keeping the fair open after this month has practically decided in favor of doing so as long as the weather will permit, and as long as the people come in sufficient numbers to make it profitable.

The plan is to continue charging the present admission fees and to induce as many foreign and American exhibitors to keep their displays intact as possible. Many foreign exhibitors have already agreed to do so and every one who has an exhibit was given a permit for its removal from the fair upon application. The department of admissions and the executive officers of the fair are making arrangements for November as if the plan had been formally adopted.

Auditor Ackerman's monthly statement of the exposition's finances to Sept. 30 shows that the exposition is not only out of debt, but has a handsome balance in the treasury. The amount realized so far from the sale of souvenir coins is $1,929,120; gate receipts for September, $2,263,058, against $1,634,518 for August; total gate receipts to end of September, $7,494,593.

HIS PROPERTY ATTACHED

The Old Colony Moves Against Washburn and His Bondsmen.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—The Old Colony railroad is proceeding against John M. Washburn ex-treasurer of the company, who resigned at the last meeting of the corporation with an estimated shortage of $90,000 in his accounts. The Old Colony has attached the property of John M. Washburn for $50,000. This writ was general in its terms. On the same day they attached the residence on Beacon street, occupied by the Washburn family, and standing in the name of Elizabeth Washburn, for $50,000. They claim that the property is justly liable for the deficiency in the treasurer's accounts.

The corporation has now brought a joint action of contract against William D. Forbes, ex-president of the Bank of Redemption, and ex-Treasurer John M. Washburn. There were two writs, each for $10,000, and the real estate of Mr. Forbes in Suffolk county was attached under both of them. Mr. Forbes was one of Mr. Washburn's bondsmen.

WHOLE TOWN SUNK.

Props Gave Way In Worked Out Mines In a Mining District.

LEADVILLE, Colo., Oct. 13.—The ground on which the coal mining town is located began to sink, and people were startled from sleep by the cracking of the walls of their houses. Many rushed out to find the ground depressed two feet or more in many places. It has been discovered that the wells have gone dry, the great cracks in the earth allowing the water to sink into the mine workings.

The cause of the sinking is due to the giving way of the props on the worked-out coal districts. If this continues much longer the entire town will be rendered unfit for habitation.

A Skirmish With Outlaws.

MCALLISTER, I. T., Oct. 13.—Deputy United States Marshals Gannon and Stanfield report a lively fight with the Woodward gang of outlaws near Fifty-two Springs. Over 200 shots were fired. Joe Pierce, a desperado, was killed, and all the outlaws' horses were killed. All of the other outlaws were wounded, but escaped. The deputies escaped uninjured.

Starved to Death.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 13.—Mrs. Amy Peck of Lyme, an eccentric old lady, who had been fasting 51 days, ate a little nourishment and in a few moments expired. She was 71 years of age, and for the last two weeks of her life she lay in a comatose state. All the physicians who attended her are unable to determine the cause of her ailment.

Sentence Deferred.

MACHIAS, Me., Oct. 13.—The trial of Bela Noyes, charged with the murder of John Edgar at Danforth, in July, commenced Tuesday morning, and last evening the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter. Judge Libby remanded the prisoner to jail. Sentence was deferred.

Sued For $315,000.

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 13.—A suit was begun here in which Christopher Lewis claims damages to the extent of over $315,000 from Robert H. Coleman for nonfulfillment of contract in 1884, by which the latter was to furnish machinery for the operation of a buckshot furnace.

Five Hundred Horses Lost.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Frenzied with fright and driven into a stampede by a raging fire that broke out early last evening in the Wallace street barns of the Chicago City Railway company, 500 horses were either suffocated or burned to death. The barns were entirely destroyed.

Laid Up For Repairs.

HONG KONG, Oct. 13.—The German bark Martha Bockhahn, from Philadelphia for Nagasaki, has put into this port in distress. She was in heavy weather, during which she was compelled to cut away her foremast, and she is otherwise damaged.

Heavy Real Estate Dealer Assigns.

MONTREAL, Oct. 13.—J. S. Thompson, one of the largest real estate dealers in this city, has abandoned his estate to his creditors. Liabilities $275,000. The assets are all in real estate and cannot now be realized upon at a profit.

Sent to an Asylum,

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Cassius Belden, who created such a furore some days ago by shooting into the board of trade pit and wounding three people, was consigned to the Kankakee insane asylum yesterday afternoon.

Yellow Jack.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Oct. 13.—Nineteen new cases of yellow fever were reported yesterday. There was one death. The rate of mortality is expected to increase. At Jessup two cases of fever were also reported.

Kansas Republicans' Big Claim.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 13.—Republican leaders from Kansas who were here yesterday claimed that they would carry 70 counties at the coming election, against 45 last year.

Alabama Democrats For Repeal.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 13.—A poll of the state Democratic committee shows that every member of it is in favor of the pending bill for the repeal of the Sherman law.

Still Lower.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The gold reserve in the treasury continues to decline, being $86,000,000.

A BUNDLE OF OLD SERMONS.

The ink is brown, the paper soiled,
How long ago the writer toiled
Upon these pages;
And as we read their old world lore,
Their quaint allusions—they restore
The past to us; we live once more
In bygone days.

We hear as if by magic charm
Once more the "Tate and Brady" psalm,
Which pleased so vastly.
The church and rustic flock grow plain,
The high oak pews, the latticed pane—
We hear the sermon preached again
From the text to "lastly."

No novel views of ancient sense,
No daring flights of eloquence
Were here embodied.
The placid hearers felt no thrill,
But sat in sleepy comfort still,
While Jack demurely glanced at Jill
And parents nodded.

Indeed, none listened much, I fear,
To all these periods, painting clear
The saint and sinner,
Until at length there came the close
To stir the drowsy from repose,
And priest and people both arose
And went to dinner.

Ah, sermons of the long ago,
Yours was another age, we know;
And now our preachers,
Each furnished with his special plan
To benefit bewildered man,
Denounce as loudly as they can
Their rival teachers.

Yet, as your pages we retrace
In this our age of cultured grace,
The question lingers:
If all of us are happier men
Than those who filled our places when
Your sage designer took the pen
Between his fingers?
—Anthony C. Deane in Temple Bar.

The Cause of the Pause.

Scene—A grand dinner party.

Fraulein Helene from Berlin enjoyed herself famously, for her neighbor at the table was Baron von Adlersklau, a gentleman of refined manners and brilliant wit.

"Then you are opposed to the agitation for the emancipation of women?"

"At least I should like it to take some other form than that contemplated by its present leaders, mein fraulein."

"How do you mean, Herr Baron?"

Here the baron suddenly turned away and made no reply. Helene repeated her question and anxiously waited for an answer, which did not come, for the baron now seemed entirely oblivious of her presence.

Deeply hurt, the young lady rose and left the table. Mrs. Schinkle hastened after her:

"What is the matter, child?"

In a tone half stifled with sobs Helene related to the hostess what had passed and ended by saying:

"Can I have offended him?"

"Oh, dear, no!" said Mrs. Schinkle, laughing heartily. "This baron was obtained from an agency for the hire of dinner guests, and as we thought that dinner would be over by 9 we engaged him only till that time—the clock struck when he ceased talking."—Boston Globe.

Sport Versus Amusement.

Mr. Herbert Spencer recently put very neatly the distinction between sport as an amusement and as an occupation. Dropping in at his club, he met a young friend, who invited him to play a game of billiards. The philosopher led off and left the balls in a good position for his opponent, who dexterously ran out, not allowing his companion another shot. Then the young expert naturally looked at the philosopher for the customary compliment, but the loser of the game said, very seriously, after depositing his cue in the rack, "Sir, a certain proficiency in such a sport as this is a sign of a good education of the eye, the nerve, the hand, but the mastership of billiards which you have exhibited could have been acquired only by an ill spent youth."—London Life.

Cherokee Strip Indian Names.

In civilizing the Indian into a plug hat and English terminology we all too quickly forget to perpetuate him in the geographical nomenclature of the land he once so graphically christened. Of the seven new counties in the Cherokee strip, but one bears an Indian name. The others have names which are wholly commonplace, which are not associated with any incident to give them meaning, and which partake not in the slightest degree of the local tone and color of a region which has a rude but picturesque history and abounds in romantic traditions which ought to be preserved in the names of its towns and counties. —Kansas City Star.

He Was Floored.

A little 4-year-old boy said to his father, "Pa, can God do everything?" "Yes, my son." "Could he make me a 2-year-old colt in two minutes?" "He would not wish to do that, my son." "But if he did wish to do it, could he?" "Yes, in two minutes." "Well, then, the colt wouldn't be 2 years old, would he?" The father was kind of floored and carried the youngster to bed and made him say his prayers.—New York Recorder.

James Whitcomb Riley is one of the few writers of verse who find poetry profitable. It is said that he has accumulated a comfortable store of dollars and has purchased as a permanent dwelling place the old Indiana homestead of his family.

A traveler in the Malay peninsula says that the natives have in use there the smallest coin in the world. It is a wafer made from the resinous juice of a tree, and its value is estimated to be 1-10,000th of a penny.

There is one sure way of telling mushrooms from toadstools—the stems of the former are generally shorter and thicker and invariably solid; the stems of the toadstools are hollow.

Three good washes are received by an Abyssinian during his career—at his birth, on his marriage morn and at his death. At all other times he shuns soap and water.

Two dozen pewter plates, which are claimed to have formed the camp service of General Washington, are in the possession of Mrs. James Grant Wilson of New York.

The Governors of 33 States.

Out of 44 governors of the U. S., 33 are using H-O. This seems to be an overwhelming vote in favor of the greatest of all breakfast foods.

Unquestionably, H-O is the best cereal on the market. No expense is spared to make it the best in the world.

Missionary Coan In America.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—F. J. Coan, the American missionary, who, it was feared, was murdered by Mohammadens at Oroomiah, Persia, sailed for New York with his wife and children last June. The London agents of his missionary society say that he went to America for a prolonged rest and they believe that he is still there.

Took a Dose of Creosote.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Robert J. Simpson, 30 years of age, who says that he resides at New York city, attempted to end his life by swallowing a dose of creosote at the corner of Boylston street and Chester park yesterday afternoon. He was found in great agony by an officer. He may recover.

Burned to Death While Drunk.

CORNING, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Thomas Guinn, aged 55 years, a farmer of Greenwood, was burned to death in his house, which was destroyed by fire. It is supposed that Guinn was drunk when he went to bed.

Rape Fiend Killed by Police.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 13.—March Walkof, the negro who outraged Helen Young, a mute girl, in her home, was shot and killed by a squad of mounted police while attempting to escape from a house where he was in hiding.

Two Men Badly Burned.

FREEPORT, Ill., Oct. 13.—Devere & Patterson's large building was entirely destroyed by fire yesterday. The third floor was used as a lodging-house. Edward Jordan and Aaron Dunway were fearfully burned.

Off For the World's Fair.

QUEBEC, Oct. 13.—Lord and Lady Aberdeen, with Captain Kindersley, have left for Chicago. They will put up at the Irish village until the 22d of October, when they go to Toronto.

The blue laws of Connecticut were so called because they were printed on blue tinged paper. These are some of them:

No one shall be a freeman or have a vote unless he is converted and a member of one of the churches allowed in the dominion.

No dissenter from the essential worship of this dominion shall be allowed to give a vote for electing magistrates or any other officer.

No food or lodging shall be offered to a heretic.

No one shall cross the river on the Sabbath but an authorized clergyman.

No one shall travel, cook victuals, make bets, sweep houses, cut hair or shave on the Sabbath day.

No one shall kiss his or her children on the Sabbath or feasting-day.

The Sabbath day shall begin at sunset Saturday.

Whoever wears clothes trimmed with gold, silver or bone lace above one shilling a yard shall be presented by the grand jurors, and the selectmen shall tax the estate £300.

Whoever brings cards or dice into the dominion shall be fined £5.

No one shall eat mince pies, dance, play cards or play any instrument of music except the drum, trumpet or jew's harp.

No man shall court a maid in person or by letter without obtaining the consent of her parents: £5 penalty for the first offense, £10 for the second and for the third punishment imprisonment during the pleasure of the court.

LOOK AT THEIR FACES. We ask our readers to look at the faces of these people who ride about our streets on or behind these dock-tailed, mutilated horses, and see how many kind, noble, generous, merciful, and happy faces they can find among them, and on the other hand, how many hard, cold, cruel, dissipated, scornful and unhappy ones. We shall not be surprised if the time is not far distant when, not only all our "Band of Mercy" members, but every school-boy in Massachusetts will be ready to say whenever he sees any owner riding or driving one of these poor mutilated animals, "There goes the Bob-tail Aristocracy!"—Our Dumb Animals.

—There is a man in Worcester county who cannot afford to take the local paper, but could spare one dollar's worth of postage stamps which he sent to a Maine Yankee to learn how best to raise beets. The answer came back; "Take hold of the tops and pull for all you're worth."—Clinton Democrat.

☞ You have undoubtedly heard stories of dreamy hours, soothing, pleasant and restful. Try one of our delightful Lace Web Spring Beds, something new, that rests your weary bones and makes life well worth living. No heavy wood frames—textile light and airy $5.00. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

Anger.

Bridle thy passions! Anger is the sin
Of all the greatest; it leads up to deeds
Known only to the darkest hours of night;
It tempts the upright man to throw aside
His cloak of reason and go forth to dip
His hands in human blood; it covers up
The path where duty walks with steadfast feet,
It will not listen to the soft appeals
Of maiden loveliness, or turn aside
From its fierce purpose when the dimpled hands
Of mercy are held up before its gaze.
It will not falter in its stubborn course
When old age counsels with great swelling words.
It is the curse of youth and middle age,
Of gray haired men and women. It benumbs
The sensibilities of all alike.
'Tis only fit to live where madmen live,
Or stalled behind the strongest prison bars.
—Herbert E. Day.

"Yes; I knew him better than you did, it seems."—Life.

THE STORMY PETREL.

Some of the Curious Superstitions of Old Sailors About the Bird.

One of the best known of the sea birds is the stormy petrel. It is oftenest seen during storms, flying above the waves in search of the shellfish and other small animals that are brought to the surface by the tempest. The sailors call petrels "Mother Carey's chickens" and do not view them with much favor, owing to their being constant companions of storms. Jack thinks that rough weather may be expected when he sees petrels about and is not quite sure that they do not in some way cause the tempest. When the bird is on the outlook for its prey, it seems to walk on the water. Hence the seamen of olden time, in allusion to the apostle Peter's walking on the water, called the bird petrel, from the Latin Petrellus, "Little Peter."

So far from the sailor's being superstitious as to the capture of another kind of petrel—the Cape pigeon—which is of a black and white color and about the size of a tame pigeon, I have known Jack to take a hand occasionally in capturing them as a bit of recreation during a dog-watch. In southern latitudes the Cape pigeons follow a ship in thousands. The method of catching them is peculiar. A common bottle cork is tied to the end of a long piece of thread and trailed astern so that the cork touches the water. This gives the required tautness to the thread. As the birds fly in clouds from side to side astern some of them constantly strike the thread with their wings, and the resistance is enough to turn them over it, when the thread is wrapped round the wing and the bird is hauled on board. In this manner I have seen hundreds caught in a day.

On one occasion a clipper ship, carrying passengers to India, captured pigeons by hundreds, and the surgeon by some mischance succeeded in entangling a stormy petrel.

Now the doctor was an enthusiastic naturalist and what to the sailors is known as a "landlubber"—that is, he was on his first voyage. The doctor at once took the specimen to his cabin and made preparations to skin and preserve it. In hot haste a deputation of seamen, headed by the old gray haired sailmaker, came aft with a request that the petrel be set at liberty, saying that otherwise the ship and all on board would surely suffer. The doctor, somewhat surprised, intended to set the bird free, but his enthusiasm as a naturalist prevailed over the superstitious warning, and when the sailors had disappeared the bird was added to his collection. The fact soon became known forward among the men, and the doctor was regarded with black looks by the crew for the remainder of the voyage.

In the course of time the good ship anchored in the Hugli river, and that day at dinner the doctor suddenly died.

There was a gathering of the sailors around the windlass that dogwatch, and the doctor's sudden death was attributed by the superstitious sailors to his slaughter of the stormy petrel.—St. Nicholas

DEMONT'S STEALINGS

Show That He Has Long Been a Sneak Thief.

STOLEN PROPERTY FOUND.

Lived In Cambridge and Passed as an Architect.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Charles Demont, a 30-year-old chap, handsomely built and nattily attired, stood in the dock in the municipal court yesterday to answer several charges of larceny. Demont twisted his handsome sandy moustache and looked from out his dark eyes without the slighest concern, despite the fact that nearly every special officer in this city, as well as a number of women whom he is alleged to have victimized, were carefully watching him.

CHARLES DEMONT.

The police claim that this capture is the best that has been made in this city for some time. Demont is the man who was taken into custody in the Public Garden Wednesday by the police of station 3 as a suspicious character, and Captain Watts and his officers, after a lot of cross-questioning, learned enough to continue their investigation.

They found that he roomed in Cambridge, and thither they went. With the assistance of Detective Murray of that city, they located his room and recovered a wagon-load of articles, which was later brought to this city, and which now serves to take up the most part of Captain Watts' office in station 3.

And such a collection of articles! They were all elegant and valuable, and were such as a high-bred gentleman of leisure and extravagant tastes might have purchased in a journey around the world.

The collection included the finest clothes and articles of gold and silver galore.

The police declare that it was the accumulation of a long journey, the work of one of the cleverest house thieves that has worked hereabouts for quite a while.

All day yesterday people poured into station 3, and few went away without finding some article that had been taken from their homes. They all looked angry, for they did not get all that was stolen from them, but a few of them were satisfied with the hope that the missing might later be found in some pawnshop.

An Accomplished Rascal.

Demont, it is alleged, has played his game well, and he has visited houses without number and made away with something in every one.

Demont has traveled extensively in France and Germany, and he speaks the languages of those countries fluently.

He has resided in Cambridge for two months, and he gave his landlady to understand that he was an architect.

Two charges of larceny were all that Demont was arraigned on yesterday, but it was stated that there were at least six other cases against him, and after the reading of the complaint Lawyer John, who appeared for the defendant, asked for a continuance.

No opposition was made, and Demont was placed under $800 bonds for his appearance on the 20th inst.

In default he was sent to Charles street jail, after being photographed for the rogues' gallery.

Wanted to Be Electrocuted.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Michael J. Connolly made a very strange attempt at suicide at the corner of C street and Broadway, South Boston, last night. Connolly, who is 35 years of age and has no home, has, so the police say, been drinking heavily of late, and last night he threw himself in front of a Cambridge electric car. He was knocked down, but the motorman succeeded in stopping the car before he was injured. Connolly was arrested.

Drunken Soldier Makes Trouble.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 13.—General Canute Neri, commanding the federal troops at Chilpancingo, quarreled with the governor of the state and was recalled to the City of Mexico. On the way he got drunk and proclaimed a revolt. There are a few Indians with him. Six hundred troops have been sent to capture him.

A New Record.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 13.—Willie Windle made a new record, flying start, for two-thirds of a mile on Hampden park, covering the distance in 1:16 1-5. The record was before held by Johnson at 1:24 2-5, made at Waltham Oct. 2.

Brakeman Blamed.

LAPORTE, Ind., Oct. 13.—Coroner Cole has rendered his verdict in the Wabash disaster at Kingsbury, fixing the responsibility upon Thompson, the missing brakeman. If found, he will be taken into custody.

Lost an Arm.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Frederick O'Brien, 30 years of age, was struck by a train at Montello station last evening. His right arm was cut off at the elbow and he also sustained a severe scalp wound.

Should Be Looked After.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—An order entered by the judges in the United States court of appeals shows the crumbling and unsafe condition of the federal building in Chicago.

Mississippi Town Scorched.

MERIDIAN, Miss., Oct. 13.—Two business blocks in Hattisburg were destroyed by fire yesterday. Loss $45,000; but little insurance.

Walked In His Sleep.

FORT WAYNE, Oct. 13.—Alexander Davidson of Bridgeport, Conn., stepped from a Nickle Plate train while asleep.

A Thimble For Mrs. Palmer.

Mrs. Potter Palmer is to have a thimble when the fair is over. Women look at it reposing in its crystal and silver case and ask one another, "What will she do with it?" It is a gold thimble, beautifully made and set with 40 diamonds around the rim. The thimble bears a design of Machinery hall with "World's Columbian Exposition, 1492-1892" in relief.

There are thimbles in Machinery hall which are studded with pearls, turquoises, emeralds, rubies, diamonds and other precious stones. Some are silver overlaid with gold, some are hand chased, some are of unique designs which cost $100 or more. It would seem that designs and decorations were limited when applied to thimbles, but women can take their pick of 103 different styles in gold and silver and pay all the way from 50 cents to $150 for a "thumb bell," as the old German called the thimble when he invented it years and years ago. In the German section of the Manufactures building are thimbles capped with onyx, but Americans prefer a silver thimble which has been well knurled.—Chicago News.

A Literary Salad.

A well known society woman, who possesses a great fondness for and familiarity with books, has invented a very amusing game that promises to gain much popularity at her own and other house parties this fall. She calls it a "literary salad." The method of playing is at once simple and ingenious. Tiny leaves of green crinkled paper are attached to little Japanese toothpicks. Around these are written quotations more or less familiar. The toothpicks are then stuck into caramels, thus enabling the leaves to retain a perpendicular position. The salad thus arranged is placed in a large bowl. The participants draw leaves in succession, and the one guessing the origin of the greatest number of quotations receives a prize in the form of a book, a silver trinket or a piece of bric-a-brac.

The game has proved most entertaining. One may see at once the possibilities it possesses both from an intellectual and social standpoint.—Philadelphia Press.

Lady Florence Dixie.

Lady Florence Dixie, who is credited with the intention of starting a new woman's paper in England, is a sister of the Marquis of Queensberry and one of the most versatile women of the day. While yet a girl she had excited the enthusiastic admiration of "the shires," where riding is carried to a fine art, by her straight and intrepid going, and in the saddle she has journeyed over the best part of Europe, has explored the wilds of Patagonia and went through the Boer campaign early in the eighties as "special" for The Morning Post. She has written a novel, is somewhat of a poetess and has appeared on the platform to plead for "the rights" of her sex. Furthermore, she has a devoted husband and a delightful home—The Fishery, at Windsor—and two handsome boys. Yet one thing more, she has a strange power over animals of all sorts, has broken in the most fiery of steeds and has made domestic pets of a jaguar and even a tiger.—Exchange.

Albani's Ballads and Muffins For One.

Mme. Albani has for many years spent her holidays at the Old Mar Lodge, which is placed at her disposal by the Duke of Fife. Albani was there as usual this summer, and as it is near Balmoral the great singer is not seldom favored with a call by the queen herself. Albani always makes it a point to send word to the cook to prepare muffins for these occasions. Muffins are quite to the queen's taste, and she will dispose of several while Albani sings to her. Victoria prefers ballads to any other songs. "The Lass o' Gowrie" and "Come Ye by Blair Athole" are decidedly her favorites, though she likes "Robin Adair" and "Bluebells of Scotland" pretty well. When Albani sings, it is almost always the Princess Beatrice who plays. Albani has sung at Balmoral for other royal persons, notably the Empress Eugenie and Emperor Frederick.—Exchange.

White Stockings.

White stockings for regular wear are an abomination. When they used to be worn, it was because the process of dyeing was as yet unperfected, and they were the only thing to wear. Besides, high shoes or very low slippers were then the rule. With a high shoe the stocking was not supposed to show, and when it did show the effect was an unpleasant one. It would be the same now. As to a white stocking with the now ruling Oxford, or what is commonly called "low shoe," it would be ugly in the extreme. What ankle could look trim under such circumstances? The only use for a white stocking is with a white costume and a white low shoe.—New York Telegram.

An Energetic Woman.

Miss Minnie Rush of Lakeville, Ind., has discovered for herself and perhaps for her sisters a new field of employment. For the past three years she has had charge of the passenger, freight and telegraph offices of the Vandalia line in her town, the receipts for which are fully $10,000 a month. Miss Rush is only 21 years old, but she has organized railroad excursions which have netted handsome profits to her employers the past year, besides conducting the ordinary affairs of the office with skill and success. —New York Ledger.

Woman In the Pulpit.

Mrs. Winnifred Davis Schnacke of Paola, Kan., recently occupied the pulpit of the First Congregational church of that place during the absence of her husband, Rev. L. C. Schnacke, who is the regular pastor, to the great satisfaction and acknowledged benefit of her hearers. Mrs. Schnacke is the daughter of Hon. John Davis, member of congress from Kansas, and is loved and respected as a wife, mother, neighbor, citizen and worker in various literary, religious and charitable organizations.

THEY FEAR ANARCHISTS.

New Yorkers Who Hire Watchmen to Protect Their Lives and Millions.

There are now four times as many watchmen and detectives along Fifth avenue in the vicinity of the residences of the money kings as there were a few months ago and before the anarchistic element became noisy. So said one of the watchmen I found guarding the new million dollar palace of Cornelius Vanderbilt. He told me that the owners of palaces along Fifth avenue have not been taking any chances in letting anarchists place bombs under their front stoops. He estimated that at least 500 new watchmen have secured employment since the anarchists began their recent noisy meetings on the east side. It was his fond hope that the reds would continue their harangue, as it gave employment to a good many "daycent fellers who needed a job powerfully bad."

"Since this recent anarchist talk and racket on the east side we have done a land office business," said the manager of a detective bureau. "We have supplied over 100 men to wealthy but timid New Yorkers within the past few months. One of the odd things about the rich men of Gotham is that they pretend to never fear trouble from the poor classes. I know one of the wealthiest men in the city whom I have provided with watchmen and special detectives for different purposes.

"The day after the arrest of this Emma Goldman, the anarchist, he called at the office and employed five men to guard his million dollar home up in Fifth avenue. I asked him if he feared the anarchists.

"'Oh, no, not at all,' said he. 'I am afraid of burglars, and I have recently imported a lot of valuable plate.'

"Well, after I furnished him the men one of them came to me and said he called up the entire force of watchmen and said he had reason to believe that the anarchists intended blowing up a number of mansions along Fifth avenue, and that his residence was among the number. He ordered the men to not wait to arrest any one whom they thought a suspicious character, but to shoot them down and he would stand the consequences, besides rewarding the watchman.

"He was so nervous about anarchists that he used to get up in the middle of the night and saunter out himself to see whether the men were all on post or not. Yes, he belongs to one of the families of the largest millionaires in New York, but I am not at liberty to divulge his name. I merely mention him to show you how nervous our millionaires get when there is talk of mob violence or a bomb plot.

"I have no doubt but that they have some very good reasons for anticipating trouble at the present time from the anarchistic element in the city. There is generally some crank willing to be made a martyr of for any cause. I have no hesitancy in saying that I believe some one of these anarchists who have been made so much of in the newspapers will use the deadly bomb on some capitalist's home in the near future. He will expect and be prepared for arrest, and death itself will have no terror for the crank if his fellows will only proclaim him a martyr for the cause."—New York Herald.

PROFESSIONS OVERCROWDED.

But the Supply of Mechanics Is Also Greater Than the Demand.

The learned professions are overcrowded. The cause of this unhappy crowding of the market for brain laborers is not far to seek. An immense number of persons, who in former times would have worked with their hands as their fathers did before them, are being educated to work with their heads. There is a general leveling up of the social grades, if you look at it optimistically. The son of the artisan becomes a clerk, the son of the clerk aspires to teach in school, the son of the schoolteacher aspires to go to Oxford or Cambridge. But this leveling up is not an unmixed blessing.

The result is that we have 50 times too many clerks—200 applied for an insignificant post advertised in The Times the other day—10 times too many half educated teachers, and, alas, 10 times too many university graduates turned out every year to crowd the ranks of the bar, the schools and journalism and recruit the year's crop of miserable and hopeless failures. None of these people can dig as their fathers did. They cannot make shop boys or busmen or crossing sweepers. Too many of them can only teach or starve.—London Saturday Review.

Drove a Gambler Out.

A swindling gambler was shown up during a game of poker in one of the private dining rooms of the Hotel Waldorf. A well dressed man, giving his name as W. W. Hurt, started a game of cards the preceding night in which he won several hundred dollars. One of the onlookers detected Hurt cheating and looked up his record. Hurt proved to be a professional card sharp with an unsavory past. In order to expose him the game was arranged. The play was for small stakes only, and not detecting Hurt cheating the manager of the hotel, tired of waiting for "crooked" work, stopped the game, returned the money to the players and gave them a sketch of Hurt's disreputable career.—New York Advertiser.

Mrs. McAdams and the Girls.

Mrs. Maud McAdams, nee Cox, and sisters-in-law, Misses Sarah and Nannie McAdams, living a little northwest of this place, a few days since went blackberrying, at which they succeeded very well. They left their baskets a few minutes for a stroll, and on returning observed a bear, which had just made a dinner of their berries, and with clubs they compelled Bruin to leave, pursued by the dogs that had accompanied the party. The dogs had not gone far till they started up three deer and followed after them, and Mrs. McAdams and the Misses McAdams joined in the chase. They shot one of the deer with a pistol, Mrs. McAdams cut its throat, and the girls flayed it.—Coquille (Or.) Herald.

THE BEADLE OBJECTED.

By Pluck and Persistency the American Woman Gained Her Point.

An American woman who has made many trips abroad and studied in different European capitals was relating her experiences.

"It was in Paris," she said, "that I made the boldest experiment I ever attempted and had the most signal success. I had been spending the summer in Switzerland, studying certain branches of philosophy in which I was interested, and had come up to Paris with a view to pressing my work still further. I had, even beyond the Alps, been regarding with a jealous eye the Sorbonne and had tried to lay my plans to gain entrance to the famous lectures which were given in its old halls. There was to be one course in philosophy which dovetailed perfectly with my needs, and I made up my mind that if persistence or diplomacy, or both, could gain me admittance to those lectures nothing short of an interposition of Providence could keep me away.

"Of course I knew that women were not admitted. I knew, too, that French gallantry is a trait much circumscribed in its exercise. The only thing I had to help me in the carrying out of my plan was a letter from my professor in Switzerland addressed to a certain man of letters in Paris. I lost no time after my arrival in going to present this letter, but the man of learning was out of the city, would not return soon, and in the meantime the lectures were going on. I turned the matter over in my mind that night, and as the result of my meditations took my way to the Sorbonne the following day at the hour appointed for the lecture.

"By inquiry outside I found the students' entrance, and as I was a trifle late made my way in without exciting any attention. The lecture room was amphitheaterlike, the benches (they had no backs) rising in tiers from the speakers' platform. I entered at the back of these tiers and looked about me. Not an aisle was there in the hall. The way the front seats were reached was by stepping down from one tier of benches to another. I was out of range of good hearing, so there was nothing for me to do but pick my way over those benches to a seat near the front."

The narrator paused and drew a deep breath. She was so low voiced that her listeners had drawn close to her in order to hear her, and she was as sweet and womanly and gentle in all things else as she was in voice.

"Well," she laughed a little and twisted her handkerchief as if even the recollection was a trifle embarrassing, "I sat down and took out my notebook and pencil and began taking notes, but I was conscious that several hundred pairs of curious eyes, all masculine, were fixed upon me. I didn't hear the lecturer very distinctly because there was such a ringing in my ears, but I made a good pretense of taking notes and thought the shock would wear off directly. But suddenly I became conscious of something red and brown and big beside me. I looked around, and there stood the beadle, the very angriest beadle you ever saw. His face was redder than the facings on his gorgeous coat, and the hand that held his tall stick fairly shook with repressed excitement.

"'You must leave here, mademoiselle,' he said in French.

"I tried to look calm and asked why I must go. The beadle got a shade redder and trembled a little more violently.

"'Ladies are not allowed here,' he whispered. Such a loud whisper too!

"'But,' I said, 'I wish very much to hear these lectures. I will disturb no one.'

"'You cannot stay! You cannot stay!' said the beadle. 'Ladies never come here, I tell you. Never!'

"Well, of course, I had to go. I climbed up the benches, with the gorgeous beadle beside me and the eyes of every man in the hall on me, and took my departure. But I was not yet defeated. That night I wrote to the minister of public instruction, stated the case and told him what I desired. The next day a letter came giving me permission to attend the lecture, and the second day from my humiliating ejection from the students' benches I was seated on the professors' platform, and there I had my place throughout the course. The beadle? Oh, you never saw so much disapproval expressed in a human countenance as appeared in the beadle's whenever he looked at me. But I gained an entrance to the Sorbonne when no other woman had, so I could afford to smile even when the beadle frowned."—New York Sun.

Decorated by the Sultan.

Mrs. Cookesley, late of San Francisco, has been traveling in the east with her husband, Captain E. A. Cookesley. While visiting Constantinople Mrs. Cookesley received a command from the sultan to paint a portrait of his son, a little fellow of 7 years. The American artist executed the commission so much to the sultan's satisfaction that he conferred the order of Chefakat upon her and presented her with the appropriate emblem, a large star studded with diamonds. Mrs. Cookesley had to decline an order to paint the portraits of several of the sultan's wives and daughters.—Constantinople Letter.

Politics and Housekeeping.

At Fredonia, N. Y., 42 women voted at the recent school election and carried it. Mrs. O. W. Johnson was re-elected trustee for three years, and Mrs. Ella Barmore was elected clerk. There were 74 votes cast. The Political Equality club took an active part in the election, and on the following Saturday held its regular meeting and discussed co-operative housekeeping.—Exchange.

AMERICA STILL HOLDS THE CUP.

Best of the Three Races Won by the Vigilant.

BIG WIND CAME ON TIME

And Was Just What Dunraven Longed For.

One of the Grandest Races Ever Sailed Off the Port of New York — An Oyster Sloop Causes a Sensation Just Before the Finish—Table Showing an Unbroken Record of American Victories, With the Name and Time of the Winning Yacht.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The Vigilant has won the third of the international yacht races.

For another year the trophy remains in America, and Lord Dunraven goes home without a race to his credit. He goes with the satisfaction, however, of knowing that he beat the Vigilant in beating to windward, and in all probability would have won yesterday's race but for an accident. When within 20 minutes of home and just as the Vigilant had went alongside the Valkyrie, the latter split her spinnaker and had to take it in. This practically gave the race and the cup to the Vigilant, the official time at the finish being:

Vigilant crossed line at 3:51:39.
Valkyrie, 3:53:52.
Elapsed time: Vigilant, 3:24:39; Valkyrie, 3:26:52.
Corrected time: Vigilant, 3:24:39; Valkyrie, 3:25:19.

The Vigilant therefore wins by 40 seconds. Valkyrie led all the way out and the biggest part of the way home. She turned the outer mark at 2:31:40 and Vigilant followed at 2:31:30, the English boat having a lead of 1m. 50s.

THE AMERICA'S CUP.

It was a day long to be remembered. The weather bureau predicted that the wind would blow great guns and that the storm which had caused havoc on the southern coast would get here before the race was over. It came on time. The yachts finished in the edge of it, and all the accompanying fleet raced home before it.

Sight Was Grand.

No grander race was ever sailed off this port. Both yachts broke off their spinnakers after the turn, and ran for home in the young gale which prevailed. Vigilant began to gain almost immediately, and continued to do so, but very slowly, until 3:30 o'clock, when the tremendous strain told in Valkyrie's spinnaker and it was split.

Vigilant thereafter increased her gain very rapidly and finally crossed the line 40 seconds to the good over and above the time she allows Valkyrie. Lord Dunraven did not have his daughter with him on the Valkyrie. Lord Everton was there; also H. M. Kersey. On the Vigilant were Oliver Iselin, Perry Belmont, Herbert Leeds, W. Barton Hopkins and several others.

A thrilling scene was enacted near the lightship just before the finish. An oyster sloop, Neena A. Rowland of Norwalk, Conn., was standing about the lightship, when suddenly her mast went by the board and it was thought the vessel had capsized. When a tug got close enough to it, it was seen that the boat was upright in the water, but her mast was broken off about three feet from the deck. Several men had narrow escapes, but no one was injured. The sloop was towed into the city. This is the only accident that has occurred near the scene of the races.

The scene as the Vigilant crossed the line was one of enthusiasm and beauty. All the boats which had gathered near the finish threw their steam valves wide open and screeched in unison. The noise was almost deafening, but did not quite drown the cheering of the multitudes on their decks. The Vigilant and Valkyrie presented a beautiful picture as they neared the line, carrying as they went every stitch of canvass they could.

It was the kind of weather that Lord Dunraven had wished for, and the only kind of a day in which he still claimed that his yacht could sail with the Vigilant. He had been beaten in two races in light winds and still more easily in what Americans call a stiff breeze. His only hope was in a gale which split his sails, while the staunch Vigilant came home through the foam under a big cloud of canvas, with the wind piping through her shrouds and ropes.

Watson's Comment.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—A Glasgow journal cabled to George E. Watson, designer of the Valkyrie, to ascertain whether dispatches from New York were correct in saying that he admitted the superiority of centerboard yachts. Mr. Watson made this reply: "All that I admit is that the particular centerboard Vigilant has beaten the particular keel boat Valkyrie."

RUSSIANNS WELCOMED.

Thousands of Strangers Have Flocked Into the City of Toulon.

TOULON, Oct. 14.—Late in the afternoon the Russian officers visited Admiral De-Boissury aboard the Formidable and Admiral de la Jaille aboard the Richelieu. Jaille commands the Mediterranean reserve fleet, and is an old friend of Admiral Avelan.

At 3:15 Admiral Avelan and his staff proceeded to the grand salon of the town hall, where the municipal and district officials and delegates from the provinces awaited them.

The socialist mayor of Toulon, M. Ferraro, made the first speech. He said that the representatives of the departments of France had gathered here to show how the hearts of all Frenchmen beat with one accord, animated solely by the feeling of friendship for the two nations.

When Admiral Avelan and his aide-de-camp, Lieutenant Tolstoi, appeared on the balcony of the town hall they were received by a scene of frantic enthusiasm. At 4 o'clock the Russians bade goodby to the officials in the large hall and returned to the quay.

As they left the shore the air was filled with shouts of "Long live Russia," "Long live the Czar." M. DeGiers of the Russian embassy in Paris accompanied Commander Metrachel and the light division which went out to meet the Russian fleet.

It is estimated that there are now 200,000 strangers in the town. The telegraph offices swarm with newspaper reporters. It is difficult to say what proportion of the enthusiasm shown by the people is due to patriotic fervor and what proportion to racial excitability.

The purser of the big steamer Ville de Brest, while bringing a deputation to Toulon from Marseilles, jumped overboard and was drowned, the body being cut to pieces by the steamer's screw.

Father Murphy Gets a Warning.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 14.—Rev. Father Murphy, the dismissed curate of St. Joseph's Catholic church, who refused to leave the house adjoining the church, has received a letter from Bishop Wigger commanding him in strong language to vacate the premises. The bishop further informed the removed priest that he would never give him permission to say mass again in the parish.

Instructors In Session.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 14.—Over 100 college presidents and leading instructors in the educational institutions of New England arrived here to participate in the eighth annual convention of New England colleges and preparatory schools, which began at Yale yesterday afternoon. John Tettlow, head master of the girls' high and Latin school, Boston, presided.

Placed In Hill's Hands.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The publishers of The Jewelers' Review have forwarded to Senator Hill at Washington a petition signed by over 1000 leading diamond dealers and jewelry and silver manufacturers in all parts of the country east of the silver states urging the immediate repeal of the silver purchasing clause of the Sherman law.

Illegal Insurance and Forgery.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Oct. 14.—E. J. Combs pleaded guilty on three charges of illegally soliciting insurance. He was fined $100 and costs on one charge and the others were continued for two months. In the case against him for forging a bond of the Premier Cycle company he was held in $1200 for the grand jury.

The Union Pacific Receivers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—In the United States circuit court of Brooklyn, Judge Benedict appointed S. H. H. Clark of Omaha, Oliver W. Mink of Massachusetts and E. Ellery Anderson of this city receivers for the Union Pacific Railway company.

HIS MIND UNBALANCED.

Fire Marshal Murphy Affected by the Cold Storage Fire.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Fire Marshal Murphy, head of the World's fair battalion and one of the heroes of the cold storage fire, has been granted leave of absence at the request of a physician and because his head is troubling him.

FIRE MARSHAL EDWARD W. MURPHY.

It has been rumored among firemen that the horrible events connected with the storage fire on the fair grounds had temporarily unsettled the marshal's mind, and that he had gone to a retreat to be doctored. This rumor, however, Chief Sweenie declined to confirm in its entirety.

TWO TRAINS WRECKED.

Eight Persons Killed and Many Injured In a Michigan Wreck.

JACKSON, Mich., Oct. 14.—A terrible wreck occurred 100 yards east of the passenger depot in this city. A World's fair excursion train from the east was standing at the depot when another excursion train pulled in. The engineer lost control of his air brake and could not stop his train, and it rushed at the rate of 40 miles an hour into the train ahead, plowing under it and throwing the cars in all directions.

Nine cars were smashed to pieces and the engine is broken beyond recognition.

The first section of the excursion train was called the "Oswego" and the last section the "Webb" special.

F. J. Reid, conductor of the Oswego special, says: "I was stopping at Jackson for breakfast and had just started when the Webb special going west struck my train in the rear part and broke three coaches. My train was protected in the Jackson yard by the semaphore."

Engineer William Whalen, who lives at Jackson, was running the last section. He says: "I saw the signal in the yard to keep back, and had my engine in hand, as I thought; but when I came down near the train which was standing still, my air brakes would not work and I ran into the coaches. The failure of the air made it impossible to stop. I never had such an experience before."

Whalen is badly burned and one of his legs is broken, but he will live.

No less than nine vessels had already passed through Jackson going west, in addition to the regular trains.

The number of dead is now placed at eight and the number injured will reach at least 40.

Missing From Burlington.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 14.—Miss Agnes Smith of Burlington disappeared from home Thursday. It is thought she has eloped with a young man from Boston named A. Q. Fall. Fall came here 10 days ago, securing table board at Smith's house. Miss Smith became infatuated with him and this caused trouble between her and her parents. Finally Miss Smith and Fall took the New York express and have not since been heard from.

Bismarck Will Be Invited.

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—Emperor William, Chancellor Von Caprivi, Foreign Secretary Marshal Von Bieberstein and Ministers Miquel, Von Bosticher, Von Haltenborn-Stachau and Von Stephen will attend the unveiling of the statue of Emperor William I. at Bremen Oct. 18. The emperor will invite Prince Bismarck to attend the ceremony.

A Big Verdict.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 14.—In the Union county court Lawrence C. Bangert was awarded $25,000 damages against the Pennsylvania Railroad company for injuries received by being struck by a train. His skull was fractured and part of his brain had to be removed.

Quiet at Coal Creek.

NASHVILLE, Oct. 14.—The 16 soldiers of the Tennessee militia charged with lynching Richard Drummond at Coal Creek were released under a $5000 bond for the entire squad. After the decision was rendered the "Army of Tennessee" was paid off and disbanded.

Nearly Two Hundred Years Old.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 14.—A remarkable case of longevity is reported from the city of Morelia, near which place has just died Jose Cortez, lacking only seven years of the completion of two centuries. The civil registry demonstrates his wonderful age.

Defeat Anticipated.

VIENNA, Oct. 14.—The debate in the reichsrath on the government's action in establishing a state of seige at Prague was opened yesterday. Premier Von Taafe has already ordered the provisional authorities to prepare for a general election.

Drink Caused His Death.

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Oct. 14.—T. B. Mapp of Chicago, who came to this city on a visit, was found unconscious in the street and was taken to a hospital, where he died. Inquiry revealed the fact that he had fallen out of a cab while intoxicated.

No Magistrate In Town.

BABYLON DEPOT, L. I., Oct. 14.—Justice of the Peace J. D. Capel, aged 65, of Amityville, has been missing nearly two months. Justice Capel left town without saying where he was going, and Amityville is without a magistrate.

TELEPHONE, 213-3 QUINCY.

A BOSTON daily heads its report "Cup Stays. Does it refer to the fore-and-aft stays or backstays? The cup needs no stays; it stands firm.

THE LEDGER regrets that it should have disappointed its lady readers yesterday with so meagre a report of the Price-Faxon nuptials. The LEDGER was disappointed itself. It would have been pleased to have given a column report, even though slighted in not receiving the usual invitation, to which courtesy the press is certainly entitled. It made advances to obtain facts, requesting a description of the gowns of bride and bridesmaid and many other points which would have been of interest to LEDGER readers, but all the facts attainable, were those printed. The family desired nothing more. This is the way some people encourage home industries. It is not stating it too strong to say it is the duty of Quincy people to give the local press the news. In cases like the above it had a better claim for it than society journals. People often criticise the press for not reporting events correctly, for giving too much space to murders and crimes, but do they realize that it is often difficult to obtain the facts of good clean news when not invited, and that it is often refused entirely?

THE PATRIOT was "up to date" in reporting accurately and promptly the decisive cup race sailed Friday. It went to press at 4 P. M., with the first three despatches below, and the press was stopped a minute at 4.15 to add the last one.

12.45—Race started at 12.27.

2.00—At 1.30 the Valkyrie had a slight lead; wind blowing 25 miles an hour.

3.30—The Vigilant has just passed the Valkyrie. The boats are within six miles of the finish.

4 P. M.—Vigilant wins by 34 seconds.

The above despatches were promptly bulletined by the DAILY LEDGER, and were hours ahead of Boston papers in this city. When it is remembered that the boats did not finish until 3.45.52 the promptness of the news is apparent.

The Vigilant won the race by 40 seconds corrected time, instead of 34 seconds as reported. A full report appears on the first page today with a summary of past contests and an engraving of the cup. The LEDGER is vigilant.

RECEPTION AT WOLLASTON

Tendered Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Bagley by Unitarian Society.

The Wollaston Unitarian society gave a reception on Friday evening to its new pastor, the Rev. James E. Bagley. Mr. and Mrs. Bagley were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Brown. The receiving party stood in the church parlor, which was tastefully decorated with piano lamps, and a profusion of flowers and autumn leaves. The members of the society were ushered by Mr. Chas. T. Baker, Mr. W. J. Wellington, Mr. Chandler W. Smith, Dr. George B. Rice, Mr. Robert E. Price and Mr. James S. Whiting.

During the reception Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Moorehouse, Dr. and Mrs. Rice, and Mrs. Frank A. Page favored the company with instrumental and vocal selections.

Light refreshments were served, the cocoa being poured by Miss Helen Foster and Miss Kingman, and the coffee by Miss Taylor and Miss Foster.

The arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Edmund F. Taylor, Mrs. Charles R. Sherman, Mr. Chandler W. Smith, Mrs. George A. Loring, Mrs. Charles T. Baker, Mrs. George W. Belcher, Mrs. Frank P. Waterhouse, Mrs. W. E. Simmons, and Mrs. Sylvester Brown.

TODAY'S COURT.

The liquors seized from Catherine Vincent of Weymouth were forfeited to the commonwealth.

Myron Smith and Daniel Donaher, Randolph, were fined $5 each for mutual assault.

Monuments to Heroes.

There are two projects on foot concerning the "Franklin fund." One project is to take sufficient money from the fund to erect a monument to Gen. Joseph Warren, the hero of Bunker Hill, and another is to erect a monument in the firemen's lot at Forest Hills cemetery. The aldermen of Boston took up these matters Thursday in concurrence with the common council, and voted to refer them both to the trustees of the Franklin fund.—Herald.

CONNELLY—DELL.

Police Officer Weds a West Quincy Young Lady.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in this city on Tuesday morning, the contracting parties being Officer John J. Connelly and Miss Annie M. Dell, a well known young lady of West Quincy.

The ceremony was performed at St. John's church by Rev. F. A. Friguglietti and was witnessed by the immediate friends of both parties. The bridesmaid was Miss M. Mahoney of this city, and the best man was Mr. McGuiggan of Brighton.

The bride was gowned in a brown travelling suit and carried a bunch of roses. Mr. and Mrs. Connelly's many friends wish them many years of unalloyed joy.

THAYER ACADEMY.

Work Begun on the Annex—Items of Interest Concerning School.

Active operations have been begun looking towards the erection of the annex to Thayer Academy agreeable to the provisions of the White-Glover will.

Gooch & Pray masons and builders, Boston, are the successful contractors and Hartwell & Richardson, of the same city, the architects.

William May, contractor of Braintree, has a gang of laborers and horses busy excavating for the foundation which operation has been so far advanced that the masons have begun to build the foundation wall for the underpinning to rest on, a wall, judging from the portion already done, that will stand till Michael blows his horn.

In using the term "annex" it ought not to be understood that the new structure is to be annexed to the Academy building, but in the sense that it is to be an "annex" to the branches of instruction now taught at the Academy, to wit, the addition of a Laboratory for the performance of chemical experiments, etc., and a gymnasium for training and exercise in gymnastics.

The new building will occupy a position to the north of the Academy building and nearer to the gate admitting to the grounds, on Washington street.

It is to be what is called a "wing building" that is the centre will be wider than either of the ends and will rise higher. It is to be a brick building a hundred and eighty-two feet long and the middle part sixty feet wide where the laboratory is to be located, on either end of which are the gymnasiums one for the girls and one for the boys, separated as it will be seen, by the portion of the building allowed for the laboratory.

It is going to be a fine looking building the highest part reaching to seventy feet in the air; an additional ornament in many ways to the town of Braintree.

It is proper to state that Charles F. Marr of Boston, is foreman of the work, a very civil and no doubt competent man, in every respect.

Academy Notes.

The good effects of the reading room may be seen by the animated discussion in the class room. More real thought on politics, is shown by the boys than by many men, their seniors by years.

It is hoped that the number of boys in the academy will be increased now that the gymnasium is building. Not a single boy goes up for examination this year from the senior class, but there are four from the senior middle, who will try their fates at Howard, Tufts and Technology.

Professor Sewall attended the centennial exercises at Williams college during the first part of this week.

Professor Sewall and Miss Thompson are attending the convention of teachers, held at New Haven today.

Many will recall the visit of Dr. Hart of Harvard and Mr. Macdonald of the state board of education last winter. The result of this visit was that a paper was read before the United States Association of Teacher's convention at Minneapolis, describing the method of teaching history at Thayer. Last week Miss Thompson was requested to prepare another paper, this time the subject was "English at the Thayer Academy."

Several of last year's foot ball team are playing in neighboring towns. Bayley, '93, captained the freshman team in the ball game with the sophomores at Boston University and the class in the cane rush. The class of '93, is very widely scattered; the Boston University seems to be the favorite with these. The member most distant is Loud, who is studying music in Europe. Harrison, '94, has entered the B. V. law school, while Allen, '94, the Harvard medical.

—The method of harvesting wheat on the great bonanza ranches of the Dakotas is said to have amazed the foreign Agricultural Commissioners at the World's Fair. To clear up 640 acres of wheat in one day with 150 hands and forty-five harvesters is a feat which has been paralleled in California, Nebraska and other big Western grain States.

—A company has been incorporated under the laws of Michigan with a capital of $200,000, for the purpose of building an electric railroad between Toledo, Ohio, and Detroit. The right of way has already been secured, and the work will be forwarded as rapidly as possible.

The highest temperature on the globe is at Death valley, Inyo county, Cal. Its surface is 159 feet below sea level, and in summer the thermometer has occasionally marked 122 degrees.

BRAINTREE.

Wednesday night a pretty social party consisting of young folks of both sexes, gotten up by L. Roulston, a popular young man, in the vicinity of where he lives, took place in the barn of R. B. Watson, on Union street.

Mrs. John H. Minchin on Middle street, one of the oldest ladies in town, celebrated her 82d birthday on Friday. She was surrounded during the day and evening by friends. All of her children, and grand children, and great grand children in town were there; also, Miss Carrie Sawyer of South Framingham and Thomas Sutton and family of Needham. She received many useful presents besides quite a sum of money. Many happy returns may she receive.

Wednesday evening next, arrangements have been made to hold an indignation meeting in Union hall, East Braintree, for the purpose of passing a series of resolutions condemning the attempt that is now being made to reduce the appropriation voted at the annual town meeting in March, for the building of a new schoolhouse in East Braintree.

Several of the best men in the Y. M. C. A. foot ball team of Quincy, are Braintree boys.

The "at homes" of Mr. and Mrs. Eben Prescott on Tuesdays and Thursday evenings are very enjoyable occasions.

There will be services in Mayflower Park Chapel on Sunday, Oct. 15, at 3.30 P. M. by Rev. Mr. Ross. All are invited.

Miss Minnie Hood, sister of Rev. Mr. Hood, a former pastor of the M. E. church, has been in town this week visiting friends.

Mr. Horne, our superintendent of schools, who returned Tuesday from the World's Fair, declares that it was the hardest work he has done.

The Universalist Sunday School has made arrangements for an excellent harvest concert to be held in the Town hall next Sunday afternoon at 2.30 P. M. All are cordially invited to attend.

At the grand rally of the K. of H., on Thursday evening, at the Town Hall, a good audience was present and listened to some fine speaking by out-of-town gentlemen. Some very fine vocal music was furnished by home talent.

Officer Oliver picked up an abandoned team last evening on Washington street. The horse, a bay, was attached to a light express wagon. Under the paint on the wagon the words "Clothing cleansed, dyed and repaired" could be deciphered.

Mrs. James C. Starkey, the wife of our station agent at Braintree, has been sick over three weeks with pneumonia. At one time Mrs. Starkey was thought to be a very sick woman but we are glad to learn that she is improving day by day and in a fair way of recovery. Dr. T. H. Dearing is the attending physician.

H. Arthur Pierce of South Braintree died last night after an illness of some months. Arthur was the eldest in the family of the late Henry A. Pierce of this town. He was unmarried; lived with his mother, was thirty years of age his last birthday. He was a superior young man and had been for years the trusted bookkeeper of Hollingsworth, Whitney & Co., at their office here in South Braintree. He was a member of the Royal Arcanum, also of the Ancient Order United Workmen Lodge of Quincy.

Granite Men Quit Work.

Nearly fifty granite cutters, polishers and lumpers, employed by C. E. Taynter & Co. at Barre, Vt., quit work Friday morning because of non-payment of wages. The men claim that several thousand dollars are now owed them by the firm. Taynter & Co. is one of the prominent firms.

—Mrs. A. H. Woodall of Washington has invented a most useful attachment to the typewriting machine. It is a device which renders it no longer necessary for the typewriting operator to lift the carriage after a line is finished and slide it back to the beginning of the next one. With Mrs. Woodall's attachment the machine does this for itself automatically as soon as the end of a line is reached.

TODAY'S GALE.

A special to the LEDGER at 8.30 A. M. said the wind at that hour was blowing 75 miles an hour on Blue hill, and probably 42 miles an hour in Quincy.

The people certainly had sufficient warning of today's storm, as it was predicted Friday morning, and those who did not look out for their fruit yesterday missed it.

Rain drenched the southern cities yesterday and New England is getting it today. The forecast this morning is "Rain, easterly gales, cooler.

CITY CHIT CHAT.

Items of Interest from All Parts of Quincy.

How the leaves have fallen!

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held on Monday evening.

Jesse E. Woodbury of Omaha is visiting Mr. and Mrs. George W. Morton.

Mrs. Joseph N. Page has returned home from a visit to friends in Brockton.

A Democratic rally is announced for next Wednesday evening at Hancock hall.

Will it be pleasant for the foot ball game this afternoon? At best the ground will be wet.

Wollaston lodge, K. of H., will give a social entertainment and banquet on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Smith, Mrs. William S. Morton and Master Morton Smith are at the World's Fair.

It is pleasing to note the improvements at Souther's periodical store. Drop in and get a LEDGER and congratulate him.

The work of naturalization goes bravely on at the district court and scarcely a day passes but one or more new citizens are made.

The late Joseph M. Glover was a member of Weymouth Council, Royal Arcanum, and a delegation attended his funeral this afternoon.

A steamboat line between Quincy Point, Houghs Neck, Nantasket and Boston is among the possibilities of another season. Capitalists are looking over the field.

Mr. George W. Penniman will give his new and magnificently illustrated lecture on "Chicago and the World's Fair," in Hancock hall, Wednesday evening, Nov. 8.

Mr. Edwin N. Willett met with quite a serious accident Friday at his residence on High School avenue. He was on a ladder, picking apples, when the ladder slipped and Mr. Willett fell nearly twenty feet. He was carried into the house, and while no bones were broken, he was injured about the back.

New arrivals at The Greenleaf are Charles J. Lewis, George B. Knight, Mr. and Mrs. Metcalf, William E. Wilson, H. H. Taylor, George P. Bell, P. M. Dennett, H. W. Anderson, John Thornton, H. C. Simpson, W. H. Page, George Kimball, W. H. Prince, Henry Craig, E. B. McIntire, Lawrence S. James, Miss Maude Giles, all of Boston, J. C. Brown, Lawrence, E. C. Worcester, Lowell, A. J. Gardner, Danielsville, Conn.

A Lazy Club Favorite.

Tom is dead. No more will he purr peacefully for the members of the Lazy Club as he was wont to do in days gone by. Tom was the large double pawed cat belonging to Mr. Joseph T. French. Tom had been missing for several days, and no trace of his whereabouts could be found. Yesterday morning Tab, who is a sister to Tom came into Mr. French's office and began to cry in a pitiful manner. After she attracted Mr. French's attention she started out of doors. Mr. French followed and Tab trotted over to the railroad tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad. When Mr. French reached the tracks, he found poor Tom cold in death, he having been struck by a train. There is sorrow now among Mr. French's cat colony for "Tom" was a universal favorite.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE MAN. The joint convention, consisting of the boards of selectmen and school committee, held at Braintree, on Monday afternoon, elected Charles T. Crane, to the vacancy in the latter board, created by the resignation of Rev. Oliver Huckel. The election is an excellent one. Mr. Crane from natural sympathy, will take to the position like a duck to the water.

—The new York News observes: Now the surgeons have cut out a man's spleen, and yet he lives and has red blood, and will, it is said, recover. No one has ever known absolutely what is the office of the spleen. The organ is not a vital one, but is often much diseased and very painful. The operation to remove it is technically called splenectomy.

Scientists have invented a device which makes a sunbeam audible.

Another Letter to Women.

May 25, '92, Syracuse, N. Y.

"Dear Madam:

"I want to tell you what your Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done for me.

"I was so bad with falling of the womb and Leucorrhœa that I could not stand.

"I had doctored so much without benefit I was entirely discouraged. I expected to die.

"One evening I read in the 'Herald' about your medicine. I got some, and took 2 bottles of the Compound, and used one of the Sanative Wash.

"I am now well and strong, am never troubled with either of the complaints. If more women would use your Compound, there would be less suffering in the world."—Mrs. Ida Casler, 126 Olive St.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT

TO the Heirs-at-Law, Next-of-Kin, and all other persons interested in the Estate of JOSEPH DELL, late of Quincy, in said County, deceased,

Greeting:

Whereas, a certain instrument, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, has been presented to said Court, for probate, by William J. Dell of said Quincy, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him, the executor therein named, and that he may be exempt from giving a surety or sureties on his bond, pursuant to said will and statute:

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Hyde Park, in said County of Norfolk, on the fourth Wednesday of October current, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, against the same.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this Citation once a week, for three successive weeks, in the newspaper called the Quincy DAILY LEDGER, published at said Quincy, the last publication to be two days, at least, before said Court.

Witness, GEORGE WHITE, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this eleventh day of October, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

PRESCRIPTIONS

Should receive the utmost care and attention of the dispenser. Do you realize that your life is in the hands of the druggist while he is preparing your medicine? A moment's carelessness and the harm is done. How careful man should be while engaged in such work. It does not take a very bright intellect to turn to the shelf, take down a bottle of Mr. So-and-so's Sarsaparilla and receive the necessary legal tender for the same. But with prescription work it is different. I make a

A

Political Notes.

Register this evening.

The Republicans of the Milton-Canton district have nominated T. E. Grover for Representative.

The Republicans of Quincy will nominate a candidate for Representative tonight, and in Weymouth they will nominate two.

The Democratic county and councillor conventions will be held at Dedham on Monday.

Brooks Adams addressed a Democratic rally at Plymouth last evening.

The Gazette says, "In addition to the regular nominees, there is some strong talk of an independent candidate for representative to be put in the field on nomination papers in the Weymouth-Quincy district."

Will Soon Close.

The grandest exhibition of our time and possibly for many generations to come will soon be brought to an end.

There remains but one month in which to visit this marvelous gathering of all the World's Productions, and everybody should strain a point to go to Chicago.

The railroad fare heretofore has been considered a hindrance to all classes, but this has all been changed, and on the following days in October the West Shore Railroad will run high-class excursions on its fast express trains in through cars at one-half its lowest fare, i. e., $17.00, from New York to Chicago and return. Good for ten days. These magnificent excursion trains will be in charge of an agent whose duty it is to care for the interests of the company's patrons en route, to furnish detailed information as to accommodations obtainable in Chicago, and to point out the historic points along the grand old Hudson and through the picturesque Mohawk Valley.

These trains will leave Franklin street, New York, at 10.00 A. M., Thursday, October 19th, and Monday, October 23d.

HAPPY LOWELL

Dedicates Her New City Hall With Interesting Exercises.

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 14.—The new city hall, for which land was purchased in 1879, and which has been in course of construction for about three years, was dedicated today.

The exercises were as follows:

Overture, dedication.

Prayer, Rev. Ransom A. Greene.

Presentation of keys of the new city hall, by Colonel A. A. Haggett, a member of the city hall commission.

Reception of the keys and address by Hon. John J. Pickman, mayor of the city.

Selection, north and south.

Brief addresses by Hon. Charles D. Palmer, Hon. George F. Richardson, Hon. John J. Donovan.

Selection, Robin Hood.

Brief addresses by Hon. Frederick T. Greenhalge, William F. Courtney, Esq.

Paraphrase, "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Benediction by Rev. Robert Court, D. D.

The land upon which the present building stands and the building cost the town of Lowell $18,888.72. It was erected by the vote of the town in May, 1829. It has a frontage of 100 feet on Merrimac street and is 90 feet deep.

The cost of the land and the new city hall will be over $400,000.

ALMOST CUT IN TWO.

Towboat Sunk In Boston Harbor by a Coal Steamer.

BOSTON, Oct. 14.—At 7:25 o'clock last night the towboat Bessie B., Captain Marshall, was run down and sunk off Boston light by the coal steamer Williamsport, Captain Miller, owned by the Reading Coal company, and which was inward bound. The Williamsport struck the Bessie B. about the pilot house, cutting her nearly through, and she sunk almost immediately.

Anthony Fredericksen, one of the deckhands of the tug, was in the pilot house blowing the whistle and was thrown through a window into the water and was severely injured.

All of the crew were picked up by the Williamsport and were brought up to the city. Fredericksen was sent to the city hospital.

Scare Was Needless.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 14.—The storm has passed and but little damage was done in this section. Along the Florida coast it was quite severe. No loss of life was reported from any quarter.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Forecast for New England: Rain; easterly gales; cooler.

BOSTON, Oct. 14.—The heavy storm which has been devastating the southern coast for the past two days is advancing northward. It threatens to strike New England today, and, if it does not deviate from its course, it promises to be one of the severest of the season in this region. Last night it was central a little south of Washington. At 8 o'clock the barometer there had fallen to 29.06. High winds were sweeping the southern New England and middle Atlantic coasts last night, playing havoc with telegraph and telephone wires. The weather bureau this morning reported its wires all down south of Newport. No reports had been received since the 8 p. m. dispatch from Washington. Heavy rains were falling in the middle states.

About 12:30 a. m. rain began falling in Boston.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

The body of the man found on the tracks near Topsham (Me.) fair grounds has been identified as that of George Brown of Bowdoinham. There had been rumors of foul play, but these are not sustained by the coroner's inquest.

Frank Ransom of Bridgeport, Conn., who thinks he has solved the problem of aerial navigation, has received a letter from Professor Langly, the aeronaut, of Lehigh university, in which the writer states that he believes Mr. Ransom's idea is a practical one.

TARIFF AND INCOME TAX.

The Ways and Means Committee Considering Momentous Problems.

The committee on ways and means, having closed its hearings and its doors, is now discussing the question of raising the revenue. The large reduction which it is intended to make in the tariff rates, and which will cause a large falling off of revenue before it goes into operation, renders it necessary to substitute some method of meeting this deficit. The Democratic members of the ways and means are not in complete accord at present as to how the revenue required shall be raised. Several members of the committee, including McMillin, Turner and Bryan, are in favor of increasing the tax on distilled spirits from 90 cents to $1.25 a gallon. They assume that this will increase the revenue on this article from $94,000,000, estimated for the next fiscal year, to $125,000,000.

They do not look favorably upon the proposition of David A. Wells, submitted to Secretary Carlisle, to double the tax on tobacco and malt liquors. His plan is to raise $64,000,000 annually from each of these items. The present tax realizes $32,000,000 on each article. These Democratic members hold that these articles are the poor man's luxuries and therefore should be taxed at a minimum rate. Whisky they claim is not a luxury, and that the producer can readily stand the increase without raising the price to the consumer. In addition, they claim that it can be collected without any increased expense.

For any additional revenue which may be required from the falling off of customs the Democratic members, with one or two exceptions, regard a graduated income tax as the most equitable method of raising revenue which could be applied. The class of the population who have incomes upward of $2,000 a year they claim can well afford to contribute to the support of the government. While they admit that there are some features which are inquisitorial and offensive, the system would readily yield the revenue required and out of a class of people who could well afford to pay. This proposition will have ardent supporters among Democrats of the committee and in the house. It will be antagonized by many of the northern and eastern Democrats in co-operation with the Republican minority in the committee and house. —Washington Dispatch.

QUITE ENGLISH, YOU KNOW.

A London Ladies' Club and the Cigarette Question.

A certain high class ladies' club is in danger of disruption over the cigarette question. A large minority of the members smoke, and therefore a smoking room is provided, but ladies who do not smoke object to this room and are agitating for its abolition. If they succeed, the smokers will probably leave the club, and the secession will be serious. According to one account, a nonsmoking lady, disliking the atmosphere of the place, is deterred from entering the room, and being conscious that it is the coziest and most gossipy room of the club is very unwilling to be shut out from the interesting talk. Her natural course would be to take to cigarettes also and brave the criticisms of home. But instead of raising the domestic question she raises the club question and wants the smoking room done away with.

The lady smokers, however, are strong in numbers, and being in possession of a comfortable privilege do not see why they should forego it. If the smoke is disagreeable to the nonsmoker, they say the nonsmoker can stay out. The Pioneer, which is one of the most prominent of the many ladies' clubs in London, wishes it understood that the story does not apply to it. Not more than 20 of its 280 members use the smoking room.—London Dispatch.

The Land of Rest.

Here lies an old woman who always was tired,
For she lived in a house where help was not hired.
Her last words on earth were: "Dear friends, I am going
Where nothing ain't done, nor churning, nor sewing,
And everything there will be just to my wishes,
For where they don't eat there's no washing of dishes!
I'll be where loved anthems will always be ringing,
But having no voice I'll get rid of the singing.
Don't mourn for me now, and don't mourn for me never,
For I'm going to do nothing forever and ever!"
—Newburyport Herald.

Perseverance.

The heights by great men reached and kept
Were not attained by sudden flight,
But they, while their companions slept,
Were toiling upward in the night.

Art.

Art is the child of Nature—yes,
Her darling child, in whom we trace
The features of the mother's face,
Her aspect and her attitude,
All her majestic loveliness
Chastened and softened and subdued
Into a more attractive grace,
And with a human sense imbued.
He is the greatest artist, then,
Whether a pencil or a pen,
Who follows Nature. Never man,
As artist or as artisan,
Pursuing his own fantasies,
Can touch the human heart, or please
Or satisfy our noble needs,
As he who sets his willing feet
In Nature's footprints, light and fleet,
And follows fearless where she leads.

Fortunate Mortals.

Considering that bicycling in its present form is only four or five years old, the popularity it has obtained is surprising to the layman. To the crank, however, there is nothing astonishing about it. The modern bicycle offers a means of getting over ground that is at once healthful and economical. The silent steed needs no oats. A drop of oil now and then satisfies its appetite. It doesn't die. It isn't subject to spavin, ringbone or glanders. It doesn't run away, and no stable is required to shelter it. Seated on its back, the rider laughs to scorn the crowded cable cars and the elevated road. His cheeks glow with the ruddy health engendered by the exercise, and he would not exchange places with the fashionable in the dogcart whom he leaves far behind on the boulevard. It is no wonder, then, that all bicyclers are enthusiasts. They have a right to be. They enjoy advantages over ordinary people, and they are only human in showing that they possess them.—Chicago Herald.

Outcome of the Religious Congress.

The outcome of the religious congress at Chicago is an organization which has for its object, to use Bacon's words, "the glory of the Creator and the relief of man's estate." No man can well decline to promote the former purpose without avowing himself an atheist, nor the latter without confessing himself to be something less than human. The new organization is called the Brotherhood of Christian Unity, and its only article of association is a statement that the subscribers "desire to serve God and their fellow men under the inspiration of the life and teachings of Jesus Christ."

A SLIGHT INCREASE

In Business Transactions Throughout the Country.

DROP IN PRICE OF WHEAT.

Textile Industries Disturbed by Strikes.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—R. C. Dun & Co.'s Review of Trade says:

The volume of business transacted increases some, because the longer people go without clothing or other necessaries the more certain their demand is to revive. But the recovery itself hesitates, for no one can tell what it may have to meet. A faithful photograph of business under such circumstances necessarily presents contradictory features, but the underlying fact for the week is that people are waiting as far as they can.

Railroad stocks have yielded about 50 per cent per share. Abundant money on call makes stock operations look inviting, but people see that money on call is abundant, chiefly because the money market itself is waiting and does not know what to do.

Decline In Wheat.

Wheat has weakened 1 1-4 cents; though the government report would indicate a yield of only 391,000,000 bushels, so small as to warrant a much higher price. Western exports for the week have been 6,054,648 bushels, against 9,361,979 last year, while Atlantic exports have fallen to 621,861 bushels, against 1,909,123 last year. Corn has advanced 1-4 cent.

Cotton stands just where it did a week ago.

The monthly report of the iron output Oct. 1 shows a decrease of 10,000 tons weekly in September, being 73,895 tons, weekly, against 83,434 last month and 158,027 a year ago. Since May 1 the decrease is about 60 per cent, and unsold stocks slightly increased, while prices are the lowest yet recorded. But the demand for finished products has started nearly 50 more mills with work, though at cut-throat prices, since it falls much below the capacity of the mills now in operation.

In textile manufactures the number of mills closing wholly or in part is again about as great as the number resuming work, and industries are further disturbed by important strikes against reduction of wages, one in Providence affecting 150,000 persons.

The demand for woolen goods is not a third of the usual magnitude, and sales of wool at three chief markets for the last week were 2,500,452 pounds, against 7,099,600 last year.

Outside New York boot and shoe factories are but poorly employed, and eastern shipments for the week were 34 per cent below last year's, but bright spots appear in women's shoes and in rubber goods.

The failures for the past week number 393 in the United States, against 187 last year, and 42 in Canada, against 26 last year.

SWALLOWED A NEEDLE.

An Infant's Terrible Suffering at Last Accounted For.

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 14.—A remarkable case is reported from Greenville. The 7-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Marsh had continued paroxysms of crying, so severe that the parents feared convulsions. When the child was held in a certain position, perfectly still, it would be easy for a time; but the slightest movement or jar would bring on a distressing attack.

On careful examination there was found a slight hardness and bulging over the abdomen. Finally, after watching the case for hours and trying in vain to relieve the child, the physician decided that it must be caused by some foreign substance that the child had swallowed trying to work out. The baby was etherized and an opening was made into the bowels. Deep in the opening was found a needle 1 1-2 inches long, which was working its way out eye end first.

No Pay, No Work.

BARRE, Vt., Oct. 14.—Nearly 50 granite cutters, polishers and lumpers, employed by C. E. Tayntor & Co., quit work yesterday owing to the non-payment of wages. The men claim to have received only a very small portion of the wages due them since Aug. 1, and that several thousand dollars are now due by the firm to the cutters. The cutters say they have no fear that the wages will not be paid, but they could not see the way clear to work any longer unless they were paid what they earned.

The Innocent Must Suffer.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 14.—The property of Hon. John D. Washburn of this city, late United States minister to Switzerland, was attached yesterday on two writs of $10,000 each, with John M. Washburn as co-defendant, in favor of the Old Colony Railroad company. The suit grew out of the irregularities in the accounts of John M. Washburn, late treasurer of the Old Colony railroad.

For Manslaughter.

MACHIAS, Me., Oct. 14.—Judge Libby sentenced Bela Noyes, who was convicted of manslaughter, to two years in state prison. The case against A. R. Foss, arrested as accessory to the murder, was not prossed, but he was held for selling liquor and keeping a tippling shop and public nuisance. He gave $1500 bail for his appearance next January.

Socialists Put to Flight.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—A crowd of unemployed workingmen, numbering about 250, started to march through some of the principal streets of the city, in spite of warnings from the police. They were charged by the police, and were quickly dispersed. Some of the socialistic leaders were arrested.

Strife at Guatemala.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Secretary Gresham has received official notice that the president of Guatemala has declared himself dictator, dissolved the extra session of congress, assumed control of government and ordered a new election.

His Appeal Rejected.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14.—By a vote of 78 to 51 the Presbyterian synod rejected the appeal of Professor Smith on every count, thus sustaining his conviction and suspension by the presbytery for heretical teaching.

SONGS FROM SIGHING.

Dark was the house and cheerless,
And fast fell the rain from without;
My heart was chilled by the morning,
And besieged by many a doubt.
And I said: "There is no good in trying.
The old year is dying, dying.
Many hearts that were glad
Are weary and sad,
And the world is filled with the sighing."

The good man came in whistling,
Though the rain fell fast without;
He cheered my heart with his joy song,
And scattered my every doubt.
And he said: "We'll just keep on trying.
A new year will spring from the dying.
Many hearts shall be glad
That now are so sad,
And songs shall grow out of the sighing."
—E. H. Chase in Homemaker.

THE TWO DOCTORS.

They do not do so now, but in bygone times some of the medical students and young practicing physicians of Detroit were in the habit of stealing bodies for dissection from the cemeteries adjoining the city.

In those times there were two young doctors, just out of their teens, who were partners in a practice which left them with a great deal of time on their hands. Both of them were strong of head and of physical makeup, and either of them could drink any other man in Detroit drunk on cherry whisky and still retain his sea legs and his cool head. And there were not a few sturdy drinkers in Detroit then.

Nevertheless, while the young physicians appeared to be sailing straight for the rock of Grog, they put in a great deal of time, much of it stolen from the night, advancing themselves in a profession to which they were courageously devoted. One of them, it may be mentioned incidentally, advanced in the after days to a very high position in the medical department of the United States army, and the other became one of the foremost physicians of the city.

One night the two determined upon making a sally upon a certain cemetery, to steal the corpse of a man who had died of a peculiar disease, which was the talk of the little town at the time, and which threw medical circles into sharp and in some instances furious discussion. When they sauntered from their favorite boozing place, they were pretty well filled with cherry whisky, and the hour was past 11 o'clock. Their cronies came away with them, as that was the customary hour for retiring unless it happened to be a holiday occasion, when "We Won't Go Home Till Morning" was sung, a song, by the way, which imparts a flavor of the wine of the immortals to good average whisky—which in its turn cheerfully and heartily reciprocates the compliment, by causing the song to thrill the soul like the war hymn of triumphant archangels.

Earlier in the evening they had made arrangements for a horse and a light wagon, spades, pickax, crowbars and ropes. They knew the location of the grave, and they started out. The night favored them with opaque clouds which hid a three-fourths faded summer moon.

Arrived at the desired place, outside the cemetery fence, they led the horse into a strip of woods, crossed the road and entered the cemetery. Before proceeding to business they took a hearty pull at the cherry bottle. With the aid of their dark lanterns they found the mark which had been made upon the grave in the daytime. They then proceeded to adjust their dark colored sheeting. The grave was pretty close to the road, but they didn't mind that. The sheeting, hung on sticks pressed into the ground, screened the grave from all points of view, and the dark lantern was hung in such a position that it shone in a narrow circle downward upon the grave.

Both seized their spades then and went to work with a will at either end of the grave, space being taken at one end to afford room for both to work. In this way the muscular young fellows soon reached the over box. The top of this was taken off and laid aside. In a little while the cover of the coffin was unscrewed, and in the haste of the moment it was thrown out of the grave. It struck the width of sheeting next the road and threw it down.

The corpse was a very heavy one, and it took the united efforts of both the doctors to raise it in the narrow space of the grave. They managed to stand it up at the end of the grave and then concluded that the best thing to do was to have one of them lift from below and the other from the top. To this end one of them proceeded to climb out of the grave, but just at that moment their blood was frozen in their veins by a piercing shriek.

On the night chosen by the young doctors for their raid on the cemetery R. William Green, a suburban beau, whose characteristics were of the hue of his name, and whose courage was utterly disproportioned to his tall, gaunt frame, was returning homeward in company with Mary S——, as beautiful a country girl as ever tripped over the daisies and as bright and intelligent as she was beautiful. People often wondered then how a beauty of such manifest superiority of character could see anything attractive in a fellow like Bill Green, but from this coign of time the riddle is easily read—beaus were very scarce in the township of H—— in those days, and hence a girl had no choice. It was said that they were affianced, but this was not true. Something in Mary's conduct had held William back from declaring himself, although she readily allowed his attention and refused the proffers of escort of a certain newcomer in the field.

That night the couple had been to a party, and the shortest and indeed the only way to their respective homes was by the cemetery road, unless it might be across the rough fields, an impracticable way in the dark.

As the twain approached the dark hollow of the road, which the bounds of the cemetery touched, Mary naturally drew closer to her tall escort, and the touch of femininity awakened in William the determination to take advantage of her timidity and pop the question. But William was a bit of a coward, as already intimated, and the chill hour of midnight, together with the contiguity of the graveyard, was not to his liking. His heart went pit-a-pat, not for the adored object at his side, but because of certain noises which the wind made among the bushes in the cemetery, and he also fancied there were footsteps behind him. His repressed fears controlled his tongue, upon which a proposal of marriage hung suspended, although Mary pressed closer to his side as they walked rapidly along.

As for the thoughts that were passing through the shapely head of Mary at the time, the lady has since said that she knew from William's actions that he wanted to propose, and she frankly admits that he would have been accepted on the spot, since she entertained the idea that she would have been abandoned in the horrible place if she had refused. On such little things do the pivots of a life sometimes swing.

William was long in drawing his courage to the sticking point. At length he drew in a long breath, and tremulously uttering the name that Byron and Burns loved so fondly—"Mary"—was about to declare himself and ask for her hand, but at that critical moment the disturbed eyes of both were drawn to the cemetery by the light of the dark lantern. They suddenly stopped in a palsy of fear. And such a horrible sight as they saw!

The face of a corpse protruding from the grave, every frightful feature exposed in the light of the dark lantern!

Mary shrieked and fell in a dead faint. William's knees smote together, and his hair arose in abject fright. Another instant and his legs, which were growing too weak to support him, would have given way and brought him to the ground, but Mary's shriek, in the total eclipse of his senses sounding like the yelp of a pursuing fiend, galvanized him into the strength of terror, and he flew down the road like the shadow of a scudding cloud. Scrambling over the fence, for a cross cut to his home, his coattails were gripped from behind by the stout sliver of a rail, and thinking that the fiend had him he fainted dead away and hung there for an hour. Recovering his senses later, he staggered to the house and to bed, where he remained a very sick man for two weeks.

The shriek paralyzed the young doctors for but a moment. They scrambled hastily out of the grave. One of them seized the dark lantern and closed the slide, and then both of them stood silent, drawing quick breaths. Not a sound was heard. It was a place remote from houses, and they were satisfied that even such a piercing shriek would convey no alarm.

"It must have come from the road," whispered one to the other.

"Let us search," was the brief reply.

The body of the girl was found, and the young physicians, regardless of their own safety and at no little risk of their lives in case of discovery, set at work to bring the girl out of her deathlike swoon. It was no easy task to allay her fears. They did everything that men could do to reassure the frightened girl, and gradually she became self possessed and begged to be taken home. She was too weak to walk. The team was brought around, and she was carefully and tenderly assisted to a seat. Dr. X was beside her, and reaching down the dark lantern to his companion, who stood in the road, he said, "Leave it."

The other understood, and without hesitation proceeded to reinter the corpse and hide the tools in the adjoining woods. He said afterward that he made a better job at fashioning the mound than the sexton had. At any rate, it was never known that the grave had been disturbed.

During the drive to Mary's home, as Dr. X subsequently informed his companion, he told some of the most ingenious lies on record. It was quite by accident that they discovered her in the road as they were driving home after a consultation case, he had gravely informed her, and he gave her the particulars of the case, shrewdly avoiding any inquiry as to what caused her to be stretched in the middle of the road in a dead faint alone.

He promised to visit her next day, and he kept his promise. And feeling interested in the case he kept on coming when she was quite well, until finally one day, on quitting the house, Mary went with him in a carriage after whose rolling wheels a gay wedding party pitched old slippers, amid the laughter of the young and the benedictions of the old.—Detroit News.

That Hare Belonged to Him.

Little black Joe hung around his mammy begging for a donkey until in an impatient tone his maternal relative exclaimed, "Now, Joe, yo' jes go right out dar, set on dat pumpkin and reckin y'll hatch out a little donkey fo' long." Small Joe duly sat until his patience was exhausted. Then seizing the obstinate pumpkin he threw it down the hill. At the foot it struck a stone and broke into a score of pieces.

Startled by this unexpected object, a hare bounded out from a clump of neighboring bushes—apparently from among the pieces of pumpkin—and scampered away over the fields. "Hi, hi, dar!" shouted the excited Joe. "Come back! Don't yo' know dat I'ze yo' mammy?"—New York Tribune.

Two Enormous Teeth.

The editor has recently added two gigantic teeth to his large collection of curios. The largest of these teeth weighs 9½ pounds and is 4 by 9½ inches across the crown or grinding surface. The other measures 7 by 8½ inches and weighs 7⅝ pounds. The larger of the two was found on a sandbar in Des Moines river, near the mouth of Bluff creek, Mahaska county, Ia.; the other near Eagle Rock on Whitebreast creek in Marion county in the same state. According to the scientists, they formerly graced the jaws and ground the food of an extinct species of American elephant, known to the geologists as Elephas Americanus.—St. Louis Republic.

A TALKING MATCH.

Stewart Grinds Out More Anti-Repeal Argument.

COMPROMISE ALMOST SURE.

Senators Show the Severe Tax on Their Strength.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—It might have been expected that after a continuous session of 39 hours, closing at 2:30 yesterday morning, and after the partial failure of the test of physical endurance on the silver purchase repeal bill, that measure would have been allowed to go over until Monday, when the senate would have adjourned until then.

The senate met at the usual hour, took up the bill promptly, and submitted, with weariness and patience, to the second installment of Mr. Stewart's speech. Not only did it did so, but it was a remarkable fact that there were several more senators present than there had been for some weeks past. The first rollcall showed the presence of 54 senators, the second of 51 and the third of 52. The fifth call showed the presence of 57.

Mr. Stewart announced his purpose not to vote for any bill that would limit the life of silver; and he was still talking at 7 p. m., only interrupted by half hourly calls. There was, indeed, one longer break in his speech, while Senators Teller and Hoar had an excited discussion over the rights of minorities. Mr. Vest (Dem., Mo.) gave notice of an amendment to the bill. This amendment proposes the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act and the issuing of coin certificates for the uncoined bullion.

What Next?

The feeling is here that unconditional repeal is dead. A compromise seems almost sure. When the contest was entered upon it was evident to every man of any experience in the senate that the majority would be the sufferers. An attempt to wear out an absent minority could not end otherwise than in the discomfiture and final defeat of those who assumed the task.

It was necessary, or at least appeared so, for the senators who have been making a fruitless effort to secure the repeal of the silver purchasing clause of the Sherman law to go through a test of physical suffering to demonstrate to the president and those of the public who are demanding the unconditional repeal of the law their sincerity of purpose and their helplessness to do anything in opposition to a determined minority.

Staunch Repealers.

The repealers, therefore, fearlessly subjected themselves to the test of physical suffering to prove their good faith. It never was a good test of endurance between the repealers and the anti-repealers, since the anti-repealers were not subjected to the strain, but was merely a test of the amount of suffering the administration forces could endure in support of their good faith.

It was like the self-inflicted torture of a religious fanatic to appease the anger of his god, and during the closing hours of the ordeal the evidence of the suffering endured became painful to the audience assembled to witness the sacrifice. Men with long years of service are capable of enduring the test of any intellectual battle, but, past that age where brute force and physical power are weapons at their command, became pitiable objects of physical suffering before the night's session was over.

Strain Told Upon Them.

Their forms were bent, their legs trembling and their steps unsteady; heavy lines drawn across their features, as pale almost as death, with dark rings around their eyes, which were almost closed with sleep. And at any minute they were threatened with utter collapse if for a few minutes they sought that rest which seemed necessary to save their lives.

The inexorable call for a quorum aroused them, and the ringing of the electric bells, sounding far off to their sleepy ears, called them to their self-imposed duty and deprived them of the poor comfort of brief oblivion. The session, from late in the afternoon until the hour when the long-prayed-for adjournment came, was one of weary debate and still more weary rollcalls.

In the House.

The house resumed consideration of the McCreary bill to amend and modify the Geary Chinese registration exclusion act, after having agreed to vote on the measure and pending amendment at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. The intervening time will be given to debate.

Mr. Raynor (Dem., Maryland) argued that the passage of the bill was an act of self-evident justice. Mr. Sickles of New York also spoke in favor of the bill, and had read the following proposed amendment:

Provided, that nothing contained in this act, or in any other act, shall be held or construed to be in contravention of any treaty now existing between the United States and the emperor of China.

Mr. Loud (Rep., Cal.) proposed an amendment authorizing any citizen, on information, to begin proceedings for the deportation of any Chinese resident unlawfully in the United States.

Mr. Bowers (Rep., Cal.) said the argument in favor of the pending bill seemed to be based upon the single interest of protecting American missionaries in China. He made an attack upon the teachings of the Christian religion, as shown by their results in the treatment of those not affiliated with that religion.

Mr. Bowers warned the Democrats and Republicans that if this McCreary bill was passed there would not be enough of either party left in California to make a grease spot that could be seen with the naked eye.

Asked by Mr. Wilson (Rep., Wash.) to explain what would become of them, he said the Populists would receive an astonishing increase in that state.

Mr. Draper (Rep., Mass.) briefly gave his reasons, as a member of the committee on foreign affairs, for voting for the pending bill.

Mr. Morse (Rep., Mass.) favored the pending bill. He denounced the Geary law in severe terms, and said he would be glad to vote for its repeal, and was glad to vote for any modification of it. He was in favor of restricting immigration in a proper way, but did not wish to stop with the Chinese.

Mr. Maguire (Dem., Cal.) defended the Geary law as a reasonable, easy and convenient requirement, wholly within the bounds of the constitution.

GREAT LAKE STORM

Causes Disaster to Overtake Several Vessels.

MANY SAILORS ARE LOST.

Reports of Marine Mishaps In Many Quarters.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—The severity of the northwest gale that has swept the great lakes for the past 48 hours has not been exceeded during the season of navigation for the past 10 years. The list of wrecks, in proportion to the number of vessels which were out in the gale, is larger perhaps than in the history of the latter day marine. That there has been a large loss of life now seems certain, but it may be several days before it is known just how many sailors perished. The list of wrecks follows:

Enterprise, ashore, Lion's Head, Lion's Bay.

Steamer C. F. Curtis, ashore, Cheboygan.

Schooner Isabel Reid, ashore, Cheboygan.

Barge Sweepstakes and barge Knight Templar, lake tug Acme, all ashore at Cheboygan.

Schooner Volunteer, stranded, Port Austin, Ont.

Schooner Falconer, ashore, Lake Ontario.

Unknown schooner, ashore near Manistee.

Schooner John T. Mott, sunk, Fairport, O.

Schooner Amboy, ashore, Buffalo.

Schooner Montblanc, waterlogged, Buffalo.

Steamer Schuylkill, stranded, Bar Point.

Steamer Maritana, stranded, Elliott Point.

Schooner Ironton, ashore, Bay Mills, Lake Superior.

Dispatches from all points along the west shore of Lake Huron and the eastern end of Lake Superior indicate that the storm increased greatly in violence as night came on, and at midnight the storm was at its height, but most of the lake fleet had succeeded in reaching shelter.

Six Lives Lost.

MANISTEE, Mich., Oct. 16.—The identity of the four-masted schooner reported ashore near here has been established. The vessel is the Minnehaha of Cleveland, with a cargo of corn. Of the seven souls on board, but one, Captain Packer, escaped.

The schooner went ashore Saturday, and it was seen that she must soon be pounded to pieces by the very heavy seas. The Manistee life saving crew was called upon for assistance, the claim being made that the Frankfort crew could not be reached. A train was immediately made up and the crew and boat taken to Onemaka, where the boat was carried 10 miles through the wood.

Upon arriving at the scene at midnight, the Frankfort was found upon the ground, having arrived just before dark, but too late to be of any service. The schooner Minnehaha had been thrown upon the beach at about noon. The sea was running very high and swept the decks clean and the crew was all drowned except the captain, who jumped overboard with a plank and swam ashore. The Minnehaha was being towed by the steam barge Henry J. Johnson, also of Cleveland, which became disabled during the storm, and Captain Packer, fearing that he would go down in the open sea, cut the towline and put for shore.

The life saving crew then returned to Manistee at 3 o'clock, bringing Captain Packer with them. The captain said that his hatches went over the rail, and the hold began to fill with water when cut loose. A few minutes after she struck the bar the vessel broke into two, and within half an hour nothing but the bow was left. The crew was amidships, while he was at the stern, when the vessel broke. He took a plank and jumped. They had no life preservers on board, and the opinion of the captain is that if there were they would all be alive today. The Minnehaha went to pieces two hours after she struck on the bar None of the bodies have been recovered.

Eighteen Probably Drowned.

BUFFALO, Oct. 16.—Eighteen persons, the entire crew of the propeller Dean Richmond, are given up for lost in Saturday night's storm on Lake Erie. The corpses of five have been washed ashore off Vanburne Point, 40 miles from this city, near Dunkirk. The shore of the lake is strewn with wreckage and merchandise and the waves are hourly yielding up further evidences of the fate to which the Richmond has gone.

Another boat, the schooner Typo, is thought to have gone down with her crew just off Gravelly Bay, on the Canadian side, a few miles from this city. She is owned by the Hargrove company of Detroit.

Passed Vessels In Distress.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 16.—The steamer City of Augusta was 24 hours overdue from New York. On Saturday at 12 o'clock she passed the schooner Maggie Abbott, McIntosh, master, with logwood, from Port de Paix, bound for New York, dismasted. She asked to be taken in tow, but the steamer could not assist. An offer was made to remove the crew, but was refused. When 60 miles off Cape Romaino, the City of Augusta passed the schooner Cavalier, from Brunswick for New York, with rudderhead gone, and she wanted to be towed.

On Lake Superior.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Oct. 16.—The gale from the northwest was felt severely on Lake Superior. Three boats are missing and one ashore.

USED CRUTCHES FOR YEARS.

But Finally Discarded Them on the Advice of a Vision.

BROCKTON, Mass., Oct. 16.—An alleged miraculous case of healing has taken place in this city. Henry P. Caswell, a Centerville newsdealer, met with an accident 20 years ago from which he has been crippled. During all these years he has been obliged to use crutches. This is his story of recovery:

HENRY P. CASWELL.

'A few nights ago I retired about the usual hour and was soon asleep. How long I slept I do not know, when from some subtle influence my eyes were opened, and standing over me was an aged man, his long white beard flowing down over his chest. This strange guest as I first beheld him filled me with fear, but before I could utter a word, in tones soft and benignant he said: 'Why do you use crutches? Throw them away and walk forth.'

"The vision, for vision I solemnly believed it was, then vanished. I was so impressed by it, however, that I got out of bed and walked all around the room unassisted by crutches, and I have used none since. During the past 20 years I have been the patient of many doctors, and spent hundreds of dollars in the hope of being helped, but now through the influence of the old patriarch of that vision I am a new man."

DETROIT'S BIG BLAZE.

Two Lives Lost and Property to the Amount of $200,000 Destroyed.

DETROIT, Oct. 16.—Fire yesterday totally destroyed the paint factory of Boydell Bros., Lee & Co.'s glass factory, Detroit paper box factory, Detroit Fly Paper company, John P. Hensien, Elbow and Tinware Manufacturing company, Harmonic hall, all on Champlain street. The loss will exceed $200,000.

George Barline, a commercial traveller, lost his life. A man who had been sleeping on the fourth floor is missing. The origin of the fire is not known.

Colored Murderer Confesses.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16.—William Whalen, a colored man, confessed to Chaplain Dudley of the state prison that he was the author of four mysterious and brutal murders that have been committed near Yellow Springs, Green county, in the last year. The victims were William Koegler, Louis E. Keiss, Allen Wilson and an old farmer named Huppings. All were killed by blows from a dray pin.

Germany Not Disturbed.

[Copyright, 1893, by United Press.]

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—The outburst of French chauvinism during the Toulon reception has been ignored here as empty noise. The government undoubtedly has some information which enables it to treat the Toulon fetes with contemptuous indifference. The foreign office maintains silence as to the reported renewal of the entente between France and Russia.

Indian Charged With Murder.

BUFFALO, Oct. 16.—Jasper Logan, a young Indian, is locked up in the Erie county jail charged with the murder of the squaw Mary Jackspruce, at Newton, on the Catarraugus reservation. The squaw's money was hidden under the bed in her house. This pouch had been torn from her in the struggle outside and rifled of its contents.

Minnesota State Librarian Dying.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 16.—Colonel Taylor, state librarian since 1877, is dying at his home in this city. He was born in Richmond Nov. 23, 1813. He married the youngest daughter of General William Henry Harrison in 1836, and was General Harrison's private secretary when he was president.

A Street Murder.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 16.—V. T. Tyler shot his wife, Emma F. Tyler, and then sent a bullet into his own head. The woman will recover, but the man will die. They had just returned to the city and when they met on the street had a quarrel and the shooting followed.

Taking Steps to Prevent Glove Contests.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 16.—The first step toward preventing the Mitchell-Corbett fight taking place here was a suit begun today against the Olympic club for $12,000 taxes. The decision is considered to be important, as it may stop even glove contests in the future.

Steamer Ashore at Long's Point.

PORT COLBORNE, Oct. 16.—The steamer Argonaut, which arrived last evening, reports that she passed a large steamer ashore on Long's Point. She is supposed to be the Byron Whittaker. Tugs have been sent to her assistance.

A Lucky Youngster.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 16.—As an express train on the Grand Trunk was passing by Coaticooke, Que., a passenger was blown from the train. This proved to be a 7-year-old boy. The train was stopped and backed to the scene, where the youngster was picked up uninjured.

Two Tramps Were Killed.

TOPEKA, Oct. 16.—A head end collision occurred on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad at Paxico between a freight and a passenger. Two colored tramps were instantly killed. Several passengers were more or less injured.

A CHANGE OF RULES

Cannot Be Considered Until Senators' Passion Subsides.

WILL OF THE SILVERITES

Must Be Considered In All Compromise Plans.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Notwithstanding the interesting and important character of the debate progressing in the house upon the question of Chinese immigration and registration, the silver situation in the senate, with its related subject of the rules of the management of that body, easily holds first place in public attention.

As to the matter of the rules there is no belief that any change will come within the immediate future, despite the introduction of several amendments introduced recently by members who want the senate governed by rules which will enable the majority to control debate within what they conceive to be reasonable limit. The time for a modification of the rules will not be ripe, in the opinion of practiced observers, until the consideration of the subject can be entered upon without passion.

As to the silver question, the common expectation is that some compromise will be brought forward on the Democratic side and be pressed to a vote at the earliest possible moment. Just when this moment will arrive depends largely upon the nature of the forthcoming compromise, for if it is not acceptable to the silver Republicans and Populists they can and probably will put many obstacles in the way of its enactment into law.

The probable course of events meanwhile is a continuance of the debate for a few days at least. The debate has assumed a more interesting character since Senator Jones began his speech Saturday, and promises to revive a flagging interest in the subject. Probably Mr. Morgan will follow Mr. Jones, but the order of speakers has not been definitely arranged. During the continuance of the debate there will be a fair opportunity for looking to the expected compromise.

In the House.

A vote will be reached by consent of the house at 3 o'clock this afternoon upon Mr. McCreary's bill to amend and modify the Geary Chinese registration act. Mr. McCreary says there is no doubt of the passing of the bill, provided a quorum be present and vote.

Immediately after the vote on the Chinese bill has been announced Mr. Cox of Tennessee will call up his bill for the better regulation of national banks, which has been favorably reported from the committee on banking and currency. He will probably not ask consideration of the measure until Tuesday. The bill provides

That no national bank shall make any loan to its president, vice president or any persons in its employ until the proposition to make such a loan shall have been submitted in writing by the person desiring the same to a meeting of the board of directors or executive committee of such board, if any, and accepted and approved by a majority of those present constituting a quorum. No bank shall permit its president, directors or other persons in its employ to become liable to it by reason of overdrawn account.

It is also provided that a schedule of all such loans shall be reported to the comptroller of the currency. Not much debate is anticipated on this bill, as Representative Warner, a member of the committee, is the only antagonist the bill has so far seen. Representative Hepburn of Iowa, who was solicitor of the treasury under the Harrison administration, commends the measure.

After the bank bill is out of the way the bill to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States will be taken up, and its consideration will doubtless exhaust all the remainder of the week.

Saturday In Congress.

There was a heated debate in the senate on the rights of the minority. Amendments to the rules were proposed. Jones continued the debate against repeal. Voorhees stated he would sit in continuous session as long as a quorum remained, and that the silver fight had but just begun.

The debate on the amendment to the Geary Chinese exclusion bill was continued in the house.

Dr. Walker Claims the Reward.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 16.—Dr. Mary Walker, in her customary attire, spent several hours in this city yesterday. She is on her way to Lebanon, N. H. She will claim the reward of $3500 offered for the capture of the murderer of Christie Warden. She still persists that it was Abbott who committed the crime, and that Almy, the real murderer, is now in Syracuse, N. Y., where he was arrested at her instigation.

Held For the Grand Jury.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 16.—James E. Dennison, attorney at law, of Westerly, was arrested on a warrant charging him with forgery on a writ which had been issued against John E. Collins of Westerly in favor of the Milliken-Tomlinson company of Portland, Me. He was adjudged probably guilty and bound over in $2000 to await the action of the grand jury.

He Invented a Type Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Amos Densmore, inventor of a type writer and other mechanical contrivances, died at his home here from cancer of the face. He and his elder brother, James, were the first inventors of the Remington type writer, about 20 years ago.

Shot For Stealing Walnuts.

HARTFORD, Oct. 16.—Daniel Donahue, a laboring man, was shot by Fred K. Bradley, a farmer, for stealing walnuts. Bradley was charged with assault and intent to kill and was released on $300 bonds. Donahue's wounds are not serious.

Veragua Praises Americans.

MADRID, Oct. 16.—The Duke de Veragua, with his family, has returned here from his visit to the United States after having stayed for some months at San Sebastian. The duke is eloquent in praise of the reception given him by the great American people.

Wishing justice done a townsman we would give the exact figures. Senator Merrill's plurality in the district was 456, and Hyde Park gave him 313. Furthermore, Hyde Park, Braintree and Quincy together did not give him his majority, while no town gave an adverse plurality exceeding 114.

RUNAWAY BOYS.

One Draws $500 from Quincy Savings Bank, and Three Start West.

There was considerable excitement on Sunday morning when it was reported that three boys, whose ages are about fifteen years, had disappeared.

The three boys were William Clare, Ernest Baker and Walter Smith. All of the boys lived with their parents and had pleasant homes, and the only reason that is given for their sudden leave taking is that they had been reading fiery literature and had become possessed with the idea that they must "go west."

The absence of the boys was first discovered Sunday morning by Mr. Clare, who was somewhat surprised at not finding his son in his room, when he had gone to bed as he supposed about ten o'clock Saturday night.

An investigation was at once made and it was soon made apparent that the departure was a premeditated one, as the boy had taken all of his clothes besides a quantity of reading matter.

The investigation also showed Mr. Clare's bank book to be missing and inquiring revealed that the boy had visited the Savings bank about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon and had drawn out $500 of his father's hard earned cash.

The cashier of the bank was not present when the payment was made and as the boy had often drawn out money for his father everything was thought to be all right and five $100 bills was passed out.

The Baker boy is known to have been talking of going west for some weeks and he has tried to induce several of the young boys to accompany him but he evidently met with no success until he had secured the Clare and Smith boys. Baker lived at Germantown and inquiring revealed the fact that he had not been home since Saturday noon and it is now supposed that the three met sometime near midnight and walked to Boston and took an early train west.

The Clare boy wore a blue suit with a long gray ulster, the Baker boy wore a light gray suit with a black cap while the Smith boy had on his best suit over his everyday clothes.

Chief of Police Langley was notified and together with Mr. Clare went to Boston where the day was spent in telegraphing the different cities in hopes of heading off the boys.

A Clue Obtained.

LATER.—Word was received by Chief of Police Langley this morning that the Harbor police had seen the three boys in a boat and chased them to Hull. The boys were so closely pressed that they left all of their personal property and ran. Chief Langley has gone to Hull and it will only be a question of a few hours before they are captured.

It seems that when the boys left Quincy Saturday night they walked to Houghs Neck and stole a boat and went to Peddock's island where they broke into a house. It is supposed they remained there all day Sunday and this morning started out when they were seen by the Harbor police.

AN EASY VICTORY.

The Quincy Y. M. C. A. Foot Ball Team Take Hinghams Into Camp.

Foot ball teams from the Y. M. C. A. of Quincy and the Hingham High School met on Merry Mount park Saturday afternoon.

The game was started at 3.30 and Quincy had the ball. Play was commenced and inside of two minutes the Y. M. C. A. had secured a touchdown.

Of the two teams the Quincys were the heaviest, and it was seen from the first that they were sure winners, although the Hingham boys made a strong resistance for a while, but were not able at any stage of the game to get the ball very near the Quincy goal.

During the first half of the game Slade made two brilliant plays, taking the ball which had been kicked over into Quincy's territory and rushing way across the field and securing touchdowns, although one of them was not allowed, as Slade had gone out side of the side line.

At the end of the first half of the game the score stood 24 to 0 in favor of Y. M. C. A.

The Hinghams had got all they wanted, and said they would not play the second half, but they finally consented to, and the Y. M. C. A. increased its score, so that at the finish the score stood 42 to 0.

The players lined up as follows:

| Y. M. C. A. | | H. H. S. |
|---|---|---|
| Merritt, | l. e. | T. Burdett |
| Taylor, | l. t. | Cole |
| Ripley, | l. g | H. Burdett |
| Faxon, | Centre. | |
| Hersey, | r. g. | Pyne |
| Pitts, | r. t. | Brassil |
| Bumpus, | r. e. | Blake |
| Sargant, | Quarter back. | Hersey |
| Bernie, | Half backs | J. Gough |
| Crane, | | Fiske |
| Slade, | Full back. | Fiske |

Score,—Y. M. C. A., 42; H. H. S., 0; touchdown, Slade 6, Bernie 2; goals, Slade 5; umpire, Fuller; referee, Spring.

—Women will be glad to know that it was a woman who invented the ice cream freezer. Ice cream will taste even better than it did before even when they know that. The woman inventor was Mrs. Nancy M. Johnston, who died three years ago in Washington. She lived to be 95 years old and to know that her happy invention had gladdened the heart of every true American family from the Atlantic to the Pacific. She devised the freezer in 1843. Before that ice cream was made by stirring with a spoon.

—The most beautiful season of the year is at hand—the time of brilliant foliage, clearest air and sunshine, and natural influences, on every hand that do good like a medicine. Many people sedulously refrain from vacation or unnecessary travel while the Summer months are on, and reserve their outings and leisure until the Fall months usher in a new order of things natural. At this season travel is a delight; and especially is this the case when one makes use of the Fall River Line as a medium of transportation. The beauty of the nights on the Sound at this time in the year is past the telling, and the attractions of the Fall River Line route are without blemish or drawback while Autumn continues. Test this, and see if it be not so.

HAMMOND RENOMINATED.

Again a Candidate for Representative in the Quincy-Weymouth District.

The Republican Representative convention was held at headquarters Saturday evening.

Charles R. Sherman called the convention to order and was elected temporary chairman, with Evart W. Adams as secretary.

Messrs. N. B. Furnald, John F. Merrill and Chandler W. Smith were appointed a committee on credentials, and they reported 48 delegates present.

The temporary organization was then made permanent.

Mr. George L. Gill proposed the name of Charles L. Hammond and moved that he be nominated by acclamation. In making this motion Mr. Gill said Mr. Hammond had once been elected, and that he had been tried and found true.

Mr. Gill's motion prevailed and Mr. Hammond was declared as the nominee.

A committee was appointed to invite Mr. Hammond into the hall and while they were out Messrs. John F. Merrill, John Shaw and E. W. Adams were appointed a committee to meet a like committee from Weymouth to ratify the nomination.

Mr. Hammond then entered the hall and upon being introduced thanked the convention for the honor, and said if reelected he would endeavor to represent the district in a manner that would be acceptable to the people.

Senator Merrill when called upon, said the unanimity with which all the conventions had been held, meant that the Republicans had given up local squabbles and that they would be unanimous. Without harmony it is impossible to win elections. In the past where there has been wrangling, it had unseated the party. He did not believe in hustling for delegates, but thought every man should go and freely express his opinion. The prospects for a victory this year are good. He believed the Republican party came nearer in all forms of government in giving good honest government than the Democratic party.

John Shaw said he was very pleased to hear the remarks that had been made about the good old Republican party, and that we not only wanted the McKinley bill in operation but the Republican party to protect it.

The convention then adjourned.

The Weymouth Men.

The Republicans held their caucus Saturday evening and nominated George L. Wentworth and James H. Flint as representatives to the general court from the fifth Norfolk district.

TODAY'S COURT.

Dennis Brennan of Randolph was sent to the house of correction for two months for drunkenness.

Mary E. Griffin of Braintree was arraigned for keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell and was fined $55.

The liquors seized from Charles H. Quinn of Cohasset were forfeited.

With Masonic Honors.

The funeral of Mr. George Enderle of East Milton, held Sunday afternoon, was very largely attended by delegations from Rural lodge and St. Stephen's chapter of Masons of this city, and the floral tributes from the lodges and friends were numerous. Attendants were surprised to see the body of their late friend resting as though asleep upon a couch in the room. It was certainly an innovation over prevailing custom, yet the absence of caskets at funerals might in many cases be for the better. At first, however, the change may cause more of a shock to some. A male quartette rendered music. The interment was at the Milton cemetery.

—The costliest mile of railroad is a mile measured on the steel portion of the Forth bridge. The length of this portion is a mile and twenty yards, and the cost of it was considerably over $10,000,000. The most expensive railway system in the world is the "Inner circle" line of London, which cost, including the purchase of land, from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 per mile. The last constructed mile, between the Mansion House and Aldgate, cost altogether, including "compensations," nearly $10,000,000.

—George Vanderbilt is one of nature's queer freaks. He is the least known of any of the enormously wealthy men of New York. He must be worth at least $35,000,000, but he might walk the length of the entire city without being recognized by half a dozen persons. He has never been prominent in any public movement. He has never attended a public function where crowds of people congregate, and when he goes to the theatre or to the opera he hides himself in the rear of a box, says the New York Herald.

It is a good plan to make and enforce the rule that any one removing a magazine or paper to hammock, easy chair, piazza, lounge, or elsewhere from the table, shall return it to the table, instead of casting it to the floor to be picked up. It would save a great deal of unnecessary trouble everywhere if each member of the family took care of the books and papers that they read. There seems to be something in the masculine nature that considers the floor the proper place for depositing a newspaper.—New England Farmer.

BOSTON GLOBE, Nov. 19, 1892.
From Speech of John E. Russell before Reform Club in Boston, Nov. 18, 1892.

Funeral of Joseph M. Glover.

The funeral of Joseph M. Glover took place Saturday afternoon from his late residence on High street.

The services were conducted by Rev. Edward Norton and were very impressive. There were delegations in attendance from the Royal Arcanum, No. 747 of Weymouth, Paul Revere Post, No. 88, the Quincy fire department, and from the firm and employes of J. F. Sheppard & Sons, with which the deceased was very popular. The floral tributes were very handsome, a standing crescent from J. F. Sheppard & Sons, a pillow from the Arcanum, an ivy wreath from Post 88, pillow, mound and wreath from the family, and a number of other designs from friends, neighbors and relations. The interment was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery, and the bells of the fire alarm were tolled while the cortege proceeded thither.

☞ Did you ever hear of the wonderful Glenwood Range—A fire piping hot while your winking once—Henry L. Kincaide & Co. cut price agents.

G. A. R. Fair.

At the grand fair of Paul Revere post, Nov. 20-25, there will be several voting contests. The most popular of the three branches—Paul Revere Post, the Women's Relief Corps, or the Sons of Veterans—will be awarded $50. Dolls will be given to the most popular girl in each ward, and skates to the most popular boy. A uniform to the most popular street railway man, and a fur cape to the clerk or saleslady. Franklin Curtis has charge of the books.

☞ Chamber sets $16.00 to $45.00.—Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

Dogmatic.

Doctor's Wife (anxiously)—Shall I send for Dr. Wellknown?

Physician—No; I have given myself up, and he may possibly find me at fault. —Harper's Weekly.

War Relics at the Fair.

Among the many thousands of exhibits at the World's fair, none attracts more enthusiastic attention than that of the army, writes a newspaper man. That of the ordnance department is of special interest, especially the relief maps showing the great coast defenses, the models of the modern forts and the old time blockhouses. The small arms, including the old flintlock muskets of 400 years ago and the rifles of the present day, the magazine guns, machine guns, mountain howitzers and the 12 inch siege guns, are also shown. Then there is the gun that fired the first shot in the civil war, the first bullet fired at Fort Sumter and the various machines for making rifles, ammunition and great guns.

He Ought to Visit at Home.

The German emperor is no doubt a model of most of the domestic virtues, but he certainly is wanting in one of them—a fondness for home. Not long ago his imperial majesty happened to mention to his brother, Prince Henry of Prussia, that he was out of health, and that his doctors had advised at least a month of complete change of air. On this Prince Henry suggested that the best way of following the advice would be to spend a month in Berlin!—London Tit-Bits.

Preferred Death to Siberia.

A dispatch from Warsaw says: Captain Tomassevicz of the Russian artillery was arraigned before a court martial to answer charges of ill treating a sentinel and forging documents. The evidence was overwhelming against him, and the court speedily found him guilty and sentenced him to exile in Siberia. As soon as the sentence was announced Captain Tomassevicz drew a revolver and shot himself dead.

California Argonauts.

A San Francisco letter says that an extension of the prosperous and widely known Association of California Pioneers has been formed under the name of Argonauts of California. The Pioneers admit no person who came to the state after 1849. The new order will let in any white man who has been in California for 25 years. Its purpose will be in effect the same as that of the Pioneers.

—There are 255 butter factories in the state of New York which manufacture about 15,000,000 pounds of butter annually. The cheese factories number 1,155 and make 110,500,000 pounds of cheese in a year. In addition to these there are 213 factories which make both butter and cheese. St. Lawrence county is the great dairy county in the state.

What's to be done? That is the question which they who love their fellowmen, and who believe that humanity and justice must go hand in hand if this republic is to endure, have been asking for, lo! these many days. Homelessness, hunger and raggedness in this country of plenty cannot coexist forever—nor much longer. Something must break. The strain is too great. I have heard a hundred conservative business men say, in effect, during the past six weeks: "Well, I don't see how it is possible for this state of affairs to continue another week. That there has not been a terrible breaking up before now is one of the mysteries that I cannot comprehend." The air is heavy with the mutterings of discontent, and what is the worst of it the mutterings are justifiable. Times are hard, hard, hard, and the future, with its nearby winter, promises no relief. The resumption of work in factories and mills recorded in the newspapers is offset by the shutdowns, and in a few weeks those now employed in the industries which are always closed during the winter will swell the army of the unemployed beyond the highest figure it has yet reached unless something is done.

Good men from every walk of life have been and are now proposing, considering and supporting plans for the relief of the destitute. Charity organizations are stumped. Notwithstanding the boasting and bluster of their officers they are not able to grapple with one corner of the problem. They have not the means. Very few of the rich, upon whom the charity organizations depend for their support, seem to realize—or care for—the extraordinary state of affairs. So, I say, charity is stumped. Besides, almsgiving is not what is wanted, and it could not cure the ills under which we suffer, no matter how much it might be extended. What is wanted is a chance for the unemployed to earn the means of their subsistence. And in attempts to provide such opportunity the only steps of consequence have been taken. Writers and speakers have been calling upon state and municipal authorities to undertake needed public improvements upon which the idle men could be given work, and something along that line is being accomplished, though not a great deal as yet.

There are editors and statesmen (?) who bitterly oppose such measures because they smack of "paternalism." These opponents, it seems, prefer bread riots, revolution, terrorism, to any sort of a compromise with their religion that every fellow is for himself and the devil take the hindmost. Municipal relief works have been opposed in some cities because the small souled, cold blooded opponents declared, "We will be deluged by all the unemployed and tramps for hundreds of miles around." Any city or town which refuses to do all in its power to relieve the sufferings of its poor because of the fear that the poor of some other locality may be drawn toward it deserves the fate of Sodom and Gomorrah. Usually such towns have laws closing everything but drug stores on Sundays and prohibiting the sale of cigarettes, they are so confoundedly good and moral, but I don't think their Christianity is the kind that Peter will recognize when it is presented at the gate.

Several municipalities have taken practical steps for the relief of the unemployed. Buffalo has put on a large force of laborers at digging trenches and laying water mains. The fund available for this purpose is $257,000, and the department will expend the full amount before frost becomes so heavy as to stop the work. This is, looked at from some directions, a small matter, but it will be equivalent to providing the necessaries of life to 2,000 families for the winter, and the principle may be extended to other public works. Omaha made a small move in the same direction. The city council appropriated $10,000 for the improvement of streets and alleys. Considerable trouble was experienced by the authorities in charge of the work, owing to the fact that only a small proportion of those applying could be given work, but the sentiment of a great part of the citizens of Omaha, as represented by The World-Herald, is favorable to an extension of the idea, and there seems to be a keen appreciation of the needs of the hour.

Chicago has given work to several hundred on the construction of its drainage canal. There have been some cruel misrepresentations in connection with this work. The drainage canal is being constructed by contractors, and through the efforts of the county commissioners the contractors agreed to increase their forces so far as possible to work with advantage by employing men who would be sent out by a bureau established in Chicago by the commissioners. Out of the thousands who applied the first day, 300 were selected and sent to the works. The Chicago Journal, organ of the exclusive, pig sticking plutocracy, printed an editorial item stating that all but five of the men quit work the first day and concluded that "evidently work was not what the lake front idlers wanted." The Washington Post and other contemptible journals whose editors curry favor with the robber barons by contending that there are no enforced idlers, but that the unemployed are lazy, shiftless nogoods, copied The Journal's paragraph and shouted, "We told you so."

In a day or so we heard the other side. Says The Inter Ocean on the subject:

The first reports substituted the number that had given up the task for the number that had persevered. The showing is highly creditable to the men. Many of them were unused to work that required great exercise of strength. All of them were unused to the work of excavation. They were placed in competition with trained and seasoned hands, and that so many held their own with them is conclusive evidence of the respectability of their character. They held their own by the exercise of that noble quality that prefers to earn bread by hard labor, and even at the cost of physical pain, to accepting the bread of charity. Chicago has reason to be proud of the 300 unemployed who are braving the hardships of Lemont. When prosperity returns, the most trustworthy men that employers can find may be found among this Spartan 300, who choose to work with sore hands and with aching backs rather than to beg with smooth or with noisy tongues.

The papers which were at such pains to circulate the lie have failed to correct it, and it is still quoted in counting rooms as proof that "they won't work when they may."

There is no doubt that the men who went to work on the canal were put to severe tests, and that they remained at the work is proof of their necessities. The Chicago Tribune relates the experience of the recruits, and a harrowing tale of brutality it is. Says The Tribune:

For some reason best known to the contractors on the canal the foremen of the works, by apparently preconcerted action, proceeded to make the positions of the recruits intolerable. From long idleness and insufficient food many of them were unable to do as much at the start as the men who had been long employed on the canal, though with a few days' practice they would have been just as efficient. Men with a spark of humanity in their bosoms would have given the unfortunates a chance by overlooking slow work for the first day or two. Not so the foremen of the drainage canal gangs. They put the new men with gangs of their best workers. They were given no water to drink and beaten and abused when their wheelbarrows were not so heavily loaded as those of the old hands.

Other measures of relief are being considered in Chicago. Many public spirited citizens are taking part in the discussion of ways and means. Various public improvements are suggested. Why such propositions do not meet with unanimous approval I cannot understand. There is not a city in the country which is fully supplied with public conveniences, such as streets, alleys, sewers, parks, etc. By making the improvements now two things are accomplished—the city is beautified and enriched, and the distress of a useful part of its citizens is relieved. "But we haven't the money." Rats! The suggestion of Colonel W. P. Rend of Chicago is not new, but it fills the bill. He says: "If the city has no money to pay for improvements, it should issue scrip or certificates which would be as good as legal currency." Look at France. There is no foolishness about the French when they see the need of doing something. What has made Paris the most beautiful city in the world? The employment of her surplus labor upon public improvements. Ask one of the French delegates now in this country why it is that the streets of Paris are so far superior to those of New York that he and his associates were shocked by the contrast when they landed in the American metropolis.

The city of St. Paul has taken steps to relieve the distress among its unemployed by furnishing work on public improvements. St. Paul is a "thoroughly practical" city, and its philanthropy is governed by "business principles." It has hedged its relief about with so many conditions that it looks as if there was more of a desire to get work done cheaply than to help the poor and a terrible fear that some poor devil who has never spent a quarter in the town might get the chance to earn a square meal. These are some of the St. Paul conditions: Wages limited to $1 per day, payable in "necessaries of life"—no cash; none but heads of families employed; six months' residence in the city required. Of course it is a good thing that some of the unemployed who can fill that bill will be given relief, but we don't want to hear any blowing of trumpets over the magnanimity, generosity and public spirit of St. Paul.

I intended to tell something of the relief measures adopted in 20 or more cities, but I see there will not be room in this letter. Pittsburg, St. Louis, Cincinnati, San Francisco and several other cities have considered the public employment idea and have progressed to different stages along that line. In San Francisco the homeless hundreds have established a camp and soup kitchen on the old sand lots. The city furnished the money for the purchase of an old sail, which was stretched across an open space, with supports at each side, thus providing a canvas roof to shelter the poor creatures. In Cincinnati the mayor is attempting to aid the efforts of the labor organizations' relief committee. He attended one of the meetings of the unemployed the other day. An incident of the meeting, reported in the Cincinnati Enquirer, will give an idea of the distress in that city:

A scene which was enough to touch a heart of stone closed the meeting. The chairman asked if there were any men in the hall who had had nothing to eat since the day before.

Nearly 50 men stood up.

A few more questions were asked, and then the fact was developed that there were nearly 90 men in the hall who had had nothing to eat for three days.

"Let's take up a collection of pennies and nickels among ourselves," said the chairman, "and buy these poor fellows something to eat."

A hat was passed, and $2.35 was raised. The chairman took the money to the John Schneider bakery, on Walnut street, and was given $5 worth of bread tickets for it. Then the men were called down. Some of them were so weak that they could scarcely stand. Most of them attacked the bread like ravenous wolves. One man took two loaves and hurried away. "I have seven children at home," was the only explanation he gave, and it was enough.

The labor organizations of New York are doing all they can to aid the needy, but every proposition looking to employment upon public works is clubbed down by the plutocratic press and the political powers. The governor of the state is going to talk to the relief committee of workingmen when the state fairs are over. Evictions for nonpayment of rent are hourly occurrences, and there would be more if there weren't two or three soft hearted judges in the city. Hunger and rags stalk the streets or crouch in dark corners, and the well fed are occupied with "silver in the senate," the tariff hearings and the coming yacht race. Once more permit me to say this is a great country, and nineteenth century civilization takes the waffle.

Sharing the Burden.

The action of the employees of the Suburban Traction company of New Jersey, which operates a horse car line running through the Oranges, has caused considerable comment. The line runs through the great hat factory district, and as most of the factories are closed on account of the dull times there has been a great falling off in the business of the car line. The employees of the Suburban company held a meeting, and the following correspondence ensued:

Mr. J. C. Cotton, Superintendent Suburban Traction Company:

SIR—We, the employees of your company, in meeting assembled, have come to the conclusion that, owing to the dullness in trade circles, thereby causing a falling off in the daily receipts of the cars of your company, we will during the dull season agree to a reduction in our wages as follows: Day men, $1.75; night men, $1.80, and the other employees correspondingly. The understanding to be that as soon as times become better our wages will be restored. MICHAEL COFFEY, Chairman.
MARTIN HEALEY, Secretary.

Heretofore the day men have received $2 a day and the night men $1.25 for six hours' work. The reduction proposed affects drivers, conductors, bookkeepers and stablemen.

The reply made by the company to the above proposition was as follows:

To the Employees of the Suburban Traction Company, Michael Coffey, Esq., Chairman:

GENTLEMEN—Your favor in regard to the reduction of wages is received, and your kind offer is accepted. The company wishes to present to you its appreciation of the consideration shown by its employees, and it is a pleasure to its officers to have their employees appreciate the difficulties and losses against which the company is now contending. Very truly yours,

SUBURBAN TRACTION COMPANY.
By F. W. Child, President.

President Child, in speaking of the matter, said the action of the men was a surprise to the officers of the company. The road was not at present doing a paying business, but every effort would be made to prevent the necessity of laying off any men or in any way causing the employees to lose anything by their action in coming to the relief of the company.

Pennsylvania Strikes In 1892.

A dispatch from Harrisburg says:

The report of the chief of the bureau of industrial statistics, Albert S. Bolles, which is Part III of the report of the department of internal affairs, of which Thomas J. Stewart is secretary, is nearly ready for distribution. Among other matters contained in this report is an account of all the strikes that happened during the year 1892.

Not including the strike of the employees of the Carnegie Steel company at Homestead, there were only 26 strikes during the year, a much smaller number than usual.

Of these 1 was by the employees of a railway company, 13 by the employees engaged in iron and steel industries, 2 by employees in cigar manufactories, 4 by employees in textile manufactories. There was 1 brewery strike, 1 in a cooperage works, 2 in tile works and a lockout by coal operators. Eleven of these strikes occurred in Philadelphia and 4 in Pittsburg. The whole number of persons engaged in the strikes was 4,208, and the number involved 7,414. Only 3 strikes succeeded, 4 partly so, while the others failed.

The total loss incurred by the employees was $373,246; the employer's loss, so far as ascertained, was $50,985.

The summary of strike statistics is followed by a lengthy account of the famous strike at the Homestead mills of the Carnegie Steel company and the other mills in the vicinity controlled by the same company.

The loss to the striking employees of the company during the period of the strike was about $1,350,000. The expense to the state for transportation and maintaining the troops was $440,256.31.

The strike was one of the longest and most costly that has ever occurred in this state.

The time has come when employers have had to take into consideration the prospects of free trade in the guise of tariff reform. To meet this change they have proceeded cautiously and have either closed their factories or made reduction in wages. Tens of thousands are out of employment, and what promised a year ago to be a year of remarkable prosperity, has proved to be a period of exceptional distress. Of what avail are the "cheap goods," promised by the Democrats, when our factories are closed and the idle workingmen have not money enough to buy even the necessities of life? Can the cheapness of goods counterbalance the disruption of business from Maine to California? Don't be deceived. The Republican policy is one of protection to American workingmen, and deserves the votes of all true-minded men.—Clinton Enterprise.

The Fault of the Age.

The fault of the age is a mad endeavor
To leap to heights that were made to climb,
By a burst of strength, of a thought most clever,
We plan to forestall and outwit Time.

We scorn to wait for the thing worth having.
We want high noon at the day's dim dawn.
We find no pleasure in toiling and saving,
As our forefathers did in the old times gone.

We crave the gain, but despise the getting;
We want wealth—not as reward, but dower—
And the strength that is wasted in useless fretting
Would fell a forest or build a tower.

To covet the prize, yet to shrink from the winning;
To thirst for glory, yet fear to fight—
Why, what can it lead to at last but sinning,
To mental languor and moral blight?

Better the old slow way of striving,
And counting small gains when the year is done,
Than to use our force and our strength contriving,
And to grasp for pleasure we have not won.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Fun With the Militia.

Some weeks since Adjutant General Allen of California ordered the state national guard to practice the riot drill, so as to be ready to put down the labor riots which he felt sure were to result from the hard times. The Federal Labor union of Oakland appointed a committee to attend the drills of the guard. The committee was instructed to report to the union from time to time the results of its observations and to make recommendations as to how these tactics could best be successfully circumvented by a body of comparatively undrilled but organized men. One of the reports made by the committee was the following:

We, upon investigation, would say we have discovered proof of evolution which has raised a dispute among us as to whether man is a descendant of the ape or parrot. We find that the men of the national guard are drawn together by two sentiments—one a desire to indiscriminately murder their fellow beings whenever an excuse is found, the other a desire that we find prominent among all savages to array themselves in gaudy apparel and to strut about with the pride of the peacock.

Then, again, they seem to regret the lost opportunity of being among the imperial guard of the czar of Russia when that guard murdered 36 peasants for the crime of trying to present a petition to his royal highness by the grace of God czar of all the Russias.

This is all the report we have at present, but hope to have something more definite at the next meeting.

This report is offered for the careful consideration of militiamen everywhere.

Penn's Humane Work.

The Pennsylvania road, which is ordinarily looked upon as the soulless corporation, without the least semblance of a magnanimous spirit, has won public favor as it never did before in its humane work of providing transportation for its employees who desire to go to the fair. Any one in the service, whether his position be as humble as that of a water carrier, is allowed a lay off, and with his family is given transportation to the White City. The Penn took the initiative in this most laudable move and was followed by the Lake Shore. The first named system has been running special trains for the accommodation of their servants—the persons who earn the road's dividends. The public applauds such work as this.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SOWING WILD OATS.

Son of Millionaire Fair Weds a Young Women With Two Names.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—A San Francisco special to The World says: With a hackman for best man, Charles L. Fair, the only surviving son of ex-Senator James C. Fair, the legatee to $1,000,000 of his mother's estate and disinherited of $20,000,000 from his father's estate, was married Friday in St. John's church, Oakland.

The ceremony was attended by but five people, the two principals, the minister and two witnesses, and the wedding breakfast consisted of one bottle of beer, divided between the bride and bridegroom. Charles Fair says that when he receives the principal of the estate he will publish a newspaper of the daily deeds of C. L. Fair, in whom the public seems to take a vast deal of interest.

The bride at this wedding had two names. One name was Caroline D. Smith. That was the name that was her heritage and to which she was justly entitled. The other name was Maude Nelson. Miss Smith is a native of New Jersey. She spend her childhood days in and around New York city, where her father, a brother and two married sisters now live. Her mother died two years ago.

Last winter Fair took her to Europe, and they were together constantly when she was visiting Chicago last summer during the racing season. Ex-Senator Fair is one of the quartet of bonanza kings who developed the famous Comstock silver mines. His wealth is estimated at $20,000,000.

BEVERLY'S CELEBRATION

Rounded Off With Sermons Appropriate to the Occasion.

BEVERLY, Mass., Oct. 16.—The continuation of the celebration of the 225th anniversary of the incorporation of the town of Beverly was carried out yesterday by a sermon by Rev. E. C. Butler, who took for his text the petition of the Beverly church to the Salem church, when the former asked for separation: "We desire to be a church by ourselves."

Mr. Butler reviewed the early characteristics and spoke of the great deliberation shown in every action. He spoke of the spirit of freedom which always characterized the early settlers of this church and the common sense they always used, which stopped the witchcraft delusion at the Salem side of the river and saved Beverly from its contaminating influences.

He hoped that New England would always retain the characteristics of the Puritan—the meeting house, the schoolhouse and the townhouse. There was a large attendance at the service and special singing by the choir. Rev. Edward Everett Hale preached a sermon to an audience, which filled the church to the doors.

A Novel Tour.

KILLED HIS CHILD.

Haven Wynn Then Takes His Own Life With a Razor.

A MAN OF BAD CHARACTER

From Whom His Wife Had Secured a Divorce.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct 16.—Haven Wynn yesterday killed his 2-year-old son by cutting his throat with a razor and then committed suicide in the same way.

His wife obtained a decree for separate maintenance, and had been given custody of their only child. She then went to live with her father at the corner of Dickinson and Oakland streets. Since his wife left him, Wynn showed a determination to obtain possession of the child at any cost. He called frequently to induce his wife by persuasion and threats to live with him again. She positively refused to do so at present, and this refusal maddened Wynn.

He had been given permission by the court to see his child, and, going to the house yesterday with a razor, he was allowed to enter, and for several hours he carried the baby up and down in the sitting room. His wife and her father, meantime, had driven to church, leaving Mrs. Hecox and her 14-year-old son at home with Wynn. Just before 12 o'clock, Wynn began to act so strangely that Mrs. Hecox became frightened and sent her son for assistance. He called a special policeman and on the way back met Mrs. Hecox, who told them that Wynn had killed his child and himself.

Deed Was Deliberate.

He had laid the baby on the bed and severed the jugular vein with one stroke of the razor, but the child had been able to crawl to the foot of the bed, where he died. Wynn had then gone into the sitting room, and, standing in front of the looking glass, cut his throat, dying instantly.

Wynn was about 30 years of age and of a sullen and morose disposition. He was married four years ago at Battle Creek, Mich. He had previously been stenographer for General Draper in the Hopedale mills, and on leaving was given a Bible and a warm endorsement as an earnest worker in Christian and temperance causes. He then went to Providence, where he was the treasurer of the Home Building association in 1890.

He was forced to give up this position and leave the city because he forged the names of two creditors to two notes, one for $200 and another for $300. His father and brother made up this amount and prosecution was prevented.

Wynn then moved to St. Albans, Vt., where he became an agent for a creamery and lived under the name of J. J. Lee. He came to this city to live last June, and he has had frequent trouble with his wife, who is spoken of as an estimable woman.

Had a Rough Passage.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Oct. 16.—The steamer Manhattan, Captain Albert Bragg of the Maine steamship line, put into this port yesterday, in a disabled condition. She sailed from Portland early this morning on her regular trip for New York with a heavy cargo and 12 passengers. The passengers were badly drenched and scared. Captain Bragg has made temporary repairs here and will sail as soon as the gale subsides.

Asking For Funds For Improvement.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Representative Barthold of Missouri has introduced a bill appropriating $200,000 to continue the reconstruction of barracks and storehouses at Jefferson barracks, Mo. Mr. Wilson of Washington has introduced a bill appropriating $25,000 for the construction of a special canal to connect Lakes Union and Washington with Puget sound.

Ready to Fight.

CAPE TOWN, Oct. 16.—The Fort Salisbury and Fort Victoria columns of the chartered company have met without serious interference from the Matabele warriors, and are now marching along the high veldt in the hope of drawing Lobengula's men out from the bush into the open ground. A fight is expected daily.

Officers Afraid of Them.

STILLWATER, O. T., Oct. 16.—Bill Dalton and two of his gang, Bill Doolin and Texas Newcombe, came into town and boldly paraded the streets. Officers and citizens seemed unwilling to attempt their arrest. Ten thousand dollars reward is offered for the capture of the leader.

Trying to Explain Matters.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 16.—General Negri, who has been making disturbances in the state of Guerro, wires the government that he will shortly report himself at the capital. He states that his quarrel was only with the governor of that state.

Body Washed Ashore.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., Oct. 16.—The body of a sailor, badly decomposed, was washed ashore at Bridgehamton yesterday. It is supposed to be one of the crew of the wrecked steamer Panther, which was blown up with dynamite Thursday.

Still a Mystery.

PASSAIC, N. J., Oct. 16.—Nothing has yet been heard from A. W. Blake, the missing bookkeeper of the Read & Barry Co., who has been absent from home since last Monday. His accounts are said to be correct and his habits good.

Famous Baltimorean Dead.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 16.—John L. Thomas, an ex-congressman, ex-collector of the port, genial wit and after-dinner speaker, died yesterday from heart failure. Mr. Thomas was one of the widest known members of the Baltimore bar.

Steamer Newbern Wrecked.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—The steamer Newbern ran ashore near Pondo on the southern California coast and will be a total loss. The passengers and crew are safe.

Mrs. Most Has Smallpox.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Lizzie Most, wife of the anarchist leader, Johann Most, was taken to North Brothers island yesterday suffering from smallpox.

Following Tennesseeans' Example.

SHELBY, N. C., Oct. 16.—Whitecaps are threatening the owners of all of the cotton gins of this section that unless they stop ginning until the price of cotton reaches 14 cents a pound their plants will be burned to the ground.

WOMEN KISSED SAILORS.

Wild Enthusiasm at Toulon Over the Visit of the Russians.

TOULON, Oct. 16.—The streets were almost as crowded at 3 o'clock Sunday morning as at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The illumination of shops and private houses did not cease until daybreak, and the thousands sang and caroused under the electric lights. At 8 o'clock the rush was at its height. "Long live Russia," "Long live the czar," were cried. Mayor Ferrara gave his luncheon in the name of the municipality at 11 o'clock. The mayor, after making a rather bombastic speech, which evoked no corresponding response from the Russians, presented a gold champagne cup to Admiral Avelan and a silver champagne cup to every other Russian officer. None of them made any allusion to politics.

The procession of floats and carriages was longer and finer than anything attempted at the Nice carnival. The enthusiasm of the unofficial crowd exceeded all bounds when the Russian sailors landed. Wherever the Russian sailors appeared deafening shouts for Russia and the czar filled the air, many women embracing and kissing them.

A dinner was given at the prefecture last evening to the Russian officers and the high French officials who have come from other cities.

Several journals declare that the visit and the toasts of Admirals Avelan and Rieunier complete the proof of the consolidation of the Franco-Russian relations.

LOCKUP WAS INSECURE.

Two Bold Burglars Make Their Escape From Durance Vile.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 16.—Two men, who refused to give their names, well dressed and good looking, one about 25, the other 30, were arrested at Barrington while unlawfully occupying the summer residence of Mrs. J. Remington. The men had burglars' tools with them and had obtained entrance by cutting the glass in a back window. They had tampered with the locks so that entrance could not be obtained, and judging by the state of the premises and the food found they had made themselves at home for some time. A valise packed with silver spoons, knives and forks was also found. The men were lodged in Warren jail, but managed to escape from the frail lockup by the aid of a confederate, and the police are now looking for them. There have been a number of bold burglaries in the vicinity.

Acknowledged His Guilt.

BOSTON, Oct. 16.—Frank Arey, 23 years old, who has been looked upon for the past two years as one of the prominent young men of Jamaica Plain, is in durance vile for the embezzlement of $3300 from the B. F. Sturtevant company, fan blower manufacturers. According to his own confession, his wrongdoings were the result of premeditation, and the manner of his obtaining the money was ingenious enough to fool the company's auditors and the four other clerks, through whose hands the payrolls passed.

A Missionary Stabbed.

BOSTON, Oct. 16.—Rev. W. Houlton, who for some weeks past has been one of the guiding spirits of the Pitts street mission, was stabbed by a member of his congregation Saturday evening. He is now at the Massachusetts general hospital, and the physicians of that institution say that his recovery is doubtful. James McDermott, a native of England and a regular attendant at the mission, inflicted the wounds from which Mr. Houlton is suffering. The weapon used was a large jackknife.

War to the End.

MADRID, Oct. 16.—The government yesterday received a long statement from the governor of Melilla. The leaders of the Kybelles, he said, had just concluded a conference at which the representatives of 31 tribes had sworn solemnly to fight as allies in a war of extermination against the Spaniards at Melilla. In view of this information this government ordered that an additional artillery force with 36 guns embark for Melilla.

Jonas Greeley's Case.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 16.—The examination of Dr Amerige of this city and Dr. Larkeque of Boston, on charge of conspiracy in causing the commitment to the insane hospital of Jonas E. Greeley, is fixed for Oct. 24. Both men are out on bail. Mrs. Greeley published a card saying that Greeley is insane, and she has suffered from his conduct. Her statement is indorsed by her two sons.

Killed By His Wife.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—George Dunn died yesterday from injuries received at the hands of his wife Saturday night. Dunn came home and found his wife intoxicated and children neglected. A quarrel followed and Mrs. Dunn attacked him with a hammer, fracturing his skull in 26 places. The woman was arrested.

Cleaned Out His Pockets.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 16.—While Frederick Hinton of Philadelphia was in charge of two locomotives, which he was bringing to Hartford, two thieves came over the cars and assaulted him, taking his pocketbook, containing about $30, and his papers and letters of introduction.

For a $1250 Purse.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 16.—In answer to the challenge of Dick O'Brien, middleweight pugilist of Lewiston, Me., Jack McGee of East Boston has agreed to box him at the Metropole club for a purse of $1250 within four weeks of signing articles.

Signs of Prosperity.

LAMBERTVILLE, N. J., Oct. 16.—The Lambertville Paper company, after being shut down for several weeks, has again started up. The Lambertville Spoke Manufacturing company also started up today.

Lake Shore Freight Train Wrecked.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Oct. 16.—A southbound freight train on the West Shore road broke in two near Highlands yesterday and the two sections came together, wrecking six loaded cars. No lives were lost.

Columbia Takes a Spin.

LEWES, Del., Oct. 16.—The United States cruiser Columbia made several runs in and around the capes yesterday at a tremendous speed. She anchored just outside the breakwater for the night.

The Deadly Trolley Car.

ALBION, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Anthony Blake, a prominent and wealthy citizen of Albion, was killed in Chicago by a trolley car. He and his wife were attending the fair.

Death of a Bank President.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Oct. 16.—John W. Priestly, president of the Hunterdon County National bank, died here yesterday, aged 70.

CANADA AND THE CHINESE.

The Dominion Government Refuses to Change the Immigration Act.

Several attempts have been made by labor organizations of the Dominion to induce the government to impose further restrictions on Chinese immigration. The government has just passed an order in council which practically settles its policy in that regard. The order, after reciting the circumstances which called it forth, says:

"Whatever sympathies may exist and whatever views may be held on the subject generally—or more particularly with reference to Chinese exclusion, or to such restrictions as are demanded by the petitioners—they must, in so far at least as exclusion is concerned, be held to be subordinate to the obligations solemnly entered into between two great and friendly nations, and no action should be taken which could be construed by the imperial government as inimical or as infringing upon treaty rights.

"In view of the commercial relations of Canada with China, it is not expedient to change the provisions of the Chinese immigration act nor to take any action that might be considered by the Chinese government as an invasion of the spirit of treaty obligations or as an unfriendly act.

"It is deemed impolitic and unnecessary to recommend the alternative expedient of raising the capitation tax to $500. The suggestion that 'every Chinaman or woman in Canada be taxed to the amount of $200 each year, and that said tax be paid into the treasury of the municipality or city in which they may be found,' is a question for the consideration of others than the government of the Dominion."—Ottawa Special.

WILL BE A BRITON BOLD.

Mr. Astor Is Ambitious and Will Swear Allegiance to the British Queen.

It is now understood that Mr. W. W. Astor intends to apply for naturalization papers and become a British subject. He cannot indeed, under the new property laws, hold freehold real estate without so doing. His ambition, so says rumor, runs to political life in the commons, with a possible baronetcy and subsequent peerage in the future, which might land him in the house of lords. He is not the first American who has abandoned his native land for the mother country and been rewarded with a title.

The late Sir Curtis Lampson of Boston was a case in point. His son succeeded to the baronetcy, and his very clever daughter became the wife of Frederick Locker, the poet. Mr. Astor's political aspirations, by the way, will not be forwarded by his recent move of closing to the public the terraces at Cliveden, which were formerly much enjoyed by frequenters of the River Thames, and it is rumored that he will soon withdraw also the privilege of picnicking in Cliveden woods.—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Story of the Cherokee Strip Opening.

"We were all waiting to hear that starting gun go off, and though there was a lot of cussing going on it was done under the breath, and things were quiet-like and hushed," said a returned Cherokee boomer. "I was standing on the platform and wondering how it would all end when I saw a man shake his partner's hand and start to run into the open space. Somebody yelled, and a soldier who was standing near me looked up and saw the sooner running. He called on him to halt, but that sooner was in a hurry and didn't stop. Then I saw the soldier pull up his gun and take aim. Just then the sooner's partner rushed up to the bluecoat and shouted: 'Don't you fire at him. He's my brother, and if you hurt him I'll fill you full of lead.'

"The soldier never as much as winked, but just pulled the trigger of his gun. I saw the flash, and I knew the sooner was hit because he tumbled on his face. The smoke had hardly cleared away when there came another crack of a rifle, and the soldier dropped with blood pouring out of a hole in his head. The sooner's brother had kept his word. The train started then, and I don't know whether they caught the murderer or not."—Kansas City Times.

A Pitiful Procession.

The defeated and sorely disappointed majority of the army of boomers that raced into the Cherokee strip and battled for claims there has been straggling out again in a sorry retreat into Kansas and Texas since a couple of days or so after the opening. Thousands have been brought out on the same cars that carried them in. Many hundreds have passed through Arkansas City in wagons and on horseback, while a great number of unfortunates have been and still are tramping it back. It has been a pitiful procession, for the disgust and dejection of the majority, many of them homeseekers and not mere speculators, are beyond expression.—Oklahoma Letter.

The Nub of It.

At a reception in Unity church to the visiting delegates to the parliament of religion, the Rev. Robert Collyer told a story which runs as follows:

A farmer met a parson and said to him, "I remember a sermon you preached 20 years ago." "Indeed," replied the parson, "and what was the text?" "I don't remember the text, but the sermon remains in my mind." "And pray what, then, was the substance of the sermon?" "Well, I can scarcely word it properly, but it amounted to this—that 'theology is not religion by a —— sight!'"—Chicago Tribune.

Passing Around the Hat.

Express agents on southern railroads are passing the hat around in a novel way. The hat is an old slouch, its rim filled with tags and its crown covered with slips, and it has already traveled over 10,000 miles in an intended trip all over the south, which an agent at Covington, Ky., started it on for a whim several weeks ago. It isn't collecting anything but tags and slips.—Exchange.

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

VOL. 5. NO. 242. QUINCY, MASS., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1893. PRICE 2 CENTS.

Boston Transcript
THURSDAY, AUGUST 10, 1893.

A Well-deserved Award.

The Treasury Department at Washington, after receiving bids from the largest and best-known carpet manufacturers and dealers throughout the country, has awarded to the old and trustworthy house of John H. Pray, Sons, & Co. of Boston, the contract for furnishing Brussels carpets for government use throughout the country for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894.

This contract amounts to about 20,000 yards, more or less, and is for Brussels of the firm's own manufacture, having as a guaranty of the quality the firm's name woven on the back of every yard of carpet that is delivered, so that the house cannot fail to be well known in all government buildings and offices throughout the United States wherever the carpets are seen.

Messrs. Pray & Co.'s reputation for selling only standard and reliable goods seems to have been well maintained, as the government standard is a high one, and the tests are most severe.

LONG SESSION BEGUN

Representatives of Railway Workers Gather at Boston.

MUCH WORK TO BE DONE.

Will Be Royally Entertained by Hub Brethren.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—Half a thousand strange men, with numbers on their coats, haunted the streets, Faneuil hall, the Quincy House and the theaters yesterday. There was an unmistakable air of the railroad about them in the aggregate. They are delegates to the first triennial convention of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

C. A. UPRIGHT.
Chairman Grand Executive Board.

It is the biggest convention in the history of railroads in America. Never before have there been so many ticket punchers, brake twisters, switch yankers and baggage crushers congregated in any one city in America.

There is a delegate from nearly every lodge in the United States, Canada and Mexico. The delegates number 528; these, with the visitors, about 800; these, with the members from the local lodges, make up a grand total of close upon 1200 men.

"They represent a class of citizens who don't sit still very long," said D. L. Case, editor of The Railroad Trainmen's Journal of Galesburg, Ills., to a reporter at Faneuil hall yesterday.

Two hundred and sixty-five of them arrived Sunday on a special train from Chicago. From that city 250 started, and the rest were picked up at Fort Wayne, Bellevue, Cleveland, Erie, Buffalo, Syracuse and Albany.

About the Officers.

The officers of the brotherhood attending the convention are, among others: Grand Master S. E. Wilkinson of Peoria, Ills., First Vice Grand Master P. H. Morrisey of New York, Second Vice Grand Master T. T. Slattery of Butte City, Mont., Third Vice Grand Master George W. Newman and Grand Secretary and Treasurer W. A. Sheehan. Editor D. L. Case of The Trainmen's Journal is accompanied by a stenographer, who will report the proceedings in full for the official organ.

The delegates, who represent a membership of 40,000, travel free of charge, and for every day of a regulation six days' session receive $5 each, and $3 for every additional day occupied in transacting the business of the convention.

They had a very pleasant trip, with no tickets or accidents to bother them, and when they convened at Faneuil hall at 9:30 yesterday morning, with be-numbered and be-badged coats, there was not a sorry looking face in the whole crowd.

Their Program.

They are going to follow out the usual course of conventions, first with dry committee making and dryer routine work. Then they will receive communications, which they have already in their hands, and refer them to committees. Then old age, rheumatism and other ranks of disability will put in their claims, which must be considered and acted upon. After that will come more important work.

Among the matters which will be discussed in the secret sessions are these:

The revision of the bylaws; adjustment of disputed claims; revision of the ritual; election of officers; adjustment of the insurance question.

In addition it was learned that a change in the location of headquarters is meditated. Various cities have offered inducements to the brotherhood to settle down outside of Galesburg, Ills., which is the headquarters at present, and the city or town which comes along with the best inducement will get the job.

At Galesburg the order occupies a five-story building and owns and operates its own printing plant, which includes the organ, with a circulation of 30,700 and a job office.

At 9:30 yesterday Grand Master Wilkinson addressed the convention in a congratulatory strain upon the growth and present standing of the order. A committee, composed of the grand master and Messrs. Morrisey, Slattery, Newman and Sheehan, then began their work of passing upon the 535 credentials. From 12 noon to 1:30 the convention took a recess. In the afternoon the routine work was resumed, and before 6 o'clock an adjournment was posted, to be pulled down at 9 this morning.

During the convention the delegates from Montana will present the grand lodge with a magnificent gavel of silver, studded with native diamonds.

Yesterday afternoon, a souvenir, containing portraits and sketches of the officers of the grand lodge, was presented to each delegate.

This evening at Faneuil hall a public meeting will be held, and it is expected that Governor Russell, Mayor Matthews and others will deliver addresses of welcome to the convention.

On Oct. 19, Bunker Hill lodge, 404, will entertain the delegates on the occasion of their annual ball. On Oct. 24 Trimountain and Boston lodges, 486 and 97, will hold a ball in Odd Fellows' hall. Following these will be a grand ball by Somerville lodge 507.

AN ORDERLY PARADE

By Five Thousand Men, Women and Children at Olneyville.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 17.—Yesterday was a great day among the thousands of strikers in Olneyville, and every one out of work in that locality took part in the demonstration. The great labor parade, which was postponed on Saturday, occurred, and in it no less than 5000 men, women and children employed at the mills where the strike is on paraded the streets in a most orderly manner.

The line was headed by a committee of workingmen wearing white gloves. The Rhode Island band followed, and platoons of men carrying placards, "No compromise," "We demand justice," "The land for the people," "Wage slavery must go," "We have struck that our children may not starve while we work," "We want fair wages," and hundreds of other inscriptions indicating the grievances of the people interested in the troubles.

The line comprised four divisions, and in it the various departments were fully represented. Such a demonstration was never seen in this city. Although squads of police were held in the various stations to answer any call, their services were not required, as the strikers attended to none but their own business.

The parade was followed by a big mass meeting at Music hall at 2:30 o'clock, when Senator Robert Howard of Fall River, Mass., Dr. Garvin and ex-Mayor Hugh Carroll of Pawtucket made addresses upon labor troubles and the benefit of organization.

GILLIGAN'S DEATH

Caused by Using Nitro-Benzole For the Adulteration of Whisky.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 17.—The trial of James Quinn, charged with causing the death of John Gilligan at Pawtucket several weeks ago, began in the district court in Pawtucket yesterday. Quinn was bartender in a saloon where Gilligan called for whisky, which was given him. In a few hours he sickened and died. Medical Examiner Kelliher held an autopsy and found that the death was due to some foreign substance in the whisky which the man had partaken of. Chemist Perkins made an analysis of portions of the stomach and discovered traces of nitro-benzole. He reported on the case to the authorities and Quinn's arrest followed.

Medical Examiner Kelliher testified to the cause of the man's death, and said it was by the adulteration of the liquor. In the examination it was brought out that nitro-benzole is a substitute for oil of almonds, and that oil of almonds is used in adulterating whisky.

Quinn was bound over to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter.

BRAZIL'S REVOLUTION

Results In the Killing and Wounding of Many Participants.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The World's Rio de Janeiro copyright cable dispatch this morning says:

The hatred of the Fourth and Tenth battalions for the National guards culminated in a combat, in which 23 were killed and several wounded.

While the cruiser Trajano was seizing flour and coal from the docks on the morning of the fifth, she was fired on from the shore and returned the fire. Three shots struck quite near the American consulate, killing one Brazilian.

It is reported that three civilians and 85 soldiers were killed during the afternoon and night, while the fleet bombarded Nictherov.

Occupied Once More.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 17.—The Borden house on Second street, where the famous double murder was committed one year ago last August, was rented yesterday to W. B. Peckham, a grocer, and Lewis Hall, a livery stable keeper. The house was vacated in July and has been for sale ever since.

BUT ONE SURVIVED.

Twenty-Four Souls Were Aboard the Dean Richmond.

BARGE WOCOKEN WRECKED

Fourteen Men Perished In Lake Erie's Waters.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Only one man escaped from the lost steamer Dean Richmond, and he was found on the beach near Vanburne Point. His haggard face and sunken eyes told a story of terrible suffering. He was aimlessly wandering up and down the beach, and when spoken to burst into tears and said he was looking for his dog. He was questioned and said he had been washed off the Richmond, and was unquestionably the only man saved from the vessel. He said his name was C. L. Clarke and he lived in Toledo.

"There were 19 in the Richmond's crew," he said, "besides Captain Stoddard, his wife and three children. When the gale struck us on Saturday we tried to get into Erie harbor, but could not on account of choppy sea, and then Captain Stoddard tried to make the run to Buffalo if he could. About 2 p. m. it grew worse, and we sighted a couple of steamers and signaled them for assistance, but they either did not see us or could not get to us. About 7 o'clock in the evening the wheelhouse was washed away. The rudder and wheel were broken and we were badly crippled.

"The captain decided to run for the shore and beach his vessel. He made fair headway, and began to get things ready to get out the yawl boat with the captain's wife and children. I went back to the captain, and before I reached him a big wave carried me overboard.

"This was about 11 o'clock, and I gave myself up for lost when I found myself in the water. I kept sight of the Richmond's lights for some time, and saw her drifting down the lake, turning and twisting in every direction. Then I lost consciousness and did not know anything until I found myself lying on the beach near a town, which I found out was Silver Creek. When I came to myself I went into the town to learn what had become of the steamer. I heard that she had gone down, and then I came over here and tried to find the boat and my dog."

Clarke continued his search for his dog, and found it a mile up the shore. The dog was tied to the seat of the boat, dead.

Among the bodies found are those of Captain Stoddard and Mate Boyleson. The captain's watch was stopped at 12:20, showing it to have been the time the steamer went down. In the mate's pockets were found all his papers, which indicates that he knew that there was no hope of saving the steamer and had prepared to leave her.

A lighter and piledriver is ashore between here and Battery point, and it is supposed that the crew were drowned. Nothing has been heard of them so far.

Triple Drowning Accident.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Oct. 17.—While searching for bodies from the wrecked propeller Dean Richmond the boat capsized and George Thurber, Frank Cahoon and George Mann were drowned. The bodies have not been recovered.

Fourteen Souls Perished.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 17.—Barge Wocoken of Cleveland foundered off Port Rowan, Ont., during the storm. The vessel was loaded with coal and bound down. Only three persons were saved and 14 others were lost. The Wocoken was built in Cleveland in 1880 and was considered a staunch craft. Port Rowan is on the northern shore of Lake Erie, near Long Point, which the Wocoken was evidently trying to make for shelter when she went down. The boat left Erie Friday morning for the upper lakes.

The Agricultural Congress.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Over 300 delegates participated in the opening session of the world's congress of agriculture at the Art institute. Most of the delegates to the congress were designated by the governors of states and territories, and every section of the country is well represented. Its deliberations will extend over several days, and in its several departments it will discuss good roads, household economy, farm life, forestry and numerous topics.

Mob Dispersed by Soldiers.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 17.—Rowdies caused a riot yesterday in front of the Grenadier Guards' barracks while recruits were being drafted into the regiments. Two civilians were stabbed fatally. Seven or eight others were injured. The troops finally charged with drawn swords. The rioters fled before the attack of the soldiers. Many of the mob were wounded and several were arrested.

Bowl Was Misplaced.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The New York Yacht club presented the United States cruiser New York with a handsome punch bowl yesterday afternoon. Just as Mr. Kane reached the climax of his speech the bowl was missed. It had been left between the decks and was finally brought up and the presentation completed.

Remarkable Escape From Death.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17.—The west bound Chicago limited train on the Wabash railroad left the track one mile south of Nameoka, Ills., last night, resulting in the injury of some 30 people. It is remarkable that no one was killed out of the 400 passengers.

First Time In English.

BUFFALO, Oct. 17.—Leon Cavalles Italian opera, Pagliacci (the clown), was produced in English for the first time at the Star theater last night by the Boston Grand Opera company. The production was well received.

AND QUINCY did not get either nominee for councillor. Did we ever have a councillor?

A LOW RATE of interest is quoted in the order appropriating $62,000 for the new High schoolhouse. If the city gets the money this year for 4 1-2 per cent. it will be doing exceedingly well.

BROOKLINE WILL surely have representation on the board of county commissioners, now that the Republicans and Democrats have each selected their candidate from that town. The other members are from Hyde Park and Cohasset.

IT HAS been said that the runaway boys, who are still missing, had been reading fiery literature. This may have been so, but it has been ascertained that they took with them Quincy PATRIOTS, Quincy DAILY LEDGERS and Youths Companions, which they left behind at Peddock's island. Which of these was responsible, or were they so solid that it was necessary to leave them behind and take the "light trash" only?

THE KNIGHTS OF HONOR.

A Banquet and Speeches at Wollaston—A Grand Order.

Wollaston Lodge, No. 926, Knights of Honor, gave a banquet on Monday evening to members and invited guests. The committee having the affair in charge consisted of Mr. John H. Roberts, Mr. W. H. Brasee, Mr. George W. Brown, Mr. William B. Orcutt, and Mr. Frank W. White.

After discussing an appetizing menu Vice-Dictator Brown, the presiding officer of the evening, opened the post-prandial exercises by introducing Brother Brasee as toast-master of the evening.

Grand Assistant Dictator Hersey was the first speaker. He said that we associate ourselves together for mutual benefit. Life insurance has become one of the established institutions of the country. Some twenty years ago a few people met in Louisville, Ky., and established what is now known as the Knights of Honor. This order started with a membership of thirty, and now has 135,000. During those years it has paid out to beneficiaries $44,000,000. The great good done by this order, aside from its insurance feature, would fill a volume.

This order has accomplished in the way of fraternal work an immense deal of good. Mr. Hersey dwelt at length on the Knights of Honor as a beneficiary institution, and also as a social organization. It is an order which always pays its bills and is an order in which every man should seek membership.

Brother Orcutt spoke on what Wollaston lodge has done for Wollaston and the general good. "Wollaston lodge has at present over one hundred members, including the mayor of the city and several councilmen. It has insured the lives of every member for $2000 in a safe and sure way. The lodge pays $5 a week as a sick fund. It has brought together these members every two weeks and has bound them together as brothers. The lodge has just settled the estate of a member who recently died. It paid the usual sick benefit; it employed nurses; supplied watchers; subscribed $125 as a sick benefit; when death came $2000 was paid to his children, and the lodge had the estate probated. This is a record which probably cannot be excelled by any benefit organization in the country.

Brother Roberts then described the benefits to be derived from joining Wollaston lodge. "We are not ignoring the church, nor pretend to set ourselves above the church. We pay a sick benefit because it is in the line of our duty."

Brother Sherman spoke on the practical work of the order, and how best to build it up.

Grand Recorder Pratt was then introduced and discussed the Knights of Honor from a business standpoint.

THE RUNAWAY BOYS.

They are Traced to Boston but are Among the Missing.

The whereabouts of the three boys who ran away Saturday night still remains unsolved. Chief of Police Langley and Officer Furnald, worked all day Monday on the case. They learned that the boys walked from Hull to Nantasket and then took the boat for Boston. They were seen in Boston Monday, but the officers have not run them down as yet, although if they are still in Boston, it is only a matter of time.

The Quincy Historical Society Organized Last Evening.

LIST OF CHARTER MEMBERS.

By Laws Adopted, Officers Chosen, Society to be Incorporated.

For some months past Mr. William G. Spear has been at work forming a historical society in this city which would not only include gentlemen and ladies of this city but of all those towns which formed a part of "old Braintree." He has been more than successful in his efforts and has secured the names of the following as charter members:

Quincy.

| | |
|---|---|
| Charles F. Adams, | Franklin Curtis, |
| W. G. A. Pattee, | Charles A. Foster, |
| Dr. William Everett, | Dr. J. M. Sheahan, |

| | Mary E. Wilkins. |

Holbrook.

| | |
|---|---|
| John Underhay, | Roxy E. Holbrook, |
| Zenas A. French, | Esther M. Davies. |

The first meeting of the society, which will be known as the Quincy Historical society, was held in the Thomas Crane Public Library Monday evening, the following charter members being present. Hon. Charles Francis Adams. Hon. J. White Belcher, Prof. William R. Tyler, Hon. John F. Merrill, A. Frank Bussell, George W. Morton, Dr. Joseph M. Sheahan, Rev. Daniel M. Wilson, Samuel A. Bates, W. G. A. Pattee, William G. Spear, Charles A. Foster, Emery L. Crane, Franklin Curtis, George Cahill, Mrs. Mary T. Slade, Mrs. Annie E. Faxon and Esther M. Davis.

William G. A. Pattee called the meeting to order and after stating its object was upon motion of Mr. J. White Belcher elected temporary chairman, with Mrs. Mary T. Slade as secretary.

By-laws were presented which were adopted after first being read by the secretary.

The by-laws call for the annual meeting to be held the first Wednesday in January and the regular meetings the first Wednesday of each month with the exception of July, August and September.

Officers Elected.

Officers were then balloted for with the following result:

Secretary,—Mary T. Slade.
Treasurer,—George W. Morton.
Librarian,—William G. Spear.

Curators,—For one year, William G. A. Pattee of Quincy, Asa French of Braintree, and J. White Belcher of Randolph; for two years, Charles H. Porter of Quincy, William B. Rice of Quincy, and John Underhay of Holbrook; for three years, Charles Francis Adams of Quincy, William G. Spear of Quincy, and Samuel A. Bates of Braintree.

The meeting then dissolved.

A meeting of the Curators was then held at which Charles Francis Adams was elected president and Samual A. Bates vice president.

The Objects.

The Quincy historical society is to be a chartered corporation under the laws of this state. The law under which they have organized enables the society to hold real and personal estate, and to hire, purchase or erect buildings for its use, to an amount not exceeding five hundred thousand dollars, and may receive and hold in trust or otherwise, funds received by gifts or bequest, to be devoted to such purpose.

Thirty-seven of the charter members are residents of the city of Quincy, seven of Braintree, seven of Randolph, four of Holbrook and one from Neponset.

The object of the society as stated in the agreement of association is "for the purpose or the prosecution of historical and antiquarian work and research, the collection and preservation of books, manuscripts, pamphlets, and other articles of historical and antiquarian interest, the publication of periodicals, tracts, and pamphlets, devoted to or treating of historical, antiquarian or kindred subjects, and other historical and antiquarian objects and purposes."

Please Take Notice.

Reading notices calling attention to suppers, entertainments, etc., are classed as advertising matter, and a charge of ten cents per printed line is made for each insertion in this paper. tf

Rumor has it that some of the Quincy stone teamsters have been notified that they can not drive in Boston with a load over three tons, unless they have tires six inches wide. If this is true it will prove quite an expense to our teamsters, as there is scarcely a load of granite that goes into Boston that does not weigh over seven tons.

Concert at Wollaston.

The Wollaston Congregational church was filled with an enthusiastic audience on Monday evening to hear the first entertainment in the People's Course, given under the auspices of the King's Daughters. All of the soloists are well known to Wollaston's musical world. They were: Hattie Woodbury Clark, soprano; Nellie Louise Woodbury, contralto; Miss Edith Christie Miller, violinist; Martha Dana Shepard, pianist; and Fay Davis, reader.

Secret Society Notes of Local Interest—Visitations and Work.

Rt. Wor. Herbert T. Mitchell, district deputy grand master of the 24th Masonic district will make an official visit to Rural lodge at its next meeting, and are sure to witness fine work.

Over 150 Odd Fellows were in attendance at the meeting of Neponset lodge at Neponset, Monday evening, and witnessed excellent work by the large degree staff of Dorchester lodge. Quincy and Boston were largely represented. A collation was served.

Lodge secretaries and others are requested to forward promptly all secret society notes of local interest. Please send first the evening of regular meeting that the LEDGER may announce each day the meetings for the evening.

The second and fourth week of the month seem to be the favorite weeks for lodge meetings, few of the fortnightly ones meeting on the first and third weeks.

An extended report of the K. of H. banquet at Wollaston appears in another column. Such gatherings are a great help to lodges and the order.

A Dishonest Clerk the Cause.

In justice to Mr. J. M. Beals of Wollaston it is well that LEDGER readers should know the cause of the assignment of Beals & Co., leather dealers of Boston. The cause was wholly on account of the dishonesty of a clerk in his employ, by name William P. Hayden of Atlantic, who had been in his employ for a long time and had been embezzling funds and goods to such an extent that caused the assignment. He was arrested a short time ago at Atlantic by Officer Glidden of the Boston police for uttering a forged note of $500, which mention was made of same in Boston papers at the time and is now under $2,000 bail.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

Communication from Mayor on Improvement of Water Supply.

ORDER REPORTED FOR NEW HIGH

Contract Labor a Bone of Contention—Public Hearing to be Given.

Councilman Drake was the only absentee from the regular meeting of the City Council on Monday evening. It took just one hour and a half to transact the business of the evening.

Water Supply.

Mayor Fairbanks forwarded a lengthy communication recommending the acceptance of the act of 1891, chapter 401, granting the city the right to take and hold the waters of Blue Hill river and tributaries. Said act, which was approved June 11, 1891, shall be void unless accepted by a two-thirds vote of the voters within three years. The communication is of interest and will appear in full in the DAILY LEDGER of Wednesday. It was referred to the Committee on Elections.

Collection of Water Rates.

The Mayor forwarded a communication of the water board recommending a change in the ordinance concerning the Board of Water Commissioners and their duties, providing a penalty for non-payment of water rates.

Councilman Sherman subsequently offered an amendment authorizing the shutting off of water and an extra charge for turning on.

Commissioner Whitman explained that there was now $11,000 due for water, etc., and $3000 of the amount since Jan. 1. The receipts were to be applied for extension and care of works but as they could not be anticipated work must stop on extensions another week. The Water Company had such a penalty and it worked well. Other cities had a similar rule.

The amendment took its first reading and was referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

Petitions.

There were two applications for State aid and one for a license to collect junk.

Councilman Williams presented the petition of S. F. Newcomb and others for the lighting of Quincy avenue. To Committee on Lights.

Angus McNeil and others petitioned for three electric lights on Rodman street. To Committee on Lights.

Another petition called for one arc light or three incandescent lights on Main street. Referred to same committee.

Reports.

The Committee on Streets reported favorable on the order granting Haverhan & Son permission to run a wire guy across Robertson street. Passed to be ordained.

The order granting a location of telephone poles on Palmer street was also passed to be ordained.

The Committee on Streets reported adversely on the acceptance of Kemper and Beach streets at Wollaston Park.

Councilman Brown asked if the committee did not consider Kemper street in good condition.

Chairman Holden regarded it in fair condition, but considered it unwise to accept one of these streets at a time. The whole tract should be surveyed in reference to drainage. Report accepted.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting a location to the Quincy & Boston Street Railway, connecting Manet track with track on Saville street, under certain conditions. The order took its first reading.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order appropriating $62,000 for a new High schoolhouse, on ten notes, one to fall due each year until paid, at a rate of interest not exceeding 4 1-2 per cent. Read once.

Public Hearing.

No one desired to be heard relative to the order for a sidewalk under the betterment act on Beale street and the hearing closed. It was recommitted to the Committee on Streets.

Contract Labor.

Councilman Lennon called for the report of the Committee on Contracts on petitions for abolishment of contract labor. Learning that the committee was not ready to report, he offered an order requesting them to report at the next meeting.

There was opposition to the order, the members of the committee saying that they had voted a hearing to petitioners next Monday evening. After considerable talk, pro and con, Councilman Lennon withdrew his motion, a recess of five minutes was taken, when the Committee on Finance reported, recommending a public hearing next Monday. Reported, accepted and adopted.

Meanwhile it was voted that when the Council adjourn it be until next Monday night.

Election Order.

Councilman Rollins offered an order for the State election on Nov. 7, which was adopted.

Cemetery Appropriation.

Councilman Moxon offered an order making an additional appropriation of $800 from the receipts from burial places, for repair and care of lots in Mount Wollaston cemetery. To Committee on Finance.

Adjourned at 9.05 to meet Oct. 23.

WEYMOUTH.

Serious If Not Fatal Accident on a Railroad Crossing.

Mr. John Sullivan, 2d, and his wife of East Weymouth, had a narrow escape from a horrible death Monday night at Reed's crossing of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R, at East Weymouth.

The gates at the crossing had been blown down rendering them useless. The gatemen, John Hall, was on duty, however, and as the 6.17 inward train approached he stood in the street waving his lantern.

He saw the team approaching and shouted to the driver, Sullivan, to stop. The latter paid no attention to the warning but drove onto the track in front of the train. The horse was killed and Mrs. Sullivan so badly injured that it is doubtful if she recovers. Sullivan was also injured severely.

The buggy was ground to splinters. There was a bag full of bottles of beer in the buggy, and a number of these remained intact after the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan were returning from Hingham, and it is said that Sullivan was under the influence of liquor.

The engine was damaged somewhat and the steps torn from the two forward cars. The train was delayed nearly an hour.

This is one of the most dangerous crossings on the South Shore, as the street crosses the tracks at an angle, and the inward trains are so hid by high banks that they cannot be seen until within a few feet of the crossing.

It is but a few years since two well-known East Weymouth citizens were struck by a train one evening at this same crossing and horribly mangled, one being killed outright while the other lived but a few hours.

Burglars were about Weymouth again Monday night, the place visited being the residence of John Carroll on Middle street, East Weymouth. Entrance was made by boring a hole in the door and then reaching in and turning the key. Three gold watches, jewelry and a small amount was taken.

Miss Clara P. Denton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Denton, died at her home at East Weymouth this morning, after a brief illness of quick consumption. Miss Denton was a highly esteemed young lady and was a granddaughter of ex-Representative Z. L. Bicknell. She was 28 years of age, and was a talented young woman, graduating with honor from the Weymouth high school, afterwards taking a business course at French's commercial college of Boston. Her funeral will be held Thursday from her late residence at 2.30 o'clock.

The Superior Court.

In the case of John M. McTiernan vs. John Fallon & Sons all parties of this city; the jury in the Superior Court at Dedham Monday returned a verdict for the plaintiff, in the sum of $200. McTiernan owns the premises adjoining Fallon & Sons stable to the south on Common street West Quincy, and complained that the defendants and their drivers drove their stone teams over and on the plaintiffs land. Paul R. Blackmur, Esq., appeared for the plaintiff Thomas E. Grover, Esq., for the defendants.

M. Haggerty lost the case against M. Moynihan of Quincy, an action of tort to recover $1000. J. E. and F. A. Tirrell for plaintiff; J. W. McAnarney for defendant.

The case of M. J. Deveney vs. D. S. Baxter of Quincy to recover $157 for laying cellar wall was on trial when court adjourned Monday.

Campaign Notes.

John Everett of Canton has been nominated for representative by the Democrats of the Milton-Canton district.

Why not advertise the local political rallies in the local papers. A whole column in the DAILY LEDGER would cost but $5 one time or $8 for a week. No better notice could be given for the money.

The Republicans of Braintree have nominated John Kelley as candidate for Representative in the Braintree-Holbrook district.

James F. Burke of this city and A. P. Worthen are members of councillor and county committees.

Glass Fight Is On.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 17.—The fight between the United States Glass company and the Glassworkers' union has been inaugurated. Thirty non-union glassworkers went to work in factory K yesterday. Although a force of police officers were present at the start, their services were not required.

WELLSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 17.—The Riverside glass works resumed yesterday with non-union men. Seven shops are working. Only two of the former employes reported for work.

President Is Too Busy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The president has written a letter to President Higinbotham of the World's fair expressing his regrets that he and Mrs. Cleveland are unable to accept the invitation recently tendered them to attend the World's fair before it is permanently closed.

Food For Brunswick's Sufferers.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Oct. 17.—Twenty-seven new cases of yellow fever were reported yesterday. One death occurred, and four carloads of provisions have been received from New York and one from Atlanta.

Tourists Will Patronize It.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Oct. 17.—A syndicate has been formed and a railroad will be built to the top of White Face mountain next spring. White Face is 5000 feet high. The road will be 13 miles long.

Illinois Town Wrecked.

EMINGTON, Ills., Oct. 17.—The entire business portion of Emington was wrecked by a premature explosion of dynamite. Five people were killed and five injured, two of whom cannot live.

GOLDMAN SENTENCED.

"Queen of Anarchists" Is Given One Year's Imprisonment.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Judge Martine, in the court of general sessions, sentenced Emma Goldman, the anarchist, to a year's imprisonment in the penitentiary. The courtroom was crowded before the opening hour and there were a number of policemen on hand to prevent any possible outbreak of Miss Goldman's friends. When Miss Goldman was called to the bar her counsel, Lawyer Hall, arose to address the bar.

He had come, he said, prepared to make an argument for a stay of sentence, but, as there was a difference of opinion between himself and his client, he could not make such an argument, and would, therefore, for the time being, withdraw from the case. Being asked what she had to say why sentence should not be passed upon her, Emma Goldman began: "Your honor—" She was interrupted by the court and told that she must keep to the subject in her proposed address.

"Your honor," she said, "knowing that preparations have been made by the police to imprison my friends, in case I make an address, I refrain from saying a word as to why sentence should not be passed upon me."

In rendering sentence, Judge Martine said: "You are a woman above the ordinary intelligence, yet you have testified you have no respect for our laws. There is no room for you in this community."

RECORD IS BAD.

What Judge Carter Has to Say of Numerous Arrests at Haverhill.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Oct. 17.—Judge Carter made a drastic speech in the police court yesterday, remarking that before license went into effect and the "Bowery" grogshops were opened the dock had been sufficient to accommodate all the prisoners brought before him, but during the past few months, and especially on Monday morning, the persons charged with offenses not only filled the dock, but crowded the space reserved for lawyers and witnesses.

The judge's declaration was that liquor stores are responsible for the large increase in crime. There were 15 persons before the court yesterday, but some Mondays the number has been over 50. The average monthly arrests since May 1 have been 250 per month, or 3000 a year, equal to one for every nine of the population; believed to be the largest ratio of any city in the United States.

A BUNGLING OPERATION

Results In the Death of Mrs. Eileen Perkins of Everett.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—The dead body of a woman was found yesterday in suite 3 at 6 Clarendon street. It was that of Mrs. Eileen Perkins, 20 years of age, who lives in Everett. She was found in the house of Mary J. Henderson. An operation had been performed upon her, to the effects of which her death is attributed. The operation was performed in a most bungling fashion.

The police learned of the affair and, after an investigation, arrested Mary J. Henderson. Mrs. Henderson is 37 years of age. She will be charged with murder.

The police also placed under arrest Mrs. Sarah Butler, mother of the dead woman, who is charged with being accessory before the fact. It is alleged that Mrs. Butler was instrumental in having the operation performed. She, too, lives in Everett and accompanied Mrs. Perkins from that place to Mrs. Henderson's.

May Become a Wreck.

ESCANABA, Mich., Oct. 17.—The steamer City of Cleveland with the Quayle in tow was driven on the north end of the Beaver. The wrecker Monarch, with lighters and two steam pumps, and about 15 men, have left here. The steamer is in bad shape and is leaking badly. No report can be had as to the position of the Quayle, but it is thought that she cleared the islands. The steamer and consort left here Friday night with iron ore for Lake Erie. The wind is blowing hard from the southwest and the steamer may become a total loss.

Germany Feels Sore.

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—The Schlesische Zeitung in Breslau says of the Toulon demonstration: We regret the outburst of Chauvinism in Toulon. It is directed obviously against Germany and her allies, despite Russian assurances of the czar's desire for peace. The French manifestations do not strengthen the hope of an early solution of the present strained international situation.

Indianapolis Is Bankrupt.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 17.—The Republicans have taken hold of the city government and the new comptroller declares that the city is absolutely bankrupt. There is but $3900 on hand. Money must be borrowed with which to pay the salaries of officials. Nothing criminal, however, is charged against the retiring officials.

Yachting Season Ended.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—A report from a brass cannon on the pier head of the Atlantic Yacht club announced the close of the yachting season of 1893 for that organization. The Valkyrie was towed to City island. Here she is to be laid up for the winter. The Vigilant is also to be laid up at City island.

Two Steamers Overdue.

HAVANA, Oct. 17.—The overdue steamers Panama and Saratoga, both from New York for this port, have not yet arrived, and some alarm is felt for their safety. Both steamers undoubtedly encountered the cyclonic storm that swept along the coast last Thursday and Friday.

Will Probably Recover.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—Rev. William Houlton of the Pitts Street mission, who was stabbed by James McDermott at that place Saturday night, is resting comfortably, and the physicians state that unless blood poisoning sets in the minister will probably recover.

Norwegian Bark Wrecked.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Oct. 17.—The Norwegian bark Luther was lost off the entrance of this harbor. The ship was driven on the rocks with great force, two of the crew being drowned, while the remaining members of the crew were rescued by a pilot boat.

Echo of the Chester Disaster.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 17.—Two suits for $10,000 each have been brought against the Boston and Albany road by Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Cummings of this city, who were injured in the Chester accident Aug. 31.

Indian Killed Indian.

TUSCAHOMA, I. T., Oct. 17.—John Carney shot and instantly killed Handy Leflore, a lawyer, at Leflore. Both parties were full-blooded Choctawa.

YOUR UNCLE'S PAYROLL.

The Report of a Special Committee Deals In Some Pretty Large Figures.

Representative Dockery of the joint committee of congress, appointed at the last session to inquire into the status of the laws organizing the executive departments, has submitted a partial report. It was prepared under the direction of Messrs. Cleaves and Courts, clerks of the committee on appropriations of the senate and house, respectively, and is an index and reference to all the laws relating to the executive departments. A general recapitulation shows that appropriations have been made for specific salaries for the year ending June 30, 1894, in the several departments as follows:

Executive—1 salary, the president, $50,000; 1 salary, the vice president, $8,000; 21 salaries, executive office, $35,200.

Department of State—82 salaries, $118,620.

Department of War—1,789 salaries, $2,026,376.

Department of the Treasury—2,712 salaries, $3,369,086.

Postoffice Department—655 salaries, $774,490.

Department of Justice—108 salaries, $167,750.

Department of the Navy—219 salaries, $269,770.

Department of the Interior—3,337 salaries, $4,130,454.

Department of Agriculture—323 salaries, $411,330.

Department of Labor—75 salaries, $101,020.

Civil Service Commission—22 salaries, $36,400.

Fish Commission—107 salaries, $172,120.

Interstate Commerce Commission—6 salaries, $41,000.

Under Smithsonian Institution—The salaries or compensation of all necessary employees on account of the National museum, bureau of international exchange, North American ethnology, National Zoological park and the Astro-Physical observatory are provided for in general appropriations, without specifying numbers or amounts.

Government Printing Office—7 salaries, $15,100.

Library of Congress—30 salaries, $43,800.

District of Columbia—1,916 salaries, $1,593,180.

Grand total, $13,364,196.

HE FORESAW HIS DOOM.

Singular Premonition of a Man Who Was Accidentally Killed.

If Christopher P. McGuire, the Philadelphia boiler setter who was instantly killed Friday afternoon by falling down the cellar stairs of the store at 48 East Forty-second street, had only taken heed to the curious premonition which came to him before he left home on the previous day, his wife and little daughter would not now be crying their eyes out in their cozy home.

McGuire was the superintendent for Harrison & Wharton of Germantown, and traveled all over the country, looking after the setting up of their boilers. He always went on these journeys cheerfully enough, but when he was ordered to go to Boston Thursday he went to his home at 3235 Irving street in a singular state of depression. He told his wife and friends that he felt certain that he would meet his death on the trip and refused to be laughed out of his conviction.

His wife accompanied him to the Broad street station, and after he had got on the train he jumped off to embrace her again and begged her to at least go with him. She could not leave their little daughter, and he went alone.

She caught some of his worry herself and did not sleep a wink all night and was hardly surprised to get a telegram next afternoon telling of his sudden death. She came to this city and took the body to Philadelphia.—New York World.

The Paris Universal Exhibition.

One of the principal events of the week has been the issue of a decree, signed by President Carnot and published in The Journal Officiel, organizing the commission for the universal exhibition to be held here in 1900. The measures proposed are similar to those taken for the exhibition here four years ago. One of the most intimate friends of the president, M. Alfred Picard of the Conseil d'Etat, is named commissary general and director in chief of the entire enterprise, and he will be aided in his herculean task by numerous consultative committees. It is needless to add that this exhibition, organized for the purpose of inaugurating the commencement of the twentieth century, is to be immeasurably superior to the great fair of 1889 and to be on a scale altogether unprecedented.—Paris Letter.

On Rainier's Top.

The first party to reach the top of Mount Rainier this year made the trip about five weeks ago. It has been generally thought that it would be impossible to reach the summit this year because of the immense amount of snow that fell last winter. Dr. Joseph Felix, professor of geology in the university at Leipsic, who climbed Rainier three weeks ago, pronounces it far more interesting than any of the mountains of Europe or of Mexico. Mount Rainier has 17 glaciers, 3 large volcano craters at its summit and several other craters along its sides.

Found a Nugget Worth $983.50.

One of the handsomest nuggets of gold ever brought into Los Angeles was shown the other day by John S. Reed, a well known California miner, who has lately been prospecting in the gold district 40 miles northeast of Mojave. The nugget weighs exactly 56½ ounces and is worth $983.50. It is in appearance like a medium sized cobblestone and has evidently been twice as big as it now is, for there is a mark showing where half of it has been broken off. Mr. Reed unfortunately could not find the missing half.—San Francisco Examiner.

To Suppress Peculiar Industries.

The French government has determined to suppress two new and peculiar industries. One is a process for turning old playing cards into new in order to escape the heavy tax. The authorities have seized three such factories. The treasury has already lost $600,000 through their operations. The other trade is in renovated secondhand graveyard ornaments, which the French use extensively. The object of the latter reform is to stop the wholesale despoiling of cemeteries.

Be Thorough.

In lawful pursuits, whatever you do—
Building a mansion or mending a shoe—
Be honestly earnest in all of your work,
Never attempting plan duty to shirk.
Whether you climb, dig, delve or borrow,
Do each thing completely; always be thorough.
Slipshod expedients avoid as a snare;
Perform every task with painstaking care.
Negligent methods won't bear the world's test;
Give it, unstinting, always your best.
Whether you labor with head or with hand—
Writing a book or tilling the land—
Do everything well; as well as you can.
No more is expected by God or by man.
No less will suffice for your own self respect
Or save you from sting of willful neglect.
The purest of pleasure can only be found
In virtuous effort, healthful and sound.
This truest of maxims cherish and nurse—
"Work is a blessing, and ease but a curse."

RESULTS OF ENVIRONMENT.

How a Philosophical Discourse Was Born of the Timidity of a Backwoods Couple.

It did not take a close observer to see that they were from the country. His tall and lean figure was adorned with an ill fitting suit of clothes, and his large, clumsy boots were still covered with the dust of country roads—a sight to keenly appreciated by the courteous Sunko steerer.

She had rosy cheeks and was plump of figure. Had she worn other than a red dress and not an old fashioned bonnet with green ribbons, she might have been termed real pretty.

They stood in front of the Astor House looking about them in a dazed sort of way. Evidently their desire was to cross the street, but the long line of trucks and wagons, the cable cars with their incessant clanging and the noise generally caused them to hesitate.

Presently she clutched him by the arm and anxiously, even nervously, looked into his face.

"Mercy, John, let's go back ter hum. This noise is too much."

"Yer right," replied John. "Can't stand it myself."

She clutched his arm, and with hurried steps they proceeded down Barclay street.

A party of gentlemen on the steps of the Astor House had been watching the couple and overheard the remarks passed between them.

"That shows you what effect environment has upon people," said one philosophically. "They were brought up in the country, where probably no murmur of the business and commercial world ever found its way. To them the lazy wind sighing among the branches of the trees, the singing of the birds and the running waters of the brook form an important part of their daily life. They would be unhappy, even in the grandest palace, without this simple yet beautiful music of nature.

"Yet how different it is with me, add undoubtedly with you all! I tire of the country in a few days. To me the scene before us now is as inspiring and beautiful as any I ever saw elsewhere. The rumbling of the vehicles over the pavement, the clanging of the bells, the hissing of steam, the hurrying feet and the unceasing noise of bustle and business all combine to make one grand symphony that my ears never tire of hearing. I can work and think the better for it, but were I banished to some rustic scene work would cease, inspiration would leave me, and I would even be unhappy, longing for the busy environments of a city like New York.

"As it is with individuals, so it is with nations, with kingdoms, empires and republics. Their characters, their traits and their nationalities can all be traced to their surroundings, and I believe there is nothing in what we call human nature that is not a result of environment. Change the universe, the customs and manner of living, and, mark my word, you change human nature."

The philosophical gentleman looked proudly at his listeners, and with the bow of an orator retiring from the platform he sauntered into the lobby of the Astor House.—New York Herald.

PLANS OF SILVERITES

For Forcing the White Metal Into Circulation.

TIMELY REMARKS BY LODGE

On the He'plessness Displayed by the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Since the declaration of Senator Voorhees in the senate, a day or two ago, that the battle for silver repeal had but commenced, the compromise senators have been working more earnestly in their efforts to reach some settlement.

There are several propositions under consideration, but the trouble is to reach an agreement as to the limit of monthly purchases of silver bullion and the issue of bonds to supply the gold reserve. The scheme of Senator Harris and that of Senator Faulkner are being utilized as a basis of agreement.

It is proposed to take middle ground between these projects, substantially providing for the purchase of $2,000,000 worth of silver bullion per month, the bullion to be coined, the greenbacks and national bank notes below $10 to be withdrawn from circulation and the issue of 3 per cent five-year bonds to maintain the gold supply. The object of this composite scheme is to force silver into the circulation of the country.

The senators engaged in promoting this plan of settlement expect to have it ready to submit to the different factions of the senate within a day or two. The managers of all sides in the Democratic ranks have been notified that unless the silver question is settled in some form within a few days there will be no quorum present. Senator Allison said that he would be compelled to leave not later than Thursday. Senator Hale and several others have already left. Senator Lodge is anxious to get away this week, as the campaign in Massachusetts requires his presence.

An Interesting Session.

The proceedings of the senate yesterday were interesting. They opened with action on a house joint resolution fixing the qualifications to vote and hold office in the Cherokee outlet at the first municipal elections. The joint resolution was passed after an unsuccessful attempt by Mr. Peffer to engraft woman suffrage upon it. The attempt was sustained by only nine senators.

The Union Pacific receivership led to the introduction of a bill by Mr. Morgan (Dem., Ala.) to provide for the control of the Union and Central Pacific roads until their debts to the government are fully paid up or secured.

Senator Lodge submitted some sensible remarks in support of his two proposed amendments to the present rules of the senate, the first relating to quorum by counting all those present and refusing to vote, and the other that senators shall hereafter not be permitted to read written speeches. He took occasion to severely criticise the course of Senator Dubois in his refusal to vote, even after the senate had by a decided vote decided not to excuse him.

In his speech Mr. Lodge referred to Webster's famous reply to Mr. Hayne, and said that Mr. Webster's only written preparation for it was a sheet of note paper on which he had some memoranda. He said also that the true thing for the senate to do in the present deadlock, when it was unable to act and was a laughing stock to the country because of its absolute impotence, was to change its rules.

Mr. Vest (Dem., Mo.) replied to Mr. Lodge. In reference to the Webster speech he said that Mr. Webster had not given that speech (as it now stands) to the public for over a month after it was delivered. Mr. Hoar contributed his share to the history of the famous speech by an anecdote as to Mr. Saltonstall (a then representative from Massachusetts) calling at Mr. Webster's boarding house the evening of the day of Mr. Haynes' speech and finding Mr. Webster pacing up and down the parlor humming the refrain of the English hunting song, "Tantivy, tantivy, this day a stag must die."

Vest's Sarcasm.

Mr. Vest disposed of the Webster reminiscence with the sarcastic remark that whenever Massachusetts sent another Webster to the senate his utterances would be listened to, whether they were oral or written. Coming back to the main body of the discussion he declared his honest belief that the solution of the question now harassing the senate and the country could not be reached until all parties were satisfied, as he was satisfied, that the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act could not be had at this session.

Mr. Aldrich (Rep., R. I.) also took part in the discussion, and he and Mr. Hill were equally emphatic as to the power of the majority to pass the repeal bill, even under existing laws.

The Lodge resolutions went over until today, and the repeal bill was taken up at 1 p. m., Mr. Jones (Rep., Nev.) occupying three hours, but not finishing his speech, and Mr. Peffer (Pop., Kan.) going on with the speech which he began last Friday.

Muddled.

The senate got into a curious parliamentary tangle just at nightfall, which recalled the extraordinary session when the body, with Mr. Ingalls in the chair, found itself unable to adjourn when every person present wished to do so. During the course of the proceedings, when a quorum was temporarily absent, Mr. Voorhees moved that the sergeant-at-arms be directed to secure the attendance of the absentees.

Soon afterward a few stragglers came into the chamber and made up a quorum to answer a call of the senate. Then Mr. Voorhees wished to withdraw his motion, but Mr. Dubois refused his assent. There was nothing to do but call the yeas and nays, and the pairs were so numerous that a voting quorum could not be obtained. As soon as the result was announced, under the rules another call was in order, without motion, to develop the presence of a quorum. The quorum, according to call, against the motion recurred on Mr. Voorhees' original proposition; and so it went on, changing from the yeas and nays to the call of the senate.

The silver men had really transferred to the clerk the necessity of talking against time and the proceedings seemed very much like what a speculator denominated it: "An automatic silver debate," for it ran for two and one-quarter hours without the advent of a voting quorum.

A colloquy was kept up until 10 o'clock, when Mr. Voorhees arose and announced that earlier in the evening he had asked the senate to remain in session until 10 o'clock. That hour having arrived he moved that the senate adjourn. Accordingly the senate adjourned.

In the House.

The bill extending for six months the time within which Chinese may be allowed to register under the operation of the Geary law was passed in the house with little or no opposition. This was due to some extent to the fact that the amendment defining Chinese merchants was agreed to almost unanimously. There was no attempt made to procure the yeas and nays, and the opponents of the measure allowed it to go through by default.

The McCreary bill, as it passed the house, contains but two sections. The first is a repetition of section 1 of the existing act, except that it extends until six months after enactment the time allowed Chinese to register. It also amends the provision as to witness certificates, so as to relieve the inadvertent discrimination against colored men. Certificates must contain photographs of their owners. The second section defines laborers to be persons engaged in both unskilled and skilled manual labor.

The Cox bill, for the better control of national banks, was then taken up, and after remarks by Mr. Cox and Mr. Cannon the house, without disposing of the measure, adjourned.

BOSTON BANKS LOSERS.

Warrant Issued For the Arrest of a Once Prosperous Man.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—One of the sections of the big brick block on Purchase street used by leather and boot and shoe merchants, and running from 220 to 240, is offered for rent. The particular section is numbered 226 and 228, and over the front entrance is a long, wide sign which reads "William S. White & Co."

This name on the sign is all that is left in Boston of a once prosperous firm, except numerous debts; but it marks an era in Boston financial circles, and also indicates the downfall of confidence in human nature by many trusting bank cashiers.

That firm has been famous in Pennsylvania for years as tanners and leather dealers, and for six years up to last August was well known in Boston. It has been represented here by George B. White.

Today that gentleman is in another state, and in the pocket of a Boston detective is a voluminous document which calls for his return to the commonwealth of Massachusetts whenever and wherever he is found. The document is what is known as an indictment warrant.

The headquarters inspector also has another paper in his inside pocket. It is a requisition issued by Governor Russell and asks the delivery of the much wanted man by the authorities of Pennsylvania, where he is supposed to be, to the Boston detective.

Mr. White is accused of obtaining money by false pretenses from a dozen different banks of this city, the claim being made that he secured about $200,000. The warrant was issued on account of this.

It is also alleged that New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburg institutions are out about $300,000 on account of his peculiar commercial transactions, but in those cities no criminal prosecution has been commenced, as is the case in Boston.

Glastonbury's Kick.

HARTFORD, Oct. 17.—Glastonbury had an important town meeting to consider the expenditure of $34,880 by the towns of Hartford, East Hartford, South Windsor, Manchester and Glastonbury as legal expenses for passing a bill in the general assembly, fixing the cost of the East Hartford bridge upon the state. Glastonbury's share of the expense was $3968. A committee was appointed to investigate the entire expenditure, and if they find that the selectmen have illegally paid out the money to take steps to recover it.

British Fleet Visits Italy.

TARANTO, Oct. 17.—Crowds gathered along the principal streets of the city to witness the marine spectacle. The fleet was greeted with cheers from the crowd on its arrival. The British vessels were greeted with a salute of 21 guns by the Italian warships, which was returned. Though the welcome given the British ships was hearty, it was marked by none of the effusiveness that characterized the reception given the Russian fleet at Toulon.

De Oro and Roberts Cross Cues.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—What promises to be the greatest continuous pool match ever seen in this country was begun here last evening. It was between the acknowledged champions of two countries, John Roberts of London and Alfred De Oro, the Cuban who has defeated every pool player who ever took up a cue against him. The match is 1000 balls in blocks of 150 balls for five nights. De Oro won the first night's play.

Has Twelve Thousand Members.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The Young People's Christian union, an organization started four years ago in Lynn, Mass., by representatives of about 50 various young people's societies connected with the Universalist church, but which now number over 12,000 members, met in this city in its fourth annual convention, with an attendance, including delegates, from nearly 213 organizations.

To Be Sold by a Sheriff.

BATH, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Ingham university, one of the oldest and most famous female colleges in this country, having been founded by the Ingham sisters at Leroy, in 1835, is advertised at sheriff's sale to satisfy a $40,000 mortgage which has been foreclosed. Between 8000 and 10,000 young women have been graduated from Ingham during its existence.

Closed by Order of Court.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 17.—On the petition of Bank Commissioners Baker and Hatch, Judge Chase of the supreme court granted an injunction restraining the Contoocook Valley Savings bank of Peterboro from doing business. The assets are not more than $80,000; liabilities about the same.

Forced to Kill His Brother.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Oct. 17.—Charles Brunner, an Indian policeman, attempted to arrest his brother Abe for being drunk and disorderly. Abe drew a revolver and began shooting. Charles was obliged to kill him in self defense. Richmond Carolina was killed by a stray bullet.

Men Refused to Work.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Most of the collieries in Lancashire, Derbyshire and Yorkshire were reopened yesterday for the men willing to accept 15 per cent reduction in wages. The men made no response. Only the collieries where the old wages are paid are working.

Composer Gounod Very Sick.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Charles Francis Gounod, the great composer, has had a severe attack of apoplexy at St. Cloud, France, where he has been living. His condition is reported to be critical.

THE CHILDREN'S ROOM.

How peaceful at night
The sleeping children lie,
Each gentle breath so light
Escaping like a sigh!
How tranquil seems the room, how fair,
To one who softly enters there!

Whose hands are those unseen
That smooth each little bed?
Whose locks are those that lean
Over each pillowed head?
Whose lips caress the boys and girls?
Whose fingers stroke the golden curls?

Whose are the yearning eyes,
And whose the trembling tear?
Whose heart is this that cries,
Beseeching God to hear?
Whose but the mother's, in whose face
Love shows its sweetest dwelling place?

Her hopes in beauty bloom,
And heaven sends down its light,
Which lingers in the room
Where mother says, "Good night."
Soft treading by the sleepers there,
Her very presence seems a prayer.

WILL AND I.

I had been sitting at my desk for a full hour, engaged in the laudable occupation of doing nothing. In spite of my trouble, what wonder then that I drifted off into reverie, and my thoughts reverted to sadly pleasant retrospect?

Once more it was winter—the sunny New Orleans winter—and Will and I were together. I recalled the hours passed in reading and writing and music; the drives and walks and theaters. The most minute and trivial incidents recurred to my mind, and I found myself smiling at the recollection of a certain long, narrow, phenomenally dark passage or alleyway on Royal street, up which we glanced one night, and which Will, with his bright and quick sense of humor, immediately christened "Jack the Ripper's court."

This is not a sensational story that I am about to tell. I warn my readers in advance that there is nothing startling or wildly romantic in it. From start to finish it is a simple "o'ertrue tale." And yet it was romantic too. There was a tinge of romance, after all, when Will asked me to become his wife, to marry him in secret. We had been betrothed for a year, and he was far from strong. His health was undermined, and a horrible fear oppressed him that he would be taken away. In the prime of his manhood, with life and hope and happiness all his, it was an awful thought.

"Constance," he said one night as we stood on the moonlit gallery, with its luxuriant rose vines and the great yellow roses clambering up to shake down their showers of fragrance in our faces, "my darling, be my wife now! Why should we wait, dear one? There is nothing between our lives and happiness but the bugbear of poverty, and I shall have a fortune when I am 30. I shall be 30 next September, Constance, if—if I live."

Something in the sweet, tender voice made me glance up swiftly into the brave, dark eyes. Beautiful, tender eyes, where are you now? Where are you today, O Will? Hidden away forever from the sight of my eyes, from beyond the clasp of my arms—gone, gone—I feel it, believe it—to that Beautiful, veiled, bright world,

Where the glad ghosts meet.

Something in his voice made my heart ache.

"Why do you speak so sadly?" I asked him. "Never mind the fortune, Will. I care nothing for that, if you are only spared to me."

"I know it, dear, tender little heart," he answered softly. "You are the only true woman in the world, Constance. But I wanted to tell you (I am superstitious, I admit it) it was prophesied that I shall die before I am 30."

"Nonsense!" I cried sturdily, "that is sheer superstition, and it is very wrong to believe in it, dear. No one knows the future. I would never think of that again if I were you."

I tried to smile as I spoke—to shake off the strange feeling that would oppress me, try as I might—but all in vain. Die before 30! My true hearted, noble Will, with his sunny smile and tender dark eyes! I would not believe it. It was absurd. So I laughed at his fears as foolishness and tried to make him forget. But he was far from strong, and that one glimpse of what might be in store for us—the awful parting that might come—made me decide. So I promised that night to become his wife at once and "in secret and silence," as the old song says.

Everything was made ready, and on the following night—the night before his departure—we were quietly married in a quaint little old church in one of the retired streets of New Orleans. And Will and I belonged to each other for time and eternity.

The sad parting came next day—and he went back to his northern home, while I returned to my work, brightened only by the hope of meeting in the summer at quiet Long Beach.

I am not a superstitious woman. I had laughed at Will for his own dread of the supernatural and his belief in a prophecy, but we had not been parted a whole month when something very curious happened. Will had written to me every day, such dear, sweet letters that they did my heart good—kept it alive, in fact.

But for those letters I would have given up my hold upon hope and would have succumbed to despair.

But one day no letter came. I felt a strange sinking at the heart—an awful sense of depression; darkness gathered over my life. Suspense—hope deferred; these are the two emotions which serve to kill the human heart, to darken and blight existence. That night I went out on the little gallery where we had passed so many happy hours. The moon was bright, and one star shone in the blue vault above my head—one that Will had long ago designated "our star." My heart was crushed and heavy.

I stood leaning against one of the columns which supported the gallery, the scent of the roses that he loved floating all around me. And as I stood there, something—a light touch—fell upon my shoulder. A cold breeze crept over my check, like a breath from the grave.

I turned my eyes, and there before me in the cold moonlight stood Will—my husband.

With a wild incredulous cry of delight and rapture, I flung my arms about him—only to grasp empty air! No one was there! Will was gone!

I fell to the gallery floor and lay there like a dead woman.

When I opened my eyes, the moon was shining down upon me, just as calm and cold and imperial as ever. I struggled to a sitting posture and gazed wildly about me. What did it mean? I was not at all superstitious, yet I felt that I had seen my husband that night, just as truly as I had ever beheld his face in my life.

The next day—no letter, and the next, still no letter. Oh, the anguish of hope deferred!

The time had come now for me to go to Long Beach, as I had promised him. I would keep my word—no matter how hard it might be, I would go there. If he—if that hideous prophecy had really come true—at all events, I would keep my promise—my last promise to him. So I went. Oh, the long, dreary, interminable days, with only the monotonous waters before me, the blue, blue sky and golden sunshine always the same. It made my heart faint and sick. I had written and written letter after letter. Still no response. I felt that he was dead. And no one could tell me, because how could his friends in the far distant north know aught of the southern woman whom he had secretly wedded? And so the dreary, endless days dragged by, and I still lived, heartbroken and helpless. I will never more laugh at superstition, never.

Last night I saw him again. I had gone down to the beach in the moonlight and walked slowly and sadly up and down the white stretch of sand at the water's edge. All at once I saw another shadow mingle with my own upon the moonlit beach. I came to a halt and saw at my side—Will.

With a wild cry I attempted to grasp his arm, but there was no one there.

I went back to the house and passed the night in pacing up and down the floor like a mad woman.

Today is his thirtieth birthday, or would have been, but I feel that my darling is no more; that the visions I have seen were warnings sent me of his fate. Would Will have ceased to write me—me—his beloved one—if he were alive? I believe that I shall see the phantom once again, and then—then—I shall go, too, for I feel that it is his spirit that has come back for me.

* * * * * *

So I have been sitting here in the morning sunlight thinking of the past. Can one wonder greatly that my pen lies idle and utterly refuses to produce the love tales of others? Is not my own love story as sad a one as I can ever write?

I hear the sound of wheels and glance listlessly from the open window at my side. A carriage has stopped before the gate. Two men are assisting a third to alight. They are bringing him slowly up the walk to the house. He is evidently very ill. Why does my heart throb so weakly? I am too weak to stand—to take a step forward. Oh, I will not allow myself to be deceived by mad, vain hopes!

They reach the house at last and assist the feeble form up the steps of the broad gallery into my presence. Oh, pitying heaven! It is Will—Will, pale and spectral, a weak, frail invalid, but Will all the same. It is some time before I fully recover from this trance of happiness, and then the truth is made known. He had been very ill with brain fever. No one could write to me because they knew nothing of me or my address, and he was raving in delirium. As soon as he was able to attempt the journey he had set out to return to me.

It was all ended now—that dreary separation. Upon his thirtieth birthday, oh, so happy and hopeful, my Will had come back to me, never to leave me again!

"I shall never more laugh at any one for being superstitious," I said the next day, gazing into the deep, dark eyes of the loved one so happily restored to me. "Thank heaven that my superstitious fears were not realized."

I have never been able to account for that strange illusion. To this day I cannot make up my mind what it was that I had seen.

But it was not Will's ghost, and that is all I care to know, after all.—Toronto Mail.

The Beef Tea Fallacy.

One of the hardest notions for the untrained nurse to give up is that beef tea is a valuable nutriment. The recent assertion of a writer in The American Lancet that thousands of sick persons have been starved to death on beef tea is only a summing up of what physicians and expert nurses have been trying to impress upon the minds of the laity for some time.

Beef tea is a stimulant, slight and evanescent, but to "live on beef tea," which has been the shibboleth of many a sickroom, is impossible. And The Lancet further counsels that if it must still be made and used to perform its very limited service, to remember that, like plain tea, it should never be boiled. That method of making contributes a positive vice—that of indigestibility.

Viscount Sherbrooke's Humor.

Robert Lowe became the recognized mouthpiece of sardonic humor, and thereby obtained more than his share of questionable notoriety. Many of his imputed stories are obviously adaptations.

A former friend who met him in London is said to have accosted him with the remark: "Don't you remember me? I used to know you in Australia," and to have met with the rebuff, "Yes, and when I meet you again in Australia I shall be happy to know you." But this is a mere echo of George Selwyn's remark under like circumstances, "I shall be pleased to renew our acquaintance when we meet again in Bath."—Quarterly Review.

PERSONAL REMARKS

Indulged In by Senators In a Heated Debate.

SHERMAN MAKES A SPEECH.

He Begs Democrats to Come to Some Agreement.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The most interesting and important debate that has been heard in the senate chamber during the present session was the one that took place yesterday. Mr. Dolph (Rep., Or.) made a point on Monday evening that the two Populist senators—Allen of Nebraska and Kyle of South Dakota—had not answered to their names, although they were present, and he contended that their presence should be entered in the journal.

Around that question the parliamentary struggle waged all day, and bristled with bitter sarcasm, jibes and personalities. Mr. Dolph having expressed himself as "tired" of all the obstruction, was told by Mr. Harris (Dem., Tenn.) that if he was tired he had better sit down and rest, and that would be a relief to the senator himself and to the senate.

Mr. Hoar made a statement that "On all questions which affect the welfare of the American people by rules, through rules or over rules, by the senate, through the senate or over the senate, the irresistible will of the American people will have its way."

Mr. Hill (Dem., N. Y.) argued in favor of Mr. Dolph's contention. He said that the art of "how to do it" seemed to be the effort of the senate.

Mr. Morgan (Dem., Ala.) spoke of Mr. Hill as a New York politician who had introduced the heresy of counting a quorum when he was president of the New York senate.

Mr. Hill retorted ironically that there were no politicians in Alabama. There they were all statesmen, and he twitted Mr. Morgan's expressed reverence for the constitution of the United States by suggesting that for a certain portion of that senator's career he had been supporting another constitution.

Mr. Morgan spent a good deal of time over what he called a coalition between Democratic and Republican senators, and when Mr. Washburn (Rep., Minn.) denied that there was any such coalition he was tartly stopped by Mr. Morgan, who said that he had not a thought in his mind of the Minnesota senator as one of the Republican leaders.

Then an allusion to the conference of national banks in getting up the coalition was resented by Mr. Gray, who said that it was not true; and when Mr. Morgan asked him whether he wanted to make a personal matter of it, Mr. Gray modified the remark by saying that, so far as he was concerned, it was not true.

Mr. Washburn, having declared his resolve not to be stamped upon or insulted, he was told by Mr. Morgan that he was responsible for what he said, whether in the senate or outside, and added: "You understand that—perfectly responsible."

The great speech of the day was made by Mr. Sherman. He criticised the Democratic senators very severely for their failure to come to some agreement among themselves, and counselled them to do so.

Without arriving at any decision on the question the senate at 5:30 p. m. took a recess until 10 a. m. today.

Caucus Talk.

Senator Sherman's speech caused some of the Democrats to ask whether it was not time for them to agree upon united action. Before the decision had been reached to take a recess until today Mr. Vest began circulating among his colleagues a petition addressed to the chairman of the caucus asking him to issue a call for the caucus. The call, which Mr. Vest had drawn up, was carefully worded, and every man who signed it thereby pledged himself to abide by the decision of that caucus. It was noticeable that when this paper was presented to Democratic repealers they declined, after reading the caption, to sign the request.

It requires 23 Democrats, a majority of the majority, to make this call effective, and, according to the count of the silver Democrats, they have just that number. This estimate includes Mr. Kyle and Mr. Martin, who are, the southern men claim, more Democrats than Populists. Mr. Vest hopes to get some of the repeal Democrats to sign his paper.

It is said that when Mr. Voorhees moved to take a recess, and, as he said, poured oil on the troubled waters, he knew of the contemplated caucus, and thought it best not to push matters pending the attempt of his colleagues to get together.

Democrats Not Pledged.

When asked the point blank question whether or not the administration Democrats would enter this caucus, one of Mr. Voorhees' warmest supporters said there could be no doubt that if the majority ordered the caucuses all Democrats would participate in its deliberations. Not having signed the caucus pledge, they would be free to act for themselves, and while some would not go to the extent of binding themselves beforehand, this senator said he expected much good to grow out of the conference. The mere fact that a caucus was held, if it debate held, was, he said, significant of itself. If the fight for unconditional repeal is to be continued on the lines now laid down, a caucus was absolutely unnecessary. A caucus could mean but one thing, and that was compromise.

It is not probable that the caucus will be held earlier than tonight, and possibly not then. Repeal senators will not admit that the caucus will act contrary to the present attitude of the administration, for they deny that the silver men are in the majority.

In the House.

Mr. Phillips (Rep., Pa.) introduced in the house a bill to provide for the coinage of silver dollars and to maintain them at par. The most striking feature of the bill is the provision:

That in case the silver dollar at any time declines below its face value, and ceases to circulate at par, the secretary of the treasury is then authorized to redeem or exchange for gold said silver dollars on presentation until they shall again be current at their face or par value; and to enable the secretary of the treasury to do this, and for this purpose alone, he is hereby authorized to issue and sell for gold United States 3 percentum bonds interest, payable semi-annually in gold and the principal payable in gold in 30 years, but such issues shall not exceed $10,000,000 in any one month nor be more than $100,000,000 in all.

The bill repeals the Sherman act. It provides for the coinage of seigniorage and the retirement of one and two dollar notes from circulation.

While the storm is raging in the senate, there is a great calm in the house. Monday the important bill extending for six months the time in which the Chinese might be permitted to register was passed without opposition. Yesterday a bill dispensing with proof of loyalty in the cases of persons, who, before the war, were entitled to pensions or to bounty lands, was objected to by Mr. Burrows (Rep., Mich.) as far as the pension clause was concerned.

Thereupon Mr. Oates, who had charge of the measure, courteously withdrew the pension clause and the bill was passed. Then came up the proposition for the better control of national banks, and after a cordial exchange of views between its supporters and opponents it was agreed to without even a division. The remainder of the day was consumed in the consideration of the public printing bill. Without disposing of it, the house at 5 o'clock adjourned.

WAS DEEPLY IN DEBT.

Charles Copeland Believed to Have Died by His Own Hand.

EAST BRIDGEWATER, Mass., Oct. 18.—Charles W. Copeland was found dead yesterday afternoon in a field near his house. He started from home in the morning with a double barreled shotgun for the stated purpose of getting some partridges. He appeared in excellent spirits, and had arranged with Mrs. Copeland to go to Boston when he came back. Not returning as soon as anticipated, search was made, and Mr. Copeland's dead body was found with a charge of buckshot through the heart. The gun, however, was lying with the muzzle pointing away from him and near a stone wall, over which Mr. Copeland may have fallen.

The medical examiner decided that death was due to accident, but there is a growing belief that it was suicide. Mr. Copeland was a member of C. W. Copeland & Co., boot and shoe manufacturers, who failed in 1883 for $750,000. The C. W. Copeland Manufacturing company was then organized and their building was burned in 1886. Mr. Copeland then withdrew from the business and has been in the stock and dairy farming business. His property has been heavily mortgaged and a foreclosure was to have been made on his household property yesterday, a keeper being in charge.

Friends Think He Is Demented.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 18.—Nathan Wolfe, one of the principal witnesses in the Schloss case, in which Drs. Whitten and Lee were acquitted, has mysteriously disappeared. His family fear that the strain he underwent has made him demented. Wolfe was first a witness for the state and afterward went on the stand for the defence, admitting that he had perjured himself by his first testimony in order to shield Cash, who was on trial as an accessory.

Nutmeg State Knights of Honor.

HARTFORD, Oct. 18.—The grand council of the Knights of Honor of Connecticut held its 16th annual session in Odd Fellows' hall here. The following officers were elected: Grand dictator, George W. Daines of East Litchfield; grand vice dictator, Phineas A. Spencer of Meriden; grand assistant dictator. J. L. Barrett of Ansonia; grand treasurer, James A. Kelsey of Middletown; grand reporter, C. W. Skiff of Danbury.

Asquith and the Peers.

LONDON, Oct. 18. — Herbert Asquith, home secretary, speaking in Glasgow last evening, denied the right of the house of lords to force a dissolution of parliament. The electors themselves should be blamed, he said, for tolerating a system which placed the gigantic power in such irresponsible hands as those of the peers. He denied that the ministers intended to reintroduce the home rule bill in the next session.

Loose Finances Alleged.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 18.—Application was made in the superior court here asking for the removal of John B. Wallace as trustee of the insolvent Electrical Supply company of Ansonia on the grounds that Wallace owes the concern over $100,000. The court has been asked to order the books of the insolvent firm of Wallace & Sons of Ansonia inspected by an expert, as they were greatly muddled.

Seventeen Men Badly Injured.

ALTOONA, Pa., Oct. 18.—A freight engine and train collided with a car containing 70 employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad company returning from their work in the lower yard to this city. The car was broken up and the hot stove overturned among the men, 17 of whom were very seriously injured.

Killed His Sister and Himself.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Jacob Winter, 28 years old, a truck driver, shot and killed his sister Louisa last night. Winter then shot himself in the head and died instantly. The cause of the shooting is said to be because the girl received the attentions of a barber against her brother's wishes.

Jewelers Out of Pocket.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 18.—The manufacturing jewelry trade was surprised by the news of the failure in Chicago of Adolph Shakeman, a wholesale jobber of that city. The losses to the manufacturers in Providence and Attleboro, Mass., are about $50,000, and the total, it is said, will reach $75,000.

FAMOUS IN HISTORY

Marshal MacMahon, Ex-President of France, Is Dead.

WAS A BRAVE FIGHTER.

Had Retired From Military and Political Life.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Field Marshal MacMahon, Duke of Magenta, died yesterday. The end was not unexpected.

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—The Berlin newspapers announce Marshal MacMahon's death, but pass few comments. The Post remarks on his "well known integrity and oft-proved valor."

An ex-president of the French republic, a distinguished general and marshal of France, passed away when Marie Edme Patrice Maurice de MacMahon, Duc de Magenta, died. Of late but little has been heard of this distinguished man, but some years back his name was a leading one in the contemporaneous history of the world. Born in Sully, June 12, 1808, the son of the Marquis MacMahon, peer of France and personal friend of Charles X, and the descendant of an Irish family who went into exile with James II, young Maurice was educated at St. Cyr and obtained his first laurels in Algiers.

At the age of 25 he was a captain, and at 40 became a general of brigade. In the Crimea his dashing assault on Malakoff, contrary to the advice and despite the remonstrances of General Niel, resulted in victory and the reception of the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor, his personal bravery on that occasion calling forth enthusiastic praise from General Pelissier. In the Italian campaign of 1859 he again distinguished himself, and on the battlefield of Magenta was created Duke of Magenta and Marshal of France. It was in that battle that the gallant soldiers saved Napoleon III from capture by the Austrians.

With the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war Marshal MacMahon was placed at the head of the First Corps d'Armee, and he was regarded with general confidence; but a series of reverses met him until in September he was penned up in Sedan, was wounded and taken prisoner. Freed by the subsequent peace he returned to France, and there redeemed his name by reducing the communists in Paris. His policy was to abide by existing institutions, and therefore he accepted the existence of the republic, and though disapproving of it yet took the presidential chair.

He was an aristocrat by birth, an Imperialist by long association and he abhorred democratic free thinking. Furthermore, he himself said he never was a statesman, but a soldier, and that alone. It was understood that an offer had come to him from the Empress Eugenie and M. Rouher, acting for the Prince Imperial, laying down the bribe of the hand of the young Napoleon IV, to be bestowed upon Mlle. MacMahon if her father would aid in overthrowing the Republic and in bringing back the Empire. But the old soldier was honest and could not be bought.

Yet his actions as president were so arbitrary and so oppressive that the state of public affairs was for a time very menacing, and the cry of "Down with MacMahon!" was often heard in the streets. He was compelled to resign in 1879, and the third president, M. Grevy, was elected. The retiring ruler accepted the position manfully, and was the first to call upon his successor after the installation. Since that time he has lived in strict retirement.

His wife was always to him a guide and adviser, and her ambition had much to do in bringing him to the front politically. In his later days, still possessing many of his faculties undimmed, the ex-president of France passed the hours in his large library of military and scientific books, in the study of meteorology, in which he was deeply interested, and in walking and riding.

Expert Telegrapher Dead.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—William C. Cherry, one of the best known and most expert telegraphers in this city, died in Bellevue hospital yesterday of pneumonia. He was born in Montreal, and was 41 years of age. At the time of his death he was in the employ of the New York Herald.

The Grant Family Meets.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. — There was a pleasant reunion of the family of General U. S. Grant at the Fifth Avenue hotel yesterday. The occasion was a farewell to Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris, who sailed with her children for England on the Paris today.

Windle Beats Meintjes' Record.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 18.—W. W. Windle, in an attempt at the five-mile bicycle record here, reduced the three-mile mark of 6:45 1-5, made by Meintjes, to 6:43. He fell behind the record on the fourth mile and stopped.

Connecticut Financier Dead.

DANBURY, Conn., Oct. 18.—Frederick Seymour Williman, ex-treasurer of Connecticut, is dead. He was 88 years old, and was one of the oldest active bankers in the country. In his earlier days he was prominent in politics.

Oldest Grand Army Man.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Jacob Pehl, the oldest Grand Army man in the United States, died here yesterday. He was born in Germany in 1809. He was a member of Hamilton post 20, Grand Army.

New Brunswick Village Burned.

FREDERICTON, N. B., Oct. 18.—The village of St. Mary's, across the river from this city, was almost entirely destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. Twenty-two buildings were burned. Loss, $50,000.

Marriage of Powell Clayton's Niece.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Oct. 18.—Miss Emma Clayton, daughter of the late Dr. John H. Clayton and niece of ex-Senator Powell Clayton, was married in this city yesterday to County Judge W. D. Jones.

Big Concern Fails.

CHESTER, Pa., Oct. 18.—The Wellman Iron and Steel company of this place, employing 1000 men, has failed. The concern is capitalized at $1,000,000.

OUR WATER SUPPLY.

Mayor Fairbanks Recommends the Taking of Valuable Rights and Privileges.

Mayor Fairbanks forwarded to the City Council Monday evening the following communication relative to an extension of the water supply, which is self explanatory :

QUINCY, Oct. 13, 1893.

E. W. H. BASS, ESQ., PRESIDENT OF CITY COUNCIL:

Sir:—Chapter 401 of the Acts and Resolves of 1893, provides that the city after the purchase of the franchise, corporate property, rights and privileges of the Quincy Water Company, may take, hold and convey into and through said city, the waters of Blue Hill river and all the tributaries thereof, excepting Braintree Great pond, and Houghten's pond in the town of Milton with any water ways connected therewith, and may also take and hold by purchase or otherwise any land, rights of way, easements and real estate necessary for laying, constructing and maintaining pipes, aqueducts, water courses, reservoirs, storage basins, dams, filter galleries and such other works as may be deemed necessary for collecting purifying, storing, retaining, discharging, conducting and distributing said waters for preserving the purity of said waters.

Section 16 of this act reads—"This act shall be submitted to the qualified voters of the City of Quincy for its acceptance, and shall be void unless such voters, voting in their respective Wards or Precincts, at a legal meeting called by order of the City Council in the same manner as meetings for municipal elections are called, shall within three years from the passage of this act determine by ballot by a two-thirds vote of those present and voting to accept the same."

The city having complied with the provision in the said act requiring first the purchase of the property of the private corporation, it becomes our duty to carefully consider the needs of our city for the future.

At the time of the city taking possession of the Water Works, the company had laid 35 miles of pipe and had 1456 services. In 1892 the city extended the mains 3 -102 miles, and so far in 1893, 4 5-10 miles and we have at present 1819 services, and future extensions must be made the coming year to answer the demand for domestic and fire purposes.

These extensions bids us to prepare for an increased supply of water, and the Water Board will soon forward to the Council a communication in reference to another reservoir, and for the means to properly purify the present one; but at this time, believing that it is for the best interests of the city to acquire the rights contained in Chapter 401, I would recommend that said act be submitted to our citizens at our next municipal election.

Respectfully,

HENRY O. FAIRBANKS, Mayor.

While money's tight throughout the nation, Kincaide's marvel prices suit the situation.

Shorthand and Typewriting.

A good sized audience of the most intelligent young people in Quincy assembled last evening in Faxon hall and heard a very instructive and amusing practical talk on the kindred arts of shorthand and typewriting. The lecturer, Mr. Sullivan, who is forming classes in these subjects, presented in a very vivid and amusing way some of the ridiculous features of our English orthography. His blackboard illustrations were received in a very appreciative manner. After the lecture a large number joined the classes which are to meet in Adams building next Thursday evening, and every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening thereafter.

THE RUNAWAYS.

They Seem to Have Covered Up Their Tracks Effectually.

The whereabouts of the three boys, Clare, Baker and Smith, continues to be a mystery, as all efforts up to the present time have been fruitless. The officers have searched Boston high and low, and although they have struck what might be called clews, when followed up they have turned out to have been somebody else or the identification was so incomplete that there was considerable doubt as to whether they were the boys wanted or not.

The Boston police have a description of them and Monday night every lodging house and every place of amusement in the city was visited but without result.

Every avenue of approach to Boston is being watched and if the boys are now in Boston they cannot get out without being stopped.

Officer Furnald who has been at work upon the case with Chief of Police Langley does not believe the boys are in Boston but are in the woods along the south shore somewhere as he thinks it was impossible for the boys to walk from Hull to Nantasket in time to take the boat it is alleged they took.

One of the peculiar incidents in relation to the affair is told by the officer who is employed to look after Peddock's island. This officer's salary stopped Oct. 1. He says he noticed one of the boys had a large roll of bills in a piece of newspaper and he thought it suspicious, but as he was not under pay he did not hold them but drove them off of the island.

Another fact in the case is about the bank book. It seems that before the boy returned the book to its place in the house, he took some ink eraser and removed all trace of the entry made at the bank.

Chief of Police Langley has sent postal cards broadcast, asking for the detention of the boys where found. He gives the following description :

William Clare, 15 years old, of light complexion. Supposed to have had on a dark suit of clothes, a long gray ulster and cadet cap. May have on gray knee pants.

Ernest Baker, 15 years old, of light complexion ; gray jacket, dark knee pants and black cap.

Walter Smith, 14 years old, of dark complexion ; black jacket, light pants.

Soldiers' Monume

The Malden aldermen c[illegible] Tuesday the order calli[illegible] an appropriation of $3000 for a s[illegible]ers' monument for the Grand Army l[illegible]n Forest Dale cemetery, which came up from the council. The latter voted to put the erection in the hands of a commission, to consist of the mayor and members of the city government, and two representatives from the Grand Army post and the Veterans' Union.

The Grand Army representatives have strenuously objected to the Veterans Union having any representation on the commission. The lot belongs to the Grand Army.

A substitute order was offered by Alderman Pettingill which excluded the Grand Army and Union representatives, and in their place, the mayor was given authority to appoint "two citizens" on commission. The substitute order passed.—Herald.

McKeen—Dunlop.

A quiet wedding, at which only the immediate friends of the contracting parties were present, took place Wednesday evening, October 11, at the residence of Mr. William C. Ward, Adams street, when Miss Sarah Dunlop formerly of St. John, N. B, was united in marriage to Mr. Robert Cook McKeen of Quincy. The bride who was becomingly attired in white crepe de chene was attended by her two little nieces, Misses Edith and Sadie Ward in white spotted muslins and her sister, Miss Lucy Dunlop of St. John, in yellow crepe de chene, as maid of honor. The groom was supported by Mr. M. Lamont of Quincy. After the ceremony a wedding supper was partaken of and then the happy couple left for their home in Quincy midst the best wishes of their many friends. The wedding presents were numerous and elegant.

Campaign Notes.

OUT OF DANGER

Captain Jack Adams Undergoes a Surgical Operation.

WEYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 18.—The following telegram, dated Chicago, Oct. 17, 5:25 p. m., was received by Colonel Benjamin F. Lovell, in reply to a telegram sent by him inquiring as to the condition of Commander-in-Chief Adams of the Grand Army.

"Operation successful. No danger apprehended."

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—An operation was performed on Captain Adams at 12:30 o'clock yesterday by Dr. W. L. Tallman and Dr. C. Ferger, which the physicians pronounced most successful. No attempt was made to extract the bullet, but several fragments of bone were removed.

Captain Adams and his wife arrived in the city last Saturday, and went immediately to the suite of rooms they had engaged in the hotel adjoining that of G. S. Merrill, a friend of the family.

Captain Adams came here to see the World's fair, but for many years he has been suffering from two bullet wounds which he received during the war. Dr. Tallman took him in charge to relieve the captain of the pain.

The patient stood the anæsthetic and operation exceedingly well. The time was one hour and 30 minutes, and when he returned to consciousness he was quite hilarious at the removal of the cause of his trouble. He will not have sufficiently recovered to leave his room earlier than three weeks hence.

DETAILS ARE MEAGER.

Four Lives Lost In a Railroad Smashup In Ohio.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 18.—Four deaths have resulted from the collision of the Pennsylvania limited with a freight train in the yards of the Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad at Wellsville, Ohio, yesterday. The passengers on the limited were badly frightened, none, however, were seriously injured. No authentic story of the wreck has yet been received at the Fort Wayne general offices in this city.

From the meager details received by Superintendent Starr, the dense fog prevailing is considered responsible for the accident. The crash occurred at the west end of the Wellsville yard. The f[illegible]ht train was crossing the track, alm[illegible] at right angles with the approaching tr[illegible]. The crew of the freight train saw their danger in time to jump.

The employes of the freight train claim that the danger signals were set to hold the limited without the block until their train had pulled out of the way. The supposition is that Engineer Carruthers, who was an old and faithful employe, failed to see the signal lights on account of the fog. A wrecking train quickly cleared the tracks.

Senator Gibson Taken Sick.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Senator Gibson of Maryland was taken suddenly ill in the senate with another attack of heart trouble, the result, perhaps, of the test of physical endurance. He was sitting at his desk when he became suddenly faint. Dr. Strickland and other physicians were hastily summoned. Mr. Gibson is better.

The Reward For Morrill.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 18.—Charles A. Bartlett, the receiver of the People's Fire Insurance company, has issued a card personally guaranteeing the payment of the reward of $1000 offered for the arrest of Charles F. Morrill, the late treasurer, by the stockholders, in regard to the legality of which there was some question.

QUINCY CONGRESS.

support of his resolve, believed the election of senators by the people, would bring them nearer the people, and to shorten the term from six to three years would permit the people to correct abuses and provide truer representation were as State was changeable in politics. Senator would then be more subservient to the people.

Congressman Litchfield of Nevada reviewed the difficulties at the formation of the constitution. The Senate was a desirable body and usually efficient, and the amendment seemed unnecessary.

Congressman Pollard of Tennessee did not think the amendment would prevent filibustering as it existed today. The Senate was an important body. It was just as well as if it was not directly responsible to the people. It should be conservative. Some closure rule in the Senate would be better. The constitutional amendment was not desirable.

Congressman Suckling of Oregon, opposed the amendment. There was a little entanglement there now but it would soon be over. Senate was generally a good balance wheel. There should be some difference in manner of electing Senators and Representatives.

Congressman Bailey of Illinois, spoke of corruption in politics. The use of money to secure elections should be restricted, so that capable representatives rather than monied men would be secured.

Congressmen Adams of North Carolina, believed the election of Senators by the Legislature was as clean a way as could be devised.

Congressman King of New York opposed the amendment, as it would not prevent filibustering.

Congressman Burke of Massachusetts was also of the opinion that it would not prevent filibustering.

Congressman Elliot of Delaware did not think amendment would be effective. We need stability, which is best secured by long terms. The uncertainty on finance and tariff caused the trouble.

Congressman Nowland, in closing, did not think the Senate a failure, but that it had degenerated. He maintained a shorter term and change in the method of election would be an improvement.

The bill was lost.

At 10.05 the Congress adjourned to meet Oct. 31.

WEYMOUTH.

Officer Fitzgerald arrested Frederick P. Cronin, aged 19 years, Tuesday night, on a charge of incendiarism. Cronin, who is the son of William Cronin, a well-known Weymouth grocer, visited the store of Phillips & Bacon about 5.30 in the afternoon and requested the clerk to fill a large beer bottle with kerosene oil. He had no money and the clerk refused to give him the oil. He then went to the store of Frank H. Pray, where he induced the clerk to give him the oil, as he said it was wanted for John Hayes. Cronin then went to the store of C. T. Bailey, where he purchased a bunch of matches.

About 6.15 an alarm of fire was rung in from box 32 for a fire on Washington street in an old barn on the premises of the heirs of Albert Vinton. The alarm was immediately followed by another from box 36 for a fire in the stable on the premises of the late Susan H. Stetson, occupied by Michael Kelley.

The department quickly responded and extinguished the fires before much damage had been done.

Near the Stetson stable Officers Fitzgerald found the beer bottle which still contained a small quantity of the oil. Matches partially burned were also found by the officer near the Stetson barn and the Vinton place.

The two buildings are located about a quarter of a mile apart, the Vinton fire being started first, the incendiary going from there to the Stetson premises.

Cronin is a fellow of dissolute habits and loafing about the village for the past few nights.

The stories he tells the officers about his movements denies that he procured any kerosene oil at Pray's.

BESIDE THE BAY OF MONTEREY.

Beside the bay of Monterey,
When morn is on the mountains,
What joy to hear and know not fear,
The cry of seaborn fountains!

Across the bay of Monterey
The sea fog, thinly drifting,
The land reveals or shore conceals,
Soft scenes, like magic, shifting.

Beside the bay of Monterey
How sweet to walk at even,
When softened dyes from sunset skies
Steal up the sapphire heaven!

Along the reach of rocky beach
Oh, joy it is to follow,
Where blooms the sea anemone
In every waveworn hollow.

On giant rock that fronts the shock
The spray wet grasses glisten.
Where breaks the wave on cliff and cave
The flowers bend and listen.

I count the years by all my tears
And all life's stormy weather,
Since by the bay of Monterey
We wandered, love, together.

I walk along the changing shore,
Oh, sad and strange it seems!
And if you hear the billows roar,
You hear them but in dreams.
For you have slept now many a day
Upon the shore of Monterey.
—Sarah L. Stillwell in Overland Monthly.

Frogs Eat Wasps.

Some time ago I discovered accidentally that frogs are voracious eaters of wasps. I have in my garden a tank for watering, with an island of rockwork, which is a favorite haunt of the frogs. The wasps just now are carrying on a raid against my fruit, and when I wish to gratify at once my revenge and my frogs I catch a marauder between a post card and an inverted wine glass, carry him off to the tank, wet his wings to prevent his flying, and set him on the rockwork before the frogs.

After a moment's pause a frog advances, and in an instant the wasp has disappeared, drawn into the frog's mouth by a single dart of his long tongue. Occasionally the wasp reappears, wholly or partially, having made it unpleasant for the frog, but he is almost always swallowed in the end. Usually convulsive movements may be noticed in the frog's throat and body, as though the process of deglutition were not quite easy, but that they like the diet is evident from the fact that a single smallish frog has been known to take three wasps, one after another.

Indeed it is remarkable what very small frogs, quite infants, will swallow a wasp with avidity. This afternoon a tiny frog swallowed a full grown wasp, when a big relative went for him quite savagely, like a big schoolboy thrashing a small one for presuming to be helped before him.—R. E. Bartlett in London Spectator.

The World's Parliaments.

The British parliament compares favorably in size with those of other nations. With 670 members in the house of commons and over 553 in the upper house, it is far and away the largest in the world. France comes nearest with 584 in the chamber of deputies and 300 in the senate. Spain comes next with 431 in congress and 361 in the cortes. Then comes the Austrian reichsrath with 353 and 245 in the lower and upper houses respectively, followed by Germany with 327 in its reichstag and 58 in its bundesrath. The United States has 356 representatives in congress and 88 senators.—London Tit-Bits.

Raphael.

Raphael experienced temptations to suicide. He himself says: "I tied the fisherman's cords which I found in the boat eight times around her body and mine, tightly as in a winding sheet. I raised her in my arms, which I had kept free in order to precipitate her with me into the waves. * * * At the moment I was to leap to be swallowed forever with her, I felt her pallid head turn upon my shoulder like a dead weight and the body sink down upon my knees."—New York Times.

The Truth Out.

Clara—There! I knew it. He has proposed this evening and she has accepted.

Dora—They are acting like other people. Merely polite, that's all.

"It's on hind side before."

"Yes. A man can't kiss a girl under one of those peaks."—New York Weekly.

Women's Patents.

Among the patents recently taken out by women are ones for a new folding bath, folding dish, cup and glass holders for use on shipboard, improvements in artificial eyes, new method of sounding whistles and the like in combination with bellows, and a regulator for slow combustion fireplaces.

The greatest naval review of modern times was by Queen Victoria in 1854, at the beginning of the Crimean war. The fleet extended in an unbroken line for five miles and comprised 300 men-of-war, with twice that number of store and supply ships. The fleet was manned by 40,000 seamen.

It has been computed that in a single cubic foot of the ether which fills all space there are locked up 10,000 foot tons of energy which has hitherto escaped notice. To unlock this boundless store and subdue it to the service of man is a task that awaits the electrician of the future.

It is an old belief of native Hawaiians that the spirits of their warrior chiefs inhabit after death the bodies of their favorite horses. There is a fine white stallion in Honolulu in which, it is popularly believed, lives the spirit of Boki, who led a rebellion in Tahiti years ago.

A vine at Hampton Court, which was planted in 1768, is believed to be the largest in the world. Its branches extend over a space of 2,300 feet. It usually bears upward of 2,000 bunches of grapes annually.

The stock of paid notes for five years in the Bank of England is about 77,745,000 in number, and they fill 13,400 boxes, which, if placed side by side, would reach 2½ miles.

We look, we listen with our souls and pray
To learn if such there be.

Not sing of love? Then we must close our eyes
And ears to every sweetest sight and sound;
For love hath many witnesses that rise,
E'en from the very ground.

Upon the apple's cheek the blushes glow,
Brought thither by the kiss of wind and sun,
The sea calls to the little streams, and lo!
They answer every one.

With sweetest music from the boughs above,
The happy mated birds the whole day long
Give me a glad assurance that 'tis love
That fills the world with song.

Not sing of love, when over all below
It reigns from morn till night, from night till morn?
Atom loved atom ages gone, and so
The worlds were born.

Not sing of that strange power that thrills the heart
To wildest rapture, makes it strong and glad?
That sometimes in a life's all too heavy part
Keeps men from going mad.

You speak in vain. No power 'gainst this can move,
As long as earth by mortal feet is trod,
And this is truest truth—who sings of love
Will sing of God.

And never a song, however great or true,
So well the poet's heritage can prove,
As the heart's simple song, so old, so new,
The song of love.

Fair Said to Be Insane.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—Charles L. Fair, the surviving son of ex-Senator James C. Fair, was arrested at Port Costa, Cal., while on his way east to spend his honeymoon, he having been married clandestinely a few days ago to a woman of notoriety. He was arrested on a charge of insanity.

Appropriate.

One day while his apparatus for deep sea soundings, by means of steel pianoforte wire, was being constructed, Lord Kelvin entered Mr. White's shop in Glasgow along with the great Dr. Joule, celebrated for his determination of the mechanical equivalent of heat. Joule's attention was called to a bundle of the pianoforte wire lying in the shop, and Thomson explained that he intended it for "sounding purposes." "What note?" innocently inquired Joule and was promptly answered, "The deep C."—Argonaut.

Riotous Strikers.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—A mob of striking coal miners at St. Helen's attacked a party of non-union miners. The non-unionists were beaten severely. The police charged the rioters, but the miners drove them into the colliery offices. Many policemen were injured.

Boat and Crew Lost.

BUFFALO, Oct. 18.—The schooner F. C. Leighton, with a crew of seven men, is reported to have gone down near Gravelly Bay with all on board some time during Saturday night's storm. The boat left Toledo for Buffalo last Wednesday.

Victims Mostly Colored.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Oct. 18.—There were 31 new cases of yellow fever yesterday, seven white and 24 colored. There was one death.

A CASE OF MURDER.

Mrs. Carey Probably Killed by Her Husband.

EVIDENCE NOT POSITIVE

But Deemed Sufficient to Cause His Arrest.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 18.—Mrs. Mary Carey, aged 70 years, was murdered in her own house at Southbridge last Thursday, but the fact did not become known until yesterday—and even now this announcement will be news to many people in that town. She had been separated from her husband for some time, and lived in a little 1 1-2 story house on Morris street, where she kept house for her three sons. Her husband, a dissolute laborer, about 65 years of age, lived in another part of the town.

Last Thursday morning Mrs. Carey's married daughter called to see her mother, and found her lying on the floor in the pantry unconscious. Supposing the old lady was in a faint she lifted her from the floor, placed her in bed and sent for Dr. Edwards. When he arrived he found his patient in a very critical condition.

She had a bruise upon her forehead, where she struck the floor in falling, and another over the left ear. She was also bleeding from the ear. This is not an uncommon symptom accompanying cerebral hemorrhage caused by apoplexy, and the physician so diagnosed the case.

Everything was done for the suffering woman that could be done, but she remained unconscious, and died at 9 o'clock Saturday evening, not having spoken from the time she was found on the pantry floor.

Deputy Sheriff Acts.

Deputy Sheriff Franklin Jacobs, whose attention was drawn to the case, suspected foul play, and, the local medical examiner being away from home, sent for Medical Examiner Keefe. Dr. Keefe received the telephone summons Monday afternoon and went to Southbridge yesterday.

He found the body in the coffin ready for burial and ordered it removed to an undertaker's rooms, where, assisted by Drs. Edwards and Creedon, he performed an autopsy. Its results verified the diagnosis of the attending physician that death was caused by cerebral hemorrhage, but it also developed the fact that this hemorrhage was caused not by apoplexy but by a bullet which entered the woman's left ear and lodged in her brain.

Husband a Drunkard.

The bullet was found and is now in possession of Dr. Keefe, as is the pistol from which it was evidently fired, a little six-chamber 22-caliber revolver of the Defense pattern. This pistol, with one chamber unloaded, was taken from Michael Carey, husband of the murdered woman, by Deputy Sheriff Jacobs last Friday, when the former was arrested on a charge of being a common drunkard. Carey was found guilty Saturday and sentenced to the state farm at Bridgewater.

The only evidence against the old man, so far as now appears, is the possession of the revolver, into whose empty chamber the bullet found in the woman's brain fits perfectly; the fact that he was seen drunk about his wife's house on the morning the murder was committed, and the further fact that he was on bad terms with his wife and had frequently threatened her life.

The woman was alone in the house with her murderer when the desperate deed was committed, and no one has yet been found who heard the fatal shot. The evidence against the husband is thus purely circumstantial, but it justifies his arrest, and that has doubtless already been accomplished. Deputy Sheriff Jacobs came to this city yesterday, and, after a conference with District Attorney Gaskill, procured a warrant and started for Bridgewater.

Getting Rid of Highbinders.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—Hundreds of highbinders have been pouring into Chinatown lately with the intention of remaining there for the winter. Sixty-eight were arrested, charged with vagrancy. Parties have been co-operating with the police to have them arrested for the purpose of identifying them, with a view to their deportation, and warrants will be served upon them to that end.

The Railway Trainmen.

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—A rousing reception was tendered the delegates attending the biennial convention of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in Faneuil hall last night. They were welcomed to the state and city by Governor Russell and Acting Mayor Lee. Enthusiasm reigned, and all of the speakers, from the governor down, were warmly greeted with hearty applause and cheers.

Looking For Their Money.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Oct. 18.—The Citizens' Savings bank of St. Johnsbury, Lyndonville National bank and Lyndonville Savings bank have petitioned Charles T. Walter into insolvency. Eleven thousand dollars of Walter's paper has forged indorsements, and Walter is now under arrest for these forgeries, but out on bail.

Dates Set For Two Trials.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 18.—The case of Louis LaFrenies, charged with having beaten his wife to death, came up in the superior court yesterday and was assigned for trial at the next term. The case of Giacomo Rossi, the Italian who murdered Thomas Cochran July 3, 1892, came up also, and was assigned for trial next week.

Instantly Killed.

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Mrs. James Kiley was instantly killed in a carriage accident at Waverly. She was riding with Edward Brown, and while left alone for a moment the horse started and overturned the carriage. Mrs. Kiley was picked up dead. There was not a bruise on her body nor were there any bones broken.

Dunraven Leaves For England.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Lord Dunraven and his family sailed today for England. Last night the earl was entertained by a dinner given by the New York Yacht club. Lord Dunraven and his family went aboard the Majestic at 9 o'clock this morning.

Indicted For Fraud.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 18.—Webster Flanagan, customs collector of this port, has been indicted by the United States grand jury. The charge against him is conspiracy to defraud the government by passing a quantity of sheep over the border free of duty.

FRANCE AND RUSSIA

Continue to Hobnob While Germany Looks on In Rage.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—At the president's dinner last night in honor of the visiting Russians, 104 covers were laid. After the dinner Mme. Carnot with Admiral Avelan opened the ball. The whole diplomatic corps had been invited. The Paris journalists entertained the visiting Russian correspondents at dinner.

When Admiral Avelan and his staff appeared on the balconies to answer the cheers of the crowd, the admiral, after bowing three times, put the French national standard to his lips and kissed it.

The crowd in the streets is beyond anything seen in recent years. The evening newspapers are very Chauvinistic. They comment upon the coming of the Russians as if the two nations were already together in the field and a war were half won. Several quote from foreign newspapers to show that the fetes are provoking the fury of German statesmen and editors.

BELCHERTOWN EXCITED

Over a Domestic Row Which Promises to Be Ventilated In Court.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. Oct. 18.—The town of Belchertown is agitated over a domestic trouble which will doubtless soon be tested in the courts. Clinton, son of Selectman Nelson Randall, accuses his wife of having deceived him by foisting a Brooklyn foundling upon him as his own child. Mrs. Randall denies the charge, and documentary evidence is held by each party.

Unfortunately, the birth of Mrs. Randall's child is not recorded in Brooklyn, where it is alleged to have been born on May 1, 1891. Mr. Randall is accused of having deserted his wife through the influence of his father.

Suit is threatened by the husband for divorce, and by the wife against Nelson Randall for conspiracy to alienate the affections of his son from the wife. Mr. Randall believes his wife is deranged, and she says the same of him.

Captain Head's Experience.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Captain William E. Head, a wealthy Irish land owner, county Tipperary, Ireland, bearing the position of police magistrate, stopped at the Harrison street police station last night. Since his arrival he has been duped right and left in America, and finds himself penniless. Captain Head arrived in Boston Sept. 21. He carried letters of introduction to the British ambassador in Washington, and he was soon in the capital city. He registered at the national hotel there and it was here he met his first introduction to American confidence men, who stole his pocketbook containing £50, his watch and chain and other valuables.

Sued For Divorce.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 18.—Patrick Willis, for many years a prominent Democratic politician in this city, but now employed in New York, has been sued for absolute divorce and alimony by his wife, who resides here. Property in this city has been attached to the amount of $10,000. The complainant alleges that Willis lived for several years with a woman in New York as his wife. Willis is reputed to be well off financially.

Company Must Move.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 18.—Judge Hall has filed his decision in the case of William H. Clay et al against the Waterbury Wheel and Spoke company. The plaintiffs claim that the steam from the factory and the noise was a nuisance. Judge Hall found the allegations true, and the company can no longer carry on their business at that location.

Robbed the Government.

MONTREAL, Oct. 18.—The case of Boyd, Ryne & Campbell, wholesale stationers, who are charged with defrauding the customs, is said to be one of the worst ever brought to the notice of the customs department. False invoicing, undervaluation and smuggling are all charged, and this, it is said, has been going on for several years.

Caprivi Displeased.

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—Chancellor Von Caprivi has decided to stop the attempt made by several journals to make trouble between him and Count Botho Fulenburg, Prussian minister resident. Caprivi's friends says that reports of their mutual jealousies are malicious lies.

Spanish Steamer Overdue.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Fears are felt for the safety of the Spanish steamer Ciudad Condal, which sailed for this port from Havana on Oct. 10, and was due here on Saturday. She carries a crew of 72 men.

Cattle Thief Summarily Dealt With.

INDEPENDENCE, Kan., Oct. 18.—William Jones, wanted for stealing cattle from the Cherokee strip, opened fire on a posse, who attempted to arrest him. The officers returned the fire, instantly killing Jones.

Cherokee Bonds Sold.

FORT GIBSON, I. T., Oct. 18.—The $600,000 of Cherokee Strip bonds are sold. The Cherokee delegation signed the agreement with representatives of an English syndicate.

Prices for northern and eastern beef cattle pr lb, dressed weight—Choice, 5½@6¾c; first quality, 5@5½c; second quality, 4½@4¾c; poorest grades of coarse oxen, cows, bulls, stags, etc, 1½@3c pr lb.

Hides, tallow, etc—Hides, 4½@5c pr lb; tallow, 3@4c pr lb; calfskins, 75c each; lambskins, 50c each; sheared skins, 25c each; branded hides, 3c pr lb.

Northern and eastern beef cattle—Trade was dull and only a few cattle were sold during the market hours. These were taken by home and country slaughterers for immediate consumption at from 3c to 4c pr lb.

Milch cows and springers—The demand was dull. The general quality of the offerings was good. Buyers claim that cows were costing a little higher than last week, while drovers said that there was no change. The latter expect better trade than they have had for several weeks.

Veal calves—There was a little lighter supply than last week. The quality of the calves was about the same and prices showed no change from those quoted one week ago. A clearance was effected.

Sheep and lambs—The western arrivals were shipped direct to a slaughter house. Among the arrivals were a few bunches of good lambs which sold at 4¼c pr lb. Sheep are quoted a trifle easier.

Western beef cattle—Western cattle are quoted as easing higher, and there is but little demand for the stock at this market.

The smallest specimen of horseflesh ever born in New York state, is owned by C. B. Bassett. It was born about four weeks ago at the Spring Hill horse farm near Walton, which is owned by Mr. Bassett. The animal weighs 33 pounds and is only two feet in hight. Huckleberry Finn is the sire, and the dam is Peggy. Both are good-sized animals. The youngster takes its nutrition in the usual way, and though prematurely born, seems to be healthy and is well formed. Mr. Bassett has named his tiny colt Hard Times.

CAPITAL AUTOCRATS.

OFFICIALS IN WASHINGTON WHOSE ONLY LAW IS THEIR WILL.

A Striking Example Is the First Comptroller of the Currency, Whose Decisions Cannot Even Be Vetoed by the President, Who Has the Power of Removal.

Among the most remarkable features of this government by the people is the extraordinary authority vested in certain subordinate officials at Washington. For instance, no man in the United States wields such power in money matters as the first comptroller of the currency. He is entirely independent of the secretary of the treasury, and even the president has no means of coercing him, as the following story shows:

When Grant was in the White House, First Comptroller Taylor refused to countersign a warrant for the payment of a big claim out of the funds of the treasury. The president summoned him and said:

"You must sign."

"I will not, Mr. President," replied the recalcitrant official.

"Then I will compel you to do so," said General Grant.

"You have not the power," rejoined the comptroller coolly and respectfully.

"We will see about that," said the president. "I will consult the attorney general."

The attorney general, on being consulted, stated that the comptroller was right—he could not be forced to countersign the warrant. Next day the president summoned Mr. Taylor and said:

"I find that I cannot compel you to countersign the warrant. However, I can get another first comptroller."

"Very well, Mr. President," replied the officer. "You can have my resignation, but not my signature."

In fact, the only way in which the president can override a decision of this powerful official is by dismissing him and appointing another man. All of the accounts of the government, except those which relate to customs and the post-office department, are settled by warrants countersigned by the first comptroller. Without his signature the payments cannot be made.

There are two autocrats in the post-office department. One of them is the assistant attorney general. It is his function to decide whether matter offered for mailing is immoral or not. He acts as censor for the people. Whenever a postmaster in any city is doubtful regarding the morality of a publication that is sought to be mailed, he forwards a copy of the suspected work to the third assistant postmaster general, by whom it is referred to the assistant attorney general.

Very likely the latter may be too busy to investigate the subject personally, in which case he turns it over to one of his clerks, who peruses it and marks any passage which he considers indecent. Thus the law lord has simply to glance over the selected tidbits of impropriety and pass on them. The assistant attorney general also determines what mail matter shall be considered fraudulent and be excluded as such from the post.

The third assistant postmaster general is himself an autocrat. He has authority to exercise his own discretion in depriving periodical publications of the advantage of second class postal rates. Publications intended for advertising purposes primarily are not allowed those rates. On account of the "Kreutzer Sonata" a whole series of books, of which it was one, was shut out of the mails.

Publishers commonly get out volumes in series, because in this shape they go second class as periodical publications so long as they are issued at least four times a year. The decision against that work did not actually exclude it from the post, because it could be and was sent at first class rates, sealed, so that nobody could lawfully open the package and find out what was inside.

The autocrat of the department of agriculture is the chief of the bureau of animal industry. He has authority to kill any animal he may choose anywhere in the United States. When one of his inspectors reports that such and such cattle are afflicted with an infectious disease, he orders them purchased and slaughtered. The value of the beasts is judged by two appraisers, one chosen by the owner and the other by the bureau. If they cannot agree, they appoint a third person to decide. In case a man refused to have his live stock thus disposed of, the police and United States marshals would be summoned.

The payment adjudicated is made by check. The chief of the bureau's authority in such matters is absolute over the territories and District of Columbia. For operations in any state he must have the consent of the governor, but the governor's consent cannot be withheld because he is in a position to coerce the state. If he chooses, he can quarantine the state, preventing all animals from going into or coming out for an indefinite period.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Wire as a Strengthener.

The method of strengthening copper steam pipes by means of coiled metal wire has been quite generally adopted in the Italian navy. The practice is to serve the tubes with one or two layers of wire wound under tension. The method is not considered applicable to other than straight tubes. The wire is of sufficient strength to carry the full load of steam, and the tension used in winding is about 1½ tons per square inch. The wire is put on in two or three independent spirals, and the ends of each are independently fastened to the flanges.—Safety Valve.

And Dick Said Nothing.

Mrs. Newed—Dick, dear, I'm glad you don't forget to execute any order I give you. The other day I told you to order some kindling wood, and you must have thought of it constantly, poor boy, for that night you kept saying in your sleep, "Give me a dollar's worth of chips!"—Music and Drama.

THE STUDY OF A WORD.

The Resources and Variety of Information It Is Likely to Furnish.

The great dictionaries are a library in themselves and furnish an exhaustless source of information. A study of a single word like cross in the Century Dictionary shows the resources and variety of information that a familiar word may furnish. There are 15½ columns devoted to this word and its combinations. There are 24 pictorial illustrations. All in all there are 257 different words made out of cross which have to be defined. In the great Oxford Dictionary there are 11 pages given to this word, or twice as much as in the Century. In the Century the study is highly fascinating. There are 14 radically different sets of definitions to the word itself.

The fundamental idea is, of course, the cross, the crux for crucifying, but it has come to have a variety of meaning as a monument, a crucifix, the atonement, the Christian religion itself, any suffering for Christ's sake, anything that thwarts or vexes, a mixing of breeds in animal breeding, a term used in changing plants, a joint in a pipe, the accidental contact of two electric wires, a sportsman phrase for a contest dishonestly decided.

Then cross becomes an adjective, with several meanings, as falling, athwart, passing from one of two positions, perverse, etc., to the other, being opposed, being peevish or fretful, ill tempered, thoroughly contrary, in the breeder's vocabulary. Then it becomes an adverb, meaning transversely or adversely. Then it becomes a verb, with all kinds of significance, from the running of a line to cross a thing, to cancel by crossing, to cross one's self in devotion, passing from side to side of a man, to go over a body of water, to obstruct, to cause to interfere, to cross plants, to hoist from the deck to its place on the mast any of the lighter yards.

Then there is the preposition, in riding cross-country or walking cross-lots. All this with the simple word itself, which goes cavorting from the most sacred thought in the world to the breeder's and the sportsman's language of the coop and ranch.

After this the mysteries begin. There are crosses—anserated, arellane, bezanty, bretesse, catoosed, commisse, crenele, estoile, fitche, fleury, gringole, lambeaux, moline, nowyed, nyle, quatrefoil, saltier, sarele, resarceled. Then there are the innumerable compounds of cross from cross-armed, cross-bated, cross-biter, cross-bar and cross-bun, through cross-flucan, cross-ruff, cross-sower and cross-spale to cross-wort.

Then there are a cross-grained set of crosses, such as crossarchinal, cross archus, crossette, crossopinal, crossop terygia, crossopterygian, crossopterygidae, crossopterygii, crossopterygia, crossopterygium, crossopus, crossorhined and crossorhininae.

It is incomprehensible that a word so simple should have gone rollicking all over the earth, into the bowels of the earth, into tho depths of the sea, among the fowls of the air, the horse upon the turf, to card table, to the ships upon the sea, to the fishes in their glee, to the sharks in their ferocity, to the architect and plumber, to the farmer in his harrowing, to the railroad in its building, to the engine in its working, to the seamstress in her labors, to the spider in his webbing, to the spinner at his loom, to the lawyers in their pleading, to a shrew in her wrangling, to the gunner in the fort, to the miner at his lode, to the Turk as he sits, to the sword of the gladiator, to the expert with his telescope, to the woman in her gazing and in her dressing, to the athletes in their wrestling and to the swindler at his arts.—A. E. Winship in Journal of Education.

Queer Phenomena of Falling Bodies.

I am unable to say who first noticed the peculiar caprices of a stone or other heavy body dropped from the top of a high tower, but it is nevertheless a curious fact that such objects invariably fall slightly to the east of the perpendicular line. Persons of inquiring turn of mind who ask why this is as it is may find an answer in the following: All falling bodies partake of the earth's eastward motion to a greater or lesser extent. Therefore during the time occupied by a stone in falling from the top of a high tower or other eminence the earth's rotary motion has carried it an appreciable distance to the east. The initial impetus of the stone has carried it to the eastward also, therefore it strikes the earth to the east of the perpendicular, varying in degree according to the height from which it has fallen.

A curious article on this subject may be found in the Leipsic Zeitung of May 9, 1889, page 3. The author of the article, who has given it the title of "The Nonperpendicularity of High Towers," claims that the tower on St. Peter's cathedral at Rome leans 18 inches to the east.—St. Louis Republic.

A Singular Coincidence.

The chaplain of an American jail vouches for the following. A little boy was taken by his parents to visit the prison, and on passing one of the cells in which a notorious criminal had been incarcerated his father playfully pushed him in and closed the door upon him. The child, overcome by some vague terror, screamed aloud and could scarcely be comforted by his mother's caresses.

Years passed. The lad half thoughtlessly fell into crime and was only recalled to his better nature on finding himself, having been sentenced to a term of imprisonment, in the identical cell into which he had been momentarily thrust as a child.

Spent Only One.

Little Dot—Mamma gave me two quarters to buy candy, but I only spent one of them.

Father—That's something like. Now I'll give you another quarter to put with the other.

Little Dot—Thank you, but I can't put it with the other till I find it. It dropped out of my pocket on the way to the candy store.—Good News.

LUCY STONE DEAD.

Noble Woman Passes Away With a Happy Smile.

CHAMPION OF OPPRESSED.

An Interesting Outline of an Eventful Life.

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—Mrs. Lucy Stone died at 10:45 last night at her home, Boutwell avenue, Dorchester. Mrs. Stone during all of last evening was rational and talked in soft tones to her husband and daughter. Her conversation was hopeful and bright in nature. She discussed her affairs and made arrangements for the carrying out of the work which has absorbed all of the energies and efforts of her long, noble life.

LUCY STONE.

At 6 o'clock last evening she partook of a little liquid food, that appeared for a time to imbue her with a revival of spirits. Her pale countenance lighted up with a faint tinge of color. For three hours she maintained her part in conversation. At 9 o'clock she grew a little more restless and gave signs of slight pain. These, however, were superseded an hour later by a calm of manner and talk that showed quite conclusively to the attendants at her bedside that the last moments were close by. At 10:30 a supernatural influence stole into the atmosphere of the death chamber, and the husband and daughter spoke encouragingly to the dying woman. The life, although ebbing fast from its mortal boundaries, still flashed back substantial evidence of the noble and determined characteristics that made it famous to the world.

At 10:40 life still remained. A minute later Mrs. Stone slowly unclosed her eyes and smiled one of those smiles that have fascinated thousands. At 10:45 Mrs. Stone again smiled, murmured an inarticulate sound and died. Thus ended the career of world-famed Mrs. Lucy Stone.

Sketch of Her Career.

Mrs. Lucy Stone (Blackwell) was born a few miles from West Brookfield, Mass., Aug. 13, 1818. She was the second youngest in a family of nine children, and her father was a prosperous farmer. That she came from a family noted for its fighting blood is evidenced by the fact that her great-grandfather was killed in the French and Indian war, and her grandfather served in the war of the revolution and was afterward captain of the 400 men in Shay's rebellion.

Mrs. Stone's father ruled his family with a strong hand. It is perhaps due to this fact that Mrs. Stone became the great champion of woman's rights that she afterwards did. Under her father's restraining influence little Lucy grew up a fearless, hardy child—strong, truthful, resolute, a good student in school, a hard worker in her home and on the farm, and filled with a secret rebellion against the way in which she saw woman treated all around her.

Reading the Bible while yet young she came across the passage which reads, "Thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee." It had never before occurred to her that subjection of woman was divinely ordained, and she went to her mother almost speechless with distress. Her query was pitiful and showed a character that afterward was to make the world stir. She asked her mother, "Is there no way to put an end to me?"

Her mother attempted to console her and persuade her that it was woman's duty to submit, but of that Lucy refused to be convinced. Later she wished to learn Hebrew and Greek, that she might be enabled to read the Bible in the original, and satisfy herself as to the correctness of the translation of these texts.

Her Perseverance.

She was obliged to earn her own way through college, and nobly she set about accomplishing the plan that was nearest and dearest her heart. She had attained the age of 25 before she had procured the means to take her to the goal of her aspirations and hopes, Oberlin college. This was the only college at the time that admitted women. She earned her way through college by teaching during the vacations in the drepartments and by doing housework at 3 cents an hour. In 1847 she graduated with great honor.

She carried out her plan of studying Greek and Hebrew, and has ever since believed that when passages in the Bible were properly translated they were on the side of equal rights for women. In the same year of her graduation at Oberlin she delivered her first lecture on women's rights in her brother's church at Gardner, Mass. In the following year, 1848, she became lecturer for the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery society, and traveled extensively in New England, the west and in Canada.

While lecturing in behalf of anti-slavery interests, she saw Power's statue of the Greek Slave, exhibited in Boston. The sight so moved her that her next lecture was wholly confined to the discussion of woman's rights. At the conclusion of the lecture Rev. Samuel May, agent for the Anti-slavery society, in whose behalf Mrs. Stone was lecturing, said to her that the lecture would never do on an anti-slavery platform. Mrs. Stone replied, "I know it, but I was a woman before I was an abolitionist, and I must speak for the women."

Beset With Difficulties.

During her lecturing tour she was often obliged to undergo severe trials in various ways, at one period being obliged to put up at a boarding house on Hanover street, and at another, while lecturing on Cape Cod, she was nearly mobbed. The foremost of her assailants leaped upon the stage with club in hand. A companion of Mrs. Stone's advised her to retire, but she exclaimed that she preferred to trust her safety to her foremost intended assailant. The latter heard the expression, and, overcome by her soft voice and trusting manner, swore that he would protect her, and seizing her he tucked her beneath his arm and fought his way through the crowd. He then placed her upon a stump, mounted guard over her, and she lectured to the extent of her own sweet will.

In 1855 she married Henry B. Blackwell, a young merchant of Cincinnati and an abolitionist, retaining by his consent and full approval her maiden name. A few years ago, while living in New Jersey, her property was seized for taxes, and she published a protest against "taxation without representation."

In 1869 Mrs. Stone, with William Lloyd Garrison, George William Curtis, Julia Ward Howe and Mrs. Livermore, organized the American Woman's Suffrage association. In the following year she became co-editor of The Woman's Journal, published in Boston. Until recently she has been editor-in-chief, with her husband and daughter as associates.

She again lectured in the west in behalf of the woman's suffrage amendments in 1867 to 1882. She has held various offices in the national, state and local woman's suffrage associations.

"Lucy Stone," says Mrs. Stanton, "first really stirred the nation's heart on the subject of woman's wrongs."

BECAME DISCOURAGED.

W. C. Rogers Lost His Sweetheart and Went to the Bad.

AUGUSTA, Me., Oct. 19.—W. C. Rogers of Brooklyn, who was brought from Bridgeport, Conn., by City Marshal Crawford, was arraigned before Recorder Whitehouse and bound over to the December term under $1000 bonds for forging a check for $50 on the Tradesman's bank of New York, which he got cashed last winter at the Coney House in this city. He pleaded guilty. The officers say he has passed forged checks to the amount of $20,000, running from $15 to $50 each, and swindled his uncle out of $3000.

He says he worked at Orleans, on Cape Cod, Mass. The girl he was engaged to died. He lost his position, and, becoming discouraged, went to the bad last January. He has been in every part of the Union. Sixty-three letters complaining of his acts have been received by the authorities.

MORE WRECKS.

Unknown Steamer and Schooner Riverside Probably Lost.

DETROIT, Oct. 19.—Another steamer probably went down in the storm on Lake Erie Saturday or Sunday. Captain Thomas Harbottle, master of the steamer Havana, says that he passed two spars sticking out of the water. They were about 30 miles from Fairport. Captain Harbottle expresses the belief that they were the spars of a foundered steamer. They were in the course traversed by boats between Detroit and Cleveland, and 100 miles from where any of the wrecks occurred. The schooner Riverside left Kelly's island for Tonawanda, N. Y., last Friday, with a cargo of stone. Since then nothing has been heard of her, and her owners have grave doubts as to her safety.

Centennial Anniversary of a Church.

DANVERSPORT, Mass., Oct. 19.—The First Baptist church celebrated its 100th anniversary yesterday. The society was formed in 1781 and was organized in 1793. The exercises included historical addresses and the singing of an original hymn written by Mrs. Annie B. Holbrook, wife of the pastor, and addresses by members of the church.

Deserting Peixoto.

BUENOS AYRES, Oct. 19.—News from Brazil is to the effect that the men-of-war which have remained faithful to President Peixoto are about to put to sea to meet the vessels expected from Europe to make a combined attack on the insurgents. The authorities of Desterro have declared in favor of the insurgents.

HOME MISSIONARIES.

Women Workers of New England Hold a Convention at Lowell.

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 19.—The Women's Home Missionary society of New England met at St. Paul's church with Mrs. G. W. Mansfield of Charlestown, president, in the chair. Mrs. D. F. Parker was secretary. The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. George Skene of Cambridge. An address of welcome was delivered by Mrs. Brown, president of the Lowell auxiliary, which was responded to by Mrs. Rich of Cambridge.

A committee on bylaws and resolutions was appointed, consisting of Mrs. Rich of Cambridge and Mrs. Jacobs of Brookline. Mrs. Jefts of Hudson reported for the periodical Woman's Home Missionary. Mrs. Barber, recording secretary, presented her annual report. Mrs. Floyd of Somerville, corresponding secretary, reported that there were at present 66 auxiliaries in the conference and two have been formed the past year. Mrs. Webster of Boston, treasurer, reported the sum of $5119 raised the past year.

Mrs. Carrie Wright of the Springfield district reported 493 members in that district. Mrs. Fair of the north Boston district reported 15 auxiliaries in her district. Mrs. Sanborn of the Lynn district reported 17 auxiliaries. The other reports showed that the society had disbursed $3401 for supplies distributed and $1107 expended for aid to immigrants.

Hot Shot For the Vatican.

BELFAST, Ont., Oct. 19.—Dr. Kane, the Orange grand master, made a rabid anti-Catholic speech at the national Protestant congress in this city yesterday. Rome, he said, demanded that the state establish and endow an ultramontane university in Ireland, but he hoped that he would never see the disgusting spectacle of an English statesman conceding the impudent demands of the hierarchy, whose members had been the patrons and the strength of the leagues of hell that had successfully started up in Ireland in recent years.

Found Dead In a Bathtub.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Three months ago A. P. Wallace arranged with the management of the Philadelphia hotel for quarters for himself and bride for the present week. Tuesday he reached the hotel alone, and yesterday his dead body was found in a bathtub. A letter, dated Oct. 13, at Philadelphia, is from the dead man's father. The letter contains reference to family affairs of an important nature, but no information is afforded about the unfortunate engagement with which the son's death seems intimately connected.

No Tidings of the Missing Money.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—It has been ascertained that the package of money which mysteriously disappeared while in transit from this city to New Orleans was sent by the Bank of Commerce of this city, through the American Express company. The parcel contained $22,000, instead of $50,000, as at first reported. The officials are at a loss to account for the missing money.

Tigers Fight to the Death.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 19.—A ferocious battle took place between the two Bengal tigers in the Roger Williams park menagerie, in which Prince, a noted animal, was killed by Princess, his mate. Prince was the aggressor, and Princess, infuriated by the attack, flew at her mate and tore his throat and head into pieces.

Bridge Span Gave Way.

OTTUMWA, Ia., Oct. 19.—While a train was crossing a bridge near Des Moines the old span gave way and fell to the bottom of the river. Edward Thompson was instantly killed, Mike Murphy, John Fallon and Jim Collins were fatally hurt, while nearly a dozen laboring men living at Eldon were injured.

Wholesale Trading In Slaves.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—A dispatch to The Times from Calcutta says that it is stated that the Amir of Afghanistan is selling as slaves the persons who were captured by his forces during the recent rebellion of the Hazara tribes. Ten thousand persons have been already sold to slave merchants and others.

Held on Charge of Murder.

HARTFORD, Oct. 19.—Judge Barbour has rendered his decision in the McKeown murder case. He found probable cause and held Thomas J. Larkin and Thomas F. Rourke for trial at the December term of the superior court on the charge of murdering James McKeown on the night of Sept. 24.

Made Good the Deficiency.

SALISBURY, N. C., Oct. 19.—Cashier I. H. Faust of the First National bank of Salisbury is a defaulter to the amount of $16,000. Faust acknowledged the shortage and made it good by turning over to the bank all his property, which will cover the amount of the defalcation. He is now penniless.

A Peculiar Swindle.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Jacob Schaffer, a dealer in notions at Williamsburg, is held for examination in the sum of $5000, charged with swindling. It is charged that Schaffer obtained from several parties about $13,000, for which he gave them brass filings, saying the filings were gold dust.

Shoe Manufacturers Reduce Wages.

MILFORD, Mass., Oct. 19.—Colburn & Fuller, shoe manufacturers, and the Milford Shoe company, cut down wages from 10 to 50 per cent in the different grades. Many of the operators refuse to work, as they claim it is impossible for them to live on the prices offered.

A Well-deserved Award.

The Treasury Department at Washington, after receiving bids from the largest and best-known carpet manufacturers and dealers throughout the country, has awarded to the old and trustworthy house of John H. Pray, Sons, & Co. of Boston, the contract for furnishing Brussels carpets for government use throughout the country for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894.

This contract amounts to about 20,000 yards, more or less, and is for Brussels of the firm's own manufacture, having as a guaranty of the quality the firm's name woven on the back of every yard of carpet that is delivered, so that the house cannot fail to be well known in all government buildings and offices throughout the United States wherever the carpets are seen.

Messrs. Pray & Co.'s reputation for selling only standard and reliable goods seems to have been well maintained, as the government standard is a high one, and the tests are most severe.

THE CITY of Fitchburg has just borrowed $10,000 on a sewer loan at four per cent.

HAS IT occurred to the officers of the law who are in search of the rnnaway boys that possibly they have met with foul play or are hidden by unscrupulous persons, who knowing that the boys had so much money, would not hesitate to obtain possession of it by any method. It seems increditable that three boys could have covered up their tracks so effectually as to elude discovery for so long a time. That officer on Peddocks island cannot be too closely questioned. If the boys have food with them they might live secretly for some days in one of the unoccupied cottages at Nantasket or at other harbor resorts. It was probable they intended to stop awhile at Peddocks and they may only have changed their location.

IMPROVED MACHINERY.

The Electric Light and Power Co., Making Additions to Its Plant.

Since the Quincy Electric Light & Power Co. ceased to furnish power for the street railway, workmen have been busily at work at the power station. One of the two generators has been moved into the main building and is now run by a 60-horse power engine and furnishes motive power for ten firms. A 700-light T. H. alternater is also run during the day by the same engine furnishing current for day lighting.

The company now have 2300 incandescent lamps on their circuit and to furnish sufficient power a new 2500 Westinghouse alternater has been put in and will be running Saturday. This alternater has all the latest improvements and is what is known as a composite-wound ring armature and is so constructed that should a coil burn out a new one can be put in in half an hour.

This alternater will be used during the early part of the evening and at 9 or 10 o'clock the 1500 light alternator will start up and run through the night.

Besides this the company also has another 700 light alternater that can be used if necessary so that altogether they have dynamos enough to furnish power for 5400 lights.

The new alternater is located in the new part and is run by a 250-horse power Armington & Sims engine. This is the same engine that ran the two power generators, but since it ceased to be used for that service it has been thoroughly overhauled and a 9-foot fly wheel added, which makes 218 revolutions per minute and drives the armature of the new alternater 1375 revolutions per minute.

This engine will also run a 50-light arc dynamo.

In order to regulate the current generated by these dynamos, it is necessary to have a switch board and one of the latest design and costing in the vicinity of $1000 is now being set up by Harry W. Reed of New York. This switch board is very handsome and the several delicate instruments is of nickle and polished brass mounted on white marble.

It will be some few days yet before everything is in its place and working smoothly, but when it is so, Superintendent Austin intends to extend an invitation to the public to visit the station and inspect a plant second to none.

CAMPAIGN OPENED.

The Democrats Hold the First Rally in This City.

CANDIDATE CARROLL SPEAKS.

Also W. B. Rice, Salem D. Charles and Gamaliel Bradford.

The Democrats opened their campaign in Quincy Wednesday evening at Hancock hall by a rally which was attended by an audience that filled the hall.

Upon the platform besides the speakers of the evening, were William A. Hodges, William B. Rice, John A. Duggan, William F. Powers, James F. Burke, Timothy F. Ford, J. C. Ring, W. G. Sampson, Councilmen Williams, Rooney, Holbrook, Federhen and others.

James F. Burke called the meeting to order and introduced William B. Rice as the presiding officer of the evening. Mr. Rice made a few opening remarks, and then introduced as the first speaker of the evening, James B. Carroll, Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor.

Mr. Carroll was listened to with marked attention and was frequently applauded. The speaker had little to say upon State politics, but confined himself almost wholly to National issues, election of state candidates, and an endorsement of the present administration. He gave causes which lead up to the present financial trouble, and devoted some time in telling and criticising the work done by the Fifty-first Congress, as it was here that the McKinley bill, Sherman silver bill and others found their birth, the chief object of them being to make certain individuals rich. The McKinley bill taxed public property for private purposes. The Sherman bill was passed that the silver States might be held in line.

Mr. Salem D. Charles said the audience would make a mistake if they did not send the three Democratic caudidates to the Legislature. They were very much needed this year. He denied that any measure for the workingmen had ever been introduced in the Legislature by Republicans. The speaker gave his attention principally to national issues.

Gamaliel Bradford of Cambridge was the last speaker of the evening. He devoted his whole time to State issues. If you want to improve on city goverment you must improve on the state laws. Gov. Russell had done more to call attention to these State affairs than any other. A governor is little better than a wax figure, his hands are tied, he can do nothing. He has authority over nobody. This want of power has resulted in a lot of commissions. The speaker of the Legislature makes up the committees at his own discretion. He said the commissions should be abolished, particularly the police commission, and the appointment of state officers given to the governor.

The meeting closed with three cheers for Russell and Carroll.

EXPRESS WAR.

Local Companies vs. the N. Y., N. H. & H. Railroad Company.

A Brockton dispatch to the Journal says: "A trouble of considerable magnitude is promised between the local express companies and the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company. It promises not only to affect the local companies, but some 30 or more other express companies doing work upon this division.

These companies are becoming convinced that an effort is being made to crowd them out. It is openly charged that favoritism is being persistently shown the New York and Boston Despatch Company, which already has offices in many of the cities and towns along the line.

Because of strict rules recently issued by the railroad company, 30 or more "local companies" have taken joint action. They have secured Hon. John D. Long and W. L. Bouve, Esq., as counsel, to present the case to the Railroad Commissioners and endeaver to secure the impartial treatment which they claim is their due. It is said that this hearing will develop some interesting questions regarding the contracts or understanding between the Consolidated road and the New York and Boston Despatch Company. They propose to claim no special privilege, simply equal rights.

A comparison of rates charged the local companies will be one of the by no means least interesting matter brought up, and the present rate upon passenger trains, which was used a comparatively short time ago to double the first class freight rate, will also receive attention.

Thomas F. Smith of Weymouth was fined $5 for drunkenness.

Campaign Notes.

This is the last day for holding caucuses and conventions for nominating candidates. All the nominations in which Quincy voters are directly interested have been made.

Only a few days more in which to get registered if you wish to vote at the State election.

The Democrats of Dorchester, Ward 24 of Boston, have nominated Agustus Nickerson and Q. A. Lathrop for the Legislature.

Registration in Boston for an off year is without a precedent. It will nearly equal that of last year.

MAGNIFICENT MONUMENT.

The Grand Tribute of Indiana to Her Fallen Heroes.

Work is slowly progressing on Indiana's great memorial to the soldiers and sailors of the late war. It stands in the spot in Indianapolis hitherto known as "the circle," and is the loftiest and most magnificent monument in the world. It is dedicated to the sons of Indiana who fell on land and sea in the war of the rebellion.

The monument is square and rises in symmetrical and shapely lines. Its height from the ground to the tip of the torch in the hand of the crowning figure is 284 feet, exceeding any other monument of similar purpose in the world.

Referring to the plans, it is found that the monument consists of a circular terrace on a plot of ground which, with the approaches and prospective fountains, is 192 feet in diameter. The foundation and terrace occupy 110 feet of this space. The terrace, of massive masonry, is 11 feet high, and supports a massive stone balustrade. Within the terrace are apartments for engines, pumps, elevator machinery, and quarters for the custodian. From the centre of the terrace rises the square base and pedestal of the monument proper. The pedestal is 68 feet in diameter and 59 feet high, losing 28 feet in diameter at the top. Thence arises the shaft, the same in shape, to a height of 149 feet, having a diameter dimishing from 22 feet 6 inches to 12 feet 6 inches at the base of the capital. Above this capital, which is ornamented with carved stone eagles six feet high, there arises a laterne or turret of iron beams covered with copper, which is 21 feet high and 8 feet in diameter.

On this rests the bronze crowning figure, 38 feet in height. Miss Indiana stands higher than the highest point reached by the passenger in the circuit of the Ferris wheel at Chicago. The platform of the capital is 220 feet high. It is reached by a winding stairway within the hollow shaft, leaving, however, a chute for the elevator.

The monument is not wholly of stone. The complement, of which but little has yet been finished, is bronze, in the form of astragals and groups.

The interests of the American people demand that the destructive free trade plank of the Chicago platform shall be repudiated, and that the protective system shall be left untouched Every spindle that is idle, every factory that is closed, every man that is out of work, every home that is cheerless, every man who is despondent because of the threat of free trade is a protest, strong and mighty, against the criminal policy that would ruin our industries and reduce the American workingmen to the level of the poor European, who toils unceasingly for a mere pittance, who lives in a hut, and is clothed in rags. Every congressman who votes for free trade or tariff revision in this direction votes to degrade his country and aggrandize Europe. It was the mistake of the people who put these men, who are pledged by their national platform to a fulfilment of this threat, at the head of the government. But their eyes have been opened and they are willing and anxious to atone for their folly. Don't wait until 1896 to commece the work of reparation; commence now by putting the old Bay State under republican rule. Vote for republican nominees and get all your friends to do the same.—Malden News.

THE P. O. ROBBERS

Make a Bungling Job at Holbrook, and Alarm Town.

THEY SECURE $400 HOWEVER.

The Fire Alarm Was Rung But Only Added to the Confusion.

[Special to the DAILY LEDGER]

HOLBROOK, Mass., Oct. 19.—The gang of cracksmen who have been looting the post offices in this section for the past few months, paid a visit to this town early this morning and took about $400 in stamps and money.

The thieves first broke into a wheelwright's shop where they procured a sledge hammer, a monkey wrench and a chisel. They then forced an entrance into the livery stable of Charles McCarthy where they smashed the safe. The safe contained but $3.75 which was left untouched.

The postoffice building was next visited and the door forced open with a jimmy or some similar instrument. The burglars then drilled the safe and filled the holes with some powerful explosive. The noise of the explosion was deafening and the large safe was completely shattered.

The thieves then seized stamps and money to the amount of $400 and made a hasty exit.

Mr. Ebed Lincoln, father of Postmaster Charles W. Lincoln, who lives in the next building, was awakened by the noise of the explosion, and getting out of bed he went to the window to see what the trouble was.

He saw three or four men running away from the post office and opening the window he asked them what the trouble was. Mr. Lincoln was greeted with a fusilade of bullets which imbedded themselves in the woodwork about the old man's head, but fortunately did not strike him.

Postmaster Lincoln who was also aroused by the noise, jumped out of bed, and seeing a light in the post office building he thought it was on fire and he immediately sounded an alarm of fire.

A crowd of people who were running to the fire, saw the burglars but thought that they were on the same errand as themselves.

A Challenge.

The following is a challenge sent by the Democratic Committee of Ward 5 to Councilman Sherman of this city:

MR. CHARLES R. SHERMAN,

Dear Sir:—The Democratic Committee of Ward 5 challenge you to meet Mr. W. B. Orcutt in an open debate upon the political issues of the day. You, being the challenged party, have the privilege of naming the place in Wollaston and date. We will also allow you the privilege of naming any other Republican in Wollaston to discuss the question in your place if you so desire. The committee desire a reply from you by the 23d, so that arrangements can be made to have the discussion occur before State election. A copy of this letter has been sent to Quincy press and your reply will be when received. Respectfully yours,

MARTIN F. BURNS, Secretary.

A Chinese mandarin has forwarded the menu of a banquet given at Peking to the foreign diplomatists, the menu of which follows: First came four classic dishes, namely, swallow nests with pigeon eggs, shark fins with crabs, dogfish with wild duck, duck and cauliflower; then succeed delicacies served in cups placed before each guest; swallow nests, shark fins, plain morils, vegetables, mushroom with duck seet, fried patridge, pigeon in slices; then appeared four dishes, namely, ham in honey, a puree of peas, vegetables and dogfish; four side dishes: haricot cheese with bamboo buds (a kind of asparagus), roots of bamboo, chicken, shellfish; four hors d'œuvres in duplicate; ham and chicken, fish and gizzard, pork, tripe and vermicelli, duck and pork cutlets. Each guest had also placed before him plates of almonds, pistachio paste, pears and oranges. Finally, the following were the roast and boiled meats: Sucking pig, roast duck, boiled chicken, boiled pork. There was a profusion of European and Chinese wines. No opium was smoked, for official China is not yet reconciled to the drug which it owes to the East India Company.—Asiatic Quarterly.

The habit of going to bed and lying awake is something to be dreaded. An authority on nervous diseases gives this advice:

When sleep ceases to be a matter of habit, it should be cultivated. It is a good plan to read a few pages of a light book just before bed time, in order to compose the mind after the day's excitement. Poetry is good for this. If there is a feeling of hunger, drink is better than solid food, but liquors are not to be thought of—they are too stimulating.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

A Respected Couple Who Have Lived Happily Together for Fifty Years.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, two of Quincy's well-known people, were given a surprise party at their residence on Main street, Wednesday evening by the members and friends of the Ladies' Aid society connected with the Universalist church. The object was to extend congratulations upon the passing of the fiftieth mile-stone of their happy wedded life.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray were united in marriage at Quincy Point, April 16, 1843, by the Rev. John T. Burrell, and it was the intention of their friends to hold the party last April, but owing to sickness in the family the gathering was postponed until the above evening.

There were about seventy-five in the party, which included the children and grandchildren of the couple.

The whole house was thrown open and the evening passed in a very pleasant manner with games and music. Refreshments of cake, cream and coffee were also served.

During the evening Rev. H.A. Philbrook, pastor of the Universalist church, made a few pleasing remarks touching upon the life of the happy couple. Mr. Henry O. Studley enlivened the occasion with songs and music on the guitar.

There were a number of tokens of good wishes bestowed, among them being $50 in gold.

Another fact that served to make the occasion one to be remembered was that it was the occasion of Mr. Gray's seventy-sixth birthday.

Mr. Gray was the son of Mr. John Gray, of Brewster, Maine, and was born in that place.

Mrs. Gray was the daughter of Jeremiah Stetson, and was born in Weymouth in 1823, but has lived in Quincy ever since she was 12 years of age.

In the course of events Mr. Gray came to Quincy and met Julia N. Stetson, then a young lady in her prime. Their acquaintance ripened into love and one fine April day they were joined in the bonds of holy matrimony. That was fifty long years ago and time which waits for no man has sped swiftly on.

They have met the vicissitudes of life but with faces turned toward the setting sun they are now reaping the harvest and enjoying that peace of mind that comes to all who have faithfully performed their alloted part in life.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray have had three sons and two daughters and of this family a son and daughter have been laid at rest and the others have left the parental roof, but gathered there Wednesday evening to join in the celebration.

ENGLAND'S UNEMPLOYED.

Measures Adopted Which, It Is Thought, Will Give 1,000,000 Persons Relief.

The English government has at last determined to deal with the more than ever vital question of the unemployed, and their experiments will be watched with interest by all the world. Sir John Gorst has pronounced himself in favor of a plan for dealing with the question in the rural districts which has received the sympathetic consideration of the government. The proposal is to empower the local authorities to buy or lease waste or unoccupied land, and to turn the surplus labor upon it.

By this means it is believed that tens of thousands of acres now useless could be made fertile by spade labor and at the same time an effective check be put upon the persistent migration of unemployed agricultural laborers into the towns, an evil which is the despair of many economists. It is asserted that this is almost the only way profitably to employ the idle without bringing them into subsidized competition with actual workers.

Meanwhile that energetic and remarkably practical socialist member of parliament, John Burns, after many interviews and much correspondence with Mr. Fowler, president of the local government board, has persuaded that gentleman to issue a circular to the local authorities giving them permission to institute relief works for unemployed ablebodied men, and urging them to take full advantage of the novel power thus conferred. There is nothing to prevent relief works from taking the form of the reclamation of waste land, and some authorities will probably utilize the men's labor in that manner.

John Burns tells me there are 14,000 statutory local authorities, so that if each finds employment for only 10 men a total of 140,000 will receive work this winter. But it is more likely that work will be found for 250,000 of the great army of the unemployed, and that no fewer than 1,000,000 persons will benefit therefrom.—New York Sun's London Letter.

SOLUTION IN SIGHT.

Democratic Leaders Will Make Extra Efforts

TO AGREE UPON A PLAN.

Republicans Will Look On and Take It Easy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—For the first time since the extra session of congress began there appears to exist a prospect that some solution of the repeal question may be reached, but whether by compromise or amendment of the rules or some other method, remains to be seen.

There will be a full conference of Democratic senators, although the administration's followers are not disposed to sign the call for a caucus. The latter are not willing to be coerced into action by ironclad contracts. The administration forces are aware that the Democrats have a majority of their own party in the senate against repeal, and are therefore apprehensive that they may attempt to force them to adopt a course of action which the president and themselves could not sanction.

This administration minority on these conditions in the party are willing to hear what the opponents of repeal have to offer, and will not place any factious obstructions in the way of a mutually satisfactory adjustment, if practicable.

The Republicans in the senate in the meantime propose to await developments. Senator Allison left for Iowa yesterday. In conversation, before he started, he said:

"From all I can gather from various sources in the senate, the debate will continue for at least two weeks longer. During that time the efforts to reach an adjustment among the Democrats will be pressed. I think there will be some solution of the silver question, as the Democrats on both sides now realize that they are responsible for the unsettled condition of the country, growing out of this silver agitation." The senator said further: "I have paired with Senator Cockrell of Missouri, but have notified the senate that I shall be prepared to return whenever my presence is needed."

House Will Keep Out of It.

The Democrats in the senate are in a good deal of trouble over a question of a caucus on the silver question and great secrecy is observed on the subject. It is learned, however, that the requisite number of names have been secured to the call for a caucus and that one will be held. The question seems to be as to the time of holding the meeting, and also on the proposition raised by the repealers to make a joint caucus of it, inviting the Democrats of the house to join those of the senate in an effort to declare the party policy.

This latter proposition the silver men will never agree to, as the Democrats of the house have already passed on the question in a very decided way, and the silver senators insist that it has passed out of their province. The repeal men of the senate are not willing to be bound by a caucus, and are disposed to have it deferred for some days yet, until, as they hope, public sentiment will have affected the senate.

There is a strong flavor of closure in nearly all of the senatorial gossip heard. Senator Hawley of Connecticut, one of the ablest of the New England colony, remarked to a reporter that the proceedings in the senate during the past 10 days must have convinced every reasonable man in Washington that unconditional repeal can only be accomplished by a resort to closure. He contends that recent experience would justify, more than ever before, a ruling by the vice president in the senate enabling the majority to exert its right to control the actions of that body.

An Interesting Session.

The session of the senate yesterday lasted from 10 a. m. until 5:15 p. m., when another recess was taken until 10 o'clock this morning. The main object of these recesses, instead of regular adjournment, is to cut off the time for morning business, which may be extended to two hours.

The debate yesterday did not touch the repeal bill at all, except incidentally. It progressed, first on Mr. Dolph's motion to amend the journal of Monday, which, after a couple of hours, was laid on the table by a vote of 45 to 30, and then on a like motion by Mr. Teller, because his name did not appear on the journal, he having been present at a rollcall and not having answered.

The four principal speeches of the day were made by Senators Morgan (Dem., Ala.) Teller (Rep., Colo.) Daniel (Dem., Va.) and Mills (Dem., Tex.). But there were many interesting and exciting interlocutory statements made during the delivery of these speeches. Mr. Morgan was more than usually bitter in his attacks upon Mr. Hill (Dem., N. Y.), whom he spoke of as an astute politician who would fly back and forth like a weaver's shuttle, and again as one of those who rose to the surface like bubbles on a stagnant pool and exploded, leaving behind only mephitic odors.

Mr. Hill took no notice of these attacks upon him, but afterward got into a colloquy with Senator Daniel, in which he directed, with much emphasis (the remark being received with great applause), that if the presiding officer agreed with him, the bill would pass in spite of all obstructions.

In the House.

The only incident of note in the house was a personal controversy between Messrs. Geary (Dem., Cal.) and Warner (Dem., N. Y.) over the New York and New Jersey bridge bill. It was a question of veracity, and they were rather excited, but the speaker was firm in preserving order and the gentlemen became calmer. The bill was passed. The remainder of the day was consumed in the further discussion and consideration of the printing bill.

Hainer's Proposition.

Representative Hainer of Nebraska has introduced a bill to admit to the mails as second class matter the publications issued under the auspices of benevolent and fraternal societies and orders and institutions of learning. The bill requires that they shall be issued at least four times a year, from a known place of publication, by or for a regular incorporated society or institution; that they will be published to further purposes of the society or institution, and not be bound in such a manner as to be mistaken for books intended for presentation

DUEL IN A GRAVEYARD.

Grasscutters In Famous Greenwood Cemetery Do Bloody Battle With Sickles.

There was a vicious fight between two laborers in Greenwood cemetery late Saturday afternoon, and one of them, John Redmond, 28 years old, of Twenty-first street near Fifth avenue, is laid up in the Norwegian hospital suffering from ugly wounds on the chest, shoulders and face, and what the doctors think may be a fracture of the skull. It is a question of whether he can recover, and the hospital physicians were very much in doubt about the case.

Michael Vester, 21 years old, is locked up in the Fourth avenue police station, charged with the assault. The men are relatives and had been employed for some time as laborers in the cemetery. Saturday afternoon they were engaged cutting grass on adjoining plots in the graveyard when a dispute arose between them. The police say that the quarrel was about some family matter, but the exact character of the disagreement is unknown. Both men were using sickles, and suddenly they assaulted each other with the weapons.

The attack came first from Vester, it is said, and he soon succeeded in rendering his opponent hors de combat with his weapon of peace. The cemetery police got wind of the dispute, and Captain Lask, with Officer Bachrus, hurried to the assistance of the wounded man. Redmond was taken care of until the arrival of the ambulance, and then he was removed to the hospital. His assailant was arrested and taken around to the Eighteenth precinct police station. He was reticent concerning the cause of the quarrel and said he was not responsible for the fight.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Tricks of Time.

When I go to get on a horse, I see
I ain't so young as I used to be.
I can't vault into the saddle quite
As easy as one that is spryer might.
I'm as stiff as one that has rheumatiz;
This is the trick of old Time—it is!

When I look into the glass, I see
I ain't so young as I used to be.
For at my eyes there are lines that meet,
By some I have heard 'em called "crow feet."
But how did I get 'em? I'll bet a dime
It's another of them old tricks of Time.

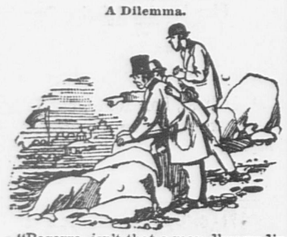

When I try to read in a book, I see
I ain't so young as I used to be.
If I want to know what it's all about,
I vow, I must take my glasses out!
It amazes me that I'm in this fix,
But Time is a "terror for playing us tricks."

When I go to brush my pate, I see
I ain't so young as I used to be.
I declare, it makes me feel appalled
To find that I'm getting very bald!
Now, what did the trickster Time want with
The hair of a fellow like old John Smith?

There's a heap of things that make me see
I ain't so young as I used to be,
But after awhile I'll bit by bit
Get to be sorter resigned to it.
Anyhow, 'tain't no use to bawl—
Time plays the same old tricks on all!

—Susie M. Best.

A Genuine Philanthropist.

One of New York's philanthropic merchants spends thousands of dollars each year in aiding the poor, but none of his beneficiaries ever gets a cent in cash. His idea is that money giving demoralizes the recipient. He will buy groceries and pay rent for a distressed family and secure employment for the wage earners. Once they are at work he tells them that he considers it a moral obligation for them to refund, at any convenient season, the sum he has expended. If they do, he regards the case as a triumph of self respect. If they don't, he finds some excuse for them in his own mind and keeps right on at his self appointed task. Last winter he hired a hall in the Hebrew district down town, engaged a competent teacher and provided a number of Jewish girls with free instructions. No proselyting was attempted. Indeed not a word was said about religion. The girls became greatly interested, and their brothers begged for and obtained admittance. Similar classes are to be established this winter. The merchant allows himself an income of $3,000 per year. All the rest of the money he makes is devoted to the aid of others. —New York Sun.

White With a Vengeance.

Here is a state of things which probably not the wealth of the Astors could buy in America. Lord and Lady Alington have a place in Dorset known as the White farm. Everything is accordingly white. All the farm buildings, the house itself, and even all the animals on the place are white. Rabbits, cats, guinea pigs, hens, horses, cows, donkeys and all the creatures are spotless.

But this is not the most remarkable feature. The free and independent British men and maids who till the soil and churn the butter are compelled to attire themselves in white smocks and white frocks to bear out the general impression of whiteness.—New York Recorder.

A Destructive Fire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Two large factories, a block of brownstone dwellings and other dwellings were burned here last night. The conflagration extended from St. Raphael's church to the north side of Forty-second street. The loss is estimated at $2,000,000. Four persons are missing.

A GREAT COMPOSER.

M. Gounod Succumbs to a Stroke of Apoplexy.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—M. Gounod died painlessly yesterday. He never recovered his faculties after he was stricken with apoplexy. Many of his relatives and friends were at his bedside when he passed away.

Charles Francois Gounod, born in Paris June 17, 1818, received his early musical education from his mother, a distinguished pianist, and having finished his classical studies at the Lycee St. Louis and taken his degree as bachelor of letters, in 1836 entered the conservatory, where he was in Halevy's class for counterpoint, and learned composition from Paer and Lesueur. In 1837 his cantata, "Marie Stuart et Rizzio," obtained the second prix de Rome, which he shared with the pianist Louis Chollet; and in 1839 he won the grand prix for his cantata, "Fernand."

No artist or literary man can tread the soil of Italy with indifference, and Gounod's residence in Rome exercised an influence on his ardent imagination of which his whole career bears traces. The years he spent at the Villa Medici as a pensioner of the Academie de France, were chiefly occupied with the study of the music of the old masters, especially Palestrina; and his first important compositions were a mass for three equal voices and full orchestra, performed May 1, 1841, at the church of San Luigi del Francesi (the unpublished MSS. is in the library of the Paris conservatoire), and a mass for three voices without an accompaniment, produced in Vienna in 1843.

It was while visiting Austria and Germany, on his way back to Paris, that he first heard the compositions of Robert Schumann, of which he knew nothing previously; the effect they must have had on the impressionable mind of the young composer may be imagined. The ideas imbibed in Rome however prevailed; he remained faithful to Palestrina, and on reaching Paris became organist and choir master at the foreign mission. It was at this period that he attended for two years a course in theology; in 1846 he even became an out pupil at the seminary and it was generally expected that he would take orders. He perceived the mistake in time, and renounced the idea of the priesthood; but these years of theological study had given him a love of reading and literary attainments of a kind rarely possessed by modern musicians.

Directum's Great Feat.

NASHVILLE, Oct. 19.—Directum lowered his record by 1 1-4 seconds at Cumberland park, and made the fastest time ever trotted in a race. The distance rule had been waived in the third heat of the free-for-all race for trotters, and Directum, joined by a runner on the back stretch, left his field a 16th of a mile. The time by quarters was: 32, 1:03 1-2, 1:34, 2:05 1-4.

Carroll Feared Conviction.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 19.—E. H. Carroll shot himself in the head yesterday and will die. Mr. Carroll, one of the oldest employes of the government arsenal at Lawrenceville, was arrested June 1 on the charge of forgery. A true bill against him was found in the United States court, and it is believed that the certainty of conviction prompted the self-murder.

Extended Three Months With Option.

PHILADELPHIA. Oct. 19.—It is stated by one of the Reading receivers that the Speyer Reading loan for $2,500,000 has been extended for three months, with option of an extension of six months. ## A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Charles Clark Suspected of Assaulting His Niece.

THE GIRL BADLY INJURED.

Uncle's Shoes Fit Tracks In the Woods.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The Sun has a special from Bridgeport, Conn., saying that the police of Stamford have placed under arrest Charles Clark, aged 35, who is charged with brutal assault on 16-year-old Louise Hopkins of that place on Tuesday night. He is an uncle of the girl. He is held at Stamford, but the excitement is so intense over the affair that he will be brought to the jail in this city today. On Tuesday the girl went to Long Ridge, about nine miles from Stamford, to visit her aunt, Mrs. Harry Lockwood.

The family retired early. About 11 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood were awakened by loud and prolonged screams from Miss Hopkins' room. Springing out of bed they rushed to their bedroom door, but found it locked from the outside. A voice on the other side told them that if they attempted to open the door they would be killed. Mr. Lockwood and his wife made their escape from the room by jumping from a second story window. They aroused the neighbors and the house was searched. The room Miss Hopkins had occupied was vacant and in disorder, showing that a struggle had taken place there.

After a fruitless search the neighbors returned, intending to continue their search at daybreak. Long after midnight there came a feeble knock at Mr. Lockwood's door. When it was opened, Miss Hopkins, half-naked, hysterical, bruised and bleeding and nearly dead from exposure, crawled into the house and fell fainting on the floor.

The Girl's Story.

She told a terrible story. A short, thickset man, with a stubby beard and wearing a slouch hat, had entered her room and, after binding her, carried her into the woods a short distance from the house and tied her to a tree. Then he told her if she made an outcry within 10 minutes he would kill her and he hurried away. As the man did not return, Miss Hopkins by great exertion succeeded in releasing herself and found her way to her uncle's house. The police and neighbors had been at work on the case all day.

Harry Lockwood, at whose house the girl was stopping, had told the police that when the man was carrying the girl from the house he heard him speak and recognized the voice as that of Charles Clark. Clark was watched, and when it was found that the tracks in the yard and in the woods near by where the girl was found corresponded with the size of his shoes, he was arrested. The arrest was made just before the father appeared. Clark was hurried away and Hopkins was armed. The father of the girl is still very anxious to get at Clark, and says he will kill him if he gets an opportunity. The girl is still in a low condition from injuries received and the terrible fright sustained.

Clark refuses to make any statement about the affair. The police are sure they have the right man. The assailant must have been some one who had a knowledge of the interior of the Lockwood homestead, and Clark had such a knowledge.

No Proof of Murder.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass., Oct. 19.—The body of Patrick McCarthy was found in Whiting's pond in this town last spring, and it was supposed that he had been murdered and his body thrown into the pond. State Detective George Seaver and Sheriff Brown have reported to the court that it is impossible to find any evidence to make a charge of the crime of murder against anyone.

Five Medals Go to Haverhill.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Oct. 19.—Five of the Haverhill exhibitors at the World's fair have been awarded medals. They are: Morse Bros., for Goodyear turned shoes for men, women and misses; Woodman & Howes, ladies' slippers; Hazen P. Goodrich & Co., men's and women's footwear; E. F. Hutchison, misses' and children's spring heels; Harold F. Blake, patent tips.

Crooked Gamblers Come to Grief.

MONTREAL, Oct. 19.—A gang of gamblers who conducted a place on St. Lawrence street, under the name of Maloney & Co., were before the police magistrate yesterday, and the money found in the house, over $500, was declared forfeited to the crown. The cards found were all marked, while other articles were fixed so frequenters could easily be cheated.

Temperance Women at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—The world's temperance congress gave way yesterday to the 20th annual convention of the National Women's Christian Temperance union. After a large quantity of routine business the annual address of Miss Willard, as president of the organization, was presented and read by Lady Henry Somerset.

The Outlay Unauthorized.

HARTFORD, Oct. 19.—In the town reports Auditor McGovern calls attention to the unauthorized outlay of $15,100 on account of the East Hartford bridge. This matter is to be ventilated at the adjourned town meeting Monday. The town debt is $1,105,581.

In Memory of Her Husband.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 19.—Mrs. Josiah M. Fiske of New York is reported as having given a handsome window to the new First Presbyterian church in memory of her husband, who was drowned while bathing here a couple of years ago.

Date of Foy's Death Is Fixed.

SARATOGA, Oct. 19.—The warden of Dannemora prison has notified the sheriff that the electrocution of Martin Foy, Jr., for the murder of Henrietta Wilson on May 4, 1892, will take place in that prison Monday at 11 a. m.

MOUNTAIN LIMBING.

The Safety of the Many Bought by the Death of the Few.

All crafts depend upon knowledge and acquired skill—knowledge of the material to be handled, acquired skill in the handling of the material. Pioneers of mountaineering had first to learn what mountains actually are like, the details of their structure, and the forces in action upon them. Rock structure, which has one meaning for a geologist, has others for a mountaineer. One kind of mountain masonry forms ridges and gullies, another forms ledges and precipices. One texture and dip makes staircases that can be rushed, another makes slabs that can scarcely be adhered to. One kind of substance is firm and trustworthy, another is friable and treacherous to hand and foot. If there was so much to be learned about rocks, snow and ice were at first far more unknown.

The anatomy of glaciers had to be discovered, the secrets of crevasse formation to be learned. There were the varied phenomena implied in the phrase, "state of the snow," to be understood. Both foot and eye had to be trained to recognize by feel and glance what the "state of the snow" at any time might be. Avalanches had to be investigated—avalanches of snow, ice and rock—when they might be expected to fall, where they were to be looked for, how far they would go. Climbers had to learn to distinguish afar off between snow and ice slopes. Moreover, the tools of mountaineering had to be invented. Many were tried and discarded; a few were retained and improved. The form of the ax was slowly evolved and its uses learned. The way to employ the rope was a yet more difficult discovery. Even now the proper form for climbing irons is only being arrived at.

Accidents, usually fatal, were the lessons wherefrom these facts were derived. The great Matterhorn accident finally demonstrated how the rope should be used and proved that large parties were a source of danger. The Lyskamm accident showed the peril of cornices. Unroped climbers met their death on many mountains. From almost every accident something was learned. The safety of the many has been bought by the death of the few.

We can now plunge into the world of snow without undue peril. We know its dangers and can guard against them; we know also when we are safe and where we can freely go. Our forerunners went aloft as neolithic navigators put to sea—badly equipped and into a misunderstood region. We are now on the footing of the modern sailor. Snow, as such, has no more terrors for us than sea for them. Ill luck may overtake us, and we may fall, as they may be drowned, but with good equipment and experience the climber and seafarer are about as safe as the townsman at home. —Fortnightly Review.

How to Learn Music.

Do not fail to take advantage of the library. Begin a course of good reading. Music is notorious for narrowing one's mind, so resolve to counterbalance your practice with library work as well.

As to your practice, I would give you this maxim, "The essential thing in practice is to see exactly what is to be done in all its details, and then do it again and again with the greatest clearness, precision and energy."

When you take up a new piece, notice the key, the harmonies, chords, scales, fingering and general effects. One of the first necessaries is "concentration." Develop self criticism. "The thing you cannot do is the very thing you should make yourself do."

In practice begin where you left off the day before. Connect your day's work. Apply all your knowledge. Do not try to do more than one thing at a time. Spend a good deal of time every day thinking about what you are doing and what you will do.—Edward D. Hale.

The Barebone Family.

The celebrated name of Praise-God Barebone was borne by a member of the Cromwell parliament called together after the dissolution of the Long parliament in 1653. The royalists called the assembly "Barebone's parliament." At the time when General Monk was in London Barebone headed the mob who presented a petition to parliament against the recall of Charles II. Of the Barebone family there were three brothers, each of whom had a sentence for a name—Praise-God Barebone, Christ-came-into-the-world-to-save Barebone and If-Christ-had-not-died-thou-hadst-been-damned Barebone.—New York Evening Sun.

Single and Married.

A native of Ireland landing at Greenock wanted to take the train to Glasgow. Never having been in a railway station before, he did not know how to get his ticket. Seeing a lady, however, going in, Pat thought he would follow her, and he would soon know how to get aboard. The lady, going to the ticket box and putting down her money, said, "Maryhill, single." Her ticket was duly handed to her, and she walked off. Pat, thinking it all right, planked down his money and shouted, "Patrick Murphy, married."—Tit-Bits.

Railway Headaches.

Those who suffer from headache and feel the fatigue of a railway journey disagreeably should take with them two leather or silk covered cushions—one for the small of the back, another to rest the neck and head. An eminent doctor once stated that this was a capital antidote to the evils arising from the jolting of the train, liable to cause slight congestion of the head in very long journeys. He furthermore advised no reading in the train to those subjected to headaches.—New York Times.

HUMORS OF BANN PUBLISHING.

Announcements of Marriages That Have Been Unceremoniously Interrupted.

A few years ago a ludicrous, albeit vexatious, incident occurred at a church in Larkhall. A rustic couple, after having had the banns published the prescribed number of times, proceeded to the church to be joined in holy wedlock. The service was conducted without a hitch until the officiating clergyman arrived at that part where he asked, "William Wisher, wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" when the bridegroom replied with some astonishment that his name was not William Wisher.

The ceremony was of course suspended, and on investigation being made as to the cause of the mistake it transpired that the bridegroom had written to the sexton of the church requesting him to have the banns published, and concluded his letter thus, "So no more from your well wisher and Mary Williams." The sexton, supposing that William Wisher was the name of the intending Benedict, published the banns accordingly, and the disappointed couple were compelled to await the publication of the banns in their proper names.

The precentor of a country parish church near Arbroath one Sunday announced from his place that "there was a solemn purpose of marriage between Alexander Spink of Fisher's loan and Elspeth Hackett of Burn wynd," when the parish beadle, who was something of a character, suddenly arose and unceremoniously interrupted the proceedings by exclaiming: "That's wrang! That's wrang! It's no Sanders Spink o' Fisher's loan that's gaun to marry Elspeth Hackett, but Lang Sanders Spink o' Smiddy croft." The name of one of the parties had been wrongly stated in the proclamation paper, and this was the way the beadle took to correct it.

Some years ago a middle aged agricultural laborer called upon the session clerk of Alloa and asked him what the charge was for publishing the "cries"—i. e., banns of marriage—three times on the same Sunday. "A pound," replied the clerk. "Aye," said the other, "an what d'ye tak' when ye tak' two Sundays to do't?" "Half a guinea," was the reply. "An what d'ye chairge when ye tak' three Sundays to't?" was the rustic's next query. "Seven and six," answered the clerk, with an amused air. "Aye, man," rejoined the querist, "I see; the langer ye tak' to dae't the cheaper it gets. Just cry awa' till ye pay yersel'!"

And he took his departure without more ado.—London Tit-Bits.

Milord, Miss and the Dog.

A traveler's tale of British phlegm is told in the following terms: A Frenchman was seated in a smoking carriage and had for his companion a "milord Anglais." Enter a British miss—of course with a plaid and protruding teeth and a Skye terrier. She sat opposite the milord. He politely informed her that she had by mistake got into a smoking carriage. She made not the slightest answer, but sat grimly on.

The milord threw away his cigar, much to the astonishment of the Frenchman, who, according to the story, sat watching what would happen. When they reached the next station, the milord said, with the cold dignity of his race and cast: "Madam can now change into a nonsmoking carriage. If she does not, I shall assume that she does not mind smoke and shall light another cigar."

Madam said not a word, but stared in front of her. The train went on again, and the milord lighted up. When his cigar was well alight and the train in motion, the lady bent forward, took the cigar out of the milord's mouth and threw it out of the window. The milord not only did not make any remark, but he did not even seem disturbed. All he did was to wait a minute, and then to bend over the lady, seize the Skye terrier, which was lying in her lap, and fling it out of the window.

Of this act the lady, to the complete astonishment of the French spectator, took no notice whatever. At the next station both the lady and the milord got out, but without exchanging a word in regard to the cigar and dog incident, while the Frenchman turned over in his head an etude on the subject of "Les Anglais taciturnes."—London Spectator.

A Metal That Hardens Steel.

The reason that the mixture of tungsten with steel gives the latter so great a degree of hardness that it readily scratches glass and quartz seems to be revealed by a discovery recently made in Germany. A definitely crystallized compound of iron and tungsten has been discovered, the crystals being so hard as to scratch topaz. Tungsten is a brittle white metal, almost as heavy as gold. The crystals, remarks The Paper Trade, as formed by its combination with iron, in the proportion of one atom of iron to two of tungsten, are silver gray and very brilliant. It is thought that when tungsten is alloyed with steel some of the compound just described is formed in the mass, thereby producing the remarkable increase in the hardness of the steel. This is an interesting example of the value that one metal may lend to the other, for, until the discovery that it could be used in hardening steel, tungsten, although it occurs in considerable abundance, was practically useless and without value.—New York Times.

One of His Tricks.

"I thought you said you were going to bring a friend home to dinner with you," said Mrs. Chugwater.

"He couldn't come, Samantha," replied Mr. Chugwater as he sat down with great satisfaction to the first good dinner he had had a chance to attack for a long time.—Chicago Tribune.

Rooms to Let.

Mrs. Fangle—Have you secured a lodger for your second floor yet, Mr. Goslin?

Goslin (horrified)—I haven't been looking for a lodger, madam.

Mrs. Fangle—Why, I'm certain my husband told me you had rooms to let in your upper story.—Waif.

Senate Once More Makes an Attempt to Work.

THE CLOUDS ARE BREAKING

Democrats Submit a Plan to Secretary Carlisle.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The third act of Tuesday's legislative session was performed yesterday. The actors who played the leading roles were Senators Hill of New York, Butler of South Carolina and Palmer of Illinois, while minor parts were taken by Senators Stewart of Nevada, Dubois of Idaho, Peffer of Kansas and Hoar of Massachusetts.

The subject of the performance was whether the name of Mr. Teller of Colorado should be entered upon the journal of Monday as having been present and having refused to answer when called.

The dialogue was broken in upon near the close of the performance by a witty suggestion on the part of Mr. Palmer of Illinois that, as Mr. Teller himself had presented the question to the senate, he should be treated with that courtesy for which the senate was eminently distinguished, and his request was complied with. He asked unanimous consent to that effect, and when it was refused he sat down with a half tragic air, saying that he abandoned the motion in despair.

His remark was followed by a petulant wail from a child in the gallery, on which he exclaimed, dramatically: "Listen to the echo of my despair."

The closing speech was made by Mr. Butler (Dem., S. C.). After a well-phrased dialogue between him and Senators Hill and Palmer, the galleries applauded once too often and were so sharply rebuked by the vice president that one of the offenders, a well-dressed, intelligent looking man, rose and confessed that he had been a conspicuous transgressor and would leave the gallery, where he had been a constant visitor for the last six weeks.

Mr. Butler intimated that the galleries were packed for the benefit of Mr. Hill, and he invited that senator to have it out with him on a street corner.

Mr. Manderson misinterpreted the invitation as having a hostile meaning, and made a point of order, which he withdrew when Mr. Butler explained, with an air of surprise, that his invitation was one to speak, not to fight.

At the close of Mr. Butler's speech the motion to amend was withdrawn, the journal of Monday was approved, the morning hour of Tuesday was dispensed with, and, at 4:10, the repeal bill was taken up, and Mr. Peffer (Pop., Kan.) resumed the speech against it, which he began last week. Mr. Peffer had not finished at 5 p. m. and the senate took a recess until today.

Settlement In Sight.

The uncertainty which has hung over the financial question in the senate for many weeks appears to be lifting.

The Democratic steering committee was in session yesterday in the appropriation committee's rooms, and the Democratic senators by twos and threes had been invited to appear before the committee. It was after 2 when the committee concluded its meeting, and Senators Gorman and Ransom quietly left the senate and proceeded to the treasury department with a draft that is said to be acceptable to all the Democrats in the senate.

In substance it provides for continuing the purchase of silver in reduced quantities until 1895, and also provides for the issue of bonds to strengthen the gold reserve. Those who had a hand in framing the measure are very cautious in their statements on the subject, for they realize that a misstep at this important juncture might prevent an amicable adjustment of the pending difficulties.

The Democrats believe they have solved the problem to the best of their ability under the existing circumstances. Future action depends in a measure upon the action of Secretary Carlisle, who represents the president in this matter. If the plan is approved by the latter it may be presented to the senate at once.

Quay Is Busy.

Senator Quay appears to have had a clue to what his Democratic opponents were doing, as he gave notice of an amendment to the bill he proposes to introduce at the proper time, which substantially covers the ground of the Democratic proposition.

The senator from Pennsylvania does not, it is said, represent the combined forces of the repeal Republicans, as he was not invited to the social conference held at the residence of Senator McMillan last night. There were but 16 Republicans at the conference, which was more in the nature of a dinner party, but no positive conclusion was reached. Various suggestions were made, but nothing conclusive could be agreed upon.

Senators Aldrich, Washburn and Frye were enthusiastic in their advocacy of a change in the rules, but they could secure no other following. Senator Lodge suggested the Republicans should move to postpone further consideration of the pending measure until after the New England elections. He was alone in favor of such a plan.

A proposition as to whether the Republicans should submit a compromise amendment was discussed. This scheme would not carry, and it was decided to stand by the declaration made by Senator Sherman that the Democrats must settle the matter among themselves.

The proceedings in the senate indicate that all the fury has passed away, and there is something in the senatorial atmosphere which seems to indicate that the Democratic majority in the senate is about ready to do business. The Democratic caucus committee called on Secretary Carlisle and remained in "executive session" with him at the treasury until 4:30. Mr. Gorman was the last to leave.

News Hard to Get.

Mr. Carlisle was seen after his senatorial visitors had departed, and stated that he had nothing whatever to communicate as to the nature of their call or its result. The visiting senatorial ambassadors returned to the Capitol in straggling order, some of them first calling at the White House. Senators Camden, Harris and Jones of Arkansas subsequently held a long consultation with Mr. Cockrell. So far as could be ascertained, nothing definite had been accomplished.

Mr. Carlisle, it is said, was unyielding in the original stand taken by him in favor of unconditional repeal. No compromise was agreed upon last night, but it was intimated that another conference would be held today. The belief exists in the minds of the caucus committee that the administration will concede a repeal, to take effect at a future day, and that was one of the contentions discussed for some time.

The repeal men want the time fixed for January, or, at latest, July 1, 1895, while the more conservative silver men want it to extend to Jan. 1, 1896, as fixed in Mr. Quay's proposed amendment. The extremists insist that repeal shall not take effect until after the close of this administration, the amount of silver purchased being reduced in the meantime to $2,000,000 worth each month.

In the House.

The house made the bankruptcy bill a continuing special order for Monday next, the measure to be considered in committee of the whole, where it will be open to amendments on each paragraph. A bill was passed granting certain public lands to the territory of Arizona. A bill requiring government-aided railroads to provide stations at town sites within the territories where such town sites have been established by the interior department was discussed, but not disposed of. The printing bill was further considered without final determination. The remainder of the day was consumed in eulogistic addresses on the late William Mutchler of Pennsylvania.

CRISIS AVERTED.

German Liberals Caused a Rather Shaky Feeling In Hungary.

VIENNA, Oct. 20.—President Chlumeicky of the lower house had an audience with the emperor in Buda-Pesth last evening and presented his resignation. His reason for wishing to retire is that the German Liberals have been placed and have placed him in an exceedingly difficult position since the introduction of the electoral reform bill. The emperor refused to accept his resignation.

Count Taafe assured Chlumeicky of his readiness to abandon the bill. The emperor consented to a dissolution of the reichsrath in the event that the coercion policy for Bohemia should be rejected. The cabinet crisis is believed to have been averted for the present. Whether the suffrage bill has been abandoned permanently or only temporarily is unknown.

POLICE AND STRIKERS

Have a Lively Fight and Many are Seriously Injured.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Two thousand striking miners attacked the collieries at St. Helen's yesterday afternoon. They drove away the miners, broke the machinery at the pit shafts and split up the wagons. The police charged, clubbing the men right and left. The mob surrounded them and finally drove them back, wounding several of them. The police charged twice more before the strikers would yield. They caught ten of the men most conspicuous in leading the mob and locked them up at St. Helen's. Four policemen and three miners were wounded severely, and several more on each side received serious injuries.

Up They Go.

HARTFORD, Oct. 20.—State Comptroller Staub and Treasurer Sanger, acting as a state board of equalization, have raised the price of stocks returned to them as the valuation upon which to levy state taxes, as follows: Hartford Fire Insurance company, $285 to $300 per share; Phœnix Insurance company, Hartford, $150 to $160; Travelers' Insurance company, Hartford, $175 to $185; Orient Insurance company, Hartford, $40 to $45; Loan and Guarantee company of Connecticut, $50 to $60. The decision of the board is absolute.

Honeymoon Interrupted.

TIFFIN, O., Oct. 20.—A. B. Potter, claiming to be a Santa Fe railroad official in Denver, and Mamie Hall, a prepossessing young lady of Fairmount, W. Va., were married here Wednesday, and yesterday a telegram ordering Potter's arrest for forgery in Illinois was received with an offer of $500 reward. Potter and his bride left here and drove to Fostoria, and from there they took a train for Chicago.

Sent on a Perilous Errand.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 20.—James Boyle, aged 5, and Arthur P. Duravity, aged 9, who were living with Farmer Matthew Campbell, left home Tuesday in search of Mr. Campbell's cattle, which had strayed into the mountain forest. The boys have not been seen or heard of since. It is feared that the children have perished from hunger and exposure, or that they have been devoured by wild animals.

An Audience of Twenty Thousand.

BELLAIRE, O., Oct. 20.—The Republican meeting here last evening was the largest held in the Ohio valley since the memorable Blaine campaign of 1884. It is estimated that 20,000 people were in attendance. Governor McKinley spoke yesterday afternoon at Woods Field and then came to this city. Governor McKinley addressed the assembled crowd in the public square.

Stranded For Good.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 20.—David Barnett, counsel for the stockholders of the suspended Commercial bank, has announced that the bank cannot resume. As soon as W. M. Pickman is made permanent receiver he will pay a dividend to those holders. He has about $240,000 in his possession as temporary receiver.

LEFT WIFE BEHIND.

Fred Jones Became Infatuated With a Schoolma'am.

HAD A BRIGHT FUTURE.

Citizens of Malden Wanted Him to Be Postmaster.

MALDEN, Mass., Oct. 20.—Marriage proved a failure to Letter Carrier Fred Jones of this city, so he thought. He has left his home, wife, position and a bright future because of an infatuation for some other woman.

Fred Jones has been a popular resident of Malden for many years, in fact his popularity was so great that 2000 people signed a petition recommending his appointment as postmaster under President Cleveland. He was liked by everybody, and he made an efficient employe in Uncle Sam's service. His route included the West End of Malden and on this route he made many friends. Among them was a schoolteacher, Miss Georgiana Brown.

She came to Malden about two years ago from Attleboro and taught in the Centre grammar school.

Miss Brown is about 25 years of age, of rather prepossessing appearance, has a dark complexion and short hair. She boarded with Mrs. W. S. Lincoln on Cedar street, and it was while delivering letters there that Jones lost his heart the second time.

Last August she left Malden and went to Warren, where she secured a position in the grammar school. It was thought then that Jones' matrimonial affairs would not suffer a further jar, but the relations between Jones and his wife, instead of becoming harmonious, were more strained than ever.

The schoolma'am wrote letters to Jones when she could not see him, and these endearing missives became so frequent as to make his wife righteously jealous. The crash came last Thursday when Jones arrived home. His wife reprimanded him for his alleged infidelity, and his mother-in-law offered a few remarks in a like strain.

His Departure.

This was too much. It was then he made up his mind to quit Malden, his wife as well as mother-in-law. Sunday he went to the postoffice and worked until the closing hour, at 10:30 a. m. He then wrote two letters, one to his wife and the other to Postmaster Simpson. They were both mailed at Medford. The first letter informed his wife that he was going away to establish himself in business, and he admonished Mrs. Jones not to worry, for as soon as he settled down he would send for her.

The letter to the postmaster was in reference to his resignation as carrier, a position he had held for five years. He was also president of the Carriers' association.

Whither he had gone nobody appeared to know, and his wife has not yet made any effort to find him. He will not put in an appearance in Malden again, it is said, for, as he told a friend, his life was a most unhappy one.

His friends think he made a great mistake in leaving the city when he had such a bright prospect before him. A leading citizen of the city said to a reporter yesterday: "Although there were stories going the rounds, still there were friends ready to stand by him."

A Good-Looking Fellow.

Fred Jones is a handsome man of 27 years of age. He wooed and won Miss Lillian Slack while she was a clerk in the postoffice. The marriage was against the wishes of his mother, for Mrs. Jones is much older than he. However, the nuptial knot was tied, and all went along smoothly until pretty-faced Georgiana Brown became a resident of Malden.

At Jones' home Mrs. Slack, his mother-in-law, was seen, and her praise of the missing letter carrier was of an extensive and laudatory nature, while her denunciations of Miss Brown and other friends was rather piquant.

"Why, Georgiana Brown is freckle-faced and red-headed. To say she is handsome is not true. Fred was a domestic man and never was out a night until that schoolteacher came to the city.

"We gave Fred every opportunity to blot out the past, but that teacher spoiled his happiness and ours as well."

Mrs. Jones is employed in the National bank, and in this way hopes to earn a living while her husband is practically dead to her.

New Hampshire Journalist Dead.

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 20.—Charles P. Danforth, one of the oldest and most prominent residents of this city, died quite suddenly yesterday noon, aged 81. He was for a time a leading newspaper writer and editor of local papers, and has held many positions of honor. Politically he was an active Republican. Of late he had lived a retired life. His last writings were his papers on personal and political reminiscences of 66 years.

Receiver Mink Pleased.

OMAHA, Oct. 20.—Oliver P. Mink left last evening for Boston. He expressed himself as very well satisfied with the condition of the Union Pacific company. It is believed that October will show gross earnings of $1,000,000 for the company.

Three Were Convicted.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 20.—The jury yesterday rendered a verdict in the cases of the Hungarians who have been tried for the murder of George Klacyck at Wilmerding. Karpo, Sullo and Salokay were convicted of murder in the second degree.

Robbed of $550.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 20.—John W. Wilcox, while working about a stable in Auburn, was knocked senseless with a large stone wrapped in burlap, and robbed of about $550. The assailant is unknown.

Murder In the First Degree.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 20.—Elmer Chaddock, who killed a man named Pollan here last January, was convicted of murder in the first degree, with a recommendation to prison for life.

CUP FORMALLY PRESENTED.

A Happy Event in the Annals of Clan McGregor, O. S, C.

The members of the tug of war team of Clan McGregor O. S. C., who have by their perseverance three times in succession been victorious in winning the contest at the annual picnic at Spy pond, and are therefore now sole owners of the cup, were tendered a reception by their brother clansman with their ladies at Doble's hall Thursday evening.

The affair was under the charge of a committee composed of William Pratt, William Elrick, Alex. Emslie, James Marr and A. I. Dixon and the success was befitting the occasion.

At 8 o'clock the hall was completely filled with ladies and gentlemen whose faces wore a victorious smile which showed their hearts were full of enthusiasm.

At 8 o'clock Mr. William Pratt, who was master of ceremonies, called order and introduced Mrs. A. Craig, who opened the entertainment with a vocal solo, being followed by Mr. A. L. Kemp, who also gave a solo.

Miss Hattie Birnie followed with a recitation entitled "The Last Hymn," with a vocal refrain by William Dickie. Miss Birnie's recitation was received with such a tremendous applause that she was obliged to respond and gave "The Deacon's Courtship."

The next number on the programme was what everybody was looking for, and was the presentation of the cup by Mr. William Batchelder, vice president of the Amalgamated picnic committee.

Mr. Peter Kerr accepted the cup in behalf of the team and also presented the victorious men with a set of resolutions handsomely engrossed from Clan McGregor.

This over the programme was continued with a duet by Mr. George Bowman and Mrs. A. Craig, a recitation by Mr. Robert Allen; solo, Miss Lizzie Hutchinson, an amusing Scotch reading by Miss Henrietta Esson, and solo by Mr. George Bowman,

This concluded the literary part of the evening's entertainment. The floor was then cleared, and shortly after 10 o'clock dancing commenced, and was continued until 2 o'clock this morning, the only interruption being at midnight when James Young, who has established for himself the reputation of a caterer of no mean ability, served refreshments.

The cup which the team has won is of silver, gold lined, and stands eighteen inches high, and is handsomely carved.

On one side there appears the Massachusetts Clan seal and on the reverse the name of Clan McGregor, and the dates Feb. 7, 1891, Sept. 5, 1892 and Sept. 4, 1893, which represent the days upon which the three contests were held.

The personel of the three years teams are: Angus McNeil, Alex. Souden, John McGilvray, Alex. Mundie, Robert C. Allen, Norman E Ross, John McLeod, William Dickie, Thomas Johnston, William R. Lowe, John Gilmore, John D McLennan, William Souden, John Westland, Robert Beatie and James Copland.

☞ Smyrna Rugs, Art Squares, Door Mats, Oil Cloths, Mattings, etc. Genuine bargains in all departments—Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

TODAY'S COURT.

Thomas Ryan of Braintree, arraigned upon two complaints for drunkenness, was fined $5 on one and $10 on the other.

Mary Sullivan of Quincy was arraigned for breaking glass. Case continued until Saturday.

☞ Autumnal Conference for the deepening of spiritual life, in the Clarendon Street Baptist church, Boston, will be held from Thursday evening, Nov. 2, through Monday evening, Nov. 6, inclusive. Dr. Gordon will be assisted in the Conference by the following speakers from abroad: Dr. Arthur T. Pierson, of Philadelphia, Dr. A. B. Simpson, of New York, George C. Needham, of Northfield. Several city pastors will also participate in the convention, who will be announced later. The singing will be led by Evangelist Lawrence B. Greenwood.

☞ Furniture moved.—Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

☞ The Delineator for November is the first of the three great winter numbers, and is a splendid specimen of this popular magazine. All the needs of ladies, misses and children are fully considered in the styles for the coming season, which are sensible and beautiful in themselves, and are most attractively displayed. An article valuable to the housewife for its suggestiveness is called As Winter Comes On.

☞ It only costs twenty five cents to get a tenant for your empty house, by letting the people know it through these columns.

WOULD-BE PIRATES.

A Story That the Runaways Intended to Put to Sea in the Beatrice.

The Globe today prints the following story concerning the three runaway Quincy boys—Clare, Baker and Smith, who are still at large:

"Chief Police Langley learned from some of the chums of the Clare, Baker and Smith boys who 'skipped out' Sunday morning after getting $500 from the bank on a forged order, that it was the intention of the lads to steal Com. Cavanagh's large yacht, the Beatrice, and having armed her with a cannon that for years has adorned the lawn in front of Sailor's Snug Harbor, to start out with several others on a sort of piratical cruise along the coast.

"That this scheme was not carried out was probably due to the heavy wind that was blowing that morning. As it was the boys sawed off the lock of the Beatrice's cabin door, and had evidently made preparatious to start before the breeze sprung up.

"The cannon proved too heavy for the boys to handle and it was not disturbed, but the halyards were taken from the flag staff.

"Chief Langley went to Peddock's island Thursday and secured the various articles which the boys had left there in their hasty departure Sunday morning.

Mt. Wollaston Lodge Regrets to Hear of the Death of Prominent Odd Fellow.

Capt. Newton as a grand officer of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows, took a prominent part in the institution of Mount Wollaston lodge, No. 80, I. O. O. F. on Mar. 10, 1884, and for several years thereafter was its district deputy, friend and counsellor. He endeared himself to all members and they were sorry to learn of his death on Thursday. They will attend the funeral on Sunday.

Mr. Emery E. Fellows has joined the Masonic fraternity since his removal to Leominister, and was among the visitors at the meeting of Rural lodge this week.

County Commissioner Morrell of Hyde Park was also among the visiting brethren of the Masonic visitation.

The 25th anniversary of the Ancient Order of United Workmen will be celebrated at Music hall, Boston, Friday evening, Oct. 27. Recorder Gilson of Merry Mount lodge, is issuing free tickets.

"AN ALL ROUND CRACKSMAN."

His Thievings Cover a Wide Field, From Canned Goods to a Tombstone.

Kansas City has developed one of the most unique thieves that has yet been heard of in real life. Several months ago the police force learned that a sneak thief was making depredations upon cellars and pantries and even on outlying grocery stores, and carrying off canned goods and such eatables as were not perishable.

There were certain peculiarities about the robberies that led the police to believe that they were all done by the same person, but there was no clew that they could follow to catch the thief. After amassing a goodly quantity of food on which to start to housekeeping the thief began on fuel, and whole cartloads were carried away, each case showing the evidences of the food thief. When a full supply of coal was taken, the thief turned his attention to furniture and carried off articles of all kinds, from light chairs to a heavy bedstead with mattresses. An entire bedroom set was taken from a house and no trace left. The family was absent for a night, and on their return they found their room despoiled.

Having furnished his bedroom and parlors, the depredator set about getting his kitchen in order, and first an ice chest was taken from a house in Armourdale, and then a cooking stove and kitchen table from a house in Rosedale. By this time the police were fully alive to the fact that the stealing was going on right under their noses, and they began to talk about the queer thief. This attention seems to have flattered the thief, for he signalized his presence next by carrying off a large baseburner stove from a parlor in Kansas City, Kan., while the family were spending the evening with a neighbor. This occurred last week, and since then it appears that the man has his furniture, food and fuel for the winter, for the depredations have ceased.

Another phase, however, seems to have broken out, and it is evident that a member of the thief's family has sickened and died. A few days ago a drug store was broken into and medicine taken, and last night the climax was reached when the thief went to the cemetery out on the Quindare boulevard and carried off a fine tombstone. There is a talent here that shows the development of a system that would beat a bank, and the police are very anxious to make the acquaintance of the thief.—Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

CAPT. NEWTON DEAD.

A Veteran of the War and Prominent Odd Fellow and Knight of Pythias.

Over a year ago Capt. Charles B. Newton of Atlantic was stricken with apoplexy. Since then he has struggled against odds to recover health, and at times was able to ride and walk out, but for some months has been in a precarious condition and Thursday noon passed quietly away.

He was best known in Quincy as a prominent Odd Fellow, being a grand officer at the institution of Mt. Wollaston lodge and its first district deputy. He was a member of Neponset lodge of Neponset, Shalom encampment of Dorchester, and Canton Boston of Boston. He passed through the chairs of the Grand Encampment and for two years was Grand Representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge, the years when the meetings were held in Boston and Denver.

Capt. Newton was born in Bolton, Mass., and attended school there in early boyhood. Just previous to the death of his father (which occurred in his 15th year) he had entered the Houghton academy with the hope of fitting for a collegiate course, but the care of his widowed mother and the family devolved upon him, and he left school and went to work, still keeping up his studies for a long time. He learned the carriage and ornamental painter's trade.

At the breaking out of the war, he entered the service as lieutenant, was promoted to captain, and went into the field as captain of Company I, of the 5th Regiment, M. V., for nine months. Previous to the expiration of term of service, he was transferred to the 2d Mass. Artillery, by order of the War Department under the Veteran Officers act of Congress, and was mustered as captain of Artillery, and as senior officer of line, served faithfully until the close of the war, and was mustered out of service late in the fall of 1865.

On his return from the war he engaged in his former occupation, and up to a recent date when severe illness laid him aside from business, he was employed by the Boston & Albany Railroad as master painter.

He was a devoted Pythian Knight, being one of the charter members of Damon lodge, No. 12, of Boston, and its first Past Chancellor. He was elected representative to the Grand Lodge in 1887, Grand Prelate in 1888, Grand Vice Chancellor in 1889, and Grand Chancellor in 1890, being the nineteenth to hold that office in Massachusetts.

Capt. Newton was twice married, the second time in 1870 to Miss Lucy Billings of Atlantic, who survives him. He also leaves a daughter by his first marriage.

In all relations he won honorable distinction, and he will be missed by a large circle of acquaintances.

☞ Chamber sets $16 00 to $45.00.—Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

A New Y. M. C. A. Building.

Plans have just been completed for a new Y. M. C. A. building in Fitchburg, which will cost, finished, about $60,000. H. M. Francis, Fitchburg, is the planner of the building, which will be 90x70, of Romanesque style and five stories high, built of brick, with carved sandstone trimmings. There will be the usual outfit of rooms, and special attention will be given to the plumbing and sanitary arrangements. There will be one of the largest gymnasiums in the state. Mrs. S. W. Burbank is the largest subscriber to the movement, having pledged $25,000. Work will begin as soon as the contract can be satisfactorily placed.

Organized.

The Ladies' Social Union of the West Quincy M. E. church reorganized Oct. 12, by electing the following board of officers:

President,—Mrs. Charles A. Goucher.

Vice President,—Mrs. Wm. A. McCormick.

Secretary,—Miss Cassie Thayer.

Treasurer,—Miss Abby Nutting.

Directresses,—Mrs. Charles F. Badger, Mrs. Herbert Doble, Mrs. Josiah Welch, Mrs. Jesse Brown, Mrs. George M. Hobbs, Mrs. Dudley Folsom, Mrs. Lizzie Badger, Miss Jane V. Doble.

☞ Furniture repaired and upholstered, mattresses made over.—Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

—Fire at Norwell, Thursday morning, destroyed the residence of George K. Cushing. He and his sister, both advanced in years barely escaped. Loss, $2,000; insured for $1,500.

☞ Homes furnished from cellar to attic at a saving of from 5 to 25 per cent. from Boston goods and Boston on Prices.—Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

CITY CHIT CHAT.

Items of Interest from All Parts of Quincy.

Mrs. E. H. Sprague of Wollaston is at Chicago.

No tidings of the runaway boys have been received.

City water is being put into the Savings Bank building.

Officers Nichol and Bradley are taking their vacations this week.

Mr. Daniel B. Lincoln of Wollaston is quite sick with malarial fever.

Mr. William L. Haskell and family will remove to Boston next month.

Mrs. H. W. Reed and children are spending the week at Deerfield, in the western part of the state.

The Wollaston Unitarian Sunday School will hold its annual harvest concert on Sunday, at six o'clock P. M.

Quite a list of newly naturalized voters appears on the third page. Nearly 100, and the mills are still grinding.

Mr. J. Warren Bass and Mr. Albert S. Bass of Wollaston, returned this week from a pleasant visit to the World's Fair.

James Dunn and others of this city have entered the annual races of the Shoe City wheelmen at Brockton on Saturday.

Mr. B. R. Redman and family who have been the passt summer at Candia, N. H., have returned to their home at Atlantic.

The Atlantic Social club will soon start their dancing parties in Music hall and expect to make them fully as pleasant as in the past.

Mrs. H. T. Brigham of New York, will speak at Faxon hall next Thursday evening on the subject, "What are the signs of the times?"

The man killed on the railroad at Holbrook, Oct. 4, has been identified by Constable Furnald as John Sullivan, a former employe in Clark Bros.' stable at Boston.

At the whist tournament held at the rooms of the Quincy Associates on Wednesday evening, Wellington W. Mitchell took first prize and George W. Jones the second.

Many will be pleased to learn that Mrs. L. P. Howard, who has been stopping at Winthrop beach, has returned to Quincy, and is with Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hobby.

Mr. Joseph W. Hayden, Albert A. Hayden, Thomas Magee and Samuel DeForrest attended the reunion of the Ex-Prisoners of War at the United States Hotel Wednesday afternoon.

Those who attended service last Sunday evening at the Memorial chapel listened to a very interesting discourse. The pastor began a series of practical talks which promise to test the capacity of the chapel.

The Compass Whist club held their annual meeting last week when the following officers were chosen: President, Mr. H. W. Reed; Treasurer, Mrs. H. W. Reed; Secretary, Mrs. Charles L. Coe. They will begin the winter's series with Mr. and Mrs. John Carver.

Councilman Charles R. Sherman has sent a characteristic reply to Mr. Martin F. Burns, secretary of the Ward 5 Democratic Committee, accepting the challenge for a joint debate with Mr. William B. Orcutt. The Democratic committee will give the letter and a further reply tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. John Chamberlin, Mr. Arthur W. Newcomb, Mr. Herbert H. Newcomb, Mrs. S. F. Newcomb, Miss Amy F. Newcomb of Quincy, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Parker Hayward of Braintree, attended the semi-annual meeting (ladies' day) of the Sons of the American Revolution, at Marblehead, Thursday, Oct. 19.

New arrivals at the Greenleaf are Charles J. Lewis, George B. Knight, E. B McIntus, W. F. Fowler, Mrs. M. A. Torricelli and J. Harbestad of Boston; M. H. Greenleaf, Mrs. H. B. Tillson, Watertown; J. S. Marion, New York; F. A. McDonald, Cambridge; L. Johnson, West Willington; E. J. Mannoy, Williamantic, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. R. L. French, Pittsfield, N. H.; George H. Snow, Brockton.

The ladies of the benevolent society of Atlantic are feeling proud this week. The Annex to the Memorial chapel was built wholly under their supervision and by perseverance and a good deal of very hard work, the fruits of their labors have been enjoyed and every dollar of the debt paid. A great deal of good work is done by this society and it is now in a most healthy condition.

A good deal of quiet indignation is cropping out in Ward Six, over the removal of the postmaster. It is claimed it was done against the wishes of a large majority of the voters, that it was entirely uncalled for, and will react against the few who entered into the movement. Mr. Gurney has never meddled with politics in any way, and he is certainly located in just the place where the office should be,

MASONIC VISITATION.

The District Deputy Grand Master Makes an Official Visit to Rural Lodge.

The annual visitation of the District Deputy Grand Master of the 24th Masonic district to Rural lodge of Quincy, Thursday evening, was the occasion of a crowded house, over one hundred visitors being in attendance.

Rt. Wor. Herbert I. Mitchell was accompanied by the following suite:—Wor. Henry A. Belcher, as grand senior warden; Wor. H. A. Crane, as grand junior warden; Wor. Herbert A. Newton, as grand treasurer; Wor. William H. Emerson, as grand secretary; Wor. Francis E. Shaw, as grand marshal, and several past masters.

There were visitors from the following lodges: Orphans Hope, Paul Revere, St. George, Puritan, Fellowship, Norfolk, Union, Delta, Satucket, Franklin, New Hope, Montgomery, Eagle, Souhegan, Old Colony, Composit, Adelphi, Carraharrett, Delphi, Wilder, King Solomon, Columbian, Orient, Joseph Warren, Massachusetts, Monitor, John Cutler, Pythagorean, Putnam, Joseph Webb, and others, including one each from Maine, New Hampshire and New York.

A fine exemplification of the work was given by Worshipful Master Hammond and his officers and the compliments given were well deserved. The music was by the Corinthian quartette.

At the close of the lodge the visitors were called to refreshments served by Mine Host Fiske in the dining room of The Greenleaf.

MILTON.

Slight Fire on Thursday—The New Band Receives its Instruments.

The alarm Thursday afternoon from box 68 shortly after 2 o'clock, was for a fire in the old barn of John Delorey, situated on Granite place. Some small boys had built a fire back of the building to roast potatoes, and it is supposed it caught from this. There was a quantity of hay, tools, etc., in the barn at the time. The back end was burned off and the contents damaged by fire, smoke and water. The loss will not be over $200.

A brass band is an assured fact. The instruments have arrived and the members will commence the work of mastering them next Tuesday evening under the tuition of Mr. Sprague of Wollaston, and by next summer open-air concerts will be in order.

The course of lectures at the Congregational church in aid of the Y. P. S. C. E. commenced Friday evening, when Prof. Peabody of Harvard gave a lecture.

One of the new houses in the process of erection on Squantum street was lifted from its foundation and moved eight feet in the recent blizzard.

William M. Clark has opened a news stand in the rooms on Granite avenue formerly occupied by the Jones associates.

Rev. C. J. Spencely of Boston lectured before the Baptist Young People's union Wednesday evening.

The contract for the erection of the new school building on Church street was probably let out Thursday.

Miss Emma Emerson, attendant at the East Milton reading room, has recovered from her recent illness.

No repairs have as yet been made on the postoffice building, and therefore when it rains the postmistress is obliged to hoist her umbrella.

THE WOMAN IN THE CASE.

Times When the Quiet but Effective Feminine Influence Is Ignored.

In an article commenting on the silence of history about Mrs. Christopher Columbus and her influence over the great explorer and his perseverance, Mary M. Ward, in the Boston Woman's Journal, says:

Our masculine friends — husbands, brothers an fathers—are very ready to say, when there transpires an occurrence of questionable character, when lives are taken, or when fortunes and battles are lost, "You may depend upon it, there was a woman at the bottom of all the mischief." But when anything important is done, as when the light of some new and wonderful discovery dawns upon the world, behold there is no hint of feminine help or influence in the matter.

The effects produced by climate, state of society, political condition, what not, are all taken into account—nothing is forgotten save alone the quiet influence of the one little woman at home, who may have been the mightiest impelling power after all. It is only another one of the innumerable instances where "we killed the bear," except in this case historians have seldom had the grace to give the pronoun the plural number.

It reminds me forcibly of a story told by a clergyman of my acquaintance, whose sermons are always practical and to the point. A gentleman having become interested in a small man of business availed himself of an elder's privilege—the right to ask leading questions.

"And how long have you been at work, my boy?"

"Oh, it's as much as a month now."

"And how do you like your work? Don't you find it pretty hard to start out so early in the morning?"

"Well, yes, it was pretty hard at first," the boy admitted, "but then you see father has to leave the house by 6 o'clock, and mother is up by half past 4 to get the fires going and to get father's breakfast. She calls father at a quarter-past 5, and then by the time he is ready to go she calls me, and while I am eating my breakfast she calls the girls and puts up my lunch.

"No, the girls don't get up to help because they both work hard at the store from 7 o'clock till supper time, so mother lets them get all the rest they can.

"Yes," he continued, "father works for Mr. Benton in the mill, and I work for Mr. Sharp, and the girls work for Mr. Ellsworth down at the store. We're getting along first rate now."

"And whom does mother work for?" came the next question unexpectedly.

"Mother," he hesitated, "mother—why mother don't work for anybody—she's just mother."

Four Dollars a Week.

"I cannot afford to take even a car ride," said one working girl when asked where she intended to spend her holiday. Further inquiries elicited the facts that she was paying rent, feeding and clothing herself and meeting incidental expenses on the magnificent income of $4.08 a week! There must have been money stringency in that quarter sometimes.

It would be an interesting study to go into the details of such a case and dwell on the provision for sickness and slack seasons, when even such remunerative labor was not to be had. And yet that girl, who would not indulge herself by the outlay of even 5 cents, gave $1 in charity where the need was greater than her own.—Donahoe's Magazine.

Women on State Boards.

It is becoming quite the thing for women to be appointed on state boards. Rebecca G. Bacon and Mary Hall have been appointed on the Connecticut state board of charities. The Kansas state board of charities recently elected Mrs. Emma Pack, editor of The Farmer's Wife, a member of the board of supervisors of the Topeka insane asylum, and Miss Minnie Wilson and Miss Arlie Randolph members of the board of the Ossawatamie insane asylum. Dr. Alla Kliberg was elected physician to women in the former institution and Dr. Emily White in the latter. Mrs. A. T. Bliss of Saginaw has been elected president of the new board of trustees of the Michigan State Industrial Home For Girls.

Women Whist Players.

San Francisco women excel in whist playing. There is probably no city in the country where the game is so well played by so many women as in the California metropolis. At the recent whist congress held there women were present for the first time as members of various clubs, and a woman, Mrs. Henry Krebs of the San Francisco Whist club was elected assistant secretary of the congress. One of the most prominent male whist clubs has a weekly "ladies' night," to which all lady players are welcome.—San Francisco Examiner.

A Woman Editor.

An item of news almost more significant than the concession of woman suffrage in New Zealand is this—that a lady, and a lady on the right side of 40, too, has been appointed colonial editor of the London Times. The woman who has been thus honored in conservative England to gauge the situation in Greater Britain for so important a journal as The Times is Miss Shaw, who has been doing brilliant work as a traveling correspondent.

Countess Ellsmere's Verse.

The dowager Countess of Ellsmere, a handsome, white haired grandmother, lately won an afternoon tea table in a competition for the best nonsense verse after a given model. This is the successful verse:

A bat is no use in a battle,
And a cat will not call home the cattle,
Cut capes with caper,
Measure tapes with a taper,
Or try to catch rats with a rattle.

Mrs. Blake a Candidate.

At a meeting of the Woman's Suffrage league Mrs. Margarette Moore nominated Mrs. Lily Devereux Blake for delegate at large to the constitutional convention in 1894.—New York Sun.

DOCTOR WAS BURIED.

Latest Story About the Graves Case Is Pronounced a Fake.

DENVER, Oct. 20.—Charles N. Chandler, a retired merchant, who claims Thompson Centre, Mass., as his home, was in this city from Tuesday until yesterday afternoon and then left for Pueblo. While here Mr. Chandler told a highly improbable story concerning Dr. Graves' remains which was telegraphed broadcast. It stated that when the coffin arrived at Thompson Centre, it was opened by old friends, and, instead of a body, a log of wood was found; that the disappearance of the body was not told to Mrs. Graves, and the funeral occurred in the regular way.

This story was laughed at by Messrs. Walley & Rolling, the undertakers of this city. They say that the remains were first placed in a zinc casket, which was made air-tight. Then a square zinc box was placed outside and the cover soldered down. The casket was accompanied by Mrs. Graves, who undoubtedly saw that no opportunity was afforded to tamper with it.

Since then Mrs. Graves has written to them thanking them for the manner in which the whole affair was conducted. The story, they say, is simply another of the wild tales that have from first to last characterized the Graves case.

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER.

Jury's Verdict In the Case of Emma Woods, Lew Brown's Slayer.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 20.—The jury in the Emma Woods case, who is charged with the murder of Lew Brown on June 2 last, returned a verdict of manslaughter last evening. When the jury pronounced the words, Emma Woods fell to the floor, sobbing violently. She was carried into the jury room.

Emma Woods was Brown's mistress and was jealous of the attention which he showed to other women. Brown kept a saloon known as Tammany Hall, and he was a well-known politician. After the shot had been fired, Emma Woods rushed into the saloon and called for the bartender of the saloon. "I have shot Lew," she exclaimed. Then she ran over to a man named Cusick, who was on the opposite side of the street.

Cusick testified that the prisoner came running toward him, and, raising her hands, said: "Mr. Cusick, come to my relief."

She told Cusick that Brown had shot at her first, then she said she shot and killed him. Brown was shot in the heart and died almost instantly. Emma Woods has been a well-known character in this city for some time. She is a pretty woman and has a fine figure.

Same Old Story.

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Waldo Emerson of Carmel, Me., came to Boston a few days ago to see the sights and learn something of city ways. He finished the task and started for the Eastern station to take a train for home. When he was going along Portland street a man stepped up to him and called him by name. Emerson did not know the man, but thought it was all right. The usual formula was gone through; loss, $60.

Latest From Brunswick.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Oct. 20.—Yesterday 1202 persons were given rations at the commissary and 130 orders for the sick were filled. The total cash receipts to date for relief funds are $17,300.27. There were officially reported 31 new cases and one death yesterday.

Building Collapsed.

NASHVILLE, Oct. 20.—A building in Hopkinsville, Ky., which was undergoing repairs, collapsed, killing John Parker, a bricklayer, and fatally injuring Charles Davis and another workman, name unknown. Several other workmen were severely hurt.

Buried Alive.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 20.—In the Carnegie steel works at Homestead, laborers digging a trench were covered under several feet of clay by a cave-in. Andrew Durk and John McManus were dead when taken out. Five others were seriously injured.

Would-Be Murderer Killed Himself.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Maurice da Comollion, 35 years old, shot and dangerously wounded Emelie Alexander, a married woman, at 218 West Sixteenth street. He afterward shot himself and died instantly.

The Farmer's Resolve.

I seen an advertisement in a city magazine
Of some new patent medicine—they called it Tiredine—
An said a quart—ten doses—was the surest kind o' cure
For them whose inclinations for to work was ruther poor.

It seems to me that that's the stuff for me to go an buy
For that young son o' mine to take an sort o' make him spry.
He needs a thurer bracin up when haytime comes around,
Although when fish is runnin good he's pretty slick an sound.

I dunno why it is that boy kin take a heavy gun
An walk from ten to twenty miles an think he's havin fun.
But when there's suthin for to do that's in the plowin line
He doesn't even seem to have the symptoms of a spine.

He'll take in all the picnics, an he'll work like all possessed
At pushin scups for country girls, but never has no chest
When it comes to tossin up the hay or gatherin in the wheat—
The very idea of that seems to knock him off his feet.

An so I think I'll go to town an sample that there stuff
An mebbe buy a lot for Tom—one bottle ain't enough.
Ten doses may suffice to put an average man in trim;
But, Tom—I think I'll hafter get a dozen quarts for him

Maine's White Whale.

Fisher folk on the islands in Casco bay, Maine, are greatly interested over a wonderful white whale reported as cruising about that vicinity. Several fishermen are positive they have seen the strange animal at different times in the past two or three weeks, and others are inclined to think they have, but are hardly willing to swear to it.—Lewiston Journal.

The Hop Crop.

Washington's hop crop this year is one of the largest and finest ever known. It is estimated at about 50,000 bales. Germany reports the shortest hop crop for half a century, and while the Washington farmers are not rejoicing in the German hopgrower's misfortune they think it an especially fine season for American hops.—Exchange.

CHRISTIANS AFRAID.

Grave State of Affairs In a Persian District.

THE STORY OF A MURDER

In Which Moslems of a Whole City Took Part.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Much uneasiness is felt by the missionary societies in this city on account of reports of continued persecution of Christians which are being received from their representatives in foreign lands.

The latest of these reports to Rev. Mr. Gilman, secretary of the American Bible society, came yesterday, through a letter from Rev. W. L. Whipple, agent of that society in Persia. The latter was dated at Tabrise, Sept. 9 last, and contained a graphic account of the murder of an American Christian in Oroomah, a short time before.

"There has been a grave state of affairs," says Mr. Whipple, "in Oroomah since I wrote you last, an uprising of the Moslems against the Christians. There was a mob of Moslems led by theological students of the Mullahs against an American merchant, a member of the Protestant church. They circulated a false report about him, and inflamed the rabble, until, finally, he was dragged from his shop and hurried off to the large mosque near by. He was severely beaten on the way. When they reached the mosque, some wanted to kill him at once, others tried to save him. He was given an opportunity of becoming a Mussulman, but this he said he would not do. He asked five minutes in which to pray and prepare for death.

A Dastardly Deed.

"While he was praying, some say, one Moslem stabbed him in the back with an hanjar, the long Persian poniard. Then others stabbed him until he died. It is said that there were more than 400 stab wounds on his body. They then put a rope around his neck and dragged his body to the outer wall of the city and threw it into a ditch of stagnant water, a very foul place. They killed a dog and threw it in by his side.

"There was great excitement, of course, all the day, and threats were freely made that now was the time to massacre all the 'Christian dogs' in the city and thus put a stop to the proselyting. Several Nestorians and Armenians were severely beaten during the uprising and had to flee for their lives.

"The Christians are very much frightened, and some have fled to other places. There seems to be unusual animosity on the part of the Moslems against them. They say the Christians are getting rich and holding up their heads, and soon they will rise up and take their land and religion from them. It is a fact that the Christians are advancing in learning and wealth, but it is one of the results of the gospel."

In concluding his letter, Mr. Whipple speaks of the reported bad health of the Shah of Persia, and the likelihood of his death at no distant day. The present shah is more than 62 years old.

Robbers Captured.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Rachel Logan's house, about one mile from Coraopolis, was entered by five masked burglars, who took her from bed, and then, by torture and threats, succeeded in robbing her of $515. Detectives have captured four of the men and they expect soon to get the fifth. Three have made confessions. They expected to get anywhere from $40,000 to $50,000.

Jumped Into the Well.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 20.—A second autopsy was held on Anna Orr's body, the relatives desiring to ascertain whether or not there were any marks of foul play. It disclosed no marks of violence. Circumstances caused Coroner Doten and other officers to think it might possibly have been lowered into the water. The family are now satisfied that, while delirious, she jumped into the well.

Typhus Successfully Treated.

GUADALAJARA, Mex., Oct. 20.—Experiments made in leading hospitals with a herb used by the Indians for the cure of typhus fever have been attended with remarkable success. The decoction made from the herb produces a semi-conscious condition and excites a powerful perspiration. All persons treated have promptly recovered.

Big Illicit Still Discovered.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 20.—The largest moonshine distillery in eastern Kentucky was discovered and destroyed near Berksville by a deputy revenue collector's posse. There were two stills, and after destroying them the officials found 1500 gallons of beer and whisky, which they emptied. Tom Turner, one of the operators, was captured.

A Stage-Struck Young Couple.

PASSAIC, N. J., Oct. 20.—Miss Susan Griggs and George W. Groesch, a young drug clerk, have disappeared simultaneously. They are believed to have gone away to get married and go on the stage. Both young people have been stage-struck for some time.

Five Tramps Killed.

TRENTON, Oct. 20.—By a collision last night between freight trains on the Philadelphia and Reading road five tramps were killed. Conductor Altman was seriously injured. The responsibility for it has not yet been placed.

Was Helping a Friend.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 20.—While helping a friend with a boat over a dam at Windsor, Bruce Blatchley missed his footing and fell into the river. Before assistance could reach him he was drowned.

Backed by a Britisher.

CORUNNA, Oct. 20.—It is reported here that a British vessel yesterday left Vigo, a seaport in the province of Pontevedra, with contraband of war for the Moors, now in the field near Melilla.

Tyler Takes a Wife.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Harry C. Tyler, the Springfield (Mass.) club's great bicycle rider, was married at his old home here yesterday to Miss Edith M. Thompson of Plattsburg.

Given Up For Lost.

DETROIT, Oct. 20.—The owners of the schooner Riverside have abandoned all hopes of her being safe in some port. She ought to have been heard from before now if she were safe.

MUST FIGHT ELSEWHERE.

Corbett-Mitchell Scrap Cannot Come Off at Coney Island.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Mayor Boody of Brooklyn and Sheriff Courtney of that city both announced yesterday afternoon that the authorities of Kings county had decided not to allow the Mitchell-Corbett fight to take place at Coney Island.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Oct. 20.—Pugilist James J. Corbett last night received word that the King's county officials at a special meeting had decided to stop the proposed fight between himself and Mitchell at the Coney Island club. When seen at his training quarters, Corbett said he proposed going on with his daily training as heretofore, and if the fight did not come off it would be no fault of his. Corbett refused to say whether he would sign to fight before any other club. Corbett refused to attend the Dixon exhibition in the opera house here last night.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 20.—Charley Mitchell received the official notice last night that the sheriff of Kings county had decided not to allow the fight between Corbett and himself to come off in Kings county on Dec. 14. Mitchell said he had come to America for the sole purpose of striving for the championship, and if the battle could not be brought off here, he said, it could be elsewhere, and suggested either Mexico or Havana as the place. At either of these places he would meet Corbett, not under his pet marquis of Queensberry rules, but under London prize ring rules on the turf, with bare knuckles and all the other conditions which had surrounded the battle for the world's championship in former time.

CHILDREN IN A PANIC.

Someone Cried "Fire" and Six Hundred Pupils Rushed For a Door.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—In one of the public school buildings in this city, three stories high, with only one narrow exit available, in which 600 colored pupils were crowded together, a panic occurred yesterday through one of the children fainting and others raising a cry of fire. A mad rush was made for the doorway, where the frightened children became jammed in a heap, and struggled and fought and trampled each other down after the manner of adults in similar position. When the police, janitors and teachers succeeded in separating the mass a considerable number of injured children were carried to the hospitals and to their homes, some of them it is feared fatally hurt.

CAREY CONFESSES.

Was Probably In a Drunken Frenzy When He Killed His Wife.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 20.—Michael Carey of Southbridge has confessed to the murder of his wife, who was found dead in the pantry of her house in that town Thursday last. Investigation showed that death resulted from a bullet which had entered the skull through the ear.

Saturday Carey was sentenced to the state farm for being a common drunkard, and there the confession was made to Deputy Sheriff Jacobs. It is supposed the deed was the result of a drunken frenzy, though Carey had been threatening to kill his wife for years. He is 68 years of age and the victim was over 70.

French Enthusiasm.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—The Russians were entertained by the municipal authorities last evening. These authorities are socialists, but they did not hesitate to lavish every luxury on the officers of the Russian autocrat. More than 2400 crayfish were used for the bisque soup, and 25 deer were killed to supply venison. President Carnot presided, and among the 546 guests were all the members of his military household. Flowers have been strewed before the horses of Admiral Avelan's carriage wherever he has gone.

Trenton's Great Day.

TRENTON, Oct. 20.—The parade was the feature of the celebration of the dedication of the Trenton monument most enjoyed by the people. It was unquestionably the handsomest demonstration of the kind ever seen in New Jersey. The eight governors were first driven to the county courthouse, in front of which they reviewed the procession. All the streets through which it passed were densely thronged with cheering spectators.

Legal Struggle Probable.

GRAFTON, Mass., Oct. 20.—John Demars, living apart from his wife, came from Saundersville to where his wife is living in Wilkinsonville, with her relatives, and took away their child, which Mrs. Demars had cared for since they ceased to live together. A legal struggle for the possession of the child is likely to ensue. It is now with the husband's relatives in Saundersville.

The Halliday Murders.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—A special to The Recorder from Monticello says that Mrs. Lizzie Halliday has just made her first connected statement regarding the three strange murders in the old Halliday house. She appeared as if just awakened from a trance, and said she did not even know her husband was dead. Her general appearance would seem to bear out this story.

Stricken With Paralysis.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Platt, wife of Senator O. H. Platt of Connecticut, was stricken with paralysis at the Arlington Wednesday evening. She has recovered speech, and unless some unlooked-for complication arises she will recover. Her son and daughter-in-law were telegraphed for by the senator.

Springfield Saddler Fails.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 20.—A. F. Ball, who has been doing business in this city as a saddler for more than 25 years, has filed a petition in insolvency. His assets are about $12,000, and his liabilities about $30,000.

William's Congratulations.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 20.—Emperor William of Germany has sent to King Charles a letter congratulating him upon the birth of an heir to the Roumanian throne. The crown princess continues to gain strength.

Boy Cruelly Shot.

BELVIDERE, N. J., Oct. 20.—James Nelson, 8 years of age, of Oxford Furnace, was shot by an unknown man. The boy was picking chestnuts, when a man fired a revolver at him from behind a tree.

The Cronin Murder Case Again.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—The trial of Dan Coughlin, ex-police detective, indicted for complicity in the murder of Dr. Cronin, has been set for Oct. 30 before Judge Tuthill.

In Debt.

HARTFORD, Oct. 20.—Harry B. Arnold of New Britain, dealer in bicycles, and a well-known bicycle racer, has made an assignment.

The quickest way to cure is to draw a stick of lunar caustic over the wound, slightly burning the same. The operation is painful only for a moment, and improvement commences at once. After cauterizing, "camphor ice" should be frequently applied, and as a rule, the wound will heal in three or four days.—Boston Journal of Health.

ADAMS BUILDING.

Quincy, Sept. 7. tf

ALONE.

I think that I am quite alone
Since that strange night, the mystic night that hung
Entranced 'mid her stars to listen, when, mine own,
Those few short words arose from heart to tongue,
And as you whispered them life changed to be Something rapt, glorified, sublime, to me.

The soft gloom hung about us like a veil.
Only the glimmer in the western skies
Crept in to show your lips were passion pale,
To read the rapture in your half closed eyes,
And then those words were spoken, and the rest
Was hushed in happy silence on your breast.

Morning and daylight swept away the dream,
Life clasped her fetters and resumed her sway,
Only a soft, sweet knowledge, like a gleam,
Lingered around each hour of all the day.
And even the bitter ring of the farewell
With a gentler note upon the spirit fell.

And since, my darling, though broad leagues of space
Are spread between us, though dim, dull and mute
Is life without the sunshine of thy face,
Is life without the echo of your foot.
So all encompassed by your love am I
That my blank ways are trod contentedly.

Since in all evil things I think how you
Would soothe them—in all happy things I think
How you would prize them—set to measure true,
There is no discord in our perfect link.
With thought, faith, hope, with life and love your own,
How can your chosen ever feel "alone?"

—All the Year Round.

HOW HE ESCAPED.

During the middle ages the country now called Belgium was known by the name of Flanders, or perhaps it would be better to say that Flanders was the largest of the several feudal provinces included in that territory. Latterly, however, Flanders comprised not only what is known as modern Belgium, but also a large part of Holland and northern France. The ruler of the country was called an earl, and in the latter part of the fourteenth century Louis de Malatin wore the coronet, which he had inherited from a long line of earls, all of whom lay sleeping in glory in the abbey of Blandigni.

The proud and wealthy burghers chafed under the sovereignty of the feudal lords, and in Ghent particularly this feeling of independence was very strong. The earl, who noted the popular disaffection, made haste therefore to depart from Ghent and removed his residence to the city of Bruges, where he had a strong castle.

Now, Earl Louis was neither a wise statesman nor a brave general, and he foolishly augmented the public ill will by endeavoring to rob Ghent of its superior advantages. Four noble rivers supplied the city with its commercial and manufacturing facilities. Bruges had no river, and so a body of dikers were sent to construct a canal by which the waters of Ghent might be conveyed to Bruges. But the men of Ghent fell upon them and put them to death.

Earl Louis then dispatched another company, which met with the same fate. These were decided acts of rebellion, but the men of Ghent were in the right, and the earl was in the wrong. Kings and princes very seldom stop, however, to think about the justice of anything. They care only to secure their own pleasure.

The earl of Flanders was very angry with the men of Ghent, and he summoned an army by which he hoped to conquer his rebellious subjects. He overcame them in one battle, but in the next he met with defeat and was forced to retreat to Bruges. Here he was besieged by the enemy, led by the brave and energetic Philip of Arteveld, a young man of great promise.

Earl Louis did not feel much alarmed at the success of the enemy, for the strong walls of Bruges seemed to laugh to scorn all attacks of a besieger. But there were traitors within, and one night the earl was aroused from sleep with the tidings that the city gates were opened.

He instantly summoned his soldiers, and mounting his warhorse rode forth to meet the foe, shouting the warcry of his race:

"Flanders for the lion! Flanders for the earl!"

He was preceded by torchbearers and trumpeters, and a man bearing a banner on which was the famous Flemish lion wrought in gold.

And now up the streets marched the men of Ghent, shouting: "Death to the earl! Down with feudal tyranny!"

"My lord," said Robert de Mareschant, a near and loyal friend, "march not against them—they outnumber us 10 to 1."

"Flanders for the lion!" cried the earl.

But when he saw the numerous and well appointed host and heard the murderous cries his heart misgave him.

"What shall I do, Sir Robert?" he asked.

"Order your torches out, then exchange clothes with me and get out of the city if you can," replied the faithful officer.

So the torches were extinguished, and hurrying to a darkened stable the earl and the esquire exchanged clothing.

While this was occurring the rebels, who had seen the flash of the golden coronet on the earl's helmet and the sheen of his velvet mantle under the glow of the torches, were rushing in swift pursuit.

"Hasten for your life!" whispered Sir Robert. "I am the earl and you De Mareschant."

But this deceit was quickly discovered, and wishing for no man's life save the earl's the rebels hastened in all directions after the illustrious fugitive.

Hard pressed, for he saw his enemies before and behind him, he rapped at the door of a low cottage. His knock was responded to by a poorly dressed woman, who held a babe in her arms.

"I am Louis, thy sovereign, and evil men seek my life," cried the earl. "Give me shelter and refuge, and St. Mary will reward you."

"I am only a poor widow, but such as I have I give you. My lord, enter."

It was a poor, thatched roofed hut with only one room. The loft above was reached by a ladder. Never before had the powerful Earl of Flanders entered so miserable an abode. The woman conducted him to the loft and showed him six children asleep on a bed of straw.

"Conceal thyself, and quickly, for I hear thy pursuers already at the door," she said, pointing to the straw.

The earl hastily crept in among the slumbering children, taking the youngest one in his arms. There was no little quarreling at first.

"How big brother Max has grown," said one little girl as she snuggled close beside the mighty potentate who had taken refuge in that rude bed.

"Why can he not come to bed earlier and not awake us?" grumbled a flaxen haired boy.

But they soon became quiet, and the earl lay still with Gretchen slumbering beside him and flaxen haired Hans snoring fearlessly.

Meanwhile a loud pounding had summoned the widow to the door again.

"Where is the man who has just entered thy hut?" demanded a savage Gantois.

"Art thou not mistaken?" she answered. "I am a widow and live her alone with my children."

"Nay, but we saw the light upon the way as it glared forth from the open door."

"I did but open it to throw something into the street. If there be a man within, search and find him."

The man casts a quick glance within. He saw the ladder leading to the loft, and taking the light from the widow's hands he hurriedly ascended. A row of children huddled together was all that he saw, and he descended again. "The woman is right," he muttered to the crowd. "There is only a nest of children sleeping together like pigs in a sty, and there isn't room enough for an ant to hide, much less the Earl of Flanders."

Uttering cries of balked vengeance, the throng of White Hoods, as they were called, pushed on, while the earl, with a thankful heart for his wonderful preservation, went to sleep in the company of the young children. Sorely wearied by fatigue, he slept as soundly in the mud hovel of the poor widow as though he had lain in one of his own palace chambers.

The next morning was the Sabbath, and the great earl was awakened by the wondering cries of the children.

"How funny! Brother Max has come to bed with his clothes on," cried the little girl, who had slept all night in the arms of her illustrious bedfellow.

"Hush, Minna," cried Max himself, "it is some friend of mother's. I heard him last night when he came in."

"Nay, but I am a friend to you all," said Earl Louis. "From this hour count the Earl of Flanders your protector."

The children were hushed to silence at the mention of that great name, and the earl presently descended to the lower room, where he found the pious widow singing her Sunday morning hymn.

"And who art thou, to whom Louis of Flanders owes his life?" asked the earl.

"I am the widow of Dolph the Diker, whom the wicked men of Ghent slew when he was at work for his lawful sovereign."

"I cannot restore to thee thy husband," said the earl, "but I never shall forget thy generous kindness in risking your own life to shelter me. Here is a purse of gold crowns, all that I can give thee now, but"——

"God forbid that I should take it when thou needest the gold more than I," interrupted the woman as she put the purse back into his hands. "Thou art not yet out of danger, and it has cost us nothing to give the shelter."

"When I have my rights again, the widow of Dolph the Diker will not regret that she entertained her sovereign," replied the earl.

He staid all that day with the widow and her family, keeping a better Sabbath, I dare say, than he had for a long time before, and the following night he succeeded in making his escape out of the city, disguised in the jerkin and marsh boots in which poor Dolph used to work at the canals. He reached Lisle, one of his loyal towns, in safety, and an army soon gathered around him quite large enough to enable him to take the field against the rebellious White Hoods.

In a great battle he completely defeated the Gantois, and Philip of Arteveld, their leader, was slain. Ghent was delivered up to him, and Flanders once more passed under the sway of its rightful lord.

When Earl Louis returned to Bruges, he richly rewarded his faithful preserver, the widow Mechie, who was enabled to pass her last days in comfort and luxury. Max became a page in the great castle, and all the other children, from Hans to the laughing prattler, Gretchen, became the proteges of the earl who owed his life to their mother's generous protection.—Clinton Montague in Philadelphia Times.

Prices For Sermons.

Much has been said of the practice of buying and selling sermons, a practice, by the way, of no very special novelty. Just before Toplady was about to be ordained, Osborne, the bookseller, the friend of Johnson, offered to supply him with a stock of original sound sermons for a trifle. "I would sooner buy second-hand clothes," was the tart reply. "Don't be offended," said Osborne. "I have sold many to a bishop." The price of sermons, as of all else, has varied with the times. In 1540 a bishop of Llandaff received from the churchwardens of St. Margaret's, Westminster, for a sermon on the Annunciation, a pike, price 2s. 4d., a gallon of wine, 8 pence, and boat hire—in all 3s. 4d. In the seventeenth century sermons seem to have been valued at about 5 shillings each.—Exchange.

The Prisoners' Friend.

Mrs. Sophia Little, who died recently at Newport, R. I., was known as the "prisoners' friend." She devoted nearly her whole life to visiting prisons in New England, giving her means and her talents for the amelioration of their inmates. She founded the Sophia Little Home For Women in Providence.

WORLD'S FAIR TRAINS WRECKED.

An Early Morning Crash at Battle Creek, Mich.

TWENTY-SIX ARE KILLED

And Many of the Injured May Not Recover.

Disobedience of Train Dispatcher's Orders Responsible For the Awful Accident—The Cars Took Fire From the Lamps, Which Were Burning, and Nearly All the Victims Were Roasted Beyond Recognition—Passengers on a Special Train Escaped Injury—Engineer Claims That He Followed Orders of His Conductor—Horrible Scenes at the Morgue.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Oct. 21.—The error of one human being—of a man who crouches affrighted like a hunted animal in a prison cell—led to the greatest railroad horror in the history of Michigan yesterday, and 26 human lives have paid the penalty of the moment's negligence.

Two trains, both laden with passengers, met in a direct head-on collision on the Grand Trunk road at 3:45 yesterday morning in the suburbs of this city. That the number of dead and injured was not fourfold greater is due to the fortunate effect that the collision occurred in the suburbs of a city instead of in the open country, where both trains would have been running at full speed.

As it is, 26 charred, disfigured and unrecognizable bodies lie in the morgue, and 27 marred and bleeding victims are groaning in the charity hospital. How many of these wounded may be in the death list no one can tell, for the injuries in many cases are internal and unfathomable to the only superficial medical examination that is now possible.

All that surgical science can do is being done, and the officials of the Chicago and Grand Trunk railroad are doing all that is possible.

The two trains which met face to face were both regular trains, although each was considerably behind time. One was a Raymond & Whitcomb special train returning from the World's fair and bound for New York and Boston, and the other was the regular Pacific express westbound train.

The Raymond & Whitcomb was running as an extra section of a regular train, and was, therefore, "a regular" in the phraseology of the railroad men.

Trainmen at Fault.

The engineer of the latter train had positive orders to sidetrack for the express at a siding east of this city. He ignored these orders, and 600 feet beyond this siding he met the eastbound train full on.

Both trains were wrecked and half the train of the Pacific express was demolished and burned. The Raymond & Whitcomb train, being composed almost entirely of heavy sleepers, escaped serious injury, and none of the excursionists lost their lives. The engineers and firemen of both trains jumped in time to save their lives, but 26 passengers of the Pacific express met almost instant death.

The day coaches in the front part of this train were telescoped and burned, and of the 26 human remains at the morgue conjectures can only be made as to the identity of six. Twenty remain entirely unidentified. Those identified by letters or articles in their clothing are:

C. C. Van Dusen of Sproutbrook, N. Y.

Mrs. C. C. Van Dusen of Sproutbrook, N. Y., burned to death in the wreck.

W. W. Henry of Woonsocket, R. I., burned to a crisp.

Mrs. F. R. McKenzie, Middletown, Conn., burned to a crisp.

T. A. McGarvey of Toronto, mangled and burned to death.

J. W. Beardsley of Watkins, N. Y., burned and mangled.

The coroner has numbered each of the 25 bodies in the morgue consecutively, and noted the articles that have been found on each body that might lead to their identification.

Yesterday afternoon Justice Henry issued warrants for Henry Wooley, engineer of train No. 6, and Conductor Burt N. Scott. Wooley was put under $3000 bail for appearance next Monday. He could not furnish the bail and was taken to jail. It was learned that Conductor Scott had gone to Port Huron, and after Justice Henry had heard the engineer's statement of the collision he ordered the officer to telegraph to Port Huron to have Scott arrested. Scott, however, voluntarily returned last night.

Engineer Wooley's Statement.

Engineer Wooley made this statement to Justice Henry: "When my engine was coupled on the train at the depot, Conductor Scott asked me if I was ready to go. I said, no. I had not oiled my engine yet, and I took my oilcan and got off at the side farthest from the depot on the south side. Scott came around on my side of the engine and handed my orders and said to me: 'No. 9 has gone through. The dispatcher is crazy about us not getting out of here.'

"I hurried up and got through oiling, and at that time Conductor Scott asked me if I was ready to go. I asked him if he was sure No. 9 had gone through. He said: 'Yes, she has.' My fireman heard that. After he said that No. 9 had gone through I asked him how the board was. He said: 'All clear; look out for the board at Bellevue.' I got upon my seat and started the engine. I did not pass any switch engine, as had been reported, on the double track. After I got into the yards I saw a headlight. I thought at first it was the switch engine, but in a moment I saw she was coming too fast.

"I shut the throttle and stopped the train and was standing still when No. 9 struck my engine. I went to get off, but before I could do so I was thrown against the tank and my side was hurt. I asked my fireman after the wreck if he remembered what Conductor Scott had said to him. He said he did. He told me that No. 9 had gone through. I saw Conductor Scott after the wreck. He was much excited. I asked him in regard to the order again. He muttered something, and said that he thought that No. 9 had gone."

Railroad men say, however, that even if Scott had made the statement attributed to him by Wooley, this would not have justified the engineer in disobeying his orders.

The coroner's jury will begin an investigation next Monday.

After the accident the maimed and injured were conveyed to the Nicholas Memorial hospital in this city.

Happened on a Curve.

From Nicholas a curve begins which forms almost a spiral between there and the point where the trains collided, so it was impossible for either to see the other until their headlights were near enough together to blind the eyes of the engineers. They had scarcely time to reverse, apply the airbrakes and save themselves before the collision occurred. The Raymond & Whitcomb stood the shock without more than a shudder, excepting the baggage car, which had its front end stove in. None of the passengers on that train were injured beyond a severe shaking up.

On the other train all the horror was experienced. The frail day coaches behind the baggage car went to splinters. The train was made up of 13 coaches, the first four of them being telescoped. The passengers were caught in their seats and the general mass of ruins, and to add to their misery the burning lamps exploded, and in a moment the four cars were a sheet of flames. The two engines were a total wreck. The Battle Creek fire department did heroic work.

At the Morgue.

While everything was done that experienced hands could do to relieve the remains of their ghastly appearance, the scene at the morgue after the dead were taken out appalled the stoutest hearts. The dead were ranged along the side of a dark basement, which was illuminated by a feeble, flickering jet. They rested on sheets of canvas, and a covering of the same material was over them.

No one, after a careful examination of some of the bodies, could say which was the male and which a female. Not a shred of clothing was left upon them. The best preserved corpse was that of a boy about 12 years of age. A fringe of hair was left about the ears and the base of the skull. The upper part of the head was gone. It had been consumed by the flames.

A portion of the brains protruded and was of a white-yellowish color. They had been literally cooked. The boy's body was free from any bruises or cuts. The upper portion of the body and legs were not badly burned, and an examination would lead to the belief that the poor lad had not been fortunate enough to receive any blow severe enough to cause death, and must have perished by fire in full consciousness of his fate.

C. T. Beardsley of Springfield, Mass., one of the passengers on the wrecked cars, says Dr. Carter H. Osborne and wife of Southport, Conn., and Castor Rice of Brookside, Vt., were in the car with him. He has searched for them unavailingly since the wreck. They are supposed to be among the dead.

Freight and Coal Trains Collide.

TRENTON, Oct. 21.—Three men were killed and four seriously injured on the New Jersey side of the Yardley bridge, about four miles from this city. A fruit train and a coal train of the Reading railroad collided.

TOLD A FALSEHOOD.

What Police Commissioners Say of Dr. Parkhurst.

FIGHT AGAINST TAMMANY

And Not a Movement For Betterment of Morals.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—If the ears of Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst did not burn yesterday afternoon, it was not because he did not receive more than an ordinary amount of consideration at the hands of the board of police commissioners. Several volleys of hot shot were poured into him and the society which bears his name, by not only Superintendent Byrnes, Inspector Williams and Captain Devery, but by the police commissioners themselves.

DR. CHARLES H. PARKHURST.

It all came about in connection with a petition from Dr. Parkhurst regarding Police Captain Devery and the Eleventh precinct, in which was stated that gambling and disorderly houses were rife in that precinct, and no endeavors were put forth to check them. The petition was last week referred to Superintendet Byrnes, with instructions to cause a thorough investigation into the charges preferred by Dr. Parkhurst.

The superintendent in his report submitted to the board this afternoon said that he had instructed Inspector Williams to make an investigation, and besides that he had detailed two of his detectives to visit the places designated in the petition as gambling and disorderly houses.

In no instance were there found violations of the law, although the places were visited at irregular hours during the night and day. Inspector Williams reported that he had given the matter his closest attention and investigation, and that the statements that there were gambling houses and disorderly houses in the precinct were untrue.

"A Deliberate Falsehood."

"And anybody who says so," the report continues, "tells a deliberate falsehood, and has no regard for truth or moral obligations. The accusations made are false in every detail, and were made because Captain Devery caused the arrest and conviction of the superintendent of the society for blackmail."

Captain Devery reported that he had detailed officers to visit every house mentioned, and not the slightest sign of a violation of the law was discovered. He concluded by saying that there had not been since he took command of the precinct any gambling or disorderly houses in the district.

"I move," said Commissioner McLean, after the reports were concluded, "that Captain Devery and Inspector Williams be allowed to bring charges of malicious libel against the signers of the petition."

"I think that rather premature," said President Martin, "and then again I do not think that the motion extends far enough. The same privilege should be allowed the superintendent and the board of police commissioners also."

"Why not the entire force?" asked Mr. Sheehan, earnestly.

"I'll amend my motion to include these persons," said Mr. McLean.

When the motion was put President Martin said: "I will oppose the motion because no request has been made by either Captain Devery, Inspector Williams or Superintendent Byrnes to begin such a suit, and I consequently believe it to be premature. On these grounds alone I vote no."

Mr. Sheehan voted "no" for the same reasons and Mr. McLean voted "yes."

To Down Tammany.

Mr. McClave was absent. Then Mr. Sheehan said: "I believe it will be conceded that since I became a member of this board I have cheerfully and willingly given to the Parkhurst society all information that laid in my power. I was inclined to the belief that he was doing good and meritorious work. Now I believe that I was entirely mistaken in my belief. I have received information, and it has been given out publicly through the press, that this Parkhurst society is not a fight against the immorality of the city, but against Tammany hall. I believe now that the society's aim is not a movement for the betterment of the moral standing of the city, and I would suggest that no further notice be paid to any communication received from the Parkhurst society."

Train Wreckers Foiled.

GEORGETOWN, Mass., Oct. 21.—A bold attempt was made to wreck the midnight freight or the early passenger train near the freight depot in this town. The switch light had been removed, iron was driven into a frog and barrels and lumber piled upon the track. There would probably have been a serious accident but for the freight agent's early visit to the yard.

Charged With Murder.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 21.—Frank Rich, an Italian fruit vender, aged 25, is held under $5000 bonds for the murder of Mrs. Nicholas Beck. Rich had an altercation with Mrs. Beck Oct. 11, and assaulted her. A blow felled her and her arm was broken. Blood poisoning set in, and she died yesterday.

During the coming campaigns, both State and Municipal, the DAILY LEDGER feels compelled to make a charge for all political matter, whether in the reading or advertising columns. This applies to all communications, letters, challenges, replies, squibs, comments, etc. The terms will be reasonable to all parties and can be had upon application.

Readers should keep in mind that much of the political matter appearing in newspapers is paid matter, although unsigned and unmarked, or credited to other papers, and does not always represent the sentiment of the paper. Editorial matter appears in this column only.

AT THE WICKET.

Saturday an Off Day Among the Secret Societies.

None of the secret societies of the city, as far as known, meet on Saturday evenings. The first of the week seems to be the favorite nights, over two-thirds of the meetings being on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday evenings, and they are divided very equally among the three.

The funeral of Capt. C. B. Newton on Sunday, will probably be one of the largest secret society funerals ever held in this vicinity, as he was prominent and popular in all the branches of Odd Fellowship and as a Knight of Pythias. Although not prominent in the Grand Army he had many friends among the soldiers. Mt. Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F. of this city will attend in a body, taking the 1.45 train to Neponset.

Two candidates will be initiated at the meeting of Merry Mount lodge, A. O. U. W., next Tuesday evening.

The Rebekahs.

Amana Lodge No. 96 Daughters of Rebekah, held a sale, and gave an entertainment at Odd Fellow's Hall South Braintree last evening. Ice cream, cake and fancy articles were on sale, a large number were present and listened to the following programme, which was much shorter than expected, owing to illness, and non-appearance of some of the talent engaged.

Piano solo,—Mrs. C. E. Merchant of East Weymouth.

Dance,—Miss Andrey Rhines of Quincy.

Song,—Mrs. Brainard Dyer of South Braintree.

After the entertainment, social intercourse was engaged in, and a general good time enjoyed.

Among those present from Quincy were Mrs. N. B. Furnald, Mrs. George Monk, Mrs. C. G. Batson, Mrs. H. P. Furnald, Miss Jennie Davis and Miss M. Lizzie Furnald.

The handsome quilt put on shares, went to Quincy. Mrs. C. G. Batson being the one drawing the lucky number. The entertainment and sale was a financial success in every respect. SILENT ONE.

MANY WERE CONCERNED.

The Plans of the Runaway Boys as Told by a Stay-at-home.

It is now believed that there were between fifteen and twenty boys concerned in the runaway movement but that they all backed out with the exception of the Clare, Baker and Smith boys, and it it is thought that some of the stay-at-homes can tell more about the three missing ones if they choose.

Friday Officer Furnald, who has been at work on the case since last Sunday, interviewed one of the boys who was with the three last Friday and from him the boys' original plan was learned.

It seems that the purpose of the boys was to go to Houghs Neck and steal the yacht Beatrice. They were then to sail to Germantown and steal an old cannon from the Sailors' Snug Harbor.

This done they were to sail for Halifax. Arriving at that port they were to provision the yacht for a long voyage and set sail for Africa. They had read that the natives of Africa lived in huts made of ivory and their intention was to purchase as many of these huts as possible, tear them down and ship the ivory thus obtained to America.

THE RUNAWAYS.

The Boys Were in Boston This Morning and

ONE LAD HAS RETURNED HOME.

Clare and Baker Told Him They Were Going to Canada.

Walter Smith one of the three boys who ran away last Saturday night returned home this morning and tells the following story of his wanderings.

He and the Baker boy remained in the fields near the Clare boys house Saturday night until 1 o'clock when Willie Clare came out.

They then took a boat and rowed to Lelois yard where they took another boat and loaded their goods and rowed to Houghs Neck.

They put him ashore and went out and got a yacht and came ashore and took him aboard and then they went to Peddocks island.

Sunday morning they went to Hull and took the 12.20 boat for Boston. They stayed in Boston all day Sunday, getting one of the $100 bills changed at the Boston & Albany depot.

Sunday night they took the 7 o'clock train from the Eastern depot for Portland, where they arrived Monday morning. They purchased some clothing. They then took the train to Bangor, but got off the train at Herman's Pond and walked to Bangor.

At Bangor they bought some blankets and meat and went into the woods and built a hut. They made several trips to Bangor for eatables.

Tuesday one of the boys put $200 in an envelope and sent it to the John P. Lovell Arms Co., Boston, with an order for two Winchester rifles, two shot guns, revolvers, etc.

Up to Thursday the Smith boy had been told that the money was some that the other boys earned, but as he doubted it they finally told him that they got it from the bank.

When Smith learned this he said he was going home and all three therefore started for Boston where they arrived this morning.

Before they left Bangor, a telegram was sent to Boston countermanding the order for guns and requesting that the money be sent back.

This morning in Boston, Willie Clare wrote a letter to his mother, and bought a present for his brother which the Smith boy sent by mail.

They also gave Smith Mr. Clare's watch. When Smith left them Clare and Baker said they were going to take a train in five minutes for Canada.

Mr. Clare, upon hearing the boy's story, immediately telephoned to John P. Lovell Arms Co., and learned that they had received the money and the telegram but had not sent the money back.

After interviewing the Smith boy at length Mr. Clare returned to Boston and will try to intercept the boys. He believes that the Canada part of it may be a bluff and that the boys will return to Bangor to get the money returned by the Lovell company.

Mr. Clare has not much of an opinion of the police, especially those of Boston. They were notified of the runaway at 8 A. M., Sunday, yet the boys were in the city Sunday, got the $100 bill changed in one depot, and left for Portland by another. And again this morning were about the Eastern depot together for some time and were not seen or questioned.

The Clare Boy Sorry.

LATER—The letter which the Clare boy wrote to his mother has been received. It was mailed in Boston this morning, as the Smith boy says, bearing the postmark of 8 A. M.

It is a four page letter in which he states he is sorry that he left so pleasant a home. He wished he was back, but having spent most of the money he was determined to go to Canada and should not return until he was able to make the amount good with interest.

BRAINTREE TOWN MEETING

No Reduction to be Made in Appropriation for Schoolhouse.

Last night there was a special town meeting, called at the request of the committee entrusted with the building of a new school building in East Braintree, for the purpose of being reinstructed by the town ere proceeding further with the construction of said building. As was to have been expected there was a large gathering, including quite a number of young ladies from East Braintree who occupied the gallery.

The Town Clerk called the meeting to order, read the warrant, consisting of five articles, and called for the choice of a moderator. Charles G. Sheppard was elected to the position.

On motion of John V. Scollard Article 5, "To choose any committee, or hear the report of any committee and act thereon," was taken up and Daniel Potter, secretary of the building committee, made an informal report explanatory of the doings and position of the committee, the helpless fix in which it found itself relative to the borrowing of money necessary for the erection of the building, the town having fixed the rate at 5 per cent. and the stringency of the money market for the time being, such, that it was impossible to proceed further without additional instruction from the town. Hence the present meeting.

The report made by Mr. Potter, not being a formal report necessarily obliged him to give his individual opinion, which if the report had been formally written out, this would not have been necessary.

John V. Scollard moved that report be accepted and Article 2,—"To see if the town reinstruct the building committee to proceed with the construction of a new schoolhouse in East Braintree, as voted at the last annual meeting," be taken up and considered. This was agreed to.

Elmer E. Abercrombie moved that the whole matter be referred to the annual March meeting.

John W. West objected to the motion, and after giving his reasons for doing so, announced that he had been appointed a committee to present to the meeting, through the moderator, a copy of the resolutions passed at a public meeting of the citizens of East Braintree on Wednesday night.

The moderator read the resolutions to the meeting, which will be found in our report of the East Braintree meeting in another column.

John Cavanagh opposed Mr. Abercrombie's motion and advocated the deciding of the question here and now, the financial condition of the money market to the contrary notwithstanding.

Hon. F. A. Hobart favored the postponing of the question till the annual town meeting in March. Mr. Hobart argued that East Braintree did not require a large schoolhouse, such as was proposed, and that there was not children enough to fill it.

This brought I. W. Horne, Supt. of Schools to his feet, who said that there was an attendance of 186 at East Braintree schools for the month of September.

John V. Scollard wanted the question settled now. The meeting had been convened for that purpose.

Hon. Edward Avery helped the settlement of the matter largely by a few timely remarks. He moved the adoption of a motion to the effect that the committee be instructed to make new contracts if thought necessary, and go ahead and have the new schoolhouse ready for occupancy by first of Sept. 1894.

James Ellsworth, T. A. Watson, John Kelley and others spoke on the subject. The whole controversy was finally settled by the adoption of Mr. Avery's motion.

ART. 3. To see if the town will accept the laying out as town ways, Fountain and Boscobel streets, as made by the Selectmen, and appropriate a sum of money therefor.

The meeting accepted the streets, and $250 was appropriated.

ART. 4. To see if the town will accept the laying out as a town way, the new road leading from Holbrook avenue to Union street, crossing land of Asa French, as made by the Selectmen, and appropriate a sum of money therefor.

Accepted and $300 was appropriated.

Meeting adjourned without date.

Items of Interest from All Parts of Quincy.

Mrs. John A. Pratt and Mrs. John O. Hall are spending the day at Cohasset.

A LEDGER representative accompanied the Y. M. C. A. foot ball team to Bridgewater today.

Daniel McKinnon of South Quincy, has returned from a short visit in Prince Edward Island.

The Wollaston people will be shocked to learn of the death of the young wife of Mr. Fred K. Belcher on Friday morning of typhoid fever. She was 22 years of age and was born in South Easton. Funeral services will be held at Wollaston Saturday at 10 A. M., and at Easton at 2.30 P. M.

Miss Sarah E. Veazie of Granite street leaves tonight with Miss Mary D. Foster and Warren Page for the World's fair, where they will meet Mrs. Page and spend a fortnight. Miss Veazie will then return to Quincy, and Miss Foster will continue on to Colorado with Mr. and Mrs. Page, where she will spend the winter.

BURGLARS IN TOWN.

They Felt the Financial Pinch and Helped Themselves to Clothing.

Burglars were in town last night and effected an entrance into the Granite Clothing store in Durgin & Merrill's block by breaking the glass in the back window and turning the key in the lock.

Once inside they overhauled the clothing on the counters and fitted themselves with new suits, including overcoats, leaving their cast-off garments on the floor.

Mr. Porter, the manager, says he thinks two suits were all that was taken but he can not tell exactly until an account of stock is taken, but it includes two or three suits of clothes, five or six overcoats, stockings, suspenders, etc.

The first knowledge the firm had of the break was when the store was opened this morning.

WEYMOUTH.

The annual ball of the North Weymouth base ball association was given in Engine hall last evening.

A harvest concert will be given in the Universalist church at North Weymouth on Sunday evening

The marriage of Miss Alice Manuel of North Weymouth and Mr. William Willis of Hingham took place Wednesday evening.

The engagement is announced of Miss Martha Thompson of North Weymouth and Mr. David Barry of Hingham.

At the annual meeting of the Agricultural society this week, J. A. Cushman of North Weymouth was elected president; B. F. Poole of Rockland, J. A. Fogg of South Weymouth and J. B. Benson of Quincy, vice presidents; H. W. Dyer of South Weymouth secretary; Gordon Willis of South Weymouth treasurer. Vacancies in board of directors were filled by the election of Frank Burrell of Weymouth, G. H. Tower of North Weymouth and William Bond of Weymouth.

Death of a Veteran.

On Tuesday a telegram was received in South Braintree from Togus, Me., announcing the death on that day of William A. Bishop, who had been an inmate of the Soldiers' Home of that town for some time.

Mr. Bishop was a native of Bradford, Mass., but had been long a resident and familiar figure in South Braintree.

He was a veteran of the late civil war, having belonged in the Third Massachusetts Cavalry, acting as bugler throughout the entire conflict.

Mr. Bishop belonged to Gen. Sylvanus Thayer Post 87, G. A. R., of this town, and the flag over the headquarters was run up and has floated at half-mast since tidings of his death were received.

The remains arrived in town on Thursday, and the funeral took place yesterday afternoon, the services being in charge of the post. The interment was in Mount Wollaston cemetery, Quincy.

Mr. Bishop was 74 years of age, and has left a wife and one daughter, Mrs. George A. French of this town.

The archives of the port of Southampton, England, contain a curious naval law of the fourteenth century. ### SHE WORE TROUSERS.

San Francisco's Polite Mayor Acts the Gallant Against His Will.

Mrs. de Forest, the lady who declares her desire and intention to henceforth walk the earth in pantaloons and other masculine articles of attire in preference to those usually considered as proper to her sex, astonished Mayor Ellert by calling upon him at his office recently. The mayor, however, was soon relieved of his fears as to what the visit might portend by an explanation from the lady which set him at ease. All she wanted was that his honor would assure her of immunity from arrest, as she was aware that she had rendered herself liable to being taken into custody owing to her peculiarity of attire.

The modest mayor bashfully looked at the floor while the lady explained her errand, and then assured her that the chief of police was the official to whom she should apply.

"Indeed!" said the lady. "But where will I find him?"

"At the old city hall," said the mayor.

"But I'm afraid," said the lady, "that he will not grant my request unless I come well recommended—well introduced, that is. Now, Mr. Mayor," and here the lady smiled very coaxingly, "would you mind going with me to call on the chief?"

"Of course not, madam—that is—I mean to say—why, yes, certainly, certainly."

But as he said it and thought of the possibilities of the trip down town so accompanied his honor groaned in spirit.

So a few minutes later the mayor was seen to leave the city hall and start down town accompanied by a lady tastefully attired in a stovepipe hat, creased pants, a Willie boy coat with long tails and everything else that goes to make up a modern everyday dude. No wonder that his progress down town was attended by admiring glances from scores of eyes.—San Francisco Examiner.

THE MIDWINTER FAIR.

It Will Have an Electrical Tower With Over 5,000 Lights.

The Midwinter fair is assured of having a feature that will be quite as unique as anything seen at Chicago. It is to be an electrical tower 266 feet high and containing lights enough to turn night into day in Concert valley.

The framework of the tower will be gracefully constructed and decorated with over 5,000 incandescent lights of different colors. It will be supplied with an elevator running to a height of 220 feet. There will be pavilions on the ground floor for the use of the public. Flanking the open space will be four Moorish pavilions containing four stories and decorated in oriental colors.

The base of the tower will occupy a space 50 feet square, while the first gallery, 80 feet from the ground, will have a seating capacity of 200. Three other galleries will extend beyond this and will seat several hundred persons. The topmost gallery will be within six feet of the pinnacle. In it will be a great searchlight. On the extreme top of the tower will be placed a large gold ball bearing the emblem of the state—a California bear.

Fully 8,000 people can be seated on the tower at one time, while on the outer edge on the circular walk there will be room for several thousands. There are eight approaches to the tower, practically making it open on all sides and corners.

While the principal object of the tower is for lighting purposes, it will be used as a grand band stand, from which music will be given throughout the day and evening. The tower was designed by a Chicago architect, but all the work on the structure will be done in San Francisco. When completed, it will cost $80,000.—San Francisco Letter.

A Record Breaker.

It is not easy to predict what will happen with our ocean steamers next. Here is the Lucania, the new Cunarder, on her second trip, wresting the western record from the Paris and reducing it to 5 days 13 hours and 25 minutes.

This remarkable trip is made, too, at an uncertain season of the year, when five or six days of sustained fast running cannot be safely counted on. But the wonderful part of these performances is that they are no longer exceptional events, but are kept up with as much regularity as the sailing of the boats on their appointed days.

There is now a fleet on the Atlantic line whose arrival in New York within six days after leaving the other side is scarcely problematical. The only question is will the record of a few hours over five days be beaten?

The Cunarders now hold the laurels. But the Paris belongs to an American line, and it will not be her fault if she does not recover them. — New York World.

Lord Dunraven.

I am somewhat surprised that writers in our contemporaries speak of Lord Dunraven as if he were a stranger on this side the water. He has been here twice before, besides touring westward among the Rockies, and his book entitled the "Great Divide" was among the most intelligent contributions to contemporaneous photography ever published. As I recall it, he first came here in 1870, when he was known by his courtesy title, Lord Adair, and again in 1875 as Lord Dunraven. His seat in the peers is under another title, that of an English baron, his title of earl being Irish. Lord Dunraven explored Canada and Newfoundland on sporting tours thoroughly. He was in the last Gladstonean ministry and altogether is considerably more than a simple yachtsman.—Joe Howard.

American Elk For England.

Colonel Bill Root left tonight with a carload of fine elk for England. They are for the magnificent estate of Sir Peter Walker, near London. The elk are from the plains of Wyoming, and it is the biggest herd that has ever been seen in captivity in this part of the country.—Laramie (Wy.) Cor. Denver Republican.

Thayer Academy.

The senior middle class gave a spread, yesterday afternoon, in the reception room.

The work on the new building is being rapidly pushed forward. The foundation on the east side is nearly finished. In a week or so the foundation will be ready for the builders. With the rough driveway, the rocks, the piles of dirt, the yard resembles the building of Carthage, only the fragrant honey that smells like time (thyme) is absent.

Some of the new busts for the reading room have come and have been set up. Several art photographs, also have been framed.

While the reading room is receiving so much attention of late, the chapel should not be overlooked. The photographs there are of great interest to the students of Greek and Roman history.

Miss Thompson's rooms are well worth paying a visit to. They are a near approach to ideal schoolrooms.

Hotel Arrivals.

The new arrivals at the Hancock house are F. G. Hussey, Boston, T. E. Pardue, Waltham, C. F. Hanson, Waltham, G. W. Dunklee, Boston, Jas. Bean, N. Adams, J. A. Carroll, Boston, H. Billings and wife, Boston, Mrs. C. Tirrell, Miss J. Corey, Boston, Mr. Emery Fellows, N. H.

GAS COMPANY LIABLE.

Supreme Court Rules Against the Citizens' Gaslight Company of Quincy.

An interesting ruling is made by the full bench of the supreme court, says the Herald, in the case of the Merchants' National Bank of Gardiner, Me., vs. the Citizens' Gaslight Company of Quincy, which was an action on a promissory note of $600 given in the name of the defendant by C. S. J. Ruggles as its treasurer.

The defendant denied that Ruggles was its treasurer, and claimed that he had no authority to give notes.

The note was discounted by the plaintiff in the usual course of business, without notice that the legality of the election of Ruggles as treasurer was questioned.

The court says: "Upon consideration of the decisions we think it fair to say that the making and endorsing of negotiable paper is to be presumed to be within the power of the treasurer of a manufacturing and trading corporation, whenever from the nature of its ordinary business as usually conducted, the corporation is naturally to be expected to use its credit in carrying on commercial transactions.

"It is no less for the interest of all that if negotiable paper is to be employed, its validity should not be open to objections which would impair its usefulness, by requiring at every step an inquiry into the authority by which it is issued."

The court further holds that gas and electric light companies should be classed as manufacturing and trading corporations, and be governed by the general rule applicable to such corporations.

A majority of the court finds that the jury was rightly instructed that the treasurer of the defendant company by virtue of his office, had authority to sign a note which would bind the corporation.

In a dissenting opinion by Chief Justice Field, with whom Judge Allen concurs, it is held that the instruction to the jury was erroneous.

BRAINTREE.

Rev. Edwin S. Carr of Cambridge will occupy the pulpit of First Church Sunday.

The Ladies' Relief corps gave a harvest supper, sale and entertainment at the Town Hall on Wednesday evening. It was well attended and enjoyed by those who were present.

Benefit Circle of Court Atumna Loyal, K. and L., gave a supper and social at the home of sister Howe, on Thursday evening. A nice and enjoyable occasion for the good number present.

Oct. 30th the People's party have made arrangements to hold a rally at the Town hall. The speakers expected are Mr. Green and Mr. Legate of Boston. Thomas A. Watson, Esq., will preside.

The funeral services of Mr. W. P. Bishop were held on Friday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Ellis officiating. Members of the G. A. R. were in attendance. The interment was at the Wollaston cemetery.

The "Butcher Boy" left this morning to attend the firemen's muster at Milford, Mass. There are five hundred dollars in prizes. There are nineteen entries but, nevertheless, we expect that the celebrated "tub" will secure the first prize this time.

Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Wallace and family left yesterday for their winter residence in Boston.

Thursday the five-year-old boy of David Eldridge of East Braintree disappeared, and fears were entertained that while amusing himself playing on the edge of the factory pond, had fallen into it and been drowned. Search was made and continued up till afternoon when the body of the poor boy was found. His father is a mackintosh rubber coat maker, an educated and intelligent man. He had been out of work for some time, and had just gone to work Thursday, and the sorrowful accident has excited a good deal of sympathy for the family in East Braintree.

Wednesday evening a supper and entertainment was given in the Town hall, under the auspices of the Woman's Relief corps. There was quite a number present, as was to be expected, for this organization, comprising the best women of the town, is one of our favorite organization; whose entertainments and suppers yield only in excellence, to the purposes and objects sought to be attained by the same.

A Dead Bee.

Silent in a lily tent,
Dead, the bandit lies,
Over him the white leaves bent,
Shutting out the skies.

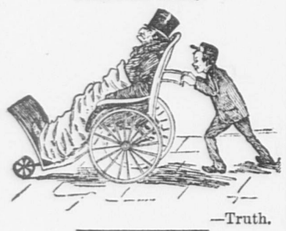

Clad in all his shining gold,
When the soft wind blows
You may see him here—the bold
Robber of the rose.

Strange the fate that brought him here
Thus to die amid
All the honey-plunder dear
In this lily hid!

Yet how just it seems that he,
Folded in this bloom,
Sleeps in death—a honeybee
Within a honey tomb!

CAN'T SEE ANYTHING GREEN.

A Little Boat of Emerald Hue Fooled the Cruiser and Monitor Too.

A report is about to be sent to the navy department regarding certain experiments which have been conducted in this harbor during the summer under the auspices of the torpedo station to determine upon measures to be employed by torpedo boats to escape detection with searchlights. The Cushing has been the boat in use, and much progress has been made. The torpedo boat at no time used both her boilers in steaming about, and consequently did not run as fast as she might.

She was tried painted in several colors, but was discovered until a dull green hue was used. Then she ran into the harbor before the powerful searchlights of the cruiser San Francisco and monitor Miantonomoh as well as the big light at the station could detect her. She got within a few feet of each of the war vessels, and in a fine position to do great damage with her torpedoes.

On last Monday night the Cushing entered the harbor, and although both vessels were looking for her she passed completely around the island on which is the torpedo station twice without being detected. These experiments are said to be more successful than any carried on in the same line by any nation.

The green appears to be the proper color for torpedo boats. In the glare of the searchlight it is quite like water. At times it resembles the moss grown rocks. —Newport Special.

ASKS FOR CLOTURE.

Voorhees Wants a Vote After Thirty Days' Debate.

DEFINITE POLICY NEEDED.

Status of Repeal Depends on One Small Point.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—When the senate entered upon the fourth installment of the legislative day of Tuesday, Mr. Voorhees (Dem., Ind.) gave notice of an amendment to the rules. He said it was substantially the amendment proposed by Mr. Hill, with some additions. It provides whenever any bill or resolution is pending before the senate as unfinished business, and shall have been debated 30 days, any senator at any time may move to fix a time for voting thereon.

Such motion shall not be amendable or debatable and shall be immediately put, and, if passed by a majority of the senate, the vote upon the bill or resolution and upon all amendments pending shall be held at the date fixed in the original motion, without debate or amendment, except by unanimous consent.

During the pendency of the motion to fix a date for the vote, and also at the time fixed by the senate for a vote, no motion of any kind shall be entertained until the bill or resolution shall have been finally voted upon.

The senate then, upon a motion of Mr. Voorhees, proceeded to the consideration of executive business.

The senate opened its doors at 3 o'clock. The house bill to suspend for the year 1893 the law requiring $100 worth of labor to be expended on improvements made on each mining claim was passed, after an amendment excluding corporations from its benefit. A conference with the house was asked. The repeal bill was then taken up, and Mr. Peffer (Pop., Kan.) offered a free coinage amendment. With some slight exceptions, it revives the law of 1837. Mr. Peffer then resumed his speech against the bill until 3 o'clock, when the senate took a recess.

A Talk With Senator Gorman.

Senator Gorman, who has been from the first one of the shrewdest promoters of a feasible solution of the pending deadlock on the silver question in the senate, says, concerning the status of the silver problem:

"All there is in it is the question of limit of time for the continuance of the purchases of silver. It may be a little while before the matter on this line can be fully adjusted, but it is certain to come out that way. There never was any other way. That I have claimed from the first. As I understand it, the president, while preferring unconditional repeal, is not disposed to interpose objection to the fixing of a limit when silver purchases shall stop.

"I think Jan. 1, 1895, a fair limit. Understand this does not mean the final disposition of the silver question, but it wipes out all existing conditions which are of doubtful expediency, and then we can agree upon some adjustment. The extremes of both sides have caused a very wrong judgment on silver. The country will find that silver is an indispensable medium of a great commercial union. It always has been and possibly always will be, but conditions change with the development of things, and sometimes it is necessary to adjust to these new conditions. That is what we want to do with silver, and that is what will be done.

Extremes Should Meet.

"Senator Sherman discussed this whole question before congress met. It was then proposed to repeal the whole silver act of 1890. When congress got together it was proposed only to repeal the purchasing clause. This had some appearance of a direct blow at silver and naturally rallied all the silver advocates in its support. In my opinion all the interests of the country ask is some definite policy. By fixing a time in the future we will work up to the requirements of the monetary operations of our great and growing country.

"I hardly think that the silver state senators will object to this solution, but of course no movements can be held in that direction until we are sure of our own footing. Some of our own people have been very extreme in their advocacy of unconditional repeal, but that is impracticable.

"If the administration acquiesces heartily in the proposed solution it will probably carry all its friends. Whatever the position of the Republican senators may be, I am confident they will not obstruct. They may differ as to the limit of time, but that can be easily adjusted."

May Pass Next Week.

Seven or eight Democratic senators visited Secretary Carlisle as the representative of the administration at the treasury, and submitted to him a proposition to take the place of the repeal measure now before the senate, which they thought practically all the Democratic senators would support. Secretary Carlisle dissented from some of the terms of the proposition, and showed wherein they would in practical operation be objectionable.

There is excellent reason for saying, however, that before the middle of next week the repeal bill will pass to take effect not later than the first of October, probably with a provision authorizing the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds not exceeding $200,000,000 and coin the seigniorage now in the treasury.

This, it is said, would not be considered a surrender by the administration, and it is stated on reliable authority that the bill passed in this shape would not be objectionable to the president.

In the House.

The house passed a bill providing for the urgent deficiencies of the government. It appropriates $335,000.

A joint resolution was passed providing for the removal of derelicts in the north Atlantic ocean.

After the morning hour had expired, the house went into committee of the whole, and Mr. Bynum (Dem., Ind.) called up the joint resolution to remit half the duty on goods exhibited in the World's fair and sold by the exhibitors. It was debated at length, amended in one or two small ways, and then the committee arose, reported to the house, and it was passed.

BRADFORD, Vt., Oct. 21.—Superintendent H. E. Folsom of this division of the Boston and Maine railroad was forced into insolvency yesterday. His liabilities are estimated at $50,000, with small assets.

VAN ALEN CONFIRMED.

Senate Makes Him Ambassador to Italy by a Close Vote.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The senate in executive session confirmed the nomination of J. J. Van Alen by a vote of 39 to 32. The opposition to his appointment was based upon the alleged fact that his contribution of $50,000 to the Rhode Island Democratic campaign fund was but purchase money for an ambassadorship.

JAMES J. VAN ALEN.

James J. Van Alen is the only son of the late General J. H. Van Alen, who was one of the first cottagers to build a residence on the rear portion of the Ochre Point property. Mr. Van Alen married a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Astor and has been prominent in social circles in this country and abroad.

The new ambassador is master of several foreign languages, and by considerable travel abroad has been otherwise fitted for the post for which he is named. He is a member of many of the fashionable clubs of New York and elsewhere. His children have resided abroad, where they are being educated, since their mother died.

THOMPSON AT LIBERTY.

Verdict Against the Evidence In the Manslaughter Case.

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—George Thompson, who last month was convicted of the crime of manslaughter in causing the death of Mary F. Thompson, his wife, was yesterday afternoon set free. He was tried in the Suffolk superior criminal court, and a jury, upon the evidence, found him guilty.

Judge Dewey, who presided at the trial, set aside that verdict as being against the evidence and the weight of evidence. Thompson had no legal adviser at the trial. He conducted the case in his own behalf.

The indictment charged that he beat his wife on Aug. 1 last, and in consequence of such beating she died. The principal witness for the government was his mother-in-law. Thompson was at one time employed as salesman in a well-known dry goods house on Washington street. He has no relations in this state and but few friends. He, however, right along protested his innocence of the crime charged to him, and his steadfastness has now reaped for him the harvest of freedom.

It was but a few days ago that the pleadings in the case were increased by the addition of a motion to set aside the verdict of guilty and grant a new trial. This document was not in the writing of Thompson, for it bore a radical difference from his signature, which was affixed to it. The judge at the trial thereupon investigated the case and was satisfied that the evidence did not warrant the verdict that was returned.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Gain Noted Through the Week Has Been Principally In Hope.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

There has been much gain in hope and a little in business. Assurances that the repeal bill will soon be passed have again been accepted by traders as reason for buying things speculative at higher prices, and with money abundant on call, $88,000,000 having been received in this city within 10 weeks, speculation in stocks and products has an unusual stimulus and would have explained even more but for continued embarrassment of industries.

The state of the treasury excites some remark, its gold surplus having fallen to $83,325,709. Imports are far behind those of last year, and the accumulation of goods in bond is unusually large, so that customs as well as internal revenue receipts decreased heavily. The root of the difficulty is the decrease in consumption of all kinds, and in that respect the week has brought no perceptible change.

The failures this week number 346 in the United States, against 210 last year, and 29 in Canada, against 25 last year. The list includes one large bank at Providence and three southern banks, but the number of other failures in consequence of large liabilities is somewhat less than usual.

Nothing New Brought Out.

WESTFIELD, Mass., Oct. 21.—The inquest on the Chester bridge disaster was opened in the district courtroom here yesterday by Judge Stevens. He read over the names of the witnesses, and they responded by rising. All other people, with the exception of the reporters, were then excluded from the courtroom, and the witnesses were sworn. Without any prefatory remarks at all, Judge Stevens opened the inquest, but witnesses were first examined, without anything important or new being brought out.

A Mutinous Spirit on Board.

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—The barkentine James H. Hamlen, which has arrived at Charlestown from Port Elizabeth, South Africa, had some trouble with her crew on the voyage. Shortly after putting to sea the captain lost control of the officers, and Mate Johnson practically ran the ship. Captain Dunphy says that the trouble was not serious at any time, but that the men and subordinate officers made things very unpleasant.

Sir Andrew Clark Stricken.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Andrew Clark, the celebrated physician, has been stricken with paralysis. He was talking with a patient, when he suddenly fell to the floor insensible. Later in the day he partially recovered. On Wednesday he presided at the Royal College of Physicians during the Harveian oration.

Ansonia's Sensation.

ANSONIA, Conn., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Emma J. Howe has begun suit for divorce against Major J. Howe, alleging desertion. Mrs. Howe is one of the society leaders of this city and has a private fortune of more than $1,000,000. Her husband is president of the Ansonia Brass and Copper company.

Judge Newton Withdraws.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Judge Newton has resigned the presidency of the Coney Island Athletic club and severed his connection with it. He gives the reason that it interfered with his political aspirations.

BOLD HIGHWAYMEN

Assault Their Victim and Throw Him Into the River.

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—Attacked by three men, robbed and thrown into the Mystic river to drown, Nicholas Paquett is now in the hands of the police of Chelsea in a very much used-up condition. His cries as he struggled in the water were heard by the passengers on a passing streetcar. The trolley was detached by the conductor, and with it Paquett was rescued.

He told his story to the police in so straightforward a manner that they gave it the utmost credence. Paquett's story is that at about 11 o'clock he was on his way from Boston to Chelsea. The Chelsea bridge was very dark, and there was nobody in sight. He was near the first draw, when a tall, rough-looking man sprung from the shadow and seized him by the throat with strangling grasp.

Two others, smaller in stature but no less rough in appearance, jumped to their principal's assistance, and while one of them pinioned his arms, the other went through his pockets. In a wallet he had $50. This they took, and then lifting him clear from the ground attempted to throw him over the bridge's railing. He struggled violently, and catching hold of the uppermost rail clung to it.

For a few minutes they were unable to loosen his grip and he was able to cry out several times. Then one of them again seized him by the throat, effectually preventing further outcries. Finally, for all his struggles, they threw him overboard. He was bruised and almost stunned, but the cold water revived him, and as he came to the surface he saw that an electric car was approaching. He managed to make himself heard by the passengers and conductor, and by them was he rescued.

Paquett is 53 years old. He formerly worked in Chelsea in a sewing machine salesroom on Broadway. Some time ago he went to Providence, where he has since lived. Yesterday he came to Boston on business, and was on the way to his former lodgings in Chelsea when he was assaulted and so nearly lost his life.

THE MACHIAS ASHORE.

Her Powerful Engines, However, Enabled Her to Pull Off.

CHATHAM, Mass., Oct. 21.—The United States gunboat Machias was ashore on Chatham bars last evening, but was fortunate enough to get off again without material injury. Just at sunset the cruiser was sighted coming under a full head of steam from the northward and hugging the shore in what appeared to be rather dangerous proximity. The moon was shining clearly and the movements of the gunboat could be clearly seen from the outlook.

Suddenly the gunboat was seen to come to a sudden stop, and it was then discovered that she was aground close to the dangerous breaker, "Roaring Bull." No communication took place between the crew of the lifeboat and the Machias, and therefore no full particulars of the real cause of the accident could be assigned. The beach at the point mentioned runs out to a long distance, and the cruiser made the mistake of running too closely in shore.

The escape of the gunboat from her dangerous predicament was most lucky, and there is little doubt she would have pounded to pieces had she not been able to draw off by the aid of her powerful engines.

AN EXTENSION OF TIME

Would Result In Many Chinese Taking Out Registration Papers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The president sent to the senate a message transmitting the report of the secretary of state in reply to the Dolph resolution of inquiry concerning the attitude of China with regard to the extension of time for the registration of Chinese laborers. The report says:

While the government was not formally requested that the time for registration provided in the Geary law be extended, and no formal assurance has been given that if extended Chinese laborers in the United States will take out certificates, as provided by the act, the Chinese minister has repeatedly asserted in conference with the undersigned that his countrymen in the United States at the time of the passage of the act, on the advice of eminent counsel and in good faith, refrained from registering within the time allowed, and that it would be unjust to deny them another opportunity to register. The minister more than once has given assurance that an additional opportunity to register would afford his government great satisfaction.

Outraged by Whitecaps.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Ira Brooke and her two daughters have received several warnings lately that they were not wanted in Campbell county, but paid no attention to them. A band of men surrounded their house and burned it to the ground, with all the contents. The women barely escaped with their lives. Although the women were objectionable characters, the whitecaps will be prosecuted.

Expert Robbers at Groveland.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Oct. 21.—Cobban Bros.' hardware store at Groveland was burglarized. The safe was blown open and a small sum of money taken. Some silver watches and fancy articles were also stolen from the show case. The explosion worked destruction in a large stock of glass and crockery were in the store. The robbers were probably professionals.

Between Life and Death.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 21.—E. H. Trowbridge of this city is dangerously sick with a complication of diseases. He is one of the largest owners of Consolidated railroad stock. For many years he has been officially connected with many financial institutions of this city.

Dr. Schaff Dies of Paralysis.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Rev. Dr. Philip Schaff, regarded by many during his life as the greatest living authority on exegis and church history, died at his home in this city. Paralysis was the immediate cause of his death.

Went Off at Half-Cock.

ATHENS, Me., Oct. 21.—William Chapman was cleaning his double barrelled shotgun with both barrels and the trigger at half-cock, when it accidentally exploded, instantly killing the 6-year-old son of Jesse Wheeler.

No New Profession of Faith.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The general convention of the Universalist church closed yesterday and adjourned to meet in Meriden, Conn., two years hence. The proposed new profession of faith was not adopted.

Good News.

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 21.—The Appleton mills, which have been idle for a number of weeks, will start on full time Oct. 23. The mills employ 2000 hands.

ANOTHER WORLD'S EXPOSITION.

To Commemorate the Twentieth Century of the Christian Religion.

According to advices from Washington, New York may have a world's exposition if she wants it without controversy or competition. General Wheeler of Alabama introduced the following bill:

In order to commemorate the beginning of the twentieth century of the existence of the Christian religion and by appropriate ceremonies to express the profound reverence and thanks of the people for the advanced civilization and inestimable blessings vouchsafed to mankind by Christian teachings and example, a world's exposition shall be held in the city of New York, commencing as soon after Jan. 1, 1900, as the legislature of New York may prescribe, and continuing during so much of said year as may be provided by said legislature.

That the president of the United States shall, upon receiving official notice from the governor of the state of New York that the said state has enacted a law accepting the responsibility intrusted to it by this act, issue a proclamation inviting the nations of the earth to participate in said exposition.

That unless the state of New York enacts a law accepting said trust within three months after the next meeting of the legislature of said state this act shall be void and of no effect.

Speaking of the bill General Wheeler said: "The suggestion is entirely my own. No one from New York has spoken to me about it, and I have no assurance that she wants it. But she did make an effort to secure the Columbian exposition, and I thought she might like to undertake such a work as this. If she declines to assume the responsibility, why I shall believe that no other city would or could entertain it, and the whole matter will be at an end."

WATERSPOUTS GALORE.

The Steamer Thomas Anderson Meets With Thrilling and Unusual Experience.

The British tramp steamship Thomas Anderson, 16 days out from Hamburg, arrived in New York recently with a general cargo and some interesting data concerning Atlantic waterspouts. The vessel was 130 miles east of Sandy Hook Friday when First Officer Hardaker observed a heavy, black cloud. The mass of vapor writhed and rolled, and when it was half a mile dead ahead of the Anderson a solid bank of water suddenly rose from the sea. Whirling on its base, white with foam, the waterspout went up to meet the cloud. Half way to the edge of the scud the waterspout suddenly collapsed, and with a roar and a crash the whole mass of water tumbled back into the sea.

The Anderson 10 minutes later passed over the spot where the spout had risen. The ocean was still in turmoil, and the steamship rocked heavily. She had hardly crossed the disturbed area when the wind veered, and a few moments later four more spouts arose, two on each side of the steamship. They circled around in uncomfortable proximity, and while the vessel passed between them another rose directly astern. When the Anderson was a long way off, the spouts were still wheeling along the sea.

To Recognize War Operators.

A bill introduced in the senate by Mr. Hill of New York provides for the recognition of the services of the men who went to the front during the war in the capacity of telegraph operators, and who, although they may have served all through the great struggle, frequently exposed to the dangers of war and engaged in the most hazardous of undertakings, have never been classified as soldiers or enlisted men. The bill provides that all persons engaged in the operation and construction of military telegraph lines during the war of the rebellion are declared to have been a part of the army of the United States, and the secretary of war is directed to prepare a roll of such persons, and to issue to each upon application, unless it shall appear that his service was not creditably performed, a certificate of honorable discharge reciting the act and the term and character of the service. The bill expressly provides that it shall not be construed to entitle the persons mentioned to any pay, allowance, bounty or pension other than that heretofore received by them.

Zola to a Young Woman.

Amid the bountiful honors which have recently been bestowed upon Zola in England a good deal of comment has been excited by his reply to a young woman who asked him point blank if he would recommend her to read his books. The novelist sent this reply:

MADEMOISELLE—As long as a young lady is unmarried she is under the care of her parents. When she marries, she will do well to consult her husband. My view is that you may read my books, provided your parents or your husband gives you leave.

The critics want to know whether Zola is still so deep in the slough of mediævalism as to think that a woman who may take the responsibility of marriage may not choose the literature which she will read.

Rats In the White House.

Just now the executive mansion is troubled with a plague of rats. They run all over the place and are especially numerous in Mr. Cleveland's office and in the sacred domains of Private Secretary Thurber. The rodents gambol merrily over Mr. Thurber's writing table and cause much uneasiness. They seem to take especial pleasure in being in Mr. Thurber's room, and the private secretary has his apartment adorned now with a variety of rattraps that would do credit to a World's fair exhibition. But even then the trouble is not overcome.—Boston Advertiser.

Heart and Hand.

Dr. Jeandet having offered to the museum of the Comedie Francaise a fragment of the heart of Talma M. Tallon, an official at Lyons, has requested M. Claretie to accept the mummified hand of Mlle. Duchesnois. This lady was the actress who shared in Talma's stage triumphs. Claretie has refused the hand. In his courteous letter of refusal he says that he does not want to turn the collection of the theater into an anatomical museum. As to the fragment of Talma's heart, Claretie thinks it is worthy of a place in the theater collection.—Paris Letter.

NEARING THE END.

The Probabilities Are in Favor of a Compromise.

NEW BANKRUPTCY MEASURE

Will Occupy the Attention of the House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The silver question will probably again this week occupy the attention of the senate to the exclusion of every other subject, unless it become some minor matter like the confirmation of presidential appointments. Even though the compromise bill be brought in at once there is little prospect of concluding the consideration of the question before the latter part of the week.

Senator Jones of Nevada, who has spoken already on three different days, has announced that he would require parts of two or three days more for the conclusion of his remarks. Senator Teller also has on hand a speech which he began two or three weeks since, which he would like to have an opportunity to conclude. There are probably others of the silver advocates who are similarly situated. They will be given an opportunity to present the matter prepared, even though the adjustment of the question shall be definitely settled. There will also in all probability be many speeches in explanation of votes upon the compromise, but these will be comparatively brief.

There is a possibility that the compromise may fail, though all the probabilities are in favor of its success. If it should fail, the throttle will be thrown open again, and no one can foretell what the week may bring forth. Such a state of affairs would almost certainly force the senate into a fight over the rules. It is probable that Senator Voorhees will make a summing up speech during the week if the compromise amendment is introduced.

The House Program.

The course of events in the house during the coming week will hinge upon the result of the effort to put through the compromise at the other end of the Capitol. If the compromise should reach the house before the consideration of the bankruptcy bill—which is made a continuing order beginning today—is disposed of, that order will be vacated to the end that prompt action may be had on the financial measure. It is not expected, however, that the compromise bill will reach the house under the most favorable circumstances until the latter end of the week.

Unless it becomes apparent that there might be unreasonable delay the bill will be referred under the rule to the coinage, weights and measures committee. If there is a disposition to hold it there a motion will be made to concur in the senate amendments when the bill is taken from the speaker's table. The attitude of the Republicans toward the bill will be governed by the course of the Republican senators. The silver Democrats, too, except perhaps a few extremists, will follow the lead of their political brethren of the senate. In fact, no sort of doubt seems to exist about the house. It will pass, and pass with expedition, any compromise that goes through the senate.

The bankruptcy bill, unless the financial measures are dislodged, will probably occupy the entire week. Much opposition to this measure in its present form has developed. Messrs. Culberson and Bailey (Dems.) and William A. Stone (Rep.) of the committee which reported the bill are among its opponents. Mr. Culberson says that it must be amended in many particulars, while others say that it can never pass unless radical changes are made. One of these changes is the involuntary clause, by which a man may be put through the bankrupt court, even when it is not to his advantage for a majority of his creditors to have such action taken.

Stone's Argument.

Mr. Stone points out many defects in the bill, which, he says, to the casual observer, are harmless. He is opposed to the bill on general principles. There have been three bankrupt laws passed, and all have been repealed. The longest that any remained on the statute book was 11 years; the others less than two years. Mr. Stone says that to pass a law now during the depression would cause a great deal of hardship, as it is a time when there should be leniency instead of strictness in the condition of debts.

Minor matters will occupy the attention of the house during the morning hour. The McGarrahan claim will consume two days. The passage of the printing bill, on which the house was dividing, will be delayed until a quorum is produced, as its opponents, who are too weak to defeat it, say they will insist upon the presence of a quorum if the bill is to carry. All the Democratic members of ways and means committee engaged in the preparation of the tariff bill agree that it is desirable to have the bill reported to the house at the earliest day possible, and most of them think that it can be reported at least within a month.

The income tax sentiment is growing among the Democrats of the house. It is admitted that some other taxation than that now in force will be necessary, as members of the majority say that the new tariff bill will mean a decrease in revenues derived from imports, of at least $25,000,000, without taking into consideration the present deficiencies.

It is now intended to make up the present deficit by coinage of the seigniorage of silver in the treasury, but the deficiency under the new tariff bill cannot be disposed of in any other way than by some other mode of taxation.

It is almost settled that there will be no public building bills passed at this congress. The showing by the treasury department that many buildings are far from being completed, and more than 25 ordered in the Fifty-first congress have not yet been begun, seems to have convinced the members of the committee on public buildings and grounds that it would be useless to try and get through any building bills at this congress.

No Compromise.

A man high in the councils of the administration said last night: "The president adheres to the position that the purchasing clause of the Sherman law should be unconditionally repealed. The lower house of congress voted for the repeal by an overwhelming majority. The majority in the senate are in favor of unconditional repeal, and the sentiment of the country demands the passage of the pending bill. It is not true that Secretary Carlisle is or has been in favor of the compromise which was subscribed to by a number of senators on Saturday.

COLLIDED IN A FOG.

Engines Crash Together and Cause a Bad Wreck In Ohio.

LIMA, O., Oct. 23.—A bad wreck occurred on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago road in a dense fog, at Monroeville, west of this city, yesterday. A westbound vestibule train was running in several sections, and the second one was standing at a switch near Monroeville, awaiting the arrival of the second section of an eastbound passenger train. It was about 6 o'clock, and the fog hung so heavily that it was impossible to see farther than a few feet ahead of the engine.

The westbound train was standing close up to the switch. The eastbound train was late and was running at a good speed, but owing to the fog Engineer Cowan had commenced to slow up, as he thought it was about time for him to reach the switch. Suddenly there loomed up in front of him an engine, and before he could jump they crashed into each other and were piled up in a wreck.

Engineer Cowan was frightfully scalded. Fireman Daily was caught and badly hurt. One of his legs was broken, and it is thought he is injured internally. Brakeman Hunt was found lying near the train unconscious and suffering from wounds which may result fatally. The first car from the engine was not damaged, but the two following were smashed and some of the passengers hurt, two of them seriously.

On the westbound train the engineer and fireman escaped, but the tender of the engine, which was driven completely through the baggage car, caught Baggagemaster Stevens and pinioned him under the debris, and it is thought he is fatally hurt.

Lucky Thirteen.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Thirteen visitors to the fair fell in an elevator 200 feet from the landing under the great roof of the manufacturers' building. Their lives were saved by the brakes on the car, which caught and held it 30 feet from the floor. The elevator man had lost control of it and it shot downward at tremendous speed. The passengers were stupefied by the sudden descent, and it was not until the car stopped that they realized their danger.

Mitchell Is Downhearted.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Charley Mitchell, the English pugilist, has arrived in this city from Pittsburg. When a reporter saw Mitchell he said: "I have come back to see what the Coney Island people are going to do about our contest. I intended starting in training on Tuesday next, but, as the matter stands now, I shall do nothing until I see Newton." The Englishman seemed to be very downhearted over the turn that affairs have taken.

Changes In Newspaperdom.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 23.—William E. Brigham, managing editor of the Lynn Daily Press, has resigned his position to become manager of the bureau of information of the Keeley institutes of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, with headquarters at Boston. Colonel C. F. Smith, now city editor of The Press, will take his place.

No Love For McCarthyites.

DUBLIN, Oct. 23.—A big Parnellite demonstration was held here yesterday. The meeting advocated a policy of hostility toward the members of the McCarthyite party. Resolutions were enthusiastically adopted demanding the release of the dynamiters, the reinstatement of evicted tenants and the repeal of coercion acts.

Lowest Point Yet Reached.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The treasury "10 days' statement" shows that the gold reserve has decreased to $81,700,000, the lowest point it ever reached, and a loss for the month of October of $12,000,000. It is believed, however, that from now until the end of the month the gold reserve will climb up.

Colonists Terrified.

BUENOS AYRES, Oct. 23.—The murder of settlers by insurgent bands in the province of Santa Fe continues, and a state of terror exists. Many of the colonists are leaving the province. The report that the Brazilian cruiser, Riachuelo, has joined the rebel fleet under command of Admiral Mello is confirmed.

Home Secretary Asquith Denounced.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The social democratic federation held a demonstration on Trafalgar square yesterday. The attendance was small. One of the banners carried described Home Secretary Asquith as a murderer. Aveling and Hyndmann were among the speakers.

E. L. Dyer Is Receiver.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 23.—Edwin L. Dyer has been appointed by the supreme court receiver of the Order of the Iron Hall in this city. This is the outgrowth of a petition which was presented to the court at the time when the Iron Hall was first in trouble.

Dynamiters Were Patriots.

CORK, Oct. 23.—John Redmond, the Parnellite leader, in a speech in this city, said that amnesty of the Irish dynamiters was demanded because the Irish people believed that all of the Irish political prisoners were honest patriots.

Rank Vandalism.

MUNICH, Oct. 23.—Two valuable pictures in the museum have been ruined. A triangular piece has been cut from Spiller's portrait of Goethe, destroying the face. Rembrandt's portrait of himself is also partly ruined.

WITH SOLEMN RITES

The Remains of Marshal MacMahon Are Laid to Rest.

ALL NATIONS PAY HOMAGE.

Immense Crowds Witness an Imposing Spectacle.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—Amid all the pomp of peace and war the remains of Marshal MacMahon, ex-president of France and Duke of Magenta, were conveyed yesterday from the Church of La Madeleine across the River Seine, to the Hotel Des Invalides, there to rest until the great reveille is sounded by the heavenly trumpeter.

The body of the last but one of the marshals of France reached this city from Mont Cressen, and was conveyed to the Church of La Madeleine. The hearse bearing the ex-president's remains was followed from the railroad station by two old servants of the dead soldier, who carried the marshal's baton, decorations and other insignia of office. The insignia of the marshal of France was displayed on black velvet cushions, and the little cortege was respectfully saluted by the crowds of merrymakers flocking the streets in consequence of the festivities prepared in honor of the Russian sailors.

The Church of La Madeleine was draped with mourning bands, presenting a peculiarly sad appearance amidst so much fete decoration in its immediate neighborhood.

The coffin was covered with its black pall, and dotted with silver stars, and having upon it the marshal's chapeau and sword as well as two black velvet cushions studded with the various decorations the dead soldier had received during life.

King Humbert of Italy, the city of Milan and a number of Italian officers sent beautiful wreaths of flowers; but the largest of all was the offering of the French army—it was composed of roses, heliotropes, marguerites and carnations.

An Imposing Scene.

Shortly before 10:30 the entire route leading from the Church of La Madeleine to the Hotel des Invalides had been lined with troops, which kept the roadway clear for the passage of the hearse. At 10:50 General Boisdeffre, chief of the general staff of the French army, and General Saussier, the general in command of the Paris garrison, and two German attaches took the positions which had been assigned to them around the hearse.

Soon after the French generals and German officers had reached La Madeleine, the Russian visiting officers, headed by Admiral Avelan, also arrived at the church in full dress uniform. The arrival of the Russians caused a commotion among the people assembled, and it was easy to be seen that it needed but a starting signal to have raised one of those outburst of cheering which are now so familiar to the czar's sailors when they make their appearance in the streets of Paris.

The Russians were saluted by the representatives of the French army and by the German attaches. The next party to arrive was that of the Marquis of Dufferin, the British ambassador, who was followed by all the other members of the diplomatic corps, who joined the brilliant group of officers around the dead soldier's casket, forming a scene which was singularly imposing.

Military Honors.

A long, low rolling of military drums, muffled for the occasion, broke upon the air at 11:20, and shortly afterwards the sharp, clear notes of a military bugle gave the signal that the funeral cortege was ready to take the body of Marshal MacMahon to its last resting place. A second ringing order from the bugler, the troops, like a magnificent piece of clockwork, presented arms all down the rue Royale, and a group of priests, preceded by altar boys bearing candles behind a tall cross of gold, were seen to descend the steps and march slowly towards the Place de la Concorde.

Behind the priests came the coffin, borne on the shoulders of non-commissioned officers, followed by the representatives of President Carnot, the senate, the chamber of deputies and the diplomatic corps. Then came the representatives of the Prince of Wales, King Humbert of Italy and others. Admiral Avelan walked with the diplomatic corps, and the other Russian officers were at the head of the delegation representing the French army. Cardinal Richard, archbishop of Paris, officiated at the last religious ceremonies over the dead, which lasted fully one hour.

At the conclusion of the services the coffin was conveyed to the court of honor. While the body was in the court of honor, M. Dupuy, minister of public instruction, and General Noizillon, minister of war, delivered orations over the body of the veteran soldier.

Off to the Grave.

A most impressive march past of the troops at the Hotel des Invalides followed, the members of the diplomatic corps witnessed the soldiers defile from a position, which they took up on the right side of the entrance to the esplanade, and the Russian sailors witnessed the same ceremony from the left of the entrance. After this ceremony and last tribute of respect on the part of the military authorities, the coffin containing the body was borne away to the vault reserved for marshals of France.

Marshal MacMahon's son and about 50 of the most prominent officers and others took part in this ceremony, during which they chanted the De Profundis in a most impressive manner.

When all the ceremonies were completed Marshal Canrobert was presented with the remains of two flags by Crimean veterans, whose regiments had carried these flags in the Crimean war, with Marshal Canrobert, in every place where they had served during that famous campaign.

Off the Turf.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—"Lucky" Baldwin publicly announces that he will retire from the turf. The string of the Santa Anita stables will be disposed of after the fall meeting here. A few choice animals will be reserved for breeding purposes, and Baldwin says he will be hereafter known to the turf only as a breeder.

CITY CHIT CHAT.

Items of Interest from All Parts of Quincy.

Mrs. Frank H. Sprague of Wollaston is at the World's fair.

The registrars added 39 new names to the voting lists Saturday night.

The local editor of the LEDGER is confined to the house today by sickness.

The labor organizations will be given a hearing tonight at the City Council.

Several of the Quincy Cycle club participated in the century run Sunday of the Suffolks.

Patrick H. Lycett was knocked down on Quincy avenue, Saturday night, and robbed of a silver watch and chain.

Mr. W. T. Babcock has gone with others from Boston to the Real Estate Congress held in Chicago this week.

Mr. James S. Baxter is changing his carpenter shop on Pleasant street into a dwelling house, suitable for two families.

Little Miss Audrey Rhines, who has been studying at the Boston Theatre with Mr. Taylor, is to accept engagements this winter.

Mr. Al Williams of Wollaston exhibited at the Wollaston Unitarian harvest concert a remarkably large cabbage which he raised.

This is the first rainy, dull day we have had for many weeks. The rain falls gently and it is much appreciated, as it has been very dry.

All of the fruit, flowers and vegetables used in decorating at the Wollaston Unitarian harvest concert were given to the Quincy hospital.

Mr. John H. Roberts of Wollaston has on exhibition some large Baldwin apples. One measures 12 1-4 inches in circumference, and a dozen weigh over eight pounds.

In the account of the entertainment of Amana Lodge at Braintree, which appeared in Saturday's LEDGER, the name of Mrs. Emma Burrell was inadvertently omitted.

An excellent concert will be given tomorrow evening at the Unitarian chapel for the benefit of the Sunday School. For full particulars read the notice in the advertising columns.

A pleasing part at the harvest concert of the Congregational Sunday school, Sunday evening, was the graduation of ten members of the primary department into the intermediate grade. There was a large attendance.

There was a 75 yard running race on Quincy avenue, Sunday, between Tony Thompson of East Boston, and William Mullane of Quincy, for $100 a side. Mullane took the lead at the start and when the 60 yard line was reached he had a lead of two yards but he stumbled over a stone and lost the race by a few feet.

The frost has not killed the flowers and plants in the grounds around the residences in this city as yet, although it is getting quite late in the season. There are many beautiful dahlias, geraniums, petunias, salvias, pansies, marigolds, four o'clocks, etc., etc., still in blossom, although the dry weather has nipped their growth and vigor.

One of the teams of Gallagher's Express Company became frightened on Saturday and ran away from the office on Depot avenue, but for the timely assistance of Mr. Eugene Coffin, a faithful employe of Mr. Joseph T. French, a serious accident would have occurred. Mr. Coffin, at the risk of his own life, succeeded in stopping the horse in his mad career just in time to save some children who were playing in the street. Mr. Coffin escaped with a few scratches.

FOOT BALL.

The Y. M. C. As. Defeat Bridgewater Normals 10 to 4.

When the members of the Y. M. C. A. foot ball team left Quincy Saturday afternoon for Bridgewater it was with a feeling of confidence that they would be victorious and even when they arrived at the fair grounds and beheld the large number of lady students armed with tin horns and flags to cheer on the Normal school boys their belief was unshaken. True it is that the bewitching smiles of some of the girls caused the hearts of some of Quincy's young men to flutter a little but it was only for a moment and they passed on to one of the sheds where the change of clothing was made.

It was after 4 o'clock when the teams lined up in the following order:

| Y. M. C. A. | | NORMAL SCHOOL. |
|---|---|---|
| Johnson, l. e. | | r. e. Hutchings |
| Taylor, l. t. | | r. t. Keith |
| Crane, l. g. | | r. g. F. M. Shaw |
| | Centre. | |
| Faxon, | | H. P. Shaw |
| Hersey, r. g. | | l. g. Murphy |
| Ripley, r. t. | | l. t. Tibbetts |
| Bumpus, r. e. | | l. e. Burke |
| | Quarter Back. | |
| Bennett, | | Swan |
| | Left Half Back. | |
| Donavan, | | Carroll |
| | Right Half Back. | |
| Burnie, | | Grover |
| | Full Back. | |
| Slade, | | Willis |

The Normals have the ball and the two teams are in position, waiting for the signal. It comes, and the ball is carried a few yards into Quincy's territory, only to be captured by Slade, who rushed across the full length of the field with the surprised Normals in hot pursuit.

Slade, however, had a good start and secured a touchdown and kicked a goal, while the friends of Quincy applauded and the Normal girls remained silent. Score—Quincys, 6; Normals, 0.

Again they line up, and again Slade gets the ball and makes a run, but does not go far, as the Normals make a good tackle.

Carrol then gets the ball and tries Quincy's trick but Slade overtakes and downs him, meanwhile the girls play a few notes on their fish horns.

Three down and the Normals have the ball. Willis gets it and scores touchdown but fails to kick a goal.

Much noise on the parts of Normal spectators and the score is Quincys 6, Normals 4.

Quincy has the ball and they line up once more, the Quincys in position to try the flying wedge.

The signal is given and the trick works, as Slade gets the ball and secures a touchdown.

But a despute now arises. The Normals claim Slade went outside. Umpire Fuller says safe, and Referee Smart says touchdown.

The Normal players are mad and referee Smart is told he will be put off the field if he decides against the Normals.

The Normals will play no more unless Quincy calls it outside, but Quincy will not go back on its umpire and the afternoons play is ended.

Umpire Fuller says there were no lines to be seen and from where he stood he called Slade safe.

The next train for Quincy left in 10 minutes and the Quincys leave the field. The girls say it is too bad and wipe their eyes as Quincys leave for the depot. Score Quincy, 10; Normals, 4.

Touchdown Slade 2, Willis 1. Goals Slade 1. Umpire, Fuller. Referee, Smart.

Appointed.

It is reported that Gov. Russell has notified Mr. William B. Rice that he will be appointed to the place on the Executive Council made vacant by the death of David Hall Rice.

Governor Russell has told a LEDGER correspondent that that announcement is premature no appointment has yet been made.

Q. H. S., 4; Consolidated, 0.

The Quincy High School played their first game of foot ball on Merrymount Park on Saturday. Although the weight of their opponents was heavier the High School boys beat. The features of the game was the tackling of Pirovano and the 60 yard run of Chapman, and the touch down by Hall time 20 minute halves.

| Q. H. S. | | CONSOLIDATED. |
|---|---|---|
| Norcott, l. e. | | r. e. Tarbox |
| Marnock, l. t. | | r. t Balaba |
| Pirovano, l. g. | | r. g. Sullivan |
| Coe, | Centre. | Boyd |
| Mitchell, r. g. | | l. g. Sullivan |
| Goodwin, r. t. | | l. t. Rhines |
| Baxter, r. e. | | l. e. Sullivan |

ODD FELLOWS FUNERAL.

The Brethern and Friends in Large Numbers Show Respect to Capt. Newton.

Every seat in the Unitarian church at Neponset was filled Sunday afternoon at the funeral services of Capt. Charles B. Newton of Atlantic. The deceased had recently held the highest office in Odd Fellowship in the state and was as popular among lodge and encampment as among the grand officers.

The funeral was under the auspices of Neponset lodge, No. 84, I. O. O. F., which assembled at 12.30 P. M., and marched eighty strong to the late residence of Bro. Newton, on Atlantic street, Atlantic. There they were joined by Shalom Encampment, No. 12, of Dorchester, of which the deceased was also a member, and which also turned out in large numbers.

The body and mourning relatives were then escorted to the church, the pallbearers being: C. A. Mayo, Grand Representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge; W. S. Rowell, Grand Senior Warden of the Grand Lodge; Past Chief Patriarchs A. I. Phillips and John W. Kendall of Shalom Encampment; Past Grands William H. West and B. T. Taylor of Neponset Lodge.

At the church were assembled many friends; also delegations from the Grand Lodge and Grand Encampment of Odd Fellows; the Grand Lodge, K. of P.; Damon Lodge, K. of P.; Mt. Wollaston Lodge, No. 80, I. O. O. F., of Quincy; employes of Boston & Albany railroad shops, and representatives of William Ellison Encampment, I. O. O. F.; Manet Encampment, I. O. O. F.; Dorchester, Norfolk, John Hancock and Puritan Lodges, I. O. O. F.; Paul Revere Post, G. A. R., of Quincy, and of the captain's old company in the war.

The floral tributes were elegant, all the lodges of which Mr. Newton was a member contributing a set piece. There was an arch and emblematic K. of P. pillow, another K. of P. pillow, a beautiful I. O. O. F., tent, three other pillows, a wreath and an ivy wreath and sheafs of wheat.

Services were conducted by Rev. G. H. Hosmer, the pastor, who extolled the many good qualities of the deceased, and also read a letter from the major of the regiment speaking highly of him as an officer.

Odd Fellows services followed under the auspices of Neponset lodge, Grand Patriarch Marden also taking part. There was a duett, quartette and congregational singing.

The body was taken to Hudson today where services will be held by the Knights of Pythias.

The Wollaston Trap Club.

The club closed last week a very successful season. Eighteen shoots were held on its Third Hill grounds. Mr. A. G. Olney participated in sixteen. Mr. J. C. Morse easily leads in the average score, having eighteen and one-fifth points to his credit. Those who participated in less than four shoots are not in the following average, out of a possible twenty-five points:—

| | |
|---|---|
| J. C. Morse, | 18.2 |
| A. A. Lincoln, | 13.9 |
| H. T. Whitman, | 12.9 |

Why should the Republican party be victorious this fall? When there are 25,000 unemployed workmen in Boston and vicinity, who were a year ago busy at their trades, there are 25,000 living local reasons for such a triumph to say nothing of others. These 25 000 people who have got all the practical results they want of tariff "reform," should, and probably do, represent so many votes for the Republican party. Whoever may be nominated by the Republican party for governor, this much is assured, that the opening of the new year will find the gubernatorial chair occupied by that nominee.—Middleboro News.

THE WANDERERS RETURN.

Willie Clare and Ernest Baker Arive Home this Morning.

The excitement over the runaway boys is now at an end, the last chapter in the episode being ended this morning by the return of the Clare and Baker boys.

When word was received Saturday night that the boys had been arrested in Bangor, Mr. Clare immediately made arrangements to go after them. He left Boston for Bangor Sunday morning and came back on the night train, arriving in Quincy this morning.

The boys look crest-fallen, and have evidently had an experience which they will never forget.

The story told by the Clare and Baker boys differs somewhat from that of the Smith boy. Willie Clare says that the Smith boy was not put ashore at Houghs Neck Saturday night, but was with them all the time.

When the boys arrived in Boston, Sunday, they were met on Bedford street by a policeman about 2 o'clock, who stopped them and asked them some questions as to who they were, where they had been, and where they were going.

They replied that they belonged in Chelsea and that they had been fishing. The officer then turned to the Clare boy, who had his ulster on his arm, and said, "you had better get that coat out of the way before you are arrested."

This gave the boys a clew that they were being followed and no time was lost in putting the coat in a bundle.

While camping in the woods at Bangor they purchased three Bibles, and Friday night, while Smith was asleep, Clare and Baker became conscious-stricken and resolved to countermand the order for guns and to send the money back home. Then they would go to work and when they had earned money enough to make Mr. Clare whole they would return.

They decided that the Smith boy was too small to work and they would send him home. Smith was awakened and after some argument was put on the train and sent home that night.

Before he started Clare wrote a letter to his mother.

The Smith boy came to Boston alone, which does not agree with his story that Clare and Baker came with him.

The truth of the Clare boy's story is verified by the fact that they were arrested Saturday before the train from Boston, on which Smith said they went, arrived at Bangor.

When arrested the boys had $185 in money, which, with the $200 sent to the John P. Lovell Arms Co., will make $385, which Mr. Clare will receive of the $500.

The Clare and Baker boys are heartily sick of their adventure and it will doubtless prove a good lesson to them.

The Thomas Crane Public Library.

Beautiful flowers in memory of the late Thomas Crane were received at the public library on Wednesday last from relatives of the deceased. The library grounds in this city are very attractive, and have been unusually well taken care of this season; the lawn is very green and beautiful, and attracts the attention of all passersby.

—F. P. Loomis, formerly United States Consul at St. Etienne, France, says that from an investigation he made he finds about 95,000 Americans visit Europe every year, and that they spend about $100,000,000 annually abroad.

In furniture they simply lead
And sell you everything you need
The humblest prophets have agreed
That Kincaide's prices you should heed.

Rescued Unconscious From Wolves.

Joseph Heider, a homesteader, who lives near Iron River, Wis., had a thrilling experience with wolves a few miles from Iron River Sunday evening. Heider had been out hunting for deer presumably, and his gun was charged with buckshot. While scambling through some bushes one barrel of the gun was discharged, and a volley of shot entered his left arm and right thigh. At the time of the accident it was very fortunate for him that he was near some houses of other homesteaders. After the discharge of the gun he lay unconscious on the ground for three-quarters of an hour, and after gaining consciousness his cries attracted the homesteaders, and they reached him just in time to save him from a most frightful death. The wolves, which at this season of the year are very vicious, had gathered about him in large numbers, and they were making preparations for a great feast. Heider was taken to Iron River, where medical attendance was given him. His wounds are not thought to be fatal. —St. Paul Globe.

How Gladstone's Peers Voted.

It is interesting to note how the peers created at various times by Mr. Gladstone voted on the home rule division in the house of lords. Thirty-six peers, bound to Mr. Gladstone either by office or by direct creation, voted for the bill, while 31 peers who owe their titles wholly or in part to Mr. Gladstone voted against the bill, and four more of the same category announced that they would have opposed the bill, but were unable to be present. So that of 71 peers bound to Mr. Gladstone by office, or who were created or were accorded additional titles by him, 36 voted for home rule and 35 against it, thereby showing a pretty close division.—Paris Herald.

A Hot Metal Route.

The hot metal route at Braddock is now a certainty. Ladles of molten iron were run recently from the Edgar Thomson blast furnace to the converting mill in Braddock. The distance is six miles, which will be made in 14 minutes. The metal when covered with coke dust will remain in a fluid condition for several hours.—Philadelphia Record.

GOOD POLICE WORK.

One of the Robbers of the Granite Clothing Store Caught.

Immediately after the break at the Granite Clothing store had been discovered Saturday morning, Chief of Police Langley visited Boston and during the afternoon accompanied by Boston officers visited the room of a house on Oxford street. As they entered the room one of the two parties in the room leaped out of the window, the other man who gave the name of Jeremiah Callahan was arrested.

In the room the officers found 4 overcoats, 1 under coat, 1 pair of pants, 1 pair suspenders, 1 shirt and 5 pair of socks which were identified as part of the goods stolen from the Granite clothing store.

Callahan was brought to Quincy and arraigned in the district court this morning and held in $1000 until Tuesday next.

Harvest Concert.

The annual harvest concert of the Wollaston Unitarian Sunday school was held on Sunday afternoon at 6 o'clock. The church was profusely decorated with flowers, potted plants, autumn leaves, fruit and vegetables. The effect was striking. The church was crowded; not even standing room was to be had, a part of the audience standing in the vestibule. The programme was short and entertaining. It was as follows:

"Song of Thanksgiving."
Invocation, Pastor
Recitation and song, Infant class
"What the Rose Dreamed," Winifred White
Responsive reading, Prayer and Response, School
Recitation, Mollie Brown
"The Cob House," Morris Litchfield

Tenth Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stronach of Quincy, celebrated their tenth anniversary of marriage last Friday, Oct. 20, at their residence 50 Liberty street. Mr. Sinclair G. Swanson in a few well chosen words in behalf of their friends, presented them with a beautiful hanging lamp. Mr. Stronach then replied and thanked his many friends for their pretty present. Dancing was soon commenced, and about midnight the company sat down to supper, after which, Mrs. F. Mearns and Mr. Joseph Gaiter gave some fine songs, and Mr. P. Barry gave some impersonations which were highly appreciated. Much credit was due to Adam Gordon and Robert Smith who handled the bow up to the mark.

The following friends were present: Mr. and Mrs. A. Marnoch, Mr. and Mrs. H. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. A. McGregor, Mr. and Mrs. F. Mearns, Mrs. John Wood, Miss Maggie Wood, Miss Jennie Gray, Miss Crane, Mr. Wm. Marshall, Mr. Joseph Gaiter, Mr. R. Cruickshank, Mr. T. Metcalf, Mr. S. G. Swanson, Mr. A. Gordon, Mr. R. Smith, Mr. James Grant, Mr. and Mrs. G. McNaughton, Mr. J. Bruce, and Mr. A. Mutch. The company left about 4 A. M., wishing the couple many happy days.

Accidents.

A young man named Charles Conroy of Weymouth had a narrow escape Saturday night at the Quincy depot. He was standing on the platform of the last car of the train due here about 6 o'clock, and as the train pulled into the depot he leaned out and his head came in contact with a switch with such force as to throw him off. His head bled quite freely but as he refused to remain here he was assisted on to the train.

There was quiet an accident near City Hall Saturday night and as a result one man is at the City Hospital with a broken rib. Patrick Roff of South Boston and James Dower of Hingham were on a light express wagon when they collided with a buggy owned and driven by John Callahan of Quincy. Roff was thrown out and rendered unconscious and was taken to the City Hospital where it was ascertained that he had fractured a rib. The buggy was quite badly smashed, but Callahan escaped by jumping.

TODAY'S COURT.

James Dower of Hingham for drunkenness at Quincy, was fined $5.

Jeremiah Callahan was arraigned this morning for breaking and entering the Granite clothing store Friday night and the larceny therefrom of clothing to the value of $159.50 and was held in $1000 until Tuesday morning.

Ernest Borden for disturbing the peace at Braintree was fined $12.

The liquors seized from William J. Murphy of Weymouth were forfeited to the Commonwealth.

TO MAKE FARMERS OF THEM.

New York's Poor Boys to Be Trained by the Children's Aid Society.

Mr. Joseph M. White of this city has bought for the Children's Aid society a 125 acre farm. The society purposes here to establish a farm training school for the older boys who come under its charge.

The question of what to do with lads of from 14 to 18 years old has long troubled the society. Many farmers are unwilling to take city boys of that age who have been picked up from the slums and have never had any training. They can do something in the way of correction for the younger boys, but very little when they are more than 14.

It was decided that a farm on which the boys could receive some training in agriculture as well as religious instruction would solve the difficulty. Those boys who proved themselves willing to work and behave themselves could be sent to farmers' homes, while those who showed no disposition to get along could be retured to the city.

A committee of the board of trustees advertised for a suitable farm and soon had about 40 under consideration. One of these, two miles north of Kensico on the Harlem railroad, seemed the best, but it was beyond the reach of the society, which had only about $10,000 to spend—half the sum required.

Mrs. White heard of the committee's troubles about three months ago. She offered to buy the farm outright for the society on condition that it would appropriate the $10,000 it had intended to expend to an endowment fund.

She made one other condition—that the boys on the farm should receive daily religious instruction. The society of course agreed. Mrs. White also added $10,000 more to the endowment fund. The deed for the farm is now in the society's hands.

The boys will be kept under a firm discipline. It is not expected to keep them on the farm more than a few months each. It is thought in that time it can be determined whether they are worthy to go into private homes.

One or two practical farmers will be on hand to direct the efforts of the boys. The produce raised will be sold in the neighboring villages or sent to this city for sale. It is hoped in this way to keep the expenses of the farm at a minimum.

The society expects to have from 150 to 200 boys there when everything gets into running order.

In the 40 years of its existence the Children's Aid society has found homes on farms for 75,000 homeless boys and girls. It has long desired such a place as that provided by Mrs. White, where it could give the elder boys some preliminary training before sending them into the homes of the farmers.—New York Herald.

A BOGUS AMERICAN.

Claimed to Be a Military Medical Examiner, but the Police Nabbed Him.

The police have been earnestly seeking and have just found an impudent swindler, who has been trading, with considerable profit, for some time past upon the good name and sound business credit of the United States legation. He calls himself Dr. Alkin of the Second United States Dragoon guards, and he produced, whenever asked for credentials, which was rarely the case, a gorgeously printed document signed "J. H. Bayard," certifying that the bearer had been appointed "medical officer and military attache of the American embassy, at a salary of £650 per annum, terminable by six months' notice on either side."

The scoundrel had a uniform as grotesque as that of the doctor of the American Dragoon guards might be expected to be, but clothed in it he managed to captivate the fancy of several respectable ladies.

Alkin was arrested yesterday at the conclusion of a meteoric visit to Bournemouth. He was received in that pleasant town with distinguished honor, as he passed himself off as an inspecting officer of the royal artillery. Such was his consummate impudence that he actually did inspect the local artillery and afterward the coast guard, highly commending the efficiency of the latter body and promising to forward a favorable report to the admiralty.—New York Sun's London Letter.

A State For Indians.

The recent mad rush into the Indian territory, by which 6,000,000 of acres were in a day covered by a motley crew of settlers, land speculators and adventurers, is but part of a plan which contemplates still greater changes in that region. The sixteenth section of the Indian appropriation bill, approved at the close of last session, provides that the president shall appoint three commissioners to negotiate with the five civilized tribes of the Indian Territory for the extinguishment of Indian or tribal title and to take the necessary steps for its erection into "a state of states." Each of these commissioners is to have a salary of $5,000 a year and "their reasonable and proper expenses" and shall have a secretary, stenographer and interpreters. Fifty thousand dollars were provided for the expenditures of this commission. The agreements they may make are to be submitted to congress for its ratification.—Washington Special.

Church and Pastor Expelled.

At a meeting of the Greene county (Mo.) Baptist association recently Elder J. M. Carter, as well as the Ash Grove Baptist church, was expelled for heresy. Carter held that the souls of the wicked simply dissolved, and that they met no future punishment. A majority of his congregation voted to sustain him. The association ousted the whole congregation.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

London and Zola.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—In the Women's building honor was paid to the memory of Lucy Stone by many who had known and loved her, as well as by others by whom she was revered for her good works and pure life. On the platform of the assembly room, where not many months ago she stood, was placed her marble bust, and at its base were massed flowers. Maria S. Porter of Boston, a friend of 40 years of Mrs. Stone, paid the tribute to her memory which brought tears to many eyes.

A Brakeman's Error.

TOTTENVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 23.—A train ran into an open switch here yesterday. The train collided with another train standing in the depot. Conductor Frank Davis was caught between two car platforms and instantly killed. Fireman Bedell received severe internal injuries. None of the passengers were injured. Charles Franklin, a brakeman, opened the switch and failed to close it.

Attempt to Wreck an Electric.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Oct. 23.—Another attempt was made last night to wreck an electric car on the Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill road. The car leaving here at 5 o'clock, when near Webster's station, ran on to an obstruction, but luckily passed over it safely. The obstruction consisted of a piece of iron covered with hemlock leaves. This is the fifth attempt to wreck the cars.

Italians and Knives.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 23.—Wine, women and cards caused a serious stabbing affray in a Fair street Italian boarding house. Four Italians were horribly cut, one of them, Andrew Laudano, receiving a wound on the head six inches long and one inch deep. All the parties were arrested. Physicians think Laudano will recover.

For Killing Her Babe.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 23.—Gertrude Scrine, colored, is charged with manslaughter in causing the death of her 3-months-old baby. The woman is 25 years old and was divorced from a man named Smith. She claims that a man named Scrine was the father of the child, but he denies the charge.

Double Murder and Suicide.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 23.—At Sioux Falls, Harry Lacre, a lawyer and real estate agent, shot and killed his wife, his mother-in-law, and then sent a bullet through his own brain. Mrs. Lacre had applied for a divorce, but the proceedings were dropped, and Lacre and his wife were living together.

Socialism's Birthplace.

Suing a Sultan.

Miss Jenny Mighell of Brighton, England, is suing the sultan of Johore for breach of promise. The sultan's attorney objected that his client, being a ruling monarch, could not be sued in England, but Miss Mighell's lawyer replied that, inasmuch as the defendant had lived in England privately as Mr. Albert Baker, he had disentitled himself sufficiently to be sued in England, and that, moreover, he was subject to the authority of the empress of India. The question will be argued next month.—London Graphic.

Getting Ready For the Snowslides.

My Uncle Ephraim was a man who did not live in vain,
And yet why he succeeded so I never could explain;
By nature he was not endowed with wit to a degree,
But folks allowed there nowhere lived a better man than he;
He started poor, but soon got rich; he went to congress then,
And held that post of honor long against much brainier men.
He never made a famous speech nor did a thing of note,
And yet the praise of Uncle Eph welled up from every throat.

Now father was a smarter man, and yet he never won
Such wealth and fame as Uncle Eph, "the deestrik's favorite son."
He had "convictions," and he was not loath to speak his mind—
He went his way and said his say as he might be inclined.
Yes, he was brainy; yet his life was hardly a success—
He was too honest and too smart for this vain world, I guess.
At any rate I wondered he was unsuccessful when
My Uncle Eph, a duller man, was so revered of men.

When Uncle Eph was dying, he called me to his bed,
And in a tone of confidence inviolate he said:
"Dear Willyum, ere I seek repose in yonder blissful sphere,
I fain would breathe a secret in your adolescent ear.
Strive not to hew your way through life—it really doesn't pay.
Be sure the salve of flattery soaps all you do and say.
Herein the only royal road to fame and fortune lies,
Put not your trust in vinegar—molasses catches flies."

A Cherokee Strip Romance.

Yesterday Joseph K. Bracken of Memphis and Miss Lillie McGlashin of Stillwater, O. T., came to this city and were married by the probate judge. The young lady had secured a fine claim near Perry in the Cherokee strip, and the judge told her that if she got married she would probably lose the claim. She laughingly replied that she would sooner have a man than a claim any day, and the ceremony proceeded. It afterward came out that the couple first met on the day of the strip opening, when he stopped to help her drive a couple of sooners off the claim she had staked. He then went on, but because of the delay failed to get a claim, and finally returned to claim the girl he left behind him. After they had been married they returned to Perry, and the happy groom at once filed a contest on the claim taken by his bride, so if the department does decide that she cannot hold it he will get it, and it will still be in the family. —Guthrie Letter.

ANNA ORR'S DEATH.

Friends of the Dead Girl Believe That She Was Murdered.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 23.—Despite the fact that the coroner and the authorities who investigated the death of Anna Gray Orr, whose body was found in a well in Fairfield early last week, were satisfied that the girl did not meet with foul play, many of the friends and relatives of the young woman talk of investigating the case fully. They don't believe that the girl committed suicide, and insist that she was murdered.

They point out the fact that she could not have thrown herself down a well 30 feet deep and but little more than three feet wide, without receiving many bruises and scratches and probably broken bones, yet no scratches nor bruises were found on the body. There were but four feet of water in the well.

They believe that while unconscious she was lowered into the water and drowned. They also believe that the two negroes, William Grady and Charles Coles, employed on the Orr place, who disappeared soon after the girl left home, know much more about the girl's death than any one else. It is suspected that the murder was planned by Grady in revenge. It is said he had a grudge against the girl's father.

THE GRAND TRUNK WRECK.

Proposition to Raise a Monument Over the Unidentified Dead.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Oct. 23.—Thirteen of the 28 dead, as the result of the wreck here on the Grand Trunk railroad Friday morning, have been identified. Albert Bradley, who had his leg amputated Friday morning, died last night. There are still 22 badly injured patients at the hospital. Of this number, Mrs. Vance, who had both eyes cut off, cannot live. There are at least seven bodies that cannot be identified and these will be buried in Oak Hill cemetery.

The suggestion has been made that all bodies unidentified—and that will be at least one-half of them—be buried in one lot in Oak Hill cemetery and a monument erected there.

No-license meetings were held in a dozen or more of the Worcester (Mass.) churches, various congregations joining in union services.

Brockton (Mass.) expressmen make charges of unfair discrimination against the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

The barn owned by Miss Sarah Taft in Uxbridge, Mass., was destroyed by fire, with two horses, four cows and several tons of hay.

The First Congregational Church society of Manchester, N. H., unanimously voted to extend a call to Rev. Edward A. Lawrence, D. D., of Baltimore.

Representatives of about 25 fraternal organizations of New Haven met to devise methods by which to relieve persons out of employment and in need of aid.

The Lowell (Mass.) Central Labor union instructed the secretary to petition the city council that public works be started to give employment to the large number of men now in a state of want.

Willard C. Beede, an engineer employed by Tallant & Morrill, East Concord, N. H., is charged with assault with intent to kill on Sylvester Euclaire, a fellow-employe. Beede fired three pistol shots at Euclaire.

The Worcester (Mass.) police raided a gambling house and opium joint in the cellar of 6 Spring street and arrested 20 Chinamen. Opium pipes, pistols, a dagger and a large stock of gambling implements were seized.

An old time English harvest festival was held in St. Paul's church, Newburyport, Mass. The interior of the edifice was decorated with vegetables, fall flowers and cereals. There was also a display of fruit and jellies. The harvest products will make glad the hearts of the deserving poor in the parish.

THEY WENT SLUMMING.

Lady Missionaries' Nerves Upset by Wicked Scenes In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Seven members of the Woman's Christian Temperance congress, which closed its session Saturday night, will carry away from Chicago a knowledge of its darker side and will no doubt make it the foundation of many addresses in advocacy of social purity and temperance. The experience which the crusaders gained was found in a series of "slumming" tours, under police protection, through the "levee" districts of Chicago.

They were escorted by two detectives. The party started out at 1 o'clock yesterday morning to visit the most notorious dives. At one place all the men save one of them made from the house. This one was drunk and insisted upon having a dance with one of the missionaries. He was finally squelched by one of the officers. The trip occupied three hours, and at its close Miss Hay, who has done missionary work in the slums before, said:

"I have been through every part of New York and have seen life in its worst form. This does not compare with what there is there. It is bad enough, however. It was an experience which the ladies who were with me will never forget, and from which some of them will not recover for some time. Not that they were made sick, but the shock they received on beholding such scenes of vice was very distressing. The information gained will enable the ladies to conduct the warfare against the evils of vice and intemperance."

IN RECEIVERS' HANDS.

Kentucky Town Finds Itself Unable to Pay Its Debts.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 23.—The town of Middlesboro is in the hands of receivers. This was ordered by Judge Barr of the United States court, a suit being filed for that purpose by the Central Trust company of New York. The suit is also for the foreclosure of a mortgage for nearly $1,500,000 on the property of the American association (limited) of London.

The association, with A. A. Arthur at its head, was the founder of the town of Middlesboro, and they bought nearly 100,000 acres of land in Bell county, Ky.; Claiborne county, Tenn., and Lee county, Va. The Central Trust company became their surety for £300,000 worth of bonds.

Clarence Carey of New York and J. H. Bartlett of Middlesboro were appointed receivers by Judge Barr, their bond being fixed at $20,000 each.

Looking For an Eloping Couple.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., Oct. 23.—Lizzie Graham, the only daughter of Lee Graham, a wealthy farmer living near Edinburg, eloped with George Cover, a huckster, Saturday. Mr. Graham aroused the neighborhood, and all Lawrence county roads were scoured for the missing pair. Covermet Miss Graham only once or twice when he visited the farmhouse, and no attachment was known to exist between them.

The Vatican's Treasures.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The correspondent of The Chronicle at Rome says that Commander Barluzzi and Signor Petacci have gone to Paris on a mission regarding the eventual investment of the papal funds and the transfer of the treasuries in the Vatican in case of war to a place of safety. The property of the propaganda shall be protected, even if it is necessary to have it mortgaged. The cardinals favor the investment in England.

Confessed and Was Lynched.

CHATTANOOGA, Oct. 23.—An orphan girl, Miss Rosa Boring, was found dead in a secluded spot near Pikeville, with her throat cut. She had been outraged before being murdered. A negro named Gamble was arrested yesterday, charged with the murder, and made a complete confession. A mob of infuriated citizens forcibly took Gamble from the officers and strung him up to a tree.

Death of Lord Vivian.

ROME, Oct. 23.—Baron Hussey Craspigny Vivian, C. B., G. C. M. G., British ambassador at Rome, died here of pneumonia. Lord Vivian had been connected with the diplomatic service of England for more than 40 years. Last year he succeeded Sir Robert Morier as ambassador to the court of St. Petersburg, and later was transferred to Rome. He was born in 1834.

Carries a Gun In His Belt.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—With a big revolver in a wide belt and wearing a broad-brimmed cowboy hat, Charley Fair, the ex-millionaire, registered at the Richelieu. His newly made bride, who was formerly Maude Nelson of Chicago, accompanied him, and seemed to enjoy the notoriety thrust upon her husband and herself.

Charges Were True.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—Chancellor Von Caprivi prosecuted The Vossische newspaper for libel, in declaring that ex-Governor Soden, while he was in office in western Africa, entered into a commercial enterprise and bought land, which he resold to the German government at a profit. The court dismissed the suit, finding that the charges were true.

Czar Looking After His Navy.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Telegraph says that the czar has ordered the minister of marine to draft a grand program for the continuous increase of the Baltic and Black sea fleets. The czar at present is more interested in the rapid development of the Russian navy than in any other question.

Lynching Likely to Follow.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 23.—Samuel Dorsey, a prosperous colored citizen, was murdered and robbed by two unknown men early yesterday morning. The town is wild with excitement and armed posses are in search of the murderers.

First Commander of Katahdin.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The first officer to command the naval ram Katahdin is Commander Richard P Leary, at present the equipment officer of the Norfolk navy yard. Commander Leary will attend a course of instructions.

Hundred Thousand Missing.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 23.—It is learned that the defalcation of Philip Scheig, the absconding teller of the Bank of Minneapolis, amounts to nearly $100,000. He is now in Mexico.

Rippey's Sentence.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—Wesley C. Rippey, the old man who shot John W. Mackay in February last, was sentenced to pay a fine of $250 or go to jail.

Tyler's Record Lowered.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 23.—John S. Johnson, the cyclist, rode a flying third in 57 1-5s., breaking the Tyler record of 58 4-5s.

THE NEW DYNAMITE GUNS.

They Are Being Placed In Position at Sandy Hook—What They Can Do.

New York harbor will shortly be guarded by a battery of dynamite guns, now being placed in position at Sandy Hook. These guns, three in number, two 15 inch caliber and one 8 inch, were provided for by the recent congress. Work on the foundations for the guns has been going on for several weeks, and Mr. S. D. Schuyler, vice president of the Pneumatic Torpedo and Construction company, said that at least one of the guns will be ready for testing within a few weeks.

The test, which will be made merely to ascertain if his gun is perfect and not for range or accuracy, will be made under the supervision of Captain Gordon, U. S. A., the resident inspector at the West Point foundry at Cold Springs, where the guns were built, and Captain John Rapieff, the chief engineer of Mr. Schuyler's company. The 15 inch guns will be 50 feet long. They can drop 50 pounds of dynamite nearly four miles away, or 500 pounds for considerably over a mile. As the channel for deep water vessels extends only about a mile from Sandy Hook, warships entering the harbor would be exposed to the heaviest charges fired by these guns. At all ranges the guns can place 75 per cent of their projectiles within a rectangle 90 feet wide by 800 long, about the target usually presented by a vessel.

The full caliber shell or projectile will weigh 1,000 pounds, the explosive charge weighing 500 pounds. The 15 inch guns, when under firing pressure of 1,000 pounds per square inch, can throw at least 20 of these projectiles, carrying altogether 10,000 pounds of dynamite a distance of one mile in half an hour. The exact range of the 15 inch gun at 85 degrees elevation with the large projectile is 2,400 yards; with the 10 inch subcaliber projectile, weighing 500 pounds, it is 4,400 yards; with the 8 inch subcaliber projectile, weighing 340 pounds, the range is 5,000 yards, and with a 6 inch subcaliber projectile, weighing 240 pounds, the range is 6,000 yards.—New York Press.

M. MAX LEBAUDY'S YACHT.

A Mother's Neat Little Scheme Fails of Its Aim, but Benefits Science.

The Figaro devotes a long article to the voyage of M. Max Lebaudy's yacht, the Semiramis, which, as many will remember, started last November on a scientific mission in the Malay archipelago, but without its owner.

The idea of the voyage was conceived by Mme. Jules Lebaudy, who, alarmed at her son's expenditure and anxious to remove him from surroundings which she considered dangerous, hoped to coax him into a long absence from France and thus avoid the unpleasant necessity of doing what she has since done—providing him with a conseil judiciaire.

The Semiramis, which is a fine vessel of 700 tons burden, was fitted up with every possible comfort, and in order to provide M. Lebaudy with interesting employment his mother arranged with the government for the appointment of an ethnographical mission under M. Louis Lapicque, who was to accompany the prodigal.

When the day of the departure came, however, M. Lebaudy positively refused to go. He would not leave his beloved Paris, but Mme. Lebaudy, who considered herself pledged to the minister of public instruction, sent the yacht off without him. News of it had been received from time to time, and M. Lapicque's scientific efforts seem to have been crowned with complete success. The Semiramis is expected to return to France in January next.—Paris Herald.

The Geary Law and a Honeymoon.

Chu Fong, whose nuptials with Lum San Toy, the heiress, were solemnized so brilliantly in New York, was arraigned before Commissioner Shields on the day following the wedding on the charge of violating the Geary law by smuggling Gee Chow into this port on Aug. 3.

The defendant asked that the examination be postponed two weeks, as it would take at least that time for him to celebrate his marriage. Mr. Shields thought this a long time, but courteously adjourned the hearing as requested. Lee Gung Jim, merchant, gave bail for Fong in $1,000.—New York Tribune.

Miss Daisy Will Break the Bottle.

On Thursday, Oct. 26, the battleship Oregon, now on the ways at the Union Iron works in San Francisco, will be launched. Governor Pennoyer of Oregon has selected Miss Daisy Ainsworth of Oakland, who has been also prominent in Oregon society, to name the vessel. The launch will be made a social affair if the weather be pleasant, many bay parties having been arranged.

A Centenarian Pensioner.

Saginaw county has a centenarian in the person of Daniel Smith of Bridgeport township, who was in the city today looking hale and hearty and making affidavit on his pension claim, which has been increased from $8 to $12 per month. The venerable old gentleman celebrated his one hundredth birthday on Jan. 21 last.—Detroit Free Press.

Autumn.

Ladies fair, the end is near;
Soon will lie upon its bier
Every lovely blossom here.
Posies e'en with which the year
Strives to hide her swift decay
Now must pass from us away,
And in death be laid beside
Flowerets that in summer died.
Zinnias, flashing fire's bright hue;
Marigolds, whose buds pursue
Golden Sol from east to west;
Lilies, of all blossoms blest
For the dying season's shroud;
Daisies, to St. Michael vowed;
Dahlias, set in order prim;
Asters, loaded to the brim
With the weight of tears unshed;
Hollyhocks, pink, white and red,
Dainty columns wreathed with bloom;
Violets of rare perfume;
Roses, pallid, aye, and wan,
Yet so sweet—all will have gone.
Ladies fair, the end is near,
Dying is the sylvan year!

REVOLUTION IN TRADES UNIONISM.

Radical Resolution Adopted by British Workingmen at Their Recent Convention.

The action of the British trades unionist congress at its meeting in Belfast in declaring itself so positively in favor of state socialism is a matter of no small importance. Indeed it is likely to create something of a sensation in that country, where the trades unions are probably more powerful, exerting a stronger influence, politically and industrially, than in any other part of the world—unless perhaps an exception be made in favor of Australia. The trades unions of Great Britain have changed greatly in their character and methods in the course of their development from their turbulent and uncertain beginnings into the commanding position that they now hold.

What may be called standard trades unionism is freely co-operative in spirit. Under this policy the organizations have grown enormously in wealth and have exercised an enormous influence in advancing the welfare of their members. The conservative attitude which the British trades unions have long maintained gained the approbation of Mr. Edward Atkinson, who has been wont to hold them up as models for our American labor organizations, predicting that they would follow the same course of evolution as those of Great Britain and change their policy by changing their bylaws.

A criticism of the spirit of standard trades unionism has been that it was too selfish, that the unions did not look further than the immediate interests of the members of their organizations, and that they should look beyond to the welfare of the great mass of laborers if they would make positive and lasting gains.

Since the advent of what is known as "the new trades unionism," dating from the great strike of the London dock laborers—an event that won popular sympathy to a remarkable degree—this feeling of solidarity among the various classes of workers has been growing, and it was reflected in the prevailing sentiment of the congress of last year.

But such a bold departure can hardly have been looked for as that just made at Belfast. The resolution adopted declared "that labor candidates for parliament who receive financial assistance from trades unions shall be required to pledge themselves to support the principle of collective ownership and state control of the means of production and distribution." The issue appears to have been very squarely drawn, according to the brief account sent by cable, for it was stated that when the resolution was opposed on the ground that it committed the congress to continental socialism it was maintained by several speakers that it was a fitting declaration of the belief of the congress in the great socialistic principle, while John Burns said that the resolution cut right into the kernel of the social labor programme and did not hide the bugbear which some unionists thought must be concealed under everything called socialistic.

The majority of 40, in a vote of 137 to 97, was very decisive. What the consequences may be it is hard to predict, but at this distance it looks as if eventually it might result in splitting the trades unions into two conflicting factions, although possibly there may be considerations which would prove strong enough to prevent such an outcome.

As our London correspondent, Mr. Arthur Warren, pointed out some time ago in a careful study of the subject, the Fabyan society, with its propaganda of scholarly workers, has been one of the most potent influences in promoting the spread of socialistic ideas in England, and particularly among the trades unions and other labor organizations.

Various thoughtful observers have expressed the belief that there was much more likelihood that radical ideas on industrial questions would be likely to gain the ascendancy in England than in this country through lack of the political checks and balances existing in our form of government. In such movements, however, crude notions are likely to come to the front and finally result in defeating the ends sought. It must be conceded, though, that the radical element that controls in the London county council has thus far proceeded with uncommon sagacity in avoiding the customary pitfalls.—Boston Herald.

Sweatshops In Pennsylvania.

State Factory Inspector Watchorn of Pennsylvania says he will issue his annual report about Oct. 31, and that it will contain some startling information. Mr. Watchorn said the other day:

"I may say that Pittsburg and Philadelphia are full of sweatshops. Mrs. Coombes is at work investigating in the latter city. She has not made her report, but enough has been unearthed to show that sweating is practiced in Pittsburg, and it is not carried on either in the alleys, where one would expect to find it, but in some very respectable business houses. I know of several such cases, and when the report is issued it will create surprise.

"When a congressional committee was investigating the sweating system a year ago, Treasurer Lennox of the Federation of Labor testified that Philadelphia was the second city in the country where sweating was practiced. I am not prepared to accept that statement without a thorough investigation. I don't believe that Philadelphia is worse than New York or Chicago. However, the sweating is bad enough in Pittsburg and the Quaker City. It will be stopped, I can assure you."

A Colorado Programme.

Labor and reform organizations of Colorado have formed a state union, which demands, among other things of a publico-labor character, the abolition of national banks and substitution therefor of postal savings banks, government ownership of railroads, telegraphs, telephones, street railways, gas and electric lighting, waterworks, irrigation, etc., local option in taxation, woman suffrage, free schoolbooks, direct legislation, free silver, etc.—Exchange.

Aged Clerk Resists a Bold Attempt at Robbery.

CROWDS WERE PASSING BY

While a Struggle Was Going on In a Store.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Oct. 21.—The office of Henry P. Tyler, Haverhill's largest money lender, both on real and personal property, was the scene yesterday afternoon of one of the most daring attempts at daylight robbery that has ever been known here. Tyler's office is on Merrimac street, and at all times it contains, beside much money, thousands of dollars' worth of watches and diamonds.

The hour selected for the attempted crime was about 5 o'clock, when the street is crowded with people returning from their respective vocations. The only occupant of the office was the aged and trusted clerk, John P. M. Greene, a man of 70. The door opened and two men, rather forbidding looking villains, came in, and, giving a fictitious name, one asked Mr. Greene to look up a mortgage on which they desired to pay the interest.

Mr. Greene went to the rear office and opened the safe door in order to find the paper asked for. He had no sooner done so than he was seized from behind by the larger of the two men. Though not physically a strong man, he succeeded in throwing his assailant from him and cried out for help. Both men then made a dash for the door.

Got Away From the Crowd.

Greene's cry was heard, and a big crowd collected at the door and confronted the two robbers, but by a dash that would have done credit to college football athletes they broke through this and took to the residential portion of the city. They were so quickly out of sight that chase was not given them.

Had the men succeeded in overpowering Greene, their haul would have been a rich one.

The following is the description of the men now in the hands of the police: One was 6ft. 2in. in height, dark hair, black moustache and wore dark clothes. The second was a small, wiry built fellow of light complexion and apparently about 30 years of age. There is no further clue to their identity.

Church Robbers Busy.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 24.—Burglars broke into the historic old St. James Episcopal church last night, tore down the poor box, ripped open a stand of drawers in the robing room and stripped the altars. From that church they entered the Huntington street Baptist church in a similar manner through a basement window, and ransacked the entire building ruthlessly. The poor box was torn down and crushed open, and much other damage done. The proceeds of the burglaries were small.

Shortage of $2000.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 21.—An examination of the accounts of Joseph H. McPartland, until recently financial clerk in the town agent's office, has developed irregularities to the extent of about $2000. It is understood that McPartland's method was to raise small checks. The length of time over which these peculations have been going on is thought to be about a year. It was stated that a settlement would be made, and that the town would lose nothing.

Masonic Building Dedicated.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 24.—The new building erected by the Masons of this city on the corner of State and Main streets was dedicated by the officers of the grand lodge today, and 1800 Masons accepted invitations to join in the parade. The building cost $125,000. On the second floor are quarters for the Masonic club, while the third, fourth and fifth floors are given up to the uses of the fraternity.

An Interesting Liquor Case.

MILFORD, Mass., Oct. 24.—P. J. Donahue, the Milford druggist who appealed from the local court a few weeks ago since when convicted of illegal sales of liquor, was yesterday convicted at the superior court in Worcester and fined $70. The case has been of much interest, inasmuch as Judge Dewey of the local court ordered a portion of the seized liquors returned, which excited considerable comment.

A Shocking Discovery.

RIPLEY, O., Oct. 24.—The door of the cottage of Mrs. A. J. Wagner was forced open by a neighbor. On the floor were found the dead bodies of Mrs. Wagner and her two children, aged about 4 and 6 years, all with their throats cut. The mother had evidently done the deed. She had been despondent since the death of her husband.

Suicide or Homicide.

WOODSVILLE, N. H., Oct. 24.—Marcia Woodman, aged 22, wife of Chase Woodman, shot herself through the heart last night, resulting in instant death. It is rumored that the arrest of Woodman may follow, as there is doubt whether it is a case of homicide or suicide. The couple had been married about a year.

Bridgeport Boat Abandoned.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Captain Hall of the schooner Belle Hoper, from Brunswick, Ga., reports that Oct. 16 he fell in with the wreck of the schooner Jul a Trubee of Bridgeport, Conn. The schooner was lumber laden and abandoned.

ASSETS ARE LIGHT.

Farmers Are Sufferers by the Failure of Senator Winslow.

SKOWHEGAN, Me., Oct. 24.—The failure of Hon. I. O. Winslow of S. Albans was one of the most disastrous which ever occurred in this county, being especially lamentable because a large number of farmers, who will severely feel the loss, are among the sufferers. The following figures are given by parties interested in the affairs of the creditors: Winslow's liabilities will amount to something like $45,000. Of this $15,000 is due 400 farmers for milk and cream furnished by them at the several butter factories which Winslow operated.

Then it is claimed that he owes his relatives and wife's relatives $12,000. He also owes $14,000 for creamery supplies, salt, appliances, etc. A debt of $6500 is secured, it being represented that Brown, Decorica & Co. of Boston have a bill of sale of the Vassalboro property covering an indebtedness of $3500, while Green & Co., also of Boston, are protected $3000 worth by security on lumber at St. Albans. The assets must be very light.

Winslow is a member of the Maine senate, and is lecturer of the state grange, and under the auspices of the grange was prominent in the movement to introduce the teaching of agriculture into the common schools. Another field where Winslow bore a prominent part was that of the institute work carried on by the state board of agriculture, being one of the ablest lecturers which the board had.

A COMPLETE BLOCKADE.

Indiana Midland Railroad Employes Clamoring For Their Wages.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—The Indiana Midland railroad, running from Anderson to Waveland, 68 miles, is in trouble from a strike of employes for non-payment of wages, and its switches were spiked, cars chained up, bridges and tool houses burned up, tracks torn up and all the trains stopped. For several weeks employes have been demanding back wages. The section men and shippers began to drop off from work a week ago, until nearly all are gone and the shops are closed.

The section men claim wages for the last three months. Not only is the freight and passenger traffic blocked, but the United States mails are stopped. A bridge, 50 feet long, a mile from Ladoga, belonging to the road, was burned. There appears to have been no possibility for it to have been fired accidently, The adjacent tool house, the property of the company, was burned with all the tools and hand cars it contained. A small company bridge near New Roselle was also burned. Leaders of strikers deny that they ordered any property destroyed.

Lawyer Butler In Court.

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—Lawyer John E. Butler, forger and embezzler, called back from Chicago, was in the superior criminal court yesterday. He preferred not to plead until he had been advised by his counsel. The court was told of the fact that Butler had jumped bail in the lower court, and consequently fixed the bail for both charges at $12,000. The bail on the embezzlement accusation was placed at $8000, and the forgery charge at $4000.

Lower Court's Decision Affirmed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The case of the United States against the Denver and Rio Grande Railway company, involving the right of that company to take timber from public lands for the purpose of constructing its railroad line and accompanying structures, was decided in the superior court of the United States, the judgment of the United States circuit court for the District of Columbia being affirmed.

Victims of an Explosion.

BOSTON, Oct. 24. — John McKiernan, aged 31, an employe of the Edison General Electric company on Atlantic avenue, was engaged there in cleaning out a boiler. A large steampipe burst, and McKiernan was terribly burned about the face, arms and body. Edward McGaffigan was also severely burned about the neck and face. Both are in a dangerous condition.

Failed For $100,000.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—George Meyers & Henry J. Meyers, carriage manufacturers, made an assignment yesterday. Henry J. Meyers says that on account of the sudden and unexpected disappearance of George Meyers it will take time to arrange for payment of maturing obligations. The liabilities are said to be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Secret Service Chief Dead.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—John P. Brooks, chief of the United States secret service department, New York and New Jersey division, died of apoplexy at his home in Newark.

Death of Primate Knox.

DUBLIN, Oct. 24.—Most Reverend Robert Knox, D. D., Protestant archbishop of Armagh and primate of all Ireland and metropolitan, died here yesterday.

For the Murder of Captain Farmer.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 24.—The trial of Robert and Albert James, charged with the murder of Captain Augustus B. Farmer of Bow, began here yesterday. A jury was impaneled yesterday afternoon when court adjourned to allow the jury to visit the scene of the crime. The trial will last several days.

Bostonian Held For Burglary.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Charles Leslie Corwin, a handsome, aristocratic appearing young man, who claims Boston as his home, was held in $300 bail in the Tombs police court on the charge of burglary in the first degree.

Burglars Clean Out a Postoffice.

GRAFTON, W. Va., Oct. 24.—Burglars raided the postoffice at this place, blowing open the safe and carrying off $1113.71 in postage stamps, $100 in cash and 24 registered packages of unknown value.

Don Dickinson Is Receiver.

DETROIT, Oct. 24. —Judge Swan, by consent of all parties concerned, appointed Don M. Dickinson receiver of the Detroit, Bay City and Alpena railroad. Mr. Dickinson's bond is $50,000.

Street Cars Collided.

WRECKED THE BANK

Officers of the Madison Square Are Under Arrest.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY.

President Blaut Was Once a Restaurant Waiter.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The grand jury will consider charges of forgery against officers of the defunct Madison Square bank. The proposed action leaked out through the visit of Lawyer Untermeyer, counsel for the receivers of the Madison Square bank, to Assistant District Attorney Lindsay yesterday afternoon. Together they went over the failure of the bank and discussed at length the criminal liability of some of the bank's officers.

Mr. Untermeyer told Mr. Lindsay that between $200,000 and $400,000 had been illegally obtained from the bank, and that some one was guilty of forgery. The proofs of his statement he gave to Mr. Lindsay and also gave him a list of the directors of the defunct institution.

Mr. Lindsay informed Lawyer Untermeyer that to his knowledge the Madison Square bank had been insolvent for the past six months. After examining the proofs submitted to him, Mr. Lindsay pronounced it a clear case of forgery. He said he would go before the grand jury and lay the facts before that body. Vice President Cannon of the Fourth National bank, who is one of the receivers of Madison Square bank, declined to discuss the action of Mr. Untermeyer. Mr. Cannon said that Mr. Untermeyer had full power in the matter, and that a criminal action had been decided upon.

The directors of the bank, as given in the copartnership directory, are Frederick A. Kurshedt, Emil Frenkel, A. S. Kalischer, James D. Leary, Ronald T. Ottenberg, Andrew Soulard, Joseph F. Blaut, Lewis Thompson and Charles E. Zelover. President Blaut began his business career in this city as a waiter and part owner in a Third avenue eating house.

The Arrests.

Joseph F. Blaut, president; Lewis Thompson, cashier, and Ronald T. McDonald, a director of the defunct Madison Square bank, were arrested at the Hoffman House last night, whilst attending a meeting of the directors. They were taken down to general sessions, where Judge Martine, in chambers, was awaiting their arrival.

They had barely reached the court when they were joined by Edward T. Stokes, who qualified in $20,000 for McDonald and his bond was accepted. A Dr. Tutts presented himself as bail for Thompson, but as he was not personally known to the judge and no one in court could identify him his bail was refunded. No one appeared to bail out Blaut, and the judge told Mr. Grady, their counsel, that he would open court early in the morning to receive bail.

The charge against them is forgery in the third degree in altering a promissory note issued by the Fort Wayne Electric company, drawn in June, 1893, for $40,896.73, by feloniously adding to the endorsement the words "not negotiable only in accordance with contract under which notes have been made."

The judge stated he had signed warrants for several others of the bank's officers. At 11:30 p. m. Adolph Kaleche, another director of the bank, was taken before Judge Martine, charged with "fraudulent bankruptcy." Max Danziger of 11 East Seventy-ninth street qualified as his bondsman in $5000.

Frederick Uhlman, another director of the bank accused of fraudulent insolvency, went to the general sessions and surrendered himself. He was accompanied by a bondsman and was free again in a few minutes.

It is learned that the grand jury has found against the accused bank officers as follows: President Blaut is indicted for perjury; Cashier Thompson, misdemeanor; Director McDonald, forgery in the third degree and misdemeanor; Directors Kalischer and Uhlman, misdemeanor.

Discovered When Too Late.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 24.—Joseph Le Blanc, 41 years old, died last Friday and was buried yesterday afternoon. It has been learned that he died of starvation, and that the funeral which was to have been held yesterday morning was delayed until the afternoon, when the neighbors found that poverty was the cause of it, and raised the necessary funds.

Not So Funny as They Thought.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Oct. 24.—Five academy students who ducked a fellow student in a bathtub had the tables turned yesterday. The boy's father had them arrested for assault and battery, and they were held in $1000 bonds to appear at the December term of court. Bail was furnished by the principal and vice principal of the academy.

Met Instant Death.

IPSWICH, Mass., Oct. 24.—Mrs. Rosanna Tibbetts was instantly killed by a Portland (Me.) Pullman as it thundered through the town. Mrs. Tibbetts was in the direct path of the locomotive. The engineer blew his whistle, but the woman had no chance to get out of the way.

Contractor Missing.

MALDEN, Mass., Oct. 24.—Contractor L. E. Lawton, who has worked for the street department for a number of years, is missing. Oct. 10 he drew about $70 from the city, and since that time no traces of him can be found.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 10, 1893.

A Well-deserved Award.

The Treasury Department at Washington, after receiving bids from the largest and best-known carpet manufacturers and dealers throughout the country, has awarded to the old and trustworthy house of John H. Pray, Sons, & Co. of Boston, the contract for furnishing Brussels carpets for government use throughout the country for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894.

This contract amounts to about 20,000 yards, more or less, and is for Brussels of the firm's own manufacture, having as a guaranty of the quality the firm's name woven on the back of every yard of carpet that is delivered, so that the house cannot fail to be well known in all government buildings and offices throughout the United States wherever the carpets are seen.

Messrs. Pray & Co.'s reputation for selling only standard and reliable goods seems to have been well maintained, as the government standard is a high one, and the tests are most severe.

OPPOSED TO COMPROMISE.

Josiah Quincy Says Massachusetts People are With the President.

Mr. Josiah Quincy, chairman of the Democratic state committee, was asked yesterday at the Democratic headquarters by a Herald reporter what he thought of the proposed Senate compromise on silver, and whether he believed that it would receive the assent of the President. Mr. Quincy replied as follows:

"I am entirely opposed to the so-called compromise. It concedes altogether too much to the silver side of the question. It involves such a large addition to the volume of silver currency which must be maintained on a parity with gold, that even the continuance of the Sherman law upon the statute book seems to me preferable.

"If the measure offered some provisions for enabling the Secretary of the treasury to strengthen the gold reserve and maintain all kinds of our currency on a parity with gold there might be something more to say for it from a financial standpoint, but without doing this it increases the weight of the load at a time when it is already heavy enough without strengthening our ability to carry it.

"Theoretically, quite an argument can be made in favor of coining the useless silver bullion in the treasury representing the seigniorage, but this is a most inopportune time for such a proceeding. This boullion is at least harmless while it is locked up in the vaults of the treasury, but the moment it is coined and put in circulation it practically becomes an additional outstanding obligation to be maintained upon a parity with gold and thus increases the strain upon the treasury.

"We shall have to face the question later but I am entirely opposed to dealing with it in the repeal bill.

"From a political standpoint, using that term in its broadest sense, I think that it would be most unfortunate at this time to make any material concessions to the minority of the Senate.

"The question whether the majority can rule in that body must be met and settled sometime, and I believe it should be met now.

"I am in hearty sympathy with the position taken by Senator Hill in favor of insisting upon a vote on the bill as it now stands.

"I believe that means can be found for reaching such a vote in spite of the obstacles in the way.

"The attitude of President Cleveland and the administration has been perfectly consistent ever since this issue came up. I do not believe that he and his cabinet have assented, or will assent, to the proposed compromise.

"The people of Massachusetts without distinction of party will, I am confident, stand behind him in resisting it.

Another Burglar Caught.

The good work in the capture of Jeremiah Sullivan, Saturday night, for breaking and entering the store of the Granite Clothing Company, was supplemented Monday night by the arrest by Boston officers of James Jordan, alias Isaac Williams at 32 Oswego street, for being implicated in the break. The officers secured about $20 of clothing with Williams and $88 with Callahan.

Both of these men, who are in the vicinity of 20 years of age, were turned over to Quincy officers and arraigned in the District Court this morning.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

The Labor Organizations Talk on Contract Labor.

IT WAS A MIDNIGHT SESSION.

Resolution Favoring Citizen Labor Passed, After a Lengthy Discussion.

A special meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening; all members being present.

But little business was transacted, but nearly the whole evening was given up to the petitions from the laboring men, and it was 12.08 o'clock this morning when the Council finally adjourned.

Petitions.

A petition was received from George C. Bucker for license to collect junk. Referred.

Councilman Grindell presented a petition from citizens of Ward Three asking that Goddard street be laid out and accepted as a public way. Referred.

Reports of Committees.

Committee on Licenses reported an order granting a license to collect junk to Alfred McGloan, and a billiard and pool table license to John Mashnichaa. Adopted.

Committee on Finance reported a slight amendment to order appropriating $800 from receipts of burial places to be expended under the management of the managers of burial places.

Under suspension of the rules the order was passed to be ordained.

The Committee on State Aid, on petition of Margaret F. Gavin, recommended $4 per month. Adopted.

The Committee on Ordinance reported an amendment to the ordinance governing the Water Commissioners relative to collecting water rates.

Councilman Lennon offered another amendment, and upon motion of Councilman Holbrook, the matter was recommitted.

The Committee on Finance, an order appropriating $62,000 for a new High school building, reported a slight amendment which was accepted. The order then took its second reading and was referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

Councilman Robbins offered an order establishing polling places for the municipal election Dec. 5. Adopted.

They are to be the same as used in the state election.

Voted, when the Council adjourn, it be until next Monday evening.

The order granting location to the Quincy & Boston street railway to connect tracks of Manet street railway was passed to be ordained.

A recess was then taken for 20 minutes.

Public Hearing.

At 8.30 a public hearing was given on the petition from the Granite polishers' union, which was that the heads of departments be instructed by ordinance to employ none but citizens on public works, and that all contract labor be abolished.

There were several of the laboring men who spoke but their names were not announced, and it is not known who they were.

The first gentleman said the laboring men believe the city of Quincy can do its work cheaper than any private individual. He believed the citizens of Quincy have a right to employment. There are 500 or 600 men in the city out of work and cannot get any. The only argument brought against us is that it would cost more to employ day labor than by contract. The city advertises for bids and it is generally understood it is not the lowest that gets it but the man with a pull. Some of these contract jobs have not been as good as they might have been. If contractors can make money out of contracts the city can. The speaker then referred to the Italians who lived in gravel pits, and all the money they get goes out of town. They pay no taxes, and can save more money on seventy-five cents per day than a citizen can on $2 per day.

Another gentleman said the workingmen demand that they shall receive attention from this body. They demand that they are entitled to some little regard to enable them to live. Every man in the council is a laboring man. Some men live by their pen and pencil, while others earn their living with a pick and shovel. Give us the Italian shovels free of duty and place a high tariff on the Italian shovellers and I can make my living.

A Mr. Cherrington said he regarded a city like this as one large family, and the interest of each one, as the interest of all. Taxes come from the laboring men, and it is the duty of the citizens to see that the taxes are returned to those who pay them. Why should we let this work out to contractors, as they are not responsible to the people, for they will hire Dagos and take the money from the taxpayers. You are killing the goose that lays the golden egg when you let out work by contracts. The city can do all its work by day labor cheaper than it can by contract. The money that comes from the workingmen should go back to them if there is any work to be done.

Another gentleman said: Without the vote of the workingmen the Democrats and Republicans will go behind the screen.

Arthur Austin said: The laboring men forget themselves when they come in here. He did not care who did the work in Quincy, but he liked to see men get pay for what they did. He liked to see work done by officials of Quincy and get a fair day's pay for a fair day's work. The men who figure on contracts, figure $5 or $6 a day for themselves. It was policy for the city to have work done by day labor. A proviso should be in every contract that men should be paid $1.75 or $2.00 per day.

Henry H. Faxon said this represents the corruption and anti-political end of capital labor. No city can carry on work in this way without being bankrupt. How are you to define what a citizen is? The arguments advanced are absured. The city cannot do business cheaper than private individuals. The minute you do this, it becomes a political foot ball. We cannot say to a man who comes here, you cannot have work. This is brought in just before election to intimidate some candidate. He defied any man to bring a person who paid his help better than he did, or let his houses cheaper. If you advertise that you pay $1.75 per day while others were paying $1.25 you will have 6000 idle men. The combination they have in trades have increased the cost of building.

Mr. William B. Rice said he regretted this question should be advocated with any show of feeling. Which is of the more interest, that fifty or more men should be employed, or that every dollar shall be expended where it will do the most good. You cannot tie the officials' hands so that they shall be obliged to hire men who are unable to work. You have a right to combine as long as you do it lawfully. You want to expend the money in the way that will do the most possible good. Say to the officials, we are citizens, give us work if you can, but if necessary to go out of town for skilled labor do so, but give us the best we can get for the money. The council has no right to tie the hands of the executive.

The public hearing then closed—time 10.14.

The meeting of the council then continued, and while the members were all practically ready to vote on the question, there was a talk against time until midnight.

Councilman Moxon moved the matter be referred to the council as a whole.

Councilman Federhen moved to amend that it be referred back to the Committee on Contracts.

Quite a lengthy discussion followed. The members of the Committee on Contracts claimed that the matter had been taken from their hands before they had time to make a report. They were moving as fast as possible before that time.

Councilmen Holbrook and Federhen thought the matter should be recommitted.

At 10.45 the motion of Councilman Moxon prevailed.

Councilman Federhen moved that the Council go into a committee as a whole. Carried.

Councilman Sherman was elected chairman, and C. A. Spear as clerk.

Councilman Moxon said the committee had held one hearing at which the petitioners presented their case fully and with the best of feeling, and that they presented the same views as they did tonight.

Councilman Smith said the laboringmen had been misrepresented. They have no idea that the city shall provide them with work when trade is dull. They desire that in all public work citizens should have the preference. They object to having the work done by men who do not trade here. He thought it possible for the Council to draw up an order that citizens of this city should have the preference. He believed if the committee had been given time they would have reported tonight.

Councilman Lennon

said the citizens of Quincy did not get their rights. He himself had been refused work when an alien had been hired.

Councilman Federhen offered the following resolutions to be reported to the Council:

Resolved,—That it is the sense of this City Council, that all boards and heads of departments in the city of Quincy, ought, so far as it is possible and consistent with reasonable expenditure, to employ citizens of Quincy in performing the city work; and it is hereby Ordered,—That copies of this resolution be printed by the city clerk and delivered to the mayor, the different heads of departments, the managers of public burial places, and such other officials and boards as are named in Title VI of the city charter; the cost of said printing to be charged to the appropriation for printing.

Continuing, the Councilman who offered the resolution said there was one power the Council could use in this case and that was the power of recommendation.

Councilman Moxon.

If we touch this question we must begin at the beginning by having the charter amended. As the charter now is it can be of no consequence whether this resolution is passed or not. It is good business that the labor which is the nearest you should be employed.

Councilman Robbins

said: This is a question that gives us all sorts of scrapes. What these people want is to get rid of the contract system and we cannot deal with that on account of the charter. The only way was to amend the charter so that the people can say just what they want.

Councilman Federhen said all this talk about the charter was trash. The power lies in the hands of the Mayor, and has always been. He has perfect power to hire these men.

Councilman Adams said the Mayor is obliged to have the work done as cheap as possible. He cannot pay a citizen more than he can get some one else to do it for. We believe in giving the executive the power to do the best he can. The only answer to the petition is to change the charter.

CITY CHIT CHAT.

Items of Interest from All Parts of Quincy.

This will be a glorious evening for the fine concert to be given in the Unitarian chapel.

A large number of aliens received their final papers at the District Court this morning.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Quincy & Boston street railway will be held Wednesday afternoon.

An inquest was held before Judge Flint this morning on the death of John Sullivan, who was killed by the cars at Holbrook.

A conference of those interested in monumental and mechanical drawing, will be held at the Young Men's Christian Association rooms tonight at 7.45.

The directors of the Quincy & Boston street railway will probably take action on the petition of the West Quincy citizens for better car service, at their meeting Wednesday.

Prof. J. F. Holmes of Brockton is to open his class in dancing on Wednesday evening, Nov. 1, instead of Oct. 25, as previously announced. For further particulars, see advertisement in another column.

Mr. Charles A. Howland, president and treasurer of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance company, was elected president of the Mt. Wollaston National Bank at the last meeting of the directors, vice Edwin B. Pratt, resigned. The vacancy in the board of directors has not been filled as yet. The bank is fortunate in securing so valuable a gentleman for so responsible a position as president.

The weekly reading and talk by Miss Thompson was given at Mrs. Theophilus King's, Adams street, Monday afternoon. The attendance was quite large and if the day was dull and dark outside, it was very cheerful indoors. The readings from Hawthorne could not be other than interesting as read and explained by Miss Thompson in her own bright and pleasing way. Among the new comers at this meeting were noticed: Mrs. John C. Randall, Miss Randall, Miss Pratt and Miss Bessie Pratt. "The Brownings in Italy" is the subject for next Monday afternoon, with Mrs. T. L. Sturtevant of Adams street.

Young Men's Christian Association.

The Campello and the Association football teams will play at Merrymount park next Saturday afternoon.

Preparatory to the organization of a class in monumental, machine and mechanical drawing, there will be a conference of those interested, in the Association room this evening at 7.45, when Mr. H. H. Hill, of Boston will speak. All interested are invited.

The following persons, were in attendance at the State Convention at Fitchburg, returning home yesterday, Dr. C. T. Sherman, Wm. P. Bailey, Charles W. Miller, Ernest D. Gourd, E. R. Johnson, E. W. Hayden and Secretary Colton.

Next Sunday, at the men's meeting the delegates will give their impressions. The convention was one of the best ever held.

AT THE WICKET.

A large number of societies hold their regular meeting tonight.

Degree master Franklin Jacobs will work the second degree upon one candidate at Mt. Wollaston, lodge I. O. O. F., this evening. Visitors are expected from other lodges.

A Brilliant Lecture.

Nothwithstanding the severe storm Mr. Henry H. Regan delivered his instructive and brilliant lecture, "The Home and Haunts of Shakespeare," before an audience which filled the Wollaston Congregational church on Monday evening. This is the second entertainment in the successful course given by the King's daughters. It is doubtful if a lecturer ever spoke to a more appreciative audiences. The views were simply works of art and nothing to compare with them was ever seen here before.

—Miss Helen Marsh, 42 years of age, committed suicide at her boarding place, 147 Neponset avenue, Dorchester, yesterday afternoon. She was in the employ of William B. Everett, better known as the Soule Photograph Company, at 338 Washington street, Boston, where she has been bookkeeper for a period of 20 years.

Presentation.

As Mr. John Good, an elder in the Presbyterian church, and wife were visiting Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Steele, at the parsonage on Saturday evening last, an agreeable surprise took place. A number of young people of the congregation suddenly appeared in the parlor, and Mr. Steele in their name, presented Mr. Good with a watch chain and charm as a token of appreciation and remembrance on his leaving to reside in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Canada, to which a feeling response was made. After refreshments and music the company dispersed, conscious that life is ennobled by such deserving acts of kindness.

CITY COUNCIL.

Councilman Holden offered a resolve which in substance was that it was inexpedient to legislate.

Councilman Smith said the resolution of Councilman Federhen is not an answer to the petition. What they ask is that work be done by heads of department. He believed the Mayor would act that way if he was in a position to do so.

Councilman Donahoe hoped resolve would pass.

A motion to adjourn the meeting of the Council as a whole was lost.

The substitute motion of Councilman Holden was lost.

The resolution of Councilman Federhen was then passed, and the Committee as a whole then rose and reported to the Council.

Upon a yea and nay vote the resolution was adopted by the Council; the following gentlemen voting:

Yeas—Adams, Anderson, Baker, Brown, Donahoe, Federhen, Grindell, Holbrook, Holden, Lennon, Moxon, O'Connell, Owen, Robbins, Rooney, Sherman, Smith, Williams.

Absent — Badger, Drake, Johnson, Shackley.

The Council at 12.08 A. M. adjourned.

TODAY'S COURT.

William Rogers for drunkenness at Quincy, was fined $10.

Frank Sloan of Randolph, was arraigned for the larceny of $42 from Fred J. DeVine, and held in $200 until next Thursday.

Jeremiah Callahan and James Jordan, alias Isaac Williams, two of the parties concerned in the robbery of the Granite Clothing store, were arraigned this morning, and after a lengthy hearing were held in $1,000 each for the grand jury. In default of bonds they were committed to Dedham.

A Welcome Change.

Yesterday's rainstorm rudely interrupted the wonderfully pleasant Indian summer which we had been enjoying almost constantly for several weeks, but wise lovers of nature were not displeased at the change, which was but temporary. The rain will do good. The grass was dying and drying too fast for the best conditions of the landscape, the autumn leaves were falling a little too rapidly, and more moisture in earth and air will make the charming days yet to come all the more delightful. This is the season of the year when wise men, wise women and the children of wise parents will avail themselves of every possible opportunity to stay in the open air when skies are bright and autumn winds are soft. It is a grand season for driving, horseback riding, bicycling, football playing, and above all, for walking. Plenty of out-door exercise now means a good store of health wherewith to withstand the onslaughts of winter.—Boston Daily Advertiser.

Export Tax on Coffee.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The American Minister to Costa Rica sends word that coffee, one of the articles left free of duty by the McKinley law, on condition that the exporting countries grant favorable commercial terms to the United States, is hereafter to be taxed with an export duty of 6s. in gold for every 46 kilos, or about $1.50 per 100 pounds.

—East Cambridge was the scene of a serious conflagration last evening, and the loss will, in all probability exceed $30,000, as two passenger cars, one freight car and one caboose, besides an immense amount of valuable machinery and carpenters' tools, were consumed with the "Old Mill" and carpenter repair shops of the Southern Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad which is situated on Bridge Street, at Prison Point.

—Benjamin Hubbard of Wells, has an orange that is seventy-five years old. It was found among the valuables of an uncle who died in the West Indies in the year 1818, and from the associations connected with it, has been treasured by the family all these years. It shows no marks of decay, but a gradual shrinking, being about the size of a hen's egg.

Kincaide & Co.

—The prohibition candidate for lieutenant-governor announces in a public speech that he has got the Almighty on his side in this campaign. Considering the small number of votes which the prohibitionists will poll, that remark would seem to be a reflection on somebody. Wouldn't it be as well, and in just as good taste, to keep the discussion down to mundane affairs and people?—Brockton Enterprise.

THE POLITICAL DISCUSSION.

Councilman Sherman's Answer to Ward 5 Democratic Committee's Challenge.

WOLLASTON, Oct. 19, 1892.

Mr. Martin F. Burns, Secretary of Ward 5, Dem. Com.

DEAR SIR: Yours received and challenge accepted.

Date,—October 25.
Time,—Eight o'clock, P. M.
Place,—Wollaston Hotel piazza.
Condition,—The hat shall be passed around for the benefit of Wollaston citizens who have been discharged since March 4, 1893. Yours Respectfully,

CHARLES R. SHERMAN.

The Democrats' Reply.

WOLLASTON, Oct. 23, 1893.

MR. CHARLES R. SHERMAN:

Dear Sir:—Your reply to the challenge issued by the Democratic Committee of Ward 5 for a public discussion of the political issues of the day, is received. We very much regret that you should see fit to frame your acceptance in a way which amounts to an evasion of the challenge. To do as you propose would be making a farce of the whole matter, mere child's play. We made our challenge in good faith and with a desire to have a fair and candid discussion of the questions which divide us, and a proper solution of which are of the highest importance to the people. We now renew the challenge as made in our letter of Oct. 18, and hope it may be accepted in the same spirit in which it was offered. Our object is not noise or bluster, which by the tone of your reply you seem to desire; but we wish intelligent discussion in a becoming manner, and in a proper place. We therefore decline to have the discussion out of doors, under the conditions which you impose, because both the place and conditions are wholly unsuitable to a proper treatment of the questions to be discussed.

Respectfully yours,

MARTIN F. BURNS, Sec.

WOMEN VOTERS IN MICHIGAN.

Constitutionality of the Female Suffrage Act to Be Tested In the Courts.

The last Michigan state legislature passed a law providing that in all school, village and city elections hereafter held in this state women who are able to read the constitution of the state of Michigan shall be allowed to vote, and all laws of this state prescribing the qualifications of voters at such school, village and city elections, shall apply to women.

It seems a little strange that the legislature should have passed the bill in this form, in view of the fact that the state laws already permit every person of the age of 21 years who has property liable to assessment for school taxes, and who has resided in the district three months preceding any school meeting, to vote at school elections on all questions except those involving the raising of money by tax. It is proposed to have the constitutionality of the act of 1893 tested by the state supreme court, the case coming up from Detroit. If the court decides against the act, would the right which women already possess of voting at school elections be taken away? The state constitution says specifically that "in all elections every male citizen, every male inhabitant in the state on the 24th day of June, 1835, every male inhabitant residing in the state Jan. 1, 1850, who, etc., shall be an elector and entitled to vote."

The language of the act of 1893 is plainly that "in all school, village and city elections" women shall be allowed to vote. If then the court construes the constitution strictly it cannot do otherwise than decide against the act, which decision may have the effect of depriving the women of the right to vote at school elections, which right they possess under the act of May, 1881. The court might decide, however, that no existing right can be taken away by mere implication. The decision in this important case is awaited with interest. —Kalamazoo Telegraph.

The Largest In the World.

Within sight of the station at Atherstone, on the London and Northwestern railway, there is to be seen an enormous earthenware jug, the largest in the world. This capacious article was manufactured at the Potteries, Church Gresley, over 50 years ago. Its holding capacity, when full, is 150 quarts, and it is so large that a man can sit inside it. It now rests over the front door of a china, glass and earthenware warehouse.—Exchange.

Franklin's Fate Prefigured.

The fate of Franklin, the explorer, was unwittingly prefigured, and on the eve of his starting on his last voyage, at the hands of his own devoted wife. As he lay dozing on a sofa Lady Franklin threw something over his feet, on which he awoke in consternation, saying: "Why, there's a flag thrown over me! Don't you know that they lay the union jack over a corpse?"—London Tit-Bits.

False Eyelashes.

Not content with false teeth and false hair and other falsenesses, the Parisian ladies are now wearing false eyelashes. Long, drooping eyelashes can be obtained at quite a reasonable cost. They are threaded on a fine needle, which is drawn through the skin of the eyelid in loops, which are afterward cut. The operation is said to be perfectly painless. —Paris Letter.

☞ Fill a nickle Tea Kettle with water and its still not so heavy as the old iron kind when empty—Heats in a twinkling too, and lasts and lasts, even if you thump or drop it.—Price $1.00.—Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

WILL PAY HIS BILLS

Editor Moore's Response to a Move Taken by Receivers.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 24.—A sensation was caused here late yesterday afternoon by a move taken by Receiver Hurd of the Commonwealth bank, in conjunction with Receiver Bartlett of the People's Fire Insurance company. They petitioned the probate court to place Hon. Joseph C. Moore, the ex-president of both concerns, and Charles H. Morrill, the missing treasurer, into insolvency. A hearing will be given in a few days. This morning Dr. Moore replied to the move in his paper, The Union, as follows:

I desire to state to the public that a petition to make insolvent does not accomplish the act! It requires a hearing with sufficient proof. Every creditor of mine is entitled to and can receive 100 cents on the dollar, with reasonable forbearance. I intend to continue my efforts to that end, and in due time will demonstrate whether I am right or some others. The business interests with which I am connected will continue the same as before, and those who have stood by me to see fair play I trust will continue their manful efforts and confidence. JOSEPH C. MOORE.

GUEST OF A PREACHER

Charged With the Robbery of a Meat Market at Keene, N. H.

KEENE, N. H., Oct. 24.—Merritt Linendall was arrested here charged with the robbery of E. M. Bullard's meat market. Linendall came to this city last week, claiming that he wished to establish a mission for the relief of the poor here. He said he had recently established one in Leominster, Mass., and referred people here to parties in Worcester.

Linendall spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. Bullard, but left suddenly Sunday night. When the robbery was discovered he was at once suspected, and was arrested while at the house of Rev. A. W. Hand of the Baptist church. He protests his innocence.

Flogged Frail Females.

OSCEOLA, Neb., Oct. 24.—As a sequel to the efforts of the women's whitecap band to flog a number of young women of this city for their alleged immorality, 11 leaders of Osceola's society were arraigned in court on the charge of "rioting." They pleaded not guilty and furnished bonds to appear for trial on Nov. 30. All the prisoners are members of the local Woman's Christian Temperance union.

From Prosperity to Poverty.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Twelve years ago Cassius H. Read was worth a million, owned an interest in the Hoffman House and several other properties. Today he is almost penniless, and his home at Far Rockaway, valued at $100,000, has been sold under foreclosure proceedings. There is no explanation given for his downfall.

Seeing Gotham's Sights.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Charles L. Fair son of millionaire and ex-Senator Fair of California, is at the Hotel Bartholdi. With him is his wife. Young Fair says that he and his bride intend to pass two weeks in New York, and will then sail for Europe. He says that he is not aware that his father has disinherited him.

No Trace of Poison.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 24.—An autopsy upon the body of James E. McIntyre, the lawyer who was found dead in his office, disclosed that heart failure was the cause of death. The two powders that were found in a box in his office would not have caused death, nor was there the slightest trace of poison found.

Coney Island Club Has a Rival.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The Rockaway Beach Athletic club came into existence yesterday. It will be a rival of the Coney Island Athletic club. The matchmaker of the club will be Billy Madden. According to Madden there will be no fights—only scientific boxing contests.

Damage $18,000.

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—The carpenter shop at the Prison Point freight yards on the southern division of the Boston and Maine railroad, at East Cambridge, was destroyed by fire early last evening, and with it several cars, entailing a loss of $18,000.

Ponthier's Successful Campaign.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 24.—The government of the Congo has learned that Major Ponthier has captured Kinunbu and totally dispersed the Arabs in that part of the country.

Despair.

Oh, I am sick at heart. The eye of day,
The insistent summer sun, seems pitiless,
Shining in all the barren crevices
Of weary life, leaving no shade, no dark,
Where I may dream that hidden waters lie,
As pitiless as to some shipwrecked man,
Who, gazing from his narrow shoal of sand
On the wide, unspecked round of blue and blue,
Sees that full light is errorless despair.
The insects' hum that slurs the silent dark
Startles and seems to cheat me, as the tread
Of coming footsteps cheats the midnight watcher
Who holds her heart and waits to hear them pause,
And hears them never pause, but pass and die.
Music sweeps by me as a messenger
Carrying a message that is not for me.
The very sameness of the hills and sky
Is obduracy, and the lingering hours
Wait round me dumbly, like superfluous slaves,
Of whom I want naught but the secret news
They are forbid to tell.

THE LATEST TELEPHONE.

Successful Attempt to Connect an Anchored Vessel With the Shore.

The lighthouse board has been successful in its experiments for establishing electric communication with lightships and lighthouses anchored at a distance of more than a mile from shore. This will attract the greatest interest in maritime circles all over the world. The board has been conducting these experiments for several years. Nothing can be learned at the treasury department as to who invented the plan, which has met with success. However, the obstacles which have prevented connecting by electric cable a vessel swinging at anchor at sea with the land have been overcome by attaching the core of the cable to the anchor chain and making a conductor of the latter. It has been demonstrated that the leakage of electricity produced by the water can be reduced to a minimum. Officials of the treasury department have recently talked by telephone with persons on board a lightship anchored over a mile from shore, with the anchor chain used to complete the circuit.

The establishing of electric communication with lightships will result in the saving of many thousands of dollars annually to maritime interests. Passing vessels can easily and quickly be communicated with in cases of emergency, and ships in distress will frequently be reported to life saving stations in time to dispatch relief vessels to save them. The lightship most distant from the shore is at the Nantucket shoals. It is some 30 miles from shore, and the dangers of this locality have caused it to become known as the "graveyard of American shipping." The lighthouse board is gratified at the prospect of establishing electric communication with this lightship.—Washington Letter.

Fiendish Attempt at Assault.

Ansonia, Conn., Oct. 24.—Two men named Mansfield and Hogan, the latter a bartender, inveigled a demented woman named Smith into a saloon and attempted a felonious assault. Officers rescued her in a dangerous condition. Judge Munger held each of her assailants in $1000 bonds.

Bank President Dead.

Orange, Mass., Oct. 24.—George A. Whipple, president of the Orange National bank, is dead, aged 68 years. He was born in Orange, and for 50 years he conducted a general country store. There were few better known men in financial circles in Franklin county.

Roberts the Victor.

New York, Oct. 24.—Last night the final exhibition of English billiards was played by Roberts and De Oro. Roberts conceded 300 points to De Oro in each game. In the first the score was Roberts, 500; De Oro, 768; and in the second Roberts, 500; De Oro, 495.

Considering Mission Work.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—The annual session of the missionary council of the Protestant Episcopal church, consisting of 75 bishops, 200 presbyters and 200 laymen, began at St. James church in this city. Bishop McLaren of the Chicago diocese presided.

Winter Weather In the Northwest.

St. Paul, Oct. 24.—Dispatches report a storm in which snow and hail and sleet are combined, extending over eastern South Dakota and a short distance into North Dakota.

AFTER THIRTY YEARS.

George Holcomb Locates His Father and Has a Talk With Him.

Palmer, Mass., Oct. 24.—Thirty years ago Charles Holcomb said goodby to his wife and son and enlisted in the Union army. When the war was over he did not return to his family, but went to unknown parts. Mrs. Holcomb naturally supposed her husband dead, and after a proper interval married Captain Dwight Johnson of this town. In a few years Captain Johnson died and within a few months Mrs. Johnson died also.

The son, George Holcomb, has just accidentally found that his father is living. He was at Coleraine, and happened to see in the postoffice a letter addressed to Charles Holcomb. As that is his father's name he made inquiries, went to a farm some distance from the town and found that the man really was his father and had a long talk with him.

The elder Holcomb is married again and has several children. He owns a good farm and draws a pension. George told his father of his mother's death, and the old man said he would have liked to have seen Mrs. Johnson and had a talk with her before she died. There seems to be no likelihood that father and son will live together. George is a night watchman at a depot in West Brookfield.

FIGHTING RENEWED.

Missionary Work In Africa Is Rendered Decidedly Dangerous.

London, Oct. 24.—A letter from Umanda written by a missionary named Miller and dated Kalpala, June 16, gives details of renewed fighting between the Protestants and Mohametans. He says that after the departure of Gerard Portal the Mohametans expected that Selim Bey, who was the commander of the Soudanese and English forces, would mutiny and assist them. The mutiny was frustrated, however, by the disarming of the Soudanese, and the Mohametans were defeated by the Ugandese, hundreds of them being killed. Selim Bey was condemned to banishment and has since died.

Captain MacDonald ordered that all the Mahometans return to their own country or be shot. It was reported that Major Owen of the British forces was captured by the Mahometans, and would be killed if Captain MacDonald insisted upon executing his threat. The latest news received was that Captain MacDonald adhered to his threat, and said that if Major Owen was killed his death would be avenged.

The Stewart Millions.

New York, Oct. 24.—A re-trial of the suit of Alexander Stewart against ex-Judge Henry Hilton for a share of the millions left by Alexander T. Stewart was begun yesterday. Stewart asserts that he is a cousin once removed of the late A. T. Stewart. His suit was dismissed on the first trial because he could not establish his relationship. This time, however, he has some new evidence.

She Warned General Harrison.

Indianapolis, Oct. 24.—A woman who registered as Mrs. Paderson of Beloit, Wis., claims to have dreamed that General Harrison was to be the next president, but that demons and evil forces are at work to defeat that end. She averred that she had been sent here to warn Mr. Harrison. Having related her warning to the ex-president's private secretary she at once took a train for home.

A Six-Day Cycle Race.

New York, Oct. 24.—Frank W. Sanger has just consummated arrangements to give in the arena of the Madison Square Garden a six day go-as you-please bicycle race on the geared ordinary bicycles. The race will take place during Christmas week. He has cabled his representative in London to notify all the best riders in Europe that they may enter.

And Still Another.

Little Rock, Oct. 24.—A disastrous collision occurred on the Iron Mountain road near Texarkana. The crew of a southbound train disobeyed orders, going by the station where a northbound train was to have been held. The trains collided a few minutes afterward. Several cars and both engines were wrecked and three men were killed.

Probably the Riverside.

Cleveland, Oct. 24.—Captain Joseph Single of the fishing tug R. T. Roy discovered the spars of a sunken vessel protruding from the water yesterday. The foundered boat was undoubtedly the schooner Riverside, which has been missing since the big storm of the 12th. She carried seven persons, all of whom are undoubtedly lost.

Hill Speaks at Brooklyn.

Brooklyn, Oct. 24.—The Academy of Music was crowded last night by people anxious to hear Senator Hill speak on national topics. The new tariff was unofficially outlined by the senator, who said it would be, first of all, a revenue bill, calling for raw materials, with no favoritism. He advocated the changing of the senate rules.

A Double Bereavement.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Andrew Kimball, a real estate dealer, drowned himself yesterday at the place where his 18-year-old daughter suicided Saturday in a similar manner. The daughter was despondent over prolonged sickness. The father was overwhelmed with grief over the loss of his daughter. Mrs. Kimball is prostrated.

Lived 103 Years.

Philadelphia, Oct. 24.—Miss Sallie Wheeler died here yesterday, aged 103 years. She was born in Birmingham, Eng., Dec. 16, 1790, and had always been prominent in the work of the Protestant Episcopal church, of which she was a lifelong member. She retained full possession of her faculties to the last.

Repealers Blacklisted.

Denver, Oct. 24.—At a meeting of the trades assembly of this city, Governor Waite introduced Mrs. Barry Lake of St. Louis, who spoke. A long list of Chicago firms who had signed a petition for the repeal of the Sherman law was read, and the firms were blacklisted on that account.

Twenty-Three Were Injured.

Pittsburg, Oct. 24.—The collision between the Columbian express and an eastbound passenger train on the Fort Wayne road at Monroeville, Ind., was attended with worse results than at first reported. The number of injured is 23. They will all get well, it is thought.

Removed by Electricity.

Dannemora, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Martin Foy, the murderer of his mistress, was executed by electricity yesterday. The condemned man made not a movement except that caused by the turning on and off of the current. Dr. Ransom says death was painless.

AIR OF UNCERTAINTY

Concerning the Ultimate Fate of the Sherman Bill.

THE REPEALERS DECEIVED.

Thought the Plan Agreed Upon Suited the President.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Neither the Democratic senators nor the administration were willing to assume the responsibility for the proposed compromise, so all negotiations in that direction have been abandoned. The administration, through its agent, intimated that a compromise with the time limit fixed at July would be acceptable, as it was only a question of a few months. It was also said by administration men that October might be acceptable after it was learned that the silver men were standing firmly for January. Negotiations were continued, and the administration men consented to fix the date at Oct. 1, 1894.

The more the silver men pondered over the subject the less pleased were they with the provisions of the compromise. The elimination of a bond provision withdrew all hope of Republican support for the proposition. It then became a purely Democratic measure, and it required a majority of the dominant party to give it their approval. With this condition of affairs presented, the administration hesitated about approving it, and announced that Democrats in congress must bear the responsibility alone. This frightened some of the administration Democrats, including Senators Hill, McPherson, Mills and Vilas, and they refused to sign the petition to Mr. Voorhees.

Carlisle Blamed.

The promoters of the compromise contend that the steps taken were in harmony with suggestions they received from the administration, and the failure of the project is laid at the door of Secretary Carlisle, who, it is claimed, misled the friends of unconditional repeal, and, as the representative of the president, led them to believe that the proposed compromise would be acceptable. At the present writing the friends of the administration in the senate are angry at the embarrassing position in which they find themselves. The silver Democrats are equally indignant, and the silver Republicans say they would prefer unconditional repeal to the modified compromise.

No one is willing to venture a prediction as to what the ultimate outcome will be. Senator Voorhees says nothing definite will be done during the next two or three days, and efforts will be made to restore harmony in the Democratic ranks, which now seems impossible. All hands seem to be at sea. The coolest-headed men on both sides say that unconditional repeal appears to be the only proposition in sight.

Concerning Bonds.

It is said that the principal objection of President Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle to the compromise arranged is that it makes no provision for bonds. The administration and the Republicans are represented as determined to agree to nothing except unconditional repeal unless the issue of bonds is authorized, and the administration would make very small concessions even if given the bonds.

The Democratic conference committee went into secret session again yesterday, with orders that no one was to be admitted. After half an hour spent in deliberation other senators came and went, and it appeared as if Democrats were being consulted upon the new situation that confronted those in charge of the bill. There was an air of uncertainty about the senate chamber yesterday, and senators who were very confident of a solution of the financial question when the senate took a recess Saturday are looking very gloomy over the prospects, and according to the opinions freely expressed by some senators any idea they may have had of a recess has vanished.

Senate Proceedings.

The senate entered on the 12th week of the present session at 10 o'clock yesterday. No adjournment has occurred since a week ago yesterday; the legislative day of Tuesday, Oct. 17, continues.

Mr. Stewart (Rep., Nev.) gave notice of an amendment which he intended to offer to the repeal bill proposing a conference to be held at Washington within nine months of delegates of Mexico, South America, Hayti and San Domingo for the adoption of a common silver coin to be legal tender in all commercial transactions between the citizens of the countries represented in the conference.

The house joint resolution for the printing of 2000 copies of the hearings before the committee on ways and means of the house was agreed to, with an amendment making the number 4000, to be divided equally between the senate and the house.

The consideration of the bill to repeal the purchasing clause of the silver act of 1890 was then resumed, and Mr. Jones (Rep., Nev.) entered upon the fourth installment of his argument in opposition to that bill.

At 1:05 p. m. Mr. Jones remarked that the chamber was very close, and, being tired, he decided to yield the floor to the senator from Colorado (Mr. Teller), expressing his desire to resume his speech at another time. The day's proceedings were decidedly uninteresting.

In the House.

The debate on the bankruptcy bill began in the house. There is a great deal of determined opposition to the measure led by some of the ablest lawyers in the house. It is directed generally against the policy of national bankruptcy laws. In view of past experience with sublaws, and particularly at the involuntary clause, at this time when so many business firms in close straits, might, under its operation, be forced to the wall.

The senate amendments to the Rawlins' bill for the relief of the Mormon church was agreed to in the house.

A bill authorizing the payment of the expenses of Louis L. Williams, World's fair commissioner from Alaska, was objected to by Mr. Kilgore (Dem., Tex.) on the ground that it would open the way to a deluge of claims against the government growing out of the World's fair.

The printing bill was passed, 167 to 17.

Mr. McRae called up the bill to protect forest reservations, which was partly considered in the morning hour a few days ago, but by unanimous consent it went over, an objection upon which the speaker reserved his decision. According to the special order adopted last week the house then proceeded to the consideration of the bankruptcy bill, which occupied the remainder of the day.

LOVE AND JUSTICE.

Love and Justice one day both wandered away
From the world to a wooded retreat.
Have you missed them, my friend? If you have, now attend
To their story, which I will repeat,
And you also in turn will the reason discern
Why it is that with neither you meet.

Said Justice to Love—she was shy as a dove—
"I am lost; my way back I can't find."
"Take my hand," said Love bold; "I am hot, you are cold.
I can feel our way out if you'll mind."
On the way dark as pitch both fell into a ditch—
Ah, the blind had tried leading the blind!

—Nelly L. Brown in Kate Field's Washington.

A GHOST OF THE PAST.

Sir Robert Lisburn and his wife were not particularly silly as newly married couples go. For one thing, Sir Robert was 30-something, and when you are 30-something gravity comes. But he was very much in love with his young wife. He handed her out of the family omnibus carefully, and the very prettiest ankle and the tiniest shoe peeped out for a moment as she stepped down before one of the big hotels on Trafalgar square.

As she tripped up the broad, carpeted stairs to her room there was a look of great happiness in her eyes.

"And is my dear girl quite happy?" said Sir Robert. Young Lady Lisburn—she was tall and pleasant looking—turned to him affectionately.

"Your dear girl," she said, "has had her worries in her life. She had one big worry."

"How big?"

Lady Lisburn widened her arms to give an idea of the size.

"But it's all over now, and I am very, very happy."

"Perhaps," said Sir Robert, "perhaps the dear girl will tell me all about it some day."

"She may—some day," said the young bride, flushing. "Just now she is so contented that she doesn't want even to think about it."

The next morning they went off to the Engadine. It was two months later when they returned, trunks and portmanteaus plastered all over with square and circular labels—Hotel Bellevue and Hotel Beau Rivage and a lot of others. Both Sir Robert and Lady Lisburn looked very jolly and well.

There were letters waiting for Lady Lisburn. She read them in her bedroom. As she saw the writing on one of the envelopes she grew red and then very white. She perused the letter again and again, with hands trembling and a face that looked into the mirror with a frightened look. Then she turned off the electric light and sank on her knees and sobbed. They staid in town for some days. They drove out a good deal, visiting, but young Lady Lisburn looked ill and out of sorts and scarcely spoke to her husband. He seemed to be repelled by her coldness. Once or twice Lady Lisburn tried to rouse herself, but the look of worry quickly came back, and her husband, placid and even as he was, could not help feeling disturbed.

One evening in the latter part of the week Lady Lisburn was sitting at the open window of their room, her face resting on her hand, looking out into the square and seeing nothing.

A page boy entered with a foreign message. She opened it, read the typewritten words and crumpled quickly the sheet in her hand as Sir Robert came in.

"I want to say something to you, Robert," she said in a shaky voice. He came over to her.

"I want to go away from you for a few weeks."

"A few weeks?" he repeated blankly.

"A few weeks. Unless you want me to be a miserable woman all my life, you must let me do this. Let me go, and when I come back I shall be quite jolly, and I shall love you more than ever, and we"——

"My dear," said Sir Robert, "you are perfectly unreasonable! You are not yourself."

"Unfortunately I am," interposed the young wife sadly.

"Or you wouldn't dream of proposing such a preposterous thing. Now, love, just you go to bed early tonight and have a good rest, and you'll be all right in the morning."

"If you don't let me go, Robert, I shall never be able to rest again. I shall be nothing but a curse to you and a misery to myself for all my life. Do let me go."

"My dear love," said Sir Robert, rising with a very decided air, "if you absolutely refuse to tell me the motive for your disappearance, I absolutely refuse to let you go."

"Then I—then I must go without your permission." She said this without defiance and in the humblest way.

Sir Robert went down stairs and stood at the hotel door for a few minutes smoking his cigar rather quickly. Then he turned and went to the telephone room and looked in the book and rang up. Lady Lisburn, white and set of face, returned to her room and prepared for her journey.

It was a surprise to Sir Robert to find in the hall not 10 minutes later the man for whom he had telephoned. He was a burly, scarlet faced man, and he gave his card to Sir Robert with an awkward, fat bow:

Thomas Bester.
Fayre, Sweever & Co., Inquiry Agents.

"Come into this room, Mr.—Mr. Bester."

Mr. Bester wiped his boots with particular care.

"You'd like something to drink perhaps?"

Mr. Bester pulled his waistcoat down and coughed slightly and said that he didn't know as a drop of whisky would do him any particular harm. At any rate, he said (he said this with the air of a man prepared for any experiment in the interest of science) he'd try.

Sir Robert ordered a large whisky and gave instructions that he was to be told when Lady Lisburn left the hotel.

"We need not hurry until that happens," said Sir Robert. He explained to Mr. Bester what was required.

There was to be no fuss, insisted Sir Robert, and no interference. All that Bester had to do was to follow Lady Lisburn, and if she was in any danger to wire Sir Robert at once, and himself take such steps as he might think were necessary.

"That's the way," said Mr. Bester, with approbation; "take things calmly. Much better in the long run. I ought to know. I've been at it in the yard and out of the yard 30 year come next Feb'uary."

"I suppose you have had some interesting cases to deal with," remarked Sir Robert politely.

Mr. Bester stood up and looked at himself in the mirror for a moment and then sat down again heavily.

"The most interesting," he said, "are them that nobody don't deal with."

Mr. Bester took another sip from his tumbler and essayed to rest one knee on the other, but found the position for a gentleman of his rotundity uncomfortand relinquished the endeavor.

"Look here, Sir Robert," said Mr. Bester, "here's a case in point. Just what you may call a little incident: Look here. This" (taking a wax match from the box and sticking it upright on the table)—"this is Mr. Bertie Ellenborough, and this" (taking another and sticking it upright)—"this is Miss—Miss Whatshername. Reelly, I forgit the name. However, that don't matter."

The door opened softly, but neither of the men noticed it.

"Very well then. Few years ago Mr. Bertie Ellenborough (that's this one) knows Miss Whatshername (that's this one), and she loves him and writes him warm, rapturous letters—letters that she would be ashamed now to read, or for anybody else to read. Still, a good girl, mind you. Mr. Bertie comes up town, forgets her, goes to bad, slips himself off to America and gets worse and worse. He becomes hard up, and what does he do then but blackmail Miss Whatshername.

"Damned scoundrel!" exclaimed Sir Robert heartily.

"Blackmails her. I happens to go out to trace a chap, and I meets Mister Bertie in a bar, and he tells me all about it."

"Ought to be hanged!" remarked Sir Robert.

But that isn't the worst. I tells him for a lark that I'm a bit of a scamp myself and brags a bit, and then Mr. Bertie goes one better and assures me that he burned those letters long ago, and he was only pretending he'd still got them. That beats anything, don't it? There's a scamp for you. Making a regular income out of it too."

"Girl married, I wonder?"

"So I understand," said Mr. Bester.

"Poor girl," said Sir Robert. "Wonder who her husband is?"

"Sir Robert," said a voice. They had not turned on the light, and the room was growing dark.

"My love?" he said.

"They told me you wanted to see me," said Lady Lisburn, "and, my dear, I'm—I'm not going. I could not have known what I was talking about just now."

"My dear heart," exclaimed Sir Robert delightedly, "tell me what it was that was worrying you?"

"Why, absolutely nothing," answered his wife decidedly. "There was no excuse for it."

They took each other's hands.

"Shall I look in again, Sir Robert?" said Mr. Bester respectfully. He had been standing aside and pretending, with excellent savoir faire, to look out of the window.

"Oh, I beg your pardon, Bester," said Sir Robert. "No, you needn't look in again. I'll send your people a check for your trouble."—St. James Gazette.

Daisy Miller's Little Brother.

The willful little brother of Daisy Miller is no less true a type than his older and more famous sister. One has but to watch our children's manners with a very little attention to discover this. It will be noticed, too, that those little ones whose parents are wealthy enough to leave them in the hands of trained servants have, at least on the surface, the best manners united to the most docility. This seems to be largely because the servants exact a certain sort of subjugation from them as well as a ready obedience to what commands they themselves may be allowed to give. The average parent, on the contrary, has no apparent idea of enforcing his desires. Listen to the "Don't do this" and "Do that," as said to the children you encounter in public places, and notice how seldom any heed whatever is given to the speech. Once in 50 times is a liberal allowance.—Philadelphia Press.

Letters That Reach the White House.

Mrs. Cleveland, during her first occupancy of the White House, made a collection of the amusing letters which from time to time were forwarded to her through the mail by persons wholly unknown to her. The last week or two of her stay in the White House, prior to ex-President Harrison's inauguration, were occupied in looking over the avalanche of private correspondence received during the two years of her residence there. After destroying as many as possible, those put aside to be retained filled to repletion the depths of a Saratoga trunk.—Kate Field's Washington.

Successful Treatment.

"Just try to frighten me, will you?" said Briggs to Braggs.

"What for?"

"I've got the hiccough, and if you frighten me it will make it go away at once."

"Very well, then; here goes (shouting at the top of his voice); lend me $20!"

"Ah, thanks; it's gone!"—Texas Siftings.

Daring Sparrows.

Sparrows are proverbially audacious. Two recently reared their frail habitation in a railway signal box, unmindful of the various noises resulting from shunting the trains. A train used to make a daily run carrying a blackbird's nest and eggs among the woodwork underneath one of the carriages.—Chambers' Journal.

THE SILVER MEN GIVE IT UP.

Democrats Meet and Decide Not to Filibuster.

A VOTE ON VOORHEES' BILL

Very Likely to Be Reached Within a Week.

A Few More Days Will Be Occupied by Speechmaking—Leaders of the Two Factions In Each Party Express the Sentiment That the Fight Is Ended and That the Vote on Unconditional Repeal Will Be Taken at the Earliest Possible Moment — Kyle and Peffer Fancy They See Millions of Votes For Populists by the Agreement.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—There was an easy going and conservative action in the senate yesterday afternoon, which not has been observed in that body since the repeal bill was taken up for discussion in August last. The announcement of an agreement that a vote be taken had no more than been made and come to be generally understood than the senate resumed its wonted manner of going on with business without regard to the presence of a quorum and with due concern for the bodily welfare of members shown by closing its labors at 4 o'clock.

After Senator Faulkner moved a recess two hours in advance of the usual hour most of the members remained in the chamber chatting among themselves and with those who chanced to stroll in as if they had just returned from a long journey and had not yet had an opportunity to talk it all over, or as if they had become accustomed to the long hours, and become attached to the chamber that they felt loathe to leave it earlier than usual. When at last they got out and found the sun still shining—an unusual experience with them of late—most of them drew a long breath of relief. They realized apparently for the first time that the end was really near and began to make plans for the future.

May Adjourn Next Week.

Left to himself and with only his own personal convenience and comfort to consider, each senator would probably decide in favor of adjournment immediately after the passage of the repeal bill. Most of the Republicans and the Populists and many of the Democrats said they expected congress to adjourn early next week until the first Monday in December.

Senator Faulkner, who has acted as Senator Voorhees' principal aid in the long battle which has almost closed, said, when spoken to upon the subject, that he believed adjournment would soon follow.

The older leaders of the Democratic party, upon whom the decision will largely rest, were not quite so confident of adjournment. Senator Harris said there was a great deal for congress to do and he did not see why it should not proceed with the work without interruption. Senators Hoar and Gorman refused to answer the question at all, saying it had not been canvassed.

The Conference.

The conference of silver Democrats yesterday was to decide whether filibustering should be resorted to, and the question of the possible defeat of the bill and the delay of its passage were discussed. They simply canvassed the situation and concluded that it was not wise policy to attempt to make good the promise they had made Monday to the silver Republicans of making further opposition to the bill by the use of obstructive tactics. They made that pledge while laboring under a feeling of resentment over the defeat of their compromise measure.

After weighing the subject fully, they concluded that while their constituents would justify them in making as strong a fight for silver as they could make in a legitimate and regular way, their people would not endorse them in resorting to filibustering methods. They also recognized the fact that with a majority in the senate against them they would be compelled to yield sooner or later, and that if they should succeed in getting any concession whatever, it would be of very small consequence.

Furthermore they contended that if the settlement of the question should be longer delayed the business depression would be laid at the doors of silver. Taking all these matters into consideration, as they also did the physical condition of members of the senate on both sides who have been through the long siege, they concluded to repress their resentment and yield at once.

Confident Populists.

Senator Harris was chosen to carry the message to the Republicans. Immediately afterward a halt was called upon a filibusterer, and the long fight was practically at an end. The Republican silver men conferred among themselves briefly and agreed that it would be a waste of time and in every way foolish, because in the end futile, to continue the fight. The three Populist senators had agreed to abide by the decision of the Republicans.

"We were ready to go on," said Senators Peffer and Kyle in union, "and could have continued the fight, but we are willing to quit when both of the old parties do so. The fight has gone on long enough and has terminated in a way to show that neither of these parties is friendly to silver. We feel badly to have silver receive this setback, but politically we view the situation with complacency. We cannot mourn, for it is not even a defeat. We expect the result to make millions of votes for the Populists."

The silver Republicans and repeal Republicans made a mild but ineffectual effort to unite forces before the close by bringing Sherman and Teller together, but they soon found that they could not unite upon a measure that would stand a likelihood of receiving the necessary majority to insure its passage. The repeal Republicans expressed themselves as willing to support a bill providing for the purchase and coinage of 2,000,000 ounces of silver per month, until Jan. 1, 1896, and also providing for the issuance of $600,000,000 worth of bonds.

The silver Republicans did not consider that this proposition offered them much more in the interest of silver than the Democratic compromise measure which was knocked over yesterday. They also said it would be impossible [illegible] to get the support necessary [illegible] the bill from the Democrats or Populists.

Played Out.

Mr. Teller is well nigh exhausted by his long vigil and hard work in the senate since the silver fight began. He has not been hopeful of the silver cause for a month, and he has regarded the end as near since the time a week ago yesterday when the silver men made their effort to secure an adjournment instead of a recess, and found they could only muster 10 or 12 votes.

Senator Voorhees said that he was hopeful of reaching the voting stage in two days, and the opinion is general that the bill will be well discussed before the end of the week. It is not believed by any one that half the 27 amendments proposed will be regularly offered. The silver men will probably discuss some of these amendments under the five-minute rule, but it is not expected that there will be a great deal of debate on the amendments.

There is already talk of future silver legislation. One of the leading advocates of repeal is quoted as saying that he will introduce a free coinage bill upon the assembling of the regular session. Senator Sherman said that he was contemplating the introduction of a bond bill, and that it would probably incidentally make some provision for the use of silver. Many other senators have financial bills in contemplation.

The outlook is indeed good that the regular session will be flooded with financial bills, and no one need be surprised if the Fifty-third congress should develop a record of financial discussion almost as important as the one now closing.

A canvass of senatorial opinion this morning brought out the fact that the opinion was almost unanimous that a vote will be taken on repeal by next Tuesday at the latest.

A Maniac's Deed.

BRADFORD, Pa., Oct. 25.—An unusually brutal murder is reported from Mount Jewel, where Mike Doyle, a section boss, was awakened by the violent screaming of his wife. Hastily arising, a horrible sight met his eyes. On the floor, weltering in his own blood, lay his 4-year-old boy, his throat cut from ear to ear, while over the body stood the maniac mother, brandishing a gory razor and attempting her own destruction. After a desperate struggle, Doyle succeeded in overpowering the woman, but not until she had cut a deep and dangerous wound in her throat. The woman may recover.

Over a Million For Charity.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 25.—The will of the late Jane Holmes was filed for probate yesterday. She gives $20,000 to the trustees of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States, and $50,000 for the relief of disabled ministers. After disposing of about $200,000 in bequests to relatives and friends, she provides for an equal division of the rest of her estate, amounting to more than $1,000,000, among various local charitable institutions.

Noted Judge Dead.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 25.—Judge Hugh L. Bond of the United States circuit court died yesterday. He never recovered from an attack of la grippe, from which he suffered a year ago. President Grant in 1870 appointed him United States circuit judge. He sat in the famous Ku-Klux trials in the Carolinas and decided the famous South Carolina presidential electoral board case in 1876.

The Bennington at Melilla.

MADRID, Oct. 25.—The United States warship Bennington arrived off Melilla yesterday and exchanged salutes with the batteries. The American commander landed and paid his respects to the Spanish authorities. The Spaniards made a sortie from Melilla yesterday and destroyed the Moorish trenches within the Spanish territory. There was no fighting.

Want Cudahy to Square Up.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Austin W. Wright, one of John Cudahy's brokers in the late attempt to corner pork, and Wright's assignee, Charles Cattlin, have filed suit against John Cudahy and his wife, Charles L. Hutchinson and Ernest Hamill, asking for an accounting in partnership, the removal of Hutchinson as assignee and the appointment of a receiver.

Death of Admiral Queen.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Admiral Walker W. Queen expired suddenly last night at his home in this city. He was born in the District of Columbia Oct. 6, 1824, and commenced his career when appointed midshipman from New York. He was commissioned rear admiral Aug. 18, 1886, and was retired Oct. 6 of the same year.

The Reaper Away Ahead.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The American clipper ship Reaper and the American bark Western Belle sailed from Astoria, Or., on June 20, to race down the Pacific coast and around the Horn to this port for a wager of $1000. The Reaper arrived yesterday an easy winner.

Railroad Robbed.

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—A sensation has been caused by the discovery of extensive frauds in the Berlin Stettin railroad. Twenty-six of the guards employed on this railroad have been arrested. The exact nature of the frauds is not disclosed.

First Time In Many Years.

BOSTON, Oct. 25.—The old Cotton tomb in King's Chapel burial ground was opened today for the first time in 14 years, and the body of Miss Lucy Cotton, a descendant of the famous old divine, was deposited within. A crowd was attracted by the workmen engaged in opening the tomb.

NINE ARRESTS MADE

In Connection With the Madison Square Bank Frauds.

SEVEN FURNISHED BONDS.

The Institution's Affairs Are Decidedly Tangled.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—In the dark chambers of the district attorney's office yesterday sat seven men, charged with criminally wrecking the Madison Square bank, which closed its doors Aug. 7. They were Joseph F. Blaut, president of the bank; Lewis Thompson, the cashier; Roland T. MacDonald, Adolph F. Kalischer, Simon Ottenberg, A. L. Soulard and Frederick Uhlmann, directors. They were filing their bail bonds and were accompanied by their lawyers.

Charles Sclover, another director, was under arrest in Passaic, and Frederick A. Kersheed was ill at his home, Hotel Imperial. MacDonald, Thompson and Kalischer were arrested Monday night. Blaut, Uhlmann, Soulard and Ottenberg were arrested yesterday. Kersheed is under arrest at his home. The charges against President Blaut, Cashier Thompson and Directors MacDonald and Uhlmann are forgery in the third degree, perjury and misdemeanor.

So far as is known, the remaining directors are charged only with a misdemeanor in not preventing the frauds which led to the bank's closing. The bank's affairs are so complicated, however, that other charges may grow out of these made.

The filing of bail bonds and settling of a day for the examination were all that was done yesterday. The court proceedngs took but a moment. The day for the examination was set for a week from Saturday.

Looks Bad For the Accused.

"The provisions of law under which the directors are indicted for fraudulent conspiracy," said Lawyer Untermyer, counsel for the Madison Square bank, "supply a much-needed want in criminal jurisprudence in this state. A director who loans the power of his name and reputation to a corporation thereby induces people to put their money at the disposal of this corporation and is held to a more strict accountability than heretofore.

"He can no longer loan his name and then go about his business, ignoring his trust. If he does so he does it at his peril. If, in his absence from the board meeting, acts are done in violation of law, he must enter his protest, written six months thereafter, or he will be deemed to have assented to such illegal acts, and he will be held accountable.

"The law provides that a director of a stock corporation is deemed to have such a knowledge of its affairs as to enable him to determine whether any act of its directors is a violation of duty. It being his business to know what is done, he is charged with knowledge, whether he knows it or not, unless he dissents from the act within six months."

Rabbi Schindler to Resign.

BOSTON, Oct. 25.—Temple Adath Israel, the home of the wealthiest Jewish congregation in this city, will undoubtedly have a new rabbi next year. Rev. Dr. Solomon Schindler, the present incumbent of the position, who has directed the spiritual welfare of the congregation for nearly 20 years, has determined to resign. Dr. Schindler's name as a liberal thinker and broad humanitarian, an earnest disciple of the universal religion of the future, has been known throughout this country. He is a man of fine literary attainments, and a bold and versatile writer, and the author of many works. Rabbi Schindler ranks today as one of Boston's most esteemed citizens. In 1888 he was elected by a unanimous vote to the school board for three years, having been put forward as a candidate by all political parties.

Desperate Mr. Moore.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—E. F. Moore, editor of The Mark Lane Express and Bell's Messenger, was summoned to answer in the Bow street police court yesterday on a charge of embezzlement. He did not appear, however, and it was stated that he had shot himself. He is still alive. The hearing was adjourned.

For New Hampshire Farmers.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 25.—At a meeting here yesterday, the New Hampshire state board of agriculture reaffirmed its former position in regard to the college at Durham, and pledged itself to use all honorable means to secure to the farmers of the state a college not only agricultural in name, but in reality.

Liquor Dealers Want License.

CHESTER, Conn., Oct. 25.—The citizens of this town are excited over an attempt to declare the recent town election void on the ground that the moderator declared the town meeting adjourned before the result of a vote was declared. Liquor dealers will try to have "no license" declared void.

Waltham Suffers.

WALTHAM, Mass., Oct. 25.—The Davis & Farnham Foundry company have discharged 20 employes, owing to dull times. They have been employing 300 hands up to date. The Waltham Screw company, employing 15 hands, has closed for an indefinite period.

A Matter of Form.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The usual ceremonious presentation of the newly elected lord mayor of London, George Robert Tyler, to the lord chancellor in the house of lords took place yesterday. The customary courtesies were exchanged.

Neighborly Club

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Crane entertained a few of their friends Tuesday evening, at their residence on Washington street. There was an impromptu musical entertainment in which Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Garey, Mrs. Ralph G. Crane and Mrs. George T. Magee contributed. A few hands of whist, and refreshments were also enjoyed.

Before the guests departed it was decided to form a permanent club, whose object should be social intercourse during the coming winter months, to be known as the "Neighborly Club."

Dr. C. W. Garey was elected as one who could preside with the proper dignity over the destinies of the organization, while Mr. Gordon M. Keating will perform the same function during the M. D.'s absence, and Mrs. Crane will see that the records are properly kept, and that the funds are kept intact.

The Republican Club Banquet.

Every dinner ticket to the big banquet of the Republican Club in Music Hall, Boston, this evening, has been sold, and the last ticket to the galleries has gone out. There has been such a rush for the dinner tickets that they were all gone early yesterday, and as for the gallery tickets, they gave out at about the same time.

The Boston Journal says it will be the greatest dinner that has ever been held in Music Hall and the after-dinner exercises will have an interest unequalled in years. Hon. John Simpkins will preside at the speaking and the orators will be inimitable. Thomas B. Reed of Maine, Congressman John Dalzell of Pennsylvania and the candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor, Hon. Frederick T. Greenhalge and Roger Wolcott. With such an array of talent it is not strange that the tickets went with a rush and calls for more were made. Mechanics' Building could have been filled just as well if the club had decided to hold the dinner in that place.

The speaking will be opened by Mr. Greenhalge, Mr. Wolcott will follow and then Mr. Dalzell, Mr. Reed coming last.

Conference of Charities.

Yesterday afternoon there convened in the Channing church at Newton a gathering of people interested in all kinds of charitable and reformatory work, public and private.

They came together under the name of the New England conference of charities and corrections to hold a three days' convention. The avowed object, as set forth in the invitation, is "to learn from and teach each other about new and improved methods, to exchange opinions, to measure the results they have attained by those attained by others."

This is what someone has aptly named the end of the present century. "when philanthrophy blossoms as the rose over all civilization."

Surprise Party.

About seventy-five of the friends of Chas. A. Hobart tendered him a surprise party at his home last evening. The party met at Doble's corner and about eight o'clock made their way to his home just in time to meet Charles coming out of the yard and he was turned back, although too surprised to walk, then the fun began. After the Glee Club Orchestra had given a very pleasing overture, dancing seemed to be the first in order, and the orchestra kept them dancing the most of the evening only stopping while the Granite City Quartette rendered some of their favorite selections, and to hear some very laughable pieces by Mr. Sumner and John Pierce.

Miss Fletcher one of Quincy's sweet singers gave some of the latest selections which were loudly applauded.

Miss Connell of Boston, another sweet singer, gave some selections vocal and instrumental, which pleased the party very much.

Mr. Hobart then had something to say as he was presented with a very handsome etching. He made a short speech thanking them and wished all a good time.

About eleven o'clock the party assembled in the dining room where a collation was served, after which everyone seemed ready for more fun, and music was again heard. Then games of all kinds were played, while more selections and dancing went on until about one o'clock, when all assembled in the front hall and some good night selections were sung, after which they parted with many good wishes to all.

Practical Education.

The first step was taken last evening by the Young Men's Christian Association towards practical educational work for young men. The association recognizes that the average young man is desirous of improving his condition in life. In view of this fact it is intended, as soon as its financial condition and accommodations will permit, to start classes helpful to young men in various trades.

The conference last evening was for those interested in monumental and mechanical drawing. About one dozen persons were present, eight of whom signified their intention of joining such a class.

Interesting Debate.

At a meeting of the members of the Highland club, held last evening at Newton Highlands, the entertainment consisted of a debate on the question, "Is the annexation of suburban towns contiguous to a great city in which their citizens do business, to be desired?"

The affirmative was supported by Rev. W. H. Williams, Judge Chas. Reed and Francis Bellamy. The negative side was supported by Dr. S. L. Eaton, Eliot J. Hyde and H. W. Taylor. After a spirited debate the question was decided in the negative.

RACING IN MODERN ROME.

Riderless Horses Goaded to Furious Speed With Balls of Prickles.

The prizes for these races were called palii, and were usually pieces of brocade or some other rich stuff, which was thrown over the back of the horse that won and so displayed to the people. We also hear of a procession of the palii, so no doubt they often took the form of banner. The nobles used to deposit them in their chapels, and in the last days of the papal government the French soldiers substituted for the procession of the palii that of the bue grasso.

The pope's dragoons used to gallop through the Corso to clear it before the race, and to warn the people that it had actually started. Either mortars were fired or trumpets blown, but accidents were perpetually occurring, and when in 1886 two people were killed just below the balcony where stood the Queen Margherita, the Barbary races were forbidden in the Corso for the future, though renewed last year in a very much modified form around the Piazza del Popolo.

The horses had no riders, but carried two balls of lead, covered with prickles, loosely attached by leather thongs below the neck and on the back. So of course the harder they galloped the more these prickly balls danced up and down and goaded them on.

Dashing furiously along the Corso, they were past almost before people knew that they had started, and in such a narrow street, with such a crush of people on either side and somebody always trying to cross at the last moment or stepping out of the throng to see if they were coming, it was small wonder that it was a dangerous game, though of course the danger was in part also the attraction.

A sheet was stretched across the street to catch the horses at the back of Piazza Venezia, in the passage still called Via della Ripresa de Barberi, in front of which was a cord covered with wet red paint. This dropped before the rush of the foremost horse, leaving a streak of paint on his chest, and thus all knew at once which was the winner.—Gentleman's Magazine.

There has recently been disinterred among the stores of the lord chamberlain at Windsor castle a sedan chair belonging to Henrietta of France, wife of Charles I.

Hungary leads the world in the production of glass jewels, such as are used with stained glass. The work is done almost entirely by peasants.

—The fearful railroad accident near Battle Creek was due to direct disobedience of orders by an engineer and conductor. A taste of the southern style of punishment it would seem to be possible to forgive in a case like this, where the wicked recklessness of two men cost twenty-six lives.

CITY CHIT CHAT.

Items of Interest from All Parts of Quincy.

Registration tonight at City Hall.

Mrs. H. B. Bailey of Wollaston is at Chicago.

Miss Mary Worster is confined to the house with plurisy.

Mrs. Edward Hewitson of Wollaston is ill with the scarlet fever.

Annual meeting of the Quincy & Boston street railway this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Fay of Wollaston have returned from the World's fair.

Quincy Court of Foresters hold an assembly at Hancock hall this evening.

Miss Mary J. Gibson has returned from a four weeks' trip to New Jersey and Washington.

A number of Quincy citizens will attend the Republican dinner at Music hall, Boston tonight.

Mr. Herbert W. Marshall, Mr. Charles P. Hutchins and Mrs. Henry W. Marshall are at the World's fair.

Rev. W. W. Baldwin will give a sociable to all the young people of the church at the parsonage this evening.

The Sherman-Orcutt debate will take place at Boynton & Russell's hall, Wollaston, next week; date not yet fixed.

The Quincy Point bridge will be closed to teams from 12 o'clock Saturday night until eight o'clock Sunday morning.

The Democrats have a rally at West Quincy tomorrow evening. The speakers are J. F. Fitzgerald, E. J. Slattery, A. P. Worthen.

Mr. Charles Burgess of Weymouth and Mrs. Joseph M. Glover are to move into the house on Maple place, formerly occupied by Mathew H. Robinson.

S. S. City of Rome, Anchor Line, arrived at Moville, Ireland, Sunday at 5, A. M. Wm. Dathie and Geo. Bremner of Quincy, were passengers on this boat for Glasgow, Scotland.

The board of directors of the Wollaston Co-operative bank have voted to retire fifty shares of the first series. The number of shares in this series is 542 and the present value of each share is $62.61.

Mr. F. T. Bassick closed the season with the Robt. Hunting R. R. Circus at Bristol, Tenn., Oct. 23d. The show has exhibited in a different city each day for four months, the tour extending from Bangor, Me., to Knoxville, Tenn.

New arrivals at the Greenleaf are W. B. Bowen, Charles J. Lewis, A. W. Sewall, H. B. Nichol, J. D. Geddes of Boston; Miss Elizabeth Lawrence, Newton Centre; John P. S. Churchill, Milton; William A. Bartle, New York; C. E. Gates, Vincient, Me.

A bull dog, said to belong to George W. Starbuck, created quite a little excitement in the square this morning by attacking every dog that came along. The only way he was separated from the last one was by Mr. Crane hitting him over the head with an axe.

The Young Men's Christian Association foot ball team have arranged for a game with the Campello's Saturday, at 3.30 o'clock at Merrymount park. These two teams have met before when the Y. M. C. A. was vanquished but they hope for a different result this time.

The tax collecter advertised that he would be at Quincy Point, Monday and at West Quincy, Tuesday. Now nobody ever accused the custodian of the city funds with absent-mindedness, but the people at West Quincy were somewhat surprised Monday to see him appear with his books, and he was very much surprised to find that he had forgotten himself and should have been at the Point. A hasty change of base was made.

THE LORD'S ROD

For Their Contribution Toward the Defeat of Home Rule.

BELFAST, Oct. 25.—The Ulster parliament assembled yesterday at Ulster Hill. It consists of 600 members elected by the Unionists in order to take measures to resist home rule. The sitting was private. The Duke of Abercorn was unanimously elected president, after which the national anthem was sung amid great enthusiasm. The parliament next proceeded to discuss the bylaws. While the Ulster parliament was in session a simultaneous conference of the Unionist women was sitting in Assembly hall.

A heated discussion took place on the question whether all the Unionist peers could be included in the central council. Two Presbyterian clergymen moved that only 10 peers be allowed to sit in the council, and this motion was carried. Mr. Kane supported the amendment, and the result was that threats were made to dethrone him from the mastership of the Orange society. Most of the members were so dissatisfied with the proceedings that they left the hall.

The meeting resolved to raise a guarantee fund which should not be called upon unless a parliament at Dublin was created. Further resolutions were offered and adopted declaring allegiance to the United Kingdom and thanking the members of the house of lords for killing the home rule bill.

BIG COAL COMBINE

Will Result In the Shutting Out of Many Rival Railroads.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—It is generally believed the securing by the Vanderbilts of the control of the stock of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western is the first step in the greatest coal combine ever inaugurated in this country, and one that before it is finished will be found to include all the coal-carrying companies that have terminals in Jersey City.

The Lehigh Valley company is said to be a party to the deal, notwithstanding the denial of the officers of the company. It is known that Vice President Garrett of the Lehigh Valley was in New York in consultation with the Jersey Central people, and while he stated that no negotiations were now in progress it is alleged that they have partially settled upon some sort of an agreement. Such a combine would aim a blow at President McLeod of the New York and the New England company by cutting off all possibility of his entrance in the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania.

Of Historic Lineage.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 25.—James Robinson Newhall died yesterday. Mr. Newhall was born in Lynn on Dec. 25, 1809, and he was a lineal descendant from Thomas Newhall, the first white child born in Lynn. His mother was Sarah Hart and was a descendant of one of the first men engaged at the ancient iron works here, the first in America. Both his grandmothers were granddaughters of Ebenezer Burrill, conspicuous in colonial times.

In Behalf of Colored Brethren.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Senator Butler introduced a bill providing that all pay and bounty due the estates of deceased colored soldiers who served in the late war exceeding the sum of $500,000 be appropriated for the purpose of aiding in building a national memorial home for aged and infirm colored people.

La Blanche Lost.

DES MOINES, Oct. 25.—George La Blanche, Billy Layton and a train load of spectators left here for Boone county to pull off a prize fight for a purse of $500 and $1000 added. Layton won in the seventh round of a lively scrap by a lucky blow. La Blanche had forced the fighting most of the time.

Charged With Killing Trainor.

WORCESTER, Oct. 25.—The trial of Frank Bedard of Paxton for the manslaughter of Lawrence Trainor at Paxton Aug. 16 was begun in the superior court yesterday. Both Bedard and Trainor were farm hands. The case will go to the jury this evening.

Postmaster For Sixty-One Years.

CHARLESTON, Oct. 25.—J. H. Miller, undoubtedly the oldest postmaster in the United States, died at Gauley. He was 88 years old and was appointed in 1832 by President Jackson. He has been postmaster at Gauley continuously since.

Incendiary Sent to Prison.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 25.—John Keena of Meriden was found guilty of arson and sentenced to eight years in state prison. He set fire to the Bixby block last spring. The superior court jury brought in a verdict in 20 minutes.

Charlie and His Bride Have Skipped.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Charles L. Fair and his bride, who have been pretty prominent of late, have left the Hotel Bartholdi for parts unknown. They wished to avoid notoriety, it is said.

Providence Banking House Suspends.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 25.—The Italian banking house of Tomaso Conti & Co. has suspended payment.

Prices for northern and eastern beef cattle pr lb dressed weight—Choice, 5½@6¾c; first quality, 5@5½c; second quality, 4½@5¼c.

Hides, tallow, etc—Hides, 4½@5c pr lb; tallow, 3@4c; calf skins, 75c each; lamb skins, 50c each; sheared skins, 25c each; branded hides, 3c pr lb.

Northern and eastern beef cattle—The supply from the New England states was light, but was fully equal to the demand. There were no choice cattle brought in from these states, most of the arrivals being confined to bulls and old beef cows.

Milch cows and springers—The supply was large, and there was a fair trade. Some very good milch cows were among the arrivals. Speculators and jobbers bought several head.

Veal calves—The supply was heavier than one week ago. The demand was slow, as the quantity of veal on the Boston market is very large and the inclemency of the weather had a damaging effect on the market. Values were off ¾c pr lb.

Sheep and lambs—The supply of sheep and lambs was very heavy. Lambs were in very heavy receipt. There was no demand for the stock and both drovers and buyers said that there was no bottom to the prices. Trade dragged slowly along. The state of the market was such as has not been witnessed for a long time. Drovers and buyers bantered for hours over small bunches of lambs. The stock was cleared, however, but at values which were very unsatisfactory to the drovers.

WEYMOUTH.

The Republicans of South Weymouth held a rally Tuesday evening, at Fogg's Opera house. Mr. Henry A. Thomas presided. Previous to the meeting an informal reception was tendered Hon. James H. Flint, George L. Wentworth and Charles L. Hammond; the Republican representative candidates from the fifth Norfolk district. At the meeting which followed the reception, addresses were made by Mr. Henry A. Thomas, Hon. J. L. Barbour of Hartford, Conn., an Mr. Michael J. Murray of Boston.

Elder William H. Crockett, a minister of the Second Advent denomination, died suddenly at North Weymouth on Tuesday, of heart disease, aged 60 years. He held a position in the Boston Custom House. He was a veteran of the war and a member of Reynolds post 58, G. A. R. He was at one time in United States appraiser's office in Boston, but was removed during the administration of President Cleveland, but was reappointed to a government position by President Harrison, which he held at his death. He leaves a widow, one son and three daughters.

Democratic Rally at Greenfield.

The Democrats of Franklin County were out in force last evening, and the rally in the opera house at Greenfield was most enthusiastic. Not a seat was vacant and the crowd at the back of the hall surged down into the aisles and remained standing during the speeches of Congressman O'Neil and J. H. Slade of Quincy. Both speakers received an ovation, and their remarks were endorsed by the repeated applause of the big audience. Our townsman, Mr. Slade, said:

"Now, on this pension question. Only a few days ago I had a chat with Hoke Smith, the Secretary of the Interior, and the man whom hundreds of Republican papers are assailing unjustly. It is charged that he is a Rebel sympathizer, bitterly opposed to the Union soldier. His father was born in New Hampshire and was graduated from Bowdoin college. He took a professorship in a North Carolina college. He did not participate in the war for the preservation of the Union. Hoke Smith himself was only 9 years old at the breaking out of the war. Two of the first men to ask for his appointment were the two colored bishops of the African Methodist church of Georgia. Numerous conventions of colored men have since thanked the President for appointing him. He is disposed to do justice to the Union soldier. I know this to be true."

Hon. John F. Merrill.

The Dorchester Citizen gives our townsman the following flattering notice:

"No one will be nominated by the senatorial convention of either party this year, who will equal this gentleman in integrity of character and attention to public duties. Few men are so diligent in service, so careful in voting on measures that come before the Senate, and attentive to the best interests of the state as he has shown himself to have been. If the true interests of the Commonwealth are to be considered, everyone in his district should see to it that he is returned to the Senate by an increased majority."

—Brockton's sewerage system is gaining the attention of the experts all over the land, and more particularly, of course, in New England. If the system on trial makes a hit it will give Brockton credit for doing something a little out of the ordinary lines. If it should chance to be a failure—o tempora! But let us not contemplate such a direful contingency.—Brockton Enterprise.

—Bears are so pentiful in Maine this year that fur dealers expect the price of Maine bearskins to be from 10 to 25 per cent. lower than last year.

—A gang of swindlers are travelling through central Massachusetts selling packages of marble dust under the name of Acme soap powder.

HE BET ON LESTER.

And the Innocent Looking Stranger Landed With Both Feet.

A man of unsophisticated appearance, who seemed to be a stranger in a strange land, sauntered into a down town poolroom and stared at the blackboard in open mouthed wonder. One of the smart young men who hang about the place began to "guy" the stranger and had, as he thought, a great deal of fun. Some of the attaches were also greatly amused, and when the innocent looking visitor asked for an explanation of the lettering of the board it was given with a great deal of gusto.

"What does that mean?" he asked, pointing a not overly clean finger.

"That's the name of the horse that's in the race. It's Lester."

"That horse is running on the track somewhere, is he?"

"Oh, yes," interposed the smart young man, "and he is a dead sure winner too."

"What do those figures mean?"

"They are odds."

"Odds?"

"Yes. See, if you bet $1, you get $2 back."

"Jimminity! Is that the way you do business here?"

"Oh, yes. It's just like finding money here."

"Of course if the horse don't win the race I lose my dollar?"

"Cert."

"Cert?"

"Why, cert. It's an airtight cinch."

"What's that?"

"I mean that you will be sure to win your money. I wouldn't be afraid to risk $5 anyhow. Have you got that much?"

"I guess I could get it. Who takes the money here?"

He was directed to the cashier and remarked:

"I want to bet that Lester wins that race."

"All right—2 to 1."

"I guess I'll take about $200 worth."

The cashier looked surprised, but said nothing. He was too old in the business to say anything of a startling nature.

The innocent looking stranger went back and looked at the board for a few minutes.

"Well, if I can win $200 I might as well double it," and he planked down $200 more.

By this time the sports present began to open their eyes, and the house grew suspicious. The odds were reduced to 8 to 5, and $100 more was all the stranger could place. The race was run, and Lester was the winner. The innocent appearing stranger handed up his tickets and demanded $1,210. There was not that much money in the box, and the proprietor dashed through a back alley to a bank and got it. The stranger wadded it up, carelessly shoved it into his pocket and walked out.—Indianapolis News.

A Persistent Counsel.

Mr. Oswald has the reputation of being the "hardest fighter" at the bar. Various stories illustrative of his persistency have recently appeared in the papers, but I have not seen the following, which is perhaps the best: Mr. Oswald was arguing a case in the court of appeal at great length. Already the court had intimated pretty clearly that it had heard enough, but Mr. Oswald had treated these intimations in his usual manner and went on raising point after point.

"Really," at last one of the lord justices remonstrated, "really, Mr. Oswald, if you intended to rely on these points, you should have raised them in the court below."

"So I did, my lord," replied Mr. Oswald, "but their lordships stopped me."

"They stopped you, did they?" inquired Lord Esher eagerly. "How did they do it?"—London Truth.

Origin of the Fan.

The following Chinese legend accounts for the invention of the fan in a rather ingenious fashion: "The beautiful Kan Si, daughter of a powerful mandarin, was assisting at the feast of lanterns, when she became overpowered by the heat. She was compelled to take off her mask. But as it was illegal to expose her face she held her mask before it and gently fluttered it to cool herself. The court ladies present noticed it, and in an instant 100 other hands were waving their masks. This was the birth of the fan, which today takes the place of the mask in China."—New York World.

An Improbable Yarn.

"One of my ancestors won a battle during the crusades by his skill in handling his artillery," said the baron.

"But my dear baron," said his friend, "at the time of the crusade gunpowder had not yet been discovered."

"I know that as well as you do, and so did my ancestors."

"How did he win the battle, then?"

"He brought his artillery to bear on the Saracens, and the stupid fools, seeing the guns, supposed that powder had at last been discovered, and fled in dismay."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Her Reason.

He—So we are engaged. Isn't it lovely?
She—Perfectly.
He—I wonder if anybody saw me when I kissed you last night?
She—I hope so.
He—What?
She—I hope so.
He—Why?
She—I mean business and want witnesses.—London Tit-Bits.

Earnings of Miss Braddon's Pen.

The assertion recently made that Miss Braddon had realized $500,000 from her novels has been verified by London Truth. The continuous sale of Miss Braddon's books is unprecedented in the records of British publishers, and it is believed has brought in a good deal more than the amount stated.

Busted Bill—Go to! Do you take me for a Sandow?—Boston Herald.

CERTAIN RUSTIC REMEDIES.

"Simples" Which Country Folks Believe Are Better Than Doctor's Stuff.

"When the Adirondack native becomes afflicted with any of the numerous small ills which make mankind wretched," said a returned visitor, "he does not waste much time on doctors, but goes straight to the woods or his attic for nature's own remedies. There is one old man whom I have met with, packbasket on shoulder and shears and a rough board stool in his mittened hands, going after yarrow, which, dried, is a standby for coughs when it has been made into a wicked looking brew. Fir balsam, coaxed drop by drop from the 'blisters' which swell on the balsam fir at moonfull, is a sovereign remedy for lung and chest complaints.

"Gravel weed, by which name they insult trailing arbutus, is excellent for the complaint which gives it its name, and bladder root has a desirable effect on the kidneys and neighboring organs. Sage tea, containing a little summer savory, is efficacious for worms in children, for which ammonia, steeped, is also used. Sunflower seeds, steeped, strained and sweetened with molasses will cure the 'whoop' in whooping cough. Horseradish leaves, wilted and bound on the face and back of the neck, will drive away neuralgia, and a nutmeg, bored and tied about the neck, will keep it away. The nutmeg must be renewed about once every six weeks.

"Onions, sliced, pounded and placed in a cloth and laid over the affected part will draw out inflammation. A red onion, halved, and with one part slightly scooped out and the cup placed over a carbuncle or a boil will speedily remove the pus and has saved life. A red worsted string tied about the neck will cure and prevent nose bleed. This last calls for some credulity, one might think, but I have seen it proved in one or two instances.

"There are many more of these simple remedies in the north woods pharmacopœia which the wise ones have at their fingers' end, and if they are not more widely used and money kept in the overalls of the thrifty native it is because a lenient and fortunate fate presides over the incomes of the Adirondack medicos."—New York Sun.

A Canine Musical Critic.

A wonderful story of a French musical critic is related by persons who profess to have been acquainted with him and who have seen him in attendance on musical performances. He was a dog, and his name in public was Parade. Whether he had a different name at home was never known. At the beginning of the French revolution he went every day to the military parade in front of the Tuileries palace. He marched with the musicians, halted with them, listened knowingly to their performances, and after the parade disappeared, to return promptly at parade time next day. Gradually the musicians became attached to this devoted listener.

They named him Parade, and one or another of them always invited him to dinner. He accepted the invitation and was a pleasant guest. It was discovered that after dinner he always attended the theater, where he seated himself calmly in the corner of the orchestra and listened critically to the music. If a new piece was played, he noticed it instantly and paid the strictest attention. If the piece had fine melodious passages, he showed his joy to the best of his doggish ability, but if the piece was ordinary and uninteresting he yawned, stared about the theater and unmistakably expressed his disapproval.—Manchester Times.

He Was Astonished.

After a division of the house of parliament on a motion of Mr. Fox, Sir George Young, who had been drinking all day instead of attending to his parliamentary duties, insisted on addressing the house, but, beginning with "I am astonished," could proceed no further. When he had repeated these words seven times, the house was convulsed with laughter. The baronet appealed to the speaker, who pleasantly inquired what he would have him do. Sir George grew very warm at this and declared he would not give up his favorite word, "for," said he, "I really am astonished, Mr. Speaker." By the advice of friends, however, he was presently prevailed upon, after repeating the word about a dozen times more, to change it to "surprised," after which, "having entirely forgotten what he had intended to say," he sat down.—Argonaut.

Paris Postage Stamp Bourse.

It may not be generally known that Paris is the great postage stamp market of the world. There is a regular bourse held every Thursday and Sunday in a corner of the Champs Elysees, where hundreds of men, women and boys congregate with their postage stamp albums and packages of stamps for sale and exchange. It is said that thousands of francs change hands there every market day.—Pomona (Cal.) Progress.

To Tell the Age of Eggs.

To determine the exact age of eggs dissolve about four ounces of common salt in a quart of pure water and then immerse the egg. If it be only a day or so old, it will sink to the bottom, but if it be three days old it will float in the liquid. If more than five, it comes to the surface and rises above in proportion to its increased age.—Exchange.

NOT GIVEN A SAY.

Servant Girls Not Represented In the Convention to Discuss Them.

In the long discussion of the servant girl problem at the Chicago congress no servant girl participated. There was a professor from Vassar, and there was a professor from Wellesley, and there were the usual "and others" of that ilk present, but Genevieve, Lucille, Elizabeth, 'Cretia and Miranda, grimed with the dust of the kitchen, the dining room, the bedroom, the pantry and the front hall, were at home solving the vexed problem in their own simple way, while the "missus" theorized and paused for the reply which never came.

The "congress" Tuesday was perhaps a little larger in point of attendance than many others that have been held to discuss the same subject since time was young. It was like all the others in that it reached the same trackless waste in the desert of indecision where the vista of theories stretches out into a shimmering miragelike solution that beckons the truthseeker on and on still farther into the desert. And yet this sort of congresses will be held when women are busy making their ascension robes for the millennium.

How refreshing it would be to hear on a "congress" composed of the girls themselves! Instead of a paper by the Hon. Mrs. Parvenue on "The Ethics of the Servant Girl Question," how much more interesting would be a paper by Sadie Beasley on "What's the Matter With Sawing Off the Fresh Men of the House?" and in the place of the thesis by the spinster professor why wouldn't a discussion led off by Matilda and Mirandy and Amandy on "How Shall We Spend Our Sunday Off?" be far more beneficial to all parties concerned? The "congress" business cannot succeed so long as only one of the interested parties is represented in it.

If the hired girl will not hold a congress of her own, she should be given "hours" and invited to have an equal share in the various employers' congresses. Then discussions of the question, "How Should We Treat Our Help?" would have interest. With the snubbed, underpaid, overworked, half fed girl of all work present the lady in spectacles would cut out a great deal of her paper relating to "kind, humane treatment of woman to woman," or if she did not cut out the enthusiastic encomiums which now greet such rubbish would be saluted from the enlarged audience with a vociferous chorus of "Rats!"

Miss Malone of the dining room, who has to move patiently around at a company dinner and hear her mistress put the blame for a wretched meal on the cook, who in point of fact exists in imaginative flights of nomenclature which would unhitch a Clydesdale horse, would laugh when that same mistress addressed the congress on the "Tendency of Our Servants Toward Deceptions." As it is now the "congress" which holds prolonged sessions on the servant girl question is wasting valuable time that might be used in rigging up cozy corners and making beautiful pieces of upholstered furniture out of soapboxes.—Kansas City Star.

Paternalism or Anarchy.

Rev. Frank Crane of the First Methodist church of Omaha preached a Labor day sermon on Sept. 3, during the course of which he said:

Cast off, I pray you, the idea that a paternal government is necessarily evil. The fact is that paternalism is our only hope. It is a vastly different thing in a country where the people hold the ballot from what is where hereditary princes rule. There is no danger from paternalism here. It is our only remedy against millionairism. There are and will be tremendous profits of untold billions in America. Our present system of individualism means that some 60 acute money getters shall have the lion's share of this; paternalism means that the people shall have it. When a man evidences signal ability, give him honor and position, that's what he wants, but take the surplus millions for the government, which is the people. No man ought to be allowed to leave more than a reasonable fortune to his heirs. Give them so much and the rest to the state.

A stimulus to great business enterprises can be found in public honor as well as in amassing exorbitant wealth. As for corporations, whenever they assume threatening proportions let the state assume them. You fear the increase of political jobbery? Then you fear yourselves. Politics must be purified. If the American people fear politics, they fear their only savior. Cast off the millstone of party from the national neck, and the way is clear.

This government is drifting toward either paternalism or anarchy. As for me, I choose the former. An intelligent paternal government, where the whole people are interested in politics, governing themselves through representatives, without the rogues' device of a party, is the ideal government of earth.

Calamity Ingalls.

"This day is balmy and sunshiny in comparison with the clouds and storms just ahead of us. The ultimate result will be redistribution of the assets of the country. The millionaire of today will occupy the pauper hut, and the pauper in the near future will ride in the chariot of the millionaire.

"Colorado and the other mineral states should be blotted out as states and added to the great American desert from which they were taken.

"The devastation of the yellow fever in the south was not near so disastrous as the situation in Colorado produced by the closing of the mines. Thousands of people are walking the streets of Denver. Like the lowly Nazarene, foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Colorado tramp hath not where to lay his head.

"On every street corner in Denver goes up the piteous cry for bread. In Wall street the piteous cry goes up for gold. When these two panicky conditions come together in the great Mississippi valley, chaos and anarchy will follow."—John J. Ingalls.

Convict Labor In Alabama.

The state authorities of Alabama have been trying for some time to devise a plan for the employment of convicts sentenced to the penitentiary which would work more humanely than the system of contract labor in the mines and elsewhere, and a dispatch announces that at a meeting of the boord of prison commissioners it was determined to purchase 25 acres of land near the penitentiary and erect several factories thereon to be operated by the convicts.

A Pagan's Prayer.

O Mother, I have loved thee without fear,
And looked upon the mystery of change,
Since first a child, upon the closing year,
I saw the snowflakes fall and whispered, "Strange."

Because in these pale borderlands of fate
Grief hath companioned me, I have not quailed,
And when love passed into the outer strait
I have not faltered, and thou hast not failed

For I have lifted up my heart to thee,
And thou hast ever hearkened and drawn near,
And bowed thy shining face down over me
Till I could hear thee as the hill flowers hear.

And I have cried to thee in lonely need,
Being but a child of thine bereft and wrung,
Till all the rivers in the hills gave heed,
And the great hill winds in thy holy tongue—

That ancient incommunicable speech
The April stars and autumn sunsets know—
Soothed me and calmed with solace beyond reach
Of human ken, mysterious and low.

Then in that day when the last snow shall come
And chill the fair round world within its fold,
Leave me not friendless in the gathering gloom,
But gird thine arms about me as of old.

With sleep once more in thy compassionate hands,
Croon me a murmur as of many rills
When I would rove the crimson valley lands,
With all my vanished comrades of the hills.

When that great storm out of the dark shall drive
And blur the sun and bugle my release,
Let not thy weary earthling faint nor strive,
Faring beyond the tumult to thy peace.

Sisterly Devotion.

The beautiful Margaret of Navarre was devoted to her brother, Francis I. When he was apparently dying at Madrid, she found her way to him through privation and danger and succeeded in effecting his deliverance. When he was ill at a distance from her, she went every day and sat down on a stone in the middle of the road to catch the first glimpse of a messenger afar off. And she said:

"Ah! whoever shall come to announce the recovery of the king, my brother, though he be tired, jaded, soiled, disheveled, I will kiss him and embrace him as though he were the finest gentleman in the kingdom."

When he died, she seemed literally heartbroken, and she did not long survive him.—Youth's Companion.

IN A TIGHT PLACE.

Cambridge Man Alleged to Have Four Wives Living.

BIGAMY CASE MAY FOLLOW

When Court Clears Up Another Case Against Him.

MALDEN, Mass., Oct. 25.—In the district court yesterday, before Judge Bancroft, Edward B. Warren was tried on a charge of selling and secreting mortgaged property. During the trial several startling and surprising disclosures were made concerning the accused.

The defendant is a carpenter from Charlottetown, P. E. I., but has for a time lived on Winchester street, South Medford, and at Cambridge more recently. When at South Medford he is said to have mortgaged some property to Albert C. Lynn of Lincoln and Main streets, Charlestown, and at the time Mrs. Jennie W. Warren, who has appeared as the wife of the defendant, signed the papers.

No payments were made and the interest upon the mortgage rapidly became in arrears, and upon going to Warren's home in Medford Lynn learned that he had moved. Lynn got into the house and found a bundle of unpaid bills and several letters from a woman who signed herself as his wife and who was struggling to support herself and four children in a meager way in his former home in Charlottetown, P. E. I. Lynn then got track of Warren and found that he had sold the furniture in part to John McGrath of Morris street, West Somerville.

Lynn accompanied a Medford policeman, who arrested Warren at his Cambridge home and took him to New York, but he refused to divulge the hiding place of the mortgaged property.

"Wife No. 3."

And this Mrs. Warren was formerly Miss Sadie G. Martin of Cambridge, and Lynn produced a copy of a marriage certificate issued by Walter W. Pike, city clerk of Cambridge, which showed that Warren and the above named young lady were married in Cambridge, upon July 13, 1873, and this paper was shown to a reporter, with the remark that the Cambridge police inspectors were looking up the career of Edward B. Warren.

Miss Martin, or "Wife No. 3," as she is now called, was summoned and promised to be in court yesterday. But she failed to appear and the judge put some stress in his remarks to the effect that she had disobeyed the order of the court and that sort of thing was punishable.

The case was not disposed of yesterday and will come up again, and it is expected that Miss Martin of Cambridge will be present and make things interesting for Warren, whom she claims, it is said, has a wife and four children in Prince Edward Island, and one other with three children, besides Miss Martin and the woman who was sworn in court yesterday as Mrs. E. B. Warren—a quartet in all.

Which Is Which?

Judge Cotton of Charlestown assisted Chief Emery Holmes of Medford in handling the case, and he referred, in cross-examining the witness Lynn, to wives Nos. 1, 2 and 3, and the witness in reply to various questions referred to the wives in a like manner. But the attorney for the defense objected, claiming that the law recognized only one wife, yet he made no other effort to contradict the statements.

All the time the trial was going on Warren sat in the prisoners' dock comparatively unconcerned. He smiled occasionally, and devoted his attention to chewing tobacco, as free and easy as though his freedom were not in jeopardy.

The prisoner is about 5ft. 8in., of light complexion, with light hair and a full red face, and sports a light mustache; he weighs about 160 pounds.

The Cambridge police will investigate the case and see if there is sufficient grounds to prosecute him for bigamy.

Nothing Was Saved.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 25.—Schooner James O. Donohue, of and from Bangor, Me., for New York, with 190,000 feet of lumber, went ashore on the back side of Eastern Point during a heavy breeze and thick weather and became a total loss. The crew took to the boat, and after a hard struggle reached the shore. Nothing was saved except what the men had on. There was no insurance on the vessel.

Pittsburg Labor Troubles.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 25.—The puddlers of the pork house mill of the Pittsburg Forge and Iron company struck yesterday for recognition of the Amalgamated association. About 200 men are out. The Wayne iron works resumed yesterday with non-union men.

Married In the Ferris Wheel.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—James D. Hutchinson and Miss Lottie Zickler came in from Waukegan, secured a marriage license and took passage in the Ferris wheel. When at the top the wheel stopped and the pair were married 250 feet above the earth.

Derailed by a Landslide.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 25. — Rocks were washed on the track of the New York and New England road near Jewett City, Conn., by the rain, and train 131 ran into them, smashing the engine and throwing several cars from the rails. No one was hurt.

A GOLD[illegible]

It Tests the Friendship of France For the Ruler of Russia.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—A deputation from Lorraine waited upon Admiral Avelan at the military club and presented him with numerous testimonials subscribed for by the inhabitants of that province. A deputation from Lorraine also visited the Russian embassy and asked the Russian ambassador to lay at the czar's feet, with the respectful homage and enduring expression of the feeling of the people of Lorraine, a golden book containing the signatures of 1800 mayors of the communes of Lorraine.

The Russian officers visited Versailles yesterday and were received by the civil and military authorities, who conducted the Russian visitors through the different galleries of the palace. After leaving the palace the Russians were entertained at luncheon by the mayor and municipal authorities. President Carnot, in toasting the Russians, said:

"It is with regret that we see the hour approaching when the worthy representatives of the Russian navy must leave Paris, whose griefs and joys they have shared with so much delicacy and cordiality. Our guests will leave ineffaceable memories behind them, and we hope that they will take away with them memories none the less durable. In the name of all France we wish our guests and friends happiness and success and drink to the health of the czar and czarina."

Admiral Avelan spoke feelingly of the reception accorded in France to the Russian sailors.

A GRAND CELEBRATION

Will Characterize the Closing of the World's Fair on Oct. 30.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—The committee on ceremonies has completed the program for Oct. 30 incident to the official closing of the fair. The committee has fully considered the advisability of providing entertainment for the visitors during the day as will harmonize with the program prepared and suggests that the national salute be fired at sunrise, at noon and at sunset, at which time the liberty bell will be rung.

At 1:30 p. m. a representation of the landing of Columbus will take place on the lake front. Between 12 noon and midnight fireworks will be fired from various points within the grounds. The exercises of the day will be participated in by the national commission, board of lady managers, board of directors, foreign and state commissioners, officials of the national commission and of the World's Columbian exposition.

President Higinbotham gave a luncheon yesterday to the Chicago newspaper workers at the fair. An excellent menu was discussed, after which President Higinbotham made a short speech, in which he complimented his guests on their work during the fair. He was responded to by Major Handy on behalf of the newspaper men. Handsome gold badges appropriately inscribed were presented the guests.

On Trial For Conspiracy.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

"Baby C."

A sweet little blue eyed girl, with saucy dimples in her cheeks, rode out in a landeau to Fairmount park and the zoo the other afternoon. She was dressed in snowy white, and she seemed to like the ride through the trees of the great park. But she was particularly pleased with the bears at the zoo, which she fed lavishly with peanuts. She didn't like the monkeys at all, she said, but she thought the elephants cute.

The child was none other than "Baby Collins," the sunshine and joy of the life of Lottie Collins, the actress. Miss Collins is really Mrs. Stephen P. Cooney.

"Baby C.," as she is called, is now 2½ years old and is her sprightly mother in miniature. She can dance a correct imitation of "Ta-ra-ra" and do a lot of other pretty steps.—Philadelphia Record.

Treading For Clams.

With the tide's going out at Jamaica bay a queer pursuit daily is enacted north of the breakwater opposite Canarsie. Near low tide, as the flats first appear from the receding waters, strange bare legged human figures begin to pace the narrow mud strip. As the wet, brown expanse widens and lengthens they are joined by others, until a dozen or more of men and boys are patrolling the level ooze with downcast eyes, as if in deep meditation or hunting for the traditional needle usually ascribed to the haystack. These men are "treading clams"—that is, feeling for these shellfish with their feet, which sink to the ankle at every step.

The clam of Canarsie does not, like his sand abiding brother of the soft shell, indicate his presence by a hole, but lies in soft mud near the surface and can be located only by the sense of touch. The clam treader thus has in his avocation an excitement akin to that of a lottery in which he sometimes draws worse than a blank when his foot encounters a broken bottle or a crab, causing his sedate pace to change to capers not unworthy the ballet. Strung out in an irregular line, carrying baskets and buckets, with their straw hats and white or colored shirts a-flapping, these treaders make a picturesque procession, which continues until, with turn of tide, the rising water gradually drives them off the flats.—New York Sun.

Carlo and the Chickens.

Carlo early manifested a love for watching and chasing chickens—a pastime not to be neglected with the small opportunities of the city. We soon, by kindness and firmness and much talking, broke him of disturbing our own chickens. We often took a little chick in our hands, and said to him "pretty chicky, Carlo's chicky!" and allowed him to lick it gently. Soon it was not only safe, but safer to have him in the pen with the chicks than otherwise, as then no rat or mouse dared venture there. From the first, Carlo has deemed these marauders worthy of death whenever and wherever seen and acts out his convictions. As the chickens grew their number was reduced to 12, and these were transferred to the barn.

Every night for two years Carlo made a detour of the perches, giving each fowl a good lick—they were so acquainted it did not alarm them at all—and if one or more of the number were absent he would immediately scour the premises until it was found, then gave a peculiar bark, indicating the discovery, nor would he give it up till the number was complete. Could he count? How did he know there should be just 12—no more, no less?—Mary E. Holmes in Science.

His Role.

Little Billy came in one afternoon from an assembly of the children of the neighborhood with his clothes pierced above and below with a great many little holes. "For pity's sake!" exclaimed his mother, "what has happened to you?" "Oh," said Billy, "we've only been playing grocery store, and everybody was something in it. I was the Swiss cheese."—Argonaut.

The Gosling's Request.

"Pray do not weep, O Gosling dear,"
Said kind old Dr. Quack.
"Your mother will be well again
Before daylight comes back."

"Boo-hoo, boo-hoo! That's why I weep,"
Said Gosling tearfully.
"For she has said when she is well
She's going to punish me.

"So, doctor, do your level best;
Prescribe the things you know
Are sure to keep her here until
I've had a chance to grow."

Nurses In Africa.

A reporter for the London Sketch has been interviewing two trained nurses, Miss Rose Blenerhassett and Miss Lucy Sleeman, who have recently reached London after a high old time in equatorial Africa. They went up the Pungwe river in a tiny boat, with the crocodiles swarming in its wake for 70 miles, and at Mpanda's found lots of nursing to do among 40 whites, for the place was deadly unhealthy. Then they started to walk to Umtali, 190 miles, overland, with Dr. Doyle Granville and a Mr. Sutton and 40 native carriers with stores and baggage. All the latter ran away while still four days' march from Umtali. But they pushed ahead with three "boys," leaving Sutton with the others to guard the stores.

There was no food to speak of and no tents. Lions roared at night. Sutton never got out alive. Dr. Granville died of the experience, but the two tough nurses worked two years at Umtali and then went back into comparative luxury. Oh, yes, and on the march they wore skirts indeed, but well above the knee, and "putties"—that is, bandages of cloth wrapped about the legs from the top of the shoes up—and men's flannel shirts.

Miss Lide Armstrong's Ambitions.

Pittsburg has a woman coal dealer in the person of Miss Lide Armstrong, who has made a fortune in the business. She has not allowed the hard and dry nature of her employment, however, to overcome the philanthropic feelings popularly supposed to reside in the feminine heart. Ever since a visit to the World's fair she has been revolving in her mind plans by which the model "workingman's home" shown there may become a Pittsburg reality. And when she has started as many workingmen as possible on the road to ownership of those cozy little $1,000 cottages she wants to devise some way by which the housekeepers may learn to provide three meals a day for families of five on 55 cents, as it was demonstrated at the fair might be done.—Pittsburg Letter.

The Sisters McBeth.

Among the many persons long connected with work among the Indians few have been known more widely or honored more highly than the two sisters, Misses Sue L. and Kate McBeth, and the recent death of the former has come as a personal loss to a great many. Of Scottish ancestry and training, Miss McBeth was remarkable for her familiarity with the Scriptures and her comprehension of the religious truth. But scarcely less marked was her ability to so present the truth as to make it plain and pungent. She was of fragile and delicate constitution, but her prodigious energy enabled her to accomplish an enormous amount of work.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Beauty In Two Stirrups.

One of the most charming girls in the West Chester Normal school, Miss Ella Darlington, who has yet to celebrate her twentieth birthday, amazed the staid matrons of this town, but delighted their manly relatives today, by donning a bifurcated skirt and galloping along the main streets astride a horse. Miss Darlington is a leader in gymnastic sports. She sat her horse today in fine fashion, using a man's saddle.

"Shocking!" exclaimed many a spinster as the rosy cheeked damsel dashed by. All the men rushed out to see the plucky maiden, and many were the praises uttered.—Philadelphia Record.

A Plucky Miss.

Miss Grace D. Ives is a young woman of 25 who carries on a bookbinding business in New York. Recently her lease ran out, and she made a verbal agreement to remain as a monthly tenant. The landlord, however, rented the place to a man who undertook to take possession by force. He brought assistants, including a dozen longshoremen. Miss Ives warned them all, held her ground, saw doors broken in and her property damaged and has now recovered damages, including a sum for trespass. Evidently she understands that business is business.—New York Press.

The Irish Girl Lawyer.

Miss Egan, the Irish girl lawyer, who lately obtained the degree of LL. B. in the Royal university, Dublin, was born in 1868 and received her early education at home. She studied for two years at a school in Coleraine, and in her sixteenth year entered the Alexandria college, Dublin, where she held the Skinner's senior scholarship in 1888 and graduated at the Royal university in 1891. In 1892 Miss Egan passed the first examination in law and took first place with first honors and prize, and in June, 1893, obtained the degree of LL. B.

Miss Willard's Breakdown.

Miss Frances E. Willard, who has been resting in England and latterly in Switzerland in the hope of recovering strength to go on with her work in the World's Woman's Temperance union, has been obliged at last to relinquish such ideas for some time to come. Her physician declares that she will probably not be able to undertake any speaking engagements for a year at least.—Bern Letter.

Scotchwomen Awake.

A gigantic memorial is to be offered by Scotch women to Gladstone in favor of woman's suffrage. The Countess of Aberdeen indorses the plan to the extent of permitting herself to be made honorary president of the committee appointed to draw up the document.—Glasgow Dispatch.

Miss Cora A. Davis Nominated.

Miss Laura F. Mayhew has declined the Democratic nomination for New York school commissioner in Oneida county, and Miss Cora A. Davis of Whitestown has been nominated in her stead.—New York Mail and Express.

Woman's Progress.

To Philanthropists—I am a working woman. Will some one buy and hold for me two shares of Sugar Common and allow me to pay in monthly installments? Address V. E. M.—Boston Transcript.

REED AND DALZELL

Have Words of Praise For the Republican Party.

AFFAIRS AT WASHINGTON

As They Are Viewed by the Ex-Speaker of the House.

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—The third annual dinner of the Republican Club of Massachusetts in Music hall last night proved the most successful in its history. The large hall had been turned into a banquet room, and its large proportions hardly accommodated the members present. American flags adorned the walls and ceilings. On the stage, behind the table of honor, rested two magnificent crayons of the Republican nominees for governor and lieutenant governor, Greenhalge and Wolcott.

President Simpkins presided at the board. To his right sat Hon. Thomas B. Reed of Maine, and Hon. John Dalzell of Pennsylvania. To his left Hon. Frederick T. Greenhalge and Hon. Roger Wolcott.

Nine hundred covers were placed and every seat was taken. In the galleries above hundreds of ladies and gentlemen looked down and joined in the enthusiasm of the hour.

President Simpkins opened the after-dinner exercises and congratulated the club on its manifestation of interest. He introduced as the first speaker of the evening the Republican nominee for governor, Hon. Frederick T. Greenhalge of Lowell.

Mr. Greenhalge said, in referring to the campaign, that an effort had been made to carry on the high debate in a spirit worthy of Massachusetts. He said: "We have never resorted to trick or device. We have not indulged in personal attacks."

Mr. Wolcott, in following, spoke on the currency question, saying the more it is studied it is plain to see that from the early days of greenbackism and fiat money down to the last edition of the press the Republican party has stood for solid currency. The people of Massachusetts, he said, see plainly that the Sherman act swept aside the Bland bill, swept away the coinage of 65-cent dollars and announced the settled policy of the United States that every dollar issued should be the equivalent of every other dollar. It was a temporary law and the best possible at that time. "Today," he remarked, "we see the president of the United States, thank God for that, standing firmly for unconditional repeal and the Republican party holding his arms up and supporting him.

"In the present crisis I have not noticed any expression of gratitude from the president to the Democratic members of the senate for their support. Back of this question is that of state bank currency. Let the people stand by Cleveland then, but not with the party that deserted him in the hour of need."

Congressman Dalzell.

Congressman John Dalzell of Pennsylvania was enthusiastically received. He said: "I deem it an honor to sit at this board tonight. I recognize before me the representatives of Republicanism in Massachusetts, the men who are to place our banner where it belongs on the ramparts of victory.

"He is but a superficial observer who imagines that the last election repudiated the principles of the Republican party. The people do not believe in free trade, they do not believe in dishonest finance, nor in striking down the barriers put up for the protection of the free ballot, nor that tariff be derived from revenue only. It was a general, undefined restlessness that put Grover Cleveland in the executive chair in place of Benjamin Harrison, that put Voorhees at the head of the committee on finance instead of Allison, and a Democratic speaker in place of him, whom, were he not present, I would term the brainiest man in public life, and, since he is present, I will call our courageous leader, Thomas B. Reed of Maine.

"One of the most patent causes of the present depression is the uncertainty as to what the Democrats are going to do with the tariff. This has paralyzed our industries. I have the honor of being a member of the committee on ways and means. Democrat and Republican manufacturer and laborer cry out in one breath against change in our system of protection. Democrats want to reform, but they always want this reform in somebody else's district. When the new tariff bill is put in the hands of the people they will soon find out that the McKinley bill is the most beneficent and just law ever put on our statute books.

"Another cause of this Democratic depression has relation to the currency question. The President of the United States would have been as powerless as an infant in arms had it not been for John Sherman and his Republican associates.

"Pennsylvania will always be found in the Republican column. Iowa is falling in line. Ohio will be swept as with a western cyclone by that apostle of protection. And Massachusetts—well, if anyone doubts, he should have been here tonight." Mr. Dalzell closed with a glowing tribute to Greenhalge and Wolcott.

Reed Has the Floor.

It was easy to see that Hon. Thomas B. Reed was an idol of Massachusetts Republicans. Four minutes of continued applause welcomed him. He said:

"From all appearances I should imagine that this was a partisan audience. I, however, am not going to make a partisan speech. As I take up this unbiased Boston journal (The Herald) I notice the following headline—'President Cleveland Victorious,' Victorious? Over what? Over the Democratic party. I take great delight in agreeing with the Boston Herald. "Fellow citizens of Massachusetts, it behooves you, then, at the next election to complete that victory, and the greatest praise we can give Grover Cleveland is to imitate him in his victory over his own party. We were called together three months ago in very extraordinary session. We had before us in the opinion of the people of the United States a very simple task, namely, to repeal a law that was frightening the people of this country. The Republican party, with self-denial, voluntarily stepped forward to do the will of the people and help repeal that law. Since that time the bill has remained in the bosom of the Democratic senate, and there it is, when the will of the people could have been obeyed long ago. Time most valuable to the people has been lost, and now the people, when this bill is repealed, will see just how little they have been benefited thereby.

"The majority of the senate, who received their seats by the votes of the people, determined upon a compromise disgraceful to the United States and destructive to its best interests. I have heard that President Cleveland approved that compromise. Whether it be true or not, I do not know. Whether the skillful Gorman or the honest-minded White were deceived or not I leave for you to say. But when they came with their compromise to the Republican side of the house they found us solid as a rock. Then, of course, came the demolition of the compromise. Even if we do get through the Democratic senate I want to show you another calamity with which we will have to come face to face.

"I quote from the financial column of that same journal—'Unconditional repeal will not do away with difficulties in business and speculation.' This is true. The great difficulty lies in the uncertainty in and utter distrust of the policy of the Democratic party. That party is today in control, yet they are on the stump complaining of the Republicans. They have the executive—or partially; they have the house and and they have the senate. How far have they gotten along? For the first time in the history of the country the United States senate is sitting under the opprobrium of the people, and for the first time that august body is the subject of the flouts and jeers of all mankind from the highest to the lowest.

People's Will Must Prevail.

"But Mr. Josiah Quincy, lately brought into the state from Washington, tells you that in the present crisis you are helpless, and that it is vain for you to lift your hand. Thank heaven, it is not so, and that the people are not rulers simply on election day. There was never a condition so abject that public sentiment could not sweep down all barriers of power..

"It cannot be possible that the people and the press that are today crying for the majority's right to rule could have at any other time stood on the other side. It is awkward to have history staring you in the face. This right of the majority to rule is the farthest from being satisfied in this country now than it ever was. I do not believe there is any real safety for this country outside of that right. This is only one of its phases.

"Massachusetts has to act quickly. No state is more interested in the tariff question than she is. You have the prestige and the power. Throw them away if you wish. Democracy is ruled by the south, and by the south I mean men who have no idea what an industrial northern city is. If they do think of Lowell or Lawrence it is of pillage they think. Truth is mighty, but so is ignorance.

"So I say we must fight out this right of the majority to rule. In the great wars for liberty there are no Marengos, and the bright sunlight of Austerlitz does not shine; but there are no St. Helenas.

"They are more like our own battles of revolutionary times. There are few Trentons, but there are some Arnolds to deal with."

Mr. Reed made decidedly the hit of the evening.

Creditors Left Behind.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 26.—James Denoon, clerk in the office of the American Express company, has disappeared, leaving numerous creditors. Last week he was discharged from the express company, it is understood, for irregularities in his accounts.

Whisky Business Is Booming.

PEORIA, Ills., Oct. 26.—It is believed here that congress is likely to raise the tax on whisky. In spite of the immense surplus still on hand five Peoria distilleries are already running, and last night orders were sent for the immediate starting up of houses at Pekin, St. Paul, St. Louis, Omaha and Nebraska City.

St. Louis Men Wrathy.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 26.—The cotton exchange of this city adopted resolutions denouncing the United States senate for its failure to act upon the silver question. They further criticise Senators Vest and Cockrell severely for seeking conditional legislation, and demand of them and of the senate an immediate vote.

Workmen Escaped Uninjured.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—An explosion of firedamp occurred in the Hyde Park water tunnel yesterday afternoon. The men were descending to work in the shaft when it is supposed their lanterns ignited the gas. Six men were rendered unconscious, but all subsequently recovered. None were burned or crushed.

Crooked Postoffice Clerk.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Inspector Hamilton has caused the arrest of J. M. Harris, clerk in the postoffice at Robert Lee, Tex., charged with the embezzlement of money order funds, conspiracy to defraud the United States and complicity in highway robbery of mail.

Killed Lawrence Trainor.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 26.—Frank Bedard of Paxton was found guilty of manslaughter in the criminal court, in striking the blow which resulted in the death of Lawrence Trainor at Paxton, Aug. 18. He was sentenced to four years in the state prison.

Caught by a Prairie Fire.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 26.—Two little children, son and daughter of A. Holmfield, and a farmer named Watson were caught by prairie fires while in a field and burned to death.

Four Drowned.

PARRY SOUND, Ont., Oct. 26.—William Lynch, J Douglas, Narcisse Woods and J. Sweet, four lumber men, were drowned in Moon river. Sweet's body was recovered.

FEW MORE SPEECHES

Fate of the Silver Purchasing Law Will Then Be Known.

MR. SHERMAN WITHDRAWS.

Decides Not to Submit His Plan For Adjustment.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The prospect at the close of the session last evening looked favorable to the beginning of voting on the amendments to the repeal bill by tomorrow. Senator Faulkner had been canvassing the senate during the afternoon with a view of asking the senate to fix a time when the vote could be taken, but concluded not to make this request, for the reason that he was of the opinion after getting the views of various senators that the speechmaking would be expedited by allowing the business to drift.

The result of Mr. Faulkner's inquiries was the discovery that the speeches on the main question would soon be exhausted. Senator Jones will conclude today, and Senators Teller, Martin, Allen and Stewart each desire to talk from an hour to an hour and a half. So far as learned, there will be no other speeches, and when the last of these shall have been concluded the voting will be the next thing in order.

There is still some talk to the effect that some of the more conservative repealers would be willing to aid in preventing unconditional repeal by voting for some of the amendments, but a majority of the free coinage men are of the opinion that nothing can be agreed upon that would be advantageous to silver, and many of them now announce their intention of voting only for the free coinage amendment and of giving no countenance to any of the amendments. This program is, of course, subject to change, as so many other senate programs have changed in the past few weeks.

No Interference by Sherman.

The Republicans have abandoned all idea of introducing an amendment as a party measure. Mr. Sherman had at one time thought it would be wise policy on the part of the Republicans to offer a measure for the settlement of the question, but he says now that he doubts the expediency of interfering in any way with the passing of the repeal bill as it stands. He thinks that authority should be given for issuing bonds, but sees the difficulty of getting such a provision through at this time, and will in all probability not attempt it.

It is believed that if the voting on the amendments can be begun early tomorrow the final vote can be reached by Saturday at the latest and the bill sent to the house of representatives for its action. When the house shall have acted on the bill, adjournment until the beginning of the regular session on the first Monday in December will be in order. There is very little doubt now that this adjournment will be taken, although the Democratic managers of the senate have not yet given the subject sufficient consideration to feel justified in making an announcement.

They have, however, been in conference with Speaker Crisp of the house, who advises adjournment when the repeal bill shall be disposed of. So general is the desire on the part of senators and members to get away that it would be next to impossible to hold a quorum of either house in Washington, even should it be attempted. It was at one time believed that there would be an effort to pass the bill for the extension of the Chinese exclusion act, but that probability has been averted

Honored by Lafayette.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 26.—The trustees of Lafayette college conferred the degree of doctor of divinity on the Rev. Dr. M. W. Jacobus, professor in the theological seminary at Hartford, and on the Rev. Augustus Schultze, of the Moravian seminary for young ladies at Bethlehem, Pa. Professor W. S. Hale was elevated to the chair of technical mathematics in the college.

A Millionaire's Suicide.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26.—Nathan Straus, who shot and killed himself in New York yesterday, was a member of the firm of Levi Straus & Co., and up to about 16 years ago resided in this city. At that time he went to New York, and ever since has been buyer for the firm. He was rated a millionaire and no one in the city could assign any cause for the deed.

Whitney's Successor.

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—At a meeting of the West End Street Railway company yesterday afternoon, Samuel Little was unanimously elected to the presidency, which has been vacant since the resignation of Henry M. Whitney some months ago. Mr. Little has had a lifelong identification with the interests of Boston and vicinity. He was born in Hingham in 1827.

The Game Not Dead.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Men interested in the formation of the Western Baseball league met here yesterday. Nearly every town west of the Alleghenies is striving for admission in the proposed association. So great were the demands for admission that the idea of organizing at once was abandoned, and all applications were referred to a committee.

Clarksville's Pride.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 26.—Clarksville was crowded with guests from far and near to witness the unveiling of the Confederate monument at Greenwood cemetery. There was an imposing procession and an address by Senator Wilson. The shaft is of Vermont granite, 43 feet 3 inches high.

A Serious Charge.

SOUTH BERWICK, Me., Oct. 26.—Arthur W. Goodwin, 20 years of age, was arrested here yesterday, charged with committing a felonious assault upon a 7-year-old daughter of Andrew Earle, and placed under $3000 bonds for his appearance at the February term of court.

Dr. Haddaway Not Yet Dead.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Rev. Dr. Samuel W. Haddaway, chaplain of the house of representatives, is still alive, though very low. His ailment is brights disease.

A Well-deserved Award.

The Treasury Department at Washington, after receiving bids from the largest and best-known carpet manufacturers and dealers throughout the country, has awarded to the old and trustworthy house of John H. Pray, Sons, & Co. of Boston, the contract for furnishing Brussels carpets for government use throughout the country for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894.

This contract amounts to about 20,000 yards, more or less, and is for Brussels of the firm's own manufacture, having as a guaranty of the quality the firm's name woven on the back of every yard of carpet that is delivered, so that the house cannot fail to be well known in all government buildings and offices throughout the United States wherever the carpets are seen.

Messrs. Pray & Co.'s reputation for selling only standard and reliable goods seems to have been well maintained, as the government standard is a high one, and the tests are most severe.

Surprise Party.

Miss Lucy Osborne, one of Quincy's popular young ladies went to Grand Army Hall Wednesday evening, supposing that she was to attend an entertainment. Upon her arrival she was agreeably surprised to find that instead of an entertainment, some fifty or more of her friends had gathered to tender her a surprise party.

Welcomes were in order, which was followed by whist in which Mr. Allie White secured the first prize, a glass bon-bon dish, and Miss Grace Bigelow and Mr. O. A. Edgarton the booby, a whistle.

Dancing was then in order until midnight. During a brief intermission, refreshments of ice cream, cake and fruit was served.

One of the pleasing numbers on the programme was when Miss Lizzie Smith in a few happy remarks, presented the hostess with a silver watch and gold chain. Miss Osborne responded thanking her friends for the gift which she should always prize.

Narrow Escape.

Carl Hansen of West Quincy had a narrow escape on Wednesday evening. He was driving a loaded granite team over the track at Granite bridge when he was struck by the locomotive of an express train. The team was demolished and Hansen was thrown twenty-five feet, breaking his right shoulder. He also received other injuries but will probably recover.

Social Assembly.

The second assembly of Quincy Court, M. C. O. F., held at Hancock hall Wednesday evening was a most enjoyable one, seventy-five couples participating. Rossa's orchestra furnished music and John A. McDonnell was floor director with John A. Avery as assistant, and Messrs. Henry DeCosta, John H. Dinegan, Robert E. Foy and Thomas Keenan officiated as aids.

Wednesday's Alarm.

The fire alarm from Box 46, at 3.33 Wednesday afternoon, was caused by the explosion of an oil stove in the residence of Albert Shackley on Cross street. It was extinguished before the department arrived.

Probate Court.

At the probate court held at Dedham yesterday, the first and final account of W. A. Rogers, administrator of the estate of Luther Rogers of Quincy, for $1128 was allowed.

W. J. Dell was appointed executor of J. Dell.

☞ Furniture moved in a business like manner at a moderate cost.—Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

WEYMOUTH.

The funeral of George F. Cleverly was held Wednesday afternoon from his late residence. Rev. Allen B. Hudson officiated, and Paul Revere Post 88, of Quincy, attended the services in a body, and escorted the remains to the Old North Cemetery.

WAS IT MURDER?

A Braintree Physician Mysteriously Disappears.

WAS SOON TO BE MARRIED.

Dr. C. E. Ames Goes out for a Few Moments but Does Not Return.

Dr. C. E. Ames, a well known physician of South Braintree, has mysteriously disappeared. Whether the cause of disappearance was a voluntary departure or that he was waylaid and disposed of for the purpose of robbery is not known, but Officer Oliver is endeavoring to solve the mystery by a careful investigation.

Dr. Ames settled in Braintree two years ago and by his courteous bearing and gentlemanly manner had become very popular among the citizens and soon began to receive a flattering share of the patronage of the people of the village, which gradually increased until it assumed the proportions of a first class practice.

He also became a favorite in society and became acquainted with Miss Hattie Ellis a most estimable young lady, and the daughter of the veteran retired conductor, Stephen Ellis, of the Old Colony railroad. The friendship between the Doctor and Miss Ellis ripened into love and they became engaged.

Matters had progressed until the date of the wedding had been fixed for next week and the cards announcing the approaching event had been issued to the friends.

Dr. Ames boarded with the family of his fiancee and the relations between him and the family were of the pleasantest nature.

Of late the doctor had been collecting considerable money from his patrons and is supposed to have had a large sum in his possession.

Wednesday evening he left his office at the residence of Mr. Ellis, at the corner of Washington and Union streets about 9 o'clock, to go to the residence of Miss Fidelia Randall, on Central avenue, a distance of 500 feet, to collect a bill due for professional services. He performed his errand visiting Miss Randall as intended and left her residence apparently all right.

Since that time nothing has been heard from him, neither has anybody seen him. Miss Randall is the last person who saw him when he left her premises.

When he left Mr. Ellis, he informed them where he was going and his errand and that he should return immediately. The family waiting his speedy return, but when an hour had passed and the absentee did not put in an appearance his friends began to be anxious about him.

An immediate search was instituted for traces of his whereabouts, and when it was learned he had left Miss Randall's an hour before their anxiety was intense, as no satisfactory explanation could be arrived at as to the cause of his disappearance, and the most plausible theory advanced was that he had been assaulted and robbed by some parties cognizant of the fact that he had a large sum of money in his possession.

If this theory is correct it is difficult to see what disposition could have been made of the body.

Officer Oliver has thus far been unable to find any one who remembers having seen him at the depot or on the late trains and it is not probable that he could have left town by train. There are some people however who believe he has left town voluntarily.

The doctor's mother resides in Brockton.

The missing man is described as being 38 years of age, 5 feet, 9 inches in heighth, 200 pounds in weight. He has a smooth face, light complexion, and light brown hair. He wore a black dress coat, light pants and black beaver hat.

Entered Harvard College.

The Boston Globe of Oct. 25, has the following complimentary notice of Everett Chauncey Bumpus, a blind young man of this city, who has just entered Harvard college, intending to take full four years' course and obtain the degree of A. B., at the close.

He is a son of Judge Bumpus of this city and lived at his father's home until he was eleven years of age, when he was sent to the Perkin's institute, where he staid for two years.

He there learned to read by touch, and progressed rapidly both in this and in writing. After he had mastered the system as taught at that institution, he went to Thayer academy in Braintree, where he prepared for college. In a class of twenty he held a high rank and was always near the head.

He has always been fond of study and is a hard worker. He took the Harvard entrance examination last June. A special proctor was given him for his entrance examination, who would read the questions to him, and young Bumpus would answer them by means of a typewriter.

This answered well for most of the subjects, but of course he could not write the Greek character with his machine, so he dictated the answers in the examination to his attendant who wrote them down. The same method was followed in the examinations in mathematics. In geometry, however, he uses a wheel which can be changed into different geometric forms, and by pressing this down upon paper he has the required figure, indented on the sheet literally at his finger's ends.

He passed the examinations all right and is now settled in a pleasant room in Felton hall which is about three minutes' walk from the yard, where he must go every day to his lectures, but he is rapidly learning his way about Cambridge.

All of Mr. Bumpus' textbooks are specially prepared for him on the Braille system instead of the older plan of raised letters. It is much more convenient to read and it can be read much quicker. His Greek, however, he prepares by having it read aloud to him, and in some other subjects he finds it more convenient to be read to than to read himself.

This is the case largely in mathematics, except in geometry, when his wheel becomes very useful. The typewriter, too, on which he does most of his writing, is made expressly with reference to the Braille system of writing. The Braille writing frame, on the principal of which the typewriter is made, is a most interesting and ingenious contrivance.

A frame is used, consisting of a grooved metal bed with 10 grooves to the inch, and over it is suspended a perforated guide in a light wooden frame. This latter is like the frame of a slate and is attached to the metal bed by hinges. The sheet of paper is then laid between the frame and the bed.

A blunt awl moves over the paper carrying it before it into the grooves of the bed and produces a series of little pits on the side of the paper next to the writer.

Prominences are thus made on the other side of the sheet which, when turned over, can be easily read by the nimble, sensitive fingers of the writer. The writing must be done from right to left, however, to enable it to be read in the usual manner from left to right.

It is by this system as applied to a typewriter, with certain modifications, that Mr. Bumpus puts down his observation on the lectures with wonderful speed. This system includes not only letters, but there are certain positions of the dots which stand for figures and still others for notes of music, so that a man can keep accounts, write music, emboss his own books from dictation and carry on a correspondence.

Mr. Bumpus has naturally kept very quiet since he has been in Cambridge, and but few men outside of his immediate acquaintance have known of his being in college. But on the first Monday night of the term, when the reception was given to the freshmen in Sanders theatre, he went to the meeting, listened to the speeches and afterward went to the reception, where he met many of the professors and students. To see him walking by himself one would never suspect that he was blind, but he almost always has an attendant or friend with him to guide him when necessary.

Although he is debarred by his misfortune from entering actively into the social life of the university, yet he is very companionable, and the friends he has made thus far in his college course have been charmed by his good nature and by his untiring perseverance.

An electric light of 40,000,000 candle power almost surpasses comprehension. Yet this great mass of light is to issue from a lighthouse tower on Penmarch Point on the coast of Britany. The beam will be seen twenty-five miles before it strikes the horizon, and after that it will be reflected on the sky for a distance of thirty-eight miles further. The largest light on the coats of the United States can only be seen twenty-eight miles in clear weather. It is a good omen, thinks the New York Sun, that this high development of electric lighting is in the interests of peace and for the preservation of human life. Hitherto the searchlights on warships have represented the greatest concentration of electric light rays.

He was born in Quincy and passed his school boy days in this old historic city, but when a very young man left with the "forty-niners" for the land of gold, where he has made his home and although California is the home of his adoption, he has not forgotten the home of his boyhood, of which he has many pleasant memories.

Birthday Party.

About a dozen couples assembled at the pleasant home of Mr. Fred Lapham, on Washington Court, Quincy Point, last evening, the occasion being his 21st birthday. An enjoyable evening was passed, drive whist being indulged in, during which Mr. Geo. Gordon, our estimable young musician played some selections on the piano. A fine supper was served. Mr. A. K. Damon carried off first prize in whist, and Mr. M. C. King the booby prize.

New Bills Introduced.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 25, 1893. Mr. Bell, Dem., of Texas, introduced in the House today a bill providing for the retirement of national bank notes and the issue in their place of United States notes. Hereafter national banks chartered, or where charters are renewed or extended, are not to be allowed to issue notes. When the notes of any national bank are retired the secretary of the treasury is to substitutes for them an equal amount of United States notes, with which he is to purchase United States bonds.

Mr. Hicks, Rep., of Pennsylvania, offered a bill providing that no pension claim heretofore or hereafter allowed shall be annulled, suspended or set aside unless it is shown that the pension was obtained by fraud or perjury.

Representative Coombs introduced a resolution directing the committee on ways and means to prepare a tariff bill on a novel principle, the feature of which is a schedule "for the protection of labor." Domestic manufacturers may have their products placed on this favored schedule whenever they can show that the labor cost, including the use of machinery, is greater here than in other countries.

Taxes on Foreign Stocks.

Before the joint special committee on taxation yesterday R. H. Dana strongly opposed double taxation by taxing stock of foreign corporations. "Since there is no system that seems competent to reach these foreign stocks, and since theoretically and practically taxing them is unjust; the tax ought to be removed," said he. "It is extremely unwise for us still to cling to this tax when it loses to us much business which can escape this double taxation by going into other States. I think that if these stocks are exempted, bonds, notes in private corporations will be doomed to the same extent as they have been. Real estate owners would be willing to pay a little more to induce more personal property into the State. For the fear of taxation is greater factor in keeping out business than the actual amount of that taxation.

Charles Francis Adams of Quincy wished a remodelling of the whole tax system of the Commonwealth, and thought the present code a series of makeshifts.

Annual Meeting.

The Quincy & Boston street railway held its annual meeting Wednesday afternoon when the old board of officers were re-elected.

President,—John R. Graham.
Clerk and Treasurer,—Fred H. Smith.
Directors,—John R. Graham, Winthrop Coffin, Arthur Burnham, William A. Hodges, John A. Duggan, Josiah Quincy, John F. Merrill, Thomas H. McDonnell, Roger H. Wilde.
Superintendent,—Benjamin J. Weeks.

The treasurer reported the gross receipts for the year ending September 30, 1893, was $50,773 85; an increase of $6,212.89 over 1892 when the receipts were $44,560.96 an increase of $11,624.34 over 1891.

A yearly dividend of 6 per cent. was declared, the balance $3,792 34 being carried to surplus.

During the past year the company has purchased the Manet street railway at a cost of $50,000 and established a power station at a cost of $45,000.

Four new open motor cars and two box cars have been added to the rolling stock, making the total number of cars now in use twenty.

Diphtheria in Dorchester.

There has been thirteen cases of diphtheria in two weeks within three hundred rods of the Mather school house in Dorchester. The people in that vicinity are getting alarmed and want something done to remove the cause. The Boston Record says, the population is not crowded at Meeting House Hill. The general sewerage condition is said by the sewer department to be all right. The sewer at the Mather school has a good pitch. The houses in the vicinity are mostly of modern style, and are supposed to be well plumbed.

Nothing suggests itself so readily as a cause for the disease among the children as the condemned system of plumbing at the Mather school.

—Ex-Speaker Reed visited the Washington Zoo last Sunday. Keeper Blackburn inserted a long iron bar into the tiger's cage to induce the tiger to put on its company manners. After several proddings the tiger seized upon the end of the bar as though it were intended for immediate consumption. Mr. Blackburn then invited Mr. Reed to take the bar from the cage and incidently from the tiger. Mr. Reed pulled the tiger. He threw all his weight upon the rod and danced into the centre of the animal house. "This beats all my previous experience in bucking the tiger in congress or out," said Mr. Reed, as he turned the rod over to Mr. Blackburn, with the animal still firmly attached to the other end.

RUSSIAN DIPLOMACY

Illustrated by Recent Dealings With the Corean Nation.

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 26.—The Russian government is said to have obtained an opportunity to interfere in Corea. The Russian government is encouraging the emigration of Coreans, and 10,000 are said to have left their native land. The Corean government is doing everything possible to prevent the exodus, and the officials at the boundary are ordered to stop the people. Recently 10 Coreans revisited their native land. They were immediately seized and ordered to suffer the death penalty.

One escaped and succeeded in crossing the frontier, and when safe in Russia laid the matter before the Russian officials. The consequence was that the Russian minister at Seoul got instructions to protest against such cruelties. Russia thus got her finger in the Corean pie. Japanese residents at Seoul have formed a fencing school and are quietly drilling. They feel the insecurity of the position and intend to be prepared for any emergency.

A BROKEN AXLE

Causes a Wreck and Loss of Life on the Pennsylvania Road.

TRENTON, Oct. 26.—The second section of the Chicago limited on the Pennsylvania road was wrecked near Lawrence station last night by running into a freight train. Four unknown tramps, who were stealing a ride on the freight train, were killed, and another was badly injured. Daniel Mahoney, the engineer, and Henry Matthews, the fireman of the limited, were badly injured. They stuck to their engine, which was thrown on its side into a ditch. Ellis Green, a passenger, and J. C. Carter, William Willis and J. T. Gray, porters on three of the coaches which were derailed, were also slightly injured. The wreckage was piled across the four tracks. The accident was caused by the axle of one of the freight cars breaking and throwing it across the main track. The limited received a signal to stop, but could not do so in time to avoid the crash.

HIS STORY DOUBTED.

Five Alleged Murderers Exonerated by Another's Confession.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—James Stone, who, some days ago, confessed that he, with the five men now in prison, murdered the Wratten family in Davies county a few weeks ago, has made another confession to parties in this city. Stone says that he alone murdered the Wratten family. He exonerates the men he implicated in his first confession.

He told the officers where to find the weapon with which the deed was done. The officers found them where Stone stated. A small bloody ax and a corn knife were hidden under a log in a piece of woods close by the scene of the tragedy. The weapons are now in possession of the grand jury. Stone may or may not be telling the truth. It is not believed that he did the deed alone.

INSTANTLY KILLED.

Of Five Men Riding on a Coal Car but One Escaped Alive.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 26.—Four men were killed in a wreck on the Pennsylvania railroad in this city last evening almost on the spot where the Dock-street horror occurred in June, 1892. A freight train going east was boarded at Market street by five men, who got into a coal car. Two squares away the coal car jumped the track at a switch, and half a dozen cars were tilted on end and crashed into a westbound train of empty cars. The car in which the men were sitting was hurled into the middle of the grinding mass, and four were instantly killed and one injured. Ten cars loaded with oil and lumber were wrecked and the contents destroyed, and six empty cars were smashed.

Newport Goes Democratic.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 26.—The Republican Sunday closing movement campaign was a mistake. The Democrats carried the city yesterday, electing their candidate for mayor, Hon. Daniel B. Fearing, by a majority of 88, two out of five aldermen, 12 out of 20 councilmen and the entire school board. The Republicans advocated the closing of ice cream stores, soda fountains and the suppression of the sale of papers on Sunday, and the contest was fought on these lines. The net Democratic gain over last year is 134.

Out of the Way For a Year.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 26.—George B. and William H. Hartford were sentenced in the supreme court to one year each in jail. For a long time these men have terrorized the people of Deerfield, but until they were arrested for breaking and entering nothing tangible could be secured against them.

The Latest From Rio.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Information has been received at the state department from Minister Thompson at Rio Janeira to the effect that the rebels claim to have established a provisional government in the state of St. Catarina with M. Lorena as president.

Is Consumption Contagious?

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—The board of health was asked by leading physicians to oppose a request made by the County Medical society to place consumption on the list of contagious diseases. The matter was referred to the sanitary committee.

Royal Actors.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The comedy, "A Scrap of Paper," was played by court amateurs at Windsor castle before the queen and other members of the royal family. Princess Beatrice and the Princess Aribert of Anhalt took leading parts.

Hard to Detect.

WHEELING, Oct. 26.—West Virginia towns have been flooded with thousands of counterfeit silver dollars. The bogus money has the true ring, but is a little over weight. The milling is almost perfect.

Methodist Missionaries In Session.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 26.—The 24th annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Mission society of the Methodist Episcopal church began its session in this city. The meeting will last a week or 10 days.

Coney Islanders Want It.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Judge Newton had a long talk with Charley Mitchell, and he said last night that the Coney Island club was still anxious to make arrangements for the big fight.

Easy For Yale.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 26.—Yale easily defeated Williams, scoring 82 points to nothing. Armstrong made no less than 10 of the 14 touchdowns.

Vesuvias on the Rampage.

ROME, Oct. 26.—Mount Vesuvius is again in a state of eruption.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

FULL POLITICAL RIGHTS FOR WOMEN IN NEW ZEALAND.

At Barnard College—Women Factory Inspectors—Obstacles In Her Path—Latest Pocketbooks For Women—The Woman Editor In Japan.

New Zealand may claim an honorable place in history as the first of the English colonies to give women equal political rights with men. The bill bestowing full suffrage upon women has passed both houses of the legislature and has just been signed by the governor. This is the third year's trial of the bill. Twice before it has passed the lower house to be killed in the upper. All women, married or single, vote with the same privileges and restrictions as their husbands and brothers. Next December the election will be held under the new law. The only other state in the world where the women have the same political status as men is the young state of Wyoming in this country.

In England unmarried women have a vote in all except parliamentary elections, and the struggle is now to the end that women may help elect M. P's. A division of sentiment, however, weakens the movement, for a wing of the suffrage party thinks efforts should be made at the same time to enfranchise married women. In time both objects will be accomplished. In the meantime one of the faraway colonies of Great Britain has taken a great stride along the line of progress and left the mother country to follow in the wake. No doubt woman suffrage in New Zealand will prove to be what its adherents have always claimed, as it has done wherever it has been fairly tried, even to the limited extent which has thus far been granted. Intelligent advocates for the reform do not assert that it will cure all the political evils of the time, but all agree that taxation without representation is a weak spot in any republic, and because the taxed happen to be women does not change the principle.—Springfield Republican.

At Barnard College.

Barnard college opened a short time ago with a freshman class of 30 students. The entrance examination papers, which are the same as those used at Columbia and require certain preparation in Greek, have been exceedingly good and indicate marked improvement in the preparatory schools.

When Barnard opened the way to the Columbia degree for girls, few schools in the city were ready to prepare girls to meet the requirements in scholarship. The college has formed a triple alliance with Columbia and the Teachers' college, waiving, like the latter, the right to confer degrees upon its graduates who receive the regular Columbia degree.

It occupies a unique position in the world of letters, and one which promises to afford one solution to the problem of coeducation, for, though it holds a college charter, it has no president, no curriculum and no degree. It furnishes to its pupils the Columbia university work in Latin, Greek, French, the Teutonic languages, Hebrew, mathematics, botany, chemistry, geology and philosophy, and the girls in the retirement of their own classical abode do precisely the same work the boys in their classrooms accomplish, without in any way forfeiting the fine bloom of maidenly reserve which some educators consider is sacrificed in the intermingling of men and women together in classes.—New York Sun.

Women Factory Inspectors.

There are 20 deputies on the New York board of factory inspectors. Half are women. The salary is $1,200 a year, and the deputy is allowed car fare and lunch money not to exceed $1 a day.

The hours are from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. five days in the week, and from 9 until noon Saturdays. Work lasts 12 months in the year, interrupted only by national or legal holidays. The list of fair deputies is as follows:

Mrs. Eliza A. Carroll, Brooklyn; Mrs. Sophie Rauch, Mrs. Louisa Cuthell, Mrs. Kate Hall, Mrs. Ella Nagle, Miss Elizabeth Campbell, Miss Margaret Finn, Miss Electa R. Lockwood, Miss Mary Donnelly, New York city; Miss Bertha L. Aschoff, Albany.

They are 10 very wide awake and hard-working women, with business ability and more than the average amount of intelligence. Aside from having sufficient mechanical knowledge to make a diagram for a fire escape, elevator gate, skylight, needed or defective plumbing apparatus, they are diplomatic enough to attend to the duties of office without antagonizing employees or employers and to do disagreeable work without getting themselves disliked. All have children, parents or relatives depending on them for support, and to a woman they are self respecting and bribeproof.—New York Letter.

Obstacles In Her Path.

Miss Margaret Richardson of Norristown, Pa., has applied for admission to the Montgomery county bar and has met with obstacles. In August last Miss Richardson notified the board of examiners of the Bar association of her desire to register as a law student in the office of Wanger & Knife and asked that they fix a day for the preliminary examination. The board informed her that, as the rules of court now stand, a woman cannot be admitted to the bar, and that unless the rules are changed the time spent in the pursuit of her studies would, in a measure, be lost and suggested that the question be decided by the proper authorities.

Miss Richardson has therefore presented in court an application for a rule to compel the examiners to show cause why she should not be granted an examination. This is intended to bring the matter before the court and test woman's right to admission to the bar. Since two women attorneys have already been admitted to practice before the bar in Pennsylvania, it would seem that the raising of the question of the eligibility of women and the going over of the whole ground again are superfluous.—Boston Woman's Journal.

Latest Pocketbooks For Women.

More delightfully capacious than anything seen in years are the new pocketbooks for feminine use, many of them recalling a man's old time wallet, barring its circular strap.

One of the most stylish models is 7½ by 5 inches in size, made of seal leather, silver bound or trimmed, and without either clasp or buckle for fastening. The interior is arranged in several compartments for silver, bills, cards and what not, and it contains also a good sized notebook and pencil. The most commodious of the compartments is easily large enough to hold two folded pocket handkerchiefs and no end of samples.

What is known as the carriage pocketbook is similar to that described except that it is provided with a clasp and an adjustable handle. A favorite style is made of fine glazed black morocco, with a quarter inch silver binding, and one variety is lined throughout with gayly tinted satin brocade.

The use of these huge pocketbooks will retard for a time the popularizing of the chatelaine bag or small hand satchel, which it was hinted would find favor this autumn.—Exchange.

The Woman Editor In Japan.

The Japan Gazette, a Yokohama paper lately edited by a lady now displaced by a change of proprietorship, has a farewell editorial from her pen which gives an amusing idea of journalistic amenities in Yokohama. "It has been urged more than once," the lady writes, "that under the present editorship it has been impossible for our contemporaries to write freely. But when we recall the fact that we have been termed a liar and a virago, likened to a senseless creature who pokes the fire from the top, stigmatized as an impostor, an irate female, a female fibber and alluded to in a variety of other amicable ways, we are tempted to wonder to what limits journalistic freedom aspires to soar."

In another column the retiring editress supplements her leading article by a poem addressed to "My Editorial Chair," in the course of which she hints that her sex is the real ground for her enforced departure:

I leave thee not with vain regret,
Nor yet with vow to thee forget;
A man, I might have filled thee yet,
My Editorial Chair!

—Westminster Gazette.

Germany's Innovation.

The first gymnasium or college for women in Germany was opened a few weeks ago in Carlsruh, the fan shaped capital of the grand duchy of Baden. The course of instruction is precisely the same as in the gymnasiums for boys and young men. Six years are necessary to complete it. The founders of the institution hope that by the end of that time, when the first graduates will leave it, the doors of every university and professional school in the fatherland will be open to them.

This seems probable, as the prejudice against the capabilities and the higher education of women in Germany is fast giving way to a belief of their intellectual equality with the members of the sterner sex. The classes and lectures in the gymnasium will be held entirely in the afternoon, it being the hope of the teachers that the lessons may be prepared in the morning, and that night work will be unnecessary.—New York Tribune.

Women In the Vested Choir.

The vested choir of the Church of the Atonement, Seventeenth street and Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, was enlarged Sunday by women. They wore the usual vestments—cassock, collar and beretta. The only difference from the regular costume was that the yoke of the neck was not cut so low as in the cassocks worn by the men. The entire choir, consisting of about 30 voices, marched both in processional and recessional, the women entering the chancel.

The innovation was declared successful at the close of the service. Some of the women in the choir were Misses Eden S. Campbell, L. Campbell, T. Gibson, E Gardner, Lillie Braun, Sarah Lewis, Gertrude Gentry, L. Roser and Ida Lewis.

St. Peter's Episcopal church, in State street, introduced women in the surpliced choir some time ago. Other churches are gradually following its example.—New York Herald.

A School of Housewifery.

The most successful housewifery school in Queen Victoria's dominions is acknowledged to be that established by Mrs. Elder at Govan. There some hundreds of girls who work in factories during the day are fitted in the evenings for their future duties as wives and mothers. They are instructed in the laws of hygiene and are also taught how to clean, wash, make clothes and cook. One object of the school is to show how to provide palatable, nutritious food at low cost, and all the dishes prepared are made of inexpensive materials, depending for savor on careful seasoning and handling. Every Saturday evening numbers of girls and women take the materials for their Sunday dinners to the school and cook them under the supervision of a skilled teacher. What Mrs. Elder does for cookery Lady Brooke is doing for needlework. In her village schools girls are trained to be the veriest Penelopes.—English Correspondent.

The custom of speaking of the president as "his excellency" is unwarranted. No such formal title was ever given him by legislative action. His legal title is "the president of the United States."

Carlisle's Next Task.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Now that Secretary Carlisle thinks the silver fight is ended he will address himself to accumulated department business. The vacancies, actual and prospective, number 65 or 70. As each appointee will have from 5 to 150 employes under him, the secretary will exercise great care in making recommendations for appointment.

Her Day.

He was a mighty, rolling river;
She was a little, rippling rill;
He was a mountain naught could shiver;
She was a tiny, shifting hill.

He was a lion, loudly roaring;
She was a lambkin, born to love;
He was an eagle, proudly soaring;
She was a gentle, cooing dove.

He was a sturdy oak, defiant;
She was a slender, clinging vine;
He was a brave and brawny giant;
She was a wee thing feminine.

Ah, but the day when they went shopping
She was the one who took the lead;
She was the earth, so far o'ertopping
Him that he seemed a mustard seed!
—Washington Post.

Success.

Those who succeed will always have their crown,
While thousands just as noble, and who strive
As eagerly to win the self same boon,
Find at the end an ignominious grave.
They sink 'mid sneers and slander into death,
Or die forgotten in oblivion's night.
—Walter Malone.

He that respects himself is safe from others.
He wears a coat of mail that none can pierce.

A Loud Telephone.

An English paper describes a telephone which will talk loud enough for a person in any part of a large room to hear and understand. Mr. Graham, the inventor, has succeeded not so much by an improvemnt on the existing telephones as by his method of arranging the circuit and bringing its resistance as low as possible. To this end the usual induction coil is discarded, and the two instruments, transmitter and receiver, are directly connected in circuit with the line and the battery. The transmitter at one end of the line is connected to the receiver at the other end, and two separate lines are employed having a common return wire. Two correspondents can thus talk quite freely with each other, and as the receivers speak out so as to be heard in any part of a room conversation can be carried on by each person simply speaking to his transmitter.

The apparatus is attached to flexible conductors and is held in the hand. To open a conversation it is sufficient to pick up the portable transmitter and press a button in its casing, so as to establish the circuit. The receiver at the other end acts as its own call bell by the loudness of its voice, and the response comes equally prompt and loud. The user has therefore no need to listen carefully with one or two receivers held up to his head. All he has to do is to speak into his transmitter and keep his ears open.

RUSSIANS AT LYONS.

Enthusiasm of Frenchmen Reach an Extraordinary Degree.

LYONS, Oct. 26.—The greatest enthusiasm was displayed by enormous crowds on the arrival of Admiral Avelan and the Russian officers here. As Admiral Avelan passed, the crowd surged forward to get a look at him. One woman was swept from her feet and fell. The crowd surged forward and she was trampled upon and killed.

In some instances the Russomania has reached a wonderful height. While the Russian officers were on their way to Versailles, a woman, who stood on the bridge over the river, and from which she saw the train containing the Russians passing, with the Russian and French flags, shouted, "See the Russians and die," and then jumped into the river. She was drowned, but her body was afterward recovered, and it was found upon examining her garments that her chemise consisted of a Russian flag and her petticoat of French and Russian flags sewn together.

Since the arrival of the Russian squadron in French waters Admiral Avelan has received 19,000 letters, of which 10,000 were from women. Most of these communications requested that he would send them a lock of his hair.

In furniture they simply lead
And sell you everything you need
The humblest prophets have agreed
That Kincaide's prices you should heed.

SENSATIONAL SUICIDE.

Louis Warshafsky Shoots Himself and Then Jumps From a Window.

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—Trouble arising from money matters, combined with the excessive use of liquor, caused the death of Louis Warshafsky last night, and almost ended the lives of two of his companions. It was a plain case of suicide.

The shooting took place in the attic tenement of a Billerica-street house, occupied by Isaac Glass. Warshafsky went to the house in the evening and there met Glass and another friend of Simon Martelson, with both of whom he had been connected in some property matters.

Developments show that Warshafsky intended to commit suicide last night. A wrangle, which ensued while he was in the tenement, hastened the deed. He drew his revolver, shot wildly several times, and struck one of his companions in the wrist.

Then he placed the muzzle of his revolver at his own breast, fired twice, opened the window of the tenement and jumped to the brick pavements below, and 20 minutes later he was dead.

SOLD ALL THEY HAD.

Not a Gun Left In the Factory of the Pratt & Whitney Company.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The Herald's Hartford special says: It is learned in the factory of the Pratt & Whitney company in this city, manufacturers of the Hotchkiss guns, that every gun in the factory has recently been shipped to New York. The officials of the firm are reticent, but there is a well-defined rumor that the guns were delivered to Charles R. Flint & Co., merchants in the Brazilian trade, who had large dealings with the Hotchkiss Gun company recently for guns and ammunition. That the guns were demanded for immediate shipment, probably for Brazil, is inferred from the fact that everything in the shape of a gun at the Hartford factory ready for use was shipped, some of them without awaiting the finishing touches.

Held For Trial.

HARTFORD, Oct. 26.—John Tyler, a negro, arrested on suspicion of being the burglar who murderously assaulted Miss Juliet Niles and Miss Annie Ennis at Windsor, was given a hearing at Windsor yesterday afternoon. He was charged with assault with intent to kill and burglary, and was bound over in $1000 for trial at the December term of the superior court. He could not account for the presence in his pocket of a slungshot wet with blood.

Was Supposed to Be Dead.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 26.—A year ago a body was buried in St. Joseph's cemetery as that of Annie Dunn, daughter of Ann Dunn of this city. The young girl left home a number of years ago, and it was reported that a woman answering to that name was found dead in Lowell, Mass. The body was brought here and identified as that of the Dunn girl. Now the real Annie has returned home. The identity of the dead girl is a mystery.

STANTON DETACHED.

Guilty of Discourtesy Toward a Friendly Nation.

HE SALUTED INSURGENTS

Who Are Not Recognized by the United States.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Rear Admiral Stanton is ordered to turn over the command of his squadron to Captain Picking, the next in rank. Secretary Herbert learned, to his great surprise, that Rear Admiral Stanton had saluted the rebel Brazilian admiral. For this act of discourtesy toward a friendly nation, Secretary Herbert, after consulting with the president and Secretary of State Gresham, ordered Rear Admiral Stanton's detachment.

A dispatch from Rio, published in a Berlin paper, stated that the American naval commander had exchanged visits and salutes with Admiral Mello of the insurgent fleet. It is a suspected state department secret that Rear Admiral Stanton had been, if not exactly admonished, yet diplomatically cautioned, against taking any action which could be construed as an interference on either side in the pending struggle.

When he first saw the dispatch from Rio de Janeiro saying that the American naval commander had exchanged visits and salutes with Admiral Mello of the insurgent fleet, Secretary Herbert was loathe to believe that the statements were correct, and expressed his doubts to a reporter who called upon him. If Admiral Stanton had merely exchanged an ordinary unofficial visit on business matters with Admiral Mello, the secretary would not have been surprised, nor probably would he have taken any further notice of it, as it is said at the navy department that this would not have been improper.

Naval Officials Puzzled.

But the secretary saw alone the serious and unfortunate nature of the report taken by Admiral Stanton and how it might be construed by the lawful government of Brazil. He therefore lost no time in promptly cabling to Rio de Janeiro for all the facts in the case, to which he received a prompt report with the result as noted above. Naval officials talked with on the subject are puzzled over Admiral Stanton's action and are at a loss to account for so serious a defection from duty on his part.

It is said that Captain Picking will remain in charge of the fleet of American ships in the harbor possibly permanently or at any rate until a successor to Rear Admiral Stanton is appointed. Commodore Ramsey, chief of the bureau of navigation, said that it had not yet been determined who would be appointed to succeed Stanton.

Secretary Herbert expresses his surprise that an officer of Admiral Stanton's experience and standing should commit such a blunder, and his prompt action is taken with the purpose of announcing to the world that the United States government has taken no steps to refuse recognition to the legally constituted Brazilian government.

STARVED TO DEATH.

The Awful Fate of Two Poor Children of New Bedford.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 26.—A terrible state of affairs was disclosed in a Field street tenement yesterday, where two children have died of starvation, and the father is expected to die at any time of the same dreadful cause. The family is that of Napoleon J. Stone, a weaver, whose inability to obtain work has reduced his family to starvation. For over a week the only sustenance were a few scanty bits of bread and a little water, but since the death of the children neighbors have learned the situation and rendered assistance. It is feared that Stone is beyond aid, but his wife and one child will recover with careful nursing.

THE DEATH OF HAMLET.

He sleeps at last, and all the grief
That shook his soul in manhood's prime
Is wafted like some faded leaf
Across the horizon of time.
How shall we fitly say farewell
To him whose voice in other days
Thrilled human hearts as by a spell
And won the incense of their praise?

Like some ungentle blast that shakes
The fairest blossom from the tree
Is this grim mystery that takes
Life's perfume and life's flow'r from thee.
And can those lips indeed be dumb
From which such golden words did fall,
And is that princely figure numb
That yields the purple to the pall?

Alas, 'tis so! The prince is dead
Who showed us Denmark's woes anew.
May sweetest rest attend his bed
And peace the gentle heart and true!
The lights are out, the play is o'er,
His voice is hushed, in very truth,
His presence ne'er shall thrill us more,
And Hamlet dies in Edwin Booth!

A VENTILATING HAT.

I had got to the very bottom of the ladder. Never mind how I got there, or why I got there, that's my business, and it doesn't concern you in the least. But I was earning my living all the same, and earning it honestly. I had read stories of the workhouse, and they made my flesh creep. It wasn't pride that made me work; it wasn't an honest spirit of independence. It was the workhouse I dreaded and the peculiarly unattractive fare provided for the pauper. And there I was with 18 pence, my day's earnings, between me and the casual ward. Within 24 hours that 18 pence would assuredly disappear, and unless I got work of some sort to the casual ward I should have to go. I and a gentleman in a position similar to my own were talking matters over.

"Things is very slack, governor," said he to me.

"There is one game you might try," continued my acquaintance with a benignant smile, "and that's Wilkins, the ventilating hatter. But you can't keep on with that long, you know. It's ruin to the constitution."

Anything was better to my mind than the casual ward, so I asked for Wilkins' address.

"Oh, you can't miss it," was the answer; "you just walk down Shoreditch. There's always a crowd outside Wilkins' shop, and all you've got to do is to ask, boldlike, for Wilkins, and when you sees him you just ups and says, 'I'd like to be in the way of earning a honest 'alf crown, sir.' Then he'll put you in the way at wunst." Then my friend nodded and departed.

I arrived at Shoreditch. I wasn't long in finding Wilkins—there was a crowd in front of the window. In the window were hundreds of hats. Every one of them had a ticket bearing the same legend, "Wilkins' Ventilating Hat," then followed the price. I gradually elbowed my way to the front row, and then I perceived the nature of the exhibition that gave so much pleasure to the inhabitants of Shoreditch.

In the center of the array of hats were two human heads, which protruded through two artfully constructed holes in the polished mahogany which formed the flooring of the shop front. Each head was covered by what appeared to be an ordinary tall hat. The head on the right had a large window ticket behind it, on which were the following words:

"Wilkins' ventilating hat. Perfect comfort. No suffering from heat by want of ventilation. The wearer of this article enjoys life. The head is human. There is no deception. The only establishment in which Wilkins' ventilating hat may be obtained. 'It comes as a boon and a blessing to men, like the Pickwick, the Owl and the Waverley pen.'"

There was a similar ticket behind the head on the left:

"The ordinary silk hat. Observe how the unfortunate wearer suffers from the heat. Poor fellow! He evidently wishes himself dead. The common unventilated hat of commerce is a fiendish invention worthy of the atrocities of the worst days of the Spanish inquisition. The wearer of an unventilated hat is hurrying to an early grave. The head is human; there is no deception."

I noticed that the mahogany planking of the shop front below the heads was perforated with innumerable small holes. Then I observed that there was a very great difference in the appearance of the faces of those wearing the hats. The gentleman wearing Wilkins' ventilating hat looked the picture of contentment. He smiled. He seemed as if he had attained the summit of human bliss. He was evidently very comfortable indeed. The other head presented a striking contrast. Never till now had I the least idea that such dreadful effects were produced by the wearing of an unventilated hat. The face was as pale as death. A cold perspiration seemed to trickle from every pore. The mouth was set as though in agony, and all through an unventilated hat. I boldly determined to enter the shop.

"What can I show you, sir?" said an assistant, with excessive urbanity.

"I want to see Mr. Wilkins," I replied.

"That is Mr. Wilkins," said the man, indicating a portly and benevolent looking gentleman in a black silk waistcoat.

"What can I do for you, my man?" said Mr. Wilkins.

"I'd like to be in the way of earning an honest half crown, sir," I replied.

"Very good, my man," said Mr. Wilkins, with a smile. "Is there a vacancy today, Boldger?"

"Yes, sir. Certainly, sir," replied the man. "We shall be ready for the gentleman in about 20 minutes."

"Been here before, my man?" said Mr. Wilkins to me, not unkindly.

"Not I," I replied.

"Then you'd better put him through the mill, Boldger," said Mr. Wilkins to the foreman.

"Step this way, young man," said the foreman to me, and I followed him into a lavatory.

"There you are," he said. "You're in luck, young man," he went on. "Half a crown for wearing a new hat for three hours is good pay. You'll be on at 3 and you'll be off at 6. This gentleman is waiting his turn. He is one of our regulars."

The man who was waiting his turn was a wretch, but his neck and face had been carefully washed, and his hair well combed and brushed. I washed my face and brushed my hair, and I thought that to wear an unventilated hat even three hours couldn't be so very dreadful a punishment after all. I had reckoned without my host.

"This way, gentlemen, if you please," said the hatter's assistant as he motioned us to follow him through a door leading toward the basement.

At the end of a passage under the shop front was a little room with a sloping roof. Side by side were two easy chairs, beneath each of which was a winch for raising or lowering the chair to any required height. My companion took his seat at once. He was evidently used to the ways of the place. Then the assistant strapped him in by means of two thick leather bands with massive buckles, one at the neck and the other at the waist. Then the shopman suddenly opened a little trapdoor 12 inches square in the low, sloping roof of the apartment and worked away actively at the winch. The chair rose, and the head of its occupant disappeared through the little trapdoor to the shoulders. Then the man turned a large nut which was affixed to the back of the chair and motioned me to take my seat in the other.

"Why do you strap us in?" I said to the man as I took my seat.

"You'll know why, governor, by the time you've earned that half a crown," he said with a malignant grin. "Now, look here," he continued, "if you want to sneeze or cough or anything, get it done now, and don't you go a-larfing or larking with the boys at the window. If you do, it will be deducted for."

Then he began to wind me up, and I made my first appearance in Mr. Wilkins' shop front to a round of tumultuous applause from a crowd of idlers in the street who stared into the shop windows. Then somebody carefully fitted a hat onto my head and gave it a knowing cock. Then the mahogany arrangement was drawn up close to my neck, and there I sat, perfectly comfortable, staring at the crowd of idlers in the street. And then a draft of cool air began to flow through the holes that surrounded my neck. Mr. Wilkins really took a wonderful amount of trouble to insure our comfort.

At first the novelty of my situation entirely occupied my mind. I felt inclined to laugh as I thought of myself as a bodiless head wearing a ventilating hat. The boys in the street, too, made grimaces at me. Then I looked at my fellow victim out of the corner of my eye. He was evidently already suffering from the effects of his unventilated hat. His teeth were tightly set. He looked anything but happy. Great drops of perspiration already stood upon his brow. I didn't trouble myself very much about him.

The time passed pleasantly enough and I heard the clock of Shoreditch church at length strike 4. As it struck I was startled to hear the wearer of the unventilated hat give a hollow groan. I looked at him once more out of the corner of my eye. He had become ghastly pale. He looked as if he were melting gradually. In fact, the poor fellow seemed very ill indeed. Strange that a badly ventilated hat should produce such marked effects. Well, it wasn't my business.

The clock of Shoreditch church struck 4:30. I heard footsteps in the room below, and at the same time I was deprived of my ventilating hat. A brand new hat was placed upon my head, and the show cards which stood behind our respective heads were exchanged. The drafts of cool air which came through the innumerable little holes in the mahogany flooring around my neck suddenly ceased. A current of heated air supplied its place. I looked out of the corner of my eye at the other head. The face wore an ecstatic smile. The easy chair in which I was sitting began to grow warm, and finally became actually hot—unpleasantly hot.

I saw through the whole fiendish trick at once. I was to be tortured an hour and a half for the amusement of an idle crowd in order that the public might be gulled into the purchase of the so called ventilating hats of the fiend Wilkins.

I felt—but I will not dwell on my agonies; I will not dilate upon the horrible sufferings I endured. I was being gradually cooked alive, and I felt that concentrated boiling gravy was coursing through my veins. My features were contorted with agony. The crowd in the street outside applauded.

I tried to break loose. As I did so a voice from the room below uttered the following dreadful threat, "It's 120 now, my man, and if you move I'll make it 150!" I shed tears of rage, indignation and agony. I endured the most dreadful tortures an hour and a half. When I left Wilkins' establishment with a half a crown in my pocket, I was more dead than alive.

It is the dream of my life that I and Mr. Wilkins, the inventor of the ventilating hat, may meet in some lonely place. I am not a revengeful man, but I feel that I owe Wilkins a debt that I should like to pay.—Exchange.

CLEVELAND'S STAND

Received Hearty Support From Republican Senators.

HE REALIZES THE FACT

And Knows Who His Democratic Opponents Are.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—To the attitude of the president in firmly adhering to unconditional repeal and refusing all compromise will be due the successful outcome of this stubborn controversy. Had he yielded at all to the compromisers, the whole question would have been lost and the administration defeated in its first attempt to mark out a line of policy on the silver question.

The president now fully realizes that he is largely indebted to those Republicans like Sherman, Lodge, Platt, Allison, Hoar and others, whose steadfast support of his policy enabled him to command the situation. He has taken more than one occasion to compliment them upon their patriotism in rising above party on a great question in which the whole country is largely involved.

An attempt was made on the part of some of the Democratic senators who were not very friendly to Mr. Cleveland to alienate his Republican supporters in the senate. The president was aware of this fact, and for a time it caused him much uneasiness, but when he was assured by Senator Sherman and other leading Republicans of that body that they would stand by him as long as he maintained his position of unconditional repeal, he at once made up his mind not to yield a hair in the direction of the compromisers. He was further informed by these Republican senators that if any attempt was made to adopt a makeshift they would not only antagonize it, but they would expose the hollowness of the measure.

Enemies Defied.

This assurance from the strong men of the senate who are Republicans stimulated him to defy his enemies in that body who were trying to wreck his administration. The president is now aware who in the senate are his friends and who are his enemies. They will probably have an opportunity of learning something in this direction during the remainder of his administration.

The unconditional repeal of the Sherman act will be a great triumph for the administration, in which the Republicans will be entitled to a fair share of the honors. This the president is entirely willing to accord to them, knowing that but for their aid he could not have succeeded.

Present Plans.

The program of the repeal bill in the senate is to get it out some time today on the amendments to the bill, finish the work on the amendments tomorrow, and vote on the bill on Monday.

This schedule of course is subject to change. When it was arranged it was supposed that Senator Stewart would conclude his speech last night. That he did not do, and if he should wish to proceed today it is possible that it will become necessary to change the plans so as to defer the vote upon the amendment until tomorrow.

Senator Jones will require only a short time to conclude and Senator Allen will not speak at great length. Senator Wolcott will make a 15-minute speech and Senator Gorman may also make a brief statement. There may possibly also be a few other short speeches before the close of the debate. Senator Faulkner, after again canvassing the senate last evening, thought it would be possible, if Mr. Stewart did not extend his remarks for too great a length of time, to begin the voting by 4 o'clock today. The opinion prevails in the senate that the house will pass the bill when it is sent over with very little delay, and the senators are hopeful of concluding the business of the extra session by the middle of next week.

Recess or Adjournment?

Whether there shall then be a recess or an adjournment will depend upon the committee on ways and means. If the Democratic members of the committee are of the opinion that the tariff bill will be in shape before the beginning of the regular session, a recess is more probable than adjournment. Otherwise an adjournment will take place.

There was a well-defined report in circulation about the capital that there had been an effort made to have the Democratic managers in the senate postpone voting upon the bill until after the Virginia election, upon the theory that the passage of the bill at this time would have the effect of injuring the chances of the Democratic party in that state. It appears that the Virginia Populists have made their fight in this campaign almost entirely upon the silver issue, and have made such headway as to render the Democratic managers somewhat anxious.

The suggestion appears to have received some consideration, but when it was represented upon the other hand that the immediate passage of the bill would have a good effect in Massachusetts and New York it was thought best to let the bill take its course. Indeed, under the circumstances, with the bill in its present shape, it would be impossible to check progress, and especially would it be difficult for the repeal managers to accomplish that result if so disposed.

Fraud by Wholesale.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—Four thousand cases charging frauds have been brought against the firm of Moseman & Vissing, soap manufacturers of Berlin and Leipsic.

COOL CAPTAIN JOHNSON

Prevented Loss of Life When His Steamer Struck on Rocks.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27.—The Pacific Mail company's steamer City of New York went ashore last evening in a fog and will probably be a total loss. She sailed for China and Japan at 3:30 p. m. and went down the bay under full head of steam. The fog was very heavy. About 4 p. m. the big ocean steamer was lost sight of and a half hour later the booming of cannon could be heard and signal rockets could be seen as they burst above the fog.

The signal station at Point Lobos at once sent a message into town and soon every tug in the bay was racing for the steamer. Arriving there it was found that she was hard and fast on the rocks, having gone on them under a full head of steam. She was in charge of Pilot Stevens at the time. As soon as the steamer struck there was a scene of wild confusion. A couple of hundred of Chinese in the steerage set up a howl that could be heard half across the Golden Gate.

Captain Johnson was wonderfully cool, however, and he and his officers soon restored order. There is eight feet of water in the steamer's hold, and the tugs cannot move her. The loss will be $500,000; no insurance. All the passengers were taken off and were returned to this city.

The City of New York was built in Chester, Pa., in 1875. She was 3,019.55 tons gross. She took away an unusually large cargo of flour and general merchandise, all of which will be probably a total loss.

IN CLOSE QUARTERS.

Mello Will Have to Run the Gauntlet to Get Away From Rio.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—The special delegate of Brazil has received a dispatch from Rio de Janerio dated Oct. 25 which says the insurgent vessels are scarcely able to move, from the fact that they are in need of extensive repairs, that their bottoms are terribly foul and that their supply of coal is almost exhausted. According to the dispatch referred to, the vessels composing the insurgent squadron are compelled to remain in the lower part of the bay in order to avoid the fire of the forts which remain loyal to the government.

The forts, it would seem, have already inflicted considerable damage upon the rebel ships, and the latter no longer dare to expose themselves to the fire of the forts. Reports are current in Brazil, and especially in Rio de Janeiro, that Admiral de Mello, despairing of making any further progress against Rio de Janeiro, is preparing to gather his warships together and run the gaunlet of the forts at the entrance of the harbor with the intention of taking his whole force south and joining issue with the insurgents in the southern provinces.

Duty Must Be Paid.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Books printed for gratuitous circulations are subject to duty, according to the ruling of Acting Secretary Hamlin. The case is an unusual one. Books addressed to Willard P. Butler of New York, being a diary of one Thomas Fletcher, were printed by his uncle for distribution among members of his family and were held for duty at the custom house. Secretary Hamlin decided that the retention was correct.

A Case of Murder.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 27.—Peter Mulvey, one of the best known residents of South Providence, whose home for about half a century has been at 15 Colfax street, has been murdered. The police came to this conclusion after a searching inquiry, lasting all day, and the members of the Mulvey family are under surveillance, awaiting the finding of the medical examiner.

Denies a Confession.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 27.—Michael Carey, charged with murdering his wife at Southbridge by shooting her two weeks ago, was brought from the state farm at Bridgewater, where he was confined as a common drunkard, to this city and lodged in jail to await arraignment. He now denies the confession he made to Deputy Sheriff Jacobs at Bridgewater.

Seriously Burned by Acid.

ASHLAND, Wis., Oct. 27.—Six men were burned by acid and steam at the Ashland Sulphate Fiber company's plant here yesterday. The burned were Joseph Heron, Charles Burdick, F. Weshling, Joseph Reisner and Stenzbordick G. Constance. The recovery of any of the victims is doubtful. It is claimed that the accident was due to carelessness.

Football Tabooed at Princeton.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 27.—At a meeting of the faculty of the seminary the members decided against football playing by the students of that department. The reason given by the president is that it is beneath the dignity of divinity students in the college. All games have been cancelled, including those of big teams.

Yale Dormitories Robbed.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 27.—A large number of burglaries are reported at Yale. Three of the leading dormitories of the university have been entered and several students' valuables taken. In most cases the thieves boldly entered through a window, and after rifling a room retired undetected.

Actor Coghlan Married.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 27.—Charles Coghlan, the English actor, who is starring jointly with his sister, Rose Coghlan, was married here to Miss Kuehne Beveridge, a member of the company, and a young woman who has made considerable reputation as a sculptress.

Cardinal Gibbons Honored.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—A reception was tendered by the people of Washington last night, regardless of creed, to Cardinal Gibbons on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of his elevation to the episcopate. Cardinal Gibbons displayed a deep feeling of appreciation.

Infant Murdered.

LEBANON, Me., Oct. 27.—Benjamin Shaw and Everett Chick, while gunning, discovered the body of a baby on Shapleigh ledge, near Sawtelle's grave. The body was in a box, with the legs and arms gone. It is supposed that a murder has been committed.

STANTON'S BLUNDER

Viewed With Much Displeasure by Naval Officers.

TRIAL BY COURT MARTIAL

Likely to Result From an Official Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The removal of Rear Admiral Stanton by Secretary Herbert from his command of the United States fleet in Brazilian waters for saluting the flag of Admiral Mello, the Brazilian insurgent leader, is the sole topic of conversation among naval officers. They have not yet recovered from their surprise at Commodore Stanton's doings, nor are they yet willing to give any reason for it.

They had believed that the selection of the commodore for the peculiarly important and delicate position of commander of the American fleet in South American waters would be justified by his decision on questions that came up for his action from time to time, as he was believed to possess those qualifications of coolness and discretion so necessary in order to enable him to deal with the perplexing question that it was thought would inevitably come before him.

They are mortified and disappointed at his action and do not hesitate to so express themselves. Whatever may have been Commodore Stanton's explanation for his conduct, that has not yet been divulged at the navy department. It is assumed, however, from what the officials say, that he was given full opportunity to make an explanation before the secretary's summary action, but they refuse to indicate what its nature is.

May Ask an Investigation.

It is supposed Commodore Stanton will leave Rio de Janeiro at an early day on his departure for this country, so that he will be able to give the secretary and the president an account of his conduct and the reasons which influenced him in saluting Mello. Naval officers relieved from their commands with charges pending against them have the opportunity of asking that a court of inquiry be appointed to investigate such charges, and Commodore Stanton may ask this privilege.

Secretary Herbert has not yet decided what shall be done with the commodore, but it is very likely that after an investigation is made he may be tried by court martial. Nothing has been finally decided upon, however.

Gossip among the naval officers points to the probable selection of Commodore Richard W. Meade, the president of the medical examining board, as a likely successor of Commodore Stanton in command of the fleet at Rio. He is next to the commodore on the list, and under ordinary circumstances would be chosen to succeed in command.

The query on everybody's lips is, What is the United States going to do as a reparation for Commodore Stanton's unwarranted action? Nobody seems to know just what may be done, but many of the officials seem inclined to the opinion that the prompt action by Secretary Herbert in removing Commodore Stanton was an adequate and complete disavowal of his acts and showed the stand of our government; that they would in all probability be accepted by the Brazilian government as ample satisfaction for the wrong done.

Confidence In Uncle Sam.

Senor de Mendonca, the Brazilian minister, was asked what action his government would take concerning the conduct of Rear Admiral Stanton in saluting Admiral Mello, and said:

"The Brazilian government has not desired nor will it take any action in regard to this matter. I was notified by my government of this unfortunate act and upon communicating it to the government officials here my duty was performed. The action of the United States government in removing Admiral Stanton was spontaneous and was not solicited by the Brazilian government.

"We have implicit confidence in the United States government, and the action it has taken has been complete and entirely satisfactory. We could not expect, neither do we ask, anything else from a government with which we hold so good relations. There is no truth in the statement which has been published that the United States will make an apology to Brazil, for no apologies have been asked. Admiral Stanton has been removed and the action of the United States is complete satisfaction. Nothing further is desired."

Total Loss of $280,000.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 27.—Fire broke out in the foundry department of the Lincoln Stove and Furnace company in the penitentiary last evening. The building was entirely consumed. It was owned by the state and entailed a loss to the public of $80,000. The contractors will lose upwards of $200,000 on product and machinery. The penitentiary proper was untouched.

Will Be Eight Clubs.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—The committee to whom was left the organization of the Western Baseball league announces that Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Indianapolis and Toledo are accepted; that the league will be composed of eight clubs, four each on the western and eastern circuits.

Hissed Carnegie's Name.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 27.—A mass meeting of iron and steel workers was held yesterday afternoon to protest against the anti-union agreement promulgated by the managers of the Wayne iron works. Andrew Carnegie's name was vigorously hissed when it was mentioned in the course of a speech.

Special to Correspondents.

During the coming campaigns, both State and Municipal, the DAILY LEDGER feels compelled to make a charge for all political matter, whether in the reading or advertising columns. This applies to all communications, letters, challenges, replies, squibs, comments, etc. The terms will be reasonable to all parties and can be had upon application.

Readers should keep in mind that much of the political matter appearing in newspapers is paid matter, although unsigned and unmarked, or credited to other papers, and does not always represent the sentiment of the paper. Editorial matter appears in this column only.

At Unitarian Vestry.

A treat was enjoyed by the members of the Wollaston Unitarian society, and their friends, at the church vestry on Thursday evening. An original style of entertainment was given and it proved very taking, at least that was the verdict of the audience which crowded the vestry. The bright idea was tried of setting some of the clever sketches which appear in "Life," on the stage, and having the characters speak the joke which accompanies them.

The programme was opened by an instrumental duett by Mrs. Alma Faunce Smith and Mrs. Charles T. Baker. Then Miss Mollie Brown delivered the prologue to the entertainment which was as follows:

"Zoology Class,—Mason School," Miss Marion Taylor, teacher.

'Faith Cure,—Mr. Walter M. Hatch and Mr. E. Simmons.

"A Boston Dinner Table,"—Miss Howard, Miss Mollie Brown, and Mr. E. H. Sprague

"The Little Lovers,"—Miss Marion Sherman, Miss Helen Foster, Mr. Walter M. Hatch.

"Street Scene in Venice," — Mr. W. Everett Simmons, Mr. Robert E. Price, Mr. Lawrence Loring.

"Advertisement, Wollaston Land Co.,"—Mr. F. P. Waterhouse and Miss Fairbanks.

"Luncheon at Parker's,"—Miss Marion Sherman, Miss Fairbanks, Mr W. E Simmons and Mr. W. Everett Simmons.

Quincy Man Honored.

Governor Russell has appointed William B. Rice of this city as a member of the governor's council to fill the vacancy caused by the death of David H. Rice. Monday's LEDGER noted the fact that Mr. Rice would receive the appointment.

He will succeed his namesake, D. H. Rice, as councillor from the second district. He is fifty-three years of age, and a member of the firm of Rice & Hutchins, shoe manufacturers He is a director of the Continental National Bank of Boston, and has been largely interested in real estate transactions in Winthrop. He has been closely identified with religious and charitable work in this city. On reaching his fiftieth birthday in March, 1890, he presented to the city a hospital costing $15,000.

Registration.

At the time the registrars commenced their work, there were 3,185 names on the voting lists. Since then 240 names have been added, making the total number now 3,425, which is thirty less than the number of registered voters at the last State election.

Saturday night will be the last opportunity to get registered before the State election.

Street Railway Notes.

The Quincy & Boston street railway carried over a million passengers last year without an accident to any one.

The directors have voted to sell some of their stock to citizens of Quincy at par.

A committee from the directors will meet a like committee from the petitioners, for more cars on the West Quincy line, Saturday evening.

Gold for America.

Lazard Freres, the bankers of New York, engaged $500,000 gold in London on Thursday. The news was not known in Wall street until after the close of business. It could not be learned whether further engagements had been made.

Democratic Rally.

The Democrats of Ward Four held a rousing rally at St. Mary's hall on Thursday evening. Enthusiasm was not lacking and the remarks of the several speakers were interrupted by frequent applause.

Albert P. Worthen was the first gentleman introduced and after thanking the citizens for the support they had given him last year, said the republican party were telling us that democratic ascendancy was the cause of the present hard times, but this would not influence the intelligent people. The McKinley bill and Sherman law were the cause, and these were the result of republican rule. If Cleveland had been president, these two bills would not have become laws. He will restore confidence to the country.

Herbert M. Federhen, Jr., was the next speaker. In opening he compared himself with baby Ruth, saying that he was the baby Ruth of the democratic party. He did not believe the present election should be decided on national issues. He never knew a Democrat to refuse a challenge to debate before the people. The cause of the present hard times were due to the Sherman bill. The Democrats should be elected because they will vote on the side of the people. The laboring men have, made this city what it is. If elected he would raise his voice and vote in favor of measures to reduce the hours of labor. We do not have to go outside of this city to find that the sympathy of the Republican party is not with the working man.

Every inch of ground dug for the water works have been done by aliens. If there was a Democratic administration in this city such a state of affairs would not be as it is now.

Other remarks of a like nature were made by Col. William Moore, Democratic candidate for Councillor, Hon. John F. Fitzgerald and Hon. E. J. Slattery.

Death of Mrs Curtis.

Mrs. Mary E. Curtis, widow of Mr. William T. Curtis, died Thursday afternoon at her home on Union street after an illness of several weeks, aged 56 years.

Mrs. Curtis was the daughter of Mr. Timothy and Mrs. Mary E. Gay, of this city, and has always resided here. She was a most estimable lady and had a host of friends who mourn her loss. She leaves a daughter and son. Funeral services will be held from her late residence Saturday at 2 o'clock.

Not a Cent.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Oct. 26. The receiver of the order of the Iron Hall in Indianapolis makes a report which is far from being balm to the thousands of members who have been parted from their money and are trying to get some of it back again. He reports cash received, $762,168; disbursements $47,003, leaving cash assets of $715,165. There are other assets amounting to $1,360,160, but he is unable to collect them as they are tied up and held by receivers in other States.

As receiver he has taken $10,000 on account, paid for clerk hire about $2500 and for attorney's fees about $36,000. The present membership has paid in as assessments $7,394,399 and drawn out $1,614,260, leaving a balance due them of $5,680,260. To meet this he has net at present $715,165, against which are claims of $354,075 for matured claims, sick benefits, etc. If these are not allowed the present members will get 12 per cent., if they are allowed 6 per cent.

The attorneys charge that a conspiracy existed to keep the receiver in and that he has placed all the money in a bank of which he is part owner. A hearing is set for Nov. 6, when a lively time is expected It looks now as if litigation will eat up most of the funds and what little may be left will not reach the members for years.

On Trial.

There is on trial before the Superior Court of Suffolk county, the case of the First Congregational church of Rockland against the Holyoke, Springfield, Quincy and other insurance companies, six in all, to recover damages by fire. The church was built of wood and was destroyed by fire July 16, 1890. Defence, that conditions of policies were violated by plaintiff suffering the use by house painters of a naphtha torch to remove the old paint from the exterior of the building, which was the cause of the fire. L. S. Dabney and W. A. Gaston for plaintiff; J. D. Long and A. Hemenway for defendants.

Powers vs. Street Railway Co.

Before the Superior Court at Dedham is being tried the case of Edward Powers, administrator, against the Quincy & Boston Street Railway Company. On May 17, 1892, Mr. Powers' three-year-old son was run over by a street car on Franklin street, near the residence of Charles H. Spear and killed, and Mr. Powers has sued the Railroad Company for $10,000. J. E. Cotter and John W. McAnarney for plaintiff and Solomon Lincoln and W. I. Badger for the railroad.

Time and Wages Reduced.

NEWTON, Oct. 26—The Pettee Machine Works company of Newton Upper Falls, the first in this country to compete with the cotton card manufacturers of England, has posted notices reducing the wages of their employes 10 per cent., commencing Nov. 1. About 150 men will be discharged Saturday, and the shops will be run 7 1-2 hours daily instead of 10 hours. The reduction results from lack of orders.

THE TARIFF BILL.

Rough Draft Shows a Great Enlargement of the Free List.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The first rough draft of the tariff bill has been completed and gone over once by the sub-committee. Some of the features of the bill are radical. The wool schedule is the Springer free wool bill which passed the house last congress incorporated into the bill practically without change

There will be a considerable enlargement of the free list by the addition of raw materials and a heavy cut in all duties which are not properly revenue duties. The idea of tariff for revenue only is adhered to quite closely, but this application may not be made to coal. Iron ore goes on the free list, and there is a very considerable shaving down of the entire iron and steel schedule. The tax on whisky will be increased not above 20 cents, but the exact amount of the increase is not decided on.

The sub-committee have not quite made up their own minds on the sugar question, but they are practically determined not to try to get any revenue out of sugar. The purpose is to classify refined and unrefined sugar closer together, but this is more apt to be done by reducing the duty on refined sugar than by putting any other duty on the unrefined. The bounty will go. Either an income tax or an inheritance tax will be provided for to increase the revenues. A heavy reduction is made in the glass schedule.

A DASTARDLY ASSAULT.

Police Are Now Looking For James Dinan to Answer For It.

DARIEN, Conn., Oct. 27.—Miss Fannie Milliken, the 18-year-old daughter of Mrs. John Stevens, who lives on the road between here and Rowayken, met James Dinan. He invited her to ride home, saying that the hour was too late for her to walk. When they reached a lonely place in the woods he caught her by the throat and attempted to assault her. In her desperate struggle to resist the ruffian her clothes were torn from her back, and her face, arms and neck were badly scratched and bruised.

Just as she became too weak to continue the struggle longer, a wagon was heard approaching, and Dinan put the lash to his team and drove off, while Miss Milliken fell in a faint by the roadside. It was nearly daylight when she dragged herself to her mother, and told her story of her terrible experience. A warrant was issued for Dinan's arrest, and the citizens have joined in the hunt for him. Miss Milliken is now confined to her bed as a result of the rough treatment she underwent.

Relic of Lost Naronic.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Captain Anderson of the Norwegian ship Emblem at Buenos Ayres writes under date of Sept. 20 that he found on July 21 one of the boats of the steamer Naronic, which was lost many months ago. The boat was bottom upward, and was thickly covered with barnacles. There was a large hole in the bottom. The lashings of the boat appeared to have been cut in a great hurry and with much force.

AN INDIAN AMBUSH.

FRIGHTENED WILD ANIMALS PREVENT A HORRIBLE MASSACRE.

A Campaigner Relates a Thrilling Episode of the Struggles With Indians In the Northwest—The Shrewd Discernment of a Half Breed Guide Saved 200 Lives.

We were going down the peninsula formed by the junction of the Yellowstone and Little Missouri rivers, hoping to intercept the Indians and turn them back. It had been a hard, swift march—a ride of over 400 miles—with no halt above four hours, and at 10 o'clock in the forenoon half the troops were sleeping in their saddles as their lean and lame horses picked their way over the rough ground.

We had planned to reach the spot where the fleeing Indians would cross the Little Missouri a day or two ahead of them. We believed we had accomplished it. At 10 o'clock we were within two miles of the spot. Then the head of the column halted for the men to close up. Our line had strung out for a mile or more. Between us and the crossing, as the halt was made, nature had made a highway. It was a grassy road about 20 feet wide, twisting and turning like a creek. Either side was lined with dense thickets. Half a mile down the highway it was crossed by a creek with steep banks. Half a mile farther on was a second creek. It was hardly more than a rivulet at this season, but the width from bank to bank was 40 feet, and the banks were 10 feet high. Our guide had never passed over the route.

No man in the column of 200 men knew what lay beyond the first turn. The halt to close up was a precautionary measure, but no one dreamed of danger. If the hostile Indians had not turned back or changed their route, they should be 40 or 50 miles to the south. The stragglers had come up, the sleepy troopers had braced up under the eyes of their officers, and the bugler was about to sound the forward when the half breed guide and scout held up his hand in warning. A deer came running up the grassy lane at full speed and was within two feet of the colonel's horse when it wheeled to the right and vanished into the thicket. Next came a fox, who ran under the feet of a dozen horses before he found shelter. Then a second deer, then three or four rabbits.

"What is it?" asks the colonel of the guide.

"Ambush!" was the reply.

"Where?"

The guide waved his hand to signify that it was down the lane somewhere.

"How do you know?"

"See that?"

A big gray wolf rounded the turn 100 feet away, coming at full speed. The hair on his back stood up, his tail almost dragged, and it was easy to see that he had been disturbed and was put out about it.

"Injuns down there!" said the guide. "We are too late! They have got here first, and we are in ambush!"

"But what makes you think so?" persisted the colonel, who was impatient to go ahead and yet too prudent to needlessly expose his command.

"Deer—fox—rabbit—wolf!" replied the guide. "All were frightened. All running away from something. Injuns down there waiting for us. We go some other way."

We turned to the left and flanked the position. We had made a distance of seven miles when Indians were seen, and skirmishing began, but they soon retreated southward, and as we followed them up they crossed the Little Missouri. It was the band we had hoped to intercept, but why did they turn back without a fight? Everybody was asking the question when a few of us rode off to inspect the ambush. The deathtrap had been set for us between the creeks. The lower end of the avenue had been blocked with felled trees and bushes, and trees partly cut down would have blockaded the upper end as soon as the last horseman had passed. The road here narrowed to 15 feet. Wherever there was an opening in the bushes which lined the sides it had been closed with thorns.

From sunrise that morning the Indians had been waiting for us. Almost 200 warriors were in hiding behind the bushes, ready to thrust out their rifles and fire at the signal. Perched in the trees along the way were half a hundred boys armed with bows and arrows. Hidden away under the banks of the creeks were 100 or more squaws armed with hatchets, knives or clubs. It was not to be a battle, but a massacre. No mercy was to be shown—not a prisoner taken. Scouts had observed our approach and reported. When the head of our column had fairly entered the lane, the eager squaws and impulsive boys could hardly be controlled.

In their moving about they frightened the wild animals out of their retreats and sent us the warning. They did not know why we halted, hesitated and then took another way. For half an hour they waited, with the scowl of hate on their bronzed faces, with the savageness of devils in their hearts, with eyes which glared and glinted as they roamed about in search of the expected prey. Then they whispered to each other:

"They have taken another way! The Great Spirit sent them a warning to turn aside! We cannot fight these men! Let us recross the river and return to the agency!"—Wheeling Register.

MILTON.

Prof. Cummings of Harvard lectured on "The evolution of labor" from the year 1000 up to date, at the Congregational church last Friday evening.

Rev. Nathan Hunt, Miss Edith Geddes and David J. Brown were delegates to the Baptist convention at Cambridge on Wednesday, where it was voted to expend $12,000 in the conversion of French Canadians in large cities

It is said that Walter Baker & Co. lost the gold medal at the World's Fair and that it was awarded to Van Houghton's.

Wallace Carter has started a large double house on Sheldon street.

The new Baptist church has been boarded in and work is progressing rapidly.

The need of the new church was felt last Sunday when many who would liked to have attended the services were obliged to stay away on account of lack of room.

The reason given why the work on the store recently occupied by Kemp & Tisdale, and partly destroyed by fire, has not commenced is that the building would be on Granite avenue, if the lines of that street were carried out, and that the Babcock heirs are waiting the action of the County Commissioners.

Mrs. John Graham has gone to the World's Fair.

Dr. Eastman has moved into the Dustin homestead.

Mrs. Annie Wood has accepted a position as bookkeeper at Carroll & Cain's grocery store at Dorchester.

A. A. Brackett has sold his house on Brackett street to Boston parties and has commenced work on the foundation for another new house.

The instruments for the new Brass Band in Milton have been purchased of Haynes & Co., of Boston. The members wish to thank the contributors of Milton and neighborhood for their past favors. If anyone has not contributed and desires to, it will be thankfully received as the band's treasury is low. Send to O. A. Andrews, treasurer.

The officers and musicians are selected as follows:

Treasurer, O. A. Andrews; Business Manager, Samuel Wood; Musical Instructor, Henry Sprague; Band Director, Samuel Wood, Jr.

Cornets, James Daley, E. Higgins, J. Craig.

Altos, W. Lawton, F. Gallagher, M. Beaton.

Trombones, J. Haley, Charles Gallagher.

Baritone, Charles Wood.

B-flat Bass, William Tracey, E-flat Bass, J. Leary.

Snare Drum, A. Powell.

More About the Braintree Doctor.

The last seen of the doctor was when he was walking in the direction of Braintree, and later he was seen in the Old Colony depot. It is said he took an early morning train for New York. He did not take any of his personal effects.

Dr. Ames was educated in a Philadelphia college and practiced from a homœopathic standpoint. He has a mother visiting in Brockton, and also a sister, who is married to a prominent dentist there. His mother gave him, so Miss Ellis says, $50, with which to buy a wedding present. The mother and sister refused to be present at the wedding.

Saved Miss Ellis' Sister's Life.

The principal reason why the doctor made such an impression on the Ellis family was the fact of saving the life of Miss Jennie Ellis. She had a severe stomach trouble, and all efforts to cure her were unavailing, it being necessary to feed her with a tube. She is now all well, and to the doctor she owes her existence. Dr. Ames has a career in Stoughton which is interesting. He went there about four years ago, and was for two years assistant with Dr. Faxon, having an office in Monks block and boarding at the Parker House.

At the time of his leaving town he was reputed to be in financial difficulties, and is known to have owed quite a bill at the hotel for board, for which the proprietor sued him and attached his office furniture, finally recovering about 30 cents on a dollar, although the attachment did not hold, as the furniture was never paid for.

Friends of the doctor, and he seems to have many left in Stoughton, claim that the death of his wife, who was Lydia Leonard of Canton, and whose long sickness with consumption had sadly depleted his funds, may have been the first cause of his financial difficulties.

The doctor was also a blacking manufacturer, and Mrs. Ellis was ready to advance $300 to start him in the business.

Sociable.

The Epworth League on Wednesday evening held a sociable at the parsonage which was largely attended and very enjoyable. A feature of the evening was a peanut quest. The prize for the greatest find went to Mr. Clarence Byard, and the booby prize for the least find went to Miss Maud Geer. It is contemplated holding such evenings monthly during the winter. The next parsonage sociable will be a reception to the members and friends other than the young people.

A MENAGERIE BREAKS LOOSE.

Wild Beasts Terrorize the Community Until Captured by the Circus Men.

A most exciting episode occurred near Dunlap, Mo., the other day and promised for a time to upset the country for miles around. The woods were full of lions, tigers, panthers and other wild beasts.

Sells Bros.' circus showed at Milan, Mo., Wednesday last and was on its way to Trenton. About 2 o'clock Thursday morning one section of the circus train turned a curve near Dunlap, a few miles the other side of Milan, and three cages on the flat car broke the blocks which held them and toppled off the car. The fall burst the cages, and the animals in them bounded off to the woods. In one cage were two lions, in another three tigers and in the other two leopards.

As these animals bounded into the woods they uttered the most terrible screams and roars, which alarmed the entire countryside. Terror struck the people when day broke, when it was learned that the woods were filled with wild beasts. Women and children remained indoors, while the men went round carrying loaded guns. All through that day and the following night the howls and screams of the wild animals could be heard, and a cow was killed by them, torn to pieces and partially devoured.

While the population hereabouts were keeping pretty well indoors, the circus men were endeavoring to capture their valuable property. Although the animals were wild, yet they acted very much frightened at their unexpected freedom. Some of the beasts had never known freedom, while others had been in captivity so long that they forgot how to act in the woods except to howl more in fright than anything else. The circus boys corralled the brutes, however, in a commonplace way by taking the empty cages into the woods and baiting them with huge chunks of juicy meat. They would locate an animal, set a cage near him and then "shoo" him into it as an old lady would drive chickens. In this manner all the beasts were finally captured, and peace once more reigned in the country.—Cor. St. Louis Republic.

BOTH WANTED THE SCHOOL.

The Woman Took Things as They Came, the Position Included.

Rather an amusing race for a school occurred the other day when the passenger train was wrecked about a mile west of here. Only one school in the county remained not contracted for.

Two teachers living in San Diego wanted the school. Both obtained their certificates Monday. The trustees lived at Pena and Realitos, in the west end of the county. The teachers must see the trustees at once. One was a strong man; the other a young lady. Both learned that the other was an applicant for the school. Both boarded the train Tuesday to see the trustees. Both were on the wrecked train when out a few miles from town. Both were in a predicament.

The man said to himself: "I am a man. I can walk," and he started out afoot to see the trustees.

The lady, being a woman, sat quietly and waited developments until the train would go.

The strong man walked to Benavides, 16 miles. On his way he obtained a mule and took the road 35 miles farther for the home of the trustees, certain he was the lucky one, as he was a man. And he thought of his opponent sitting back at San Diego in the wrecked train.

But the walk of 16 miles and mule ride of 35 miles took time. In the meantime the wrecking train at San Diego had done its work, and to make a long story short as the solitary mule rider loped up to the home of the trustees whom did he see but the young lady, with the trustees before her, who had just signed the contract? She had secured the school, having bided her time, and reached the place on the wrecked train, feeling happy that in this progressive age woman is obtaining her rights.

The mule rider came back to San Diego and takes it in good part.—Dallas News.

Tramps May Ride Free.

Vice President Crocker of the Southern Pacific has announced that his company does not propose to make any fight against the hordes of tramps who are beating their way westward on freight trains. He has arrived at the conclusion that it is useless to unload these ticketless tourists, because they get aboard again in sufficient numbers to overpower the trainmen. Therefore Mr. Crocker believes that time can be saved and bloodshed averted by allowing the tramps to ride so long as they are peaceable. No proclamation to that effect has been issued from the company headquarters, but it is to be mutually understood that the trainmen are not to molest the "hobos" except in self defense.

It is likely that the other lines extending from the Rockies to the Pacific will follow the Southern's example in this respect, if they have not already done so in a quiet way.—Portland Oregonian.

The Koch Tablet Torn Down.

Professor Koch, the Berlin bacteriologist, who recently secured a divorce from his wife and married an actress, has told his friends that if they want his society in future they must receive also his wife. Berlin has made no outspoken objection, but in the little Harz mountain village of Clausthal, where Professor Koch was born, the women have torn down the tablet which had for years marked his birthplace.—Berlin Correspondent.

A New Postage Stamp.

Postage stamp collectors are hereby notified to look out for a possible rarity. The French government is about to establish a postal service by camels in the French territory of Obock and the Somali coast. In the center of a triangular stamp will be a mehari, or racing camel, and in the background a desert. As the route is only for experiment the stamps issued may be very few.—New York Sun.

POVERTY IN VARIOUS COUNTRIES.

Observations of Samuel A. Barnett In India, England and Japan.

Samuel A. Barnett, writing in The Fortnightly Review, compares with much discrimination the manners and methods and moods of the poor of various countries. In comparing the poor of India and England he says: "The Hindoo having, as he generally has, sufficient for the day is happy, content to sleep and is hardly to be urged to greater work by the offering of greater earnings. 'I have enough, why should I work for more?' is a not unusual answer, and the offer of a higher place is often refused lest it should involve more effort.

"The English poor suffer tortures by their apprehension and by their degradation. They fear lest illness or bad trade should break up the home so hardly got together; they are conscious that neither their bodies nor their minds have their rights. The sight of the London poor rouses every visitor to sympathy and active beneficence. The sight of the Hindoo poor is apt to send the visitor away, saying, 'They are content, let them alone.'"

In Japan Mr. Barnett found the poor more patient, refined, cleanly and happy than at any other spot he visited among his wide travels. The tiny, immaculate interiors, the exquisite economy, the bunch of blossoms, the perfect orderliness of the alleys, showed a cultivation absolutely unknown among our poor And among the Japanese, however stricken with poverty, he noticed also a peculiar contentment.

He says: "Why has Japan no poverty problem? One reason is probably the land system, which has given to every worker a holding and encouraged him to supply his wants by his own labor. Effort has been developed, and wants are limited. Another reason lies in the native taste for country beauty. A country life has its own interest, and men do not crowd together in the cities for the sake of excitement. There is, too, in Japan a curious absence of ostentatious luxury. The habits of living are in all classes much the same, and the rich do not outshine the poor by carriages, palaces and jewelry."

Profit Sharing and Co-operation.

Mr. N. O. Nelson, president of a St. Louis manufacturing company which has been working upon the profit sharing principle with its employees for several years, read a paper at the social and economic conference in Chicago, entitled "From Profit Sharing to Co-operation."

As a manufacturer and organizer of a profit sharing company in St. Louis, Mr. Nelson said he was fitted to relate the actual workings of the profit sharing scheme. He told of a co-operative store of which he is a member and which was started by eight workmen and himself. Explaining the methods of the various concerns in the country that had adopted the profit sharing scheme, Mr. Nelson told of the great improvement in the workingman's condition that the plan had developed.

"While France and this country," said Mr. Nelson, "are doing something toward the amelioration of the iron law of wages through the profit sharing system, we cannot place great reliance in a system whose growth depends upon the initiative of the proprietors, whose whole business education has been in the school of personal profit making. We cannot count on any large number volunteering to divide profits with a force of men which seems to them fully settled with when the contract price is paid. The movement in this country is ripe for organization, and when once effected the spread will be rapid. Co-operative economy and energy will supplant wasteful and demoralizing competition just as large and well organized corporations have taken the place of small shops."

Falling Off In Immigration.

What congress has failed to do by legislation the "hard times" are apparently doing for us by diminishing the surplus of alien labor in the American market. There are no exact data at hand relative to this matter, but the statements of Commissioner Senner of New York and of the steamship agents of that city agree that during the past six weeks the emigration from the port of New York has considerably exceeded the immigration. Our vigorous quarantine regulations have had some effect, no doubt, in deterring the usual influx of immigrants from the cholera infected districts of Europe, but the falling off in all sections is notable and can only be due to the general monetary stringency and the knowledge that there is no demand here for imported labor.

To the same cause is undoubtedly due the large exodus of emigrants, embracing all nationalities excepting English, Irish, Scotch and Welsh, and very largely composed of Italians. How long they will remain abroad is uncertain, but for the time being this movement will afford relief to the extent that it reduces the army of the unemployed.—Washington Post.

A Forthcoming Labor Report.

A Washington special says that an interesting report will be transmitted to congress by Labor Commissioner Wright before the end of the year. It will contain the results of the investigation into the manner of living among the slums of the great cities.

The investigation of the slums has been directed more especially to the conditions of health and the state of the homes than to the element of the cost of living. One of the classes of facts brought out by the report will be the employment of people in home industries under the so called "sweating system" of making ready made clothing and other small articles. An effort will be made also to show that in many cases healthy conditions prevail in the industrial establishments where the people of the slums are employed outside their homes, and results of chemical analyses will be presented of the air taken from crowded, dirty and unhealthy tenements in the five or six leading cities which the investigation has covered.

WEYMOUTH.

Hen thieves are about and B. F. Penington mourns the loss of 11 fowls.

The Commonwealth club entertained their friends with a concert and supper Thursday evening.

Hotel Destroyed.

The Highland house, the largest hotel in Cottage City, was totally destroyed by fire at midnight Thursday. The hotel was owned by Fall River and Cottage City parties, and was worth about $20,000, with $6000 insurance. It had been unoccupied since the close of last season, so there is no doubt that the fire was of incendiary origin.

TODAY'S COURT.

The liquors seized from Catherine Vincient of Weymouth were forfeited.

Michael Lynch of Quincy, was sent to the House of Correction for 30 days for drunkenness.

Michael Cummings of Quincy, was fined $5 for drunkenness.

Don't Brag.

There is no more childish trick than the too common one of boasting. One encounters it everywhere, particularly where one's antecedents are not realized by the listeners. Older people indulge in it more than their children, who seem to have a keener sense—in this way—of the ridiculous, and women are far more prone to it than men. This is, however, because they care more for the pomps and vanities of this world than do men in general. If a man has a weakness for fine things, for swell society and acquaintances, he is pretty sure to allow his folly to creep out in the form of brag. Such folks should serve as object lessons for their fellows. In that sense they are of use in the world.—Philadelphia Press.

The Age of Maturity.

Statistics are said to show that young men do not on an average attain full physical maturity until they arrive at the age of 28 years. Professor Scheiller of Harvard asserts, as the result of his observations, that young men do not attain to the full measure of their mental faculties before 25 years of age. A shrewd observer has said that "most men are boys until they are 30 and little boys until they are 25," and this accords with the standard of manhood which was fixed at 30 among the ancient Hebrews and other races.—Jenness Miller Monthly.

Angelo.

Michael Angelo, while painting "The Last Judgment," fell from his scaffold and received a painful injury in the leg. He shut himself up and would not see any one. Bacio Rontini, a celebrated physician, came by accident to see him. He found all the doors closed. No one responding, he went into the cellar and came up stairs. He found Michael Angelo in his room, resolved to die. His friend the physician would not leave him. He brought him out of the peculiar frame of mind into which he had fallen.—New York Times.

Color Weddings.

The color weddings in which the bride sacrificed even the traditional bridal white of her own gown to the prevailing hue of the decorations have not become popular at all. They had some vogue last season in London, but were only read of, not copied, over here. There are some things whose changelessness is positively unassailable, and one of these is a white wedding gown.—Exchange.

Women Farmers.

The farmer of the future will be a woman, if Michigan affords a basis for prophecy. In Wayne county alone there are 220 women farmers, and in the whole state 8,707, with an ownership of 670,439 acres. The value of the land is estimated at $43,500,000, and the earnings of the women aggregate $4,354,500.

The Maharajah of Puttiala, who recently married an English wife, rules over the tenth largest of the native states of India under English protection, his dominions extending over 5,887 miles, with a population of 1,500,000 and a revenue of a little over £500,000. It is the most important of the Sikh states.

BURNING DRIFTWOOD.

Far more than all I dared to dream,
Unsought before my door I see
On wings of fire and steeds of steam
The world's great wonders come to me!

And all her signs, unmarked before,
Of love to seek and power to save—
The righting of the wronged and poor,
The man evolving from the slave.

And life, no longer chance or fate,
Safe in the gracious fatherhood,
I fold o'er wearied hands and wait,
In full assurance of the good.

And well the waiting time must be,
Though brief or long its granted days,
If Faith and Hope and Charity
Sit by my evening hearthfire's blaze.

And with them, friends from heaven have spared,
Whose love my heart has comforted,
And, sharing all my joys, has shared
My tender memories of the dead.

Dear souls, who left us lonely here,
Bound on their last long voyage, to whom
We day by day are drawing near,
Where every bark has sailing room.

I know the solemn monotone
Of waters calling unto me.
I know from whence the airs have blown
That whisper of the Eternal Sea.
—Whittier.

Different Methods of Travel.

Miss Pinkerly (at the World's fair)—Ah, Mr. Tutter, this is a delightful pleasure! How long do you expect to remain in Chicago?

Young Tutter—I am making preparations to leave tomorrow.

Miss Pinkerly—How unfortunate! I expect to be here three weeks before going back. I was in hopes that I might see something of you while here and possibly that we might go on to New York together.

Young Tutter (sadly)—From present indications, Miss Clara, we shall probably both arrive there about the same time.—Truth.

Feasted on a Horse.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—A big Nubian lion named Wallace got out of his cage in a stable in Eighteenth street, a few doors east of Irving place, and sprang upon and killed and ate a horse which was quartered in the same stable, and kept his guardians at bay and the public on the outside in a state of pleasurable excitement for the whole of a long afternoon and part of the evening, when he was brought under subjection by the use of irons warmed up to a white heat.

Railroaders Roasted Alive.

HAMBURG, Mich., Oct. 27.—A Toledo, Ann Arbor and North Michigan freight train, with an extra, ran into a sink hole near here. Two tank cars of oil and three cars of coal were wrecked and piled on the engine. The oil and coal caught fire. Engineer Beaulieu, Fireman Albers and Brakeman Mulligan were buried in the debris and their bodies were burned to a crisp.

LaBouchere's Sharp Words.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Mr. LaBouchere, in a long letter supporting The Chronicle's campaign against the British Chartered company, says that bona fide settlers in Mashonaland have been treated by the company as badly as the Jews have been treated in Russia.

Military Officer Commits Suicide.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Captain Frederick Charles, brother of the Earl of Howard and Effingham, committed suicide at Kensington. Captain Howard was found by a servant in an arm chair in the smoking room, dead.

Sudden Death of a Jockey.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—"Bud" Harrington, one of the best known drivers of trotting horses in America, died suddenly of apoplexy in one of the stables at the Brightwood race track.

Charges Unsustained.

BOSTON, Oct. 27.—The United States circuit court grand jury returned a finding of no bill against Mrs. Hattie Russell, who was charged with blackmail. At the time of the arrest the case attracted a great deal of attention in Brockton on account of the standing of Mrs. Russell and Levi Merrithew, who made the charges.

More Arrests to Follow.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Assistant District Attorney Davis, to whom has been assigned the cases of the nine Madison Square bank officers who have been arrested, had another interview with Lawyer Untermeyer, yesterday. It is said on good authority that other arrests will follow.

TWO ARRESTS MADE.

Bullet Wound In Warsofsky's Back Was the Cause of Death.

BOSTON, Oct. 27.—Further developments in the shooting affair at 21 Billerica street on Wednesday night resulted in the arrest yesterday afternoon of Simon Markelson and Isaac Glass, who will be held pending a closer investigation, and who may yet be charged with the murder of Warsofsky.

Medical Examiner Harris performed an autopsy on the body of Warsofsky yesterday and found that he had a bullet wound in his back, and as it was a physical impossibility for him to have shot himself in that place, it looks as if he had been shot by one of the other men; hence their arrest.

It has been learned that the revolver found in the room in which the shooting occurred was concealed under the carpet, and it is not thought to be likely that the dead man could have hidden it and had strength enough to have then thrown himself from the window to the sidewalk, where he was found by the police.

A rigid investigation of the case will be made and the house will be thoroughly searched for the second revolver supposed to have been used.

Isaac Glass, one of the principals of the shooting affair, is suffering with a bullet in the wrist and is reported as being very weak. The ball has not yet been found and Glass is suffering intensely. His case is considered a serious one and the result may be that another will be added to the fatal list at the hospital.

Martelson, the other wounded man, is nursing a stiff neck.

FLINT IS NON-COMMITTAL

But It Is Almost Certain That He Is Making a Big Deal.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—There is reason to believe that Charles R. Flint & Co. have not only bought $200,000 worth of arms and ammunition for shipment to Brazil, but that the rumor that his firm has negotiated for the liner El Cid, to be used as an armed cruiser by some of the South American powers, probably Brazil, has some foundation. The El Cid was sold while she was on the trip from New Orleans to this city. Mr. Flint would neither deny nor affirm that he was acting for either the Brazilian government or the insurgents under Admiral Mello.

To Turn Out Silver Dollars.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Officials of the treasury department have given directions to the mint officers at Philadelphia and San Francisco to be in readiness to start to work. The coinage of the silver dollars has been suspended since May. The treasury department has now on hand 137,500,000 ounces of silver bullion purchased under the Sherman act, which will coin about $180,000 in silver dollars, which would thus yield about $54,000,000 in seigniorage.

No Case.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 27.—In the police court yesterday Elias J. Sarkis was tried on a charge of libel brought by Ameen Batal. Sarkis is a Syrian student in Andover Theological seminary, and wrote to Rev. J. Foster Tucker of Chelmsford regarding Batal, who had been lecturing on Syria and offering for sale articles which he claimed to be of Syrian make. Sarkis characterized him as an impostor. The court discharged the defendant.

A Committee's Curious Finding.

WALTHAM, Mass., Oct. 27.—The executive committee of the Waltham board of health has made its report on the investigation of the charges against Inspector Edward N. Quinn, alleging that he intimidated certain persons applying for position under the civil service rules. The committee reports Quinn guilty, and states that if it has occasion to reprimand him again he will be discharged from his position.

A Peculiar Death.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 27.—Michael Sullivan, aged 35, suffering from delirium tremens, jumped through the sash of a window three stories from the ground. In falling he was caught by the throat in a pulley line 40 feet from the ground and dangled helplessly in the air until he choked to death.

Pleased the Committee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The cruiser Machias has finished her last trial trip before her final acceptance. The report of the committee who will decide whether or not she shall become a member of Uncle Sam's fleet will be sent to Washington at once. The committee are very much pleased with the ship.

Mangled by Machinery.

MALDEN, Mass., Oct. 27.—John Sego, aged 30, an employe at the sandpaper works of Wiggin & Stevens at Edgeworth, while attempting to change a belt, was drawn over the shafting and was instantly killed. His legs and arms were torn from his body and he was decapitated.

Willing to Fight at New Orleans.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Oct. 27.—Jim Corbett last night wired his acceptance to the Olympic club of New Orleans, which has offered $20,000 for the Mitchell-Corbett contest. Corbett accepted this offer on condition that the club put up $10,000 as a guarantee.

More Records Broken.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 27.—W. W. Windle lowered Johnson's one-third of a mile, flying start, bicycle record at Hampden park, making it in 37 seconds. He also lowered his own one-half mile record, flying start, from 56 3-5 to 55 4-5.

To Examine Dr. Herz.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—The government has decided to send two doctors to London in order to re-examine Dr. Herz, the Panama lobbyist, who has been sick in England ever since his departure at the time of the Panama canal exposures.

King's Daughters at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27.—Daughters of the King to the number of 180, representing a membership of 8000, are holding their first national convention here. Membership is confined to ladies of the Episcopal faith.

Chicago Arrives at Spain.

BARCELONA, Oct. 27.—The United States flagship Chicago has arrived here. There were the customary salutes and greetings between the authorities here and the American officers.

German Banking Firm Fails.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—The Frankfurter Zeitung announces the failure of the Bank of Pfeffer & Hartgeden of Cassel, with liabilities of 4,000,000 marks. Pieffer has absconded.

Powder Magazine Robbed.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—Eight kilogrammes of dynamite cartridges have been stolen from the powder magazine at Wildenfels, Saxony. There is no clue to the thief.

ACQUITTED AFTER 21 YEARS.

A Georgia Man Accused of a Murder Which Was Enveloped In Mystery.

A Cleveland (Ga.) correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat sends his paper the following story:

At midnight a verdict was rendered in the superior court which relieved Marcus Van Diver of a charge of murder which he has been battling for over 21 years.

In June of 1872 M. K. Palmer, who was at the time one of the most noted lawyers and politicians of the state, attended court here. He was engaged in the prosecution of cases against several prominent men charged with forging land titles. While riding to the home of a friend with whom he boarded he was shot to death. No trace of his murderer could be found. A few weeks later Marcus Van Diver, who was a poor cropper, suddenly bloomed out into a man of means. Where he got his money no one knew, and for want of a better explanation the people declared that the land title forgers had paid him to murder the man who was so much in their way. This theory led to an indictment for murder.

For some strange reason, while proclaiming his innocence, Van Diver always kept his case at the head of the docket, and for 21 years has averted trial. To secure these continuances required influences of the strongest kind, which he always commanded. The courthouse, with many records, has been burned since 1872, and many witnesses have died. Van Diver elected this last week that it was safe to allow his case to come to trial. Among the persons present in the courtroom was the posthumous daughter of the dead lawyer, who is now a beautiful young woman. The verdict of acquittal was unavoidable, because of the death and absence of witnesses. Van Diver is going to move to Texas next week.

TOMBS OF THE PTOLEMIES.

No Mistake About the Discovery of the Burial Place of Cleopatra.

"The tombs are intact, and no doubt as the excavations proceed the tombs of all the Ptolemies will be brought to light. There is no doubt about the matter, as the names of the occupants are over the doors. The doors are of bronze and covered with Greek inscriptions. Here and there the bronze has corroded, so that with the aid of a magnesium light they could see the marble sarcophagi and lots of other things in the rooms. Some of the vaults seem to be full of rolls and parchments, but this is mere guesswork on the part of the observers. All will be cleared up when the khedive returns from Constantinople, as he is to superintend the opening of Alexander's and Cleopatra's tombs."

Dr. Grant Bey, the writer of this letter, goes on to say: "Lots of beautiful vases and gold things have been found and a most beautifully executed stela, in whose tomb they found a crown of gold. My information is at first hand because I had a long conversation with the proprietor of the land and the manager of the digging this afternoon. In the course of digging the Greek gentleman came upon a pit that led down to a series of vaults 30 feet below the surface. These are the tombs of the Ptolemies, and the one exposed to view is that of Cleopatra. The others have still to be excavated, but they are there—only all the passages are filled with earth. Twenty feet deeper and only six feet above the sea level is Alexander's tomb, all by itself, only there are some chambers near it filled with rolls and parchment—in other words, a library of ancient books."—Boston Advertiser.

Preparing to Demolish the Fair.

Builders of the World's fair are now getting ready to tear the great exposition down. More than a year elapsed between the time congress voted to send the exposition to Chicago and the beginning of operations in Jackson park. One day after the final closing of the gates on Oct. 30 the work of destruction will begin. The organization is already perfected for the destruction. It only waits the word from Director General Davis. The word will be given on the morning of Oct. 31.

How fast the exposition will fall cannot of course be told now. Many elements of uncertainty enter into the question, not the least of which is the state of the weather during the closing days of October. If the winds that sweep down over Lake Michigan bring icicles and snow, little will be left at the end of a month but a remembrance of the gorgeous interiors. The buildings will stay—most of them for six months and some of them longer—but the exhibits will be boxed and crated and hauled away on freight cars.—Chicago Herald.

Curious Effects of a Slight Hurt.

Alfred Cook, who was hurt in the railway accident near Marshfield, is still in a precarious state. He is still delirious and also totally blind from the blow on his head, the only external mark of which is a bruise about as large as a quarter. He imagines that he is still under the car and continually pleads that his companion (who was but slightly hurt) be taken out quickly. "He is worse hurt than I am, and I can wait," is the constant cry which shows the nature of the man. He thinks they have been under the car three weeks and protests against the delay and darkness, which he attributes to bad management on the part of the railroad company. He does not realize that he is blind and frequently asks why lanterns are not procured. At times he imagines the car is settling down upon him and struggles to hold it up until he sinks back exhausted. At such times he has to be held in bed.—Milwaukee Journal.

Desertions From the Navy.

During the 12 months just ended there were 1,259 desertions from the navy, 939 men and 320 boys. Of this number 776 men and 303 boys deserted at home ports and 163 men and 17 boys at foreign ports. The number of enlistments was about 7,000 out of nearly twice that many applicants.

THE WOOING OF THE WIND.

Rose of dusk, didst ever
Regard the sea's refrain?
That is no love that never
Returns with time again.

Because I am the saddest
Of things beneath the sun,
Because thou art the gladdest
That ever he looked on—

Because no ways to wander
Allure me any more,
With white sea dreams to ponder
All day beside thy door—

Because there's not a rover
But wearies on a day,
And not a faithless lover
But sorrow doth repay—

I rove the world of shadows,
A wraith of the blue rain
And in the dawn's deep meadows
Return to thee again.
—Bliss Carman in Lippincott's.

THE STOWAWAYS.

"Suppose," suggested Tommy Hilton, bright and early one Saturday morning, "that we go down to the dock on the East river and see if we can't find some ship that will take us away to the other end of the world."

This proposition made a favorable impression on Charley Wines, who was also of an adventurous turn of mind, and so the two little boys decided to embark without delay, and to take no baggage but a dark lantern and a large package of sandwiches and cake, which they begged from the cook.

So early did they start that it was not much after 8 o'clock when they appeared on the dock and looked about them for a vessel suitable for the proposed trip.

"I wish," said Tommy, "that there was a good pirate ship in the harbor now—one of those long, low, rakish looking craft such as we read about in 'The Pirate's Bride' and which are always racing up and down along the coast of China on the lookout for rich merchantmen."

"I don't believe there's a pirate ship here," said Charley, "but there's a brigantine that sails for Cuba today for a cargo of oranges and bananas. If we were to ship aboard her, we'd get lots of good things to eat and have no end of fun."

"Of course we would," chimed in Tommy approvingly. "I am glad to see you coming round to my ideas. Why, Fatty, there's not only oranges and bananas and cocoanuts down there, but there's guava jelly and yams and sugar cane and pineapples and an elegant beach to go swimming on and monkeys and parrots in the trees and everything else till you can't rest. Now, I'll tell you what we'll do. If we like the looks of the captain and mate—particularly the mate—for he's the one, don't you know, who is always cruel to the sailor boys in the stories, and if we like the ship herself we'll just sail in her today. Maybe we could find a place in the cargo that we could fit up for ourselves, as that boy in the Mayne Reid story did, bring in food enough to last through the voyage and not show ourselves till we felt like it."

Fatty had always had a weakness for sweet things, and the prospect of going to a land productive of every known delicacy fired his imagination and drove out from his mind for the moment all thoughts of the brilliant career of adventure that he had often planned for himself as a scout and slayer of Indians. Aboard the brigantine, which was called the Mary Jane, they found themselves in the midst of the bustle and excitement incident to the lading of a large cargo. The sailors were hoisting a number of boxes from the dock and lowering them into the vessel's hold by means of an apparatus rigged to the mainmast, while the officers of the ship were so busy that they paid no attention to the two well dressed little boys who were roaming about the ship, now peeping into the cook's galley and now appearing in the forecastle, running about the deck and making themselves thoroughly at home after the fashion of young American boys generally.

It was not long before they contrived to slip away into the vessel's hold, where the sailors were stowing away the boxes and barrels as fast as they were lowered from the deck. They grouped around among the different casks and big cases until at once they came upon an open space between two enormous boxes, which was just big enough to accommodate them both and reminded them instantly of the place in which the stowaway in Mayne Reid's romance had made his famous voyage.

"Eureka!" cried Fatty, who knew the Greek alphabet and was proud of his classical attainments, "all we have to do now is to hide here until the ship is well out to sea and then show ourselves on deck."

And so it happened that when the lading of the cargo was finished two small boys with no other equipment but a dark lantern and a package of sandwiches were snugly stowed away in a little open space among the big cases and hogsheads.

It was not cold down in the ship's hold, and there was a smell of sugar, which was not at all disagreeable. They could hear the water dashing against the dock outside, and then something shut out the few rays of light that had penetrated their hiding place. The captain ordered the cover put over the hold and fastened down. Whether it would be reopened the next morning or whether they would be kept there until the ship reached Havana they did not know. An awful fear came over Fatty Wines, and he said in a voice that trembled in spite of himself:

"We're in for it now, Tommy, sure pop!"

"Well," said Tommy, "we might as well make the best of it here, and not let these rats frighten us to death. We'll have to keep a stiff upper lip now that we are out for a life of adventure."

They were "in for it" and no mistake, but they did not lose heart. For awhile they lay listening to the scampering of rats and the sound of waves dashing against the vessel's side. Before long their eyes began to droop, and they fell into a dead sleep, from which they were awakened by the jolting of the ship, which told them that they had started on their way. It was pitch dark when they awoke, and as neither boy had a watch they could not tell whether they had been asleep six hours or 24. But there was no mistake about the motion of the ship. She was fairly under way and very likely out of sight of land.

Tommy put a good face on the matter, but Fatty was very quiet. He was thinking of his home and wondering whether he would ever see his father and mother again. Just as he was on the point of turning upon his companion with a torrent of reproaches for having induced him to run away he heard a sudden noise, and a moment later the covering of the hatchway was removed, and the captain's voice was heard telling one of the sailors to go down in the hold and see if a certain box was there. It was pleasant to see the light of day once more and feel the rush of fresh air from above.

"We must be out of sight of land now," said Tommy, "so we might as well go and show ourselves on deck."

The boys accordingly left their place of concealment, clambered swiftly over the boxes and came upon the sailor with a suddenness that caused him to rush on deck screaming out that there were evil spirits chasing him about the ship. The boys followed him as fast as they could, and as they clambered out of the hold they found the captain, the mate and nearly all the crew gathered in amazement about the hatchway. Their clothes were torn and covered with dust, their faces were grimy, and their uncombed locks hung down over their eyes. It was several moments before it dawned on the mate that they were the same well dressed, polite little fellows whom he had seen playing about the ship a few hours before.

"Why, captain!" he exclaimed, "those are the same little chaps we saw here this morning. They must have got locked up in the cargo."

This was the moment that Tommy had been waiting for. Stepping forward, he said to the captain:

"If you please, sir, we are two stowaways, and we hid in the cargo because we wanted to go to sea like the boy in the 'Ocean Guerrillas; or, The Phantom Midshipman.' Are we anywhere near Havana yet?"

The captain and the mate looked at each other and then at the two boys and then burst into uproarious laughter.

"I'll show you how near we are to Havana," exclaimed the mate as he took Tommy in his arms and lifted him up so that he could see over the bulwarks. They were just passing through the Narrows, with Staten Island on one side and the romantic shores of Bath and Bensonhurst on the other. In the distance Tommy could see the form of the Coney Island elephant outlined against the sky. A tug had the brigantine in tow, and she was moving rapidly through the water. It was an awful come down to both the boys to learn that instead of being far out at sea with the whales spouting, the seagulls circling over their heads and the white crested waves dancing in the sunlight, and other delightful surroundings, as described in "The Pirate's Bride; or, the Avenging Demon of the Gulf," to find instead of all this that they were still in New York harbor and bearing down on Coney Island as fast as the tug could take them.

"Now, boys," said the captain, "I am just going to drop you ashore, and you take my advice and go home as fast as you can. It's mighty lucky you came out of your holes when you did, for those hatches might not be opened again before we made port, and by that time there'd be mighty little left of two lads of your size. Mr. Bramhall," he continued, turning to the mate, "we'd better have the boat manned and put them ashore at Coney Island. They can easily get back from there. I suppose you've got money enough for your fare, boys?"

"If you please, sir," said Tommy, "we don't want to go back. We want to go with you down to Cuba and get some oranges and bananas. That was what we shipped with you for."

"Cuba!" cried the captain. "We are not going to Cuba for fruit; we are going down to Rio Janeiro for a cargo of hides. You'd better buy your bananas on Third avenue."

"Then," said Fatty decisively, "that settles the business. We can't eat hides, and I'd rather go home than keep on any longer. Put us ashore, and we'll take the train home. We can find our way to the depot."

The captain was as good as his word, and the boys were landed on the desolate western shore of the island with strict injunctions to make the best of their way home.

Their spirits rose again as they trudged along the beach, enjoying the fresh open breeze and the bright sunshine. Charley was very much impressed with the picturesque sand hills and clumps of bushes which they passed and declared that the whole country did not offer a better place for camping out than Coney Island.

"Look here, Tom!" the boy cried suddenly as he grasped his companion by the arm, "if that doesn't look like the Prairie Queen I am very much mistaken."

And just then a young woman in a short, brown riding habit and with her hair flying from beneath a slouch felt hat swept by them at full gallop on a buckskin Indian pony, leaving the two boys gazing open mouthed after her.

"I tell you what we'll do," cried Charley excitedly. "We'll come down here next Saturday and camp out in among those sand hills."

And the prospect was so alluring that Tommy gave ready acquiescence.—James L. Ford in Philadelphia Press.

REPEAL DEBATE ALMOST CLOSED.

The Senate Votes on the Peffer Amendment.

IT RECEIVES A SETBACK.

Action at Once Taken Upon the Voorhees Bill.

It Is Adopted as an Original Measure and Subject to Further Amendment. Left Still Pending by a Vote of 57 to 9—Democracy Will Soon Proceed to Redeem Tariff Reform Pledges—Spirits, Malt Liquors, Sugar and Incomes to Furnish Future Revenues.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The senate resumed its session at 11 o'clock yesterday, and the vice president laid before the senate the unfinished business, the bill to repeal the purchase clause of the Sherman act.

The senate bill to aid the states of California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada, Colorado and South Dakota to support schools of mines, allowing to each state 25 per cent of the proceeds of the sale of mineral lands within the state, but not to exceed $13,000 a year. On motion of Mr. Washburn (Rep., Minn.) the state of Minnesota was included and the bill passed.

The consideration of the repeal bill was then resumed and Mr. Stewart (Rep., Nevada) took up the thread of his argument against the bill where he stopped Thursday evening. He soon got into a discussion with Mr. Carey (Rep., Wyo.), Mr. McPherson (Dem., N. J.) and Mr. Dolph (Rep., Ore.), and shortly afterward drifted into a denunciation of the "gold ring" and criticisms of the administration.

At 1:30 o'clock Mr. Stewart yielded to his colleague, Mr. Jones. At 3:40 Mr. Jones asked that he might conclude on Saturday. Mr. Voorhees then said that he did not wish to deny any one the right to speak, and hoped the gentleman from Nevada could conclude Saturday, but as no one was prepared to go on just at that time, he would ask for a vote on the pending amendments in order that some of these might be gotten out of the way in the meantime.

Mr. Peffer asked that he might occupy the floor a short time in explanation of his amendment and he was recognized. He spoke only for a moment and then voting began. The Peffer amendment to revive the act of 1837 was defeated by nays, 31; yeas, 23. After a rearrangement of pairs the vote as announced was: Yeas, 28; nays, 39.

The Test Vote.

The senate then proceeded to vote on the Voorhees amendment (the Voorhees bill) with the understanding that it should be regarded as an original measure and subject to further amendment. The bill was adopted as a substitute for the house bill, but was left still pending by a vote of 57 to 9. Those who voted against it were:

Allen (Pop., Neb.), Bate (Dem., N. J.), Call (Dem., Fla.), Coke (Dem., Tex.), Irby (Pop., S. C.), Kyle (Pop., S. D.), Peffer (Pop., Kan.), Roach (Dem., Neb.), Vance (Dem., N. C.).

Mr. Perkins (Cal.) offered an amendment which provides for the coinage of the American product, charging 20 per cent seigniorage, allowing no gold coins of less than $10 and no treasury certificates less than $5. He spoke about five minutes.

Mr. Stewart of Nevada then took the floor to explain why he had voted to substitute the Voorhees for the Wilson bill, which, among other things, he said, was to give the president another chance to promise. Mr. Stewart at 5 o'clock concluded and then Mr. Allen of Nebraska took the floor. At 5:40 the senate took a recess.

How They Voted.

The detailed vote upon the Peffer amendment was as follows:

Yeas—Allen, Bate, Berry, Blackburn, Butler, Call, Coke, Daniel, Dubois, George, Harris, Irby, Jones of Arkansas, Jones of Nevada, Kyle, Martin, Pasco, Peffer, Power, Pugh, Roach, Swope, Stewart, Teller, Vance, Vest, Walthall and Wolcott—28.

Nays—Aldrich, Cafferty Camden, Carey, Cullom, Davis, Dixon, Dolph, Faulkner, Frye, Gallinger, Gibson, Gorman, Gray, Hale, Higgins, Hill, Hoar, Lindsay, Lodge, McMillin, McPherson, Manderson, Mitchell of Wisconsin, Morrill, Murphy, Palmer, Perkins, Proctor, Quay, Ransom, Sherman, Smith, Stockbridge, Turpie, Vilas, Voorhees, Washburn and White of Louisiana—39.

Pairs—Pettigrew-Gordon, Squire-Mitchell, Brice-Cameron, Mills-Hansbrough, Chandler-White, Colquitt-Wilson, Cockrell-Allison, Hawley-Morgan, Hunton-Platt.

Another Wait.

The beginning of voting upon the amendments to the repeal bill does not necessarily bring the end any nearer, because the voting was begun upon an understanding that speechmaking should be allowed to continue within due limits.

No senator was prepared to take the floor when Mr. Jones expressed a desire to discontinue his speech until today, and Mr. Voorhees, by previous arrangement, moved to take up the pending amendments. Mr. Faulkner, the repeal whip, had previously seen the senators who had expressed a desire to speak and assured them that the order would shut them off. He thinks all future speeches, except Mr. Jones', will be brief, and is hopeful of reaching the final vote very soon. Mr. Jones will require about two hours in which to conclude.

Now For Tariff Reform.

The further details in the closing up of the silver controversy in the senate, so far as now indicated by the general tone of the conversations of the senators mostly to be feared for obstructive tactics, being simply a matter of parliamentary routine, the next question of importance to be tackled is the tariff. Since it has become apparent that there is every probability of the silver question soon being out of the way, the committee on ways and means has been of late hastening its labors.

The sub-committees on customs duties, internal revenue and customs administration have been holding daily sessions and are pushing these branches of the work as rapidly as possible. Chairman Wilson has been requested by his Democratic colleagues in the house to report the bill at the earliest practicable moment. The chairman says that he expects to be able to do so soon after the opening of the regular session, but he hardly will be able to do so before that time. He will not hold the bill a moment after it is ready for report.

The lines upon which the committee is now working as preliminary to the revision of the customs schedules are increase of tax on spirits to $1.25 instead of 90 cents a gallon, increase to $2 a barrel on malt liquors, reimposition of 1 cent a pound on sugar and re-enactment of an income tax. Each of these propositions encounter vigorous opposition from the different interests and sections of the country. The beer men and whisky men are protesting against the change. There is a more favorable feeling among the sugar men, particularly if the bounty is to be wiped out, which is practically certain if anything is done concurrently on tariff matters.

The entire southern Democratic strength is pressing the income tax. The northern Democrats are opposed to it. It is known by statistical inquiry that this tax will strike a very significant portion of the population in the south, while at the north it will realize a large revenue. Many doubts are expressed as to whether this tax would get through the senate if it should pass the house.

To Replenish Revenues.

It is expected that these four items will replenish the revenues sufficiently to offset the losses from an increased free list, with coal, iron ore and wool as the chief items. A horizontal reduction of about 25 per cent on retained duties is also expected to produce an increase of revenues through enlarged importations.

The project of tariff revision as being worked out on these lines, it is believed by Chairman Wilson, will bring the revenues up to the requirements of the government. He is also anxious to get the bill before the house as speedily as possible, as he thinks if it is pressed through the senate and carried into operation as soon as practicable it will greatly simplify the finances of the government as far as revenues and expenditures are concerned.

LOVE OR RELIGION?

Daughter of Ex-Attorney General Garland Takes Her Own Life.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Miss Daisy Garland, aged 24 years, daughter of ex-Attorney General Garland, committed suicide by shooting herself through the heart. There was nothing in the lady's actions yesterday morning to indicate any mental disturbance. She conversed pleasantly with the family in regard to a theater party which she was to give last night. Afterwards she went to her room, and at luncheon time her brother went to call her. The young lady was found lying on the floor dead. The body was still warm, indicating that the shot had been fired only a short time previously.

From the position in which Miss Garland's body was found it is evident that she had stood in front of a large mirror and taken deliberate aim at her heart. She had taken the precaution to turn on all the gas jets in the room, so that, in case the bullet failed in its deadly work, the gas would smother her into the sleep of death.

The ex-attorney general had left the house for his office, and it was an hour or more before his daughter's awful death was known to him. He was so completely overcome that he could scarcely stand. The rest of the family were almost prostrated by the shock.

The true cause of Miss Garland's self-inflicted death may never be known. She had a secret of some kind that preyed constantly upon her mind, but it is said none of her friends knew what it was, and it is probable the secret had died with her. It was thought, said an intimate friend, by some of her associates that she had had a love affair which had turned out badly. She had been crossed in love. If this were true, the family or her friends professed not to know who the man in the case is.

No one in the house heard the pistol shot, nor did any one hear her fall to the floor. Her family relations and surroundings were the most pleasant. She was a great favorite with her father, who supplied her with everything that comfort demanded and studied to make her happy.

Miss Garland recently joined the Catholic church, and has been greatly agitated over her new religion. She was a very popular girl. She did not figure prominently in society, as her taste did not run in that direction. She was not old enough to go into society until the latter part of the former Cleveland administration.

Tributes to Gounod.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The minister of education, in his oration at Gounod's funeral, said that Gounod was not only a great national artist, but a patriot. M. de Saint-Saens said that poetry would testify to the beneficial influence which Gounod had upon the French school, and to the great luster he conferred upon it. The name of Gounod would live forever.

Married Sixty-Four Years.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 28.—Rev. Edward Beecher, brother of the late Henry Ward Beecher, and his wife yesterday celebrated the 64th anniversary of their wedding, which occurred at Wiscasset, Me., in 1829. Mr. Beecher is now 90 and his wife 86 years of age.

City of New York May Be Saved.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—The steamer City of New York, which went ashore off Point Bonita, is now lying easily in smooth water and hope is entertained that she may be pulled off if the weather continues favorable.

Steamer and Consort Missing.

PORT HURON, Mich., Oct. 28.—The steamer City of Concord and her consort, the Dunford, are missing. They left here 27 days ago to load cedar in Georgian bay, and nothing has been heard of them since.

A PLUCKY OFFICER

Successfully Holds a Mob of Infuriated Italians at Bay.

HE IS ROUGHLY HANDLED.

Citizens Who Come to His Aid Are Badly Bruised.

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—There was quite a lively riot down in the Italian quarter in the North End yesterday afternoon. The affair happened at 3:45 o'clock, and lasted fully a half-hour, and as a result Patrolman Look of station 1 and ex-Officer Andrew S. Fairbain of the county jail over in Cambridge, with a half-dozen or more citizens, were subjected to some very severe treatment.

Frank Saggese, a big, burly Italian, who is well known to the police of the first precinct, got on a spree yesterday and attempted, so the police say, to kick up a disturbance at the corner of North and Richmond streets. Patrolman Look happened along and attempted to arrest him. He started in to give the officer battle, and Raphael Scarmella and Manuel Forciette rushed to the assistance of their countryman.

A hot fight ensued, but Patrolman Look clung to Saggese and called upon a passer-by for assistance. This passer-by proved to be an ex-officer of the Cambridge jail. He started in to help Patrolman Look, as did also James Wright, the proprietor of a furniture store near by, and then there was a lively time.

Mob Starts to Work.

A mob of over 500 persons soon gathered, and sticks, stones and bricks were hurled at Patrolman Look and his assistants by the infuriated Italians.

A citizen ran to station 1 and told Captain Cain of the trouble, and that officer dispatched Sergeant Rosetti and a half dozen of patrolmen to the scene. Drs. Elliott and Dunn were also summoned to the station house to dress the wounds of the injured.

When the patrol wagon reached the scene the infuriated Italians attempted to stop it, and the policemen were obliged to jump over the heads of the crowd to get to the assistance of Patrolman Look, who was being driven back by the mob, but who still refused to release his hold on Saggese.

There were more than a thousand present on the scene by this time, and the enraged Italians were calling upon each other to kill the policemen.

The latter used their clubs effectively, and, after ten minutes' hard fighting, subdued the mob sufficiently to be able to take Saggese, Scarmella, Forciette and Dominico Alfonzo into custody.

The Wounded.

The men were taken to the station house and two hours were occupied by Drs. Elliott and Dunn in dressing the wounds of the injured.

Ex-Officer Fairbain fared the worse, he getting a bad cut just below the right hip, which necessitated three or four stitches. The wound is alleged to have been inflicted by Alfonzo.

Dennis Sullivan and John Henry were also among those who rushed to the assistance of the officers, and they were badly beaten by the Italians, who drove them down North street at the points of their knives. Sullivan sustained a bad cut on his neck, as well as an injury to his leg.

James Wright also received a bad cut in the neck, and the four prisoners, all of whom had scalp wounds, resulting from their heads coming in contact with the policemen's clubs, had their wounds dressed.

Stood His Ground.

During the storm of missiles that were hurled at Patrolman Look, he never once released his hold on his prisoner, and he never once drew his revolver. An eye-witness of the affair said last night that he would have been justified if he had used that weapon.

Patrolman Look's uniform was badly torn during the riot, and he was also badly scratched and bruised, and it may be a few days before he will report for duty again.

Saggese is well known in the Italian quarters as a pretty tough customer, and the police state that this is not the first time he has given them trouble. He is 25 years old, and weighs nearly 200 pounds, and is a big, strong fellow. Saggese, so the police say, was the instigator and leader of the big riot by Italian laborers in Framingham several years ago.

Celebrated Will Case Decided.

HARTFORD, Oct. 28.—The supreme court of errors handed down a decision in the case of Barber's appeal from probate, a celebrated will case involving an estate of over $100,000. The case was recently argued on an appeal from the decision of the superior court for this county by which the will was broken in favor of James S. Barbour's children on the ground of the insanity of the testator. The supreme court finds errors in the admission and rejection of testimony and the charge of the judge, and orders a new trial.

Mrs. Springer Is President.

BUFFALO, Oct. 28.—At the international biennial conference of the Women's Christian association in this city the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Springer of St. Louis; vice president, Miss Stinson of New York; secretary, Mrs. Duncan of Louisville; assistant secretary, Miss N. E. True of Chicago; treasurer, Mrs. Schofield of Cleveland.

Assault With Attempt to Kill.

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—Simon Merkelson, charged with assault and battery with attempt to kill Louis Wahsafsky, was held in $1000 for examination on Nov. 3. Isaac Glass, charged with the same assault, is now at the city hospital, and as soon as he is able to be about he will be brought into court for examination.

Wedding Day Is Set.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Mayor Harrison announces that he will marry Miss Anna Howard of New Orleans on Nov. 7 at her residence. It is believed there will be no wedding.

OPENING EXERCISES

Of the Young People's Catholic Literary Society.

Seldom, if ever, has Doble's hall contained a larger gathering than on Thursday evening, the occasion being the opening exercises of the Young People's Catholic Literary Society.

The most prominent feature of the evening was the debate on the question, "Were the Crusades beneficial to Europe."

The debaters of the affirmative were Miss Ellen Griffin and Mr. Michael J. Carey, and those on the negative were Miss Helen Sweeney and Mr. William L. Sullivan.

The debate showed evidence of careful study and patient research on the part of the debaters, who acquitted themselves in a manner that reflected credit and honor, not only on themselves but on the society which they represented.

After the debate Miss Ellen Greaney delivered an address stating the aim and object of the society, after which a musical program was rendered.

Among the prominent citizens present were Rev. F. A. Frigulietti, Rev. J. P. Cuffe, Rev. F. A. Cunningham, City Solicitor McAnarney, City Physician Donovan, and President of the Board of Health Dinegan.

Opposition to Confirmation.

There is opposition to the confirmation of William B. Rice as a member of the executive council. How extensive the opposition is has not yet come to the knowledge of the public, but that some members of the council are opposed to confirmation can be stated on reliable authority.

The opposition is based on the ground that the district is Republican, and that under the circumstances the Governor ought to have appointed a Republican.—Boston Herald.

WEYMOUTH.

The Republicans of East Weymouth hold a grand rally at the Opera House tonight. Speeches will be delivered by Greenhalge, Brackett, Noyse and Marden. Col. B. S. Lovell will preside.

The total receipts at the Weymouth fair this year was $4825.69, expenditures $4101.63, leaving a balance of $724.06.

The monument erected to the memory of Alfred C. Munroe, late assistant adjutant-general, will be dedicated on Sunday at East Weymouth with the following exercises:

Music, Weymouth band; singing, selected choir; prayer, Rev. Alexander Blackburn, ex-chaplain Dept. of Mass.; remarks, J. M. Jenney, Commander Post 13; unveiling monument, Eli W. Hall, department commander; singing, choir; oration, Hon. Wm. M. Olin, secretary of state; poem, John E. Gilman, Past Commander Post 26; singing (all are requested to join) America.

Committee—B. S. Lovell, chairman; B. Read Wales, secretary-treasurer; J. G. B. Adams, William M. Olin, George S. Evans, Joseph W. Thayer, George H. Innis, Benjamin F. Cook, Arthur A. Smith, B. E. Savory, C. W. Hastings, Joseph Chipman, F. L. Trow.

If stormy the services will be held in Odd Fellows Opera House.

BRAINTREE.

Rev. William Hyde will preach at Mayflower Park chapel, Sunday P. M., at 3.30 o'clock.

The Bible school connected with the Baptist church will give a harvest concert on Sunday evening. An interesting one may be expected. All are welcome.

The Ladies' Social Circle in connection with the Braintree Baptist church will hold a sale and supper in the Town Hall, Wednesday afternoon and evening, Nov. 1st.

W. H. Eaton, D. D., of the Baptist Convention will be present at the afternoon service of the Baptist society tomorrow, to meet the committee in regard to the plans for the new church which they contemplate building in the near future.

A club room was opened on Prospect street, East Braintree, on Monday evening the 23d. Gustaves Pitts was chosen president and treasurer. They will hold monthly meetings on the first Monday of each month. It was called the Twilight club. The room has electric lights and all modern conveniences.

The Selectmen have notified the chairman of the building committee appointed in conection with the erection of the new schoolhouse in East Braintree, that the money necessary for the purpose can now be had. Now let us see something done, of a tangible nature, by the committee. Delays are dangerous.

Next Sunday evening the Baptist Sunday school will give a harvest concert in their hall, at 7 o'clock. The programme as arranged is an attractive one, and a good audience is assured; all are cordially invited. On Wednesday and Thursday evenings of next week, Nov. 1 and 2, the Baptist society proposes to hold its yearly sale. Supper on Wednesday evening, entertainment on Thursday evening.

We were shown the other day the bottom of an old band box, such as were used aforetime for the safe keeping of ladies' bonnets, belonging to Mrs. Asaph F. Arnold, on which was pasted part of a newspaper, dated Oct. 3, 1847, in a state of good preservation. What led to the saving of this part of the band box and the paper was a witty and somewhat caustic article, entitled "Woman as they were and now are." "In those days," the writer says "wives were profitable now they are pretty." All right!

That $1,500 Story.

SANDWICH, Mass., Oct. 25, 1893.

MR. HENRY H. FAXON,

Dear Sir:—As a Prohibitionist, I find that the "$1,500 Democratic money" story is still circulated, and some persist in believing that the Democrats and Prohibitionists are hand-in-glove, citing this fact as proof.

It is reported that the $1,500 was given by you, and if such is the case, will you be kind enough to say so on paper, that I may be able to nail that lie.

Yours very truly,

H. L. CHIPMAN.

QUINCY, Oct. 28, 1893.

MR. H. L. CHIPMAN,

Sandwich, Mass.

Dear Sir:—Your letter at hand relative to the much talked of $1,500. Let the enemies of prohibition clamor as much as they please, the more the better. For good reasons, I have emphatically declined to furnish any information relative to this matter. However, if I could find a Democrat that would give me a large or small sum to forward the cause of prohibition, political or otherwise, I should take it gladly and use it where it would do the most good in defeating both saloon Democrats and rum Republicans.

If the third party leaders are so sensitive that they cannot bear such criticism as you allude to, they are too self-righteous to ever become winners in political contests.

Yours truly,

HENRY H. FAXON.

CARRY TOO BIG LOADS.

Quincy Granite Carters Have Violated the Boston Ordinances.

Many of the owners and drivers of drays that carry granite from Quincy to Boston will be defendants in a case brought by orders of the superintendent of police against them for violation of the city ordinances.

The ordinance says that no team shall carry through the public streets a load, which can be divided, weighing more than three tons.

Nearly every granite carter violates this ordinance. There are some who always carry from six to seven tons in a load of blocks of a size that could easily be handled in two loads.

In case a single block weighs more than three tons there is no ordinance forbidding the carrying of it, except on certain streets and bridges.

It is understood that this action in regard to enforcing the ordinance was brought about by the complaints of Superintendent of Streets Carter, on account of the hard use Dorchester avenue, Adams street, Neponset avenue and other Dorchester streets were getting.—Boston Herald.

The Whole Nation Taxed.

The whole American people deserve a share of the honor of the World's fair, for all classes have been taxed to insure its success.

It is not true that those who have not visited the fair have contributed nothing to its support. In many cases those who have not been to Chicago have been taxed most heavily on account of the great show.

The business men of Newport alone figure that they are out $100,000 for the month of October on account of the fair. Many of the cottages have shortened their stay in order to go to Chicago. Others, who went away in the middle of the season, and who usually return later, did not do so this year. In short Newport claims that she has contributed a good round half a million to the fair.—Boston Globe.

Wounded, but got Away.

There is one burglar who knows that the Milton police are good shots, and he is the fellow who, on Wednesday night, broke into the houses of Mrs. J. W. Bradlee on Blue Hill avenue, and W. L. House. At the former place he got about $50 worth of solid antique silver, and was then frightened away by a burglar alarm. At the latter place he had secured some solid spoons when an officer, seeing a light in the house, went to investigate and met the burglar at the door.

The thief opened fire on the officer, but missed his aim. The officer was a better shot, and from the marks of blood left by the fellow as he fled, it is thought one bullet struck him in the hand. He jumped a fence and disappeared, carrying his booty with him.

The Challenge.

WOLLASTON, Oct. 26, 1893.

CHARLES R. SHERMAN,

My Dear Sir:—We have heard of certain criticisms on the part of some people as to the wording of our challenge to you for a joint debate, in that it was addressed to you personally instead of being addressed to the Republican committee of Ward Five.

While it is true that we did in the first place prefer to discuss the issues of the present campaign with you, we certainly intended nothing except what would be complimentary to yourself. But knowing that you were one of our busiest men, and that you might not have time to spare, we offered to give you the privilege of selecting any other Republican to take your side of the discussion.

If we had believed that anyone would misinterpret our meaning, or would think for a moment that we intended anything but the utmost fairness and courtesy to you, we would have addressed the communication to your committee instead of yourself. We, therefore, hereby withdraw our challenge of Oct. 18th, and in its place make the same challenge to you, as the chairman of the Republican committee of Ward Five, for a debate upon the political issues of the day between any Republican of Ward Five, whom you or your committee may select, and Mr. Orcutt, on the evening of Nov. 2, at eight o'clock, P. M., in Boynton & Russell's hall, or at any other time and in any other place which may be mutually agreed upon. Owing to the lack of a suitable place in Wollaston, we suggest, if it meet with the approbation of your committee, that a hall be procured in Quincy Centre in which to have the debate take place. Respectfully yours,

MARTIN F. BURNS,

Secretary Ward Democratic Committee.

FOOTBALLISTS MEET.

Collegians Make Radical Changes In the Playing Rules.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Windsor Hotel presented an unwonted animated appearance last night when the representatives of the college football teams arrived in the main corridor about 9 o'clock. The following amendments to playing rules No. 13 and article 10 of the constitution of the Intercollegiate Football association were passed:

First—No man shall be eligible for the team of any college in this association who is not pursuing a bona fide course requiring attendance on recitation or lectures of at least six hours a week. If a graduate, he shall be pursuing a course for a degree requiring at least one year's study. If an undergraduate and not pursuing a course for a degree, he should not be allowed to play during his first year in college.

Second—Any man who has attended lectures or recitations in any other college shall not be eligible for the team of any college in this association unless he be a regular member of the class or has spent one year of assiduous study in that college.

Third—No man shall play more than four years on any team in this association.

Fourth—Two weeks before each game of this association the two captains shall submit to each other a list of 30 players, from which his team shall be chosen. If any captain has any objection to make to any man he shall submit the protest within four days to the advisory committee and the other captain. The advisory committee shall have power to decide on the eligibility of players, and shall consider all names submitted to them within 48 hours of their receipt. Either captain may submit a further list of four players, not later than five days before the game. The referee of any game in this association, at the request of either captain, shall debar from the game any man not included in the list submitted or who has been declared ineligible by the advisory committee.

The representative of Yale-Princeton and Wesleyan voted in favor of these resolutions against the "nay" of Pennsylvania.

STOCKS ARE UP

And There Is a Continued Increase In the Distribution of Products.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Port is in sight after a long and stormy voyage and the prospect of a speedy end of the struggle over repeal has brought bright hopes to business. Stocks climbed rapidly for three days, banks relaxed restraints, commercial loans are more freely sought and good reports from all quarters show the prevalence of more hopeful feeling.

The anticipation of repeal, and the happy union of Vanderbilt, Jersey Central and Lackawanna in this gave the stock market three happy days, in which stocks rose an average of $2.50 per share, and trust stocks $3.50 per share, and the sales for the week have been 2 250,000 shares. Notwithstanding the large sales the market continued unusually strong. In other speculative markets, in spite of monetary comfort and bright prospects, gains realized were small.

As yet there is seen only a continuance of the faint and slow increase in distribution of products which has been noticed for some weeks. Nor does even this gradual revival in demand extend to all branches. Most of the increase yet seen in cotton and shoe manufactures may be explained by mere exhaustion in stocks of dealers, as frequent requests for immediate delivery show, but there is also reported by dealers a somewhat better demand from consumers, and four more cotton mills have started, and seven increased force, against seven stopping or decreasing. A similar demand has increased by six the number of hosiery and silk goods works reported in operation.

Defense Takes a Turn.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 28.—The trial of Mrs. Florence Hawley for murder was continued, several new witnesses being introduced. Mary Ostrander, a sister of the murdered Mrs. Munson, testified to having heard Mrs. Hawley threaten Mrs. Munson's life. The state rested its case, and the defense was begun. Opinion seems to be that a strong case has not been made against Mrs. Hawley.

Jury Was Out All Night.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 28.—The jury in the case of Albert and James Jameson, charged with manslaughter in killing Augustus B. Farmer at Bow last July, remained in their room all night. Their verdict found James Jameson guilty of aggravated assault and Albert Jameson guilty of manslaughter in the first degree, as charged in the indictment.

End of Doc Taylor.

ROANOKE, Va., Oct 28.—"Doc" Taylor, the Swedenborgian murderer, was hanged at Wise Courthouse.

A City Hall Wedding.

The city clerk's office at City Hall was the scene this morning of a quiet and unostentatious wedding, when James Moore and Margaret Sexton were united "until death do them part."

The oak desk of City Clerk Spear was adorned with a boquet of fragrant flowers, borrowed for the occasion from the city treasurer. At the left the face of ex-Mayor Porter looked down in approval of the scene from its position on the wall, while on the right the grim safe where the city documents are kept looked silently on, and in the rear, forming a pretty background, were the lady clerks of the building.

The bride, a blushing maiden of twenty summers, entered, leaning on the strong right arm of Chief of Police Langley, who gave her away to John.

The entry of the bridal party was without music and soon they stood before the genial city clerk, who was to officiate as clergyman.

"John, take Mary's right hand; Mary, put your right hand in John's," said Mr. Spear.

"John, do you promise to take Mary as your lawful wedded wife?"

"I do," said John.

"Mary, do you promise to love and cherish John, do his cooking and washing, mend his socks, sew on buttons, etc., while he is enjoying himself on the street corners with the boys?"

"Yes, your honor."

"This being the case, and no dissenting voice being heard, I do by the power invested in me as justice of the peace pronounce you as man and wife, and those whom I have joined let no man put asunder. John, put your arm about Mary's slender waist, and impress a kiss upon her ruby lips. 'Tis well! Depart in peace."

The clerks resume their vocations, and the quiet, but impressive, ceremony has passed into history.

Braintree Street Railway.

During the present week the long expected rails for the electric road arrived, and operations in track laying between South Braintree and Holbrook commenced. The poles have all been set in position between the above points, and it is expected that this portion of the line will be completed by the 12th of November. Next week two new cars will arrive and soon afterwards three more. Operations toward Quincy will follow the completion of the line to Holbrook.

Coming to Quincy.

The American cup defender, Pilgrim, built by a Boston Syndicate to defend the cup in the international races has been purchased by Mr. John R. Graham of this city. She will be brought to Quincy Point and hauled up near the new power station of the Quincy & Boston street railway.

Plans have been made to alter her over into a passenger craft, and electricity or steam will be used as the motive power.

She will carry 350 people and will be a flyer.

It is believed that she will be put into commission by the syndicate who have been considering the feasibility of establishing a line of boats to run between Quincy Point, Houghs Neck, Hull and Boston.

The Pilgrim will arrive at Quincy Point in a few days.

Annual Dinner of A. A. A. A.

The Annual Dinner of the Adams Academy Alumni Association will be held at the Parker House, Boston, Mass., Monday evening October 30, 1893. All past members of the school are most cordially invited to attend, as the meeting will be of interest to all.

Mr. P. C. Thacher will preside. Congressman William Everett will be present, and Mr. W. R. Tyler together with many old graduates will attend.

Young Men's Christian Association.

Much interest is already being shown in the preparation for the evangelistic services during the week of prayer for young men, which commences Sunday November 12th. Evangelist John M. Dick, who has done very effective work both in the west and in New England has been engaged. There will be services every day except Friday. Several meetings will be held especially for boys. Special attention will be given to singing. The gymnasium classes will be omitted for the evenings that week, and everything will be concentrated on the religious work.

Two Clever by Half.

The work of a clever confidence man has just come to light in Lawrence. He secured blank checks from the different banks and two, aggregating $125, have already come to light.

THE COLORS OF THE EARTH.

How They Affect the Light That Our Planet Gives to the Moon.

The wonderful difference between the same landscape in winter and in summer is a phenomenon familiar to all dwellers in the temperate zones. The two great elements of change are the presence of snow in winter and of leaves and grass in summer. If we could look at our globe from the moon, the variation in its aspect due to seasonal changes would perhaps be even more striking than it appears to those upon its surface.

In fact, we sometimes lose sight of the very important part which vegetation plays in giving color to what might be called the countenance of the planet.

It is not the highest forms of plants that always produce the greatest effect in this way. Some of the most striking scenes upon the earth owe their characteristic features to mosses and lichens. The famous "crimson cliffs" of Greenland, which extend for miles northward from Cape York, derive their splendid color from the growth of red lichen which covers their faces.

The cliffs rise between 1,700 and 2,000 feet straight from the water's edge, and being composed of gray granite their aspect would be entirely different from what it is but for the presence of the lichen.

Coming to less magnificent, but not less beautiful scenes, the rocky pass called the Golden Gate in the Yellowstone National park owes its rich color and its name to the yellow lichen covering its lofty walls, and the indescribable hues of the great hot spring terraces arise mainly from the presence of minute plants flourishing in the water that overflows them.

Considered as a whole, the vegetation of a planet may give it a characteristic aspect as viewed from space. Many have thought that the red color of Mars may be due to the existence of red instead of green vegetation there.

That its broad expanses of forest and prairie land cause the earth to reflect a considerable quantity of green light to its neighbors is indicated by the fact that at the time of the new moon a greenish tint has been detected overspreading that part of the lunar surface which is then illuminated only by light from the earth.—Youth's Companion.

Basque Is a Lonely Tongue Still.

The question, Who are the Basques? that mysterious people who give their name to the bay of Biscay, is always cropping up, and Professor von der Gabelentz has recently endeavored to show that the Basque language belongs to the African Berber family of speech—for example, the Kabyle and Taureg. His evidence, however, only amounts to a few culture words being identical in the Basque and Berber languages and certain analogies in the laws of phonetic change. Moreover, he assumes that the Basques and Iberians were the same people.

But, as Canon Isaac Taylor points out, the Iberian tongue, according to our highest authorities, was different from the Basque, and the French Basques are a different race from the Spanish Basques, who are a feebler people of the Iberian type. If we assume that the Basques conquered the Iberians, we can account for the resemblances noticed by Professor von der Gabelentz, because the Iberians of Berber origin in acquiring the language of their conquerors would retain their own phonetic tendency and also some culture words in both languages. As Canon Taylor remarks, we may still believe that the Basque language is allied to the Ural-Altaic type.—London Globe.

The Danger of Matches.

We wonder how our ancestors managed to get along at all before the invention of matches; they are so indispensably handy that we keep them in every room in the house; the "men folks" carry them in their pockets, leave them hanging in their "other clothes" in a dozen closets in all portions of the house; we have a handful resting within reach while we sleep, they are dropped here and there as we attempt to handle them; if it is light and we readily see them, they are picked up, otherwise they are left till a more convenient season—which generally does not come, simply because they are forgotten, being "only a match"—we can get plenty more for a halfpenny, and time is too valuable to be wasted over so insignificant a trifle.

Yet this "insignificant trifle" possesses the latent power to destroy the finest mansion, and with it lives of sweetness and beauty which the word can poorly afford to spare. The cause of the conflagration may not always be revealed, for the fire demon frequently covers or destroys his tracks most effectually. But how often is it apparent that only a simple match—that insignificant trifle—could have wrought the ruin!—Family Doctor.

Found Her Daughter In Tights.

An indignant mother who saw her 16-year-old daughter clad in gorgeous tights practicing a somersault has notified the police of a peculiar state of things. She says not only her daughter but a number of other girls of that age have been engaged to form a theatrical combination. These damsels, it appears, meet for rehearsals in barns and are under the instruction of a couple of men. They intend to make a tour of the small towns of the state. All wear tights, it seems, and this one girl's mamma was shocked at her daughter's appearance. The police are looking for the men who are training the tender maidens to feel at home in the skirtless costume.—Reading (Pa.) Dispatch.

And Mephisto Smiled.

Some years ago, when Irving was playing "Faust" at the Lyceum, in the part of Mephistopheles, he descended through a trapdoor in a cloud of flame. While doing so the trap jammed for some reason, and a voice from the "gods" immediately called out: "Hurrah, boys! Hell's full! There's no room for us!" Mephisto was forced to smile. — San Francisco Argonaut.

Methodist Church, Atlantic.

Rev. H. D. Deetz will lecture Sunday evening on "The rich poor man."

Will some champion of the present administration inform us how President Cleveland can expect the country at large to trust the Democratic party, when he himself distrusts it. The necessity for action in regard to the silver question was well known to Mr. Cleveland when he took the oath of office last March. It was his plain duty to convene Congress in extra session early, but he failed to do it because he distrusted his own party. He was fully aware of the outrageous alliance in Kansas, he knew the misleading letters he had written to prominent silver men in the west, he knew the combination of the party too well to feel unbounded confidence in it, nor was he particular to handle the wild team until events compelled action. For this reason he allowed himself to drift from bad to worse until the clamor of business interests became so loud and long that he was forced to call an extra session.

The same business interests that demanded the immediate repeal of the silver purchase act will soon make him understand that the threatened tariff reform on the lines of the Watterson plank is really at the bottom of the present trouble. "Hands off the tariff," will be the cry that will come in no hesitating terms from the far Pacific. It will also be heard nearer home. He will do well to heed the warning signs of the times, but he won't, just the same. It is the duty of the Republican party to make a beginning right here in Massachusetts, and swing the old Bay State back into the Republican column, and, by so doing, demonstrate that the Cleveland idolators have lost their grip in this commonwealth.—South Framingham "Tribune."

Mean Thieves.

A case of the meanest kind of robbery is reported on South street. Some three weeks ago Mr. John Crowley died at the hospital, and his wife, who was demented, was taken to Taunton.

One night last week parties were seen to enter the house, and an investigation afterwards showed that they had carried off all of the best furniture. The party who took the furniture is known and the authorities have been notified, and unless the furniture taken is carried back arrests will follow.

☞ Furniture moved in a business like manner at a moderate cost.—Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

A Ladies' Eight on the Thames.

The appearance of a ladies' eight on the Thames in the Bookham district has attracted considerable attention. The craft in which the ladies row is a light one belonging to General Hammersley of Abney house, and the members of the crew are all neatly attired in white, with ties and hatbands of Leander cerise. The rowing is remarkably good, and it is easy to see that the instructions of a "coach" have been carefully attended to from the excellent "time" and "body swing." The following ladies form the crew: Miss Ellen Gold, bow; 2, Miss Rankin; 3, Miss Fitz Wygram; 4, Miss Dorothy Leith; 5, Miss Leith; 6, Miss Campbell; 6, Miss Gold; Miss Micklem, stroke. Mr. R. C. Lehmann has handled the rudder lines on more than one occasion, and General Hammersley has also been out as cockswain. The ladies think nothing of a spin of 13 miles.—London News.

Willing to Vote.

The Connecticut annual town elections have proved that women are willing to vote. In Hartford 900 women registered to vote for school visitors. In New Britain the woman's vote was large. In Rockville 350 women registered. The Boston Herald laments that "in many of the Connecticut cities and towns where the women voted for school committee this week for the first time there were Protestant tickets and Catholic tickets," and that "in some localities Protestant women and Catholic women vied with each other in getting registered." Well, why not? If the women have interests and convictions in that direction, it is proper and wholesome that they should express themselves. It is better that the gospel should be preached even by contention.—Boston Woman's Journal.

Woman Architects.

Of late the profession of the architect has been attracting the attention of a number of intelligent women, and their labors in this field have met with encouragement that some others are preparing to take up the same study. It is a wonder that this has not been thought of long ago, for really the woman who lives in and keeps the house in order ought to know its needs and conveniences much better than the man who, as a rule, only comes home o' nights. The necessity for cupboards, closets, pantries and storerooms and the adjacentness, so to speak, of the various auxiliaries to the culinary department are among the most important of points in the house construction, and of these the practical woman who keeps house should know all of the ins and outs.—New York Ledger.

Queen Louisa's Presents.

The queen of Denmark received a number of beautiful presents on the occasion of her birthday recently. The czar presented his mother-in-law with a magnificent bouquet tied with a silk ribbon, fastened by means of a diamond clasp, and a diamond brooch with a sapphire in the center. The czarowitz gave a handle for a stick or an umbrella of lapis lazuli, round which is twisted a gold snake. The Prince of Wales gave a gold heart set with precious stones, and the Princess of Wales a charming gold box set with a large emerald, besides a beautiful little dogcart, with black cob and harness. The king of Greece gave a jewel case.

Brave Women.

The girls employed in the Waltham watch factory, who were left unemployed when the factory shut down, are showing themselves true and brave American women. Instead of sitting down to bemoan their lot, they are accepting positions to take care of invalids, do housework or any honest work that they can do. Perhaps the great labor question would be more readily solved if all workers were willing, in cases of emergency, to do that which is needed instead of waiting to do that which they prefer.—Exchange.

Spain's Only Woman Lawyer.

Man. Y. Palido of Madrid is the only woman lawyer in Spain. Her portrait, which represents her as a remarkably handsome young woman, occupies a conspicuous place in the Spanish exhibit in the Woman's building at the World's fair. Near by is her special permit to practice in the Spanish courts. Not far away there is the printed score of an opera, accompanied by the photograph of the girl composer—Louisa Casagemas, 16 years old.

A Maxim For Bargain Hunters.

Women who go bargain hunting, expecting to get ever so many pretty things for little or nothing, should heed Emerson's maxim for enterprising tourists:

"He who would bring back the wealth of the Indies must take with him the wealth of the Indies. You cannot secure value without cost."

Postmistress Stone.

The oldest woman postmaster in the country is Miss Martha Stone of North Oxford, Mass. She received her commission nearly 40 years ago from Horatio King and has kept her position uninterruptedly ever since. The postoffice is located in Miss Stone's sitting room.

Mrs. Sarah B. Cooper, who organized the first kindergarten in San Francisco in 1880, has received more than $300,000 to enable her to carry on the work. There are now 65 kindergartens in the city, and more than 10,000 children have been trained in them.

There seems to be a reaction in favor of high cut dresses for dinner and evening wear. Some of the most exquisite importations of the year have been dressed with square necks or those slightly cut away in V shape.

A Sunset.

A single sunset hath more loveliness
Than all the boasted paintings kings possess.
Take the rare moment ere the large sun sinks
Behind far hills and their mysterious brinks,
Then Nature revels in most glorious mood
And shows her powers as if to shame our brood.
—Clarence A. Buskirk.

A Question of Time.

"John, what a lovely place! If we could only manage to raise the rent!"

Mr. Hunter Howes—Oh, I've no doubt the landlord would see to that in a couple of months.—Brooklyn Life.

Snake Charming.

A snake charmer can, by a simple motion of his hand, make a moving snake stop instantly. The reason is this:

The snake is a most timid animal. His eyes, while dull to color and form, are quick to motion, especially if it is rapid. If any large thing moves very quickly too near him, he gets frightened and scurrie off, while at certain distances the motion stops him if he be moving.

He stops from astonishment, fear or the wish to see what it is that moves. Hence he glides on unconscious of the charmer's presence near him so long as the latter remains quiet; the snake does not know him from a tree or a rock. But when he gives a sudden evidence of life the snake is astonished and immediately remains stock still.

In India and Africa the charmers pretend the snakes dance to the music, but they do not, for they never hear it. A snake has no external ears, and perhaps gives evidence of sound only through its skin, when sound causes bodies in contact with him to vibrate.

They hear also through the nerves of the tongue, but do not at all comprehend sound as we do. However, the snake's eyes are very much alive to the motions of the charmer, or to the moving drumsticks of his confederate, and being alarmed he attempts to strike.

A dancing cobra (and no other snakes dance) is simply a cobra alarmed and in a posture to attack. He is not dancing to the music, but is making ready to assail the charmer.—Harrison's Family Magazine.

Not Hard.

The conductor of a cable car approached a hard visaged woman and asked for her fare.

"Go on with you, now; I've paid you once," said the woman.

"No, you haven't."

"Yes, I have."

"Give me a nickel or I'll put you off."

"Do if you dare."

The conductor stopped the car and put her off.

"Rather a hard thing to do," said one of the passengers, "but it served her right, I suppose."

"Oh," the conductor smilingly answered, "it wasn't hard for me to do, but it isn't often I have a chance to get even with her. I am her husband."—Texas Siftings.

Artificial Honeycombs.

An interesting east side street vender of the German quarter is a stout, clean shaven, neatly dressed man who bears upon his head a shining tin pan filled with golden honeycomb. A spotless white head cushion receives the bottom of the pan, and a knife handle shows in air above the honeycomb. The latter, as well as its sweet contents, looks genuine, and doubtless east side Germans are tempted by the sight and are in comfortable ignorance of the fact that artificial honeycombs are nowadays filled with artificial honey, with the result of deceiving all save the bees.—New York Sun.

WHISKY EXPLODED.

It Results In a Fire and Loss of Over Half a Million Dollars.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 28.—The explosion of a barrel of whisky in the big warehouse of the Chautauqua Lake Ice company caused the destruction of over $500,000 worth of property and serious injury to eight persons. A score or more of others sustained slight cuts and bruises, or were trampled on by the mob surrounding the burning buildings.

It was 1:20 p. m. when a number of the employes on the third floor of the Chatauqua Lake Ice company's building was startled by a loud report, and almost in an instant the large room was ablaze. The men quickly gave the alarm and then started for the stairs, but the flames had already cut off their retreat, and the only means of exit left them were the windows, 80 feet from the ground.

By this time the heat was so intense that they were forced to creep out upon the window sills and hang by their hands until the fire department arrived. The flames burned their hands and faces, but they hung there until the firemen got ladders and brought them down.

At 2:30 the walls on the Mulberry alley side fell in with a crash and a few minutes later the eastern wall came down. The debris buried a long row of tenements in the alley and a three story brick dwelling on Thirteenth street. The tenements were occupied by 20 families, but fortunately they had been deserted some time before the walls fell in. The ruins took fire immediately and it was dark before the fire was completely under control and all danger over.

When the walls fell the great mob of people made a rush to get out of danger. Several tripped and fell and were trampled under foot. Many men received painful but not dangerous bruises. Sheets of iron were cast from the burning buildings by the fury of the flames and hurled into the crowds. Scores of people received slight injuries

On account of the varied interests and large number of people involved, a definite statement concerning the losses and insurance is impossible at this time. Reliable sources place the total loss at from $500,000 to $700,000 with an insurance of about $1,000,000.

TO BE A CRUISER.

Brazilian Government the Probable Purchaser of the El Cid.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The steamship El Cid was the scene of great activity yesterday. An extra large force of stevedores was busy unloading her cargo and clearing the ship ready for delivery to her new owners. It is supposed that the El Cid has been purchased by the Brazilian government. It was stated on good authority that Charles R. Flint & Co. were the agents in purchasing the steamship.

This statement, in connection with the rumored contract made by the same agents with the Hotchkiss Ordnance company of London for $200,000 worth of guns and ammunition and the mysterious visit of Admiral Maurity of the Brazilian navy, gave great probability to the supposition that the El Cid was purchased for the Brazilian government for use as a cruiser.

At the office of the Morgan line Mr. Hawlet said: "The negotiations were completed several days ago. The price paid was about $500,000, which is less than her original cost, which was $535,000. I do not know by whom she was bought or for what purpose. Business was slack and we could afford to sell the vessel at this time. She will be replaced. I know nothing more about the matter."

BURIED ALIVE.

One Italian Instantly Killed and Another Seriously Injured.

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 28.—The carelessness of workmen in failing to properly brace the sides of a sewer trench on Central street, Auburndale, resulted in the death of one Italian workman and the serious injury of another. About a dozen Italians were at work in the trench, which at this point was more than 30 feet deep. Suddenly one of the walls of the trench caved in, and about 10 tons of earth and stone fell among the workers at the bottom.

All but two of the frightened Italians got out. A few minutes' work resulted in the unearthing of Morino Dominica, who was found to be only slightly injured. The other Italian was not found until an hour had been consumed in vigorous work with pick and shovel. He was found buried under at least five tons of earth, and from the appearance of the body it was judged that he was killed at the moment of the accident. The man's name is unknown, but his number on the books of the contractor is 213.

California's Fair.

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—A communication was received from the governor of California by Governor Russell yesterday, officially informing him that California will hold an international exposition in San Francisco this winter. Governor Russell has replied that the state can do nothing until the legislature meets next year, but that he will do what he can to encourage people here to support the contemplated exhibition.

Stanton's Reply.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Secretary Herbert yesterday heard from Acting Rear Admiral Stanton in response to a telegram sent on Wednesday detaching him from command of the South Atlantic squadron and ordering him home. He simply sent the following message: "I have hauled down my flag and will proceed home by the first steamer."

Weekly Pay Law Unconstitutional.

OTTAWA, Ills., Oct. 28.—The supreme court, in a short but pithy opinion, written by Justice J. P. Shope, reverses the decision of the lower court in the test case of the people against the Braceville Coal company, and declares the weekly pay law passed by the last Illinois legislature unconstitutional.

FRESNO, Cal., Oct. 28.—Dr. E. C. Vincent, the wife murderer, was hanged here yesterday.

CAPTURED AT LAST.

Lion Tamers Tackle the Refractory Wallace.

BIG BEAST WAS PLUCKY

But Fright Finally Compels Him to Yield.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Notwithstanding the statement made that Wallace, the lion that escaped from his cage in a stable on East Eighteenth street had been captured, the big brute was still roaming and roaring about the place yesterday morning, and the crowd was bigger than ever. The owner and keeper remained there all night, professing to renew their attempts to drive the beast into his open cage. They proved unsuccessful. Later they ran a line of hose from the water tap to the steps leading to the loft, playing upon the lion to his evident annoyance, for his roars were fierce and came at short intervals.

The water treatment was soon abandoned. Messrs. Cooklin and McDonald, lion tamers attached to Barnum & Bailey's circus, arrived from the winter quarters at Bridgeport, Conn., yesterday. They were equipped with ropes, chains and several queer-looking devices, with one or the other of which they hoped to capture the lion. The Bridgeport men got to work soon after 11 o'clock. They were joined by Buckskin Joe, a Montana hunter and trapper.

The first thing the lion hunters did was to begin the removal of the carcass of the dead horse, which still had charms for Wallace, although it emitted an odor that was distinct across the street. By 12 o'clock this was accomplished. The carcass was hauled upstairs to the second floor. Bostock, Bocaccio, Conkling and McDonald then attacked the lion from the end of the building, where he lay crouched over a big blood spot left by the dead horse. They drove him back a few feet, when suddenly the vicious brute turned and, leaping by McDonald, jumped into a pen under the stairs.

The lion was becoming more savage and it was deemed advisable for their own safety to give him a few minutes' rest. Another attack was made. The man-eater jumped over the pen straight at Bocaccio and stood as if challenging a combat in the middle of the floor. He was allowed to sit there a moment, and then with pistol shots, yells and a din that sounded out on the street as if pandemonium had broken loose the men charged again, forcing the lion up to the door of the cage.

Another moment's rest and the final and fiercest charge was made. Forming a semi-circle around the lion, they jabbed him with iron pronged poles and fired blank cartridges into his face until he finally turned and leaped into his cage.

The door was closed upon him and fastened in quicker time than it takes to tell it, and the great untamed maneater was a prisoner again. It was just 12:50 p. m. It has been intimated that the lion is 30 years old and toothless, but only that the notoriety may not lessen its value as a public attraction.

FEMALE SUFFRAGE

Receives a Severe Blow by the Decision of an Empire State Judge.

SYRACUSE, Oct. 28.—A decision handed down by Justice P. C. Williams will cause grave disappointment to many women in this state, particularly in the western counties. He decides that the act of 1892, which gave women the right to register and vote for school commissioner in the rural districts, is unconstitutional; that the office of school commissioner is elective, not appointive, and, therefore, subject to the inhibition imposed by the constitution of the state of New York.

Upon this an order is entered to remove the names of all women from the registry lists. While it is possible that in other counties women who have registered will insist upon voting, the majority will be wary of being held to account for committing an offense against the law as thus read.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 28.—Guilty of manslaughter was the verdict returned against Patrick F. Blake in the superior court. Blake was charged with causing the death of Joseph Hereux. Judge Bond heard the counsel for the defendant in a plea for a light sentence, based upon the youth and previous good character of his client, and the entire absence of intent to commit serious injury. Judge Bond took the matter under advisement.

Treasury Agent In Trouble.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Oct. 28.—Converse J. Smith, special agent of the United States treasury at Boston, was arrested here at the instance of Robert May, merchant tailor, on a charge of assault and false arrest. May was arrested on July 20, 1892, at Eastport, Me., where he had gone in answer to a decoy telegram. His trial was put off from time to time, and finally he was liberated without bail.

Tried to Mob an Ex-Priest.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 28.—Ex-Priest Slattery was billed to deliver a lecture here last night. The crowd in the hall at Seventeenth and Olive streets tried to mob him. They made violent demonstrations and began to yell "Lynch him." A score of police finally succeeded in getting Slattery and his wife to their hotel. Many missiles were thrown, but no serious harm was done.

Big Race Begun

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The 12-hour race between Colonel Cody ("Buffalo Bill") on horseback and the bicyclist Meyer began yesterday at the Levallois Trotting club. The men are to race four hours daily for three days. At the end of the first day's race Cody had covered 124 kilometres and Meyer 112 kilometres.

Went Up Like Powder.

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Oct. 28.—Edwards' naphtha and kerosene works, and Walker's kerosene works on Allen street, went up like powder in flames shortly before 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The loss will reach $12,000, and is attributed to a flying spark from a passing locomotive.

Eight Miners Buried Alive.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 28.—Eight miners at the Monopol coal pit, at Bochum, were buried by the falling of the roof of a gallery. There is no chance of any of them being rescued alive.

KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE COMPASS.

Keep your eye on the compass
If the sea runs high
And the ocean's inky billows
Mock the blackness of the sky.
When beating up against the winds,
So pitiless and strong,
Keep your eye on the compass,
And you can't go wrong.

Keep your eye on the compass
And your white light trimmed,
Though the moon hide in the heavens
And the stars are dimmed.
Though the voyage may be lonely
And the way seem long,
Keep your eye on the compass,
And you can't go wrong.

Keep your eye on the compass;
It will guide you o'er the deep,
Will show you where the north star is
And where the flowers sleep
In the sunny south. No matter
If the way seems long,
Keep your eye on the compass,
And you can't go wrong.

MADAME'S STORY.

"And what became of Marie?" I asked. "She married, did she not? Or did she, now? I remember there was some excitement."

Madame sighed. "It is a very long story."

"Tell me, madame," I begged. I give the story in her own words. I would that I could give her accent. Her English was almost perfect, though rather studied and occasionally confused as to tenses. But her singularly pure, clear voice and a faint foreign softening of each syllable made her charming to listen to.

"Well, as I think I told you long ago, Marie went away from me for one long year. When she was very little, I send her to a convent in Toronto, and I do not see her very often. She grow up so pretty, so spirituelle, the pale pink face and big eyes, black eyes and long, long lashes—oh, she is beautiful! She sway like a rose in the morning, quite slender, and her small feet do not hurt the flowers. She is a flower herself, charming. She come home, and the lads in the village are distracted, and I am too.

"It is very hard to watch Marie. She is so quick and so beautiful. She laugh in my face and say: 'Do not fear, my mother. I always stay with you. As for the men, I hate 'em all.' Then she dance away with the pale pink ribbons flying from the pink robe, and the lads follow her everywhere. She read love stories—novel, she call them, and they put strange things in her head.

"She will not marry the lads in the village, she say, but some rich man will come from the city and take her away, and I, her mother, will have plenty of beautiful dresses and a maid to wait upon me. Then I scold her and say that I do not want those things, and she must marry a lad that I shall choose for her. Then she dance away, throwing the roses at me, and the ribbons fluttering everywhere, always ribbons and flowers with my Marie, and when she pass, the curling hair all tumbling around her, there is always a sweet perfume in the air. You remember her when she came from the convent?"

I nod. Who wouldn't remember that wild rose of a girl, with the daintiest foot poet ever raved over, with a slender, lithe, ever dancing, little figure, with her pretty gowns following every movement, with her glorious merry black eyes and the seashell pink on her cheeks. Remember Marie? I, who had followed her floating ribbons, had picked up the roses she let fall, had been as crazy about her as ever was village lad! Remember her? Yes, as one remembers a sprite, a fairy, a delicious dream. I sigh as one sighs for departing youth.

Those mad, happy days have nothing to do with me now. A moment ago—a day ago—I was bored, cynical, blase, and now I would give my life to be dancing once more through the woods after Marie—after flowers and streamers and a floating gown catching on the wild rose bushes—after Marie! If once more the woods could seem as green, the sky as blue, a girl as fair as Marie!

"So she will not marry, and by and by a girl from the convent write Marie to visit with her at her home, and I am tired, and I let Marie go. She stay one whole year, and I weary for her, and she come back. When I see her, the tears come in my eyes. She is pale and thin and so quiet. I feel dreadful. I ask her what the matter is, and she say, 'Nothing at all.' But I, her mother, know better, and I watch and wait.

"One day a letter come for her, and it is a man's handwriting on the envelope. Marie take it and say nothing at all. Then I feel bad, very bad that my little girl have a lover, and that I, her mother, know not of it. After a long time she tell me his name. It is Jean Lefroy, and she knew him at the house of her friend, and he tell her he love her, and I ask her if she love him—although I think it not right that I do not choose for her—and she say she do not know. But one day Mons—Mr. Lefroy come and say:

"'Why you not write me, Marie?' and she say to him that I am her mother, and he bow very low to me and say:

"'Madame, I love your daughter, and I write and ask her when I may come and tell her mother that I wish to marry her, and she do not answer me at all, at all,' and he stride very fierce about the room, and Marie put her head on my shoulder and say that she love me, her mother, only. And he ask very quick:

"'Why you say you love me?' and Maria will not answer. She just put her hands to her ears and will not lister to him. I think she must be crazy and speak hard to her, but she just run out of the room. Then he go away and say he will come back again that evening. Then I speak to Marie, and she say there is another man, too, and she do not know which she like better—that when one of them is there that she like the other one better—and it is making her pale and thin. Then I am very severe with her and tell her it is very wrong; that she cannot love either of them, or she would know. But she say she think she will marry one of them, and I tell her that Mr. Lefroy is coming tonight and she must say either yes or no to him, and she say that I will break her heart.

"Well, in the evening a strange gentleman come—a very fair gentleman with pretty curly hair—and he ask to see my Marie. She look over the stair, and she say to me:

"'It is the other one.'

"Then I am nearly crazy, but Marie say she will not go to see him till Mr. Lefroy come. 'Perhaps I can tell,' she say, 'when I see them both together.'

"When Mr. Lefroy come, we go down the stair and there they are, both together, and they look hard at each other. We talk a little while, and then I say, 'Gentlemen, what is it that you want?'

"And they both say quick, 'Marie!' And Marie she say:

"'But you cannot both have me. Is it not so?' And the one that came last say, very angry:

"'You must decide now which one you will have!'

"Then Marie look at him and frown and say quick:

"'Very well, then; I decide now that I will not have you.'

"Then Jean Lefroy he smile a little, and the other one walk out of the house quick, his face like a storm cloud, and then Marie sit down and cry. She will not speak to Jean Lefroy, although he coax her very hard. She only say that she will stay with me, her mother. Then Jean he bow and say to me that he hope my health will keep good, and Marie stop crying and make him a grimace, and he go away too. They both come back often. But she cannot tell which she like best ever, and I am very weary. Almost I would be glad that she leave me and marry. So one day she tell me that next week she will marry, and there is no time to get her the clothes, and she will not tell me which one. I like them both very well, and I feel bad, but she only say, 'You will see.'

"On Thursday she would marry, only quietlike—only those who marry her and I, her mother, there—and we go to the church together. When we get to the church, I look to see which gentleman, but I see no one. Marie is cool. She say: 'Let us wait. He may be late,' and she smile to herself. I think it is very strange, but at last I see Jean Lefroy come round the corner and Marie run to meet him. When he come near, I see that he look—oh, horrible! He have his arm tied up, and his coat is torn, and one of his eyes has a black mark, and he is lame. He wear no hat, and the collar and tie are gone. Oh, it is dreadful. But I say nothing. I fear Marie change her mind again. But it is not so. They are married, and I make Jean tell me why he look so dreadful.

"'Well,' he say, 'Marie tell each of us, separately, that she will marry us today, and when I see him I smile, not knowing that he has her promise, too, and when he see me he hold the head high, not knowing that I shall marry her. So all the week we nearly have our fight, but I never touch him till—well, last night Marie write us both and say that she will marry the one that will get to the church first. We both get the note at the same time, and I see that he is getting ready early, and I hurry too. When he leave his house, I leave mine also, and all the way we try to keep each other back. It is very hard work, and two hours after we leave the homes we have not get farther than the first corner.

"'Soon we start to run, but we cannot get past each other, and then he catch hold of me, and then we fight some more. But soon I tear his coat bad, and he cannot wear it, and then his vest, but madame will pardon me that I cannot tell her all that happen. At all event, we have to go home to get the clothes, and I get here first.'" Madame paused, and I knew her story was done.

"And were they happy together, madame?" I asked. "It is hard to imagine Marie settling down quietly."

Madame sighed.

"It is a long story," she said.—Madge Robertson in Romance.

Mistakes About Alcohol.

There is a common belief that alcohol gives new strength and energy after fatigue sets in. The sensation of fatigue is one of the safety valves of our machine. To stifle the feeling of fatigue, in order to do more work, is like closing the safety valve so that the boiler may be overheated and explosion result. It is commonly thought that alcoholic drinks aid digestion, but in reality the contrary would appear to be the case, for it has been proved that a meal without alcohol is more quickly followed by hunger than a meal with alcohol. In connection with the sanitation of armies thousands of experiments upon large bodies of men have been made and have led to the result that, in peace or war, in every climate—in heat, cold or rain—soldiers are better able to endure the fatigue of the most exhausting marches when they are not allowed any alcohol at all. That mental exertions of all kinds are better undergone without alcohol is generally admitted by most people who have made the trial.—Westminster Review.

The Servant Problem Not New.

Students of household management will learn with satisfaction that in 1566 many of the evils now to be complained of were distinctly recognized. Some of the more curious fines which were imposed by a country gentleman upon offending servants were a penny for leaving a door open, missing prayers, leaving beds unmade after 8 (presumably a. m.), and cooks could only have followers at the rate of a penny fine for each one. A curious custom seems to have then existed that entree to the house was denied during the family meals, and as the fine for allowing a breach of this custom was heavy it may be presumed that the sin was esteemed great.—Lady's Pictorial.

ASSASSINATED IN COLD BLOOD

Mayor Harrison Meets Death In His Own Home.

SLAYER PROBABLY INSANE.

Was Seeking the Office of Corporation Counsel.

The Deed Accomplished In a Most Cool and Deliberate Manner — The Murderer Gives Himself Up Immediately and Shows No Regret For His Crime. Big Squad of Police Guards the Station to Prevent a Possible Attempt at Lynching — Mr. Harrison Lived but Twenty Minutes After the Shots Were Fired—Finding of the Coroner's Jury.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Charles Eugene Prendergast, newspaper carrier, shot and killed Carter H. Harrison, mayor of Chicago, at the front door of the mayor's residence, 231 Ashland avenue, at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night. Prendergast rushed from his bloody work and ran several miles to the Desplaines street police station, where he cried: "Lock me up, I've just killed Carter Harrison. He wouldn't do the square thing by me."

MAYOR HARRISON.

Three balls from Prendergast's revolver entered Mr. Harrison's body, and at 8:45 the mayor was dead. At that moment the assassin was in the detectives' room in the central station, city hall, with only a glass door separating him from a mob of thousands in the corridors and streets.

At the time of the tragedy, only Preston, Mr. Harrison's son, and the servants, beside the mayor, were in the house. Mary Hausen, a servant, answered a ring of the door bell, and a man on the steps inquired for Mr. Harrison. The girl informed Prendergrast that the mayor was asleep, and not well enough to see visitors, but the visitor said: "I must see him; I know he will see me, for I've come on a matter of great importance, and it will be a serious matter to wait."

Mary walked to the south parlor and awakened Mr. Harrison, who was asleep on a couch. She then went back to the kitchen.

The mayor arose and went into the hall. When midway to the front door the man in waiting suddenly drew a revolver and fired three times in rapid succession. The mayor had probably not yet seen the face of the murderer.

Seeks Safety In Flight.

Immediately after firing the three shots Prendergast walked backward through the front door and started to leave the premises. He was followed by Mayor Harrison's private coachman, and several shots were exchanged between the two men, but none of them took effect.

William Preston Harrison, the mayor's son, was in an upstairs room. He heard the shots fired and hastened down into the hallway, and soon was kneeling at the side of his prostrate father. The mayor was still conscious, although rapidly growing weaker. His left hand, blood-stained, was resting on his left breast near his heart, and clutched as though Mr. Harrison was in great pain.

"What's the matter, father?" asked Preston, as he placed his hand upon his father's forehead. Mr. Harrison opened his eyes, and in a voice that was very weak replied: "I've been shot and am going to die. I cannot live. Preston, where is Annie?" Preston did not pause to reply to his father's question relative to the one who was soon to become his bride, but hastened toward the street, endeavoring, if possible, to overtake the assassin.

Directly across the street from Mayor Harrison's residence lives W. J. Chalmers. Mr. Chalmers and his wife were sitting in their front parlor, and they heard the three shots fired. They immediately hastened out to the front door, and both saw Prendergast, followed by the coachman, running north on Ashland avenue, and they hastened across the street to ascertain the cause of the excitement. Mr. Chalmers hurriedly pushed his way into the south parlor. He met Preston Harrison, who, in a very few words, told him what had happened.

Mr. Chalmers reached Mayor Harrison's side a moment later, and taking off his overcoat he placed it beneath the dying man's head. "I've been shot and will die," Mr. Harrison said, and he glanced up and recognized his old friend and neighbor.

"No, you are only shot in the stomach, and you will not die," Mr. Chalmers said.

"I have been shot in the heart, too," replied Mr. Harrison, "and I am now dying." He expired shortly afterward.

Within a short time after the shooting Prendergast gave himself up at the Desplaines street station.

Prendergast Surrenders.

Prendergast was laboring under great mental excitement. He was trembling, and could hardly speak at times. Sergeant Barker turned him over to Patrol Sergeant McDonald, who took him below to be locked up. There he repeated his statements to Lockup Keeper Connelly that he had killed the mayor because he would not give him an office. He was able to talk only in broken sentences and was gasping for breath.

Threats to lynch the prisoner were made by scores of men who surged around the city hall, and as a precautionary measure Assistant Chief Kipley called for 100 officers from the central detail, Harrison street and Desplaines street stations.

Cold Sympathy.

Once yesterday Prendergast showed feeling over the death of Mayor Harrison. It was while he was at Mr. Harrison's residence and waiting outside the room in which the coroner's jury was deliberating on its verdict. He was sitting near Lieutenant Haas, and his attention was attracted by the presence of Mrs. W. J. Chalmers. For a moment his stolidity was broken and he pulled the lieutenant's sleeve. The officer bent toward his prisoner and heard him ask, "Is that Mrs. Harrison?"

"No," replied the lieutenant; "it is not. Why did you ask?"

"I wanted to tell her," replied Prendergast, "that I was sorry for her trouble." With that remark he relapsed into silence and returned to all other questions a vacant stare.

Lieutenant Haas drove his prisoner from East Chicago avenue station to the Harrison house without encountering any incident. Prendergast's departure from the station and his presence in the house was not generally known.

"Prendergast has refused to talk," said Lieutenant Haas, "except to give utterance to a few sentences in response to a question. He was asked why he did the shooting, and made the same statement about the mayor's refusal to appoint him corporation counsel. He made some threats about beating out his brains against the cell doors, but I think he intended nothing of the kind. He spent a quiet night at East Chicago station."

Another object of interest was the weapon with which he committed the murder. It is a 32-caliber affair of the Harrington pattern and breaks at the breech. It had evidently seen much service, for the plating was well worn and the weapon had marks of hard usage. It worked perfectly, however, and had been recently oiled.

At the time of the shooting Miss Howard, Mr. Harrison's betrothed, was at the residence of Carter Harrison, Jr., and was sent for immediately. She hastened to the house, but arrived there too late to be recognized by the mayor, who was just breathing his last. The shock completely prostrated her.

MISS ANNIE HOWARD.

Mrs. Heaton Oswley, Mr. Harrison's daughter, was seriously prostrated by the shock, and members of the family are alarmed at her condition.

Shows No Regret.

Prendergast is now locked in a cell in the county jail. He was carried around the city all day by the police, and the bars did not close behind him until 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was finally lodged in the county jail, where he will remain until his case is finally disposed of.

Parts of the Sunday papers were handed him, but none of them contained the local news sheets. He quickly noticed this and asked for the account of the murder. This was handed to him. He read down the columns in an apparently mechanical manner. Then he dropped the paper and said:

"I did my duty," repeating this sentence several times.

"I am very tired," he said, "having been bothered so much by so many people today. I feel greatly relieved, as a great strain is off my mind. I have done my duty, and I think the majority of people, when they know this, will be on my side. I shall get out clear. I do not mind the physical confinement at all, and my mind is now clear."

"What was your reason for killing the mayor?" was asked.

He replied emphatically: "I was to have had the position of corporation counsel, but he played false to me, and I only did right in killing him. I did not know that I had fired three shots at him until I read in the papers. I was of the impression that I fired two shots at the mayor. I fired another shot as I went away to prevent any one from following me, as I expected a large crowd to follow me."

Here Prendergast claimed he was tired and declined to talk any more. The arrangements for the funeral of the murdered mayor will not be made until after the special meeting of the city council.

Result of the Inquest.

The jury returned this verdict:

An inquest was taken for the people of the state of Illinois at 231 Ashland avenue, in the city of Chicago, on the 29th day of October, A. D. 1893, before me, James McHale, coroner in and for the said county, upon view of the body of Carter H. Harrison, then and there lying dead, upon the oaths of six good and lawful men of the said county, who being duly sworn to inquire on the part of the people of the state of Illinois into all circumstances attending the death of the said Carter Harrison, and by whom same was produced and in what manner, and when and where, the said Carter H. Harrison came to his death, do say upon their oaths, as aforesaid, that the said Carter H. Harrison, now lying dead at 231 Ashland avenue, in the city of Chicago, county of Cook, state of Illinois, came to his death on the 28th day of October A. D. 1893 from shock and hemorrhages, caused from bullets from a revolver in the hands of Patrick Eugene Prendergast at 231 Ashland avenue, Oct. 28, 1893, and from the evidence presented, we, the jury, recommend that said Patrick Eugene Prendergast be held for the grand jury until discharged by due course of the law.

Brief Sketch of His Career.

Carter H. Harrison was born at Lexington, Ky., Feb. 15, 1825. His father died while he was yet a babe, and his early tuition was received from his mother and the common schools. Afterwards he entered Yale, graduating in 1845, when he commenced the study of law. In 1851 he traveled in Europe, Egypt, Syria and Turkey in Asia, returning to settle in Chicago in 1855, where he engaged in the real estate business. In 1874 he was chosen a representative from Chicago, serving one term. He was elected mayor of Chicago for the first time in 1880. Mr. Harrison had acquired considerable reputation as a linguist.

MAJORITY OF TEN

Calculated Upon In the Senate For the Passage of Repeal.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—If Senator Voorhees' calculations do not miscarry, the repeal bill will be passed by a majority of 10 or possibly 11 votes this evening, and the long contest will be ended, and the purchasing clause of the Sherman act expunged from the books, so far as it lies in the power of the senate to do it.

Senators are counting upon an adjournment or a recess by Thursday, which it shall be will depend wholly upon the wishes of the committees on ways and means. Prominent members of the house assure the senators that the house will dispose of the repeal bill the second day after receiving it.

The house will lay aside the bankruptcy bill this week as soon as the repeal bill comes back from the senate. The friends of the former measure have given up all hope of procuring a vote on it at this session.

When the repeal bill comes to the house, if the unexpected does not happen, Mr. Wilson will be recognized to move concurrence in the senate amendment. The silver men show no disposition to filibuster, but if they should try such tactics a rule will be brought in by the committee on rules that will force an immediate vote.

A few hours may be allowed before the previous question calling off all debate, except 10 minutes, be amended. Altogether, Mr. Bland and the extreme silver men and, indeed, even some of the repeal men, would like the declaratory clause of the Voorhees' substitute stricken out, but they will be outvoted. The repeal men have been telegraphed to be here, and they expect 260 members present when the bill comes to the house.

ORDERED TO BRAZIL.

Cruiser New York Will Join the Fleet at Rio Janeiro.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The big cruiser New York has received orders to prepare with the utmost haste to proceed to Brazil. Immediately upon its receipt telegrams were sent out from the vessel recalling all officers on leave of absence. Ensign Dashiel, who is undergoing examination for promotion at Washington, was ordered to return at once to his ship.

The New York is lying at the Brooklyn navy yard. She will probably get away from this port in four days.

In naval circles it is understood to be the intention of the present administration to make the United States naval force at Brazil the equal, if not the superior, of any foreign fleet now in those waters. The arrival of the New York at Rio de Janeiro will give the United States five vessels at the seat of war. They are the New York, Newark, Detroit, Charleston and Yantic.

It is said here that the New York will carry to Brazil the successor to acting Rear Admiral Stanton. It is believed in well posted naval circles that Commander Richard Meade is slated for the post.

The desire of the administration to augment the United States naval squadron in Brazil is believed to have been increased by the interest of European imperialists, which late advices from Brazil announce to have been manifested for the rebels.

No surprise will be felt in naval circles if the new commander-in-chief of the south Atlantic squadron manifests a pronounced disposition to assert on all occasions the principles of the Monroe doctrine.

Miss Garland Was Probably Insane.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—At a consultation of family physicians, held at the residence of ex-Attorney General Garland, the conclusion was reached that Miss Daisy Garland, who shot herself through the heart, was suffering from mental aberration, probably the result of poor health The body will be conveyed to her former home, Little Rock, for burial.

Charged With Manslaughter.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 30.—Polycarpe Dione is under arrest charged with manslaughter. His victim is Joseph C. Gautre, a young French boy, living at Flint Village. The boy was one of a number who opened a club room door a few nights ago to annoy some young men in the room. Dione ran out and struck the boy on the head, fracturing his skull.

Bricklayers Give It Up.

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 30.—The strike of the Bricklayers' union, which was begun last May, is declared off, because the International union considers it useless to appropriate any more funds to continue the struggle. The strikers' officials say that the strike is only suspended for the present, and will be renewed next spring.

Liquor Dealers Feel Hard Times.

MERIDEN, Conn., Oct. 30.—The liquor dealers of this place have entered a petition to have the price of licenses reduced from $400 to $200. They assert that in the present hard times they find it as hard to pay $200 as formerly to pay $400. The movement will be taken up all over the state.

Hoggish Thieves.

AMESBURY, Mass., Oct. 30.—The clothing store of N. E. Collins, at Merrimac, was broken into. The thieves carried away about 100 pairs of pantaloons, many overcoats and furnishing goods. They also tapped the money drawer. The amount stolen will foot up $1000.

SUNDAY'S HERALD has a timely article on the meaningless names which the Old Colony (N. Y. N. H & H.) has inflicted upon some of its stations. If a reform is to be made in this it is hoped that it will begin right at home and change the meaningless Quincy Adams to South Quincy and Wollaston Heights to the more dignified name of Wollaston. The misnaming of both of these stations causes an endless amount of confusion. In the case of Wollaston the government stepped in and officially dropped the Heights several years ago. The Western Union Telegraph Company followed suit and then the press, city officials and citizens generally dropped it. It would now seem as if it was time for the railroad to make a move in this direction. Hardly a day goes by but what some one of the travelling public is greatly inconvenienced by the dual naming of villages.

CAPT. FRANK L. MERRILL of Wollaston, who has recently returned from an extensive tour through the Provinces, brought home with him an interesting fire department relic, which was presented to him by Capt. D. L. Johnson, formerly foreman of the Union Protective Company of Halifax. The relic is in the shape of a fireman's hat which was made in 1768. The hat is on exhibition at Hose 2's house.

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

Hancock Hall Filled and Overflowing With Voters.

GREAT ENTHUSIASM PREVAILED.

Speeches by Frederick T. Greenhalge J. Otis Wardwell and Rev. A. E. Winship.

The Republicans held a rousing rally Saturday night at Hancock hall. Every seat was taken as well as all of the standing room.

Mr. Greenhalge, who spoke at 7 o'clock at East Weymouth, arrived on a special train about 8 o'clock and headed by the Weymouth band and the Lovell rifles, who made a terrible racket, a short march was taken to the hall.

When the party entered the hall they were greeted with tremendous applause.

Seats were taken on the stage by the following gentlemen: Theophilus King, W. W. Osborne, T. A. Whicher, James Thompson, Hon. John F. Merrill, Representative Charles L. Hammond, Rev. Edward Norton, Charles A. Howland, Wilson Marsh, John R. Graham, John Shaw, Charles R. Sherman, Mayor Henry O. Fairbanks, Edwin Newcomb, Herbert M. Federhen, J. H. Roberts, Joseph C. Morse, Auditor John O. Hall, ex-Councilman Litchfield, Councilmen E. W. H. Bass, Stephen O. Moxon, Frank L. Badger, Charles H. Johnson. Luther S. Anderson of this city; Col. B. S. Lovell, Henry L. Lovell, Herbert F. Bates, William C. Earle and Joseph A. Cushing of East Weymouth and the speakers of the evening.

Back of the platform was the American flag very prettily draped forming a sort of background for the large lithograph pictures of Greenhalge and Walcott.

Mr. Greenhalge said:

My Friends and Fellow-Citizens: I have been hearing reports from Quincy somewhat different from these which I get tonight. I do not see what is the trouble with the Quincy I see before me. I don't know how it is with Josiah. [Laughter and applause.] I am very glad to meet the men of Quincy. You cannot call out these intelligent men by the record of any individual, however much that record may disappoint good and honest citizens. I am here, my friends, for a few brief moments to counsel and to confer with you upon matters important to every citizen of Massachusetts, without distinction of party; to confer and counsel, so that every man of any trade, profession or calling may find where his best interests lies, and the bread-winner may know where his future is best placed.

Now, my friends, they tell you that all this excitement and disturbance is about the Sherman act. My friends the Sherman purchasing clause will be repealed. There is no question about it. It is only a question of time, of days, of hours, and when they say the repeal of that bill, or of its purchasing clause, is the panacea of these troubles, they speak without authority, without judgment and without wisdom. Now, let me tell you what effect this repeal is going to have. We want every bit of confidence that the country can gain from any source, in any way; but I tell you that the business world has practically accepted that repeal today and its effects cannot be magnified except by the hoodlum newspapers of Boston, and there are several of them. [Applause.] And I hope the honest men of Massachusetts will consider well before they take them into their homes on the sacred Sabbath to desecrate the beauty and life and holiness of that day. [Applause.]

Now, let us see. There was a monetary panic. It started in with the action of Mr. Secretary Carlisle, who never had to do with any financial transaction greater than the drawing of his salary from the United States as a Congressman or Senator. That is the kind of doctrinaire they put at the head of the most important department in United States. How much confidence do you suppose it insured to the intelligent business people of the country by the appointment of a financier of that calibre?

The industrial depression began in November, 1892, with the election of Grover Cleveland. That is when the depression began. [Applause.] The financial panic did not begin until August, and that panic came about by the action of the secretary of the treasury, and he was checked—and I here give praise and tribute of honest esteem to the President of the United States, who behaved like a President of the United States of America and not the President of the party [applause]—and the gold reserve was made practical to redeem certificates in silver. They struck the confidence of this country and the world and made the splendid fabric of our national credit shake to its foundation.

Mr. Greenhalge then spoke upon the silver question and closed by urging the voters of Quincy to help the party in rolling up a good round majority. At the close of his speech he was greeted with cheers and loud applause. He immediately left the hall and proceeded to the depot where he took the train for Brockton.

J. Otis Wardwell

Said the issues were money, tariff and civil service reform, but the latter had almost ceased to be an issue. To congratulate on the withdrawal of the McKinley bill was adding insult to injury. Over four-fifths of the men in Lowell and Lawrence were out of employment at one time, and in Haverhill twenty per cent. of the men were unemployed today.

The speaker then commented on an article in a Boston paper which said mills were starting up and showed wherein the article was misleading. He then spoke of the different tariff bills that had been on the statute books and compared them with the McKinley bill, which he believed to be the wisest tariff bill ever put on the statute books of the United States.

Rev. A. E. Winship

Was the last speaker. He commenced his remarks by thanking one of the audience who had called for something about 1874; saying it was the best argument for the Republican party. Let the Democrats have the privilege of making silver worth what gold is for one session and you will have a repetition of 1874. The entire wealth of the country had been increased in 30 years by Republican government from $13,000,000,000 to $65,000,000,000, and since the Democrats have come into power they have been tearing down that sum as fast as possible. As you look to the millionaire to find evidence of prosperity so you must look to the poor house to find evidence of depression. From 1880 to 1890 the entire pauper population under 40 years of age diminished 40 per cent. for in these years the Republicans undertook to wipe out the paupers but during the past year paupers have multiplied rapidly. As long as the Democrats in the South hate the North, just so long the day is not distant when every laboring man will get out of that party. They may fool the people for one more election but it will be the last time with the honest laboring man.

PULLED OUT HAIR BY HAIR.

A Remarkable Story of Indian Cruelty Superinduced by Jealousy.

Living near this town is a woman whose prefectly bald head tells a curious story of jealousy and Indian cruelty. In 1859 Oswald Thurwald, a Swedish farmer, had a home in the territory close to the Texas border, and his family consisted of his wife, two daughters and a son. The Indians seemed friendly, passing over the Thurwalds even when slaying the other settlers about and frequenting their place to sell their wares and to purchase such goods as Thurwald brought out from the states for barter. He was rapidly growing rich and had made his preparations to move to Dallas, where he intended to extend his business, when the tragedy occurred that destroyed his home and scattered his family.

It seems that the chief of the Tonkawa Indians, who visited that part of the country from the south on raiding expeditions, had seen Elsa, the elder daughter, and fancying her offered to buy her of her father. But Thurwald, though fond of money, refused, which gave great offense to the chief. Returning home, he incited his people against the Thurwalds, and the following spring they made an attack on him. He and his son succeeded in escaping, but the wife and younger daughter, though they eluded capture the first few days, were overtaken finally. Mrs. Thurwald sank under the fatigue of her flight through a rugged country, and when the Indians came up with them it was to find the girl holding her mother in her arms, the poor woman having just expired.

The next day the girl herself, lagging on the march from an arrow wound in her ankle, was shot in the presence of her sister, who had been seized and held from the moment of the attack till now. She was taken to a village and given into the charge of the squaws until the men should have returned from the war trail.

In the meantime the Kickapoos declared war on the Tonkawas and raided the village, when Elsa Thurwald was carried off with such of the Indian women as were spared as slaves. The Tonkawas, on returning, found the smoking remains of the house and started after the despoilers, overtaking them close to the Colorado, where an obstinate battle ensued, but both sides then consented to a truce. The chief of the Kickapoos, however, stipulated that the white woman should be given him. This was opposed by the Tonkawa chieftain, who claimed her by right of priority. This brought on a quarrel, which was terminated by a hand to hand fight between the rivals, resulting in the chief of the Tonkawas being killed and the bone of contention falling to the victor.

He carried her home and confided her to the care of his squaw with the injunction that if she were injured in any way the life of the woman would pay for it. But, fired by jealousy for her successor, the woman took advantage of her lord's absence to wreak her vengeance on the detested object. Binding her to a tree, she deliberately pulled out the unfortunate beauty's hair thread by thread. This torture lasted several hours, until the white woman's head was covered with blood and she shrieking with agony.

When the chief returned and learned what had occurred, he ordered the witch burned at the stake. She escaped into the bush, but was recovered and the sentence executed. Thurwald had now died, but his son, hearing of his sister being in the hands of the Indians, organized a rescuing party and succeeded in liberating her after 18 months of captivity. Her head took weeks to heal, and it is thought her mind was affected by her savage treatment, though in 1875 she married a farmer in this vicinity. Her hair has never grown again.—Oklahoma Letter in Philadelphia Times.

Following Instructions.

"Now, dear," she said as she stopped at the depot gate, "you will see that everything goes right about the house, won't you?"

"Yes, indeed," he answered.

"You will do everything just as I would if I were there?"

"I will," he replied earnestly. "I'll discharge the servant girl every morning before I go down town."—Washington Star.

Election a week from tomorrow.

New voting lists will be issued this week.

Mrs. F. H. Crane of Elm street is visiting friends in New York.

City Council tonight. The High school order will probably take its final passage.

The Quincy Young Men's Congress will hold its third meeting of 1893-4 tomorrow evening.

Rev. Ira Morrison of Boston has accepted a call to the First Universalist society of Weymouth.

The Y. M. C. A. foot-ball team defeated the Whitmans at Whitman, Saturday, by a score of 38 to 4.

Water pipes are being laid on Lincoln avenue, between Prospect and Winthrop avenue, Wollaston.

City Editor F. F. Prescott expects to be at his desk tomorrow after an absence of over a week from sickness.

Mr. Benjamin Bland of Wollaston will remove from Beal street to Farrington street, near the Wollaston foundry.

Two persons were refused registration Saturday night because they could not read. One was a Frenchman and the other a Swede.

That our voting list should have grown in an off-year, when granite business is reported dull, is further evidence that the city is growing rapidly.

The Joint Special Committee on Taxation will give a hearing on Saturday next, as will be seen by a notice on the third page, to all parties interested in taxing church property.

Something like eighty of the young friends of Master Harry Huntington gave him a surprise party at his home on Copeland street Friday evening. The evening was pleasantly passed in games and the like; a supper also furnishing part of the pleasure. During the evening Master Harry was presented with a cameo ring by his friends.

O'DONOVAN ROSSA.

The Irish Patriot speakes at West Quincy.

A "hundred thousand welcomes" was the greeting which was tendered to O'Donovan Rossa as he stepped upon the platform at St. Mary's Hall, Sunday night. To say that the audience was enthusiastic is but putting it very mildly.

Mr. James F. Burke presided and introduced Mr. Charles Forrester, the blind singer who rendered several Irish solos which were received with the wildest kind of applause. Councilman Donaher then rendered one of Boyle O'Reilly's poems, after which the speaker himself was introduced.

As Rossa advanced to the front of the stage he was cheered to the echo so that it was several minutes before he was able to proceed.

The speaker said: I know Gladstone. I have been in ten English prisons, and during the time I was there, Gladstone was my Governor General.

I found that Gladstone was just as brutal in his treatment of me. He was as brutal as was the treatment of the Italian prisoners by King Bomba of Naples, whose cruelty Gladstone so piteously complained of. There is no difference between a Whig and a Tory. When the Tories are out of office they are Whigs, and when the Whigs are in office they are Tories. If the Irish people depend upon Gladstone, by sending Irish members to an English parliament you are only spending money and wasting your assistance.

I have kept quiet for the past five years and why? Because some of the Irish people said that Gladstone was going to give them home rule, and if I spoke against Gladstone the Irish people would curse me forever. Well I kept quite, and Home Rule has not yet come. [Applause.]

The speaker then told the circumstances of the Dudley shooting case, in which he was the victim, and declared that he really believed that Mrs. Dudley was paid by the English government to kill him. He concluded the speaking by reciting one of his own poems and was loudly applauded.

The exercises closed by the singing of "The Harp that once thro' Tara's Halls" by Mr. Charles Forrester.

After the program had been finished, the audience formed in line and as each passed before the renowned patriot they were greeted with a hearty hand shake.

It is understood that O'Donovon Rossa will remain in Quincy for a few days.

Why Our Boys Wear Chrysanthemums.

In New York the other day two actors who watched the famous Jefferson, commented on the dingy overcoat he wore and the general sartorial neglect that characterized him "My boy," said a third, who was very gorgeous in a well-fitting frock coat, with a chrysanthemum in its lapel, "When I am as rich as Jefferson and as famous I'll do just the same. Do you think I'd bother about a starchy chrysanthemum in my coat if I were independent? It is we poor wretches, who have to hustle for engagements who do the dressing and the posing. Jefferson can do as he likes."

W. B. Rice's Appointment.

The appointment of Mr. W. B. Rice of this city as councillor will come up for confirmation on Thursday. As the Republicans would have a large majority there should be no objection. Perhaps the following Globe paragraph is all talk :

"If half the rumors are true that are in circulation regarding Gov. Russell's appointment of William B. Rice of Quincy to succeed the late David Hall Rice as a member of the executive council, the governor and his partisan political opponents in the council will soon lock horns over his late action, if indeed it has not already taken place. As the opponent of his namesake, and the democratic nominee last year, coming within 499 votes of an election Gov. Russell considered Mr. Rice the proper man to name, as he was certainly the people's second choice. That was the opinion also of Mr. Quincy, Col. William Moore of Walpole, the present democratic nominee in the district, who went to the governor and urged Mr. Rice's appointment, and several other party leaders. But the radical element in the republican ranks have given it out that the council will refuse to confirm the governor's nominee unless he is a republican."

—The remark of Candidate J. E. Russell that the best newspaper aid for the democratic party comes from the Boston Herald and Springfield Republican is pretty rough on the "organs," but it is nevertheless true. Party argument in a party organ carries no conviction with it. The political influence of an independent journal is of a negative quality, but it is positive. An organ excites its party adherents ; an independent journal awakens men open to a change of heart.—Press and Printer.

A FIERCE ENCOUNTER

Between Spaniards and a Body of Moors at Melilla.

SPANISH GENERAL IS SLAIN.

A Desperate Hand to Hand Encounter For His Body.

MADRID, Oct. 30.—A battle fought in and about the trenches before Melilla and which resulted in the death of General Margalla has caused a profound sensation here.

The engagement was commenced by General Ortega, who, at the head of re-enforcements sent to Melilla, drove the Moors from the trenches they had occupied in front of the Spanish fortification. The Moors fought desperately and with the greatest courage. Many of the Spaniards were killed, and among them was the unfortunate General Margalla, who only 48 hours previously exposed his troops to a second defeat by sending a mere handful of men to the onslaught of tens of thousands of Moors.

The Spaniards were amazed at the courage shown by the Moors in face of a terrible fire. The Moors charged recklessly forward until they managed to approach within 20 yards of the forts, driving the Spaniards in the trenches before them and cutting the telephone and telegraph wires, which had been erected in order to keep up communication with the outlying forts and trenches. While the Moors dashed forward, seemingly utterly regardless of the fire directed upon them by the Spaniards, they lost many men.

Whole Spanish Territory Invaded.

The Moors have now invaded the whole Spanish territory, making their advance during darkness, at the same time making an attack upon Forts Camelles and Cabrerizas, outside of which forts the Spaniards had parties of men at work digging trenches, under the protection of the guns of the forts and of advance pickets of soldiers.

The Moors began the attack by opening fire upon the pickets and driving them in, whereupon they advanced in force upon the right flank as well as upon the rear of the forts, with the intention of cutting off the retreat of the Spaniards.

This movement would undoubtedly have been successfully accomplished had it not been for the skillful manner in which the guns of the Spanish warship Venadito were handled. The guns on board the warship kept plumping shells in front of the Moorish advance, as well as dropping a number in the midst of the advancing hordes of Moors. The explosion of the shells seems to have caused the greatest consternation in their ranks, for it drove them back where the fire of the infantry seemed unable to stay their passage.

The Spaniards, in the face of this admirably planned attack, retreated inside the forts and had all they could do to reach the inside of the fortifications in safety. The Moors, in the meanwhile, pressed forward and succeeded in entering the Spanish trenches and capturing two modern field pieces and a supply of ammunition.

Field Pieces Change Hands.

It would seem that renegade foreigners must be fighting in the ranks of the Moors, for the latter had no sooner captured the two field pieces referred to than they hauled them out of the trenches, placed them in position and opened fire upon the forts and upon the warships in the bay.

Throughout Friday night and Saturday morning the battle was kept up, and at daybreak General Margalla decided that a desperate effort must be made to rally the Spanish troops and take the offensive, as the Moors were sending for and receiving re-enforcements from all sides, and it looked as if they were preparing to concentrate their forces and make an overwhelming rush upon the troops.

General Margalla, shortly after daybreak, had extra ammunition served out to his forces, and in light marching order they left the fortifications, with General Margalla at their head. Hardly had the troops left Fort Cabrerizas than the Moors opened a hot fire upon them, during which the Spanish commander was shot in the head, and died almost instantly.

Charged With Fixed Bayonets.

The Estramadura regiment and the disciplinary battalion were called upon to fix bayonets and charge upon the swarms of Moors occupying the trenches in front of the forts. The Moors, who had been recklessly advancing in spite of the fire directed upon them from guns and rifles, were unable to withstand the attack of cold steel in the hands of the Spanish soldiers. The Moors no sooner got a taste of the bayonet than they began to retreat.

The Spaniards directed their point of attack against the body of Moors who had captured the two guns from the trenches and who had been using them fairly against the forts and against the warships. Nothing seemed to stand before the charge of the Estramadura regiment and the battalion of soldiers undergoing punishment for breaches of military law. They pressed forward, bayoneting those of the Moors who made any stand, and managed to recover the two fieldpieces and send them to the rear.

During the moment of panic which followed the death of General Margalla the Moors succeeded in carrying off the body of the Spanish commander. During the rush onward of the Spanish troops a detachment of them pursued the Moors who were carrying away the general's body, and, after a desperate hand-to-hand conflict with the tribesmen of the desert, the Spaniards succeeded in recovering the body of their late commander and escorted it into Melilla.

General Ortoga afterwards sent a convoy of provisions and ammunition to Fort Cabrerizas, where the Spanish troops had been fighting, without food, for a whole day. No systematic pursuit of the Moors was attempted, owing to the insufficient force of soldiers at Fort Cabrerizas.

A Big Footed Girl.

A collector of rarities at Keokuk, Ia., is the owner of an insole made for the shoes of the young Rainbow (Mo.) giantess. At the time these shoes were made —in the spring of 1891—the girl was only 17 years old, but even then she had a foot that would make "Big Foot January of Ohio" envious. The insole is 15½ inches long and 5½ broad.—St. Louis Republic.

IMPORTANT INVENTION.

A West Quincy Jeweler Invents an Artificial Hand.

Mr. T. L. Williams, jeweler at West Quincy, has just completed a set of artificial hands for Mr. James Donovan, which are a great improvement on anything of the kind ever made before, and a leading physician who has examined them, says they are the best thing he has ever seen.

Four years ago Mr. Donovan was blown up by a premature explosion at Field & Wild's quarry, and as a result of the accident the unfortunate man lost both hands, the right near the elbow and the left at the wrist.

Since that time he has been almost helpless, being unable to do anything for himself. He has a wife and six children, the oldest but eleven years of age, and their lot has been a hard one. Some time since Mr. Williams conceived the idea that he could help the unfortunate man, and after persistent work he completed the two artificial members, and Mr. Donovan is made doubly happy and very thankful to his benefactor.

Mr. Williams' invention differs from the ordinary artificial hands in the manner of operation, as heretofore in like appliances the thumb was worked by a spring which held it in position, but the moment pressure was applied the spring would give, causing the object held to become displaced.

With that made by Mr. Williams the thumb is worked with a worm, operated by a small crank which can be easily worked with either hand. This worm works in a steel rack in the back of the thumb, and by the simple turning of the crank any size object is held in a vise-like grip.

Mr. Donovan put on his artificial hands for the first time Friday, and Saturday afternoon he showed a representative of the LEDGER what he could do with them.

A knife was held in one hand and a fork in the other, and he could use them almost as readily as a person can with natural hands. A pencil was then taken, and although Mr. Donovan had not made a mark for four years, he wrote his name in a perfectly legible manner, and with a little practice he will be able to write a good round hand.

He also has a drinking cup which he can readily use. He says that sometimes he has gone thirsty for many hours as he had no means of getting a drink of water.

Before the unfortunate accident, Mr. Donovan was considered a good penman and he hopes by a little practice to regain his former skill. He is a steady man of temperate habits and would be thankful for any work that will enable him to earn a livelihood, and persons in want of writing or copying are recommended to give him a call.

He feels greatly indebted to Mr. Williams, as by his skill and philanthropy he has been enabled to do something to aid in the support of his family, which has been the sole care of his loving and faithful wife, who has stood by him and kept the wolf from the door.

GOOD FOR QUINCY.

Our Citizens May be Able to Take Many Pleasure Trips on the Cup Defender.

The reports that their might be a steamboat line between this city and Nantasket, and that the cup defender Pilgrim was to be wintered off the Point, are now united. Representative Graham for two years a member of the Rapid Transit committee has had his ideas awakened as to transportation and Quincy and neighboring towns will be benefitted by street railways, steamboat lines, etc. Relative to the steamboat line the Globe says:

"From a possible defender of the America cup to a plain passenger steamer seems quite a transformation, yet that is what seems most likely to happen to the Pilgrim. The sale of the boat to a syndicate of Quincy gentlemen, headed by John R. Graham, is practically completed, and it is expected that the work of changing the sailing yacht into the steamer will soon be entered upon.

"Plans for the work have been for some time in hand by Messrs. Stewart & Binney, designers of the boat, and it will not take long to perfect them.

"It is understood that the syndicate purchasing the Pilgrim intend to run her as a passenger boat between Hull and Houghs Neck in Quincy. She will probably be given twin screws because of her light draft. Her fin will be removed, and she will then draw but little over five feet of water.

"She will have the usual houses on deck but will be given considerable of a yacht rig."

Save the Buildings.

Why should there be any haste in destroying the buildings on Jackson Park? They certainly would last another season before beginning to crumble away, and with their noble proportions and adornments would be a source of great pleasure to Chicago and such outsiders as might visit the city and the Park. Those noble groups of statuary would still be capable of inspiring high ideals. In fact, nothing else at the fair was so marvelous as its setting, including the buildings and the grounds and their adornments, and there is good reason for preserving these as long as possible. Could they be saved another summer, thousands and thousands would visit the Park from sections as remote as New England, and we do not believe that it is too much to say that not a few of those who have seen it this year would be among the most eager to visit it again. By all means save the buildings another season.—Somerville Citizen.

There is a man in our town,
Who is so wondrous wise,
He knows he cannot sing at all,
And so he never tries.

He also knows he has no wit,
Like many funny folks,
And so he never bothers me
By getting off his jokes.

And when he has no word to say,
He's wise enough, though young,
To sit about while others talk
And hold his little tongue.

ALTERED BALANCES.

Bank Clerk Sanford's Swindling Scheme Detected.

HE SPECULATED IN STOCKS.

His Secret Carefully Guarded From His Employers.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—Boston banks are congratulating themselves on the fact that Benjamin E. Sanford of New York confined the exercise of his swindling instincts to his own city. He is said to have embezzled $53,000 of the funds of the Continental National bank of New York. That at least two Boston banking institutions are not sufferers by his peculations is due to the circumstance that he was only a corresponding clerk in the Continental.

The Bank of the Republic and the Hamilton National bank of Boston have deposits in the Continental National. These, with a Washington bank, struck Mr. Sanford as desirable concerns to assist him in his operations. There is always some new swindling scheme cropping up in the banking business, but old financial heads confess that the game of Sanford's was the most daring which was ever perpetrated.

Sanford had been corresponding clerk of the Continental for 18 years. The bank trusted him implicitly, even going so far as to permit him to conduct both the incoming and the outgoing business—which in many large banks is handled by two persons.

This was Sanford's cue. He formed a connection with a brokerage firm named Harris & Co. This Harris & Co. was backed by another firm, Maurice Mendham & Co., who did business for the Harrises, superintending the closing out of their stocks, etc.

It is a vital rule of the Continental that none of its employés shall engage in any outside business, but Sanford kept his secret well. As Sanford controlled both ends of the correspondence, he looked about for a means by which he could profit himself.

His Modus Operandi.

Under his nimble fingers a forged order would develop, purporting to come from one of the banks, and asking that a certain sum be transferred for them to the firm of Harris & Co., through the Mechanics' National bank.

This done, he would prepare a check conforming to the order, get the cashier to sign it and then sent it to the Mechanics' National, which would accept it without question.

Another order in Sanford's expert penmanship would form the basis of another check in favor of another firm. Another signature from the casher, and Sanford would change the name of the firm to whose credit the amount was to be deposited, to Harris & Co., and duly forward the check to the Mechanics' National.

In this ingenious way and between the dates of July 29 and Aug. 9 seven checks had been received by the Mechanics' and deposited to the credit of Harris & Co., three for $10,000 each, two for $5000 each, one for $7000 and one for $6000.

Liberties With Boston Banks.

Mr. Sanford then cast his eyes on the balances of the Hamilton National of Boston and the Washington bank. He proceeded to take liberties with them, and when the monthly statements to these banks were made out he would destroy them and forge others with his own checks omitted.

The Continental bank requests all of its correspondents to show in detail just what items they find correct, so when the return statements from the Boston banks came to hand it was Sanford's hand that clasped them, and it was Sanford's hand which altered them to screen his doings.

A surprising illustration of the control Sanford exercised over the correspondence is given in an instance in which one of the banks sent on two drafts, which, with the forgeries, would have shown an overdrawal of its account. President Randolph of the Continental became possessed of the two papers, and having been informed of the state of the correspondent's account, at once telegraphed the bank asking the reason of the overdrawal.

But Sanford was ready for all such contingencies. He destroyed the message, according to President Randolph's complaint, and on the following morning that official found on his desk a forged reply from the outside bank. The president wrote a letter to the correspondent expressing his congratulations that the hard times had not so much affected it as to compel it to get behind in its accounts, and when Sanford's hands reached for this letter, that was the last seen of it.

On the 21st the Continental learned for the first time that Sanford was a member of the brokerage firm. When questioned the next day about the matter he admitted that it was true. He was at once discharged.

Following this came the snuffing of the firm of Harris & Co., whose members vanished.

Out $53,000.

The Continental bank commenced an investigation of affairs with their correspondents. They had no idea that anything was wrong; nothing but the suspicious fact that Sanford had been doing business outside the bank. Comparisons were made with the corresponding banks, and after much labor the truth was out and the bank was out $53,000.

The Continental's officials are wroth against the Mechanics' for receiving personal business from one of the former's clerks, but the Mechanics' excuses itself by declaring that it thought Sanford had money. The cashier of the Mechanics' states that the account of Harris & Co. was taken by his predecessor in the office, but was always sharply checked up and never allowed to be overdrawn.

Sanford's father was supposed to be a partner in the firm with his son and Percy M. Harris, but he was regarded as a figurehead. Harris, who is thought to have the money, is out of sight, and detectives are looking for him.

Young Sanford has been captured and awaits trial on a civil suit brought by the Continental bank, which scouts all idea of a compromise. The affair is causing a stir in financial circles.

The officials of the Boston banks mentioned regard the amount involved as a very small affair with such a bank as the Continental.

Dr. Parkhurst's Life Threatened.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst has been compelled to put himself under guard. Since he began his first crusade against the vice of New York he has received many threatening letters. Last night when he returned home from his church he was closely guarded, and arrangements have been made to protect him in the future. Dr. Parkhurst said that he would not go out alone in the streets again while the present crusade was under way. Nevertheless he declared that the war against vice and crime would be carried on, no matter what the danger

A Loss of $20,000.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 30.—This city was threatened with a conflagration last evening, when the main building of the carriage factory of Charles Waugh & Co., 442 to 450 Main street, was almost wholly destroyed, entailing a loss of $20,000. Hard work on the part of the firemen prevented the flames from consuming a number of buildings in the immediate neighborhood.

Peter Mulvey Arrested.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 30.—The report which the police gave out that they were done with the Mulvey affair and would not make arrests, was evidently not in accordance with their program, for they arrested his son Peter for assault. Medical Examiner Palmer was directed to hold an autopsy, and the examination revealed the fact that the old man's skull was fractured.

A Serious Charge.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 30.—Peter Fitzpatrick, a cobbler, was arrested last evening. Fitzpatrick, it is alleged, has assaulted six little girls, whose ages range from 5 to 8 years. He is 68 years of age, and has a wife in the old country.

STORY TELLING OWLS

THEIR FUNNY YARNS MADE THE ADIRONDACKS RING WITH MIRTH.

The Jovial Birds Were So Laughter Provoking That the Side Splitting Contagion Spread to Their Human Auditors, and Even the Loons Howled With Delight.

"What amused our party most up in the Adirondacks," said a Scranton man, "was an entertainment given to us by a flock of story telling owls. Our camp was away back in the wilderness of Herkimer county, and we had hardly turned in for the night when a flock of owls alighted on a tree over us and began to tell stories and laugh. Every owl listened in silence to the one that was talking, and when the tale was finished the whole flock laughed as though they were tickled half to death.

"They reminded us of a lot of drummers in a smoking car, and they had such jolly fun it became contagious. We all rolled and laughed over the fun the big eyed birds were having up in the tree, and before long the side splitting contagion attacked some loons out on the lake, which fairly yelled with delight whenever the fun loving owls guffawed and shrieked and shouted over a right good yarn told by one of their number.

"Once in awhile a story was so funny before the knob was reached that we could hear two or three of the feathered listeners snicker and chuckle under their breath, and when the end came the entire flock made the woods ring. The jovial birds had met expressly to swap experiences of the night before, and they talked so plainly that we could easily keep a run of their anecdotes as we lay on our beds of spruce boughs.

"One of the owls told about how a big rat that he had caught by the back yanked itself loose and showed fight. The owl described how he had let the rat flatter itself that it was going to lick him, how he finally bit his tail off at the root, and how the rat then went squealing and zigzagging around with no rudder to guide its movements. The picture so amused the eager auditors that they fell into the most violent fits of laughter, some of them tumbling from their perch, they were so tickled.

"Another owl described the tussle he had had with a tough old jack hare in a swamp. He said that the hare had carried him along through the rushes and over logs for some distance after he had got his claws in its back, and that he at last brought the hare up standing by keeping one claw in its hide and catching hold of a bush with his other claw. The hare rolled over and over as soon as the owl let go of the bush, and the owl said that his feathers pointed in all directions when he finally got the best of the hare. Peal after peal of laughter followed the narrative.

"Another owl told about biting a snake's head off and trying to swallow it. The head stuck in his throat, and he would surely have choked to death, he said, if his mate hadn't come along just then and pulled it out with her claw. The story teller's predicament was such a funny picture to the imagination of the listening owls that they responded with yells of wild delight.

"But the story that fairly upset the whole party of nocturnal roisterers and made them hoot and screech and flutter all over the tree for at least five minutes was told by an owl with an alto voice. He said that he felt like kicking up some mischief the night before, so he sailed out to the settlement, settled down on the window sill of a house in which there was no light and began to tap on the panes with his bill. The folks were asleep, so he flitted to the opposite side of the house and tapped there. Nobody stirred, and he kept going from one side of the house to the other till a woman got up, struck a light and began to try the windows to see if they were fast.

"When she came to his window, he peered in at her, and she started to scream so hard that in a moment her husband sprang out of bed, and four children in their nightclothes came running down stairs and shouting, 'Mamma, what's the matter?' The woman couldn't tell what the matter was, although her husband and young ones kept coaxing her to, but at length she caught her breath long enough to say she had seen a spook at the window.

"At that the man dashed out and began to search around the house, and the owl said he flew to the top of a balsam tree, where he sat till the man went back, when he alighted on the window sill again. The man was angry at his wife for making such a rumpus about nothing, so he drove the children back to bed and went to jawing her like sixty. She jawed back, and they had it hot and heavy till the man got up and ruffed her. Then she threw a dipper of water on him in the bed, and in jumping out at her he knocked the lamp off the stand and put out the light. The owl said he listened to their quarreling and fighting in the dark till he could stand it no longer, when he flew back to the woods. His recital filled his listeners with merriment, and it was several minutes before they calmed down for another anecdote.

"Well, sir, those jovial owls continued to tell stories till 2 o'clock, when we all became so sleepy that we lost all interest in their amusing tales. The loons out on the lake laughed like all possessed whenever the owls did, and the two gangs of midnight merrymakers kept up their racket till we had to go out and drive the owls away by firing our revolvers."—Scranton Letter.

SHREWD BARNEY BIGLIN.

It Was Politics For Him Not to Know Ex-Judge Dittenhoefer.

Most of the stories worth printing about the famous Chicago convention of 1880 have been published, but here is one that seems to be new: Ex-Judge Dittenhoefer was in Chicago working against Grant and a third term. Bernard Biglin was there in the interest of Grant. Both were old personal friends. The night before the balloting began Biglin and two others were appointed a committee to look after several southern delegations, among them being the Kentucky delegation.

When Biglin and his associates arrived at the Kentucky headquarters, they found that Dittenhoefer had got ahead of them. He had the floor and was delivering a strong speech against Grant, saying, among other things, that Grant could not carry New York. Biglin saw that Dittenhoefer's remarks were having great weight, and he realized that he was no match for him as a talker. What to do to break the force of Dittenhoefer's speech was the problem that confronted Biglin. This was the method he selected. In the midst of Dittenhoefer's peroration Biglin called out in loud voice, "Who is that man?"

"Why, he is ex-Judge Dittenhoefer of New York," said a member of the Kentucky delegation.

"Oh, no; that's not Judge Dittenhoefer," said Biglin. "I know Judge Dittenhoefer well. This man may pretend to be Dittenhoefer to strangers, but he knows better than to try to work any such racket with New Yorkers. I tell you he's a fraud."

Biglin's remarks made a sensation. Suspicious glances were cast at Dittenhoefer by members of the Kentucky delegation. The former got red in the face and walked up to Biglin. "Barney," he said, holding out his hand, "that's a pretty good joke of yours, not to know me."

"Joke," shouted Biglin in contempt. "It's no joke, I can tell you. I will just bet you $20 that you are not Judge Dittenhoefer of New York." Biglin flourished a $20 bill in Dittenhoefer's face. Of course he had to accept the challenge. The money was put up in the hands of a member of the delegation. Dittenhoefer hurried away to get some one to identify him. When he returned, Biglin had disappeared, likewise the stakeholder. After the convention Dittenhoefer met Biglin in the hotel corridor. "What did you mean," he said, "by saying you did not know me that night at the Kentucky headquarters?"

"What did you mean," said Biglin, "by saying that Grant could not carry New York?"

"That was politics," answered Dittenhoefer.

"Well," said Biglin, "it was politics my not knowing you."

Dittenhoefer and Biglin are still friends.—New York Press.

What He Helped At.

The congressman was telling stories.

"It was on me once," he said. "I had a friend who was dry as a humorist, but not always dry as a drinker, and when he was full he did foolish things. One of these was to buy a jackass for $500, and when he sobered up and knew what he had done he sold him back to the original seller for $400. Naturally the loss of $100 made him sore, and he did not like to be twitted about it. One day I saw him on a mule waiting in front of a store, and I spoke to him. He was just full enough to be serious.

"'Hello,' I said, and he responded with a nod.

"'You are a judge of that sort of animal you are riding, aren't you?'

"'I don't know that I am particularly so,' he said earnestly.

"'I thought you were in the business.'

"'No, I ain't.'

"'Didn't you buy a jack for $500 not long ago?'

"The crowd that had gathered giggled, and he looked more serious than ever.

"'Yes I did,' he answered solemnly.

"'What did you do with him?' I asked, with a wink at the crowd to be ready.

"He looked at me solemnly.

"'I helped elect him to congress,' he said, without a smile, and the howl that went up made me seek shelter in the nearest place that could be found."—Detroit Free Press.

Human Imitations of Vegetables.

Referring to the fact that the human head is sometimes facetiously and irreverently spoken of as "a cocoanut," the Boston Transcript remarks that scientists have recently discovered a remarkable resemblance between the shell of the fruit and the shell of the human brain. Then it quotes a French scientific periodical to prove that there is a wonderful likeness between other human organs and vegetable products. For example, the meat of the English walnut is a close copy of the form and convolutions of the brain; plums and cherries are like the eye; almonds are shaped like the nose; the ear is brought to mind by an opened oyster and shell; in a mammoth squash the entire body may be traced; the open hand is found in growing scrub willow and celery, and the heart is seen in the German turnip and the eggplant.

The Katydid's Song.

Everybody is familiar with the music of the katydid. It is the male that has the voice. At the base of each wing cover is a thin membraneous plate. He elevates the wing covers and rubs the two plates together. If you could rub your shoulder blades together, you could imitate the operation very nicely.—Washington Star.

REPEAL CARRIES THE DAY.

Voorhees Bill Passed by the Senate, 43 to 32.

THE CLOSING DAY'S BATTLE

Made Memorable by Scenes of Intense Excitement.

Leaders In the Long Contest Express Their Opinions of One Another Without Regard to Senatorial Courtesy—Result Means Destruction and Desolation to the Silver Producing States, Say the Populists—Intensely Impressive Scene When the Decisive Moment Came—Story of the Day's Doings.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—At 7:20 p. m., by a vote of 43 to 32, the senate, after one of the most remarkable and memorable parliamentary battles of a generation, passed the bill unconditionally repealing the purchase clause of the Sherman silver law. The end was reached at the conclusion of a continuous session of 14 days, after 61 days of debate, during which five volumes of the Congressional Record had been filled with speeches amounting in the aggregate to about 20,000,000 words, a stream of talk that would stretch in cold type from the seaboard 1500 miles into the interior, from Liberty Enlightening the World, in New York harbor, to the foothills of the Rocky mountains.

The closing day of the great struggle of the repeal of the purchase of silver was was one of intense excitement. The galleries were packed to the doors, every seat in the senate was occupied, and the walls were lined with representatives from the lower branch of congress. The ægis of senatorial courtesy was no protection in the last moments.

Gray-haired men inflamed by the fiery passions that always characterize the close of a bitter contest did not spare each other. Senator Morgan, with words that fairly burned, heaped his denunciation on Senator Voorhees, the leader of the administration forces, and Senator Wolcott concluded a fierce philippic against Senator Carey with the Spanish proverb of Sancho Panza that it was a waste of lather to shave an ass.

The silver Republicans, Teller, Stewart, Dubois, Wolcott and Jones, Peffer the Populist and Morgan and the old war governor of Tennessee, Harris, each made his valedictory.

The Populists' Warning.

The Democrats were hot and angry at the desertion of some of their colleagues that made their defeat possible, the Populists admonishing the senate that the doom of silver was the doom of the old parties, but there was something tragically apathetic in the despairing cry of the silver senators.

It would bring ruin and destruction and desolation to the silver producing states. Senator Jones, with an emphasis that will never be forgotten by those who heard it, warned those about him that the end of the fight marked but the beginning of the battle that would be waged before the people. In tones deep and tragic he repeated Dundee's famous defiance of Gordon:

There be hills beyond Pentland,
And friths beyond Forth;
If there be lords in the lowlands,
There be chiefs in the north.

Senator Stewart had the last word. When the white-bearded Nevadian, looking like an ancient patriarch, sank back in his seat, Vice President Stevenson for the last time announced that the bill was before the senate for amendment. He paused. Senator Voorhees, the "tall Sycamore of the Wabash," arose. The decisive moment had come.

An Impressive Moment.

The vice president flashed his eye about the chamber. The galleries leaned over. The flood of light from the glass-paneled ceiling poured down upon the senate. The chamber was still as death. Not a soul stirred. Every one seemed to hold his breath.

"If there are no further amendments," said the vice president, slowly and solemnly, "the clerk will call the roll."

"Mr. Allen," began the clerk. The suspense was over. The rubicon had been passed. The roll was at last being called on the final passage of the bill. From all over the senate came a sigh of relief. Mr. Bland, the silver champion of the house, stood like a statue behind the senate desks while the roll was called. Mr. Sherman and Mr. Voorhees, facing each other bolt upright, did not move a muscle. Mr. Peffer stroked his beard. Mr. Hill and Mr. Cockrell paced impatiently up and down the area in front of the vice president's chair.

Mr. Hill sat in the front row talking to his late antagonist, Mr. Butler. It took almost 10 minutes to call the roll and arrange the pairs. When the vice president announced the vote Mr. Voorhees straightened up to his full length. It was a personal victory for him. "I now move," said he, with a note of triumph in his voice, "that the senate adjourn until tomorrow at 12 o'clock."

Before the question could be put the occupants of the galleries were jostling each other in their attempts to crowd out of the doors. The senators fled from the chamber. In 60 seconds none but a few employes remained upon the scene. The long battle was over; the field deserted.

Text of the Voorhees Bill.

The bill which the senate disposed of was the Voorhees bill, un amended and unchanged. The text of this bill is as follows;

That so much of the act approved July 14, 1890, entitled, "An act directing the purchase of silver bullion and issue of treasury notes thereon, and for other purposes," as directs the secretary of the treasury to purchase from time to time silver bullion to the aggregate amount of 4,500,000 ounces, or so much thereof as may be offered in each month at the market price thereof, not exceeding $1 for 371 52-100 grains of pure silver, and to issue in payment for such purchases treasury notes of the United States, be and the same is hereby repealed.

And it is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to continue the use of both gold and silver as standard money, and to coin both gold and silver into money of equal intrinsic and exchangeable value, such equality to be secured through international agreement, or by such safeguards of legislation as will insure the maintenance of the parity in value of the coins of the two metals and the equal power of every dollar at all times in the markets and in the payment of debts.

And it is hereby further declared that the efforts of the government should be steadily directed to the establishment of such a safe system of bimetallism as will mdintain at all times the equal power of every dollar coined or issued by the United States in the markets or in the payment of debts.

The measure will now be sent to the house for concurrence where distinct affirmative action is required, as the Voorhees bill is a substitute for the Wilson bill which passed the house Monday, Aug. 28, by a vote of 239 to 108. Representative Tracey of New York, the congressional "whip" of the repealers, is confident he can have a quorum on hand when the question is called up, and that the movement said to have been discussed of postponing action until after the coming elections will not prevail.

The Debate and Vote.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—When the senate entered upon the 13th week of the present extraordinary session a rollcall showed the presence of 52 senators. When the consideration of the bill to repeal the purchasing clause of the Sherman act was resumed, Mr. Hunton (Dem., Va.) in a few words defined his position, saying he would vote for unconditional repeal and then stand ready to join with the friends of silver in a fight for that metal. Mr. Cameron (Rep., Pa.) then read a statement as to his position and views on the repeal bill.

Mr. Morgan (Dem., Ala.) then addressed the senate. He made a bitter speech against the passage of the bill.

Mr. Vest (Dem., Mo.), following Mr. Morgan, expressed his sympathy with the people of the silver states, and said no czar or kaiser would desolate an insurrectionary proviso as congress was about to desolate the silver states of the west.

Mr. Cockrell (Dem., Mo.) argued that at the last election the tariff question, and not the financial question, had been pressed to the front, and on it the Democratic party secured a majority. Democrats had expected that if there was to be an extra session it would be called to reform the tariff. But now that the election was over, tariff was lost sight of, and the senior senator from New York (Mr. Hill) was beheld pitching to the front headlong on the financial question. The lion at one end of the avenue and the tiger at the other (meaning Hill) were coming together in a fond embrace. The bill was to pass. It had been taken out of the hands of the Democrats, and Republican senators had to be consulted before anything could be done, and the Republican party was infinitely more responsible for unconditional repeal than the Democratic party.

Mr. Cockrell closed with the statement that if the repeal of the Sherman law failed to restore prosperity, the Republican party must bear the responsibility.

Mr. Carey (Rep., Wy.) defended his position on the repeal bill. He said he should vote for unconditional repeal, although he favored a compromise. Mr. Wolcott had said to him that he desired no compromise, and if the senators from the silver states went home empty handed, it was their own fault.

Mr. Wolcott spoke briefly in reply to Mr. Carey. He was followed by Senator Jones, who at 6:30 was interrupted by Senator Harris to move an adjournment. Senator Faulkner resisted and the debate went on. Senator Peffer followed Senator Jones, and concluded at 7 o'clock, when Senator Harris began to speak and occupied the floor for 10 minutes.

Mr. Stewart of Nevada spoke until 7:20, and then the vote was taken on the passage of the bill.

The vote on the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law was: Yeas, 43; nays, 32.

YEAS—Aldrich, Brice, Caffery, Camden, Carey, Cullom, Davis, Dixon, Dolph, Faulkner, Frye, Gallinger, Gibson, Gorman, Gray, Hale, Hawley, Higgins, Hill, Hoar, Hunton, Lindsay, Lodge, McMillin, McPherson, Manderson, Mills, Mitchell of Wisconsin, Morrill, Murphy, Platt, Proctor, Quay, Ransom, Sherman, Smith, Squire, Stockbridge, Turpie, Vilas, Voorhees, Washburn, White of Louisiana—43.

NAYS—Allen, Bate, Berry, Blackburn, Butler, Call, Cameron, Cockrell, Coke, Daniel, Dubois, George, Harris, Irby, Jones of Arkansas, Jones of Nevada, Kyle, Martin, Pasco, Peffer, Perkins, Pettigrew, Power, Pugh, Roach, Shoup, Stewart, Teller, Vance, Vest, Walthall, Wolcott—32.

Before the closing speeches were delivered Mr. Stewart offered an amendment to the bill reducing the gold in gold coins 25 per cent, but accepted a negative verdict without calling for the yeas and nays. Mr. Pasco also offered his amendment for the free coinage of silver with a seigniorage charge to be based upon the market price of silver, and it was defeated on rollcall by a vote of 20 years to 47 nays.

At 7:30 the senate, on motion of Mr. Voorhees, adjourned.

Quincy's Successor Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The president sent the following nominations to the senate: Edward F. Uhl of Michigan, to be assistant secretary of state; James R. Roosevelt of New York, secretary of embassy of the United States at London; Captain Edward T. Comegys, surgeon with rank of major. Consuls of the United States: J. Edward Nettles of South Carolina at Trieste; Robert J. Kirk of South Carolina at Copenhagen; Charles E. Davis of Illinois, to be agent for the Indians of the Colorado river agency in Arizona. Edward F. Uhl is a popular and influential Democrat, and has served two terms as mayor of Grand Rapids.

Death of Ex-Premier Abbott.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31.—Sir John Joseph Caldwell Abbott, ex-premier of Canada, died at 8:30 last evening. He was a great sufferer from acute gastritis, and about two weeks ago an operation was performed, which the doctor knew would relieve his agony but would not save his life.

CLOSED AMID GLOOM.

Last Day of the World's Fair Devoid of Merriment.

MURDER OF MR. HARRISON

Causes Regret to Take the Place of Happiness.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The white city at Jackson park was quiet yesterday in honor of Chicago's dead mayor. Instead of oratory, music and fetes and the fluttering of thousands of banners, there was everywhere the evidence of silent regret.

The great exposition merely closed by limitation of the act of congress; the flags were at half mast, but at sunset the national salute of 21 guns was fired as an announcement that the nation's fair had officially closed.

At 11 o'clock, in Festival hall, the big meeting which had been planned for speeches of congratulation and of presenting to foreign commissioners the evidences of success of their exhibitions was abandoned, so far as those features were concerned.

When the invited guests and the public reached the hall it was to hear reasons of regret over the taking away of Carter Harrison. The ceremonies were simple and impressive, for they ended with the adoption of the resolutions.

Mourning Everywhere.

From turret, dome and spire of the white city's palaces hung the emblems of the nations at mourning height on the dying day of the World's Columbian exposition.

The people came and, looking toward the sun-lit sky of blue, realized that not only Chicago mourned, but also the whole world of humanity as represented at the exposition. They found no evidences of rejoicing over the crowning achievement of the age; no sounds of sweet music in the court of honor; no merry throngs, no celebration—only a solemn stillness, an unparalleled tribute to the memory of Chicago's mayor.

The multitude laid their tribute of respect on the bier of the assassin's victim as much by their presence and their quiet actions as if they had laid rich flowers on the casket and eulogized the dead in eloquent speech. The greatest exposition the world has witnessed died in the same gloom and silence which pervaded the home of the afflicted family.

Tribute to the Dead Mayor.

At 11 o'clock the committee of 12 which was chosen to draft the resolutions which were read to the people in Festival hall met in President Higinbotham's office. The resolutions expressed at some length, and in the most sympathetic language at the committee's command, the general sorrow and shock which the tragic end of the World's fair city's chief magistrate created in the hearts and minds of the national commissioners, foreign and state representatives, the board of lady managers, the exhibitors, the directors and executive officers of the exposition.

At Festival hall, later, came the formal announcement by President Palmer of the mayor's death and a statement that all exercises of the festive character would be omitted. The resolutions were then presented without any accompanying speech, although many eloquent orators were present. The resolutions expressed in their sympathy and sentiments all that orators could say.

The foreign and American representatives, as well as the governing bodies of the exposition, who were seated on the platform and in the body of the hall, showed by their rising, in response to the request from President Palmer, that the resolutions voiced the sorrow and sympathy of all the world, because the world was represented there.

President Palmer then formally announced that in compliance with the act of congress the exposition was officially at an end as a World's exposition. After Rev. Dr. Barrows had offered up a short prayer and pronounced the benediction, the gathering of mourners quietly dispersed.

The World's fair, like Carter Harrison, was no more.

The total admission on passes, including the employes of all kinds, exhibitors, concessionaires, etc., has been 5,953,648.

When Chairman Peck of the finance committee figured up with Treasurer Seeburger, he found the exposition had just $515,000 in bank, and the souvenir coin fund.

Estimating the receipts at $150,000 more than the cost of admission for the day, the balance on hand at midnight Oct. 30 was nearly $2,750,000. Of this sum nearly $1,500,000 is in souvenir coins, estimated at their face value of 50 cents each.

Makes a Specialty of Churches.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Oct. 31.—The attempt to fire the Winter Street church Sunday evening was duplicated last night at the Grace Methodist Episcopal church. A service was being held at Epworth hall. The sexton found a cushion folded under a pew and on fire, exactly as was found in the Winter Street church Sunday night. The damage was small.

THINK FOR A MOMENT to what uses a few good rugs may be put in your house.

In the first place, as floor coverings, they are not approached by any other carpets known. Beautiful, durable, artistic, — easily taken up and cleansed, — capable of ready change from room to room for variety's sake, — always available if one removes to another house, — certain to be "in style," — that's what rugs are on the floor.

Then, again, suppose you throw one gracefully over a couch, or use it as a portière, or hang it upon the wall as a background for choice furniture or works of art?

Our assortment of Oriental Rugs and Carpets, replenished by fresh importations, is quite without an equal hereabouts. Not only do we offer some extra fine Antiques, ranging in price up to $1,000 each, but we have also paid special attention to medium grades, in choice colorings, the prices of which begin at $5.00 — for which sum a very handsome and durable rug can be obtained, though not, of course, of large size.

REMEMBER these two things: 1st. That owing to our great number of EXCLUSIVE patterns, obtainable nowhere else, it is simply IMPOSSIBLE for a purchaser to really know what there is in the market without examining OUR STOCK. 2d. That, considering quality and style, our PRICES are the LOWEST in Boston.

THE ORDER appropriating $62,000 for a new high school had a narrow squeak Monday night as one less vote in the affirmative would have killed it.

THE CLOSING day's battle in the great silver fight in the United States Senate is graphically told on the first page today. It was one of intense excitement.

THE WONDERFUL World's Fair is closed, and the Chicago dispatch on the first page tells of remarkable attendances on special days and compares them to the Philadelphia and Paris expositions.

THE DEMOCRATS of the Senate seem to have straddled the fence on the repeal of the silver purchase bill: 19 for repeal and 19 against repeal. A tie vote is equivalent to a vote against repeal. The Republicans gave a majority for repeal.

THE NEW STEAMBOAT LINE.

Quincy and Boston Capitalists Booming a Line Between Quincy and Boston.

The preliminary organization of a company which is to be incorporated as the Quincy, Boston and Nantasket Steamboat Co., has been formed by Quincy and Boston capitalists, among whom are John R. Graham, John F. Merrill, John A. Duggan, L. L. Spaulding, James E. Kilburn, Wesley A. Gove, N. P. Doane, William Gallison, John F. Lynch and F. C. Willington, to build and run a line of steamboats from Quincy Point to Houghs Neck, Nantasket and Boston.

The organization of the new company is as follows: President, John R. Graham; vice president, William Gallison; clerk and treasurer, Wesley A. Gore; directors, F. C. Willington, John G. Lynch, John F. Merrill and N. P. Banks.

Plans have been perfected for a 90-foot propeller, which will be built at the Fore River engine works.

The directors of the new company visited Quincy today and inspected the landings.

Sierverts—Brackett.

A delightful wedding occurred at Gorham Me., Oct. 24, the contracting parties being William Sierverts of Boston, and Miss Maud M. Brackett, daughter of Lewis J. Brackett of Gorham, Me.

The ceremony was witnessed by a small circle of near relatives and friends. The presents were numerous and costly.

Mr. and Mrs. Sierverts are upon an extended tour of the West, and when they return will reside at 15 Botolph Street, Atlantic, Mass., being at home Wednesdays in December.

Verdict of $2208.

Edward Powers of this city secured a verdict of $2,208 in the superior court at Dedham Monday, against the Quincy & Boston Street Railway, for the killing of his little son, Edward J. Powers on the railway on Franklin street on May 17, 1892. J. W. McAnarney and J. E. Cotter appeared for the plaintiff.

Rockland Case Compromised.

The suit of the Rockland Congregational church against several insurance companies (including the Quincy Mutual) was decided on a compromise basis Monday. The jury will return a verdict for the companies, who will pay the insured a certain proportion of the loss. While the moral effect of this disposal of the case will not be as potent as an unconditional verdict, it is, nevertheless, sufficient to show that so dangerous a tool as a naphtha lamp cannot be used for the purpose of burning off paint without vitiating the policy of insurance. The decision establishes the principle for which the insurance companies fought, and at the same time, from a charitable point of view, gives the church an amount of funds much needed in the rebuilding of its edifice.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

Passes by Two-Thirds the Appropriation of $62,000 for

THE NEW HIGH SCHOOLHOUSE.

The Contractor Must Give Preference to Citizens of Quincy Desiring Work.

The City Council held a meeting Monday evening, at which all members were present except Councilmen Anderson, Badger and Donaher.

Councilman Sherman moved to suspend rule 1 and that when the Council adjourns it be until Wednesday evening Nov. 15.

Reports of Committees.

The Committee on State aid recommended $4 per month for Harriet H. Connors. Adopted.

Councilman Smith offered a resolution requesting the Mayor to have a clause in the Contract for the new High School that contractors shall give preference to citizens of Quincy capable of performing the work. Adopted.

Councilman Sherman moved that the Committee on Election meet Nov. 7, at 9 P. M. Adopted.

New High School.

The Committee on Ordinances reported the order of appropriating $62,000 for new High school as properly engrossed.

Councilman Federhen moved that the matter be referred to the incoming City Council.

Councilman Williams did not believe in building the school at this time.

Councilman Shackley hoped the order would not be referred to incoming Council as there was absolute need of a new building.

Chairman Crane of the School Board said it was absolutely necessary to have a new building. The number of scholars at the High school today was 68 boys and 173 girls, making a total of 241, crowded into a building not sufficient for 100. Last year 75 per cent of the grammar school graduates entered the High school, and if the same per cent enters next year, allowing for the graduation class there will be 346 pupils. We have today 84 Quincy born girls in the High school. These have been asked about the Woodward school. Two said they intended to go to the school and one might poossibly.

Councilman Holbrook inquired how many the new building would accommodate.

Chairman Crane answered 400 and so arranged that more could be accommodated if necessary.

Councilman Holbrook said it was very important to consider the needs ten years from now. He was not ready to vote tonight on this question.

Councilman Shackley believed there was an urgent need of this building. A building of this magnitude should be given a year to dry.

Councilman Johnson thought some members of the Council desired information.

Councilman Baker said this building was adequate for some years to come.

Councilman Holbrook was in favor of going slow and sure. He did not believe much would be gained by starting the building now.

Councilman Moxon thought that as the resolution in regard to giving citizens the preference the council should appropriate the money so that they could have something to do.

Upon motion of Councilman Baker a recess of fifteen minutes was taken to examine the plans.

At the expiration of the recess Councilman Federhen withdrew his motion and the order was passed to be ordained by the following vote:

YEAS,—Adams, Baker, Bass, Brown, Federhen, Grindell, Holden, Johnson, Moxon, O'Connell, Owen, Robbins, Rooney, Shackley, Sherman, Smith—16.

NAYS, — Drake, Holbrook, Lennon, Williams—4.

ABSENT,—Anderson, Badger, Donahoe—3.

Adjourned at 8.38 to meet Nov. 15.

☞ Comforters and Blankets—not the skimped and dwarfish kind. A line that's sure to suit—from 75 cents to $4.90.—Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

Surprise and Presentation.

About fifty of the young people of the Congregational church went to Forest Hills, Monday evening, and surprised Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Sampson, who recently married and removed thither. The young couple were first serenaded and when the surprisers were invited in their spokesman, Dr. C. T. Sherman, presented a handsome silver water cooler and salver, both marked with the old English "S." A very pleasant evening was enjoyed.

Land for a Playground.

It is understood that the park commissioners have purchased of Sherman & Nickerson the plot of land at Atlantic near the depot, bounded by Atlantic avenue, Old Colony and Depot streets, for a public playground. One of the houses now on the land will be moved to the north side and a new building will be erected for the postoffice.

THE VOTING LISTS.

A Grand Total of Nearly 3600 Qualified Voters.

LARGEST GAIN AT ATLANTIC.

Wollaston and Quincy Point Next—West Quincy Gains But Four.

The new voting lists to be issued this week show a gain in each ward of the city and an unexpected gain over last year which was an exciting Presidential contest. Registration closed Saturday evening with a grand total of 3573.

The Board of Registrars have added to the lists since Oct. 1, a total of 396 names, and dropped 2 because of death.

The following table compares the number at the coming State election with the number at previous two. It shows a gain of 106 for one year, and 561 for two years. The number printed on the first lists in 1892 was 2,935, and on the first lists this year 3179. The gain by registration last year was 532; this year 394.

| | Voters Today. | Nov. 1 1892. | Nov. 1 1891. | Oct. 1 1893. | Oct. 1 1892. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Ward One, | 679 | 670 | 586 | 619 | 576 |
| Ward Two, | 562 | 549 | 509 | 521 | 489 |
| Ward Three, | 691 | 679 | 572 | 590 | 567 |
| Ward Four, | 747 | 743 | 672 | 682 | 646 |
| Ward Five, | 513 | 481 | 367 | 460 | 388 |
| Ward Six, | 381 | 345 | 306 | 347 | 289 |
| The City, | 3,573 | 3,467 | 3,012 | 3,179 | 2 935 |

The total on the lists at the last city election in December, 1892, was 3,459.

The largest gain was in the smallest wards, being in nearly reverse order as will be seen by these figures. In number of voters they stand:

4, 3, 1, 2, 5, 6.

In gain:

6, 5, 2, 3, 1, 4.

The following table shows the gain by wards in the city over the last two State elections:

| | Gain in One Year. | Gain in Two Years |
|---|---|---|
| Ward One, | 9 | 93 |
| Ward Two, | 13 | 53 |
| Ward Three, | 12 | 119 |
| Ward Four, | 4 | 75 |
| Ward Five, | 32 | 146 |
| Ward Six, | 36 | 75 |
| | 106 | 561 |

Ward Four continues the largest ward as in the past, but not by as large a lead. It now has but 56 more voters than Ward Three, while it had 64 in 1892, and 86 more than Ward One in 1891.

The South Quincy ward which passed the Centre last year, has increased its lead of 9 to 12.

Ward One's gain was small compared with last year, but it has nearly 100 more voters than November, 1891.

The Quincy Point ward will have difficulty in keeping ahead of the Wollaston ward, as the latter is gaining three times as fast, and Ward Two leads by only 49.

Wollaston is showing rapid gains—32 this year, and 146 in two years. It don't propose to remain a small ward.

The Atlantic ward, which makes the largest net gain this year, has also gained as many in two years as West Quincy, and the many land booms within its limits indicate big gains in the near future. In a few years it may become the largest ward in the city.

"Let me look at the letters in the B box, please," said a man to a clerk in an uptown hotel.

The elegantly attired gentleman behind the marble bestowed a stony stare upon the other individual and in his most icy tones asked,—

"What name, sir?"

"Brown—Alfred Brown."

"We have no mail here for you, sir. You will probably find it at the post-office," said the clerk, in accents that froze into icicles as the words dropped from his lips.

After the man left, the clerk remarked,—

"This set of bores is the very worst that beset us. The men who lounge in our easy chairs, use our stationery and make themselves generally at home in the lobby are nothing compared to those fellow who will have his mail sent in the care of the hotel of which he is not and has never been a guest. The public have no idea what a terrible nuisance and how much time is consumed in dealing with these individuals. As soon as we find them out we send the letters back to the post-office. Many men will take a room for a day or night at a hotel and then go to a boarding or lodging house, just for the purpose of having their mail sent in our care and so that they can afterwards use our stationery. We quickly tumble to them and send their mail back to the post-office, and in nine cases out of ten this will freeze them out."

---

"Please, mum, would ye be so kind as to let me have a needle and thread?"

Mrs. Suburb—"Well y-e-s, I can let you have that. "Thankee, mum. Now you'd oblige me very much if you'll let me have a bit of cloth for a patch."

"Well, here it is."

"Thankee, mum, but it's a different color from my travelin' suit. Perhaps, mum, you could spare me some of your husband's old clothes that this patch will match."

"Well I declare! I'll give you an old suit, however. Here it is."

"Thankee mum. I see it's a little large, mum, but if you'll kindly furnish me with a square meal, mebby I can fill it out."

STREET RAILWAYS.

The Air Is Full of Them and Quincy Will be Benefitted.

There will be no limit to the distance Quincy people may ride in the street cars in a few years. In addition to the Weymouth and Braintree extensions of the Quincy & Boston Street Railway, the Boston Advertiser adds:

It is said that a scheme is being considered for the extention of what is known as the Norfolk Suburban Street Railway system, now being built from Dedham through Hyde Park to Mattapan, through Milton to Quincy, and also through Canton and Sharon Village to Lake Massapoag. The above branches would start from the Hyde Park end, and would cater to the summer travel to the Quincy beaches and Sharon's beautiful lake. On the Dedham end, a branch would run down Washington street to Germantown, giving the people of that growing village what they greatly need—railway convenience; and then down Grove street to West Roxbury and Roslindale, connecting with the West End system at either Forest Hills or Jamaica Plain. Another talked of branch from Dedham, is through West Dedham to Walpole; and yet another is through Needham to the Newtons, where a connection could be made with the system in operation there. As yet, the plans of the proposed extensions are in a very crude shape, and the matter will probably not be pushed until the spring of 1895.

ALUMNI REUNION.

Pleasant Gathering at Parker House of Adams Academy Alumni Association.

The annual dinner of the Adams Academy Alumni Association was held at the Parker House, Boston, on Monday evening.

A business meeting was held before the dinner and the following officers were re-elected:

President,—Mr. T. C. Thacher.

Vice Presidents,—Messrs. W. R. Tyler, Frederick Warren, Perry Lawton, W. I. Badger, and John O. Hall, Jr.

Secretary and Treasurer,—A. R. Wendell.

After a few moments of conversation the company sat down before the dinner. After the dinner was over speeches were made by Mr. T. C. Thacher, Mr. W. R. Tyler, Mr. Charles E. Loud, Mr. Charles Warren, Mr. W. I. Badger and others. Three good long cheers, which made the walls ring, were given both for Dr. Everett and Mr. Tyler, the past and present masters of the school. Dr. Everett was expected to be present but owing to a sudden call to Washington to Congressional work, was unable to be there. Great interest was shown toward the welfare of the school and plans were submitted for increasing the prosperity of the school. A vote of thanks was passed to Dr. Everett for his untiring energy and unparalleled generosity toward the school.

After the dinner was over the party adjourned to the next room where a few old college songs were sung as only college men can sing them. Mr. Charles Warren, Mr. E. B. Pratt, Jr., and Charles H. Porter, Jr., officiated in turn at the piano. About eleven o'clock the party broke up after a very enjoyable evening. The names of those present:

—From the New England pulpits Sunday poured gentle floods of commendation for Lucy Stone's life and sorrow for her death. Yet, when she began her crusade in behalf of women, it is altogether unlikely that the modest girl, striving with the almost hopeless task of storming the battlements of prejudice, had even a dream of the fame and love and admiration that were one day to be her portion.—Brockton Enterprise.

---

—In sentencing the bitter little anarchist, Emma Goldman, to a year in prison, the other day in New York, Judge Martin said: "You are a woman above the ordinary intellence, yet you have testified you have no respect for our laws. There is no room for you in this community." This is the way to talk it. We need more Judge Martines in this country.—Milford Journal.

John E. Russell, the democratic candidate for governor of Massachusetts, was formerly secretary of the state board of agriculture. He filled that position very well, but with no such degree of absolute perfection as the party press represent. When in Congress Mr. Russell lost much of his hold on the farmers of the state, by advocating the repeal of the national oleomargarine act.—N. E. Homestead Oct. 19th 1893.

PRENDERGAST INDICTED.

Justice Moves Quickly In the Case of the Assassin.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Condolence has not yet ceased to come into the family of Carter Harrison. From all over the world friends and public men have sent their sorrowful sentiments for the death of the World's fair mayor.

Perhaps there was not a single individual in the United States who was known as well as Mr. Harrison. All during the fair he had been a moving spirit, and had come in contact with every representative of the nations of the earth. It is only natural that these representatives in their reports to their courts should speak in words of praise of the ruler of Chicago. To many of these representatives the loss is keenly felt as a personal one.

Miss Annie Howard, who was looking forward to Nov. 16 as her bridal day, lies dangerously sick at the home of Carter Harrison, Jr. Grave fears are expressed by her physicians that she will not recover from the shock she has sustained.

Her brothers, Frank and Harry T. Howard, arrived from New Orleans yesterday afternoon and proceeded at once to the late mayor's residence. They announced that they would take their sister home to Biloxi as soon as she is able to be moved.

Meanwhile, stern justice is taking its course with the crank, Prendergast. Inspector Shea appeared before the grand jury yesterday, and immediately an indictment was found against the prisoner.

The murderer is closely watched day and night, and has little chance to do himself harm. He persistently refuses to say anything, and sits in his cell in stolid silence. His jailors think he now realizes his crime.

FORGED SECURITIES.

Bank Swindler Visits Waltham and Works His Little Game.

WALTHAM, Mass., Oct. 31.—The Waltham National bank was swindled out of $85, over a week ago, by a well-dressed young man who presented a check drawn on the Arlington bank of Lawrence; but Teller Buncher refused to cash the check until it was indorsed by some local man. He then left to secure the indorsement of Alderman O. M. Gove, who, he said, was an old friend of his family. He returned later with the check signed with Mr. Gove's name on the back, and he got the money.

Last Friday the check came back from Lawrence with the information that there were no funds to the credit of Roy N. Paul, that being the name used. Mr. Gove pronounced the signature a forgery. The police were notified, but up to the present time their work has been without success.

Another check has since been received by the Lawrence bank from Allentown, Pa., and it is expected the young swindler left this state immediately after the Waltham job. It is also understood that a young man answering the description of the swindler called at the Lawrence bank a few days before the check was presented in Waltham, and it is supposed that he stole the bank checks at the same time.

IN THE NICK OF TIME.

Shipwrecked Sailors Rescued by the Crew of the Victoria.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—While running through a nasty cross sea on Oct. 24, the British steamer Victoria fell in with the water logged Norwegian bark Saigons. Her battered decks were awash and nothing but the stumps of her masts remained standing. When a boat from the Victoria approached the crew saw that numerous sharks were hovering near, waiting for the exhausted sailors of the bark to drop into the sea.

The water in the immediate vicinity appeared to be alive with the maneaters. The shipwrecked sailors were terrified by the sharks and dared not make an effort to reach the small boat when it drew alongside. They were afraid of falling overboard in making the transfer.

The rescuing boat returned to the steamship, where a rifle and revolvers were procured. Several sharks were shot and instantly devoured by the others. While the rescuing party kept the sharks at bay with boathooks and oars the sailors reached their boat, lowered themselves into it and pulled away from their sinking craft. The Victoria's crew took their boat in tow and put the men on their vessel.

Remembered Woman Suffrage.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—The will of the late Mrs. Lucy Stone was yesterday filed in the Suffolk probate court. It gives all her property to Henry B. Blackwell, her husband, and Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, her daughter, in equal shares. She requests them to hold and dispose of, in their discretion, for the use and benefit of the woman suffrage cause, all the unexpended parts of any legacy or devise given her by will or otherwise. The will is dated Sept. 26 last.

Murderess Beheaded.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The woman Zillman, who was adjudged guilty of causing the death of her husband by poison, was beheaded yesterday. Before she was led out she asked for coffee and a well-done beefsteak, remarking that she would like to eat as much as she liked once more. She declared her innocence to the last. She was almost prostrate as she was led to the block.

A Gloomy Record.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 31.—For the year ending Oct. 31, the loss of life and property in the Gloucester fisheries exceed that of the previous year. In all 63 lives were lost as compared to 46 last year, and 12 schooners, besides vessels, stranded. The total tonnage loss aside from the latter was 836, at a valuation of $70,000, with an insurance of $55,711.

Condition of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—A long letter from Secretary Carlisle was laid before the senate yesterday. In substance the letter shows that the silver bullion on hand in the treasury is 139,466,257 ounces, costing $125,888,929, of a coinage value of $180,320,008. The seigniorage is $54,431,080. No silver, save proof pieces, has been coined since May last.

Firebug Sentenced.

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 31.—In the supreme court the case of Carlos C. Tuttle of Weare, charged with maliciously setting fire to buildings at Weare, was heard. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, and Tuttle was sentenced to seven years in state prison.

To Make Room for Another.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Secretary Carlisle has asked for the resignation of James E. French, collector of internal revenue for the district of New Hampshire.

What Might Be Done.

What might be done if men were wise—
What glorious deeds, my suffering brother.
Would they unite
In love and right
And cease their scorn of one another.

Oppression's heart might be imbued
With kindling drops of loving kindness,
And knowledge pour
From shore to shore
Light on the eyes of mental blindness.

All slavery, warfare, lies and wrongs,
All vice and crime might die together,
And wine and corn
To each man born
Be free as warmth in summer weather.

The meanest wretch that ever trod,
The deepest sunk in guilt and sorrow,
Might stand erect
In self respect
And share the teeming world tomorrow.

What might be done? This might be done,
And more than this, my suffering brother
More than the tongue
E'er said or sung,
If men were wise and loved each other.
—Charles Mackay.

Alleged Prison Abuse.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—The house of correction is to be investigated. Plain speaking was indulged in at the hearing before the board of aldermen last night, and officials of the South Boston institution were roundly lashed. At the close of the hearing the board ordered a public investigation.

Burned Alive.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Oct. 31.—Mrs. Therea Krause, 52 years of age, and who for 15 years has been an invalid, was singeing a chicken over a pan of fire in the kitchen, when her clothing ignited, and before aid reached her she was literally roasted to death.

Attacked by Bulldogs.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 31.—Two bulldogs attacked Miss Harriet Howes, a prominent society woman, in Worst d's reet, and before they were driven off had torn her clothing and bitten her on the face and hands. Her injuries are serious. The dogs were killed.

The Darien Sensation.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 31.—Charles Clark was identified yesterday by his niece, Miss Louise Hopkins, as the wretch who attempted to assault her in Darien a few weeks ago. She is recovering from the shock.

Three Years In Jail.

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 31.—Patrick F Blake was sentenced to three years a hard labor in the county jail for the killing of Heroux, when both men were intoxicated.

An Abscess In the Church.

There is a negro church in Somerville, and some funny things happen there. It seems that there was a little recess behind the pulpit which was used for the pastor's dressing room. One day in a heavy rain the fresco fell with a crash upon the floor. Preparations were made to repair the damage with the customary African promptness.

The pastor, however, soon got disgusted, and one morning, after getting his feet covered with the dusty mortar, he ascended the pulpit. Casting his eye upon the dusty deacons of the church, he announced with dignity: "Bredren and sisters, it gibs yo' pastor great pain to call attention to the state of affairs in dis yere church: but, bredren, de gospel in dis yere church must cease to be dispensed with till de abscess in de rear ob de pulpit am fricasseed."

The fresco was put up next day.—Boston Budget.

HE WANTED A JOB.

Disappointed Man Attempts a Deliberate Murder.

HOT SKIRMISH WITH POLICE

After Which He Is Safely Landed In Prison.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—At 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon a crazy man fired two shots from a six-barrelled revolver into the stomach of a man whom he, in his insanity, imagined had done him a wrong. The man who was shot was Frederick Matthias. The man who did the shooting is said to be named Thomas Bradley.

Matthias is superintendent of construction of the new Postal Telegraph building at Murray street and Broadway. But for the fact that 10 policemen of the Broadway squad with their bodies and batons defended the prostrate, bleeding, mangled and shrieking form of the would-be murderer, an infuriated mob of over 1500 men, armed with sticks, clubs and stones, would have lynched him. The police had all they could do to keep back the struggling crowd, and, as it was, many a head was cracked by the police in their struggles to get the crazy man away.

The first intimation that the citizens promenading on Broadway at that hour had that anything out of the way was going on, was when the ambulance from the Chambers street hospital dashed up in front of the Postal Telegraph company's new building. Five minutes before that 100 excited men had rushed out from the basement of the building. They cried "Police" and "Murder," and immediately there was an immense and excited throng all around that corner. In a short time doctors appeared from the building with a stretcher, on which was the form of a man. Blood dropped through a hole in the middle of the stretcher to the street. The man on the stretcher was crying, moaning and cursing.

Crowd Became Excited.

"He's killed me," was all that the crowd could hear. In an instant the basement of the building out of which the man had been carried was filled with a surging crowd. Behind a pile of cornice was a man who had attempted a murder. The crowd then made a dash for the narrow exits, and there was the wildest scene of confusion. A pistol shot from behind the pile of cornice did not help to keep the crowd from going too fast. Men hit each other with the fury of fear in their hearts, and half a dozen were trampled down.

News had reached the police station that a madman was loose in the new postal building, and the police were immediately sent to the scene. They cleared the place and marched into the basement.

Behind the pile of cornice in the northeast corner lay the man who had attempted to murder Superintendent Matthias. The police learned that he had fired only two shots from his revolver and that he had four more to shoot, so that they advanced cautiously.

They took up positions behind piles of cornice, which had been rapidly thrown up as breastworks. To scare the man out the police opened fire and about 20 shots in all were fired. The man did not come out at the first volley, but when a policeman got up on top of the pile, while the others were averting the man's attention, and pointed a pistol at him, already cocked, and told him that unless he came out in three minutes he would be a dead man, the man threw up his hands.

The policeman took out his watch and called out at the end of one minute, then at the second minute. Then there was an ominous clicking as every policeman in the crowd cocked his revolver. A moment later and the policeman on top of the pile came rolling down. There was a report of a pistol and the crowd cried out that the policeman had been shot.

The Capture.

This proved untrue, as the policeman jumped up immediately. Then the cry went up that the man had come from behind the pile of cornices. Policeman Gillespie made a rush at the man before he got to the exit to Broadway and hit him a crack over the head with his stick. The man, shrieking and crying, striking out right and left with his fists, was felled to the ground, and half a dozen policemen fell on top of him. It required three minutes' steady clubbing to subdue him.

Then ensued another wild rush, and the crowd tried to get at the man to lynch him. The policemen had the greatest difficulty in getting the man through the crowd to the station house.

The man had been loafing around the building all day. He had been hiding behind piles of bricks and saying that the policemen and the superintendent were after him trying to murder him for stealing $500. At 3:30 o'clock he came from behind a pile, and stepped up to the superintendent and deliberately fired two shots into his stomach. Then, waving his umbrella and calling to the men to keep back, he took refuge behind a pile of bricks.

At the station the prisoner said his name was Thomas Bradley; that he was 31 years old, and that he was born in Ireland. He said that he had no occupation and no home. He was starving when he went to ask for work at the Postal Telegraph building yesterday. Work had been refused him, he said. He was in despair.

He asked Superintendent Matthias for work again yesterday afternoon and was roughly ordered away. Then he said he tried to protest, and Superintendent Matthias had drawn a revolver and shot at him. Then he drew his own pistol and shot at his assailant. Superintendent Matthias' death is said to be certain.

And Still Another.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Another crank to break out as the probable result of the killing of Mayor Harrison of Chicago made a plunge into the office of Edwin Gould yesterday afternoon. He saw Gould and demanded $5000 from him. Mr. Gould realized on the moment that he had a crank to deal with, and acted with coolness and discretion. Before the man could do any mischief a detective had him handcuffed safely and on his way to police headquarters. His name, he said, was Mangolia Andrews, and he came from Rosedale, Kan. The only explanation he had to offer for calling on Gould and demanding $5000 was that he had lost that amount as the result of the strike on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy road about a year and a half ago, and he held Gould responsible for the loss. Andrews, describing himself, said he was a telegraph operator, was married, 34 years of age, and living at 378 Pearl street, Brooklyn. Andrews is undoubtedly insane.

Guarding Mayor Gilroy.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—An extra grain of caution was manifested yesterday by the police and messengers who guard the door of Mayor Gilroy's office. Every visitor of suspicious appearance was closely scrutinized before being allowed to enter. Edward Heatherton, the mayor's messenger, is a believer in the rule of three, and thinks two other men of note are likely to fall victims to the fate that overtook Chicago's mayor. The mayor himself is not troubled by any uneasiness and was unaware of the precautions being taken for his safety.

Boston Cranks Make Threats.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—In connection with the assassination of Mayor Harrison of Chicago by a disappointed political "crank," the fact has come out that Boston has some of the same kind of people as the one who ended the life of Chicago's mayor. Mayor Matthews was questioned about the matter, but he was too busy to make any statement. City Architect Wheelwright, however, said that since he has been a city official he has received many threatening letters from disappointed persons.

ROBBED OF $100,000.

Startling Discovery Made by James A. Bailey of Circus Fame.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 31.—It is a practical certainty that the Forepaugh show, of which James A. Bailey is the owner, will not again go on the road; at least, under the proprietorship of Mr. Bailey. The reason is a substantial one. Mr. Bailey has been robbed, and the sum filched from him is, from trustworthy reports, nearly $100,000.

Since the death of Mr. Barnum, Mr. Bailey has been the sole proprietor of the Forepaugh show, he having purchased the interests of Mr. Barnum and George Cooper, who had been equal partners with him in the property.

As it was necessary that almost the whole of his time should be devoted to his much more important interest in the Barnum & Bailey show, he looked around for a manager for the Forepaugh show, and selected his brother-in-law, Joseph McCadden, a young man of about 28 years.

Thomas Evans, who had been Mr. Barnum's representative in the Forepaugh show, was continued in the latter show by Mr. Bailey as secretary, and T. F. Callan, one of the fastest ticket sellers in the business, was put in as another trusted representative of Mr. Bailey.

Shortly after the show went on the road McCadden made several changes. He installed his nephew as cashier, and Callan was changed from the Forepaugh to the Barnum & Bailey show, and has been with the latter almost the entire season.

Mr. Bailey says that nearly $100,000 has been stolen from him in the Forepaugh show, and that he has discovered that there has been a conspiracy which included employes in all departments, from the ticket wagon to doortenders and ushers. Only through such a combination would it have been possible for such wholesale thievery to have been committed.

It is said that Evans, Callan and McCadden are free from suspicion, but that, as the result of what Mr. Bailey has discovered, a number of arrests may be made any day.

Had 106 Criminal Cases.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 31.—The superior court, criminal term, began yesterday, with Judge Hopkins on the bench, and the largest criminal docket ever before the Plymouth county court, including 106 cases, 62 being from Brockton. The traverse juries were sworn, Seth M. Briggs of Hanover being foreman of the first, and Abbott T. Hewitt of East Bridgewater foreman of the second jury.

A Brilliant Token.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Members of the board of lady managers have prepared an elegant token for Mrs. Potter Palmer in the shape of a locket suspended from a hoop of diamonds. On one side is the portrait of Queen Isabella in enamel on gold, and on the other is an a mirable medallion likeness of Mrs. Palmer. It is fittingly inscribed.

The Providence Mystery.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 31.—Peter Mulvey was held in $7000 bail on a charge of assaulting his father, who died last Thursday from the effects of a blow. The family claim that the old man received his injuries accidentally.

AN UNANSWERED QUESTION.

Why Do Cats' Eyes Shine In the Dark While Men's Eyes Do Not?

Why do cats' eyes shine in the dark while men's eyes do not? The author of "Idle Days In Patagonia" raises this question without answering it. He shot and wounded an eagle owl, and the sight of the bird, he says, was one of the greatest surprises with which nature ever favored him. The owl's haunt was an island overgrown with grass and tall willows. Thither Mr. Hudson went toward evening and found him upon his perch waiting for sunset. He eyed the intruder so calmly as almost to disarm him, but hunters of specimens have a way of hardening their hearts. Mr. Hudson fired. The owl swerved on his perch, remained suspended for a few moments and then slowly fluttered down. He says:

I found my victim stung to fury by his wounds and ready for the last supreme effort. Even in repose he is a big, eaglelike bird; now in the uncertain light he looked gigantic in size—a monster of strange form and terrible aspect.

Each particular feather stood on end, the tawny barred tail spread out like a fan, the immense tiger colored wings wide open and rigid, so that as the bird, that had clutched the grass with his great feathered claws, swayed slowly from side to side—just as a snake about to strike sways his head, or as an angry, watchful cat moves its tail—first the tip of one, then of the other wing touched the ground.

The black horns stood erect, while in the center of the wheel shaped head the beak snapped incessantly, producing a sound like the clicking of a sewing machine. This was a suitable setting for the pair of magnificent, furious eyes, on which I gazed with a kind of fascination, not unmixed with fear, when I remembered the agony suffered on former occasions from sharp, crooked talons driven into me to the bone.

The irides were of a bright orange color, but every time I attempted to approach the bird they kindled into great globes of quivering yellow flame, the black pupils being surrounded by a scintillating crimson light which threw out minute yellow sparks into the air. When I retired from the bird, this preternatural fiery aspect would instantly vanish.

The question as to the cause of this fiery appearance is one hard to answer. We know that the source of the luminosity in owls' and cats' eyes is the light reflecting membrane between the retina and the sclerotic coat of the eyeball, but the mystery remains. When with the bird, I particularly noticed that every time I retired the nictilating membrane would immediately cover the eyes and obscure them for some time, as they will when an owl is confronted with strong sunlight, and this gave me the impression that the fiery, flashing appearance was accompanied with or followed by a burning or smarting sensation.

I have lived a great deal among semi-savage men. I have often seen them frenzied with excitement, their faces white as ashes, their hair erect and their eyes dropping great tears of rage, but I have never seen in them anything approaching to that fiery appearance of the owl.—Youth's Companion.

How Sugar Melts.

If we drop a lump of sugar into a cup of tea, we find it takes a considerable time to melt if allowed to remain at the bottom of the vessel, but if we hold it up in the spoon near the surface of the liquid it dissolves much more speedily. This is owing to the sugar, as it melts, rendering the portion of the tea containing it heavier. The sweetened part, therefore, descends, leaving the sugar constantly in contact with unsweetened or only partially sweetened tea, in fact, a continual circulation of fluid is promoted until the whole is dissolved.

When the sugar is placed or permitted to lie at the bottom of the cup, it dissolves until the layer of fluid next it is thoroughly sweetened or saturated, when it practically ceases to dissolve any further, the sweetened and heavier stratum above it acting for a considerable time, until the law of diffusion comes gradually into play, like an impervious covering in keeping back the lighter unsweetened fluid above.

Hence the reason also why stirring, in breaking up the saturated layer and allowing access to the unsweetened portion, is so effectual in bringing about the uniform sweetening of tea. Life is not infrequently sweetened by the same stirring up process.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Duration of Noah's Flood.

In Gould's "Notes and Queries," volume 6, page 284, the following questions are asked: "Are the floods known as Noah's, Ducalion's and the Atlantean deluges considered to be one and the same?" The editor refers the question to his correspondents, and Mrs. L. T. George of Chicago answers it, incidentally giving the following curious particulars and minute details concerning the "great breaking up of the waters:" "The deluge was threatened in the year 1536 and began on Dec. 7, 1656, B. C., and continued 377 days. The ark rested upon Mount Ararat on May 6, 1657, but Noah did not leave it until Dec. 18 following." Any reader who imagines that it would be an easy task to figure these details from the Biblical account can find a basis for his calculations in the seventh and eighth chapters of Genesis. —St. Louis Republic.

Saddle on the Wrong Horse.

An emaciated dude applied to a Harlem livery stable and wanted to hire a horse, but a deposit was demanded.

"You want $50 deposit. Do you think I am going to run off with the horse?" asked the dude.

"No, but I'm afraid the horse will run off with you," responded the livery stableman.—Texas Siftings.

RACING IN MODERN ROME.

Riderless Horses Goaded to Furious Speed With Balls of Prickles.

The prizes for these races were called palii, and were usually pieces of brocade or some other rich stuff, which was thrown over the back of the horse that won and so displayed to the people. We also hear of a procession of the palii, so no doubt they often took the form of banner. The nobles used to deposit them in their chapels, and in the last days of the papal government the French soldiers substituted for the procession of the palii that of the bue grasso.

The pope's dragoons used to gallop through the Corso to clear it before the race, and to warn the people that it had actually started. Either mortars were fired or trumpets blown, but accidents were perpetually occurring, and when in 1886 two people were killed just below the balcony where stood the Queen Margherita, the Barbary races were forbidden in the Corso for the future, though renewed last year in a very much modified form around the Piazza del Popolo.

The horses had no riders, but carried two balls of lead, covered with prickles, loosely attached by leather thongs below the neck and on the back. So of course the harder they galloped the more these prickly balls danced up and down and goaded them on.

Dashing furiously along the Corso, they were past almost before people knew that they had started, and in such a narrow street, with such a crush of people on either side and somebody always trying to cross at the last moment or stepping out of the throng to see if they were coming, it was small wonder that it was a dangerous game, though of course the danger was in part also the attraction.

A sheet was stretched across the street to catch the horses at the back of Piazza Venezia, in the passage still called Via della Ripresa de Barberi, in front of which was a cord covered with wet red paint. This dropped before the rush of the foremost horse, leaving a streak of paint on his chest, and thus all knew at once which was the winner.—Gentleman's Magazine.

A Loud Telephone.

An English paper describes a telephone which will talk loud enough for a person in any part of a large room to hear and understand. Mr. Graham, the inventor, has succeeded not so much by an improvemnt on the existing telephones as by his method of arranging the circuit and bringing its resistance as low as possible. To this end the usual induction coil is discarded, and the two instruments, transmitter and receiver, are directly connected in circuit with the line and the battery. The transmitter at one end of the line is connected to the receiver at the other end, and two separate lines are employed having a common return wire. Two correspondents can thus talk quite freely with each other, and as the receivers speak out so as to be heard in any part of a room conversation can be carried on by each person simply speaking to his transmitter.

The apparatus is attached to flexible conductors and is held in the hand. To open a conversation it is sufficient to pick up the portable transmitter and press a button in its casing, so as to establish the circuit. The receiver at the other end acts as its own call bell by the loudness of its voice, and the response comes equally prompt and loud. The user has therefore no need to listen carefully with one or two receivers held up to his head. All he has to do is to speak into his transmitter and keep his ears open.

Sisterly Devotion.

The beautiful Margaret of Navarre was devoted to her brother, Francis I. When he was apparently dying at Madrid, she found her way to him through privation and danger and succeeded in effecting his deliverance. When he was ill at a distance from her, she went every day and sat down on a stone in the middle of the road to catch the first glimpse of a messenger afar off. And she said:

"Ah! whoever shall come to announce the recovery of the king, my brother, though he be tired, jaded, soiled, disheveled, I will kiss him and embrace him as though he were the finest gentleman in the kingdom."

When he died, she seemed literally heartbroken, and she did not long survive him.—Youth's Companion.

The Largest In the World.

Within sight of the station at Atherstone, on the London and Northwestern railway, there is to be seen an enormous earthenware jug, the largest in the world. This capacious article was manufactured at the Potteries, Church Gresley, over 50 years ago. Its holding capacity, when full, is 150 quarts, and it is so large that a man can sit inside it. It now rests over the front door of a china, glass and earthenware warehouse.—Exchange.

Franklin's Fate Prefigured.

The fate of Franklin, the explorer, was unwittingly prefigured, and on the eve of his starting on his last voyage, at the hands of his own devoted wife. As he lay dozing on a sofa Lady Franklin threw something over his feet, on which he awoke in consternation, saying: "Why, there's a flag thrown over me! Don't you know that they lay the union jack over a corpse?"—London Tit-Bits.

False Eyelashes.

Not content with false teeth and false hair and other falsenesses, the Parisian ladies are now wearing false eyelashes. Long, drooping eyelashes can be obtained at quite a reasonable cost. They are threaded on a fine needle, which is drawn through the skin of the eyelid in loops, which are afterward cut. The operation is said to be perfectly painless. —Paris Letter.
